BEFORE THE RAILROAD

We are indebted to P. H. Swarthout for a copy of the Pinckney Dispatch published April 5, 1883. It was addressed to C. N. Plimpton and is a well printed sheet published by Jerome Winchell, who mentions editorially that after three months since the first number was published the patronage was more than had been expected.

One paragraph states that grading for the new railroad was starting east of the village. Another paragraph says: "Some of our merchants complain that it takes five days to get goods from Detroit to Dexter on the Michigan Central and they now propose trying the D. L. & N. via Howell."

The postmistress was Mrs. S. P. Young. The following entire Democratic ticket as elected in Putnam township:

Supervisor ..... James Marble.
Township Clerk ..... W. P. Van Winkle.
Treasurer ..... L. W. Reeves.
Justice ..... C. N. Plimpton.
Highway Commissioner ..... H. Smith.
School Inspector ..... Daniel W. Murta.
Constable—John Jeffreys, Philander Monroe, Malachy Roche.

In the "Married" column were notices of the following weddings, all by Rev. Dr. Duhig: Emory Markham and Miss Anna Caffrey, Richard Shehan and Miss Mary White, John Connor and Miss Mary Lyman.

The following items are gleaned from the "local" columns:

From all reports thus far received it would seem the Greenback-Democratic combination has swept the entire state at the spring election.

Just listen for a while and you will hear a locomotive whistle—sure.

It is said that several more Brighton business firms contemplate moving to Pinckney.

E. A. Allen will soon commence the erection of a building on Howell street just south of the Globe hotel. He has purchased the old Pickett house, which will be moved to his lot and used for the back part of his building.

A great many people are watching Pinckney just now, "almost persuaded" to come and dwell with us. Come along, friends, and lend a hand to start the ball rolling. We'll wager a new nickel you won't regret it, if there's any business in you.

According to the "Village Directory", Rev. F. E. Pearce was pastor of the M. E. church and K. H. Crane, in the Congregational pulpit.

Miss L. M. Coe was president of the W. C. T. U. and Mrs. Dr. Sigler, secretary.

Mrs. Susan Nye and Mary Van Fleet were president and secretary of the W. P. M. S.

F. A. Sigler, Com. of Livingston Tent 285, K. O. T. M.

C. D. Van Winkle, W. M. and C. V. Van Winkle, secretary of Livingston Lodge, No. 78, F. and A. M.

The paper was well patronized by local advertisers, among whom the following are mentioned:

S. Gilchrist, manufacturer and dealer in harness, saddles, whips, etc.

T. H. Turner, Homeopathic physician and surgeon.

L. V. Brown, shaving parlor.

Teeple & Cadwell, hardware.

L. E. Richards, general store.

R. E. Finch, painting and decorating.

E. A. Mann, dry goods and groceries.

There were three drug stores, Sigler Bros., C. E. Hollister and Winchell's drug store.

I. S. P. Johnson, sewing machines.

W. R. Rainey, dentist.

James T. Eamann, also W. P. Van Winkle, attorneys:

Thomas Clinton, boot and shoe shop.

Brown and Collier, hardware.

Sykes & Son, manufacturers of carriages and sleighs.

James Markey, farm machinery, Hero reapers.

W. S. Mann Estate, general store.

Wm. Dolan & Co., groceries and dry goods.

Grimes & Johnson, Pinckney Flouring Mills.

C. A. Wheeler, post office store.

C. N. Plimpton, undertaker.

Christian Brown, blacksmith.

W. H. Hoff, boots and shoes.

D. F. Ewen, gardener and horticulturist.

J. H. Burton, gunsmith and jeweler.

Christian Brown had "desirable lots" for sale.

W. H. Caffrey of East Saginaw offered "the finest residence in the village of Pinckney" corner Main and Howell streets.

Mrs. Hicks was the milliner.

Mrs. Dr. Thatcher gave music lessons.

Chicago, Illinois.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a pain in my trouble. I had two doctors and all said the same—an operation. At first I only felt the pain on my left side, but later I seemed to feel it on both sides. I am a power sawing-machine operator and have a little girl to support. I work in a tailor shop and that kind of work has been very hard this year and I am home part of the time. I do not like to take any medicine, so I consulted my friends, and they said, 'Take Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,' so I did. I have felt better ever since and am in good health again. ### "SEÑORA, ALLOW ME!"

SYNOPSIS.—General factotum in the house of her sister Ina, wife of Herbert Deacon, in the small town of Warbleton, Lulu Bett leads a dull, cramped existence, with which she is constantly at enmity, though apparently satisfied with her lot. That is, except for Bobby, whom Ina, recently graduated high school youth, secretly enamored of Deacon's elder daughter, Diana, an applicant for a "job" around the Deacon house. He is engaged. The family is excited over the news of an approaching visit from Deacon's brother, Ninian, whom he had not seen for many years. Deacon jokes with Lulu, with subtle meaning, concerning the coming meeting. Lulu is interested and speculative, meanwhile watching with something like envy the boy-and-girl love-making of Bobby and Diana. Unexpectedly, Ninian arrives. This is the beginning of a series of events which will bring about a change in Lulu's life.

She thought now, sitting by the kitchen window, adult yet Cinderella.

She thought that some one would come for her—her mother or even Ina. Perhaps they would send Monona. She waited at first hopefully, then resentfully. The gray rain wrapped the air.

"Nobody cares what becomes of me after they're fed," she thought, and derived an obscure satisfaction from her phrasing, and thought it again.

Ninian Deacon came into the kitchen.

Her first impression was that he had come to see whether the dog had been fed.

"I fed him," she said, and wished that she had been busy when Ninian entered.

"Who, me?" he asked. "You did that all right. Say, why in time don't you come in the other room?"

"Oh, I don't know."

"Well, neither do I. I've kept thinking, 'Why don't she come along? Then I remembered the dishes.' He glanced about.

"'Oh,'" she laughed so delicately, so delightfully, one wondered where she got it. "They're washed—" she caught herself at "long ago."

"Well then, what are you doing here?"

"Resting."

"Rest in there. He bowed, crooked his arm. "Senora," he said—his Spanish matched his other assimilations of travel— "Senora, allow me."

Lulu rose. On his arm she entered the parlor. Dwight was narrating and did not observe that entrance. To the plows it was sufficiently normal. But Ina looked up and said:

"Well!"—in two notes, descending, crescendo.

Lulu did not look at her. Lulu sat in low rocker. Her starched white skirt, throwing her chaly in ugly lines, revealed a peeping rim of white embroidery. Her lace front wrinkled when she sat, and perpetually she adjusted it. She curled her feet sideways beneath her chair, her long wrists and veined hands lay along her lap in no relation to her. She was tense. She rocked.

When Dwight had finished his narration, there was a pause, broken last by Mrs. Bett:

"You tell that better than you used to when you started in telling it," she observed. "You got in some things I guess you used to clean forget about. Monona, get off my rocker."

Monona made a little whimpering sound, in pretense to tears. Ina said, "Darling—quiet!"—chin a little lifted, lower lip revealing lower teeth for the word's completion; and she held it.

The plows were asking something about Mexico. Dwight was wondering if it would let up raining at all. Di and Jenny came whispering into the room. But all these distractions Ninian Deacon swept aside.

"Miss Lulu," he said, "I wanted you to hear about my trip up the Amazon, because I knew how interested you are in travels."

He talked, according to his lights, about the Amazon. But the person who most enjoyed the recital could not afterward have told two words that he said. Lulu kept the position which she had taken at first, and she dare not change. She saw the blood in the veins of her hands and wanted to hide them. She wondered if she might fold her arms, or have one hand to support her chin, gave it all up and sat motionless, save for the rocking.

Then she forgot everything. For the first time in years some one was talking and looking not only at Ina and Dwight and their guests, but at her.

III.

June.

On a June morning Dwight Herbert Deacon looked at the sky, and said with his manner of originating it:

"How about a picnic this afternoon?"

Ina, with her blank, upward look, exclaimed: "Today?"

"First class day, it looks like to me."

Come to think of it, Ina didn't know that there was anything to prevent, but mercy. Herbert was so sudden, Lulu began to recite the resources of the house for a lunch. Meanwhile, since the first mention of picnic, the child Monona had been dancing stiffly about the room, knees stiff, elbows stiff, shoulders immovable, her straight hair flapping about her face. The sad dance of the child who cannot dance because she never has danced. Di gave a conservative assent—she was at that age—and then took advantage of the family softness incident to a guest and demanded that Bobby go too. Ina hesitated, partly because she always hesitated, partly because she was tribal in the extreme. "Just our little family and Uncle Ninian would have been so nice," she sighed, with her consent.

When, at six o'clock, Ina and Dwight and Ninian assembled on the porch and Lulu came out with the basket, it was seen that she was in a blue cotton house gown.

"I'm not a housekeeper," said Ninian, "but I can make a good meal."

"I'm not a housekeeper," said Ninian, "but I can make a good meal."

"Me!" said Lulu. "Oh, no."

"Why not?"

"Oh, I haven't been to a picnic since I can remember."

"But why not?"

"Oh, I never think of such a thing."

Ninian waited for the family to speak. They did speak. Dwight said:

"Lulu's a regular home body."

And Ina advanced kindly with:

"Come with us, Lulu, if you like."

"No," said Lulu, and flushed.

"Thank you," she added, formally.

Mrs. Bett's voice shrilled from within the house, startlingly close—just beyond the window blind, in fact:

"Go on, Lulu. It'll do you good. You mind me and go on."

"Well," said Ninian, "that's what I say. You hustle for your hat and you come along."

For the first time this course presented itself to Lulu as a possibility. She stared up at Ninian.

"You can slip on my linen duster, over," Ina said graciously.

"Your new one?" Dwight incredulously wished to know.

"Oh, no!" Ina laughed at the idea.

"The old one."

They were having to wait for Di in any case—they always had to wait for Di—and at last, hardly believing in her own motions, Lulu was running to make ready. Mrs. Bett hurried to help her, but she took down the wrong things and they were both irritated.

Lulu reappeared in the linen duster and a wide hat. There had been no time to "tighten up" her hair; she was flushed at the adventure; she had never looked so well.

They started. Lulu, falling in with Monona, heard for the first time in her life, the step of the pursuing male, choosing to walk beside her and the little girl. Oh, would Ina like that?

And what did Lulu care what Ina liked? Monona, making a silly, semi-articulate observation, was enchanted to have Lulu burst into laughter and squeeze her hand.

Di contributed her bright presence, and Bobby Larkin appeared from nowhere, running, with a gigantic bag of fruit.

"Bullyulah!" he shouted, and Lulu could have shouted with him.

She sought for some utterance. She wanted to talk with Ninian.

"I do hope we've brought sandwiches enough," was all that she could get to say.

They chose a spot, that is to say,

Dwight Herbert chose a spot, across the river and up the shore where there was at that season a strip of warm beach. Dwight Herbert declared himself the builder of incomparable fires and made bad smudge. Ninian, who was a camper neither by birth nor by adoption, kept offering brightly to help, could think of nothing to do, and presently, bethinking himself of skipping stones, went and tried to skip them on the flowing river. Ina cut her hand opening the condensed milk and was obliged to sit under a tree and nurse the wound. Monona spilled all the salt and sought diligently to recover it. So Lulu did all the work. As for Di and Bobby, they had taken the pall and gone for water, discouraging her to the point of tears. But the two were gone for so long that, on their return, Dwight was hungry and cross and majestic.

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN
FTER Armistice day—
Thanksgiving! The one a day of martial thrills and, perhaps, poignant memories; the other with its lesson that "peace hath its victories no less renowned than those of war." We may not know just yet how to celebrate November 11, because of its newness as a day of national observance. But Thanksgiving is real old-fashioned. So we know all about the proper celebration of this old American holiday.

Popular opinion insists upon fixing the first Thanksgiving day in 1621, when the Pilgrims celebrated the gathering of their first harvest. They certainly had a large feast; it lasted five days, and they and their Indian guests ate at least five deer. The first Thanksgiving day observed in all the states was on December 18, 1777; it was recommended by proclamation of the Continental congress after the surrender of Burgoyne. For 11 years thereafter congress recommended a day of thanksgiving, and the several states made appointment in accordance. Then there was an interval in which the fixing of the date was left wholly to the states. The first congress under the federal Constitution adopted a resolution asking President Washington to recommend a day for national thanksgiving and prayer, and the President's proclamation named Thursday, November 26, of that year. The anti-Federalists made such a rumpus over it that it was not repeated until 1786, when President Washington, without recommendation by congress, set February 19 as a day of thanksgiving.

Then Thanksgiving day apparently went into the discard as a national holiday. Anyway, until 1815 there was no other national appointment. In that year, by a resolution of congress and proclamation of the President, April 14 was set apart as a day of national thanksgiving for the restoration of peace.

That was the end of an official national Thanksgiving day for nearly half a century. It was revived by President Lincoln when he appointed a special day of thanksgiving for the victory of Gettysburg, August 6, 1863.

In the meantime the American people had been celebrating Thanksgiving day pretty much all over the Union, without bothering about presidential and gubernatorial proclamations. The American knows a good thing when he sees it. President Lincoln, being of the people, took occasion with his Gettysburg proclamation to nationalize the November Thanksgiving day. So for 60 years or so Thanksgiving eats have been attacked and demolished as a patriotic duty.

Theoretically, of course, we should be planning to attend church in the morning to give thanks to Divine Providence for the mercies and blessings of the year to us both as individuals and as citizens of the greatest and wealthiest and most fortunate nation on earth. Individually, as compared with the peoples of other nations, we Americans are most of us pretty well off—much better off than we realize. And really, you know, it is the easiest thing in the world to find all kinds of proof of the working of Divine Providence in our American history. By rights a public and private thanksgiving on a commensurate scale should be the nation-wide feature of Thanksgiving day.

But, if the truth must be told, most of us are looking forward to our Thanksgiving dinner as the main feature of our Thanksgiving day—thinking of the good things we'll have, if we have the price; wondering where it will come from, if we haven't.

Yes: "Thanksgiving Day—Some Eats" comes pretty near being the slogan of our great American home and family festival. So now for the eats:

Would I could say with Charles Lamb—when he wrote his ode to goose pie—"Full of my theme, O Muse!" Still, the debating societies continue to thunder over the question "Is anticipation superior to realization?" So maybe I am better off as I am. Certainly it would be a terrifying task to write this right after an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner. Black coffee, tobacco and peace is what a man wants then.

Turkey and cranberry sauce, that's the main thing. Really, you know, the rest is just fixin'. Nature's a pretty good old dame, after all. What if she had given us turkey and had forgotten all about the cranberries? Why, the two are just made to go together—sort of gastronomic affinities. One shudders at the thought of egg without salt, goose without apple sauce, duck without currant jelly. But turkey with cranberry sauce on Thanksgiving is unthinkable.

The man who deliberately and with malice aforethought eats turkey before Thanksgiving day should be put in jail until after Thanksgiving day, or put through a psychopathic third degree. He's sticking out his tongue and making faces at old Mother Nature. Did you ever get so thirsty that every separate atom in you was shrieking like a toothache for water? No? Well, that's the way to find out how cold spring water tastes. Did you ever shoot all day on a duck marsh when the spray froze on the paddle and push-pole? No? Well, that's the way to find out what a blazing fireplace feels like. That's Nature's way.

Why, a man ought to approach that sacred Thanksgiving dinner only after purification like that of the knights of old. He ought to go to it hungry. He ought to go to that turkey fairly trembling with the anticipation of nearly a year of abstinence. You know that. I know it. Everybody knows it. Alas, that this Twentieth century civilization of ours with its manifold vagaries is no longer sane, safe and sober!

And someone with really devilish ingenuity should think up punishment to fit the crime for the housewife who blocks the way to the turkey with appetizers and cocktails and soups and oysters and such like. Me, I want to sit hungry and plumb empty and watch the carving of the turkey and tremble with expectation and water at the mouth. I want my first mouthful of my Thanksgiving dinner to be turkey and cranberry sauce—turkey and cranberry sauce, and nothing else.

Of course I expect to fuss around later with stuffing and mashed potatoes and gravy and maybe candied sweet potatoes and maybe even creamed onions. And doubtless I'll find time for more than one long swig of sweet cider. But turkey's my meat Thanksgiving day. The rest is just fixin's, as aforesaid.

Salad? Well, it all depends upon the man—and how many times his plate has gone up to the carver—and what's coming. And if there's pumpkin pie and Herkimer county cheese coming—as there should be—I know one man who is not interested in the salad or in anything but that pie and that cheese. The festive board may groan with good things, and keep on groaning for all he cares.

And while we are sitting around after, at peace with all the world and the inhabitants thereof, let's pause to give a kindly thought and grateful to Lo, the poor Indian. For it was he who introduced the wild turkey to the Pilgrim Fathers. And it was he who discovered to him the pumpkin pie.

The Indian of eastern America may have been a poor, ignorant savage, according to some standards, but he had good taste in eats. And he was no fool as an agriculturist. He planted his corn in rows. And up the cornstalks climbed the bean vines. And between the rows grew the pumpkin, shading the ground and keeping down the weeds. Hominy, cornpone, cornmeal mush, stewed pumpkin, succotash, maple sugar, cranberries, nut butter—why, somebody ought to set up a monument to those noble red men alongside Plymouth Rock.

Wireless Fence

On opposite corners in a little town the two men. Each has a lawn, which, since spring, has been used as highway and thoroughfare by all who wanted to save five feet in rounding those corners. One man's sign read: "Keep off," and was re-enforced by a wire fence. The other's was longer and read: "Suggestion—if you don't walk across here, it may be a lawn some day." This one had no wire fence. Such is the perversity of human nature, that many people still get their exercise by jumping the wire fence on the first man's place. The other is undisturbed.—Collier's Weekly.

"JUST JOFFRE"—THAT'S ALL

Evidently Great French Soldier Is Also Gifted With a Certain Sense of Humor.

Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, arriving in Paris, found the passenger elevator at the Quai d'Orsay station out of order and cheerfully adopted the suggestion of the station master that he might use the freight elevator. Just as the elevator boy was slaming the gates shut, there came rushing toward the lift a thick-set, elderly man, breathing heavily. He made as if to enter the elevator, but the attendants waved him off.

"I am just as heavy and as old as your lone passenger," the man declared, "why should you refuse to take me up?"

"Because this is Lord Curzon," responded the railroad man implessly.

"Oh, well, that's all right," replied the stranger, making for the stairs, "I'm only Joffre." He was given a lift.

Truly Wonderful.

An airplane was flying over the countryside and the pilot was indulging in a little stunting. Absent-mindedly he looped the loop, quite forgetting that he had on board a parcel containing a pair of boots.

Naturally they dropped out and landed just in front of an old woman in a cottage garden.

The package burst open and out rolled the boots, much to her astonishment.

Picking them up, she hobbled indoors and called out to her husband: "Ere you are, Garge! They boots you ordered 'ave come. What a wunnerful thing this wireless is! I thought I 'eard the buzz of 'em coming through the air."—London Tit-Bits.

Difference in Outlook. A circus was coming and Billy particularly wanted 25 cents.

A neighbor asked him to hoe his potatoe saying: "I'll make it all right with you."

Billy hoed energetically, and when the job was finished, went over for his pay.

When he returned, I asked, "Did he make it all right with you?"

Displaying one lone dime, the little fellow said, "Maybe it's all right for him, but it's all wrong for me."—Exchange.

Not Interested.

"Do you attach importance to the Einstein theory?"

"No," replied Senator Borghum. "We may as well forget it. I never heard of its making votes for anybody."

Some men are too busy to grow old.

POISONED GLUE FOR BIBLES

Particular Protection Necessary for Books Intended for Circulation in the Gilbert Islands.

Not only must Bibles be attractively bound and well printed, but some of them must be perfumed, peppered and poisoned as well. Bibles going to the Gilbert Islands contain in the binding glue and the paste which fastens the cover a mixture of oil of cloves, cayenne pepper and corrosive sublimate.

This is to ward off a certain worm peculiar to these islands, which destroys the bindings of books. Twelve hundred such Bibles have been sent recently by the United States Bible Society on their 18,000-mile journey to Ocean Island by way of Sydney, Australia. Rev. D. Hiram Bingham, the famous missionary translator, gave his life to the preparation of the Bible in the Gilbertese language.

A country merchant was in his store when a little boy came in and the following conversation ensued:

"Boy, what is your name?"

"My name is Ephram, suh."

"Well, Ephram, what is your daddy's name?"

"Ah ain't got no daddy."

It was the 11th of November and a darky down South was asked if he knew what was being celebrated that day.

Do you hear the clock strike the night hours?

HOW often you have heard people say, "I can't drink coffee; it keeps me awake nights!" They've learned from experience; have you?

If you are a coffee drinker and fail to get sound restful sleep, it means that your nerves are over-stimulated and that health needs protection from coffee's drug, caffeine.

There's no sacrifice in making health safe, as so many thousands have found who have turned from coffee to Postum. It has a delightful coffee-like flavor, and is free from any element that can harm you. As many cups as you like, and no regrets.

Your grocer has Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

The two forms of Postum are equally delicious; and the cost is only about 1

RED CROSS NOTES

School inspection at Fowlerville was completed last week. 257 pupils were inspected, 60 were found to have defects as follows—Defective eyes 58—teeth 59—hearing 25—tonsils and adenoids 43—10% or more below average weight for height and age 41—20% above average weight 27. In comparing this with the result of inspection of same school two years ago find nutritional conditions much better. At that time 32.6% of pupils inspected were found to be 10% below average weight, now only 6% were below. Other defects compared about the same for the two inspections.

FOUND—One school in Livingston county where neither tea or coffee is used by the pupils. While giving a health talk at this school recently, one boy was still drinking tea, explained to him that he was keeping his school from being the only 100% school in the county against tea and coffee. His reply, made more emphatic by a slap on his desk, was: "I shall quit right now, no more tea for me."

A request from the Chairman of Junior Red Cross of Central Division, of which Michigan is a part, has been received, asking our Junior organization to assist in making Christmas brighter for our disabled ex-service men in the U. S. Veterans Bureau hospitals of the country. Christmas Day this year will find 30,000 ex-service men in hospitals, 10,000 of these are in hospitals located within the territory of the Central Division. Our first and best thought at the Christmas season should be for these disabled men. As we have no Junior Red Cross organization in our county, perhaps some of our school children would like to assist in this work. If so, communicate immediately with Red Cross office at Howell, stating just what you can do and amount ready by the Christmas season, and hospitals will be assigned to us.

Following activities have been suggested as having been used in the past and appreciated by our disabled men.

1. Sending Christmas stocking to ex-service men filled with inexpensive gifts, wholesome candy, shelled nuts, boxed dates, figs, gum, etc.

2. Sending to hospitals potted plants, phonograph records, suitable books, games.

3. Making small calendars in the school for personal use of ex-service men.

RUNNING A NEWSPAPER

Anybody can run a newspaper. All you have to do is to buy a plant, know how to operate it, from the front door to the back door. Then hustle around and get copy. First, you must get all the local and general news spread about town most anywhere; and you are expected to be most everywhere to news which comes slicking to you. You have to buy the general, the telephone and telegraph. Then you must collect the money, pay the bills and keep everybody in a good humor. And the thing most important is never to leave out of the paper the names of the important ones, and never to put them in when they should be left out. And you will learn this trick after you have been hauled out a few times. Of course getting the money to pay bills is the easiest job of all, almost as easy as pleasing everybody. Most of the people who know exactly how to run a newspaper and make it pay are those who have failed in the business. They are very wise. Try it. It's great fun.—Palestine (Tex.) Herald.

HOWELL—Edwin Smith of this place was held up at the point of a gun Tuesday evening about seven o'clock, but grappled with his assailant and escaped being robbed by entering a nearby house.

MILFORD—An apple tree in the rear of Mrs. Crosby's store, has within the past week put forth a profusion of blossoms. In the spring one side of the tree did not blossom, and it is this side that has now appeared with November blossoms. In evidence of the forgoing, a jar of the apple blossoms may be seen in the window of Mrs. Crosby's store.—Milford Times.

BRIGHTON—The voters of Brighton village at the special election Tuesday said "no" in regard to the purchase of the old fair ground property, which has been known of late as Recreation Park. That is, 87 voters said "no" while 128 voted "yes." As the question required a two-thirds vote it was lost by a fair margin. There were 217 ballots cast, and one was blank. The village has had the use of this property for ball games and special doing for some forty years or more and the loss of it is sure to be felt. Those who are especially anxious for the acquisition of the property have not given up hopes that some way may be provided yet to hold the park. The vote Monday shows that a big majority of the citizens of the village are anxious to secure the place and where the feeling is so strong in this direction there may some way come to light that is even more advantageous than to purchase by taxation. The promoters of the scheme want to thank the people of Brighton for the vote.

GRASS LAKE—Confronted by irrefutable evidence in the hands of Undersheriff Verl Kutt and Deputy Walter Larabee, Terry Dean an ex-convict, at the jail awaiting disposition of his case, burglar tools, confessed Wednesday afternoon to robbing Foster & Babcock's general store at Grass Lake about four weeks ago.

Pat O'Neil, alias Rider, implicated in the robbery by Dean's confession, was arrested later in the afternoon at his room. He confessed and helped the officers recover most of the stolen goods, which were identified later in the day by the Grass Lake merchant who went to Jackson as soon as notified.

The loot recovered consisted of suits raincoats, shirts, ties, caps, underwear, garters, cans of powder, suitcases, traveling bags and other articles.

In their confession the men stated they went to Grass Lake about three o'clock the afternoon preceding the robbery. They walked out in the country and played solitaire. After supper time they started back to the village, passing a church where singing could be heard.

About eleven o'clock they entered the store and stayed until about two o'clock in the morning. They packed their swags in grips and took the paved road to Leoni and caught the first car in the morning to Jackson.

They will be charged with breaking and entering in the night time.

Fresh Air Camps Put Tb. To Rout

ing for him on the hotel porch when the young doctor ran up the steps: a good-looking lad, if he had not been so wasted with fever. He was in the most advanced stage of tuberculosis, dying, as Burroughs had said; but since TB kills its victims by tortured inches, Dr. Merritt foresaw that it might be weeks before death came.

"Edgar Robinson," the young man whispered in reply to the doctor's inquiry as to his name.

"How long have you been sick, Robinson?" inquired the doctor, cheerfully as he could.

"Why, I've been in the house since January; but Dad can't pay doctor's bills, and 'twasn't much but a bad cold, I thought, anyhow. So I just stayed in and kept warm; haven't had much appetite, you know, but I haven't been really sick. There's eight of us in the family, though, and Dad couldn't keep a loaf, any longer, I didn't think, and so I told him, if he'd bring me into town, maybe somebody—" Edgar's eyes glinted hopefully.

Burroughs beckoned the doctor to the end of the porch: "Gosh, I wish I could keep him," he rumbled regretfully. "But I got a duty to the public." "If there was a hospital—" began the doctor.

"Ain't any within thirty miles," answered Burroughs. "And that's always full. If there was one of these TB sanatoriums in Jefferson county now—"

"If there was a sanatorium," said the young doctor fiercely, "this never would have happened. That boy could have been saved, six months ago. As it is, I suppose it's the poor farm."

In the end it was not even the poor farm, for the poor commissioner held that he couldn't take care of contagious diseases. So young Merritt and the kind-hearted hotel-keeper built a little shack out in the woods back of Dorothy's path. Christmas seals won this victory.

BEFORE JEFFERSON HAD A SAN

(Names of places and persons, for obvious reasons, have been changed as narrated.)

Dr. Merritt, fresh from the U and new to Jeffersonville, answered his telephone promptly. It was Burroughs, the hotel-keeper, a vast, jovial fellow whom the doctor saw on the hotel porch daily, who was calling.

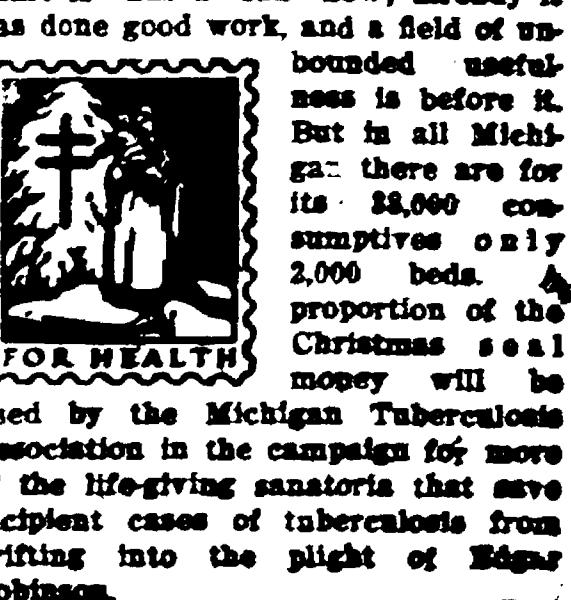

"Gosh, doc," said Burroughs, "I wish you'd come over. Fellow from twenty miles out in the jack-pines just drove in here and left his boy on the steps, and asked me to send for the doctor, and before I could say

"Boo," he hit the horse a crack and he was gone. And the boy—he ain't much more'n a kid—looks as if he was dying now."

Dr. Merritt's patient was still wait-

A new system for the payment of taxes this fall has been inaugurated in some of the neighboring townships. The treasurer mails out to every taxpayer a statement showing the amount of their taxes. When paying taxes these statements will be returned with check, or when payment is made to the treasurer on collection days. The new system does away with the taxpayer having to go to the treasurer on collection days to find out the amount of his taxes, but on receiving the statement a check for the same can be sent by mail if he wishes, instead of waiting until one of the days set for the regular collections; and the taxpayer will, in return, receive his receipt for the same.

A banker, while going home to dinner, saw a ten dollar bill on the curb-stone. He picked it up, noticed the number and went home to dinner. While home his wife remarked that the butcher had sent a bill amounting to $10. The only money he had was the bill he found, which he gave to her and she paid the butcher. The butcher paid it to a farmer for a calf, the farmer to a merchant who paid it to a washer woman and she owing the banker a note for $10, went to the bank and paid the note. The banker recognized the bill as the one he had found, and which by that time had paid $50 worth of debt. On careful examination he found it to be a counterfeit. Now, what was lost in the transaction and by whom?—Ex.

STATE BONUS FUND PAID OUT

1923 Legislature Must Provide for 10,000 Veterans Unpaid.

PRISONERS COULD IMPROVE LANDS

STATE CONSIDERS PROPOSAL TO TRY OUT NEW LAND-CLEARING SYSTEM.

PAROLE CHIEF OUTLINES PLAN

Janette Says Selected Prison Inmates Could Work Out Probationary Period Aiding Farmers.

Lansing—State officials are giving consideration to a plan whereby Michigan can put waste lands, now valueless, or nearly so, in a marketable condition, also assisting in the solution of the non-employment problems in the prisons.

At the same time, a probationary system could be worked out, under which convicts, up for parole, could be given a trial outside the prisons, while still under state control to determine whether or not they were ready for return to society, it is argued.

The plan, as outlined by Fred Janette, state parole commissioner, is simply to place selected prison inmates on state lands, under proper supervision and employ them at clearing ditches and road building.

The plan has the endorsement of Ezra Levin, director of the land development bureau of the department of agriculture.

"The thing that stands in the way of the development of large tracts of good land in Michigan is the cost of clearing," Janette said. "At the same time, the state is supporting inmates in its prisons, some of whom can be employed but part of the time.

"If this cheap labor could be applied to the cheap land, thereby making it marketable; at the same time furnishing employment for surplus prison labor."

The plan of employing inmates nearing the end of their terms or about ready for parole on state work, has been tried out on a small scale during the past summer.

REFUGEES ARE CHARMING IN MANY NOVEL STYLES

From everywhere and from nowhere comes the full style in negligees. There is no uniformity in them, except that they may be classed as either graceful or peasant. For their sources of inspiration are found anywhere and everywhere. With fancies untrammelled, the creators of negligees it seems, allow their thoughts to wander in all quarters of the world, lingering where they are most attracted. Worth has given an interpretation of the kimono from far Japan. Molyneux has found Persian fascinating and has reproduced the Persian jacket (to be worn with a wrapped turban) among other of his lovely negligees.

The vogue for drapery in outer apparel has influenced the designers of tea gowns and therefore there are many draped models among them. Every display reveals that attention has been given to trousered styles in negligees, to be worn as lounging garments and pajamas, for both sleeping and lounging, grow in popularity; but these are intended to wear in the privacy of one's own quarters. All negligees for usual wear are roomy, graceful and comfortable.

An unusual and lovely neckline shown in the illustration is of crepe satin, with deep fringes (the fabric with them a hint of Spain) used for decoration. It is fastened on one side, under a little nosebag of ribbon down and is at once dignified and pretty. Lively color has always been the prerogative of the negligee and it appears in all the long list of fashions used this season. They include velvet, silk, faille, taffeta, chiffon, on the one and georgette, velveteen, crepe de chine and novel wear of silks, and in other materials, georgette, a batiste, silk and cotton mixtures are in the lead.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

In the boys' and girls' clubs there is a scale of participation in their work toward which everyone strives. The Michigan State Bank caught the spirit of the effort which is being so vigorously pushed this season by County Agricultural Bureaus, and purchased an elegant silver cup and a quantity of gold, silver and bronze medals which they gave for the purpose of rewards for the boys and girls who made the most systematic effort.

William Gilkes of Howell has been awarded the silver cup for this year. To make his ownership complete he must wait for two years in succession. Gold medals for first prizes, silver medals for second prizes and bronze medals for third prizes have been awarded as follows:

Live Stock: William Gilkes, 1st; Glen Gibson, Rosedale, 2nd; Marion McDonnell, Petoskey, 3rd.
Canning: Martha Hosley, Howell, 1st; Dorothy Eissel, Fowlerville, 2nd.
Sewing: Katherine Canney, Gregory, 1st; Agnes Watson, Gregory, 2nd.
Marion Chama, Gregory, 3rd.

The cow testing association, which was organized in Livingston County last January, is making a good showing and is ranking now as one of the best in the state. There is a membership of twenty-three farmers in charge of M. A. Proctor, the official tester who will have a very interesting report to give the farmers on December 1st on what has been done in the past twelve months. There is no question now but that the association is a business part of Livingston County farmers and has come to stay.

What Livingston needs now is four more of these kind of associations. The reasons for cow testing associations are many fold. First, it gives a farmer a chance to find out which are his best producers under average conditions and in connection with this year's record of production, it will be possible to pick out the economical producers. All those who heard Dr. Friday at the banquet at Howell will remember how he emphasized lower costs as the first resort of helping the farmer.

It is hoped that Livingston County can pride herself by having four active cow testing associations by January 1st.

SAND IS GOOD FOR VEGETABLE STORAGE

Sand makes a good medium in which to store root vegetables such as potatoes, carrots, beets, and parsnips. These vegetables must be kept cool, fairly moist, and free from contact with circulating air, in order to be stored without wilting, rotting, or sprouting growth. In the absence of a suitable storage house, sand can be used effectively for this class of vegetables.

"Sand for this purpose, should be clean and free from organic matter. It is preferable to use 'fresh' sand each year but if there has been no rotting the previous winter, the same sand may be used again. However, in case of doubt, the sand should be first red and insect material used, or else it should be thoroughly sterilized with formalin or other disinfectant.

"Only those specimens which are sound in every way should be used for storage. Any crack, bruise, or puncture provides entrance for bacteria and ver-

An appealing situation of suffering, involving hundreds of thousands of people who have been forced to flee from their homes in the Near East and to seek refuge in lands already burdened with care, has emphasized to the people of this country that the American Red Cross is our National Emergency Fund with which to meet great crisis in disaster. The accentuation of the fact is the greater in the particular calamity now appealing to humanity, has fallen just in advance of the American Red Cross annual Red Call.

The resources of the American Red Cross must be annually replenished through the Red Call. This year the summons is secondary to a concrete emergency of the kind that is ever liable to be precipitated upon the world. It is impossible for the Red Cross to be dependent upon a public appeal for specific objects, because when calamity and disaster face us we have no time to wait until funds can be raised. The Red Cross is our ever-ready agency for responding to the call of calamity. The alarm is sounded.

The American Red Cross should have a minimum membership of ten million in order that its resources may be equal to our domestic and our foreign emergencies in humane purposes. In the light of my experience in relief work throughout the world I feel it a duty to express my personal hope that the people of America will show their confidence in their Red Cross in this Red Call in unmistakable terms. Let's all get behind the Red Cross and give it ten million members for its great work.

Salt Makes Sea Blue

Though generally appearing blue in clear weather, the ocean varies greatly in color. In stormy weather it looks green, or even black. The blue of the sea is not, as generally supposed, due to reflection from the sky, but to salt in the water. That is why the Mediterranean, which is very salty, appears exceedingly blue.

not organisms. Most of these organisms enter through a wound in the epidermis and sound roots generally lessen the chance of infection.

"The most common method is to place alternate layers of roots and sand in boxes on the basement floor. Or the roots may be placed in a conical pile and covered with a layer of sand to a depth of eight inches. The temperature should be 38 to 42 degrees to prevent growth. Growth of roots in storage either at the crown or side roots, results in loss of moisture and nutritive elements thus reducing the palatability and food value of the product."
