THREE TIMES AND OUT

After two attempts which were nullified by legal red tape on account of one of the contestants being a minor, a suit between Bert Van Blaireum, Jr., and Tim McCarty was tried in Justice Frost's Court last Friday.

Van Blaireum had worked for McCarty with the latter's threading outfit and according to Justice C. Albert Frost the difference between the amount allowed to be due by Tim, simmered down to a question of accurate bookkeeping.

Justice Frost's decision was a verdict for the plaintiff for $12.85 and $3.15 accrued costs, which was paid in court. However, the costs of the two non-suits amounting to $10, are to be paid by Bert, Jr., on account of his being a minor and not having started the original proceedings according to the law governing such matters.

Archie Gordon — the inimitable "Chubby" — who has had considerable court experience and a record for brilliant oratory, achieved after many years as a profound debater in the open forums of innumerable district school gymnasium debates, appeared on behalf of the defendant in the first case, but many unlooked-for legal complications confronted the court, and before "Chubby" had time to consult a law dictionary and ferret out the tangle it was time for the second case in court. So, rather than ask for a second adjournment, Glenn Yelland was designated to carry on for the defense, which he did in a very able manner. Charles F. Heman, in his maiden appearance before the Pinckney bar (legal), conducted the plaintiff's end of the argument, also very ably.

At the conclusion of the testimony by various witnesses, both attorneys declined to address the court in behalf of the clients on the ground that it was dinner time and both were hungry. This was a disappointment to the spectators who crowded the Hall of Justice to its fullest capacity and who would have gladly passed up the mid-day meal to partake of the feast of eloquence which they fully expected the noted county seat attorneys to furnish.

According to Justice Frost both the plaintiff and defendant are allowed five days in which to file bills of exceptions and demand a brand new trial in a higher court, if not satisfied with the judgment. In this way either one can have the case go farther and cost more.

MISS LULU BETT

By ZONA GALE

Copyrights by D. Appleton & Company

"D-N SHAME!"

SYNOPSIS—General factotum in the house of her sister Ina, wife of Herbert Deacon...

III—Continued.

"Those who disregard the comfort of other people," he enunciated, "cannot expect consideration for themselves in the future."

He did not say on what ethical tenet this dictum was based, but he delivered it with extreme authority.

As soon as Lulu had all in readiness, and cold beef and salad had begun their orderly progression...

"This is ideal. I tell you, people don't half know life if they don't get out and eat in the open. It's better than any tonic at a dollar the bottle."

After supper some boys arrived with a boat which they beached, and Dwight, with enthusiasm, gave the boys ten cents for a half hour's use of that boat...

had never really had, until he had planted that longing. She had wanted she knew not what. Now she accepted the dim, the romantic interest of this role.

"I guess you don't see how it seems," he said, "to me, coming along—a stranger so. I don't like it."

He frowned, regarded the river, flicked away ashes, his diamond obediently shining. Lulu's look, her head drooping, had the liquid air of the look of a young girl.

"They're very good to me," she said. He turned. "Do you know why you think that? Because you've never had anybody really good to you. That's why."

"But they treat me good." "They make a slave of you. Regular slave." He puffed, frowning.

"D-n shame, I call it," he said. Her loyalty stirred Lulu. "We have our whole living—"

"And you earn it. I been watching you since I been here. Don't you ever go anywheres?"

She said: "This is the first place in—in years."

"Lord! Don't you want to? Of course you do!"

"Not so much places like this—" "I see. What you want is to get away—like you'd ought to." He regarded her.

"You've been a blamed fine-looking woman," he said. She did not flush, but the faint, unsuspected Lulu spoke for her:

"You must have been a good-looking man once yourself."

His laugh went ringing across the water. "You're pretty good," he said. He regarded her approvingly.

"How I do what?" "Why come back, quick like that, with what you say?"

Lulu's heart was beating painfully. The effort to hold her own in talk like this was terrifying.

"It's my grand education," she said. She sat humped on the log, her beautiful hair shining in the light of the warm sky.

"Wouldn't it be fun to elope and surprise the whole school?" said Di, sparkling.

her feet carefully covered, her hands ill at ease, her eyes rather piteous in their hope somehow to hold her vague own. Yet from her came these sufficient, insouciant replies.

"Education," he said laughing heartily. "That's mine, too." He spoke a creed. "I ain't never had it and I ain't never missed it."

"Most folks are happy without an education," said Lulu. "You're not very happy, though."

"Oh, no," she said. "Well, sir," said Ninian, "I'll tell you what we'll do. While I'm here I'm going to take you and Ina and Dwight up to the city."

"To the city?" "To a show. Dinner and a show. I'll give you one good time."

"Oh!" Lulu leaned forward. "Ina and Dwight go sometimes. I never been."

"Well, just you come with me. I'll look up what's good. You tell me just what you like to eat, and we'll get it—"

"I haven't had anything to eat in years that I haven't cooked myself."

He planned for that time to come, and Lulu listened as one intensely experiencing every word that he uttered.

Yet it was not in that future merry-making that she found her joy, but in the consciousness that he—some one—anyone—was planning like this for her.

Meanwhile Di and Bobby had rounded the corner by an old hop-house and kept on down the levee. Now that the presence of the others was withdrawn, the two looked about them differently and began themselves to give off an influence instead of being pressed upon by overpowering personalities. Frogs were chorusing in the near swamp, and Bobby wanted one. He was off after it. But Di eventually drew him back, reluctant, frogless. He entered upon an exhaustive account of the use of frogs for bait, and as he talked he constantly flung stones. Di grew restless. There was, she had found, a certain amount of this to be gone through before Bobby would focus on the personal.

At length she was obliged to say, "Like me today?" And then he entered upon personal talk with the same zest with which he had discussed bait.

"Bobby," said Di, "sometimes I think we might be married, and not wait for any old money."

They had now come that far. It was partly an authentic attraction, grown from out the old repulsion, and partly it was that they both—and especially Di—so much wanted the experiences of attraction that they assumed its ways.

And then each cared enough to assume the pretty role required by the other, and by the occasion, and by the air of the time.

"Would you?" asked Bobby—but in the subjunctive. "She said: 'Yes, I will.'"

"It would mean running away, wouldn't it?" said Bobby, still subjunctive.

"I suppose so. Mamma and papa are so unreasonable."

"Di," said Bobby, "I don't believe you could ever be happy with me."

"The idea! I can, too. You're going to be a great man—you know you are."

Bobby was silent. Of course he knew it—but he passed it over. "Wouldn't it be fun to elope and surprise the whole school?" said Di, sparkling.

Bobby grinned appreciatively. He was good to look at, with his big frame, his head of rough, dark hair, the sky warm upon his clear skin and full mouth. "Di suddenly announced that she would be willing to elope now."

"I've planned eloping lots of times," she said ambiguously.

It flashed across the mind of Bobby that in these plans of hers he may not always have been the principal, and he could not be sure. . . . But she talked in nothings, and he answered her so.

Soft cries sounded in the center of the stream. The boat, well out of the strong current, was seen to have its oars shipped; and there sat Dwight Herbert gently rocking the boat, Dwight Herbert would.

"Bertie, Bertie—please!" you heard his Ina say.

Monona began to cry, and her father was irritated, felt that it would be ignominious to desist, and did not know that he felt this. But he knew that he was annoyed, and he took refuge in this, and picked up the oars with: "Some folks never can enjoy anything without spoiling it."

"That's what I was thinking," said Ina, with a flash of anger.

They glided toward the shore in a huff. Monona found that she enjoyed crying across the water and kept it up. It was almost as good as an echo.

Ina, stepping safe to the sands, cried ungratefully that this was the last time that she would ever, ever go with her husband anywhere. Ever Dwight Herbert, recovering, gauged the moment to require of him humor, and observed that his wedded wife was as skittish as a colt.

Ina kept silence, head poised so that her full little chin showed double. Monona, who had previously hidden a cookie in her frock, now remembered it and crunched sidewise, the eyes ruminant.

Moving toward them, with Di, Bobby was suddenly overtaken by the sense of disliking them all. He never had liked Dwight Herbert, his employer. Mrs. Deacon seemed to him so overwhelmingly mature that he had no idea how to treat her. And the child Monona he would like to roll in the river. Even Di. . . . He fell silent, was silent on the walk home, which was the signal for Di to tease him steadily. The little being was afraid of silence. It was too vast for her. She was like a butterfly in a dome.

But against that background of ruined occasion, Lulu walked homeward beside Ninian. And all that night, beside her mother who groaned in her sleep, Lulu lay tense and awake. He had walked home with her. He had told Ina and Herbert about going to the city. What did it mean? Suppose. . . . oh no; oh no!

"Either lay still or get up and set up," Mrs. Bett directed her at length.

"Why not say the wedding service?" asked Ninian.

"Owls" Gave Gay Parties. "The Owls" were a group of brilliant young men who in the sixties, attracted much attention in the West end of London by their lively eccentricities.

For instance, they gave dinners to which some of the most beautiful young ladies of the day were invited. Lady Warburton acting as chaperone. At one of them an ivy serpent decorated the table, forming a coil opposite each lady's plate. In the coil was a box of chocolates, with the monogram of the lady on the lid. Another time a Bacchus in the center of the table held jewels, which were handed around, each lady being asked to take what she liked. Once all "The Owls" went to Paris and spent the day in woods near the city. They sang songs and crowned themselves with ivy garlands, and finally dined up a huge old tree, into whose branches they were hauled by ropes, ladies and all, singing ballads the while.

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES

Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority. Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Chef Had Plenty But He Could Hardly Eat

Even an expert chef for an up-to-date restaurant, with everything heart could wish in the eating line and the skill to prepare it in the most appetizing manner, finds life miserable and work a burden with his appetite gone and his health all broken up on account of stomach trouble.

According to his own statement, such had been the case for two years with William Lackey, 806 North Wells St., Chicago, Ill., chef at a popular North Clark St. restaurant, who says he recently found relief by taking Tanlac.

Mr. Lackey now boasts of a "wonderful appetite and a stomach that digests such things as ham and egg, corned beef and cabbage, and rich pastries, foods that would have almost put me out of commission before I took Tanlac."

"Before I ran across this medicine," said he, "I was having to lay off from my work for a week at a time just on account of the numerous ills I suffered from indigestion. But when I tell you I have gained fifteen pounds, eat and digest anything, and am on the job every day feeling fine, you may know how I appreciate Tanlac."

SELECTION OF SITE FOR ICE HOUSE

Ice House is Useful Piece of Equipment on Any Farm.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While the ice house is a common thing among the outbuildings now found on many farms, yet there are many farms which do not have it. Farmers not enjoying this useful piece of equipment have need to consider, as fall comes along, what arrangements should be made so that they may have a place ready to store ice when cold weather arrives.

The selection of a site for an ice house is very important. Other conditions being suitable, the ice house on a dairy farm should be placed as near as possible to the milk house, in order to reduce the labor of handling and to encourage the more liberal use of ice. On a general farm the ice house should be located near the residence. To facilitate drainage the ground on which the ice house stands should be porous and slope away from the building. Advantage also may be taken of the nearness of hills, trees, or buildings, which often afford protection from hot winds, thus saving ice.

Type of Building.

The construction of the ice house depends to a great extent upon local conditions, the size of the house, and the difficulty of obtaining ice. These factors help to determine the sum that may wisely be spent for such a building. Where ice is expensive or hard to obtain, a better constructed and insulated and therefore more expensive ice house is advisable. Where natural ice can be harvested and stored cheaply a cheap structure is usually satisfactory, and the loss from melting ice is a small consideration.

The cost of harvesting and storing the interest on the money invested, Getting in the Ice Crop for Next Summer.

and repairs and depreciation on the building, are to be considered in relation to the ice loss from melting; and the type of house to be built depends upon these factors. It never pays to build permanently in other than a substantial manner, and careful thought should be given the matter before erecting a cheap makeshift that will not give adequate service.

An ice house should be built where it will be shielded as much as possible from the wind and from the direct rays of the sun. The object is to prevent the outside heat from passing into the interior and melting the ice; consequently every effort must be made to resist the passage of heat by placing in the walls a material or a form of construction which will reduce the transfer of heat from the outside to the inside. No material known will entirely prevent the passage of heat, but several kinds of material, called non-conductors or insulators, offer a high resistance to its passage. The best insulators appear to be those that contain entrapped air in the greatest number of small spaces.

Farmer's Ice House With Milk Room.

Size of the Ice House.

As to the size, this must depend upon the amount of ice that will be needed. A cubic foot of ice weighs about 57 pounds, so in storing ice it is customary to allow from 40 to 50 cubic feet per ton for the mass of ice, but the quantity that an ice house of a given size will hold depends upon the manner in which the ice is stored. Generally speaking, in the north it will take one and one-half tons for cooling the milk from each cow, and two tons per cow in the South. Allowing 50 cubic feet for a ton of packed ice, ten tons will require about 500 cubic feet of space.

Detailed figures as to capacity, together with directions and building plans, are found in literature issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, which is always ready to answer inquiries on this as on other subjects pertaining to farm practice.

TREATMENT PREVENTS MOLD IN BUTTER TUB

Cause of Much Annoyance and Source of Big Losses.

Receptacle is Steamed for Thirty Seconds and Inner Surface Paraffined and Rubbed With Salt—Meets Need of Creameries.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The growth of mold on butter in tubs is a cause of great annoyance to dealers and a common source of loss to creameries. Preventive treatments designed to do away with this trouble have been devised by various people, and these have been carefully studied by the United States Department of Agriculture. The treatment that has been found most successful consists in soaking the tubs in cold water, steaming them for 30 seconds with live steam, paraffining the inner surface, and then rubbing over the paraffin with salt. In addition, the liners for the tubs are soaked for 30 minutes in a saturated solution of boiling brine. Under the supervision of the department several million pounds of butter have been packed in tubs and liners treated in this manner and no cases of mold have been reported.

A number of methods of treating tubs and liners have been tried out in comparison with the one just described, but no other has been equally successful. Some tubs and liners were merely soaked in cold water, and in these the mold made an abundant growth. When the tubs and liners were soaked in a saturated solution of cold brine the growth of the mold was somewhat reduced. Butter in tubs that were soaked in water and steamed for 30 seconds with live steam, and lined with liners that had been dipped in a saturated solution of boiling brine, developed very little mold; but results were still better when paraffin and salt were used as described above.

The treatment found most satisfactory is inexpensive and meets the needs of creameries of any type and in any part of the country.

BENEFITS OF FALL PLOWING

It Gives Better Distribution of Work, Relieving Rush During the Spring Season.

There are several advantages to fall plowing. It gives a better distribution of farm work, relieving the spring rush. Soils that are inclined to be wet and cold will warm up and be ready for working earlier in the spring if fall plowed. Where sod, coarse litter or a heavy growth of vegetation is to be turned under the material will partially decompose during the winter, thus making it possible to prepare a better seed bed in the spring. Fall plowing also helps destroy certain insects. Soils that are heavy and inclined to be cloddy will often improve in tilth with fall plowing.

Lady's Apparent Suffering Merely the Result of Her Hands Being Temporarily Occupied.

Passers-by stopped and looked. The lady's face was writhing as if she was in terrible agony. Her mouth worked up and down and she seemed to be suppressing shrieks of pain. Then a girl acquaintance approached hurriedly and gazed at her face.

"Why," she exclaimed, "what on earth is the matter?"

The twitchings ceased and a sweet smile took their place. "With me?" inquired the sufferer. "Why nothing?"

"But you look ill," said the girl. "Your face—it looked as if you were in dreadful pain."

The lady held out her hands. In one was a paper parcel, in the other her umbrella. "I was only trying," she explained. "To work the edge of my veil down over my chin, dear."

WILLING TO DO HIS SHARE

Jack Dempsey's Really Amusing Story of Irishman Made a Hit With English Hosts.

Jack Dempsey's recent visit to London was a brief one but it afforded him time enough to establish a brilliant reputation as an after-dinner speaker. Several London newspapers, in fact, declared him to be a better after-dinner speaker than Chauncey Depew or James Russell Lowell.

Jack made his reputation at a luncheon given in his honor by Lord Northcliffe. All England's greatest statesmen, artists and millionaires were gathered round the board. When the young champion was called on for a toast he rose and said:

"I am a good deal like the Irishman who attended a dinner where every guest had to make a speech, sing a song or tell a story. When the Irishman's turn came he got up and said: "I can't make a speech, or sing a song, or tell a story, but I'll fight any man in the room."

Fires Spotted by Forest Air Patrol. The value of airplane forest patrol was forcibly demonstrated recently near Roseburg, Ore. One of the state foresters in that city had received reports from the lookouts in his territory that there were no fires to be seen. It happened that just at that particular time he decided to accompany one of the army air service pilots engaged in patrolling the Oregon forests. He had not proceeded very far on his aerial journey before he realized that the reports he had received from his lookouts were not as reliable as he was led to believe. To his great consternation he discovered that he had no less than 12 real fires on his hands which no one knew anything about. Needless to say, the state forester is now converted to aerial forestry patrol for life.

How much sleep do you need?

IT isn't so much a question of the number of hours you spend in bed, as it is of the quality of the sleep you get. Is your sleep sound and restful, or is it fitful and unrefreshing?

One common cause of wakefulness at night is over-stimulation from coffee drinking. For coffee contains caffeine which irritates the nerves and frequently leads to insomnia.

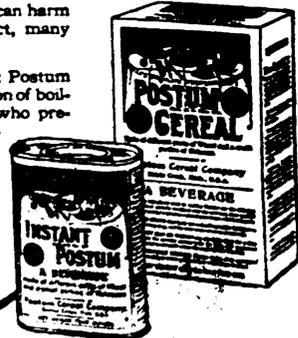

If you have any idea that coffee keeps you awake at night, or makes you nervous, make a change from coffee to delicious Postum.

This pure cereal beverage contains nothing that can harm health, and its flavor is much like coffee. In fact, many people prefer Postum for its flavor alone.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

Postum FOR HEALTH
"There's a Reason"

Made by Postum Cereal Company, Inc. Battle Creek, Mich.

The two forms of Postum are equally delicious; and the cost is only about 1/2c per cup.

After-Care Needed to Bring Permanent T.B. Recoveries

"Rest and good food, fresh air and freedom from worry", the sanatorium superintendent told John Reilly, when he gave him his final chest examination.

John was not cured, of course, but he was so much improved that the superintendent believed that he might complete the cure in his own home.

But at home John Reilly had three children and a frail wife, and rest, on which the doctor had laid so much emphasis, was a prescription he could not follow except at their expense. Ten days after he left the sanatorium he went to work at his old job on the section.

Last week, in answer to a letter of inquiry, he wrote this account of himself to the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

"We were laying rails this summer and the boss put me to flagging or I couldn't have stood it.

"I haven't had any examination since I left the sanatorium. I have lost some in weight and I have been having some pleurisy pains in my right lung for the last month."

Pitifully little is the Michigan Tuberculosis Association able to do for him. He is not a pauper; he told with pride that he had a house and lot on which he had paid six hundred dollars. Given a chance to take proper care of himself for a few months longer, he might reasonably look forward to a normal life-span. But if he must struggle through days of pain and weakness now, in the hopeless effort to do the work of a well man, the end of John Reilly's story is certain and near at hand.

After-care of consumptives should be provided in Michigan. Tuberculosis Christmas seals will help to meet the need.

NEIGHBORING NEWS

FARMINGTON—Demanding $14,000 from his father for work done on a farm during six years, Claude S. Leach of Farmington, has brought suit against Charles H. Leach. The son claims he worked the place on the understanding that it would eventually be his but that it has recently been sold.—Farmington Enterprise.

FOWLERVILLE—Friday afternoon during the absence of all of the family from the home of William Meyer, a mile west of this village, was entered and about $30 in cash and several dollars in checks taken. The thief was still in the home when some of the family returned and making his exit violently pushed Mrs. Geo. Roche out of his way as he was leaving the house by the rear.—Review.

OXFORD—Miscreants have for the second time molested the property in the graveyard—pushing tombstones from their foundations and breaking them, and treating urns and vases in the same dastardly manner. Now a strict watch is being kept at the cemetery.

WILLIAMSTON—Considerable interest still attaches to the coal mining situation here. The people who have been opening up the pit where are reported to have engaged the ser-stripping was done several years ago vices of a steam shovel and it is said that they will soon begin operations on an extended scale. Certain it is that they have uncovered a fine ledge of coal and the prospects are that they will follow it up.—Williamston Enterprise.

BRIGHTON—The locomotive crane at the Grand River Washed Sand and Gravel plant northwest of town has been lifted from the lake in which it reposed for several weeks, and is again at work. The Greenville company hoisted it a bit with the steam shovel and then took it apart, lifting it out in sections.—Argus.

YPSILANTI—Chief Connors has been investigating the financial condition of the old woman who has been begging in Ypsilanti every Saturday. He found that she owned three flats, and was a professional beggar, having a regular itinerary which brought her to Ypsilanti every Saturday, where she managed to pick up between $15 and $20 each time.—Post.

MILFORD—Sheriff Butler announces that in addition to the motorcycle speed officers, a corps of officers in touring cars will patrol the main highways at night, as a measure of safety. Because so many motorists are familiar with the motorcycle service of the county many offenders are able to avoid prosecution. When the officers use a touring car, however, there is a better chance of getting the reckless drivers and speeders. They will also be after the motorists who neglect to have the tail light on their car burning.—Times.

Ohio last week and returned with orders for two cars and a tractor.

On account of a delayed shipment,
C. W. Barry wishes to state that his holiday line will not be on display until next week when a full line of holiday goods will be offered in his store at prices that will satisfy everybody.

On account of many pupils driving in from the country being late for school it is probable the hour for opening school in the morning will be made nine o'clock instead of 8:30 as at present.

William Brogan, who has been in the employ of R. E. Barron for the past ten years, has resigned to accept a position with the Citizens'
Mutual Auto Insurance Company—Democrat.

Felix W. Pawlowski, professor of aeronautical engineering in the U. of M., is predicting that inside of 25 years man will be shooting through the air at the rate of 1,250 miles an hour. The planes will be jet-propelled he says. It will be easy to go around the world in a day, and be in daylight all the time, keeping up with the sun.

The 1923 automobile licenses in Michigan will be green and white, according to the announcement of Secretary of State Charles J. DeLand.
All are now ready for distribution, having been manufactured throughout the summer months in Jackson prison. Six hundred thousand plates are now required.

With only about two weeks remaining until the distribution of 1923 automobile licenses a warning is issued to all car owners to be prepared to furnish original certificates of title at the time application is made.

A nail imbedded in a man's spine for 21 years has been removed and the patient, Isaac Campbell of Caledonia, Cape Breton, probably will recover, it was said at the Western hospital at Toronto, Ont. It was found necessary to remove three pieces of vertebrae. Campbell was hurt in a railroad accident.—Grand Rapids Chronicle.

According to the laws of 1915, Sec.
52373, the board of health in any township may become trustees for an fund established by any person or persons for the purpose of taking care of cemetery lots or burial place.
The township board of health consists of the supervisor, clerk and health officer of the township. This information has been obtained in answer to inquiries recently made by persons wishing to leave a fund, the earnings of which they desire to have applied to the care of a lot in one of the cemeteries of the township.

The state department of agriculture, in co-operation with the American Legion, is working out a plan which probably will mean the location of a colony of upwards of 150 ex-service men on a tract of land to be obtained in the upper peninsula. It is the plan of the state department to arrange a purchase agreement for the settler, giving him 20 years in which to pay for his land. The department will also arrange for loans and give various other assistance in clearing and developing the acreages. More than one hundred ex-service men have indicated to the department that they would be interested in the project.—
Holly Advertiser.

After an inspection of the new consolidated schools at Hartland and Walled Lake, A. L. Craft, commissioner of schools for Oakland county, made the following statement: "If the taxpayers of Michigan could have inspected the Hartland and Walled Lake consolidated schools as I did last week there would be an extremely different public attitude toward consolidation. The Hartland school has been operating for a year, and the exhibits of manual training, drawing, sewing, and agricultural products supplied by the pupils were the best I have ever seen in city or country. The Walled Lake school possesses great possibilities also, and I believe that within a year it will be one of the finest schools in the state of Michigan."—Exchange.

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

SOME REASONS FOR ELECTION RESULTS

REPUBLICANS SAY REBUKE WAS TO CONGRESS AND NOT TO THE WHITE HOUSE.

DEMOCRATS THINK DIFFERENT

President Harding Was Not Surprised by Reverses Sustained by His Party—Calls Extra Session for Action on Ship Subsidy Bill.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington—The election has come and gone. It may be said that Republican leaders generally in Washington were shocked but not stunned by the news of the day.

They were shocked apparently because of the unmistakable fact that he country struck the way it did, but they were not stunned, because the truth is, most of the leading Republicans in Washington, more than half expected that the blow would come.

It is the blunt truth to say that Republicans closely connected with the administration hold that the general result of the election was a rebuke to congress and not to the White House. They do not say this openly, but covertly. The Democrats declare that the rebuke was delivered impartially to the White House and to the capitol.

Washington is seeking reasons for the great increase in the Democratic vote. Naturally the Republicans hold that there is no "reason" in it, but that there are causes for it. The majority of Republicans seem to feel that local considerations and general matters in no way associated with either Republican administration or Republican congressional endeavor brought about the defeat of the party. They say that the wet and the dry issues, conflicts in the party ranks between conservatism and radicalism, blocs and cliques and various other things are responsible for the result.

The Democrats on the other hand claim that the great change in the vote from the campaign of 1920 can be interpreted as nothing more than as a stinging rebuke to the whole course of procedure of the Republican party since it came into complete control of the government.

President Not Surprised.

Occasionally one is able to learn things which are not told him directly by word of mouth. There has been a feeling in Washington for some time that President Harding more than half expected there could be no great victory for his party this year, and that, so to put it, he quarter-way expected that the Democrats might win pretty much everything in sight.

Friends of the administration say the President saw the signs of the times and they have intimated that the party's chieftain did not share the views of national committeemen and others whose business it is to be prophets of cheer, even if the clouds hang low and the thunder roars. It is not overstating things to say that President Harding probably was the least surprised man in Washington over the result of the elections.

Already the politicians in Washington are looking forward to 1924. Some of them profess to see the elimination of President Harding as a candidate to succeed himself. Others say that thinking men know the President's course contributed nothing to the election day results. Some politicians know that it is too early for such dealing in futures.

An extraordinary session of congress has been called by the President. The present great Republican majority in congress of course will hold until March 4 next, when the lease of life of the present body expires. The lawmakers will be asked to pass the ship subsidy bill and certain other administration measures prior to next March. If these measures cannot be passed at the extra session or at the short session, some of them of course will have had to travel in the congress, which next comes into power.

It is a long while until 1924. A lot of things can happen in two years, and nobody knows it better than the politicians. There is plenty of time between now and the next national conventions for things to happen, which will make or unmake men whom the recent election has brought forth into the light, or has thrown temporarily into the shade.

Education Week Proposed.

In nearly every big city of the country recently a week was set aside in which to impress upon the people the necessity of guarding against accidents. These weeks have been called "Safety Weeks."

Now there is being advocated in Washington for the whole country a plan for an "Education Week" some time in December. From the interest which is being taken in this matter by various organizations who know the conditions of illiteracy in the United States and who appreciate its dangers, it might be said that education week in the highest sense will be a safety week for the American people.

When the American Legion, composed of former soldiers of the World war, was formed, it was said that the organization might not hold together because it had no definite plan of action in view. The Legion undertook a campaign for adjusted compensation for the war veterans, and while there has been a good deal of opposition to the crusade, if it so may be called, it has kept the Legion members interested and busy. Now the American Legion has interested itself in an attempt to decrease the illiteracy in the United States. Certainly nobody will rise to say that this is not a worthy object to engage the attention of the men who fought Germany.

It was the war which made known to the people of this country the extent of illiteracy in the various states of the Union. It is said 6 per cent of the people of reading and writing age in the United States can neither read nor write.

Legion Takes Up the Cause.

One reason why the extent of illiteracy was not appreciated was that the records were not properly kept by the different states. It has been charged that some of the state officials did not make proper investigations before they made their reports. The war showed the facts in the case and now the American Legion through its national Americanism commission is going to do what it can to help in the work of giving at least what may be called primary education to the illiterates of the country.

Garland W. Powell is the director of the national Americanism commission of the American Legion. He has just issued a statement with proper proof to show that the United States stands eleventh as a nation of illiterates compared with the northern nations of Europe. In Germany, Denmark, Switzerland, the Netherlands and Finland there is less than 1 per cent of illiteracy; Norway and Sweden have 1 per cent; Scotland, England and Wales less than 2 per cent, and France 5.9 per cent. All these countries have fewer illiterates in proportion to their population than the United States.

It seems likely that the Education Week advocated by the American Legion will occupy the days between December 3 and December 9. During these seven days every effort will be made to induce adult illiterates to attend night schools and to induce children to adopt illiterate adults and children for educational purposes.

The Legion has many posts in many states of the Union. The individual members will be asked to work for the educational cause and to see that interest does not lag. The National Education association and the United States bureau of education are co-operating with the American Legion to promote the success of the work.

Women Versus Women.

When woman met woman then comes the tug of war. Under the leadership of the National Woman's party, it is understood, an attempt is to be made in 42 state legislatures this year to secure the adoption of a legislative program in behalf of what might be called sex equality. The members of the Woman's party apparently desire that there shall be no discrimination whatsoever in legislation as between man and woman. This means, if the logic of the case runs right, that certain American women do not like laws which place woman as a worker or as a citizen on a different plane from that upon which the laws place man.

A meeting has just been held in Washington of members of the National Consumers' league. At this meeting there were representatives of a large group of organizations composed largely of women who are opposed to the National Woman's party program for sex equality through legislation. When woman meets woman then comes the tug of war.

The National Woman's party is composed to considerable extent of the women who in the days of the struggle for suffrage were known as the militants and from their ranks largely came the volunteer picketers of the White House. Most people will remember, probably, that during some months of the last administration women with banners paraded in front of the White House in behalf of the amendment to the Constitution which has given woman an suffrage.

Groups in Opposition.

The women who are opposed to what may be called sex-equality legislation say that 10,000,000 women in various organizations in the United States stand in opposition to the plan of the National Woman's party. A list of these organizations in opposition has just been given to the writer. It comes from a representative of the National Consumers' league, and is as follows: National Consumers' league; National League of Women Voters; National Council of Catholic Women; National Women's Trade Union league; American Association for Organizing Family Social Work; Girls' Friendly Society in America; National League of Girls' Clubs; National Council of Jewish Women; Parent-Teachers' association; National Federation of Federal Employees; High School Teachers' union; National Council of Mothers; Association of University Women.

At the meeting in Washington of the representatives of these organizations the reasons for the opposition to the stage legislative program of the National Woman's party were given by some of the leaders, who charged that the proposed "blanket equality" measure will work out to the disadvantage of women. Here is what was said concerning the matter:

"If the status of men and women are made identical wives cannot claim support from their husbands; deserted wives would be obligated to support their own families; divorced husbands would not have to pay alimony; widowed mothers would not be entitled to state pensions, no matter how great their need, unless the same provision were made for widowers; women in industry would lose protection of the eight-hour day, rest at night and one day's rest in seven."

REPORT PURCHASE OF COAL BY FORD

$20,000,000 SAID TO BE PAID FOR ELKHORN PROPERTIES IN KENTUCKY.

3,000,000 TONS ANNUAL OUTPUT

Four Railroads Pass Through Fields; Purchase Reported to Include All Equipment.

New York—Business circles were stirred here last week over the reported purchase by agents of Henry Ford of the Elkhorn coal properties of Kentucky for a consideration said to be $20,000,000. It is reported that the deal was a cash transaction.

William B. Mayo, chief engineer for the Detroit automobile manufacturer, is said to have closed the transaction which involves about 200,000 acres of coal properties in the soft coal region of Kentucky.

The Elkhorn Coal corporation, incorporated in 1918 under the laws of West Virginia, represents a combination of several powerful coal interests. Under its control, by outright ownership, fee, surface or mineral rights, are a total of 206,000 acres of coal properties. These lands are in Pike, Floyd, Knott, Hagoin, Johnson and Letcher counties in Kentucky, and in Upshur and Randolph counties in West Virginia. The company also has controlling interests in several minor fuel-producing concerns.

The last available report of operations of the corporation were to the effect that 22 mines were being operated, which were developed to produce 3,000,000 tons of coal annually. The properties of the Elkhorn Coal corporation include 1,330 miners' dwelling houses at the various mining towns, as well as hotels, office buildings and mining equipment necessary for the production of coal.

The principal mining towns on the vast property, some of which will come under Ford's control, are Fleming, Haymond, Hemphill, Wayland, Garrett and Wheelwright in Kentucky, and Interstate and Ocean in West Virginia.

The property is served by the Louisville & Nashville, Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio, and Long Fork railroads. The mining equipment is ultra-modern.

A large amount of power is developed on the property for general use in the mining operations. Approximately 90 miles of 40,000 volt transmission line is installed, furnishing sufficient electric power for full development of the vast coal area.

The day is none too short, the night none too long; but all too narrow is the edge between.—Dallas Lore Sharp.

DESSERTS

A good dessert which may be passed on and become a layer cake is an economy. Bake a sheet of any plain white cake. Serve one-third or one-quarter cut in squares for the dessert with a good pudding sauce made as follows: Take two table-spoonfuls of flour, three-quarters of a cupful of sugar; mix well and add a half-cupful or more of any fruit juice at hand, or water with a table-spoonful of vinegar. Cook until smooth; add a table-spoonful of butter and a serving of nutmeg and pour over each serving, or pass at the table in a pitcher. The remainder of the cake may be cut in halves and put together with any desired filling, and iced or covered with chocolate, making a dessert and a cake from one recipe.

Lemon Rice Pudding.—Take one cupful of rice cooked in one quart of milk until tender, add the yolks of three eggs (two will do), the grated rind of a lemon and sugar to sweeten. Heap in a baking dish, cover with a meringue made of the egg whites, and two to three table-spoonfuls of sugar, and a tea-spoonful of lemon juice. Brown the meringue and serve either hot or cold. Bits of jelly may be added if desired, for a garnish.

Bread Pudding.—In spite of the derision which the good old bread pudding has had to endure, it still is a favorite in many homes. Take one and one-half cupfuls of milk, one-half cupful of sugar, two slices of bread buttered, one egg. Beat the egg and the sugar together until well-mixed; add the milk slowly, beating all the time. Place the buttered bread in a baking dish, pour over the milk and egg; the bread will rise to the top of the pudding dish like a crust. Allow it to stand one hour and then bake 15 minutes in a hot oven. Serve with top milk, vanilla and sugar to taste for sauce.

Hingham Pudding.—Mix together one-half cupful of seeded raisins, one-half cupful of molasses, one-fourth cupful of chopped suet, one-half cupful of water, one-half tea-spoonful of soda, one-fourth tea-spoonful of salt, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. Add flour to make a drop batter and steam three hours.

A good conscience, a good table, good digestion and a good wife—what better hast thou in thy store, O heaven!

CHAPTER ON SOUPS

For the beginning of a dinner or a luncheon or even a supper dish on a cool, crisp night, there is nothing that quite touches the spot as a good seasoned soup. If one objects to meat soups, there are the vegetable soups; if neither suits, there is still fruit.

Cherry Soup.—Take one quart of fresh or a pint of canned cherries, one quart of water; cook and strain. Return to the fire; add sugar and whole cinnamon and whole cloves to taste; thicken with two table-spoonfuls of cornstarch, stirred smooth in a little cold water. Serve hot with croutons or with dumplings prepared of choux paste and cooked in the soup.

Philadelphia Fruit Soup.—Take one cupful each of dried apples, pears and raisins. Cover with warm water and soak for an hour, then add two cupfuls of cranberries which have been cooked until tender and pressed through a sieve. Cover with two quarts of cold water, boil for an hour, sweeten to taste, press through a sieve and thicken with two table-spoonfuls of cornstarch rubbed smooth with a little cold water. Cook until the cornstarch is well-cooked; serve either cold or hot.

Velvet Soup.—Cook one-half cupful of tapioca in six cupfuls of well-seasoned veal stock. Beat the yolks of three eggs and pour in the soup; stir until smooth and creamy; season with salt, pepper and grated nutmeg. Serve hot with croutons.

Brown Onion Soup.—Peel a dozen brown onions and fry until brown in butter, add two tea-spoonfuls of sugar. When brown add four cupfuls of beef stock, bring to the boiling point and serve very hot.

Scotch Purses.—Put into a kettle one pound of mutton with the broken bones. Cover with three quarts of water and bring to the boiling point. Skim and simmer for one hour. Add six potatoes, two onions, one carrot cut fine, and simmer two hours longer. Season with salt, pepper and butter; simmer 30 minutes, strain through a coarse sieve, reheat and serve with croutons.

Noodles.—Take one egg, a pinch of salt and one-half an egg shell full of water. Stir in flour until it can be rolled as thin as paper. Spread out to dry. Roll like a jelly roll and cut in thin slices with a sharp knife. Add to the boiling soup and cook twenty minutes.

The noodles which can be bought and the letter crackers are attractive garnishes for soups.

Cause for Thankfulness

FOR what, and to whom, Thanks should I render,
When I wake on the dawn of Thanksgiving?
For glorious Nature in the morn of its splendor,
For health in the world I'm living!

FOR the sun, "Old Sol," the fire of my days,
The silvery moon and stars of the night,
One warming the earth with its brilliant rays,
All filling the skies with heaven's own light.

FOR the breath I breathe and the winds that blow,
For flowers that bloom, so fragrant and fair,
For what I believe and for what I know,
For fields and forests and birds of the air.

FOR the friends I have and the friends I've had,
For the thoughts I think and the dreams I dream,
For the days gone by when I was a lad,
For this Thanksgiving—this hour supreme.

FOR peaceful America, home of my birth,
A soul acquainted with sorrow and mirth,
For a dear old mother whose hair is white,
Her thoughts of the day, her prayers of the night—
I render Thanks to God on high.

RELIGION BASED ON GRATITUDE

Truth in Assertion There Cannot Be the One Without its source, with a consequent enrichment of new strength and new courage. Gratitude, as the old pagan said, is essential to religion. There is no religion where there is no gratitude. And the power of religion is in exact proportion to the sense of thankfulness it inspires. That does not mean that God is a great almsgiver who dispenses charity for the reward of appreciation. He gives because he is God, and giving is the expression of his unaltered goodness. He gives freely regardless of thanks. He cannot be bribed to larger favors by gratitude. The effect of gratitude is upon ourselves, in the exercise of our souls and in the approach to duty through that exercise, which is the essential essence of religion.

And that effect may be collective as well as individual. We are today a nation engaged in thanksgiving. We are, in totality, a hundred million souls expressing gratitude to Him for His blessings to us as a people. If that is a mere formality it is nothing—it is worse than nothing. We may be quite sure that God does not delight in rhetoric that is but sounding brass and tinkling cymbals. We may be equally sure that we as a nation are not advanced or uplifted by sermons or prayers or speeches that, however beautifully attired, are but words. But if that thankfulness is real, if it is felt within, if we are conscious of it, if its expression comes from the heart, then is the soul of the nation raised up thereby, and given a larger vision, an increase of power, a nearer approach to the glory of divinity, by the exercise of the spirit within us, reaching out to clasp hands with its creator and the source of all its strength.

And manifestly there is abundant reason for that gratitude and its expression. We need not, we cannot, "count our blessings one by one," as the song entreats us to do. They are too many for counting, too overwhelming for measurement. We who but a short century ago were relatively insignificant now stand at the forefront of the nations of the earth, admittedly supreme in its leadership. We are self-contained, self-controlled, prosperous above all other peoples. We find ourselves, in this year of His grace, directing, in a very large measure, the destinies of mankind. In the great catastrophe of nations we have suffered less and gained more than any other. In the annals of history no people have advanced so fast nor attained so greatly. Did we do this? Are we what we are, and possess what we have because of our superior wisdom and activity? Can we stap our chests and proclaim ourselves pre eminent through our own might? A mere cursory glance over our record proves the contrary, proves, indeed, a guidance and support without which we would still be insignificant. Nor is it hard, in the light of this guidance, to understand the why of this guidance, to see that we are instruments in His hand for the achievement of a divine purpose, not for ourselves, but for humanity, of which we are a part and in whose future blessings we shall largely share. Yes, there are reasons, great reasons, for America's thankfulness today, thankfulness for our past, for our present and for our future; and if we feel this, and to the extent that we are conscious of it, and recognize it, we shall be fitting ourselves and equipping ourselves for the larger tasks that are still beyond the dawn.

Thanksgiving day did not originate in the United States, but days of thanksgiving were set aside for special purposes many centuries ago. Days set apart for special thanksgiving to the Lord were known to the Israelites and are mentioned throughout the Bible. They were not uncommon in England before the Reformation and among Protestants afterward.

The first thanksgiving held in North America was conducted by an English minister named Wolfall, in 1578, on the shores of Newfoundland. The pastor accompanied the expedition under Frobisher, which brought the first English colony to settle on those shores.

The earliest record of any observance of a similar service within the present territory of the United States was held by the Popham colony settled at Sagadahoc, on the coast of Maine, in August, 1607.

But the real origin of Thanksgiving as a day specially set apart for prayer and rejoicing must be attributed to Governor Bradford, first governor of Massachusetts colony. In gratitude for the pienteous harvest of 1621, following upon a period of great depression, he proclaimed a day of thanksgiving to be observed December 13 (old style) of that year.

In practical furtherance of his proclamation he at once sent out four men in search of game. Thus early in the history of the day does our good friend the turkey make his appearance; for, successful in their quest, the four sportsmen returned, struggling under a burden of wild fowl, principally turkeys, sufficient to meet the wants of the colony for a week.

AILING WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Linton Tells How Helped Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is at This Period

Denver, Colorado.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for seven years and I cannot tell you the good it has done me. It is good for young and old and I always keep a bottle of it in the house, for I am at that time of life when it calls for Lydia E. Pinkham's help. My husband saw your ad. in the papers and said 'You have taken everything you can think of, now I want you to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound!' So I let him get it, and I soon felt better and he told me 'I want you to take about six bottles.' So I did and I keep house and do all my own work and work out by the day and feel fine now. I tell every one about the Vegetable Compound, for so many of my friends thought I would not get well."—Mrs. R. J. LINTON, 1860 West 83d Avenue, Denver, Colorado.

After reading letters like the above, and we are constantly publishing them, why should any woman hesitate to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound if she is in need of help? It brings relief where other medicines fail.

CONSERVATIVE WINTER SUITS FIND MANY WARM ADMIRERS

THIS quiet suit does not present itself as an exponent of anything unique, or even novel, in the new modes, but as an example of smart, but conservative designing, which is sure to find many admirers. It will succeed with those women who do not care for things conspicuous by their novelty, but prefer interpretations of the mode that are not in the least startling.

In the new suits for winter there are several lengths in coats, from those that are a little shorter than the model pictured, and straight-hanging, to long coats with widened skirt portions. There are occasional models, also, with short jackets, but the great majority of suits have coats of medium length. Perhaps it is the character of the fabrics used, or the almost universal fur collars and trimmings, that have taken from the tailored suit its masculine quality and softened its lines. Velvet, velours, duvetine and the new crinkly surfaces in suit fabrics do not lend themselves to severely tailored lines, and even serge suits are designed so as to keep in mind this new mood in tailored clothes.

Brown velours with brown caracul fur and a fringe of cord with tasseled ends are used in the suit pictured. It is an exponent of the straight-line silhouette and the coat achieves a waistcoat effect by means of the deep fringe set below a shallow blouse across the sides of the model. Pockets on the front of the coat, a collar of medium width and bands forming cuffs for the sleeves place the fur logically and to the best advantage. The skirt is plain, full enough for freedom in walking and is shown a trifle shorter than the length decreed by fashion, but allowed to the utility suit.

THE CRUSADES

The sixth crusade was led by Frederick II of Germany.

The crusades lasted nearly two centuries, from 1096 to 1270.

The fifth crusade, in 1217, was led by John Brienne, titular sovereign of Jerusalem.

The first crusade, led by Godfrey of Bouillon, was promoted by Peter the Hermit.

The fourth crusade, 1202-1204, was led by Baldwin of Flanders and the Doge of Venice.

Louis VII and Emperor Konrad led the second crusade at the instigation of St. Bernard.

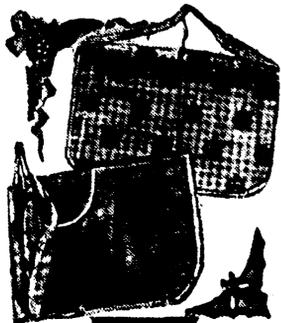

The seventh and eighth crusades, 1249-1254 and 1268-1270, were promoted to satisfy the religious scruples of Louis IX of France.

Richard the Lion-Hearted of England and Philip Augustus of France led the third crusade against Saladin, sultan of Syria and Egypt.

Originally the object of the crusades was to gain free access for pilgrims to the holy sepulcher, but developed into a contest for the possession of Jerusalem itself.

Crusades, from the Latin crux, a cross, was the name given the religious wars in the Middle ages between the Christian nations of western Europe and the Mohammedans of eastern Europe and western Asia.

A large safety pin hangs from a loop of tape at each end and the plain side has a small pocket that fastens down with snap fasteners.
