OBITUARY

Sarah (Van Horn) Bergen, the fourth member of a family of seven children of David and Sarah Van Horn was born June 2, 1843 in Dansville, Warren county, New Jersey. At the age of six years she came with her parents and family to Michigan, settling on the farm now owned by S. J.
Van Horn, where she grew to womanhood.

December 25, 1866 Sarah married
John Bergen and, with the exception of a very brief period, they have resided in the late home for nearly 50 years, where Mrs. Bergen proved her loyalty to her home, her fellowship and her God. March 12, 1925 occurred the dissolution of the soul and the body at the mature age of 81 years, 9 months and 10 days, and by her passing, her parent family becomes extinct.

Two daughters blessed the Bergen home; Viola—later Mrs. P. W. Conroy preceded her mother in death
nearly seven years, and Marion—Mrs.
Rex Burnett—residing near the old home.

In memory there are the aged husband, one daughter, Mrs. Rex Burnett, two grandchildren, numerous relatives and many friends.

Dear companion and mother, you've left us,
Your voyage in this life is o'er;
And now we know you are roaming
Happily in God's Golden Shore.
Your counsel and labor you gave us,
Your loving thoughts we'll ever cherish;
Till we, like you, shall cast anchor,
And find you waiting for us at the door.

The funeral services were held from the late home at 2 p. m. Sunday and the remains were laid in the North Hamburg cemetery, Rev. H. E. May-croft officiating.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the many acts and words of sympathy and kindness so liberally extended during our recent bereavement. The floral offerings were highly appreciated.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

Capital Punishment Bill Loses After Bitter Fight In House

Lansing—For at least two years, there will be no death penalty for a murderer in Michigan. By a close vote, and yet the most pronounced of any on the subject in the last four years, the house of representatives killed the McEachron bill which would have made electrocution the punishment for a deliberate slaying in the state.

Eight votes out of the house membership of 100, was the margin of victory for the opponents of capital punishment, the tally being 46 for and 54 against. Two years ago, there was three votes difference and four years ago, a single ballot prevented passage of the bill in the house.

The vote was somewhat of a surprise. The generally expressed sentiment of the house for several weeks indicated a preponderance of belief in the effectiveness of a death penalty as a crime preventive. The house had hooted down one anti-capital punishment speaker.

House Rebukes Couzens

United States Senator James Couzens was rebuked for inaccurately expressing sentiments of the people of the state and of the Michigan Republican party, when he opposed confirmation of the nomination of Charles Beecher Warren as attorney general.

Unanimously the house of representatives voted to suspend the rules and give immediate passage to a resolution repudiating Couzens as a Michigan spokesman, approving the presidential appointment of Warren.

The resolution was introduced unexpectedly by Representative Fred Wade, of Allegan. He explained that the Warren appointment was likely to be resubmitted at the senate in the next few days by President Coolidge, and that a frank statement from the Michigan legislators concerning their interpretation of general Republican sentiments in Michigan might have the effect of demonstrating that Senators Couzens and Ferris have not echoed their constituents' ideas and might swing voters from other states into the confirmation column.

U. of M. Wants Larger Income

A bill to remove the limit of $3,000,000 from the mill tax funds available to the University of Michigan will be introduced in the Legislature along with the University Appropriation Bill, Rep. Charles A. Sink, of Ann Arbor, announced. Removal of the limit would increase the university funds, on the basis of the 1924 valuation of the property, by about $875,000. The history of the mill tax dates back to 1873 when the Legislature passed an act providing that a tax of three-eighths of a mill be levied.

Party Listing Eliminated

At a joint meeting of the house and senate election committees the question of incorporating party enrollment in the state election laws was discussed and an agreement reached that any changes in the present election laws should be contained in separate bills and not incorporated in any measure codifying the existing laws. An informal poll of the two committees showed that the sentiment for and against party enrollment was fairly well divided.

Anti-Gambling Bill Passed

The Bahorski Anti-Gambling Bill was passed by the Senate by a unanimous vote. Thirty Senators cast affirmative ballots. One member, Senator Elijah B. Howarth, of Royal Oak, was absent. There was no discussion. The Bahorski Bill is to take the place of the Voorhies-Bahorski Anti-Gambling Law, adopted by the 1923 Legislature, but knocked out by the State Supreme Court on a technicality.

More Judges For Detroit

Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck has signed the Condon Recorder's Court bill which allows the Detroit court 10 judges instead of the seven it now has, if the voters of the city so elect. The proposal is to go before Detroit voters at the April 6 election. The additional judges will be appointed by the Governor to hold office until the next general election, if approval is given by the voters.

No Action On Arca Bill

The discovery that it will be impossible to approve the Condon joint resolution seeking amendment of the State Constitution to provide for the establishment of metropolitan districts in time to place it on the ballot in the April election has displayed final disposition of the measure.

Soft Drink Bill Passed

After an amendment to exclude milk and cream from its provisions had been included, the Curtis soft drink bill was passed by the House. Rep. William DeBoer, of Grand Rapids, offered the amendment. It was adopted without discussion. Mr. Curtis declared some time ago that he was not personally interested in the bill and had introduced it only as a favor to Charles E. Spencer, who had handed it to him. Mr. Spencer is chief soft drink inspector for the State Department of Agriculture.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Port Huron—C. M. Kidman, who for four years has been in charge of the St. Clair County Farm Bureau, has resigned effective March 31. He will enter the real estate business here.

Kalamazoo—A gift of $5,000 to the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts has been made by Mrs. Anna Louise Raymond, of Chicago. The sum is to be made the basis of the institute's future endowment fund.

Dowagiac—Driving their automobile into the path of an eastbound Michigan Central flyer, five Dowagiac youths met death and two others were critically injured when the train hurled the machine and its occupants 300 feet down the track.

Bay City—Three boys are in jail here on charges of arson and the police say they have confessed to having set fire to the Visitation Parochial School recently. The fire damaged the building and contents to the extent of $15,000 or more and a fireman had a leg broken in a fall while fighting the flames.

Port Huron—Trucks using State and county roads will be permitted to carry but half loads until further notice. The order has been issued by the State Highway Department which holds that the softening and shifting of earth under the roads and the frost leaving the cement are liable to weaken the roads.

Owosso—The estate of Peter J. Slane, priest, who died in a Coney Island hotel room leaving approximately $150,000, will probably be tied up for weeks, pending determination whether he was a resident of New York or Michigan. Probate Judge Matthew Bush said that auxiliary proceedings would probably be needed before the heirs could get their shares.

Monroe—The city commission decided to submit to a vote April 5 a proposition to bond the city for $22,000 for the purpose of building two four-foot dams in the River Raisin. These dams would be used to flush the river, carrying away debris and maintaining a clear channel. The ballot also will include a proposal to levy a tax not to exceed $2,500 for the maintenance of a city hand.

Mt. Clemens—E. D. Weimann was elected for a fifth consecutive term as president of the village of Armada, Macomb County. It was announced here. Fewer than 150 votes were cast, with Joseph V. Palmerlee, Weimann's opponent on the Citizens' Ticket, receiving 41 votes and Weimann 99. The People's Ticket was likewise successful at New Baltimore, where Rudolph was named village president.

Traverse City—Michigan's peach crop has nine lives like a cat. On three different occasions growers have reported the 1925 crop of buds threatened with extinction, yet the crop still lives. According to reports brought to the pre-spring convention of the Michigan State Horticultural Society here the prospects are good for a near normal production of peaches in Michigan. The prospects are much better than a year ago, the growers declare.

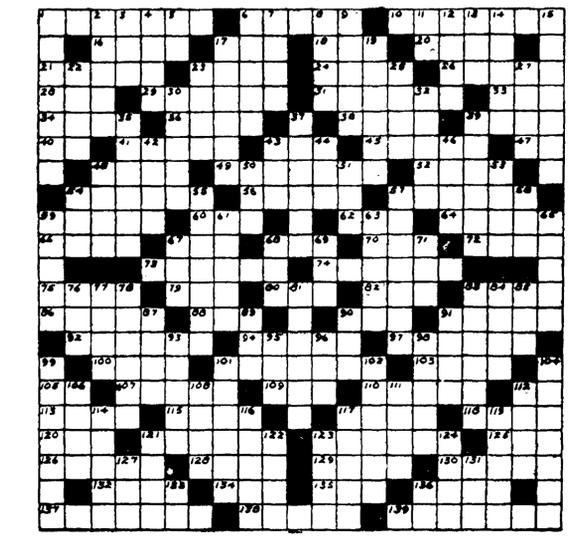

Grand Rapids—"Your time isn't up until Saturday but you'll have to get out; we haven't room for you." With these words, Sheriff William Smith, of the Kent County Jail, released three prisoners whose time was not up for three days more. The jail, which had a capacity of only 95 prisoners had a total of 132 inmates and it reached the point where something had to be done and the sheriff said he did the only thing he knew of, releasing some of the prisoners.

St. James, Beaver Island—The story of a Russian baron who became a Nihilist and fled from his native land about 50 years ago, went on the stage in England and later came to America where he made and spent a fortune under an assumed name was revealed here following the death of the mysterious "Dr. Protar." Friends of Dr. Protar on Beaver Island, where he had lived among fishermen and farmers for years without revealing his identity, established beyond doubt, that Dr. Protar was Baron Perrot, of Pietri, Russia.

Hamtramck—A bomb placed in the office of the White Star moving picture theater, Joseph Campau avenue, Hamtramck, exploded at 4 a. m. and blew out the front of the theater. The explosion broke windows in houses and business places in the block. No one was seen putting the bomb in the building, and Hamtramck police could discover no reason for the effort to destroy the place. The theater is owned by M. A. Slipski, who lives at the rear of the theater, but who is at present out of town. The damage was estimated at $700.

Detroit—Seven bandits, two of them armed with sawed-off shotguns, held up the Freedman Bros. jewelry store in Hamtramck, and escaped with jewelry valued at approximately $15,000. The bandits drove up to the store in a large touring car, and four of them entered, leaving the three others on guard in front of the place. The thugs armed with sawed-off shotguns forced one of the brothers, Isadore Freedman, into a room in back of the store and stood guard over him, while the others rifled the show cases. He was alone in store when they entered.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below. The number which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" denotes a word which will fill all the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Hellenist Hellenes was one of the names of the inhabitants of ancient Greece, and the word Hellenist meant one who imitated or imitated Greek manners, especially a person of Jewish extraction who used the Greek language as his mother tongue, as did the Jews of Asia Minor, Greece, Syria and elsewhere. Many of the Jews scattered through the provinces of Asia Minor during the first century of the Christian era were Hellenists.

Can't Soar Up Birds cannot fly to a higher altitude without moving their wings. Maurice Boel, Belgian army expert, says after a study of South American birds, especially a person of Jewish extraction who used the Greek language as his mother tongue, as did the Jews of Asia Minor, Greece, Syria and elsewhere. Many of the Jews scattered through the provinces of Asia Minor during the first century of the Christian era were Hellenists.

POINTS ON KEEPING WELL

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN Editor of "HEALTH"

HARVESTING THE WINTER'S CROP

THE highest point in the pneumonia death rate comes not in the depth of winter, as one might expect, but in March and April. Yet it is easy to understand why this should be the case.

During the coldest months everyone instinctively takes greater precautions. Warmer clothing is worn, greater care is taken to prevent chills, exposure and wet feet. Elderly persons, those whose resistance is lowered, or those suffering from coughs and colds, naturally avoid any unnecessary exposure, as far as possible.

But with the coming of warmer days, many of our midwinter precautions are relaxed. Yet our early spring days are really more dangerous than the middle of winter. A mild, clear morning is, suddenly and without warning, followed by a raw, chilly afternoon. The light coat that was warm enough when we left the house after breakfast is not enough to protect us by dinner time.

But the principal reason why the toll of deaths is greater in the spring is that we are, most of us, suffering from the effects of reduced resistance, due to infectious "colds" which we have accumulated during the winter. "Colds" are infections of all or part of the mucous membrane lining the nose and the upper part of the throat. The nose is the strainer of our breathing machine. As we draw outside air into the throat through the nose, it passes over the moist, warm lining of the nose, which warms it, moistens it and catches dust particles, germs and other foreign bodies. If the nose is free from obstruction and if the lining is normal, then the clean, warm, moist air goes down into the lungs without causing any irritation. But if the nose is "stopped up," then we breathe the cold, dry, germ-laden air directly into the lungs.

Frequent continuous infection of the nose not only increases the chances of lung infection, but it also, in time, is very apt to extend the inflammation from the nose itself to the sinuses or cavities opening into the nose. These cavities in the bones surrounding the nose are all lined with the same mucous membrane as the nose itself. The large cavities, one on each side, are called the maxillary sinuses, because they are located in the upper jaw-bones. The two small cavities above the nose, just behind the eyebrows, are the frontal sinuses. The cavities behind and above the nose are the sphenoidal and ethmoidal sinuses.

Infection of any of these cavities causes the production of pus or matter in these bony spaces. The nose is the body's sentinel. Avoid colds or have them promptly treated if you have one. Keep the nose free and open during the winter and you will be in much less danger from pneumonia in the spring.

PREVENTING FIRE LOSSES

LAST year fire killed 14,542 persons, injured 15,110 more and destroyed over $500,000,000 worth of property. Ninety per cent of this loss was due to carelessness and 100 per cent was preventable.

Sixty-five per cent of all fires are in the home. Over 800 homes burn up each day of the year or near 300,000 a year. While the number of fires is greater in the cities than in the country, the relative loss is greater in the country. This would naturally be the case, as smaller towns do not have as complete fire-fighting equipment as do the larger cities, and fires once started are apt to cause greater destruction.

How can fires be prevented? By using as far as possible, fireproof materials in building. The development of concrete and cement as building materials will probably in time reduce the number of fires.

But how about existing houses? A few rules drawn from statistics as to the causes of fires might be adopted in every household.

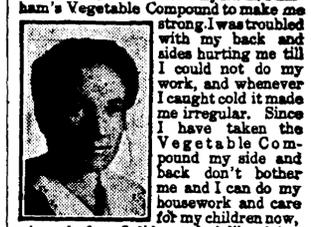

Keep matches only in safe containers out of the reach of children and mice. Don't leave matches lying around loose, especially don't let them get scattered around on the floor.

Be sure a match has gone out before you throw it away. Don't allow gas light near wood-work, curtains or other inflammable material. Don't have curtains hanging near enough to open fireplaces or gas stoves, so that the curtain can blow into the flames.

Have your furnace, grate or stove chimneys or flues cleaned and repaired every spring and inspected in the fall before starting fires. If you use electricity, disconnect irons, toasters and other electrical fixtures when not in use. Be sure the insulation is perfect in all points needing it.

MRS. WM. BUTTS WAS VERY SICK

Gives Full Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for Remarkable Recovery

Wellston, O.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make me strong. I was troubled with my back and sides hurting me till I could not do my work, and whenever I caught cold it made me irregular. Since I have taken the Vegetable Compound my side and back don't bother me and I can do my housework and care for my children now, where before I did not feel like doing anything or going around. After my first child was born about four years ago I saw an advertisement in the paper about the Vegetable Compound. I knew it would help me, but I was afraid to try it because people said it would help you to have children and I knew I was having children fast enough. But I thought if it would help me it would be better to have a whole house full of children and have good health. I became stronger from taking it and my husband says I look like a live woman instead of a dead one. When Spring comes I am going to take your Blood Purifier as I am very thin. I will answer letters from any woman who wishes to ask about your medicine."—Mrs. WILLIAM BUTTS, Wellston, Ohio.

"WOMEN WHO GIVE"
BOASTS GREAT CAST

Barbara Bedford, Robert Frazer, Renee Adoree, Frank Keenan, Joseph Dowling and Margaret Sheldon play the principal roles in "Women Who Give," Reginald Barker's latest production which comes to Opera House Saturday, March 21st.

"Women Who Give" is an adaptation of "Cape Cod Folks," Sarah P. McLean Greene's story of the New England coast. It has been filmed in unusually thrilling and dramatic style providing motion picture entertainment of the very highest quality and is decidedly one of the most interesting productions.

A wonderfully realistic ship wreck with a fishing schooner smashed to pieces on the rocks, a life and death struggle with a huge swordfish the firing of a fisherman's cottage and tense dramatic moments too numerous to mention all tend to make "Women Who Give" a photodrama that no lover of motion pictures will care to miss.

Sixth Sense in Dogs?

A seven-year-old collie recently returned to a farm in the Cumberland Hills from Liverpool, a hundred miles away. No satisfactory explanation has ever been offered for this fact, though some people ventured the opinion that the dog has a kind of second sight, of which humans know nothing. —London Mail.

Evolution of Trombone

The trombone, from the Italian "tromba," a trumpet, was formerly called the sackbut, and is a brass instrument, of uncertain invention and epoch, though it appears in a manuscript of the Nineteenth century, preserved at Boulogne, as a drawing bearing a great resemblance to the trombone of today without its bell. — Music World.

Battle of Franklin

Battlefield of Franklin Looking North from Cheatham's Headquarters

Congress Asked to Preserve Battlefield of Civil War . . .

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

ORTH and South, as all good Americans know, fought side by side under Old Glory in the Spanish-American war, thereby giving notice to all the world that the animosities of the Civil War had been forgotten. The World war lightened the bonds. And both sides are proud of the courage displayed in the Civil war and the feats of arms accomplished. This is as it should be, for history can show no more thrilling valor, no more desperate conflict.

This pride finds expression in a movement for the preservation of battlefields as national historical landmarks. Chickamauga and Chattanooga in Georgia and Tennessee; Antietam in Maryland; Shiloh in Tennessee; Gettysburg in Pennsylvania, and Vicksburg in Mississippi have been made national military parks.

Now congress is asked to add to the list the battlefields of Franklin in Tennessee and Petersburg in Virginia.

Representative W. C. Salmon of Tennessee introduced the Franklin bill, he said, at the request of representatives from Ohio and citizens of his state and district. Ohio was especially interested because of the fact that the division of the Union army which suffered the greatest loss was largely from that state. Here are some of the things Representative Salmon said about the Battle of Franklin:

It is known that the Battle of Franklin was the most bloody and the fiercest battle of the Civil war. It was in this battle that more men were killed in proportion to the number engaged than in any other during the entire four years. Thirteen generals and more than forty colonels were killed or wounded.

The southern army commanded by General Hood and his assisting commanders was composed of the bravest and best Anglo-Saxon blood of the South, numbering among its officers who were wounded or slain such men as Generals Cleburne, Carter, Strahl, Cockrell, Gordon, Granberry, Walthall, and John Adams. These men at the head of their commands marched to their death at the command of their superior officer with a chivalric bravery unsurpassed in the annals of history. It is said that there were about sixty thousand men engaged in this battle which lasted only four or five hours, and at its close there lay dead on the battlefields either killed or wounded, something like ten thousand men.

One of our most beloved members on the Democratic side, Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood, was one of the chief actors in this battle. It was at this battle that the fortunes of the Confederacy turned. It was the beginning of the surrender at Appomattox.

Mr. Salmon got into the Congressional Record the following excerpt from General Sherwood's work, "Memories of the War":

And what a night that was. After the battle the dead lay around the breastworks from river to river, outside the breastworks in a wider line from river to river—a wider and thicker line—lay the Confederate dead. Amid the smoke and grime of battle and under the dun clouds of smoke almost hiding the stars, the Blue and the Gray looked the same. I stood on the parapet just before midnight and saw all that could be seen. I saw and heard all that my eyes could see, or my rent soul could contemplate in such an awful environment. It was a spectacle to appal the stoutest heart. The wounded, shivering in the chilled November air, the heart-rending cries of the desperately wounded, and the prayers of the dying filled me with anguish that no language can describe. From that hour to this I have hated war.

Mr. Salmon also got into the Record an excerpt from a novel by Trovwood Moore, a southern author. Its title is "The Bishop of Cottonow." The excerpt:

It was the middle of the afternoon of the last day of November (1864)—and also the last day of many a gallant life—when Hood's tired army marched over the brow of the high ridge of hills that looked down on the town of Franklin, in front of which, under the guns, thousands more fortunate or daring than their comrades lay, thrusting and being thrust, shooting and being shot—the sun had not set; yet the black smoke of battle had set it before a time—again and again and again from 4 till midnight eight battering hours—the heart of the South was hurled against those bastions of steel and flame, only to be pierced with ball and bayonet.

The beautiful town of Franklin is in the historic bluegrass section of middle Tennessee, on the Jackson highway, about midway between the home of President Polk at Columbia, and the historic home of President Andrew Jackson at Hermitage. The Jackson highway is the main road between Nashville, the capital of Tennessee, and the now famous Muscle Shoals government hydroelectric power plant.

The cross in white in the picture shows the exact location of the fiercest fighting. The view is to the north of Cheatham's headquarters.

The Battle of Franklin was fought November 30, 1864. And here is where it fits in: General Sherman, preparing for his "March to the Sea"—only Grant knew of his plans—led Union forces through Tennessee into Georgia. General Johnson, in command of the Confederate forces, made a spirited resistance and battles were fought at Dalton (May 7); Resaca (May 12), and at Kennesaw Mountain (June 14-27). General Hood, replacing Johnson, marched into Tennessee, threatening the Northwest with invasion and hoping to divert Sherman, who had occupied Atlanta (September 2). Hood fought at Franklin and then went on to Nashville, where General Thomas defeated him (December 15). Sherman in the meantime was "Marching through Georgia" and captured Savannah (December 21).

The advance guard of the Union forces under General Cox arrived at Franklin in the morning after a night march from Spring Hill and immediately threw up slight breastworks. The Columbia pike bisected the works. The ground in front was practically open. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon the Confederates came on in battle array. They swooped down on two exposed brigades of Wagner's division, untroubled, over-whelmed them and took 700 prisoners. Then they swarmed on to the intrenchments with yells of victory.

Time after time they came on to the very works. More than one color bearer was shot down on the parapet. Some of the Union officers

Maj. Gen. Patrick R. Cleburne, CSA.

Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood

reported as many as thirteen assaults. The fiercest fighting was close to the Columbia pike. Here fell most of the Confederate generals, owing to the fact that Stewart's and Cheatham's commands became intermingled. Here Adams of Stewart's corps was killed and Cockrell and Quarles wounded. Close by were killed Cleburne, Granberry, Strahl and Glat of Cheatham's corps, and Brown was wounded. Gen. G. W. Gordon was made prisoner inside the works.

Colonel Stewart of the Sixty-fifth Illinois tried to save the life of Gen. John Adams of Mississippi. Stewart called to his men not to fire on him, but it was too late. Adams rode his horse over the ditch to the top of the parapet, undertook to grasp the flag from the hands of the color-sergeant, and fell, horse and all, shot by the color-guard.

On the Union side the Forty-fourth Missouri sustained the heaviest loss—34 killed and 129 wounded and missing. In the Seventy-second Illinois, adjoining every field officer was wounded and the entire color guard of nine was shot down. Thirty-three Confederate colors were captured; the Confederates also carried off many Union colors when they withdrew toward evening.

During the night General Schofield, under orders from General Thomas, withdrew to Nashville.

General Sherwood, who was in his seat in the house as representative from the Ninth Ohio district, was colonel of the Eleventh Ohio infantry in the Battle of Franklin. He was breveted brigadier general of volunteers February 27, 1865, "for gallant and meritorious services" at Resaca, Franklin and Nashville. The only other Civil war veteran in congress is Maj. Charles Manly Stedman of North Carolina. His regiment was the Forty-fourth North Carolina infantry, C. S. A. General Sherwood was born in New York state August 13, 1835. He has served nine terms in congress and has been editor, lawyer, secretary of state, probate judge and soldier—enlisting as a private three days after the fall of Fort Sumter, while mayor of Toledo.

Litigation Saved by Diversity of Opinion

When two men of high standing fall out it is usually over one of the most trivial things in life. It would not be fair, perhaps, to say that Senator Lodge and General Paine actually fell out, but they were neighbors at Nahant and General Paine wanted a right of way across Mr. Lodge's property. The question of right was rather involved, and Paine consulted a lawyer, who said, "You haven't a case."

Not satisfied, he consulted another, who gave him a similar opinion. There the matter rested for a few days, when the general received a letter from the senator saying, "As to the right of way, I have consulted two lawyers, both of whom tell me you can probably sustain your contention in court. I suggest, therefore, that we come together and arrange for the right of way as you desire."

History of Lace

Lace was first made in the sixteenth century. Before that time the term lace described such articles as cords, narrow braids of plaited and twisted threads, used not only to fasten shoes, sleeves and corsets together, but also in a decorative manner to braid the hair and to wind around hats. Later it was used as a trimming for costumes.

75% of disease avoided through internal cleanliness

WHEN you are constipated, polluted food waste, and reach all parts of the body. The first results, headaches, biliousness, a feeling of "heaviness", etc., serve as warnings of graver diseases to follow if this intestinal poisoning continues unchecked.

This is why intestinal specialists state that constipation is the primary cause of three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Physicians Advise Lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in Lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste, and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

Webster Visits Jefferson

Mr. Webster of Massachusetts, with one or two private friends, has gone on a visit to Mr. Jefferson at his seat in Virginia. Mr. Clay, it will be recollected, has just been there.

These visits to our venerable ex-presidents have become a sort of pious pilgrimage to the abodes of virtue and intelligence. They have a noble purpose, a better effect, than the mere gratification of natural curiosity, says the Charleston Courier, December 18, 1824. A wise American statesman, invested with despotic authority for this purpose only, would exact that every youth (and we almost said every female) in the east, west and south, should spend one year of the period of adolescence in each quarter of the country of which he is not a native. We should thus perceive, in some degree, the homogeneity of the people, and educate men for future public life who would know how to appreciate the peculiarities of all parts of the country to request the excellence of each and to make allowances for their defects.

NEWS and GOSSIP of WASHINGTON

Washington Celebration Open to World

WASHINGTON.—An intention to invite the nations of the world to join the United States in observance of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington in 1832 is announced by President Coolidge on behalf of the commission recently appointed to arrange for the celebration of the event.

Setting forth the purposes for which the commission was created the President in his statement said that "for the present it is impossible more specifically to suggest the purposes and character of the commemoration which it is proposed to arrange."

"The two hundredth anniversary of General Washington's birth will be an occasion of such significance not only to our own country, but to the entire world that it is manifestly fitting that the American nation should appropriately observe it."

"But beyond this it is felt that as the life, the career and the achievements of Washington belong, not to a single nation, but to all humanity, it is proper the nation founded under his leadership should invite all other nations and peoples to join it in the observance of this anniversary. The character, the efforts and the achievements of Washington have made an impression on the whole world, so profound as to have affected the very course of history and to have touched the lives of all who today live in this world."

Campaign for Ocean Memorial Starts

THE ambition of men in the navy and marine corps for erection of a great navy and marine memorial on the Potomac river, in Washington, was brought a step nearer completion in New York city at a dinner given by the Navy and Marine Memorial association at the Army and Navy club of New York.

Pointing to the seaman, the man who pilots and directs ships of the modern day, and the generations of seamen who have made his accomplishments possible, as one of the greatest single forces in the progress of modern civilization, Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N., retired, told the Navy and Marine Memorial association that the proposed memorial must be built to "let the seaman know that the day of his unrequited service has gone by and that he is coming into the honor which he merits."

"Build a memorial in Washington that shall stand before the nations," Admiral Fiske said, "not only as a belated recognition of his work through all the dim and distant past, but also as an assurance of a near and brilliant future."

Legal Snarls Retard London Embassy

ALTHOUGH congress appropriated $150,000 three years ago to remodel the two London houses which J. P. Morgan gave to the United States as an American embassy, it now develops that nothing has been done to carry out the work. Wilbur J. Carr, assistant secretary of state, explained that the delay in throwing the two houses together is due to the working out of a conveyance of title to this government that would be valid under both British and American law.

"The lawyers had great difficulty in working that out and months of time were consumed," Mr. Carr stated to the house appropriations committee a short time ago, as now revealed by the printed hearings. "But before we could approve, the appropriation lapsed."

"We still have not been able to get construction plans and specifications upon which we could get satisfactory bids under both laws, and it is not expected that that can be done by July 1, and therefore construction cannot take place this year. That's why we are asking you to extend the unexpended balance again."

"What's the matter with the build-

Famous Forts in U. S. History

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(C. 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

The Fort That Was Built by a "Tenderfoot"

Just when the term "tenderfoot" was first used is unknown. But it is pretty certain that it could have been applied to Nathaniel J. Wyeth of Boston. Back in 1832 he decided that a profitable salmon fishery could be established on the Columbia river in the Pacific northwest, to be operated in connection with the fur trade, enlisted a group of New Englanders in his enterprise and started West.

Not one of the party had ever seen an Indian, handled a rifle nor had the faintest idea of plainscraft. Fortunately for them, at Independence, Mo., they fell in with two veterans of the plains, Capt. William Sublette and Robert Campbell, partners in the Rocky Mountain Fur company, who were bound for the annual trappers' rendezvous at Pierre's Hole far up in Wyoming, and traveling with them, the easterners learned their first lesson in the frontier's hard school.

Then followed several months of exciting adventure and despite the loss of several men in fights with the fiercest Blackfoot Indians and the desertion of others, Wyeth pushed on with 11 men into the Snake river country and finally in October, 1833, reached Fort Vancouver, the Hudson's Bay company post on the Columbia. Here most of his men deserted him, but undaunted, the leader, accompanied by only two of his followers, started on the back track. After another perilous journey he reached St. Louis in safety and organized the Columbia River Fishing and Trading company.

Then he set out again and in the summer of 1834 built a fort in what is now Idaho on the left bank of the Snake river above the mouth of the Portneuf. It was finished on August 6, 1834, and named Fort Hall in honor of Henry Hall, the oldest partner in the company. He raised over it a "flag made of unbleached sheeting, a little red dannel and a few blue patches, saluted with damaged powder and wet in villainous liquor" and thus the American flag was first unfurled over that part of the great wilderness of the West.

In 1836 Wyeth sold Fort Hall to the Hudson's Bay company. In the days of the great migration over the Oregon trail it was an important post, since it marked the place where many emigrants turned off to seek their fortunes in the gold fields of California, and in the '70's it played a leading part in the Bannock and Plute war. But the greatest fame of Fort Hall lies in its early history when it was the living symbol of the indomitable courage of Nathaniel J. Wyeth.

In Honor of the Great Western Expansionist

When the fur trade died in the great West, there died with it many of the posts which had been the centers of this industry. One notable exception was Fort Benton in Montana. Built in 1844 by Alexander Culbertson of the American Fur company, it was originally named Fort Lewis in honor of Meriwether Lewis, the explorer. In 1846 this post was moved to the head of navigation on the Missouri, rebuilt with adobe, and on Christmas day dedicated amid great festivities as Fort Benton, thus honoring Thomas Hart Benton, the great western expansionist and a trusted friend of the "A. F. C."

In its first period Fort Benton ranked with Fort Union in North Dakota as a fur center, and later it became the main center of trade in buffalo robes, when Fort Union was abandoned. The fact that from 20,000 to 50,000 buffalo robes were shipped from Fort Benton each year tells briefly why the buffalo vanished from the northern plains.

The greatest glory of Fort Benton came about the year 1866. When the Red Cloud war stopped the rush of miners to the new gold fields in Montana over the Bozeman trail, they were forced to fall back upon the water route, the Missouri river. Before 1866 not more than six steamers arrived at Fort Benton annually, but in that year the number leaped to 31, and from then until 1869 the number of arrivals constantly increased.

Fort Benton became the principal departing point for the diggings, and no less than 800 wagons gathered there each year to make the long haul of supplies, sometimes as much as 5,000 tons a year, to the gold camps from 150 to 250 miles away. In these years there was no more picturesque place in the country than Fort Benton. Miners from both the Union and Confederate armies, fur traders, hunters, trappers, good men and bad, they all made up the constantly shifting population of this post.

In 1869 the government established a military post there, and in 1877 purchased the American Fur company's old fort, but soon abandoned it. When the Great Northern railroad pushed into Montana, Fort Benton waned rapidly until today there remains only a few crumbling walls of what the late Emerson Hough once characterized as "the most famous and most picturesque of all the historic posts on the Upper Missouri."

Feel Achy After Every Cold?

ARE you lame and stiff; tired and nervous—constantly troubled with backache and twinges of pain?

Have you given any attention to your kidneys? Grip, colds and chills, you know, are apt to be mighty hard on the kidneys. And if the overtaxed kidneys fail to properly filter the blood, impurities accumulate and throw the whole system out of tune. Then may follow daily backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities.

In such conditions a good stimulant diuretic should help the kidneys flush the poisons out of your system. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Are recommended by folks you know. Ask your neighbor!

A Michigan Case

William Neason, retired farmer, Arcade St., Gladwin, Mich., says: "Backache was the first symptom of kidney trouble in my case. As time passed, the muscles in my back and limbs became lame and sore. My kidneys were weak and acted far too often, sometimes causing me to get up during the night to pass the secretions. After using Doan's Pills, the trouble left me."

Year's Oil Output Preliminary estimates indicate that the total world production of crude oil in 1924 may have equaled the 1923 output. While the two leading producers—the United States and Mexico—appear to have registered a decline, this has been largely counterbalanced by increased output in some other countries, as Russia, Persia, Rumania and South America—notably Venezuela.
