A TRUE HERO GIVES HIS LIFE

Guy Lewis Burned to Death in Hopeless Effort to Save
Little Girl

Friday night Guy Lewis lost his life while bravely attempting to save little Rose Lewis from devouring flames in which the little five year old niece lost her life.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lewis, who live on the Orrin Backus farm, about 8 miles northwest of Pinckney are mourning the loss of a brave brother and a little daughter, while the entire population of this section are awestricken by one of the most terrible catastrophes that ever happened in the vicinity.

The Lewis family was composed of the father and mother, four small children and the brother Guy, who was helping with the farm work. Last Friday night Mrs. Lewis, with the second oldest daughter, attended a party at the home of her sister nearby. The men, after working hard all day were at home with the other three children. The uncle, Guy, was awakened by smoke and calling his nephew, who slept with him, rushed down stairs where the father, Leon, was sleeping with the little baby. When they were safely out Guy ran upstairs to get little Rose out but was literally burned to death with the little girl.

The shock was too much for the mother when she heard the dreadful news and became so hysterical that Dr. Sigler was called. Nothing was saved and the building and contents were a total loss.

The Lewis family are highly respected in this vicinity and lived for many years on the old Lewis farm in East Putnam. The two boys, Guy and Leon, stayed at home and took care of their parents until their death. When the farm was sold Leon bought a home in Pinckney, while Guy worked in Ann Arbor. This year Leon rented the Backus farm and Guy helped with the farm work.

The double funeral was held at the Congregational church, Monday at 2 p. m., burial in Pinckney cemetery.

C. H. KENNEDY

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Cadillac—This city is placed definitely in the 12,000 population class by the latest estimates furnished by the school census, recently completed. Every ward shows a gain over last year.

Iron Mountain—Another state police post for the upper peninsula is to be established in this city, according to a plan under consideration by the state department of public safety. Captain Downing said this county would serve as a central point for policing four other counties.

Lansing—A proposal by the National Guard that the state purchase of the Manistee and Northeastern railroad was turned down by the administrative board. The M. & N. E. is seeking to abandon its lines. It was pointed out the spur is needed to provide rail access to the National Guard Camp.

Big Rapids—A 30-foot power dam will be constructed on the Muskegon River about one mile north of Paris. It is announced by W. H. Allswede, of Hersey. The new dam will supply farmers and towns in this territory with power. A corporation will be formed with a capital of $1,000,000 according to present plans.

Muskegon—"Krip," a bull dog, gave his life in protecting Miss Mable Hill, its owner, at the Hill summer camp near Grand Haven. A big rattlesnake entered the camp and while Charles Hill, a brother of Mable, ran for a club, the dog gave battle and killed the snake. The dog was bitten, however, and died a few hours later.

Port Huron—This city faces a suspension of street car service as the result of an ultimatum delivered by the receivers of the Detroit United Railway, which owns and operates the city electric railway company. The ultimatum states that unless the company is permitted to increase its fares from five to seven cents a ride it will suspend.

Manistee—Charles J. DeLand, secretary of state, has ordered the sale of automobile licenses from the office of Arnold T. Graves, missing Manistee County Treasurer, discontinued indefinitely. In the meantime state officials and county officers are making a check of the books in Graves' office to determine whether or not there is a shortage.

Battle Creek—A 140,000 volt transmission line, one of the main arteries of the Consumers' Power Co., and one of the highest voltage cables in the state, broke near Bellevue, causing wire fences to become charged with electricity for a distance of two miles, stunned two men nearly a mile away, killed two head of cattle and started a fire that destroyed 20 acres of hay.

Kalamazoo—Because he mistook Kalamazoo for Detroit, Joseph Jakerboske, of Hamtramck, spent several hours in the Kalamazoo County Jail. He was arrested by an officer wandering about the streets looking for a "Michigan Car." He told Sheriff Borden that he had fallen asleep on a train from Chicago and awakening here believed he was in Detroit. He was put on an eastbound train and sent to his destination.

Ypsilanti—One hundred students short of the enrollment of the summer session of a year ago has been reported by President Charles McKenney, of the Michigan State Normal College. The falling off is due, the president states, to the fact that only 200 students are enrolled in the six weeks course, which is the minimum required by state law of teachers in rural schools. This is the last year that the six weeks minimum is permitted.

Ypsilanti—About $70,000 damage was done to the Detroit Edison power plant at Superior, a few miles from here, when lightning struck the building. Light service in Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor and neighboring towns was cut off for two hours, until an emergency crew of 50 men were able to establish temporary cutovers. Although the building was partially demolished, no one was hurt, as the two men in charge of the plant at the time, had just started outside to watch the storm.

Ann Arbor—Pouring of concrete has started on Michigan's single building of the present year, the Simpson to house the Thomas H. Simpson memorial institute. Plans call for the completion of the building in 1926. The structure, which will house the first distinctly research unit connected with the medical school of the University of Michigan, will be 71 by 40 feet, four stories and a sub-basement. The original plans called for a brick structure but final plans call for an Indiana lime stone building.

Manistee—Pennies and nickels saved through the schools savings system by pupils of Manistee public schools during the past four years now total $3,975, according to an announcement at the close of the school year. Though eighth graders, upon graduation, separate their accounts from the school system, the total amount of savings is growing annually and is becoming a real course in thrift for the city's children. The greatest individual account totals $137.05, but most of them are much smaller.

Bay City—Damage estimated by the owner at between $150,000 and $175,000 was caused by fire in a furniture store here.

Grand Rapids—A friend's story caused Ford Curtis, a barber, to laugh so hard that he dislocated his jaw. The jaw was placed in its normal position at Butterworth hospital.

Traverse City—Cherry pickers have taken to the orchards, officially opening the cherry harvest in Grand Traverse region. Some of the local canning plants are handling the early fruit, but much of the sweet crop is being shipped.

Lansing—The State Administrative Board authorized the military department to accept a bid for the construction of an addition to the Benton Harbor armory. The price was $24,000, with an additional $1,000 for architects fees.

Grand Rapids—Awakened by two strangers who demanded $2,000, Agnello Giacomo, a factory worker, was made the target of a dozen revolver shots when he slammed down his bedroom window in front of them. He was not hit. The men escaped.

Jackson—By a consolidation which has been effected between the Jackson, Majestic and Rex theater companies and the W. S. Butterfield organization of Michigan theaters, the Butterfield booking offices will be in control of three of Jackson's largest theater houses.

Lansing—The Wabash Railroad desires to absorb the Ann Arbor Railroad to acquire Great Lakes car ferry facilities and to link the Michigan territory tapped by the Ann Arbor with its own system, according to a petition received by the Public Utilities Commission.

Albion—Mrs. Kate Bromeling, Albion's first woman justice of the peace, had her first criminal cases as the result of three arrests made over the Fourth. Justice Bromeling fined two who pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated, $50 and revoked their licenses for 90 days. Another was fined $10 on a drunk charge.

Iron Mountain—Operations at the Traders mine, idle for two years, will be resumed by the Hoose & Person Construction Co., who have obtained a 15-year lease on the property from the Keweenaw Land Co. Thirty men will be employed. The company has a contract for 10,000 tons of ore and another for 20,000 is pending.

Warren—Twenty thousand persons are estimated to have attended the annual homecoming picnic, sponsored by the Warren Community Club here the Fourth. A parade, races, a ball game in which Centerline won from Warren, a tug of war between these two towns, dancing and fireworks comprised the program. No accidents were reported.

Battle Creek—An alligator, 42 inches long was the surprising catch of William Storey, a local angler. He was fishing on Mill Lake, between Battle Creek and Hastings, when he noticed something in the water which he at first mistook for a turtle. He rigged up a fish line with several hooks and landed the alligator. It gave battle, flaying its tail furiously, he said.

Ionia—Grand river, especially that stretch of it which crosses the entire width of Ionia county, is just now about as near a dusty stream as it ever was with the rainfall for the year showing a shortage of seven inches. Many of the feeding creeks and rivulets have dried up entirely, wells and cisterns have gone dry and the year has proven one of disastrous aridness.

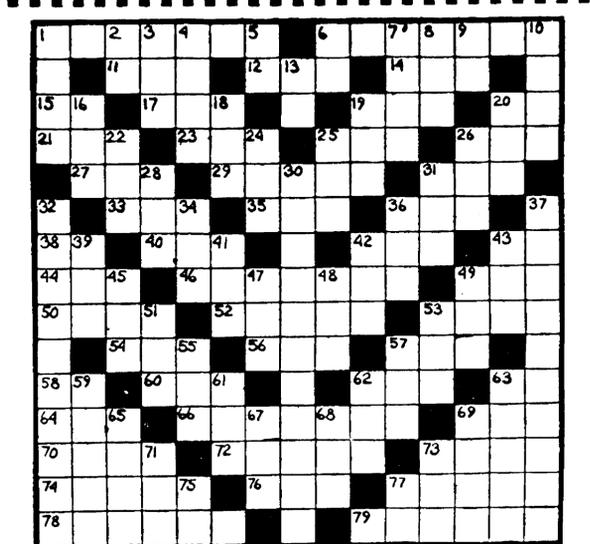

Battle Creek—The body of William E. Porter, 35 years old, wealthy glass manufacturer of Fort Smith, Ark., who disappeared from the sanitarium June 27, was found in a field three miles north of Battle Creek. Indications are that Porter committed suicide by slashing his wrist with a knife. Porter is said to have threatened to end his life, following a recent nervous breakdown.

Detroit—Within two or three years a large fleet of trans-atlantic freighters may be plying between Detroit and foreign ports. The maiden ship arrived in the city bringing a cargo of steel rails from Antwerp. She is the steamer Anders, belonging to the Lane company of New York City. At the Hotel Tuller, Frank Lane, president of the concern, stated that his company was prepared to bring to Detroit the European imports the city needed and would carry its exports abroad.

Lansing—Both state and federal supreme court decisions will be sought on the validity of the Michigan statute of 1923 prohibiting an owner from fishing on posted property where other persons are barred, according to John Baird, director of the state department of conservation. Baird's department obtained a warrant for the arrest of Frank Collins, Toledo sportsman, who fished on his land in Lake county after he had posted it to keep other persons from enjoying similar privileges.

Fremont—A new trial is in prospect for Mrs. Alice Dudgeon, once convicted of the murder of her son-in-law, Romie Hodell, and once the victim of a jury disagreement in a second trial. William J. Branstrom, former Newaygo county prosecutor, who prosecuted both cases against Mrs. Dudgeon, said that he could not consent to an order of nolle prosequi, dismissing the charges against Mrs. Dudgeon, in the light of her first conviction and the fact that the jury in the second trial stood eight to four for conviction again.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE
When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

GOLDEN ROSE MADE FOR SPANISH QUEEN

Fashioned of jewels and beaten gold a vase of roses in natural colors was recently made for the queen of Spain. To make the flowers and leaves the proper color various shades of red, yellow, lemon, green and white gold leaf were used. Working with a metal so malleable that more than one thousand three-inch squares can be beaten from one ounce, an exact model of blossoming roses and buds on the stem was created. Leaves were given a greenish tint by use of gold leaf about the 150,000th part of an inch in thickness. Alloys of silver and copper were mixed with gold to produce the desired colors and then the metal was melted in a crucible. After this it was cast in an ingot, flattened into long, narrow strips and beaten with a 17-pound hammer for 20 minutes. Then it was cut into sections and put between oxskins of a "shoder," where it was pounded again. Artists of a family that for generations has been skilled in this ancient craft spent months in perfecting the queen's gift.—Family Herald

POINTS ON KEEPING WELL

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN Editor of "HEALTH" (C. 1915, Western Newspaper Union.)

WHAT KILLS BABIES?

THE United States government has compiled and issued many bulletins on wheat crops, corn crops, hay crops, and potato crops. Now it has gotten around to investigating the most valuable crop of all, the baby crop.

What kills babies? We know, from the latest reports of the census bureau, that 187,000 babies less than one year old die every year in this country. Over half of this appalling number, or 98,000, die in the first month. It does no good to know this. It simply shocks us. To be of any value we must know what are the causes.

It is of course impossible to collect and tabulate the cause of death of each baby in this enormous total, two and one-half times as many lives every year as this country lost in the World war. But the children's bureau of the Department of Labor has just completed a study of 23,000 babies born in eight American cities. This survey may be taken as a basis, since the causes of death among so large a number may fairly be considered an average for the entire country.

From this report some interesting facts can be assumed. The mortality for male babies is one-fourth higher than for female babies. The mortality is highest in the first month of life and steadily decreases each month. For the first month, the rate is 44.8; for the second 9.3; and for the third 4.5. So the longer a baby lives the better chance it has.

Nearly one-third of the deaths in the first year are due to conditions before and immediately after birth such as premature birth, failure or defects of development and lack of strength.

The time in the year when a baby is born has much to do with its chances of living. Babies born in June have the poorest chance, those born in August the best. Maybe there's something, after all, in the old idea of the astrologers about being born under a lucky star.

First born children, contrary to the popular idea, have a higher mortality than the second born. The death rate for premature babies is over six times as high as for babies born at the natural time.

The death rate among twins and triplets is much higher than for single babies.

The highest death rate of all is for babies born within a year of the last preceding baby, while the lowest death rate is for babies born after a period of at least four years.

Four times as many bottle-fed babies die as compared with breast-fed babies. Man has never produced anything as good as a healthy mother for a baby feeder.

GRANULATED EYELIDS

ONE of the most common eye troubles is what is popularly known as granulated lids. This trouble may be slight and of only a few days' duration or it may be severe, lasting for a long time and causing serious trouble, even blindness.

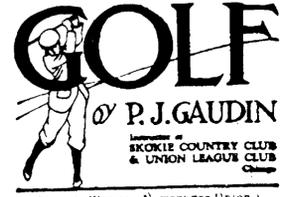

Like all popular names for diseases, such as "rheumatism," "indigestion," and "palpitation of the heart," this term really includes several distinct diseases.

A mild form of granulation of the eyelids, common among children, is what oculists call follicular conjunctivitis. This long name simply means an inflammation of the conjunctiva, the smooth velvety membrane lining the eyelids. In the healthy, normal eye, this membrane is perfectly smooth and slightly moist, so that the sensitive eyeball can turn easily and without any friction. The lubrication is just like that in the gear box of an automobile. When there is plenty of oil and no sand or dust in the oil, the gears turn smoothly and noiselessly. But if the gears are rough or broken or if any dirt gets into the oil, then the lubrication is bad, the gears pound and grind and get hot.

So in the eye, the conjunctiva, which should be smooth and moist, is dry and rough. The little blood vessels become congested, small, soft grains appear on the smooth surface, the eyes are irritated, red and sensitive to light and the child has pain when he tries to read or write. In many cases, the trouble is due to weak eyes or defects of vision which should be relieved by properly fitting glasses.

Another form of granulated lids occurs in what is called "spring catarrh." This appears in the spring and early summer and often lasts until fall. It is probably due to the irritation caused by the so-called actinic rays of the sun. A somewhat similar condition is common among firemen, glass workers, workers in iron furnaces and steel mills, where the eyes are constantly exposed to strong light and heat. Colored glasses protect the eyes and help this condition.

Another form is what is popularly called "pink eye." This is common in some epidemics of influenza and is plainly due to some form of infection. Lastly and most serious of all is trachoma, a very serious and painful infection, highly contagious and very common in some parts of the country. But this is important enough to deserve an article of its own.

Mastery of Clubs.

The average golfer never arrives at the beatific stage where he gets good results from each of his clubs. Very seldom, indeed, has he much confidence in more than two or three, though he is a good enough sport always to try with what he believes is the right club.

If you have played in a one-club match, you will probably agree with the following. If you have not, you can but take the statements under advisement until you have had more experience. Those who have played in a one-club medal-play tournament usually choose the mid-iron. Until one acquires more than the average skill, he can play a lower score with a mid-iron, for instance, than with all his clubs. One-club play, by the way, is very highly recommended. Faster than in any other way it will increase your skill with the club used. Even better than that, it will show clearly when it is not the best club to use. A few rounds with one club will materially lower your score, for the primary reason that it will greatly reduce the number of poor strokes by this club. You will be surprised, for instance, at the added skill a round of the course with a mashie-niblick, preferably supplemented with a putter, will give. The driving iron or cleek is the best club to use in a one-club match, if one is fairly sure of staying out of bunkers.

With several such tests, the average player will listen with a good deal of approval to the statement that Chick Evans never uses more than seven clubs and believes he finally will get to six. Let it be set down as a fact that the player who has mastered even six clubs is far beyond the average class. The average player can do much better with a brassie, driving iron, mid-iron, jigger, mashie, mashie-niblick and putter, than if he adds a driver, spoon, mashie iron and niblick to his kit. For all practical purposes, it is much better for the average player to carry only a brassie, mid-iron, mashie, mashie-niblick and putter until he feels perfect confidence in their use. Only then is there reason for adding other clubs. Worse even than the uncertain results of the shots is the uncertainty of which club to use where there is more than one that might fit the case.

Swing Should Be Automatic.

The beginner in golf, especially if he or she is an adult, is faced at once with the knowledge that the golf swing is different from any other muscular exertion. Along with this, except in the case of youngsters who seem able to learn by imitation, comes the rather overwhelming knowledge of the difficulty of making the swing correctly. Based on the teachings of the professional or other expert, one's natural ambition comes to the rescue.

The beginner who graduates into the average class and finally to a place among the stars, owes his advance to intelligent practice. There must be no such thing as the aimless swinging of the club or an attempt at slugging the ball before the swing is perfected. The first thought should be to learn how to make the best possible swing. Following that must come the intelligent practice which will make that swing automatic. The expert golfer spends no time in thinking of his swing when preparing to make a shot. He is concentrating wholly on distance and direction. His swing is automatic.

And that frame of mind comes about only by means of intelligent practice. Then, if any element of the swing goes wrong one can correct the fault because of the knowledge gained through practice. A slight fade-away developed in Cyril Walker's mid-iron shot in the third round of the National Open. He spent a half hour in correcting the fault just before starting on the final round. And he made that wonderful mid-iron approach on the seventieth hole that won him the championship. No better illustration could be cited of the intelligent practice which spells improvement in a golf game. First get the knowledge of how to make the swing and then anchor that knowledge by the intelligent practice that will make the swing automatic. Then if anything goes wrong, correct the fault at once with more practice. Deliberately plan to give some of your golfing time to practice alone. Actual play, without practice, will never develop one's game beyond a certain point. One might as well attempt to be a Paderewski without intimate acquaintance with scales and five-finger exercises.

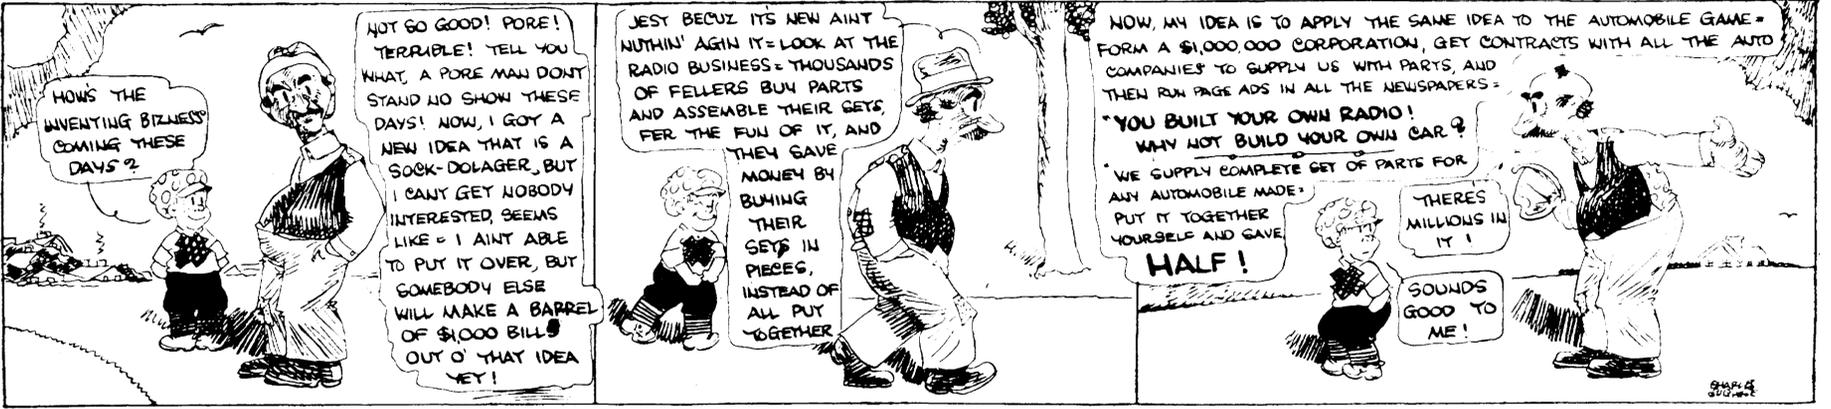

Human Nature Like River

Men make laws, but events shape their course despite them. We are surrounded by the logic of things as they are and make progress through an understanding of realities. We may change the shape of a water course, deepen it, make a lake of the water in it, harness the water to turn a wheel, but as long as the force of gravity pulls the water from a higher spot to a lower we must reckon on that power and provide for its outlet. Human nature may be likened to the water in a river. It is a continuing force. We may harness ourselves with shalls and shall nota, but the force remains and shapes events.—Office Appliances.

ANNUAL MEETING WELL ATTENDED

A larger number of voters attended the annual school meeting Monday night than have been present at such a gathering for many years.

A rumor has freely circulated throughout the district for several days to the effect that an effort would be made to oust members of the Board of Education and elect new ones who would make arrangements to place the Pinckney schools on the unaccredited list and reduce to a ten grade school. This rumor had the effect of causing a large number to attend and prevent such action. However, the opposition did not appear and the two former officers whose terms expired, W. E. Murphy, treasurer and Lincoln E. Smith, secretary, were reelected without a single dissenting vote.

The school board was instructed to provide playground equipment, as a motion made by M. J. Reason, and it was the unopposed wish of those present that fire drills be instituted as a regular school program and also that the school give more attention to public programs on all national holidays.

Compared with the annual meetings of many years past, where a scant half dozen voters would attend and perfunctorily go through the legal requirements, the meeting of 1925 was an enthusiastic one and clearly demonstrated that the citizens are deeply interested in educational matters and will insist that our school be kept up to its present high standard.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish in this way to thank the kind friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness during the illness and death of our dear father. We sincerely thank you all.
William Plummer and Wife.

Who has not heard a housewife make such a remark? There's a reason.

In a hot, poorly ventilated kitchen the air is so laden with the odors of cooking that the one who prepares the meal not only acquires a distaste for food, but actually makes an involuntary meal on the fumes. Witness the significant proportion of housewives who eat sparingly yet put on weight.

A ventilating fan will renew the air every two or three minutes, banish cooking odors, and give you a cool, sweet-smelling and pleasant kitchen. The cost of operation is but a trifle.

Authority on Cards

The expression "according to Hoyle" refers to Edmond Hoyle, a writer on games, who was born in England in 1672. Little is known about Hoyle's life. Tradition says he was educated for the bar. At any rate, he went to London, where he spent much of his time writing on games and giving lessons in card playing, especially whist. He published a book in which he systematized the laws and rules of whist, a game on which he was considered an authority. His name became proverbial as an authority on games. Playing a game "according to Hoyle" came to mean playing it fair and according to the recognized rules. Hoyle died in London in 1769.—Kansas City Star.

Began Life Work Early

Two men who have been considered the world's most famous clowns started acting at a very early age. Joseph Grimaldi, the great fun maker of England, made his first bow to an audience as the Little Clown at the age of one year and eleven months. By the time he was three years old he was a regular member of the company at Sadler's Wells theater, being cast in the arduous part of "the little monkey." George L. Fox, the Grimaldi of America, and the man who made "Humpty Dumpty" famous, was of a theatrical family and made his first appearance on the stage when he was five years old.—Mentor Magazine.

HELPED THROUGH CHANGE OF LIFE

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during This Critical Time—Benefited Greatly

Baltimore, Maryland.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help me through the Change of Life and for a broken-down system. I had been complaining a long time and dragging along had tried other medicines which did not help me much. I read in the newspapers of the Vegetable Compound and after taking a bottle I felt better. I did not stop with one bottle, but took it through the whole critical time and am now practically a well woman. I have two daughters whose health was very bad before they married and I was worried about them. I got the Vegetable Compound for them and it helped them, and after they married it also helped them in bearing their babies. This is a great and good medicine for all complaints of women, and I recommend it to all."—Mrs. L. G. Norton, 1375 N. Gilmer St., Baltimore, Maryland.

The Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for women of middle age. Let it relieve you of nervousness, that feeling of strain and those annoying hot flashes so common at this time.

Relief From Dullness

"Well, well," ejaculated a tourist in the Rumpus Ridge region. "What are you going to do with those young coyotes you have there?"

"Well, I'll tell you," replied Gay Johnson. "I've only got fourteen children and a mess of dogs, and it's so dull quiet at our house that I've took these two young wolves to raise along with a young badger."—Kansas City Star.

To Be Informed

April—My husband has given me the sweetest frock for my birthday.
May—Did he choose it himself?
April—Oh dear, no—he doesn't even know it yet.

Feel All Out of Sorts?

Is backache spoiling your summer? Do you get up lame and stiff—feel tired all day? Are you so nervous and worn out you cannot rest or relax? Look, then, to your kidneys! Sluggish kidneys allow poisons to accumulate and upset the whole system. When this happens you are apt to suffer backache, sharp pains, soreness, stiffness, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities. Help your kidneys with a stimulant diuretic. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are used the world over. Ask your neighbor!

A Michigan Case

Edward Hardy, retired farmer, R. F. D. No. 4, Hart, Mich., says: "I had a dull, dragging ache across my kidneys and whenever I stooped, sharp pains took me through my back. My back ached and was sore and lame. My kidneys were weak and I had to get up several times at night to pass the secretions." Doan's Pills rid me of the trouble."

He Was Faithful

A bride of two months had just made a cake and put it in the oven. Music Cure for Flowers

F. C. Billings of Milwaukee, Wis., says flowers will retain their original blooms many days longer if "treated" with good music. Certain rhythmic waves set up in the atmosphere by strains of music have a beneficial effect on flowers, he maintains, after some interesting experiments. The effect is similar to the reaction from light waves, he says.

Bathing Costumes in Bright Shades

The voice of the censor has been silenced—the beach police are no longer the ultimate arbiters of surf fashions and unlady may now plourette on the summer sands in almost any costume she chooses, notes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune. As long as the one-piece or athletic swimming suit was banned, it was impossible to criticize it impartially—it was the symbol of rebellious youth, and on that score it attracted countless adherents who might otherwise have passed it by. The end of the sanctimonious tumult and shouting, however, finds the mode in a more even and balanced mood and it now is possible to evaluate the semi-masculine swimming costume from a purely fashion viewpoint.

Suitable for Swimming. There is nothing particularly prurish about these colorful swimming suits—all of them will allow the necessary freedom of motion when actually in the surf and even the competitive swimmer should be able to navigate with unimpeded speed when wearing one.

The gallant Parisian couturier is not the one to deny modesty its compensations and he has consequently introduced a group of dazzling colors into the feminine bathing suit, calculated to transform the summer surf into a sea of colors. Gayly printed silks and brilliantly hued solid colored silks are the outstanding fabrics for the 1925 summer type of dress, the bathing jumper may be either of the sports variety, or more formal like the afternoon dress. There is the severe jumper accompanied by straight knickers, which coincides with the sports dress and there is the bathing jumper dress that is slashed at either side to reveal bloomers that are ruffled. The latter might be compared with the more dressy jumper-frock—the one worn at the dancet or the club veranda.

The Only Mannish Note. The boyish collar, sometimes with a tie, is practically the only mannish note on the fashionable bathing suit. There are many feminine touches, however, such as godets, circular flounces, scarf collars, bow effects, ruffles, the bateau neckline and other incidentals which, added to the brilliant colors and feminine materials, leave no doubt but that the purely feminine will reign supreme on the summer sands.

No section of the mode is complete this summer without the introduction of the ensemble note—and it is almost as essential in bathing costumes as it is in daytime frocks. The most typical sea ensembles consist of dresses of printed silk and plain rubberized capes, the latter having long scarf collars of the printed fabric. Roman stripes are used in a striking ensemble comprising a cape, dress, knickers and cap. The dress is a straightline sleeveless affair with an beach costume. Among the favored prints are flowered designs, geometrical patterns, bold Scotch plaids, silks printed in leopard and tiger designs, and Roman striped taffetas with satin overstrips. The foregoing designs appear on silks, and they reach bizarre extremes in their variations. Besides these, Paris has placed an approving seal upon hand-blocked cretonnes, chintzes and brocades in vivid colors.

When the materials are plain the colors are even more vivid, leaning principally to bright reds and greens. The fabrics which serve as a background for the solid-colored suits are taffeta, satin, faille silk, crepe de chine, crepe roman, pongee, and in the cottons, gingham and English broadcloth. Jersey is again in evidence, but the smart bather will prefer a costume in a less monotonous material.

The chief requisite of the bathing costume of 1925 is that it simulate the day or evening mode in dresses and wraps. There are almost as many different styles in bathing suits as there are in street and afternoon dresses and coats. The tailored bathing suit with its mannish collar and plain straight lines is as different from the one affecting circular godets and ruffles as the tailored suit or sports frock is from the robe du soir. The thing to remember in selecting your bathing suit is to choose one that incorporates the same style features as you would require in your latest frock. It should have a flare which is achieved by means of circular flounces, godets, or the skirt may be of circular cut and attached to a bodice at a low waistline. Again it may have an apron front. Or, like your sports costume, it may be a jumper-frock made with a boyish collar or even a shirt-bosom effect. Like the Inverted plait at either side of the skirt and the cape is cut on full circular lines. The stripes run horizontally in both instances—it is only at the crushed collar of the cape that they run vertically. The cap is of the skull-cap variety and also shows the stripes in a horizontal position while the dress is trimmed with silver buttons.

Black Satin for Matrons. The vivid color note which persists throughout the entire bathing costume of this season will obviously not appeal to the more mature bathers—in deed there were many comparatively youthful matrons who, at the smart winter resorts, showed a definite preference for the more conservative colors. At Palm Beach many smart women wore suits of black satin discretely trimmed with some quiet color. It was noteworthy, however, that even among the strictest adherents of the conservative bathing suit the accompanying wrap was in a striking color or design. It is obvious, then, that the vivid color note is an integral part of the modish bathing costume, and it must be introduced in some manner, even by the matron.

The Patou costumes are, indeed, picturesque and whether they are worn at Narragansett, Deauville, Biarritz or the Lido, their first raison d'être is to enhance the beauty of the wearer. Patou reproduces a Chinese tunic in one of his costumes made of jade green crepe marocain embroidered in green and black around the hem and armholes. With collotes scarcely showing from underneath the tunic, the effect is not unlike that of the dancing frocks, the skirts of many of the smart Paris evening dresses being but little longer than the bathing suits.

The Kitchen Cabinet

Help one another, the dewdrop cried.
Seeing another drop close by its side,
This warm south breeze would drive me away
And I should be gone ere noon today.
But I'll help you and you help me
And we'll make a brook and run to the sea.

SEASONABLE FOODS

A wholesome breakfast or luncheon dish is creamed asparagus on toast with a poached egg. It is much better for all the family to cut down on meat through the warm months, eating more fruits and vegetables.

Turnip Salad.—Peel and grind—or better—grate young turnips, add one small carrot and a small onion, all uncooked. The number of turnips will depend upon their size. Three turnips to one carrot will be sufficient. Add a little chopped celery for flavor, and a highly seasoned salad dressing. Serve on lettuce.

Grated fresh carrots with celery and onion and a few minced nuts, served on lettuce, is another good salad combination.

Fresh pineapple sliced and served on lettuce with a good dressing is another salad one will want to repeat.

Creole Soup.—Take an ordinary beef soup bone cut from the leg, with plenty of marrow. Rub with salt, pepper and garlic, put into a scotch kettle with an iron cover and place in the oven; use no water. Cook for four hours, until the meat drops from the bone, and there will be a pint of juice and fat in the kettle. Skim off the fat, add a chopped green pepper, one-half can of tomatoes, one small onion and one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon. Cook the sauce a half hour, thicken and pour over the meat.

Tomato Ice.—Cook a quart of tomatoes seasoned with sugar, paprika and nutmeg and a little grated lemon rind. Strain through a sieve and freeze. Use an ice cream dipper when serving; put a cone of tomato on a host of lettuce. Serve with a spoonful of mayonnaise and toasted cheese crackers.

Clabbered Milk.—Set away a pan of rich milk to sour and thicken. Chill and serve with grated maple sugar and nutmeg or with brown sugar. This is a dish which the children will grow to like, is very wholesome and will do for dessert on a hot day.

Chicken Custard.—Cut up and put through the meat chopper leftover cooked chicken, mix the meat with equal parts of cooked rice and press into a bowl to mold. Unmold in the center of a baking dish and pour a custard around it, using a pint of milk, two eggs, a tablespoonful of flour, salt to season and a few green peas. Bake until the custard is set and serve from the baking dish. Chicken broth with a little cream may take the place of the milk, making a richer more dainty custard.

Variety for the Table.

Summer squash is one of our most delicious vegetables, but it is so often served with little seasoning that it is most unpalatable. Use only the tender squash which will easily crush with the thumb nail. Remove the stems and cut into halves, or not at all; cook in just enough water to keep it from burning.

When tender drain, boil down the liquid to a thick liquor, add butter, salt and pepper and pour over the squash.

Summer Squash With Cheese.—Cook small squashes cut into halves, or larger ones into slices. When tender, drain and serve with a rich white sauce in which one-half cupful of grated cheese has been melted.

Cucumber Sauce.—Peel two cucumbers, cut into quarters lengthwise, remove the seeds if large, chop fine, then squeeze dry. Season with salt, paprika and vinegar, and stir in one-half cupful of thick cream whipped until stiff. Serve with boiled fish. A small grated onion is an addition to the flavor, if liked.

Stuffed Peppers.—Parboil the peppers, removing the seeds and white fiber; after five minutes drain and plunge into cold water. Stuff with the following: One-half cupful of freshly cut cheese cut fine, one tablespoonful of grated onion, two cupfuls of boiled rice, one teaspoonful of paprika, cayenne pepper to taste, one-half cupful of chopped pennuts and one-fourth cupful of milk. Mix well and stuff the peppers. Place in a pan, surround with hot water and bake for three-quarters of an hour or until the peppers are cooked.

Rhubarb and Strawberry Conserve.—Cut into inch-pieces three pounds of rhubarb and cook in a little water until tender. Add one quart of strawberries and put through a colander. Now add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, the juice of a lemon and cook until thick. Pour into glasses and seal with paraffin when cold.

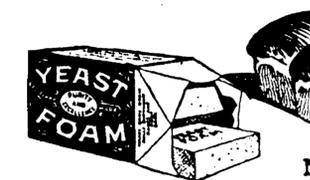

Sponge cakes baked in gem pans make a delicious dessert. When ready to serve cut off the tops and fill with sweetened and flavored whipped cream. Cream may be mixed with crushed berries.

Courtship Among Lower Creatures

Methods of love-making are just as varied among animals, birds, and insects as the methods used by human beings. According to a well-known scientist, the male spider, a diminutive creature compared with the female, attracts the attention of his mate by vibrating one of the fibers of her web, thus transmitting a message of love along the "wires."

The chirp of the cricket, caused by the male rubbing leg and wing together, appeals to his mate's sense of hearing, and was the first known example of instrumental music being applied to courtship. The frog also exploits the sense of hearing, the male emitting that very resonant sound so often apt to interfere with one's sleep. The croak of the frog was the first known instance of vocal music being applied to courtship.—Grit.

Public-Spirited Citizen

An anonymous donor has given the sum of $40,000 ($200,000) to the Bradford (England) Chamber of Commerce the interest to be used to send selected young men to the continent for periods of six months or more to study languages, especially Russian and Spanish, and to learn some branch of the textile industry. The purpose is to enable these young men to assist Bradford to develop permanent trade relations with foreign countries.

State-Owned Coal Mines

All the fuel, with little exception, to be used during the coming year at charitable, educational and penal institutions of South Dakota will be from the state's own lignite mine near Haynes, S. D. The mine, operation of which by the state began in 1919, is now on a profit-paying basis and producing in such quantities that its manager was able to offer prices which enabled almost all the institutions to use the coal at a saving.

ROSE ILENE LEWIS

Rose Ileene Lewis was born October 1, 1919 in East Putnam and died July 19, 1925 in Marion, aged 5 years, 9 months and 10 days.

She leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lewis, grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orange Backus, two brothers and one sister, two uncles, seven aunts and several cousins.

A flower grew in a garden. We call it the rose. It thrived by loving care administered by loving hands. A beautiful flower it was not only in appearance but in character—as a symbol of peace and modesty.

At last came the blast and the rose was gone. But—in the spring time of another year this rose came forth with renewed vigor and beauty to gladden the hearts of its lovers.

Dear mother and father, so it was with your Rose, she thrived and grew beautiful in character; but the blast came. And your Rose is gone, apparently. Be comforted no matter how cruel the blast or in what manner it came it could not harm the spirit of Rose.

She has gone to dwell
And wait for those who love,
You will do well
To follow her to realms above.
