AVOID THE HESSEON FLY

Injury by seeding your wheat before September 20.

To avoid the usual Hessian fly injury wheat this year should not be sown until after September 20, according to report received by County Agent Bolder from the Michigan State College.

This is becoming more important each year inasmuch as the yield is decreased considerably by early seeding.

With the abundance of rain at this seeding season, the use of commercial fertilizers will surely be worthy of every farmer's consideration. Before buying fertilizers learn what your soil needs; it may save you considerable money.

By sending a sample of your soil to the County Agent, giving him a description of it, he will be glad to recommend the proper kind of fertilizer.

"THE HAPPY WARRIOR"

"The Happy Warrior", the Vitagraph picture which comes to the opera house Saturday, September 19, is the latest novel by A. S. M. Hutchinson to reach the screen. The author of "If Winter Comes", "This Freedom", "The Clean Heart" and "Once Aboard the Lagger", is said, in "The Happy Warrior" to have supplied his finest screen material. Readers of the novel will recall that the story fairly bristles with vivid, melodramatic situations; the sort of situations that are most effective on the screen.

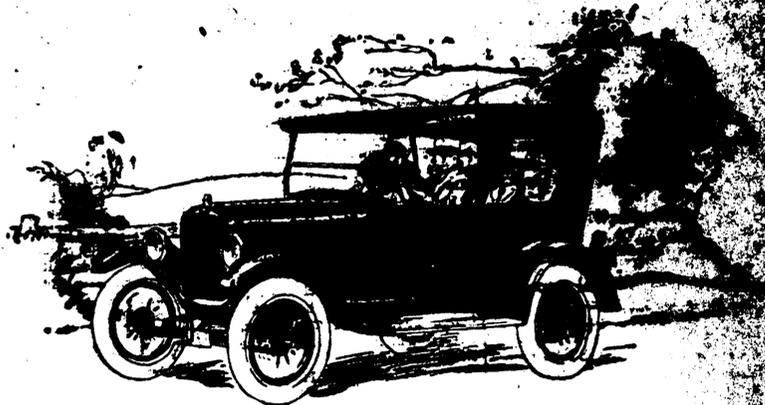

The production was made by J. Stuart Blackton, and is presented by Albert E. Smith, with a cast that includes Malcolm Mc Gregor, as Ralph; Alice Calhoun as Dora; Mary Alden as Aunt Maggie; Wilfred North as Mr. Latham; Anders Randolph, as Stingo Hannaford, and Otto Matiesen as Egbert. Others in the cast are Olive Borden, Eulalie Jensen, Gardner Jones, Andree Tournier, Jack Herrick, Philippe de Lacy and Bobby Gordon.

The story concerns an English boy, who is rightful heir to a peer's title, but who, brought up in ignorance of his birth, joins a traveling circus, and becomes an exhibition boxer. When he comes of age, he learns of his noble birth, but he foregoes his claim to the title in favor of his closest friend. His life has made him feel more at home in the circus than in the world of aristocrats, and he marries the circus girl with whom he has fallen in love.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Petokey—Announcement made by Jacob Cohn and Harry Schweit, Chicago capitalists, that they will erect a 500-room fireproof hotel on a site on which the Clark Tavern now is located and on adjoining property. Construction will begin next April.

Lansing—Unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was approved, 179 to 8, by the Michigan Methodist Episcopal conference here. The conference rejected a proposed amendment providing for the admission of laymen to the ministerial conferences.

Jackson—"I had a headache and was just taking the air," Harry Uptegraff, 23, of Detroit, Michigan State Prison inmate, told guards when he returned to the barracks at the west farm after a posse had searched several hours for him. Uptegraff was sentenced from Detroit for from 2 to 14 years for forgery.

Monroe—At a meeting of the county road commission here the Thompson Paving Construction company, of Toledo, was awarded the contract for the construction of Saline street in the village of Petersburg, bidding $13,596.45. Carl Kiburtz, of Monroe, was awarded the contract for the purchase of $105,000 bonds on the Heisse road, and $57,900 on the town line road.

Escanaba—Chased by a bull she was endeavoring to drive out of her orchard, knocked down and gored, Mrs. William Good, 59, of Harris escaped death only as the result of presence of mind. She crawled under the fence as the bull charged for the second time and escaped with a dislocated shoulder and severe bruise about the face and body.

Muskegon—Mrs. Florence Prince, 21 years old, Grand Rapids balloonist, narrowly escaped death, when she substituted for Mrs. Frank Stewart, a local balloonist, killed in a flight at White, Cloud recently. The balloon became entangled when it left the ground and Mrs. Prince fell 50 feet to the ground. The woman suffered painful, but not serious injuries.

Ann Arbor—Altering of the entrance requirements of the University of Michigan, continuation of the elaborate building program outlined by the late President Marion L. Burton and encouragement of college athletics will be sponsored by Dr. Clarence Cook Little, new president of the university, when he takes over his office on September 20, he stated in an interview.

Muskegon—Injuries received in a silo filler explosion were fatal to Walter Paulson, 29 years old, of Fruitport, who died at Hackley hospital. Paulson was directing the work between his engine and filler when pieces of steel let go, striking his back and arms. Farmers believe the explosion resulted from an accumulation of gas that wrecked the filler.

Ann Arbor—The new Ecorse road in Washtenaw County, built at a cost of $146,000 by the State highway construction department with prison forces, was opened to traffic Sept. 12. The new highway connects with the Ecorse road in Wayne County at the county line and will provide a direct paved route from Ypsilanti to Detroit only nine-tenths of a mile longer than the Michigan avenue route.

Marshall—Wilmot Jones, 22 years old, son of a broker, held in connection with the death of John (Blackie) Vielhoff, cook for a Grand Trunk Railway construction crew at Battle Creek, was freed by Justice Paschal Hughes after preliminary examination. Vielhoff's body, pierced with six bullets, was found on a lonely road between Bellevue and Marshall August 19.

Lansing—Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, pastor of the Central M. E. church of Detroit, won an indirect approval of his belief and utterances on evolution when a committee investigating similar beliefs of Rev. William H. Phelps, editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate, cleared him of heresy charges. The clearing of Phelps, who printed Rev. Mr. Hough's sermons in his publication, is taken generally by Methodist Episcopal churchmen as assurance that Hough also will be cleared when Detroit conference meets.

Lansing—Representative Republican women from various sections of the state met here and completed organization of the Republican Women's Federation of Michigan. The first step toward such an organization was taken at the Republican State Convention at Grand Rapids in May, 1924. They at Port Huron last June at a meeting advertised as a reception to Mrs. A. T. Hirt, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, a tentative constitution was adopted and officers were elected.

Houghton—Dr. William O. Hotchkiss, chairman of the Wisconsin state highway commission, has accepted the presidency of the Michigan College of Mines here, according to an announcement by the college board. He has returned to his home in Madison to wind up his business, preparatory to returning here to assume his new duties when the college fall term opens. Dr. Hotchkiss succeeds Dr. F. W. McNair, who was killed in a railroad accident in Illinois a year ago. Dr. Hotchkiss conferred with the board of control.

Port Huron—Miss Detroit VIII, Gar Wood's sweepstakes contender, which was to race in Detroit, capsized just east of the north end of Walpole island. J. H. Stoneham, whose home is in Detroit, was drowned.

Port Huron—According to a mortgage document filed with the register of deeds, the steamer Tashmo and Tashmo Park have been mortgaged to the Detroit Trust Co. The steamer and park belong to the White Star Navigation Co. and the purpose of the mortgage is to protect a bond issue.

Owosso—Plans have been drawn for a children's ward to be added to Memorial hospital here at a cost of between $8,000 and $8,000. It will be one of the most modern in the United States. Private donations will finance it. A contagious disease building, just completed, will be opened September 17.

Lansing—Surplus and assets of the Ford Motor company without subsidiaries have reached $644,624,468, according to the corporation tax report made public by the department of state. Other Michigan properties of Henry Ford will bring his total wealth at least to the billion dollar mark, corporation diversion attaches expect.

East Lansing—The proportion of girls to men students at the Michigan State College which has been steadily increasing for the last few years will probably take a big jump this year, according to H. H. Halladay, secretary. To care for the increased enrollment expected three new dormitories are being fitted out at the college.

Iron Mountain—The mining of yellow ochre may become a profitable industry in Dickinson county. John Jacobson and George Nygard, farmers at Metropolitan, have started working it on their farms. Shafts are being sunk and if the enterprise proves satisfactory, it is planned to obtain capital to fully develop the industry. Yellow ochre now is bringing about $16 a ton. It is used in the manufacture of paint.

Albion—The Methodists of Albion settled to the satisfaction of all concerned the question of lay representation in the annual conference when four prominent churchmen debated the issue before a large crowd. Dr. D. D. Martin and R. T. Baldwin defended the affirmative, and Drs. Samuel Dickie and W. W. Diehl, upheld the negative. Dr. John L. Seaton, president of Albion college, presided. The audience acted as judges and gave their decision in favor of the negative.

White Cloud—Mrs. George Stewart, 40 years old, of Muskegon, who has thrilled thousands of Michigan folk during the several years she has plied her trade of balloonist and parachute jumper, provided her last thrill here, when she dropped more than 1,500 feet to her death before a throng of 1,200 villagers and farmers, gathered for the annual soldiers' reunion and homecoming. Mrs. Stewart's husband and her son, 12 years old, witnessed the tragedy.

Lansing—Two new offices are planned for Detroit by Secretary of State Charles J. DeLand, in order to handle the increasing business of his department. For the sale of auto licenses next January an office will be opened in Convention hall, which will have sufficient capacity to take care of the bulk of the licensing transactions. In addition DeLand will open an office at once at 119 Dime Bank building to handle the general business of his department.

Jackson—The first units of Michigan's new Jackson prison, to be the largest state penal institution in the country, larger than Joliet or Sing Sing, will be completed this fall, and work soon will be in progress on the first of the huge cell-blocks designed to accommodate 5,180 prisoners. These units, Harry L. Hulbert, former warden, and now superintendent of construction, explained will be the new eye plant and the towering concrete wall that will surround the 64 acres within the prison.

Grand Rapids—Light, noiseless street cars which can be operated at half the cost of regular equipment and have the same carrying capacity are being experimented with here in an effort to meet motor bus competition. The experiments are closely followed by the American Electric Railway association. It is contended that if the cars prove practical, street railways will be able to operate more profitably than buses, and will provide more rapid and comfortable transportation.

Pontiac—Stealing automobiles became passe here with the first report of a stolen airplane turned in to Sheriff Frank Schram Harry Brooks, youthful aviator, reported the theft, the plane belonging to his friend, Hoyt Brown, of Birmingham. The plane had been taken to a flying field near here for repairs. In order to fly away with the plane, Brooks told the sheriff, it was necessary for the thief to replace certain parts of the magneto and to fill the tanks with gasoline, oil and water.

Detroit—The Packard Motor company has filed suit against the city of Detroit in circuit court seeking the return of $74,497.87, declared to be due because of excess taxes levied against the company. The motor concern paid a tax of $265,609.83 under protest, alleging that the law under which the assessment was levied is unconstitutional, and that the difference, $74,497.87, between the old tax rate and the present one, should be returned. Under 1915 tax regulations the company would have been taxed a total of $191,111.96.

"Truly a Fresh and Unique Section of the World for Us to Explore"

By COL. A. LESTER JONES, U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

AROUND us, extending for thousands of miles in every direction, stretches the mighty expanse of an oceanic new world. Its area, 70,000,000 square miles, exceeds the total expanse of all the continents and islands on the globe. The maximum width of the great ocean, 10,000 miles, is two-fifths of the circumference of the world. Truly, a fresh and unique section of the world for us to explore. The geophysical forces are here seen in actual operation on a scale of unparalleled grandeur. Ocean currents sweep around a third of the circumference of the globe. Depths of five and a half and six miles have been located. The periphery of the ocean is outlined by an immense ring of active volcanoes, a veritable ring of fire.

It is scarcely too much to assert that the coasts and waters of the Pacific can feed the world. But before an inventory of such resources can be made there must be a comprehensive geographical survey. The first essential is to complete our knowledge of the configuration of the sea bottom and to obtain data for a bathymetric chart, or one made by deep-sea sounding. Developments in aerial surveying and in subaqueous sound ranging encourage the hope that rapid and thorough methods will soon be practicable. These will permit the construction of a model map of the ocean bed.

Such a model, showing submarine plateaus, ridges, shelves, and pinacles, as well as valleys, troughs and abysses, will serve not only navigation but all branches of hydrophysical research. For example, food fish are found only on the continental shelf or slope, or in its immediate vicinity. Crustaceans abound for a few hundred fathoms beyond the mud-line at about 100 fathoms. Thus the fishing banks can all be located and fishing rights adjudicated. Variations of temperature, density, salinity, acidity, etc., affect the strength and seasonal changes of ocean currents; and all together affect the migrations and supply of food fish. The sea has its seasons no less than the land.

Three Essential Bases for Our Relations With Latin America

By V. M. CUTLER, President United Fruit Company.

I depreciate any slightest imperialistic tendency on the part of the United States in Latin America. I believe that commercial relations are the best way to bring about international amity between countries and that the refusal to invest capital in Latin America would be to shut the door on public improvements, railways, roads, harbors and other developments. There are three essential bases for our relations with Latin America:

A sound and consistent policy on the part of our State department, including proper diplomatic representation, which will insure mutual respect as between our government and people and the governments and people of Latin America. Reliable banking connections between our country and Latin America. Sound policy and management of high character by any United States citizen or companies entering commercial relations with Latin America.

I believe that over half of the difficulties encountered by our firms in Latin America have been caused by the companies' indifference to local customs, practices, social usage, and business methods.

"All the Countries Which Experimented With What We Call 'Cheap' Money—"

By GEORGE E. ROBERTS, New York City Banker.

Europe cut loose from the gold standard and sailed out on an ocean of currency. Of course no country thought at first that there would be oceans of paper money. But even after Germany and Russia and Austria and the others had got hopelessly drunk on cheap money they found that it wasn't plentiful, because the printing presses couldn't keep up with the depreciation. And it wasn't cheaper, but costlier. The interest rate got higher and higher, because it had to be figured to cover depreciation, until the Reichsbank discount rate went to 180.

Some of them have been repeating the process by which standards of value were originally evolved. They have learned all over again the necessity of attaching their currency to some basis of definite value. They have been issuing bonds and paper money in terms of iron, rye, coal and other commodities.

All the countries which experimented with what we call "cheap" money are trying faithfully to get back to the gold standard. Even Russia, where the leaders denounced gold as an instrument of oppression in the hands of the capitalists, has come around to it.

New Approach to Understanding, to Enlightenment and to Good Will

By DR. HARRY A. GARFIELD, Institute of Politics.

This session of the Institute of Politics has again demonstrated that there is need of a place where, in an atmosphere of good will and scholarly interest, men of different nationalities can confer and discuss their political, social and economic problems, talk over their sensitive questions and the danger spots of the world, and in understanding each other find common purposes. I feel that we are evolving a new method of international conference and a new approach to understanding, enlightenment and good will. It is most hopeful to observe the search for facts about international problems that one sees in the institute and to observe such country-wide discussion as has been going on in the editorial columns of the press of the United States, not about us but about the questions we have raised. This is to me a very encouraging development, for public opinion has indeed become the hope of the world. I am sure it will insistently continue to call for the facts of international relations.

"For the Same Reason—Because So Many People Are, Frankly, Darned Fools"

By MITCHELL BRONK, in North American Review.

Watch a trolley car or subway or elevated train discharge and take on passengers in New York or any large city. As a rule these two transactions are carried on in such a way that the entering crowd jams itself against those who are coming out of the car, to the delay, discomfort and sometimes injury of all concerned. Again, there is the little, insignificant matter of our copper coins. Why can we not have, as we have been clamoring for years to have, two and three cent coppers? Or why are buttons still sewed upon our coats with perishable thread, as our grandmothers did it? Or why are not puncture-proof automobile tires manufactured? Or why don't the writers of our jazz music give more variety to their productions? Or, even, why doesn't the plumber bring his tools with him to a job? For the same reason—because so many people are, frankly, darned fools.

Blood is a juice of a very special kind.—Goethe.
Charms strike the sight, but merit wins the soul.

SOME GOOD COMMON DISHES

When it is hard to think of something for desert, try this one:

Blueberry Pudding—Lay slices of (not too dry) bread after buttering well, into a deep dish. Pour over enough blueberries very hot, juice and all, to cover well. Set away to chill or bake in a quick oven and serve with cream and sugar.

Fried Apples and Onions—Slice tart apples and half as many onions. Put the onions on to cook in a spoonful or two of fat; when nearly tender add the apples and a little water. Cook until all are well browned. Salt and sugar are added for seasoning.

Fruit Cocktail—Scoop apples that have been peeled with a potato cutter into balls, cook in a sugar sirup until tender, cool and serve with melon balls, pineapple, pears, peaches and cherries. Any combination one's taste suggests will be good. Add lemon rind and juice to the sirup and pour over enough to flavor and sweeten each cocktail.

With the fields full of the delicious field mushroom in many places one has at hand a great delicacy. Stew them in butter, add cream and serve on toast.

When putting up sweet cucumber pickles this fall peel, cut into half-inch rings, then with a small cutter cut out the center with the seeds. They are much more attractive to serve and are not much work to prepare.

Vanilla Ice Cream With Pears—On a slice of brick ice cream lay half of a preserved pear. Pour over it a sauce which has been colored pink with cinnamon candies. Decorate the pear with browned almonds, serve at once.

Hot Beef Sandwich—Heat the gravy from the roast and in this lay a slice or two of thinly sliced roast; when heated lay on a slice of buttered bread and cover with another slice. Pour the hot gravy over all and serve.

Fillets of Fish—Wipe fillets and brush with butter, add salt and pepper and lay in a baking dish. Surround with boiled potatoes, cover with a white sauce and bake twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Food That Is Liked.

As mushrooms are usually plentiful in most places up to the frost-killing time, try a dish combining the mushrooms with sweetbreads. Sauté the sweetbreads in a little butter until well cooked—five minutes will suffice; they should have been previously parboiled in slightly acidulated water. Melt three tablespoonsful of butter, mix with the same amount of flour and pour on gradually one cupful of chicken stock. Clean and saute the mushrooms in a little butter, add to the sweetbreads and the sauce, season well, add one-fourth of a cupful of whipped cream and one-half teaspoonful of beef extract. Add a dash of lemon juice and serve in ramekins covered with buttered crumbs. Brown in the oven.

Corn Toast—Cook one-fourth of a tablespoonful of fairly chopped onion with one and one-half tablespoonsful of butter two minutes, stirring constantly. Add one cupful of sweet corn cut from the cob and lightly cook for five minutes in just water to cook without burning; add salt and pepper, and one pint of thick cream; simmer for five minutes and pour over six slices of buttered toast cut into rounds. Garnish with toast points and parsley.

Pepper Relish—Remove the seeds from six red and six green peppers; cut away all the white inner fiber; add six peeled onions and let stand five minutes. Drain, add one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonsful of salt and one and one-half cupfuls of vinegar. Bring to the boiling point and boil 20 minutes. Seal in glass jars.

Long Winter Night

The period of winter darkness in Spitzbergen, northern Norway, begins on October 28 and continues until February 17. The midnight sun rises above the horizon on April 19 and sinks below on August 24. During the summer the temperature varies from 37 degrees to 50 degrees F., and in winter it drops as low as 40 degrees below zero; the mean annual temperature is about 16 degrees F. Because of the dryness of the air the low temperatures do not cause the penetrating chill that they would in more humid regions.

First Psychoanalyst Dies

In the death of Prof. Josef Breuer recently at Vienna, the world lost the original psychoanalyst. He was acknowledged by Sigmund Freud to have been the founder of that science and while the two collaborated in the early days, Breuer could not follow Freud in his later developments, though their personal friendship continued. Breuer was eighty-three, and he worked with Freud, a younger man, in "Studies in Hysteria," which appeared in 1898.

Two Letters

The first written twenty years ago, the second recently by Mrs. J. H. Bourland, Frankston, Texas.

June 2, 1904, she writes—
"For twenty-three years I was a constant sufferer from chronic catarrh. I had a severe misery and burning in the top of my head, a continual dropping of mucus into my throat causing frequent expectoration. My entire system became involved and I grew worse. It seemed as if I could not recover from a constant cough and frequent attacks of bilious colic. My bowels were affected, causing alarming hemorrhages. I tried many remedies and finally took Pe-ru-na. In three days I was relieved of my bowel trouble and entirely cured by five bottles. I most cheerfully recommend Pe-ru-na."

June 30, 1924, Mrs. Bourland writes again—
"I will soon be seventy-nine years old and enjoy good health for one of my age. I still recommend Pe-ru-na and take it myself when necessary."

For more than half a century Pe-ru-na has a proud record of good done. Men and women the world over stand ready to testify to its value in the treatment of all catarrhal disorders.

Send 4 cents postage to the PE-RU-NA COMPANY, Columbus, Ohio, for book on catarrh.

Pe-ru-na in either tablet or liquid form sold everywhere.

Has Brains to Spare

Six brains in one are said to be possessed by Mr. Harry Kahne, an American now visiting in London. Simultaneously he will read a newspaper, write the headlines upside down and backwards on a blackboard, at the same time spelling the words the right way; speak continuously to his audience; answer questions giving the exact populations and industries of the biggest towns of Great Britain, Canada and the United States; write backward and upside down columns of figures which totaled 7,123,546,937, a figure previously agreed upon by the audience.

Difficulties melt under white-heat enthusiasm.

Crow's Little Hoard

While cutting a large tree at Stow, Maine, Herbert Andrews was surprised to see a piece of money fall at his feet. Upon picking it up, it proved to be a bright dime, which was partly covered with flecks of tree mold. A careful search of the tree, after it was felled, disclosed the place from which the coin had fallen. As the tree was well back in the woods from any highway, it is believed that a crow, attracted by the gleam of the dime, picked it up and carried it to a safe hiding place.

GOLF

OF P. J. GAUDIN
BROOKLYN COUNTRY CLUB
& UNION LEAGUE CLUB

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Cure for Painful Callouses.
Nearly every golfer develops callous spots that become so sore as to need special treatment. Usually the spot is covered with tape. One often sees bands of tape on a half dozen fingers. Other players lose much of the sense of "feel" by wearing gloves.

Barring the painless callouses that often develop and that do no harm, it may be said with the most perfect confidence that the sore spots come because of some error in the grip. The Vardon grip, perhaps because it is in more general use, seems to cause sore spots peculiar to itself. The player will find a callous, developing into a sore spot, on the inside of the third finger of the right hand and one on top of the middle knuckle of the first finger of the left hand. Such sore spots are sure indications that the right hand grips too hard. If the sore spot on the first finger of the left hand is next the second finger, and especially if there is a sore spot on the inside of that finger next the thumb, there is no question of the grip being at fault. Not only does the right hand grip too closely, but the right little finger rides between the first and second fingers of the left hand. That must be changed at once. The place for the right little finger is exactly over the first finger of the left hand and it must never press so hard even as to make a callous, let alone a sore spot.

The remedy is not hard. Probably you have been using too loose a grip with the left hand. Practice swinging a club with the left hand until you know you control it perfectly with that hand alone. Then try it by letting the right hand ride in its regular position but with no pressure. Probably that is enough pressure at any time. About the only function of the right hand and arm is to keep out of the way until after the club has begun to descend on the ball. Then the right shoulder gets to work and forces the forefinger of the right hand against the shaft when the wrists begin their whip.

Style.

When the beginner in golf gets the first ideas regarding the swing, preferably from a professional teacher, he should carefully note the swings of noted players. It is sheer folly to copy the methods of other beginners and equally bad to be guided by the misinformation so freely larded out by persons who talk from the heights of what they are pleased to think is their superior knowledge.

The beginner is well advised to learn at least the rudiments from the man who knows, the professional, and then studiously to watch the expert. In this way one can learn the mechanics of the swing and is on the way toward perfecting his or her own swing. It may take years of such watchfulness to learn definitely that the crucial part of the swing is what might be called the stroke, the full time that the club and ball are in contact. We will know some time the duration of this contact through super-speedy motion pictures. It may be one inch or it may be six. We do know, however, that the ball is compressed to half its diameter by the impact. One can prove this by dusting the face of the club with powder and taking a full swing at the ball. The impression left on the club face is as great in diameter as the ball itself, the markings being duplicated on the club face.

In watching the experts, pay no attention to the ball. Watch only for that part of the action in which you temporarily are the most interested. By this method of watching one can really learn the methods of the stars. If one watches the ball that is all one can see.

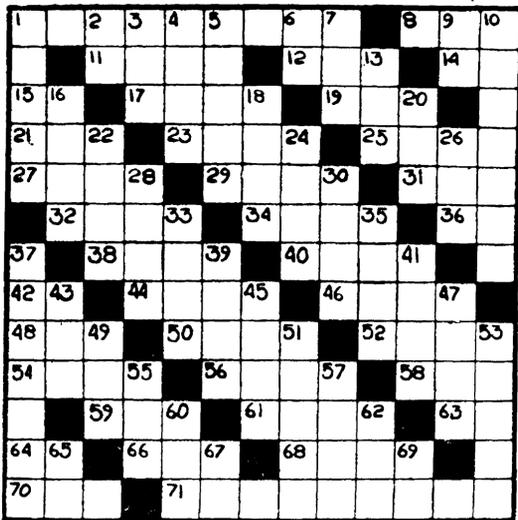

Perhaps the best method of all is to watch moving pictures of actual strokes. They have taught more facts regarding the golf swing than ever were known before. Do not pay any attention to still pictures. All of them are posed conventionally. They may look pretty but not one in a hundred gives a correct likeness of the form shown in play. And keep in mind constantly the culmination of all the elements of the swing in the timing. One can be letter-perfect in every element of the swing and remain a poor player through lack of timing.

Amber Found Market in Prehistoric Days

Not by any means "every schoolboy" might be expected to know the facts which J. M. de Navarre, F. S. A., Fellow of Trinity college, Cambridge, told his audience the other day in a paper read at a meeting of the Royal Geographical society in London, when he spoke at length of the prehistoric trading in amber. writes the London correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor.

The study of the finds of prehistoric amber, he explained, as well as their distribution, casts no little light on the human geography of central Europe during the second and last millennium of the pre-Christian era. While northern Europe, he added, may have had various raw stuffs at its disposal for purposes of bartering with the south, amber was the one distinguishable and imperishable substance which it exported on an extensive scale. Who would have thought of amber as a defining element in connection with the prehistoric routes between northern and southern Europe? But one lives and learns!

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Simple Case of Duty, as Manager Saw It

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said the other day in Washington:

"Some of the arguments that employers advance for cutting down wages remind me of an anecdote:

"A manager was touring the South with an East Lynn company, and one day in a hotel the actors and actresses had to put up with a poor dinner of salt codfish because funds were low, but the manager at a near-by table ate duck and green peas, and washed them down with a bottle of what looked suspiciously like wine.

"As no salaries had been paid for three weeks, the company held an indignation meeting, and a committee waited on the manager to protest.

"Look here," the committee's spokesman said, "we don't think we're getting a square deal, boss. We have to eat salt cod, while you gorge celery-fed duck and wine. How about it?"

"It's all right, quite all right," said the manager. "Tell the company I'm doing it for their sakes. What would become of you all if I didn't keep my strength up?"

Japs Make Study of Resources of Nation

Japan's army intends to establish a mobilization bureau to study and prepare for national mobilization in times of emergency. Having disposed of other changes, Lieutenant General Ugaki, war minister, is ready to deal with the problem. The bureau will investigate as to what natural resources may be utilized in times of war and the amount of the resources

Orchestra Is Leaderless

In Russia under the soviet rule the uncommon sight of an orchestra playing without a leader will be met with. Under this circumstance, it requires 50 rehearsals for the organization to perfect itself in a new number. The idea is that such an orchestra is more in line with soviet principles and gives untrained musicians an excellent opportunity for development in technique and ensemble. A particular example is the Moscow state orchestra.

necessary for the sustenance of the nation and the army and the navy in wartime. The establishment of an organ similar to the board of census now defunct, is advocated by the war minister, to supply material on which authorities have decided to create the bureau in the army, as the cabinet leaders, owing to lack of funds, are opposed to the establishment of an independent organ in the government. The war minister, however, finds the present situation of the world conducive to the creation of the bureau because European and American powers are endeavoring to prepare themselves with complete systems of national mobilization.

To Avoid Foot Trouble

The public health service gives the following information on standing and walking: In using the feet, it is important to (a) toe out a little, if at all, (b) throw the weight rather to ward the outer side of the foot, (c) try to learn to use the toes to push as the foot leaves the ground, (d) in standing try to grasp with the toes, (e) in tiresome long standing toe-in on the weight-bearing foot.

Irrigation in India

In Madras the most recent plan that has now been sanctioned by the government is the Polavaram irrigation project in the Godavary delta to irrigate 20,000 acres at a cost of 1,300,000 rupees (1 rupee is now worth 24 cents). The government has also sanctioned the construction of new regulators at the head of the Ellore canal in the Krishna district.—Commodity Reports.

Cavaliers and Roundheads

During the civil war in England (1642-1649), the partisans of Charles I were known as the Cavaliers, while those who espoused the cause of parliament were termed Roundheads. These nicknames were first bestowed in 1641, as terms of reproach; but afterwards they came to be adopted as titles of honor. The Cavaliers wore long hair falling in ringlets over their shoulder; while the Roundheads wore their hair cropped short and affected extreme simplicity in dress.—Kansas City Times.

CAN MONEY BRING DISEASE?

A FRENCHMAN wrote to the Paris Academy of Medicine, asking whether there was any danger of disease being carried by paper money. The learned academy, with unintentional and perhaps unconscious humor, replied that there was very little danger, as microbes "hate the agitation of constant transfer from one place to another."

Evidently money circulates as rapidly in France as it does here. Most of us are quite willing to agree that, even if disease germs could be carried on bills, few of us are able to keep them long enough to be in much danger.

While we don't refuse to accept money in whatever form it is offered, we would all of us rather have clean, new bills just out of the bank, than worn, dirty bills that have evidently passed through many hands.

But aside from the esthetic side of the question, is there any serious danger of disease being carried by money? It is possible that such a thing might occur, but practically, the chances are so small as to be negligible. There are a few cases on record of some forms of skin diseases being due to the common habit of women carrying money in their stockings in direct contact with their skin. But the short skirts and cobweb hose of today offer little chance of concealing anything. Another favorite hiding place for women has been the bosom of their dresses. But here again the loose, one-piece dress offers little concealment and no security. So most women today carry their money in their handbags. The present day styles in women's dresses are, even in this small particular, more hygienic than the long, heavy, tight-fitting clothes of yesterday.

But in any case, paper money, like paper of any kind, is a poor breeding place for germs. These microscopic plants (for most forms of microbes are plants and not animals) like plants of any kind, need a certain amount of moisture. On a perfectly dry surface they do not increase and soon die.

In the earlier days of our knowledge of germ life practically every object that might harbor these minute bodies was regarded with suspicion. Those were the days when doorknobs, chairs and a multitude of other harmless objects caused a great deal of uneasiness among nervous people. With wider knowledge, we know today that, while such everyday articles might, under unusual conditions, transfer disease germs from one person to another, as a matter of every day experience they seldom do. Those diseases which are transmitted are carried by dirty water, dirty food, insects, animal and human carriers and by personal contact.

So don't refuse any money through fear of contagion. Get clean new bills when you can or, if you must take dirty bills, change them for clean ones as soon as possible. Keep your money in a purse or bag and don't worry about infection.

A BABY'S TEN COMMANDMENTS

THE ten commandments which God gave Moses from the mountain top have for centuries been recognized as containing the principles of right living for all those who are old enough to regulate their own acts. But how about the baby who is too young to know what is good for him, who cannot even tell his needs and his wants and who must depend on others for his food, his drink and his rest, who can only by crying tell older people whether a pin pricks him, a band scratches him or his stomach hurts?

In a "Baby's Book" the Manitoba health department gives "A Baby's Ten Commandments," which every mother and nurse should study and follow. Here they are:

1. Thou shalt not kiss me on the mouth.

2. Thou shalt not sneeze nor cough in my face, for I may take cold; neither shalt thou expose me to whooping cough, measles or other communicable diseases for I am human and may die.

3. Thou shalt not pick me up by the arms, but be careful how thou hastiest me and dost lay me down.

4. Thou shalt not give me candy, cake, pastry, tea, coffee, or any such thing I may cry for, because I do not know what is good for me.

5. Thou shalt not give me a dirty pacifier to suck, nor allow me to suck my thumb, for it will give me enlarged tonsils, adenoids, to say nothing of spoiling the shape of my pretty mouth.

6. Thou shalt not take me to motion picture shows, nor keep me up at night, for it robs me of my sleep and makes me sick and cross.

7. Thou shalt not rock me to sleep nor jolt nor trot me on thy knee when I cry.

8. Thou shalt give me the right things to eat, and feed me on time.

9. Thou shalt give me pure cool water to drink between my meals, for I get very thirsty.

10. Thou shalt give me a bath every day, clean clothes, my own bed, a comfortable room, plenty of sleep in the fresh air to make me grow, and last but not least, mother love to make my life worth while.

Life's Span Extending

In spite of the fact that the continued betterment of health and living conditions in this century has given Americans the expectancy of longer and longer lives, the average American had his "expectancy of life" reduced from 58.01 years in 1921 to 57.32 years in 1923, or a loss of about eight months. According to statisticians of a leading life insurance company, who compiled the figures, greater prevalence of influenza and pneumonia in 1922 caused the reduction, but from advance indications for 1924 and 1925 the expected span from birth to death will be a larger number of years than it was in 1921, a banner year.

SCHOOL NOTES

At the beginning of the school year of 1925-1926 we find many new names on the register of Pinckney High. It is seldom true that new foreign students are added to any grades in High School except the ninth. It is a fact, however, that not only the ninth, but the eighth, tenth and eleventh as well, have new foreign pupils. The seventh grade numbers seven, all of whom are of course, new to High School as well as the foreign pupils. They are Loretta Roche, Elizabeth Spears, Janet Fiedler, Lesla Hanes, Lucille Kennedy, Russell Read and Burr Glenn. Bessie Wallace is the only new out-of-town student in the eighth grade, while in the Freshman class ten out of the fifteen enrolled are new to the school. The foreign students are: Conley Ahrens, Raymond Ledwidge, Wilhelmina Bourbonnais, Viola Burnett, Vivian Kingsley, Berdella Fuller, Louise Granger, Romania Shirey James Nash and Inez Amburgey.

Gladys Drown Marian Levine Henry Shirey Eleanor Gage and Lorita Dillingham have joined the ranks of the Sophomores.

Ruth Evers Evelyn Soper and Emil Weddige are the only ones to have joined the Junior class.

The Seniors are bemoaning the fact that, so far, only six names are on the class roll, those being: Nellie Jones, Bertha Watters, Leola Stackable, M. S. Hinchey, Robert Stackable and Kenneth Reason. It has been rumored that through their arrangements Pinckney will be entertained this winter by the Dennis Lyceum Course and we are sure that, although their number is small, the Seniors will do their best to make this a success, and we hope that everyone responds to their honest efforts.

Forty-five are enrolled in Miss Tupper's room, and forty-seven in Miss Green's room.

The football team is beginning its season with Emil Weddige, Captain; and Don Swartout, Manager. The first game will be played Friday, September 18, at Fowlerville.

Stanley Dinkle had the misfortune to fracture a wrist while cranking his automobile and was out of school a short time.

Mrs. Guy Fuller of Hamburg and Mrs. N F Chubb of Webberville were Sunday visitors at the home of Wm Hendee.

The scenes which are large enough to fill the most spacious stage could not be easily improved. Those representing the Ohio river in winter, the rocky pass in which George Harris protects his family, the St. Claire plantation, the levee at New Orleans, the cotton fields in full bloom, and the "Celestial City" are all most notable effects. Each picture the reality as closely as paint and canvas will permit and the stage prospecting is so big that the effect is exceptionally pleasing. The company is also worthy of the environment. One grand night performance only at Pinckney on the 24th.

A great many people sadly admit that much that glitters is not gold. Many have been "stung" by poor or worthless securities but a savings account in this bank never "stings." It glitters in prosperity and hard times. It holds out no false promises. It always earns an income. You will always play safe with a savings account.

Fifteen Bushels of Dirt

Tests indicate that not less than fifteen bushels of dirt come into the ordinary house in the course of a year. A large part of it is of course disposed of by broom and dustpan—but not all, by any means.

Here is a proof: Sweep a carpet thoroughly, sweep it until not a speck of dirt appears or an ounce of strength remains in your arms. Then let an electric vacuum cleaner pass over it—and look at the bag. You will see dirt aplenty.

Broom and dust cloth may make a house look clean; the electric vacuum cleaner makes it truly clean and sanitary. Come in and see how conveniently you can acquire one of these labor-saving, health-promoting devices.

Man-Made World

"If I believed in change I should sketch a world where women would live upon shelves, shelves without ladders. One would take them down when one wanted them; they would be delighted to be taken down, clapping their little hands, cooing like babies, and yet understand one's deepest thoughts. One would also take them down in the morning to do the housework; at other times one would live as stern and brave, until one came to need again the women who would be akin to those very expensive dolls who say 'Pa-pa' and 'Mam-ma' when you press a spring. When one got tired of their repertory one would send them to the shop to have a different repertory put in."—W. L. George in "The Triumph of Gallo."

The Gift Appropriate

"Your daughter," said Mrs. Oldcastle, after being conducted through the newly furnished wing of the magnificent palace occupied by the new-rich Bullingtons, "has such a splendid vocabulary."

"Do you think so?" her hostess replied. "Josiah wanted to get her one of them oscarines, but I made up my mind right at the start that a vocabulary would look better in a room furnished like hers, even if it didn't cost quite so much."

System Among Birds

Warblers, kinglets, chickadees, nuthatches and creepers while working through the branches in quest of tiny insect prey, keep up an incessant chirping so that they need apply their sharp eyes only to the problem of catching game. Their ears tell them just where their nearest neighbor is located. In this way much confusion is avoided. A bird does not crowd upon his neighbor; he picks fresh territory to hunt and all the while he can keep in touch with his fellows.

Only in the Willows

A characteristic distinguishing the Willow family from practically all others is that both the pollen-bearing and the seed-producing flowers are arranged in drooping tassels, says "Tree Habits" from the American Nature association. Numerous other trees have their pollen-bearing flowers arranged in tassels, but in no other family are the seed-producing flowers also grouped in this distinctive way.

Perfectly Safe

"I was afraid my sermon last Sunday would annoy some of my people, but it didn't," said the clergyman.

"What was your subject?" asked his friend.

"The Duplicity of the Average Man," and I spoke freely.

"You couldn't tread on any toes, could you?"

"That way. Every man considers himself above the average."

Flare Is Feature of New Fall Duds

In discussing the fall fashions in women's coats and dresses, especially apparel for the young lady who is attending school, a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune says:

Let us start with the coat or cape as a beginning and work inward. Coats for autumn are more ample, surely from the waist downward, and most of them are made from beautiful rough materials with an incredibly soft, long nap, something like velvet. They are marked with the designs you see in men's overcoats and winter suits—chevrons, zigzag stripes, shadow plaids and small irregular diamonds. The outside of these winter coats is usually of some neutral tint like smoke gray, dull bois du rose, light brown or bright navy blue, and the inner side is of a bright color, so that many of them are made without linings. Coats are made with flaring hems, many of them swinging free from the shoulders, and are quite straight in front with diagonal closings or else are buttoned up to the chin. Jenny makes the backs of her youthful coats plaited from a deep shoulder yoke, which is very attractive if the material is not too heavy. Chanel buttons some of her coats straight down the center front from the chin. They have round collars of material or fur which frame the face and flare from the shoulders at the side and back.

Double-Faced Materials.

Some of the most attractive French costumes for the high school girl are three-piece, being composed of a cape and sports suit. Lucien Lelong makes these suits of double-faced material with circular full-length capes that fit the shoulders and show double-breasted jackets with front-plaited skirts. The interior of the cape is a bright color, and the skirt is also made of this brilliant side of the material. Another version of the three-piece suit, from Vionnet, shows a cape of gray lined with bright blue and a gray dress of frisca over which is worn a double-breasted vest of bright blue.

School dresses have jumper bodices and either circular or plaited skirts. Popular materials are a loose-woven fabric called kasha natte, frisca and cashmere. Remember that the jumper should be considerably shorter than last season, reaching just to the hips and no farther, and that the sleeves must be loose at the top. Standing band collars have, to a great extent, replaced the familiar round collar. Some of these collars have long bands that tie in front, on the shoulder or in back, and others have the band opening in front into a V. Martial et Armand have a dress for the young girl made of bois du rose cashmere with straight unadorned front and jacket back, split at the center, with rounded corners joining at the round lace collar. The back of the skirt is and cashmere. Jenny makes charming frocks of crepe de chine in soft shades of capucines, bois du rose, madonna blue and green and trims them with collars, cuffs and bands of velvet in the same tone. Madeleine Vionnet makes some of her young girl frocks of wool and bands them with a lighter-toned crepe de chine. Lace collars and cuffs are also seen on some of these frocks.

The Circular Cut.

Skirts show a preference for the circular movement, although plaits are also prominent. The godet is not used so much as either full or half-circular skirts. Plaited dresses of crepe de chine, banded in wool of the same shade or a lighter or darker tone of it are being offered by such houses as Chanel, Premet and Martial et Armand. These dresses are shown with sweaters of the wool banding, that is a reseda green crepe de chine dress plaited from a deep shoulder yoke and having a hem, pipings and collar and cuffs of dark green kashanite. It is worn with a sweater of the same fabric that fastens straight down the center front with green bone buttons and is banded with the lighter crepe de chine. Sometimes, particularly in the models of Madeleine Vionnet and Lucien Lelong, the sweater is replaced by the double-breasted sleeveless jacket. Sweaters and jackets of shadow plaid are worn with plain circular skirts of wool and with long coats or capes of plaid in order to give warmth when needed.

The young girl's dance frocks and general party dresses for early autumn have very full skirts indeed, and many of them have straight bodices that are cut to the normal waistline or at the longest, not lower than high on the hips. A dance dress of this type, from Drecol, is made of dull orange velvet with a straight bodice, cut to a V in front and back, and a skirt made very full with circular gores. It is new and entirely charming. Lelong has an attractive party frock for the young girl made of white crepe de chine with a skirt that is made full by means of godets all around, and a straight square-necked bodice. Over this is worn a sleeveless jacket of rose-colored velvet, surplice in front and tied in a sash at the back. Doucet has a debutante's dance frock made of madonna-blue tulle with a V-necked bodice and a godeted skirt, worn over a straight slip of cream-colored lace.

For Hop and Prom.

Louise Boulanger offers a unique party frock for the young girl, made of white and silver crepe with a straight bodice and long sleeves, bishop in cut, slit from wrist to the front and side of the armhole. The skirt is very full in front and has a butterfly sash of silver tulle placed at the waistline in front only. Capes of velvet or coats of velvet and lame brocade are worn with such frocks. Scarf collars are more often shown than collars of fur.

The guiding principle for the modern young girl in choosing her wardrobe is simplicity. In later years she can cover herself with embroidery and elaboration if she will, but if she is wise, or her parents are, she lets youth reap the full advantage that is given it by a charming, slim figure and a fresh complexion, and lets her frocks form a setting rather than fill the foreground of the picture.

Naturally, the simplicity will vary directly with the age of the girl, and it will not do to deny the budding college undergraduate some of the frills and turlowels of the post-debutante, particularly in evening clothes. For girls still in the secondary schools, however, the American tradition of unaffected simplicity should be followed without deviation.

Western Boy's Rose

Takes Prize Honor

If these were the good old times, when laurel wreaths rested on deserving brows, fourteen-year-old Jimmy Dunning, rose grower extraordinary, would have one cocked over his cowlick, and a youthful blackamoor page besides, to carry the tall of his toga, says the Portland Telegram, which continues:

And nobody would blame him for strutting through the forum or festival center or wherever the admiring crowds might be assembled.

For Jimmy has put all the old heads among the local rose growers to rout and won the grand sweepstakes prize for the best blossom at the rose show against contestants who have spent double his lifetime in making pruning a fine art and fertilization a matter of prayer.

The judges decided that a Frau Carl Druschki rose, grown on one of Jimmy's own bushes in the family garden at 884 East Yamhill street, was the finest among all the aristocrats of blossoms entered at the show.

Bee Library a Memorial

The Miller apicultural library at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture contains more than 1,100 books and bulletins relating to bee culture.

After the death of Dr. Charles C. Miller at Marengo, Ill., in 1920, fellow beekeepers sought some means of perpetuating his memory. A memorial library was finally decided on, which was endowed by the beekeepers and others. Because of the interest which the Wisconsin College of Agriculture displayed in beehkeeping the Miller library was established there.

The library is an international monument to beehkeeping, says a bulletin by H. F. Wilson, in charge of the agriculture department of Wisconsin college.

Early Handkerchief

Churchmen have been credited with being the first to use handkerchiefs in Europe, and for a time priests alone were permitted to carry them. Even they were subjected to certain restrictions of use, for the handkerchief formed part of the vestments of the cleric's office and as a "facial," by which name it was known, was worn by the priest officiating before the altar.

Looked That Way

"Are you going very far on your camping trip?" Susan asked her small friend Betty. The little girl considered deeply before she replied, "Yes, I think so, if I can tell anything by the signs." "Signs?" inquired Susan. "What signs?" Betty considered again. "Why," she answered, at length, "the long arguments that mother and daddy have."

Mrs. Lee Suffered From All These Troubles, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well

Terre Haute, Indiana.—"I was weak and run-down and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time and dizzy, had no appetite and could not sleep. I tried different medicines for a year but they did not help me. Then my husband saw the ad. for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and had me take it. I regained my strength and never felt better in my life. It completely restored me to health. I had practically no suffering when my baby boy was born and he is very strong and healthy. I know that the Vegetable Compound is the best medicine a woman can take before and after childbirth for health and strength. I would be willing to answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Wm. J. Lee, Route E, Box 648, Terre Haute, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for all these troubles.

Permanent roads are a good investment—not an expense

How Much Are Poor Roads Costing You?

5,000,000 of America's 18,000,000 motor vehicles are recognized as an economic necessity on the farm.

Is your car giving the full efficiency of which it is capable—and at the lowest cost per mile possible?

Not if you are jolting over bumps and ruts. Not if you get stuck in the mud.

In addition to the time you thus lose along the way, you also pay from one to four cents a mile more in gasoline, tire and repair bills than you would pay on permanently paved highways.

Think, too, how many so-called improved roads have gone to pieces within the past few years, thereby piling up huge maintenance and rebuilding costs.

Contrast all this with the record of Concrete Roads—the roads that have repair built out and maintenance built in. Firm, rigid and unyielding, free of bumps, ruts, holes, mud and dust, they are, in every way, the most economical roads.

Tell your highway officials you want more Concrete Roads. Such an investment will pay you big dividends year after year.

Let us give you all the facts about Concrete Roads, including the experience of other communities. Ask for our free booklet, R-3.

However, the simple jumper frock of any of the new woollens, either patterned or plain with a rough surface, is the popular Paris entry for the Prix de la Jeune Fille.

Every amusing fantasy of trimming is possible in the simple jumper frock. Naturally there must be nothing that detracts from its line, for half its charm lies in the silhouette with that clever skirt fullness that allows perfect freedom of movement without destroying the harmony of line. The newest decoration is a band of fine shirring that may be placed on collar, cuffs and also at the hem, while it is also being introduced on skirt pockets or wherever the ingenuity of the designer suggests.
