MRS. HOOKER INJURED

When Bert Hooker called at his mother's home in Petteysville Sunday forenoon, he found her lying on the floor and in an exhausted condition. In some manner she had fallen Saturday evening, breaking a hip and had managed to crawl to the bed and draw quilts to her but was unable to get into the bed. She remained on the floor, helpless from early Saturday evening until nearly eleven o'clock Sunday forenoon. As Mrs. Hooker's age is nearly eighty, it is feared the accident will cause her very serious trouble.

ED. QUINN DIES SUDDENLY

Ed. Quinn died suddenly at the Coyle house in East Putnam last Thursday. He was talking to the Coyle children when Mrs. Coyle noticed him put his coat on. As the room was warm she asked him if he was chilly. He said he had a severe pain in the region of his heart and then fell to the floor. All efforts to resuscitate him were fruitless.

He was about 43 years old and was well known in this vicinity, having been engaged in the threshing business with Guy Lewis, who also died suddenly this summer.

PINCKNEY WINS AGAIN

The Pinckney High School football team drove over to Saline last Friday and won the narrow margin of one point, the score being 7-6. Saline plays a fine brand of football and for a time it seemed as though they would be the victors. The field was actually a sea of mud which made the open game impossible. Saline, during the last half second play in the first half, scored a touchdown. In the third quarter with a fresh dry ball Pinckney opened up with three successive passes. The first was completed by Blades for a gain of fourteen yards. In the next play H. Reason completed one for ten yards and a second later Swarthout for the extra SCS HMHM SCHM $-S shot another to H. Reason who raced twenty-seven yards for a touchdown. Swarthout went through the middle of the line for the extra point which proved to be the deciding factor of the game.

Next Friday Fowlerville comes to Pinckney.

NOVEMBER STARTS FINE

Everybody is pleased that October, 1925, with its unseasonable weather is past and that November started in with ideal Indian Summer days.

None of our older citizens can remember another year when the Pinckney mill pond was covered with ice from shore to shore so early until this year when Friday night the pond and some of the smaller lakes nearby were completely frozen over and remained so for two days. The weather during the past month has been so unfavorable for farmers that not much work in the fields could be done and much damage to crops has resulted. Apples frozen on the trees and are generally damaged, as are also potatoes, beans and other crops. Farmers have long wished for better weather and it looks as if they would have it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES

The Halloween Social which was held at the church parlors last Friday evening under the auspices of the Philathea Class was a decided success in every way. The weather was ideal and a goodly number availed themselves of the opportunity of celebrating this age-old holiday. The early part of the evening, while the guests were assembling, was spent in visiting and gift-giving, after which supper was served. The dining room was then cleared for the games and contests, which included an old-fashioned spelling match, the laurels going to Mrs. Wirt Hendee. The witch afforded unusual interest, very cleverly concealing her identity and revealing the "past" of her patrons with startling truth. Old songs of the home and heart were touchingly rendered by Miss Nellie Gardner, and Mrs. Ed. L. Baughn, in costume, and were much appreciated.

Miss Veina Hall was named as official delegate to represent the Sunday School at the annual State Convention at Detroit this week.

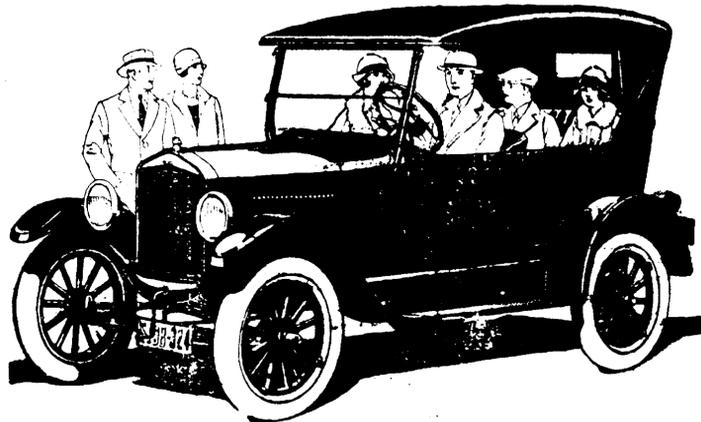

The Wobelo Girls will entertain the Live Wires at the church parlors Friday evening and the members of both classes are cordially invited.

O. E. S. DANCE

A dance, under the auspices of the Pinckney O. E. S., will be given at the Masonic Hall Friday evening, November 13th. Good music and dances for everybody, old and young.

O. E. S. ladies are requested to bring cake.

PROCTOR, Box 1, East Liberty Station, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Such letters prove the great merit of the Vegetable Compound. These women know by experience the benefit they have received. Their letters show a sincere desire to help other women suffering from like ailments. Let these experiences help you now.

In a recent canvass of women purchasers, 96 out of every 100 report beneficial results by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Where the Luck Came In Little Billy tripped over the edge of the carpet and dropped the dish of tapioca he was carrying. Picking himself up, he remarked, cheerfully, "That's lucky!"

His mother was indignant. "What's lucky, I should like to know?" she asked.

"Why, it's lucky I don't like tapioca," replied Billy.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

As the wild duck season is upon us the inexperienced housewife who is presented with a brace of ducks to cook will welcome a few suggestions.

all into a deep pan of melted paraffin. When well covered hang them up in a cold place to chill. When thoroughly hardened the paraffin can be taken off peeling the feathers and down, leaving the clean, delicate flesh free from feathers.

Apple and Bread Stuffing.—To three cupfuls of bread broken into bits, add three apples pared and cut into small pieces, two and one-half tablespoonfuls of onion chopped, one teaspoonful of sage, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper; mix all together and stuff the ducks.

Salads which are best to serve with duck are orange, apple or any mildly acid combination. Wild plum, currant or green grape are jellies well liked with game.

Baked Potatoes.—Select large, well-shaped potatoes, remove the center with an apple corer and fill with rolls of bacon or small sausages. Place on a rack in a dripping pan and bake in a moderate oven.

Such Good Things. Most cooks find the breakfast menu the most difficult to escape monotony.

Oatmeal Bread.—Boil enough potatoes to make two cupfuls when mashed—save the water in which they were cooked—adding enough water to make a quart.

Terrapin Chicken.—Chop together two chicken livers cooked, two cooked eggs and mix with two cupfuls of chopped cooked chicken. Season with salt, pepper, nutmeg. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, one cupful of chicken stock or cream. Cook until thickened, add the chopped mixture, and serve for ten minutes.

Lightning Cake.—Break the whites of two eggs into a half-pint measuring cup, add softened butter to make half a cupful, then fill the cup with milk and water.

Orange Icing.—Mix the grated rind of an orange with one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one tablespoonful of orange juice and the yolk of an egg.

Serve a cottage pudding or plain cornstarch pudding with a butter-scotch sauce made of browned flour, butter, brown sugar, a little molasses and vinegar with water. Good with ice cream.

Fur Coat Problem Is Hard to Solve

The fur coat problem is a little different from any other perplexity that the mode supplies and a lot different from what it was in the earlier years of this enlightened century. There was a day, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, when the distinction of the fur wrap depended merely on its particular skin—when the expressions "my chinchilla," "my sable," or "my seal" immediately classified the speaker in the ranks of the haute monde, entirely regardless of the silhouette or details of her epochal acquisition.

Granting that the fur coat has fallen completely under the dominion of the mode, what general principles are to govern its selection and what are the specific details to be considered this season? Surely it is unsound economically to add a new fur wrap to each winter's wardrobe and yet, if fashion dictates seasonal changes, what is the alternative?

The ladies who light-heartedly acquired straightline coats last winter are weeping and wailing this flaring autumn and what warranty is there that this year's modish wraps may not be consigned to the dim indubitable past in the winter of 1925-'27.

The problem can only be solved in one way. A skilled analysis of the situation must be followed by a carefully worked out compromise—and this is the single instance where fashion permits a compromise. It is not so much a question of the moment's mode as it is of the current style cycle. Tomorrow is quite as important as today and with this consideration in mind we shall forthwith point out the middle path to pelted smartness.

The silhouette is far and away the most important consideration when acquiring a new fur wrap because it does not lend itself easily to the skill of the remodeler and because all through the mode it is the first detail to attract the eye.

So for your new fur coat we counsel the flare with a grain of discretion which means that you are not to adopt the extreme or bizarre models and that you are to concentrate more on general fullness than sudden width at any specific point. Last year when we suggested the moderate flare it was considered radical advice; this year it has become conservative. But while careful analysis leads definitely to the conclusion that graceful width is to dominate fur coats next season, as well as this. It may take a distinctly different form. And so it would be unwise to commit yourself to any extreme translation of the flare. Choose the middle path and you will combine smartness and security for a happy compromise.

There is a single exception to the flared idea in fur wraps and that is in the sports or trotteur models. Every other type indorses some species of flare. Some of these originate at the shoulders and simulate a cape back but mostly they swing from a narrow hipline into front and side godets. Cape effects are most popular for the afternoon—the mode du soir, although not disdaining the cape altogether, shows a distinct preference for sleeved models.

The fur coat flare is effected in as many ways as it is on dresses and cloth coats. The flare may be achieved by the godet, by the circular flounce or by the gathered straight flounce. The flounce may appear at the front, the back, at one or both sides, or all the way round the coat. Then, too, the distended effect may be arrived at through patches of fur applied to the coat in such a manner that a flare results. Less usual methods are through gathered in-set sections, inverted plaits, inset panel sections which extend into a border or the cutting of the coat on graduated circular lines.

Length of New Fur Coats. The next consideration concerns the length of the new fur coats. The models of the current season reach either to the hemline of the dress or terminate an inch or two above. Either is satisfactory this year, but, delving once more into the future, which is preferable? There has been a tendency this autumn away from bizarrely short skirts and there are indications that by next autumn that tendency may be further accentuated. Furthermore the flare in a longer model adds more dignity to the general effect and inasmuch as there are sign posts which point to a return of at least the ghost of the old-time elegance, our suggestion is that you choose the longer models, everything else being equal.

Collars, cuffs, and the various other details that differentiate this winter's fur coats may be adopted with no fear that next year shall find them de moda. Collars and cuffs each show a predilection for the flared silhouette and they are invariably full. Among the former, shawl collars and chair effects share the spotlight while flared cuffs often add the finishing touch to a liberally constructed sleeve.

Further smart details that mark the fur wrap of 1925-'26 are the capelet, either in one piece or slashed at the center back, all-around cape effects, front borders that form a long trimming from collar to hemline, bolero effects, scarf collars, standing collars and wide revers of contrasting fur—the revers cut in one with the collar—a wide flounce that continues up the center back of the coat, gradually becoming narrower until it disappeared underneath the collar.

Fur Coat Linings. Fur coat linings may be very ornate or quite sober. Smart sports coats of fur are frequently lined with kasha while more formal models often feature hand-embroidered silk linings or hand-painted linings depicting jungle scenes.

The reversible coat composed of cloth on one side and fur on the other—the for-lined coat play an important part in this winter's models. Leopard, gazelle and burunduki are the furs most in evidence with this type of wrap.

So far as the pelts are concerned you may choose from this year's offerings with perfect equanimity and assurance that you will remain in the picture next year—and if necessary for several following years. There are, of course, certain sharp distinctions drawn in the character of the skins to be worn for the different occasions. For afternoon wear, flat furs are easily smartest and moleskin and caracul are the two outstanding leaders in this class. The first is bleached and dyed in numerous colors, leaning principally to beige, golden brown and mahogany. Caracul comes in the more sedate hues of grey, black and brown. If you will invest that order you will have about the correct order of color frequency for the fall and winter seasons. Grey is never that either brown or black but we suggest that the frugal budgetaire confine her spectral fancy to those two ancient favorites. And of the two our preference is for black. Mink, broadtail, baby lamb and angora are also on par for daytime wear.

POINTS ON KEEPING WELL

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN Editor of "HEALTH"

THE FAMILY MEDICINE CHEST

WHILE, as a rule, medicine should be given only on the doctor's orders, there are a few medicines and a number of articles which should be kept in every home for use in emergencies and for carrying out the doctor's orders in caring for any sick person in the household.

For first aid in cases of accidents and injury, there should be kept on hand a few clean bandages of various widths. One-inch and two-inch sizes are those most frequently used, with a few half-inch bandages for tying up cut fingers. These may be purchased at the local drug store or made from an old sheet. A worn sheet, after being washed and ironed and the hems torn off, may be torn into strips of the desired width and each strip rolled tightly and the ends secured with a small pin. A small box of absorbent cotton, a yard or two of plain gauze and a spool of one-inch adhesive plaster will furnish all the material needed for simple dressings.

Among the articles which are needed in the sick room and which are of great help in the home in case of emergencies and sudden illness, are a fountain syringe, a hot-water bag, a bed pan and a clinical thermometer.

Some of these can be improvised from other things. Bricks or flat irons heated in the oven can be wrapped in flannel or large bottles or fruit jars filled with hot water can be used in place of a hot-water bag. A screen can be made by pinning a sheet, shawl or blanket over a clothes horse or stretching them on a heavy cord. In a cottage in the northern woods last summer, I made a very satisfactory and attractive tray by sawing off the bottom of a heavy paste-board carton in which breakfast food had been shipped and lining it with paper napkins.

Among medicines and drugs, the following should be kept ready for use when needed: Iodine for disinfecting cuts and wounds, castor oil, olive oil, vaseline in a tube for burns and chapped hands, boric acid, mustard, and medicated alcohol. Boric acid is best kept as a saturated solution. A wide-mouthed bottle with a good cork, after being carefully washed, is filled three inches of the top with clean water. Into this is poured 15 cents worth of boric acid crystals. These will dissolve in the water until as much has dissolved as the water will take up, the rest settling to the bottom. As the solution is used, fill the bottle with clean water, adding more crystals as the boric acid is dissolved. Carbolic acid, lysol and chloride of lime are useful as disinfectants, but as they are all strong poisons they should be plainly labeled poison and kept by themselves, out of the reach of children.

LIGHT AND HEALTH

IT HAS long been known, in a general way, that sunlight was necessary to health, but it is only in recent years that scientific men have even begun to suspect that it was of great practical value in treating and curing many diseases. Koller in Switzerland, and Lo Grasso in New York, found that the sun was of great assistance in healing tuberculosis of the skin and bones. But the sunlight must be used intelligently. Koller found that the early morning sun with the cool air was best, and that the hot sun was not only of much less benefit, but might be actually harmful. Patients with tuberculosis need the light but not the heat rays, and so must be protected from the heat but not from the light.

It has also been found that sunlight is of great benefit in rickets. But, here too, it is the light rays and not the heat rays that are of benefit. Now, Dr. Leonard Hill of London, one of the leading public health authorities of England, says that sunlight is equally valuable in treating fevers. In a recent address before the British Medical Association, he told the doctors that fever patients did better on verandas than indoors, that they should be given plenty of cool fresh air and an abundance of light, but not heat. Inflamed joints, on the other hand, are benefited by strong sunshine and heat. The British Medical Service in the World War found that wounded men did better outdoors than anywhere else. In fact, this was so striking that Doctor Hill suggests that our hospitals of the future, instead of great brick and stone buildings with heavy walls and roofs, should be lightly-built bungalows with open-air wards with verandas and courts without any roofs.

"We must teach people to get rid of smoke, especially in large cities," he says. "Smoke clouds keep out the sunlight. We must also tell people to wear less clothing and to expose their skin to the sunlight." This is good for animals as well as human beings. To prevent and wipe out tuberculosis in cattle, Doctor Hill suggests that they be kept out of doors in the air and sunlight. Evidently, we have been living in too close houses and wearing too much clothing, and we need to get back to simpler and more natural ways of living.

SCHOOL NOTES

Professor J. B. Edmonson, inspector of High Schools for the state, visited the Pinckney school last week and made a thorough inspection of all the classes in the school. Mr. Edmonson stated that the most important standard to be met was scholarship. The state keeps a record of the work done by the graduates of each school while attending the University of State Normal. If this record shows poor work on the part of graduates from any particular school that school is dropped from the accredited list. Pinckney at the present time, according to the inspection, enjoys a splendid record. Mr. Edmonson stated as long as the scholarship of the school was kept at its present high standard the school was certain to remain on the accredited list indefinitely. The Pinckney school has been accredited by the University continuously over a period of twelve years.

Beginning of Telegraphy

Communication over long distances by such devices as the heliograph signal fire, drum beat, and the like have been employed from time immemorial. Electric communication however, is a comparatively recent invention. It was first suggested in 1768 when it was discovered the discharge of a Leyden jar could be conveyed through an insulated wire. The experimenters, Galvani, Volta, Ampere, Faraday and others in the early part of the last century worked on the problems of the gravity cell and the electrical magnet, and then Morse in 1838 constructed his rude mod. which a few years later had been so perfected that with some modifications in detail it has been in use ever since.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces, the words will appear. The letters are indicated by a number, which refers to the definition. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" designates a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square under "vertical" designates a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square below. No letters go in the black squares. Use a dictionary for words, except proper names, terms and obsolete forms are indicated.

"It happened that the ball and truncheon met with resounding whacks. This electrified the elders, who had hitherto been shouting weird words to the bowler." Notwithstanding which, Secretary Kellogg is expected to carry on International amenities as if nothing had happened.

Sincerity Keystones of Real Architecture

Architecture, like the other arts, can never flourish, much less produce works of permanence and beauty, unless there is genuine and widespread interest, first, in building as such, and second, in the uses to which it is to be put, for without genuineness of emotion, no talent, however winning and adaptable, can secure the enduring re-

Cigar-Box Materials

The following woods are used for cigar boxes: Tupelo gum, redwood, basswood, yellow poplar, Spanish cedar, sap gum and red gum. These species are listed in the order of quantities used. For many years the best cigar boxes were made from Spanish cedar. However, within the past few years a number of these other woods have been substituted for Spanish cedar.

Dependent on One Another

Individual independence is a delusion and a snare. No one does or can live unto himself alone, but is dependent on others as they are on him. In all planes of life there is mutual dependence, and obligations cannot be ignored.—Grit.

Her Rheumatism Vanished!

After two years of agony, this woman thanks Tanlac for restoring lost health

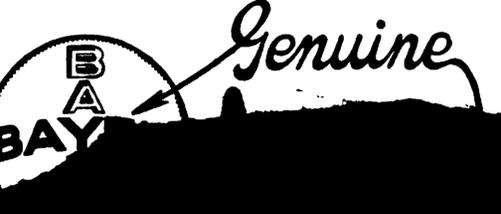

For two years, Mary Arpentigny, had rheumatism in her right arm and hand so bad she couldn't lift a comb to her hair. Indigestion made matters worse. Finally her brother urged her to try Tanlac and improvement came with the first bottle. "Now," writes Mrs. Arpentigny, "my appetite is fine, my indigestion is gone and every sign of rheumatism has left me. I only hope others will profit by my experience."

More people have been helped back to health by Tanlac than by any other tonic. Physicians testify to that. Our files are crammed with letters of grateful thanks from every part of the world. Isn't this evidence enough for you? Don't go feeling worse and worse each day. Head off that sick spell. Start the Tanlac treatment today. Ask for a bottle of Tanlac at your druggist's. Take it according to directions and see how much better you feel. We know what it can do for you because we know how it has brought health to thousands like you. It's folly not to make the test.

TANLAC FOR YOUR HEALTH

Some people tell the truth more for the sake of convenience than for truth's sake. Many are interested in great men's lives only because it brings a few holidays every year. Being broadminded is all right. But there is a danger. Broad streams usually are very shallow. Although a man and wife are looked upon as one, some wives consider their husbands very small fractions.

Let Yeast Foam build you up.

Everyone knows the tonic property of yeast—how it builds up your weight to normal—how it strengthens and invigorates the whole system.

Just try this: drop a cube of Yeast Foam in a glass of water; let stand for five minutes; stir; let settle and drink the milky water, including the white precipitate. Or, if you prefer, eat the yeast with a cracker or a piece of butter. SAMPLE CAKE FREE
