VANCIE MAY BOWMAN

Vancie May Arnold was born Nov. 23, 1891 on a farm in Unadilla township, near Gregory, Michigan, and passed to her last reward from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Arnold, Nov. 10, aged 33 years 11 months and 18 days.

Vancie and her brother Archie were boon companions through childhood and youth, and so it remained until their wedding day became the parting of the way. Nov. 5, 1919 they selected as the day when to the helpmates of their choice they should be united in marriage.

Vancie and her husband, John Bowman of Houghton spent the next five months in Detroit and then came to live on their farm in Marion township. It was here three children, two girls and one boy came to bless their home.

In 1914 Vancie accepted the Lord as her Saviour and united with the Gregory church April 23, 1916. She always retained a lively interest in the Church of her choice. Many present today well remember the years of faithful service she gave to the church as organist, also she sang in the church choir.

Twenty-eight years of sweetest memories of home and parents brought Vancie back to their home to spend the last days of her earthly pilgrimage; truly the tender care of loved ones eased the long hours of pain and suffering.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, John Bowman; three children, Dorris, Thelma and Glen; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Arnold, a brother, Archie Arnold of Howell, and a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral was held in the Gregory church Friday, Nov. 13 at 2 p. m. with Rev. Milton W. Dressel officiating, and burial was made in the Stockbridge cemetery.

LLEWELIN CHALKER

Llewelin Chalker was born on the Chalker farm, Patterson lake, near Pinckney, 79 years ago; died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jessie Seymour Fowlerville, where he has lived during the past thirty years.

At the age of 24 he was married to Miss Mary Doyle, sister of William and James Doyle of Pinckney. One daughter, Mrs. Etta Pond of Jackson survives this union. He was a brother of the late John Chalker of Pinckney; Fern of Bancroft; Mrs. Jessie Seymour of Fowlerville and Mrs. Phoebe Tripp of Jackson.

The funeral services were held in the Baptist church, Fowlerville. He was a Civil war veteran and one of the oldest citizens born in this vicinity.

How Robert M. Koenig Found Remedy for Pimply Skin

For years my skin would break out every once in a while—and ointments did very little to help me. I read a doctor's article stating that pimply skin usually comes from the stomach—and bowels not getting rid of the poisons. I tried Carter's Little Liver Pills for a few days—and since that time my skin is smooth and clear. Now I tell my friends the right way of getting rid of a broken out skin—and also of steering clear of upset stomach and sick headache. Carter's are all you claim for them.

Stupid Joke That Had Tragic Ending

In Nebraska, the Jensens and Thors live on nearby farms in the Pilger neighborhood. A few days ago Mrs. Thor left for a trip to Denmark, and Jensen, something of a joshier, meeting Thor the day after, told him that while Mrs. Thor was gone he wanted Thor to put his property in his wife's name because he, Jensen, was going to marry her when she returned. Thor is a steady, hard-working, prosperous farmer. A few days later he met Jensen in a store and asked him if he meant what he said. "Yes," said Jensen, smiling. Thor shot him and killed him where he stood. That is the danger of joking with a man who has no sense of humor. Thor gave himself up. His wife, wired for, has returned, as much surprised as anybody, to say that Jensen had no talk with her about getting married, that he merely was a neighbor. Every real comedy, the critics say, has an element of tragedy in it. Jensen's last joke had.—Capper's Weekly.

Self-Classified

Mrs. Brown had induced her husband to spend much of his spare time working in the garden. Finally their efforts were rewarded. A sprig of green appeared. It grew and flourished. Brown had his own ideas as to the nature of that sprig of green, but he kept his own counsel. Mrs. Brown's faith began to waver. Finally she asked "What in the world is it? A weed?" Brown's bitter reply was, "It came up, didn't it?"

FOOD FOR COOL DAYS

As the cool days come, bringing an appetite for more hearty and hot foods, we enjoy a hot soup about as well as anything, and it is a good dish to give those who are inclined to stoutness; it satisfies without overburdening the digestion. The following is a nourishing soup, not simply a stimulant:

Dutch Soup.—Put one-half cupful of grated cheese into a saucepan with three pints of milk. Simmer gently for ten minutes; when the cheese is dissolved, season with salt, pepper, a tablespoonful of butter and a pinch of sugar. Add one-half cupful of macaroni cut fine and previously cooked. Beat three eggs well, mix with a little of the soup and add gradually to the remainder, stirring constantly. Do not let the soup boil after adding the eggs. Serve with diced, toasted bread.

Sardines on Toast.—Trim the crusts from slices of bread and cut into finger-sized pieces and toast. Drain the sardines from the oil and lay one on each piece of toast; sprinkle with pepper and lemon juice and cook ten minutes in a very hot oven.

Beef Ragout.—Take one pound of beef cut into one-inch pieces and slice one onion thin. To two tablespoonfuls of fat in a frying pan add the onion and the meat, stir and cook until well browned. Add one bunch of celery cut fine, two cupfuls of tomato, one-half package of spaghetti cooked, one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper; let simmer three hours, or until the meat is tender. Add a little hot water if there is danger of burning, but cook very slowly. Serve on a platter; sprinkle with finely grated cheese.

Quick Beef Stew.—Cut cold roast of beef into small pieces, dredge with flour and fry brown in butter. Add chopped onion to season, a little currant jelly and beef extract dissolved in a little water. Heat thoroughly and serve at once.

Something Good.
There is no lack of good common things that one may serve her family. But variety means studying the market, using judgment in buying and brains in cooking.

Veal With Catsup.—Take one veal steak, one medium-sized onion, four slices of bacon cut very thin, one-half cupful of catsup, salt, pepper and two cupfuls of boiling water. Fry the bacon, brown the veal in the bacon fat, add the boiling water, onions, catsup, salt and pepper. Cook very slowly for an hour and a half, adding more water if needed, having one cupful of the liquid when it is ready to serve.

Asparagus and Meat Souffle.—Take a can of asparagus and two cupfuls of chopped meat, two cupfuls of meat stock, use the liquor from the asparagus, three eggs well beaten, whites and yolks separately; two tablespoonfuls of flour, with salt and pepper to taste. Cook the meat, egg yolks, flour and stock together for five minutes. Add the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into a casserole which has been lined with the stalks of asparagus. Put the rest of the asparagus in the center. Bake until firm. Serve garnished with asparagus tips.

Cream Puffs.—Put one-half cupful of boiling water together into a saucepan. As soon as the mixture is boiling, add one cupful of flour all at once, stirring vigorously until smooth. Remove from the heat, cool a little and add four eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Drop the mixture by spoonfuls on buttered sheets, leaving room to spread. Make the puffs as high as possible in the center. Bake thirty minutes or until they seem light when lifted from the pan. When very light, they are done. Cool and slit with a knife on one side, making the opening large enough to fill the shell with a cooked cream, sweetened and flavored whipped cream, or for very nice occasions, fill with vanilla ice cream and serve with a chocolate sauce.

Oyster Omelet.—Take two dozen nice, fat oysters, cook them in their own liquor until ruffled. Drain, saving the liquor. Put a tablespoonful of butter and one of flour into a saucepan, measure the liquor and add enough milk to make one cupful; stir until boiling, add a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and the oysters. Stand over hot water to keep hot, while making an omelet, using six eggs. Turn the omelet onto a hot platter and pour over it or around it the oysters and sauce.

Oiled papers that line cracker boxes, waxed paper that cover baker's bread, should all be saved. They will be found helpful in packing food for the children's lunch box.

Furs, Flares and Femininity Rule

Your winter coat, if it is to measure up to the standards set by the chic Parisienne, writes a Paris correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune, must meet these requirements: It must be extensively trimmed, preferably with one of the flat furs. And it must be elaborately feminizing, save in its informal and sports verselous. All of these manifestations of the contemporary mode have made their appearances in other portions of the smart wardrobe, but in no other item of dress are all three combined with such decisive finality. And inasmuch as the coat is the standard-bearer of fall and winter fashions, it is advisable to consider each of these themes in detail before welcoming this new member—and it will have to be new this season—into the wardrobe as your sartorial winter guest.

First, because it is most obvious, the flare. The crystallizing of autumn fashions has demonstrated the supremacy of the broadened silhouette over all others. Here and there, of course, you will see a gallant remnant of the old straightline still striving to hold its head high, but the element of chic this season requires some definite interpretation of the flare. Particularly in coats, and however great your affection for the pencil silhouette, you will do wisely to forget it when acquiring this most visible and paraded member of the winter outfit.

The flare, in varying degrees and in different types, is a distinct feature of coats designed by Chanel, Patou, Lanvin—surely a distinguished triumvirate. In a Chanel model which is worn over a straight-line dress, the flare is of the sudden, low-placed type and it is definitely visible at all times. Scarlet crepella is the fabric of both coat and dress. Jean Patou's coat contribution exploits the sectional flare, more moderate than the first and commencing at a slightly higher line. This is an example of the far bruted kinetic silhouette which is converted into a swinging outline when its wearer is in motion. The flaring portion is achieved by the separate front sections.

A Lanvin coat exemplifies the broad silhouette rather than the strict flare. Its distended effect is inaugurated at the shoulders and it continues to widen gradually and almost imperceptibly until it reaches the hemline. This is forerunner of the coats of next season.

Use of Fur Trimming.
The tendency to include the flare even where the fabric used is the sportsmanlike English woolen, is pronounced.

A Chanel model, measured in square feet, has almost as much nutria surface as it has crepella, which is the foundation of the coat. The cuffs extend about eight inches back from the wrist, and the generous fur collar refuses to be repressed until it terminates in a huge circular hand which is placed at the hem line.

Patou's fur application is similar in that it is applied at the same places, but it is not quite so generously employed. This is an English wool model in a beige color and the trimming fur is a matching beige renardeau applied modestly at neck and hemline and so lavishly as to simulate a muff on the sleeves.

Molynex and Lanvin models, while less prodigal in the application of fur trimming, employ it in the sweetest and smartest manner. No trimming appears at the hemline, which is in accordance with the tendency of the chic Parisienne to concentrate the ornamentation at the top, leaving the lower section to be elaborated by the various silhouette devices.

These models atone for their hemline neglect of fur by being lined throughout with the identical fur used as a trimming. This is another modish note which is peculiar to the current season and which as well has the unqualified sanction of the smart Parisienne.

In general, flat furs are the outstanding pelts which are used to trim the new winter coats, and almost every short-haired fur has been used. There is a strong tendency toward high trimming colors, to match the fabric of the coat, and luridly-dyed pelts have made their appearance as a result. As a rule, though, the smart Parisienne adheres to the natural colored furs as a trimming, since she historically hesitates to gild the lily.

The third potentate in this new triumvirate is a little less tangible and, perhaps, has not progressed quite as much as the other two. The feminizing of fashion has been steadily gathering momentum since last summer, yet there still remain unbelievers who will point to isolated models as a substantiation of their skepticism. Feminine fashions connote greater formality, increased elaboration and generally more mature atmosphere, and while some of the new coats may still refute one or more of these themes, the advancing season will witness a steady march in the direction of all three.

Every mode, without even the exception of the usually mannish O'Rosen product, offers mute evidence of the softer feeling in the new fashions. The tallmades of Patou and O'Rosen are cut on generally straight lines, but there is none of that bizarre severity which characterized the era of mannishness. And the elaboration in fabric and trimming which is so apparent on some coats, is ample to clearly differentiate them from the youthful, simple and overinformal styles of a fashion cycle that has reached the end of the long road. Flared femininity is the password to autumn and winter chic, and it belongs, before anything else, on the new coats.

Fit at the Waist.
Along the Bois de Boulogne Jeanne Lanvin shows many smart coats that fit decidedly at the waist. The shoulder flare and the rounded front are the other significant features. Most of her models are trimmed with fur and a favorite treatment is a wide panel down the side of the front which wraps over and then widens as it reaches the hem.

The lily effect of two or three shades of fur is quite prominent in the smart Lanvin coats. This designer cut up her fur in narrow tongues, the lowest black, then a brown one and above that a smaller one of beige. Shaved rabbit in a sand shade of beige is a very popular Lanvin coat trimming. Fox, too, is smart in this becoming shade. It is particularly attractive on a chiffon velvet coat in the new chartreuse green that has a band of silver galon both outside and in. Just two inches from the fur.

Most of the Premet coats have dresses made specifically to go with them, but some excellent separate wraps are seen. A very pretty model in gray-green cloth has a heavy dounce and a high collar and cuffs of raigourdin. A coat of bright green cloth, fitting neatly to the waist and hips with a wide under flare, has a collar and cuffs of fox in the popular sand shade that trims so many wraps this season.

Flat disks of fur worked in concentric circles are often used by Charlotte as a trimming for both coats and gowns. This is a very decorative fashion and gives much originality to the models. A band of fur, at the back only, is seen on many of the coats, while most of them have a cosy turnover collar and wide cuffs of fur, the sleeves often flaring at the wrist.

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

LIGHT TREATMENT OF ASTHMA

ASTHMA is a common and most distressing affliction. To see the unfortunate victim struggling and gasping for breath is almost as trying on the friends and relatives as it is on the sufferer.

Asthma is a spasm of the bronchial tubes, during which these fine air passages in the lungs close up, preventing air from entering. So the desperate effort which the asthmatic makes during an attack is literally a fight for air, every available muscle being used to force air through the constricted tubes into the lungs.

Asthmatic attacks naturally do not last long. If they did and if they involved any large part of the lungs, the patient would die from lack of oxygen. But in real asthma, from whatever cause, just as the attack reaches its height and it seems as though the sufferer could not live another minute, the spasm relaxes and the patient, exhausted and streaming with perspiration, sinks back relieved as air again fills the lungs.

Asthma is not a disease. It is rather a symptom, which may appear in many different conditions. Its close resemblance to and connection with hay fever would indicate that it may be caused by abnormal conditions in the nose, such as bony spurs and obstructions. It also occurs in connection with some diseases of the kidneys. Climate, location, certain odors or kinds of food may also have something to do with bringing on an attack. In the last ten years, Walker has shown that some asthmatics are unusually sensitive to certain substances which cause spasm of the bronchial muscles.

But whatever the cause—and where there are so many suspected causes we may be sure the real cause has not yet been found—the most important thing for the asthmatic is some treatment by which he can avoid these attacks. So a recent article by Dr. Isaac Gerber of Providence, R. I., in the Journal of the American Medical Association should be of interest to every sufferer from asthma.

Light of some kind is being used for the treatment of many conditions. It is not strange that the X-ray should be tried in asthma. Doctor Gerber says it is being widely used for that purpose in Germany. In examining the chest of an asthmatic by X-ray, it was noticed that after the examination, the asthma was greatly relieved. Further experience has shown that, in many cases of asthma, treatment with the X-ray will greatly reduce the frequency and severity of the attacks and may entirely relieve the patient.

DODGING SMALLPOX

THE United States may own and hold over one-half of all the gold in the world today. But it also had last year one-fifth of all the smallpox in the world. That isn't quite so pleasant or desirable, neither is it anything to be proud of.

In the hundred and twenty-five years since Jenner's discovery of vaccination, this hideous disease, once the terror of the civilized world, has been so well controlled that most of us today think of it as an insignificant danger. Yet the United States Public Health service, in its 1924 report, shows that smallpox has been steadily increasing. In 1920, there was nearly twice as much smallpox in this country as in 1919, one third more in 1922 than in 1921 and much more in 1924 than in 1923. This increase occurs always in states or cities in which vaccination is neglected.

In 1924, the United States had 40,587 cases of smallpox with 871 deaths, while Canada had only 2,808 cases with 60 deaths.

Government and military authorities have learned by bitter experience the dangers of smallpox and the value of vaccination in preventing it. For hundreds of years smallpox was one of the added horrors of every war. Whenever any large number of men were brought together in military camps, smallpox promptly appeared and often killed more men in camp than died on the battlefield. Even in the Civil War, smallpox was practically always present in both armies. But in the World War, with nearly 20 million men in the service, only 29 men died of this disease.

Ex-service men know why. Ask any man who was in the army in 1917-18, either in this country or overseas, what was the first thing that happened to him after he reported for duty. He'll tell you, "They vaccinated me." But the war closed seven years ago. In this country and in England, smallpox has been steadily increasing both in amount and in virulence. It will continue to increase just as long as vaccination is neglected.

In spite of the fact that smallpox is one of the oldest and most typical of germ diseases, we do not know what causes it or how it is taken. So it cannot be prevented as can typhoid. But it can be prevented by vaccination. If you want to be safe from smallpox, there's just one way. Get vaccinated.

SHOW INTERRUPTED

A smell of smoke and a cry of fire at the opera house last Saturday night nearly caused a small panic when a few in the audience rushed for the exits. In a moment, however, it was learned that there was no danger and the frightened ones returned to their seats and enjoyed the interrupted show.

A few scraps of paper had fallen into one of the hot air registers and caused a little smoke, which soon dissolved itself in the air. The episode showed that the opera house can be emptied in a very short time. The house was crowded to its utmost seating capacity, the largest audience since this theatre has opened as a movie house.

DEER WORRIES SHEEP

The deer, which have been roaming over this section of Livingston county for several years, are becoming undesirable to farmers.

On occasions lately the buck, fully antlered, has been amongst the flock of sheep owned by Fred Burgess and has chased and tossed individuals of the flock, doing considerable damage. Last week Mr. Burgess caught the buck at this pasture and drove him away. Sometime ago Ellery Hineckley also frightened him away from the same flock where he was chasing the sheep.

Mr. Burgess wonders what protection he is entitled to for damages to his sheep. As deer are protected by law at all seasons in Livingston county, he would like to know whether or not he is obliged to allow the marauder to chase and toss his sheep, or whether he is entitled to protect his property against further damages and loss.

"THE ISLE OF HOPE"

Seething with adventure of the South Seas and a hunt for long buried pirate treasure, "The Isle of Hope", Richard Talmadge's latest starring effort for F. B. O. proves one of the liveliest and most entertaining melodramas in which he has ever appeared. What with a shipwreck, a fire at sea, a mutiny, and battles within the walls of the old castle where the treasure is eventually discovered, the action is lightning fast and Director Jack Nelson has seen to it that plenty of good comedy leaves the moments of the production. Jas. Bell Smith, who wrote the story and continuity, has turned out an excellent piece of work which eclipses any vehicle Talmadge has had to date. The part fits the athletic Dick like the proverbial glove, and the rest of the cast is excellent. "The Isle of Hope" will be shown on the screen of the opera house, Saturday, Nov. 21st.

ONE spoonful Adlerika removes GAS and often brings surprising relief to the stomach. Stops that full, bloated feeling. Often brings out old waste matter you never thought was in your system. HOW TWO WOMEN AVOIDED OPERATIONS

The Following Letters of Mrs. Thurston and Mrs. Beard Carry an Encouraging Message to Other Sick Women

MRS. ETHEL THURSTON
324 N. Pine Street, Lima, Ohio
Lima, Ohio.—"I want to tell you how your medicine has helped me. For weeks I suffered with awful pains from inflammation and I was in such misery that I had to bend double to get relief. I could not be touched or jarred, had awful pain all over my abdomen and could not touch my feet to the floor. It was impossible for me to straighten up and the pains never ceased. I took treatments for some time and finally was told I would have to have an operation. I do not believe in operations, and I had read so much about Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound that I told my husband I would try it before I gave up. I soon began to feel that it was doing me good. The awful misery began to leave me, also the backache. I have a good appetite and am gaining in weight. Taking the medicine was the best thing I ever did. I feel like it has saved my life and I do not hesitate to say so to my friends. At least it saved me from a dreaded operation and I am still taking it. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about the medicine."

—Mrs. Ethel Thurston, 324 North Pine Street, Lima, Ohio.

Mrs. Beard's Letter
Eddy, Texas.—"I will write you a few words, thinking it will do some one else good. Two doctors said I would have to be operated on because for nearly twelve months I suffered from a weakness from which I could get no relief. I was restless and nervous and was not able to walk across the house. They said it was the Change of Life. I saw Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers, and as I could not get any help from doctors I thought I would give that a trial. I began with the liquid and it helped me some, then you advised me to take the tablet form and I began to improve rapidly. I have gained in weight from 106 to 170 pounds. I recommend it to all women with this trouble."
—Mrs. M. E. Beard, R. No. 1, Box 148, Eddy, Texas.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE
When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

WEALTH AND FAME AWAIT INVENTORS

There are plenty of fortunes waiting yet for inventive minds. For instance, a device that would keep men's trousers creased, and prevent bagging at the knees, would mean a fortune for the inventor. A stove that would give all its heat up into the room instead of sending it up the chimney would find a quick sale to stove manufacturers. Railroads would pay well for any kind of device that would stop the clank, clanky noise on trains, caused by the wheels passing over the rail connections. Wipers have been invented for automobile windshields. But if someone would find a treatment for the glass which would prevent the glass from being obscured by fog or rain, doing away with the need for the wipers, even auto manufacturers would gladly buy the patent.

Day Named in Honor of Archangel Michael

Michaelmas day, September 29, is a festival in honor of St. Michael and all angels. It was instituted, according to Butler, in 487 A. D. Michael is an archangel mentioned several times in the Bible, where he is described as the special protector of the Jewish nation and the leader of the angelic host in their contest with the powers of darkness. Michael is the minister of peace and plenty, and the chief of the seven archangels that stand before the throne of God. He figures prominently in Milton's "Paradise Lost," where, in company with Gabriel, he does battle against Satan.

Wireless Well Known to Prehistoric Man

Sig. Marconi, father of wireless telegraphy, thinks that radio got its first real start when Adam gave Eve "the glad eye." In a recent speech the veteran inventor, disclaiming modestly any part in the radio boom, said: "At times I am amused at the discussions as to who really invented wireless. To my mind wireless has existed from the moment when prehistoric man first understood the meaning of a smile of encouragement from the prehistoric girl." Later Sig. Marconi added that his contribution was the discovery that electric waves were capable of traveling and of being received across great distances. He added further that no one was more surprised than he at the tremendous advance of radio in the last few years, as well as the tremendous popular interest therein. "It is all quite beyond me," he concluded. Sig. Marconi is working on advanced experiments with very short wave lengths.

Practical Youngster

A schoolmaster has explained to his pupils the functions of a British consulate, and to find out whether or not they understood, he asked: "If someone carried you off in an airplane and after a long flight dropped you thousands of miles away in a foreign country, what place would you seek out first of all?" An eager hand was uplifted by one of the pupils. "Please, sir, the hospital," came the unexpected answer.

Movement Sure Sign of Advancing Years

There is a philosopher who has a department on the Craig Leader, and here is his latest utterance: "Everyone has read that King Solomon had a thousand wives. And the queen of Sheba was the king's favorite. She had brains. To test his ability she once dressed a thousand boys and girls alike and told the king to pick them out, the boys from the girls. He had each one wash their hands. The boys washed their hands and part of their wrists and the girls washed their hands to the elbows. A wise old man. But if the average man could stand off and watch a thousand men come down stair steps and just watch their feet he could tell whether they were young or old. The young men dash down as if to bet they are going to make it, while the old man feels his way. Ever notice it?"—Atlanta Constitution.

Fortune in Platinum

A mining pioneer of Vancouver, Charles F. Shaw, has discovered a deposit of chrome iron containing a large percentage of platinum. The deposit is on the banks of the Tulaman river, British Columbia, and the news of the discovery has excited such interest that over a hundred claims have been staked already. Platinum from Tulaman is not a new development; over 20,000 ounces have been won from other deposits in this region. Mr. Shaw's deposit, however, is the richest yet discovered there.

WHAT BECOMES OF YOUR CHRISTMAS SEAL PENNIES

Since this is the time of year when everyone is beginning to think of either selling or buying Tuberculosis Christmas seals, the question naturally arises, "What becomes of the money?"

The following statement has been issued by the Livingston County Public Health Service regarding the use of the funds derived from the sale of Christmas Seals in Livingston County.

Sixty-six and two-thirds per cent of the total sale money is kept in the county to assist in financing the county health work. Thirty-three and one-third per cent goes to the State and National Tuberculosis fund. The sale of the Christmas seal is the only method used to finance the State and National organizations. These same organizations carry on the fight against tuberculosis in unorganized territories.

In Livingston county the funds are used for the following:

- Health Training in Schools. 647 children enrolled in Modern health crusade this year.
- 24 National pennants won by Livingston county schools last year.
- Hundreds of school children are learning to protect their health if you buy Christmas Seals.
- Tuberculosis clinics available. 69 people examined during year.
- 27 positive and suspicious cases of tuberculosis.
- 11 new cases discovered.
- Livingston county has many children who are on the border line of tuberculosis. Children are more susceptible to tuberculosis than any other group of individuals. In practically any sanitarium practically one-third of the patients are children.
- Through periodic examinations and through education the county organization works to prevent tuberculosis among children.

Youth Evidently Had Read and Remembered

The following anecdote, which is told about the English poet and essayist, Matthew Arnold, and his youthful son, shows that the mental quickness that manifested itself first in old Thomas Arnold, the headmaster of Rugby, and then in Matthew, the son, was transmitted unimpaired to the third generation.

Matthew Arnold's son once heard someone say that the moon was made of green cheese. Immediately he said: "I don't believe the moon is made of green cheese." When his father asked why he did not believe so, the boy could only repeat: "I don't know why, but I don't believe it."

Matthew Arnold told him he should not give opinions without having reasons for them. Young Arnold was chagrined and went away squelched—for the time being.

The next morning after greeting his father, he said: "Now I know why the moon is not made of green cheese. I found my reason in Genesis."

"You have the advantage of me then," conceded his father. "I didn't know the subject was mentioned in the Bible."

"Yes, it is," replied the boy. "It tells about the creation, and the moon was made before there were any cows."—Youth's Companion.

That Earth Is Round Has Long Been Known

Discovery at Oxford of a musty tome written a couple of centuries before Columbus' time, in which it is definitely stated the "urthe is round," will not surprise any person conversant with the subject. The assumption that the science of the Dark ages was sterile and entirely incorrect has always been gratuitous.

Knowledge, it is true, was not widespread among the masses. Scientists were inclined to keep their discoveries more or less secret for several reasons. But it is certain that an exchange went on among the elect and it is presumable that Columbus had access to documents, information and maps which have since been lost.

Unscientific and uneducated persons, such as kings and queens and emperors, naturally would not have understood scientific proof any more than, say, the average politician today understands the proof of the Einstein "theory." The theory that the earth is round must have had quite a wide circulation long before Columbus set out to put it to practical use.—New York Evening Post.

Famous English Library

The Bodleian library is the public library of the University of Oxford, England. Its name derives from Sir Thomas Bodley, who restored it in 1598. Among other things he gave to the library a large and valuable collection of books purchased on the continent. The library occupies the site of the old University library, which was despoiled of its contents during the reign of Edward VI. By copyright law, a copy of every volume published in the United Kingdom is given the library, which has from time to time been enriched by valuable collections of books and manuscripts. In the matter of books and manuscripts it is second only to the library of the Vatican, at Rome.—Kansas City Times.

That merry pair, Nanette and Rintintin, still hang around milady's boudoir, as a pretty ornament. Here they are, with heads of cotton cloth, painted faces, hair and bodies of white saphyr (wound with black for the feet). Nanette's skirt is of blue saphyr, the tunic white. Rintintin's coat is crocheted of blue and so are their hats and the cord and tassel that suspends them. They are about eight inches tall.

Odd Cause for Delay

Two golfers playing an important tie were annoyed by a slow couple in front of them, obviously new to the game.

At one hole there was a particularly long wait. One of the offending couple dawdled on the fairway while his companion searched industriously in the rough.

At length the waiting couple on the tee could contain their impatience no longer.

"Why don't you help your friend to find his ball?" one shouted, indignantly.

The idle golfer in front turned with a cheerful smile.

"Oh, he's got his ball," he replied, blandly. "He's looking for his club!"
