MRS. LOUIS BOUCHER

Julia Brady was born in Genoa township, March 7, 1873 and departed this life May 19, 1926, at her home in Grosse Ile.

She was a daughter of Mr and Mrs. Joseph Brady, both having preceded her into Eternity.

In 1884, with her widowed mother and family, they moved from Brighton to Pinckney where she received her early education and took up the profession of teaching, and was said to be one of Livingston county's most successful teachers.

In June, 1906 she was united in marriage to Louis Boucher of Grosse Ile. To this happy union three children were born, Norbert, Ann and Winnifred, all of whom are left to mourn her loss of a loving and faithful wife and mother.

She also leaves one brother, M. B. Brady and one sister, Mrs. Ed Hoisel, both of Howell.

She was a devout Catholic and took a lively interest in the social affairs of their parish.

SCHOOL NOTES

The exhibit and program given at the school last Friday afternoon was well attended by patrons of the schools. In fact, so many people crowded into the building it was almost impossible to continue the program at times. Many people remained after the program, making a thorough study of the work exhibited. The school wishes the crowd had been still larger and that they would come oftener.

The Commencement exercises this will be held on Wednesday evening, June 23. The Junior banquet falls on Monday, June 21, and the Baccalaureate address will be given Sunday evening, June 20. The school picnic will be held Tuesday, June 22.

Pinckney's ball team apparently had Brighton defeated but lost during the last few innings, due to a number of bad errors.

Stockbridge comes to Pinckney Friday, May 28. This is the last game played in Pinckney this year.

Next Monday is a school holiday. The Chemistry class has finished its regular work and are now reviewing the entire work of the year in preparation for final examinations.

KING'S DAUGHTERS' CONVENTION

King's Daughters of the county met in Howell last Thursday afternoon for the purpose of organizing a County Circle. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Chas. Horton, of Flint, and officers were elected as follows:

President, Mrs. Irene Jack.
Vice President, Mrs. Florence Baughn
Secretary, Mrs. Eva Wimbles
Treasurer, Miss Julia Ball.

A program under the direction of Mrs. Hollis Sigler included vocal solos by Mrs. Eva Wimbles and Mrs. Beatrice Van Horn; readings by Mrs. Mertie Purdy, Mrs. Alta Meyer and Mrs. Lulu Darrow; and short talks by various state workers who were present, and by the presidents of the local circles. Mrs. Will Younge, 710 E. Clinton street acted as hostess for the occasion, and refreshments were served by the Howell Circle.

ANOTHER SUB.

Portage lake now boasts of another full fledged subdivision. Mark T. Swarthout has placed lots on the market on the shores of this famous lake. His farm has a long shore line suitable for bathing and all summer sports.

Already he has made some sales and reports a brisk demand for lots.

DYNAMITE BLASTING DECORATION DAY

At 4 p. m. Monday, May 31st an exhibition of dynamite blasting will be given at Cedar Lake, which will give everybody an opportunity of witnessing a dynamite blast of 100 pounds and also see Cedar Lake, the one so lately opened to the public, and which has caused so much favorable comment.

SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES

As a climax to the Red and Blue Membership Contest which the Intermediate girls have been holding, a joyous masquerade party was enjoyed at the church parlors on Saturday afternoon. The prize for the best costume, Lora Burnett, dressed as a grandmother, was awarded the prize for the best costume, while other prizes in the contest were awarded to Madge Jack, Margery Hendee and Mary Kathryn McLeod of Ann Arbor. Luncheon was served by the losing Blues.

UNKNOWN SOLDIERS' TOMB,
ARLINGTON CEMETERY

IN THE spring of 1867, only two years after the war between the states was ended, there was published in a New York newspaper a short paragraph which reported that "the women of Columbus, Miss., have shown themselves impartial in their offerings made to the memory of the dead. They strewed flowers alike on the graves of the Confederate and of the National soldiers."

The heart of the whole country thrilled to this brief announcement, says the New York Times. For, as far as we can ascertain now, it was probably the first unselfish effort of the kind toward healing the wounds of a nation which for four years had been fiercely engaged in one of the most terrible conflicts known to history.

While little has been written or published regarding the origin and development of Memorial Day, this small newspaper item, reporting the action of this group of Southern women, at least should have some mention in any history of this holiday. For a year it had no direct results, but in May, 1868, Adj. Gen. N. P. Chipman took up the matter with Gen. John A. Logan, then national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, suggesting that this organization should undertake as a body to have flowers strewn on the graves of soldiers at some definite date.

Immediately the value of this suggestion was appreciated. Through their legislatures a large number of states set aside May 30 as a legal holiday. So great was the response of the North to the unselfish action of the women of Columbus, Miss., that it struck fire in the heart of a young Illinois (N. Y.) lawyer named Francis M. Finch, who wrote a poem entitled "The Blue and the Gray," which since has become closely identified with the day. Not long afterward Chauncey M. Depew, in one of his famous addresses, said:

"When the war was over in the South, where with warmer skies and more poetic temperaments symbols and emblems are better understood than in the practical North, the widows, mothers and children of the Confederate dead went out and strewed their graves with flowers; at many places the women scattered them impartially, also, over the unknown and unmarked resting places of the Union soldiers. As the news of this touching tribute flashed over the North it roused, as nothing else could have done, national unity and love and allayed sectional animosity and passion. Thus, out of sorrows common alike to North and South came this beautiful custom."

At the first formal exercises, held at Arlington, Va., May 30, 1868, following General Logan's order to the G. A. R., the principal address was delivered by James A. Garfield, 12 years later elected President of the United States. As yet the term Memorial Day, or Decoration Day, had not been linked with the observance, and his address, afterward printed in pamphlet form in Cleveland, Ohio, was simply entitled:

"Oration of Hon. James A. Garfield, Delivered at Arlington, Va., May 30, 1868, on the Occasion of Strewing Flowers on the Graves of Union Soldiers."

But year by year the idea spread, and at Memorial Day ceremonies held at Monument cemetery, Philadelphia, May 29, 1876, under auspices of Post 2, Department of Pennsylvania, G. A. R., it was recorded that "the Annual Floral Decoration of the Graves of Our Dead Soldiers has become a national custom." Even in a short ten years after Appomattox, time was doing much to heal old wounds, assuage old enmities. And on the eve of Decoration Day, May 30, 1877, a throng assembled in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, to greet as chief speaker Judge Roger A. Pryor, formerly brigadier general in the Confederate army. Then and there this learned jurist declared to the American people that war, with all the horrors it entails, is made not by soldiers but by politicians.

"In soliciting the participation of Confederate soldiers in the solemnities of this day," he began, "you mean to tender them an overture of reconciliation, to avow your goodwill toward your recent adversaries, and to proclaim your desire for the prevalence of peace and fraternal feeling between the belligerent sections."

"By no token more touching and impressive could you make manifest those liberal and patriotic sentiments. To proffer your former foes a share in the simple but pathetic ceremonial by which, on this hallowed anniversary, you symbolize the perennial bloom and fragrance associated with the memory of your departed comrades, and allow us to unite in the homage you render to the fallen heroes of the Union, is indeed so affecting a testimonial of your kindness and magnanimity that we unreservedly yield ourselves to its benign influences and reciprocate, with all the warmth of our ardent Southern natures, the inarticulate but heartfelt aspiration for the reign of peace and good-will over our agitated and afflicted land."

"The bloody business of secession, with all its disastrous consequences, was wholly the act of the professed men of peace—the politicians. They nullified the Constitution, they obstructed into the presence of the Supreme court with their factious clamor, they lashed the popular mind into fury over imaginary wrongs. To vindicate the abstract theory of potential secession they challenged an encounter which issued in the irresistible aggrandizement of federal power. To preserve the ideal, existence of slavery in the territories they provoked a war which ended in the annihilation of slavery in the states."

The crowds in Brooklyn's Academy of Music could hardly believe their ears when Pryor, with commanding gesture, declared:

"Meanwhile the soldiers of the nation, no matter where their birth or what their political opinions, uniformly opposed themselves to every act and every word of which the aim or the tendency was to engender ill-feeling between the states or impair the stability of the Union. Call the roll of fighting men, whether in the army or the navy, and mark one known to fame who was not the friend of peace, the advocate of conciliation! No blame for that stupendous folly, the war of secession, attaches to the men who bore its brunt."

The former Confederate general paused for an instant, then took a step forward on the great stage of the academy, and with upraised hand placed full blame, as he saw it, for the four years of conflict, using these words: "The politician began it. The soldier ended it."

Pryor lived for 42 years after delivering this address, dying March 14, 1919, at the age of ninety-one. He had seen much of men and of the world at home and abroad. As time passed he became more than ever convinced that great wars are caused by politicians; that the World war of 1914-18 was brought on by self-seeking politicians and selfish traders; and that in this instance, as in others, after such century had provoked conflict, it took the soldier and the naval man to end hostilities and re-establish peace.

The Spanish war with its loss of life caused an increase in the numbers of those who observed Memorial Day. And when May 30, 1918, rolled around, with the first harvest of American lives gathered by the Grim Reaper because of the World war, the observance again swung to its full height as a ceremonial of honor, personal sorrow and national gratitude.

In many of the older parts of the country are decorated not only the graves of those who fell in the war between the states, the Spanish war and the World war, but, owing to the influence of patriotic societies, graves are decorated, and reverent mention is made of those who died in other conflicts—the Revolutionary war, in which about 310,000 Americans were engaged; the War of 1812, with 576,222 Americans on land and sea. It is possible, also, that graves are decorated of some who were engaged in the naval war with France when 4,593 Americans manned warships in hostilities lasting from July 9, 1798, until September 30, 1800.

In brief, one historian says, days particularly set apart for ceremonies in honor of the dead are common to mankind and are well-nigh as old as history itself.

This present year, and probably for many years to come, Memorial Day in every part of the United States will be rededicated to the purposes which hallow it.

If you want to buy a car on time

IT is to your advantage to buy the car that you can comfortably afford, on a payment plan that gives you a sure margin of safety.

General Motors has its own finance company, the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, operating the GMAC Plan. Through its service more than 1,000,000 families have purchased cars comfortably out of income.

On August 1 last, the price of this service, which had always been low, was further reduced. And the automobile-buying public is now saving millions of dollars annually as a result of this reduction and the influence of General Motors' leadership.

The purchase of automobiles on time is a universally accepted practice. The car is a utility and it is sound business to conserve capital and use credit. But buy on sound terms and at low rates. Any General Motors dealer will explain the advantages of the GMAC Plan.

LIVES ON FARM IN OKLAHOMA

Happy Woman Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a household of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and timid.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 6, Box 396, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Other women who have to work hard and keep things going may find the road to better health as Mrs. Short did, through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ask your neighbor.

Epworth League

Epworth league gets its name from the name of the town in Lincolnshire, England, which was the birthplace of John Wesley, founder of Methodism. The Epworth league, Clevelanders should know, was born in this city in May, 1880, at a meeting of representatives of various young peoples' societies in what was then Central M. E. church.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

POULTRY FACTS

RAISING GEESE IS DEPENDENT ON FEED

The goose is a careful and constant mother, but her love for the water must be restrained until the goslings are a few weeks old, for many dangers, in the form of muskrats, snakes, turtles, etc., lurk at the water's edge.

Goslings do not require much extra feed, if they can get all the fresh and tender grass they want, and unless this can be supplied, breeding geese is not profitable. For the first few weeks some food must be given; this should never be corn meal, for nine-tenths of the mortality among the various kinds of domestic fowls can readily be traced to feeding corn meal. Cottage cheese, or dry curds of sour milk in which red pepper (cayenne) has been sprinkled, is a very good food, and a quantity of fresh onion-top, chopped up fine, is relished by them. Stale bread soaked in fresh milk makes an excellent food for all young birds, and the way they develop when fed liberally with it will astonish anyone who has not before tried it with his fowls.

The greater part of the management of geese consists in keeping the goslings free from dampness while they are still "downy" guarding them from the attack of rats, cats, weasels, and other of their enemies, in housing them well at night, and in giving them fresh grass run as often as possible. When they become fully feathered, they are abundantly able to take care of themselves; many breeders then let geese find their own food, which they can readily do on a large farm, until fattening time, or when the grass begins to get short, when they are brought up, and liberally and regularly fed with corn, still being permitted to have their liberty until a week or two before they are to be killed, when they are penned up and fed all they can eat.

Suggestions to Follow to Raise Strong Chicks

Raising early hatches of baby chicks has long been one of the most difficult problems of the practical poultryman. Recent findings in feed and feeding, however, explain some of the trouble, and help to make it possible to raise chicks hatched at any time of the year. Another edition of a bulletin of the state's agricultural experiment station has been published to supply the poultrymen of Wisconsin with the results of these important investigations.

The ration recommended by the investigators at the University of Wisconsin consists of 80 parts of yellow corn, 20 parts of wheat middlings, 5 parts of raw bone, 5 parts of grit (calcium carbonate), and 1 part of common salt, and skim milk used freely.

They warn poultry raisers against a very serious condition called "leg weakness," or rickets, common to young chicks hatched in northern climates during the winter. The most simple remedy, they find, is to expose the chicks to sunlight. The ration given above plus sunlight is a complete one for raising strong, healthy young chicks. It needs no further supplement, they declare.

Poultry Hints

A self-feeder for hens will prove profitable.

Have plenty of good fresh mash before the flocks at all times.

Chicks should not have coarse grains until they are nearly two weeks old.

Treat for lice if necessary, with powder on young chicks. Dipping is too severe.

Chilling of chicks often causes diarrhea, but bacillary white diarrhea is "something else again."

Follow some good method of feeding. Don't change your method after starting, at your neighbor's whim.

Feeding all the sour milk that little chicks will drink is oftentimes the best medicine and the best feed to provide for them.

Don't let chicks, poulters or even ducklings and goslings get wet and cold. They are seldom strong enough to stand that combination.

Many flocks of young stock are kept in the small brooder houses that were only large enough for them when they were small. This is a most serious mistake.

GRAFTING BIG AID TO GIRDLED TREES

Questions are asked in relation to the treatment of trees that have been girdled by mice or rabbits. When the damage is done we must do the best we can to repair it. If the tree is vigorous and a good variety, it may be saved by bridge grafting. This means that twigs from the terminal branches are cut longer than the wound and then slipped under the living bark above and below the wound. These will connect the two parts again and the tree will live. The twigs should be wood that is one year old, that is, the wood that grew last year.

The ends are cut tapering on the side that is to be next to the tree. The taper should be an inch or more in length. The bark is lifted at top and bottom and the scion (twig properly cut) slipped under the top and bottom and held in place with a small brad. The scions should be a little longer so the bend will assist in holding them in place. This is shown in the figure.

From three to seven of these should be put in at different places around the Bridge Grafting—A, wound scraped clean to healthy bark at top and bottom. B, two scions in place. C, method of cutting bevel on top (same for bottom) of scion, and a small brad to hold scion in place.

tree. After a few weeks they will become fast and the channel for the elaborated food from the leaves can pass down to the roots. The graft should be put in place before buds start. The wounded area should be cleaned off and covered with grafting wax to keep outside material from getting into the wood and to keep it from drying too much.

If a tree is only partially girdled, it may not be necessary to put in so many scions. It is better, however, to put them in where the bark is entirely gone.

Grafting wax may be made at home by melting together four parts resin, two parts beeswax, and one part tallow. This may be spread over the wounds with a brush while hot.

Protect Young Trees in Orchard When Harrowing

Young trees can be greatly damaged by chain traces and singletree ends when plowing or harrowing a young orchard.

There will be no danger of such injuries if a piece of old inner tube about three feet long is slipped over each outside trace. When the trace chain is hitched to the singletree the tube should be slipped over the end of the singletree and tied, then the tube should be slightly stretched and tied securely to the trace with binding twine. If inner tubes are not handy, the traces may be wrapped with burlap or other cloth. It takes but a few moments to do this, and the team can then work right up to the trees without even scratching them.

Further protection may be given the trees when harrowing if a piece of old automobile tire is bound onto the corner of each outside runner of the harrow.

Horticultural Hints

Mature grape vines should be pruned back to about forty buds.

Plenty of barnyard manure is the most satisfactory manure for raspberries.

Spraying, to be effective, must be done with the right materials, at the right time, and in the right way.

Forestry is a problem of today. It means life and prosperity to the children of tomorrow and those of many tomorrows.

To spray a tree properly, a man must understand why he is spraying it, what constitutes good work, and the work of insects and other pests.

Fathers and Mothers

Arthur Somers Roche, the novelist, was discussing at Palm Beach Rebecca West's recent diatribe on the selfishness of fathers.

"If fathers love their children too little," he said, "mothers love them too much. A mother is apt to love her child so extravagantly that she'll sacrifice anything for it—even her husband."

"One mother said to another: 'What a naughty little boy Tommy is! Doesn't he know better than to keep striking you over the head with that heavy stick?' 'Don't blame him,' said the second mother. 'Don't blame the little angel. He's only doing, bless his heart, what he sees his father do every day.'"

American Edibles

Tuckahoe is a name applied by the Algonquin Indians to many roundish roots. Specifically it included the golden club and the arrow arum, both having fleshy rootstocks, acid when fresh, but rendered edible by cooking and abounding in starch. Another highly prized tuckahoe is a subterranean fungus found in the southern states. It is not unlike a coconut. It is also known as Indian bread or Indian loaf.

GREGORY CHURCH NOTES

Milton W. Dressel, Pastor

"Mid the darkest scenes of life

God is near!

In the turmoil and the strife

God is near!

Though the dearest friend depart—

God is near!

He can heal the broken heart—

God is near!

Go and tell it far and wide—

God is near!

Dry the tears on every side—

God is near!

Take it to the darkest soul,

Let the tidings onward roll,

It will comfort and console—

God is near!"

O. J. Smith.

Friend, join with us in worshipping a God who is near. At the 10:30 hour the pastor will preach on the subject "Fallen Comrades".

COUNTY HAY DAY

In order that the best methods of handling the hay crop may be seen, a regular Hay Day will be held in the County on Tuesday, June 15th. A suitable farm will be selected for the demonstration later.

All Companies manufacturing Haying Equipment Machinery expect to have their display material on the grounds and some of it will be used in the hay-making.

The process to be demonstrated will be the cutting of the hay on one day and have it in such condition the next day that it can be put in the barn. A pot-luck dinner is being arranged for at noon and will be followed by talks on alfalfa and other interesting topics.
Everyone interested in alfalfa growing should make a special effort to attend this meeting. A more detailed program will be published later.

"EXCUSE ME" BELONGS ON YOUR "MUST" LIST

No one will want to miss "Excuse
Me," Rupert Hughes' new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which opens at the opera house May 30, for it is one of the funniest pictures of the season. Based on the author's famous stage farce, the film reveals a continuous procession of fantastic situations on a Pullman car journey across the continent that keep the audience in a roar of laughter.

Norma Shearer and Conrad Nagel appear to fine advantage in the hero and heroine roles, while Renee Adoree,
Walter Hiers, John Boles, Bert Roach,
William V. Mong Edith Yorke and Eugene Cameron are important cogs in the wheels of this train of comedy.

Alf Goulding was the director and John Boyle the photographer.

THE COUGH THAT CLINGS

A cough is a kindly warning which nature gives of a dangerous irritation of the air passages.

Few people neglect the warning, but many are unfortunate in the selection of a remedy.

Beware of the cough that does not submit to ordinary cough remedies. In such cases---

PROGRESSIVE ESTHONIA

Estonian Nurses and Patients at Typhus Hospital in Narva.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

ESTHONIA, with which the United States has been negotiating a commercial treaty, should be of especial interest to Americans. Not only is it one of the youngest republics, but its formation marked the emergence to sudden independence of a people who, through 700 years of crushing bondage, kept alive their dream of freedom and were ready to put it into realization when the opportunity came.

World attention has been focused so closely upon storm centers of central and southern Europe that comparatively little has been heard of the new nations carved from Russia along the Baltic sea. But with the gradual resumption of commerce between Russia and the outside world Estonia and its neighbors, Latvia and Lithuania, will assume a more important aspect, either as barriers or as gateways to interior Russia. From the eighties of the last century until the World war period Estonia bore the double yoke of czarist laws administered by German officials.

One must go far back into Estonian history to trace the origin of this duplicate despotism. Like the Finns, to whom they are closely related, the Estonians or Esths, a race numbering a million and a quarter people, retain many characteristics which bespeak their Mongolian origin. They are long-armed and short-legged, have broad faces, and are probably descended from the middle of the last century. The Hunnic people of the Baltic whose pirate outrages enkindled the wrath of Danish kings as early as the Twelfth century. In 1194 and 1196 Canute VI sent a strong expedition against them, and forced a number of the lawless bands to accept Christianity and allow themselves to be baptized. Hardly had the warlike proselyters left the Estonian shores, however, when the inhabitants reverted to barbarism and their heathen practices.

Ruled by Teutonic Knights.
A quarter of a century later Waldemar II was more successful. He subjugated the northern coastal region and brought the inhabitants under submission to the Danish crown. It was never a willing submission, however, and for more than a hundred years the inhabitants gave their conquerors endless trouble until in 1343 Waldemar IV decided that they were "not worth the bother," so he sold his interest in the rebels and in their land to the Brethren of the Sword. The latter, unable to subdue the Esths, called on the Teutonic knights who were gradually spreading their net of power northward from Teutonic lands. They went in the role of Christian crusaders and remained more than six centuries as overlords and masters. The lot of the Estonians became that of serfs.

In the Sixteenth century both the nobles (they came to be called "Balt barons") and the fortified towns of Estonia placed themselves under the protection of the Swedish crown, but they were forced to acknowledge a new master after Peter the Great's successful wars against Charles XII. Progressive in Agriculture.

Before the World war Estonia had become one of the most progressive regions, agriculturally, in Russia. Though situated in northern Europe, the country is tempered by the far-faring Gulf stream. Another thing of American origin—the potato—has made its deep mark on Estonia, and it has even been called flippantly, "the Potato republic."

Russia was reluctant to have Estonia set up housekeeping on its own account. The country, about as large as New Hampshire and Vermont combined, blocks a considerable section of western Russia, whereas it formed before a natural outlet for the larger country. The Estonian railways have already played an important part in moving produce to and from Russia, and if conditions become stabilized in the latter country, Estonia should regularly collect a tidy sum as a transit agent.

Since the Estonians are such lovers of liberty, yet had been so downtrodden by the "Balt barons" until almost the end of the World war, violent readjustments were inevitable. First came the Russian revolution. The Estonians demanded and were given home rule. Then followed the Bolshevik coup; a Bolshevik invasion, which was fought back; a German invasion; more fighting with the Bolsheviks; and finally the establishment, with Finnish and British assistance, of an independent state. The production is holding its own.

Reval the Chief City.
Reval, known to the Estonians as Tallin, is Estonia's greatest port and city. It has existed for 700 years. With Helsingfors across the gulf, it formed tsarist Russia's gateway and first line of naval defense to Petrograd; but to Estonia, its commercial possibilities seem brightest.

As first seen from shipboard, Reval's skyline is an epitome of the forces that have been at work upon Estonia. On a hill which rises above the town is a citadel wall reminiscent of the Germans who took the country by the sword. On this height, too, are the homes of many of the Balt nobles who have descended from the German invaders. From the same hill a clump of Gothic steeples pierces the sky, recalling the Swedish invasion and the Lutheran religion, which most of the Estonians profess. Within the circle of sharp spires are the queerly shaped, gilded domes of an orthodox Russian church, speaking of the efforts at Russification which never bore much fruit. In the lower town are the homes of the Estonians—the stratum from which the people have literally risen to take over the affairs of their country.

In addition to its agricultural activities, Estonia has numerous industrial possibilities. Already some of its waterpower is harnessed, and at Narva, on the Russian border, is one of the largest cotton mills in the world. Much of the land is still covered by forests, and the timber and wood-pulp industries are important. Millions of tons of oil shale exist in the country.

Michigan Happenings

Announcement has been made that Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Kellogg have deeded their lakeside estate on the north side of Gull Lake in the city of Battle Creek, together with a $300,000 endowment, placed in a trust fund to care for its perpetual maintenance. Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg retain a lifetime lease. They will, however, provide special occasions when the property shall be open to the public and a $25,000 pipe organ has been so arranged in the 18-room house that it may be used for lawn recitals.

The Pere Marquette Railway has been made defendant in a suit for $2,500 brought in the St. Clair County Circuit Court by Edward P. Gibbons for damage alleged done to his farm property, north of Blaine, in April, 1925. According to Gibbons' declaration and to testimony given before Judge Law, sparks from a locomotive set fire to hay on the railroad right-of-way, the flames being communicated to hay on the Gibbons' farm. The farmhouses and barns burned to the ground.

In the presence of 16 of the oldest living alumni, 2,300 students and presidents of other Michigan colleges and normal schools, the 69th anniversary of the founding of Michigan's state college was celebrated in the college gym May 13. Charles W. Garfield, Grand Rapids, a graduate of the class of 1870, spoke on "looking both ways," telling of the early days when the college was little more than three buildings set in a tract of burned out land, with 62 students.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the large plant of the American Vitriol Products Co. at Jackson the night of May 12, with a loss of approximately $200,000, according to estimates of officials of the company. Firemen were endangered as was traffic on the Grand Rapids division of the New York Central railroad when the west wall of the building fell over the main line tracks.

About 700 crippled children were examined at the clinic sponsored by the Monroe Rotary club, held May 12 at the Masonic Temple. The work was done by Dr. Carl G. Bagley, orthopedic surgeon at the University hospital at Ann Arbor. He was assisted by physicians of Monroe and county, and Hiss Albert Chase, secretary of the society for crippled children.

A parade led by the blossom queen to be selected by popular vote will open the annual three-day blossom festival of the Grand Traverse cherry region to be conducted at Traverse City beginning May 28. One hundred bands and nearly 2,000 children are expected to participate in the parade. Jay P. Smith is chairman.

A 1,700 pound harrow fell over his body, Raymond Cochran, small son of Ezra Cochran, farmer, is not believed to have been injured fatally. The boy fell under the machine which had to be driven completely over his body before he could be released. Twelve stitches were taken in closing a wound on his head.

Sitting on a railroad track with his head in his hand probably will cost James Moran, of Flint, 45 years old, his life. He was removed to a hospital where attendants said he had little chance to recover. The fact that Moran was sitting on the track near a curve prevented the engineer seeing him in time to stop the train.

In order to test the city ordinance that forbids the maintenance of junk yards within residential areas, City Manager Leon A. Sears of Albion, has brought complaint against Stanley Demske, who has a junk business at 509 Austin avenue. Demske asked for a hearing and he was released without bail.

Rammed by the tongue of a wagon when a team of horses she was holding became frightened and ran away, Mrs. Nick Oleias, 26 years old, mother of six children, is in the Memorial Hospital at Albion, believed to be fatally injured. The accident occurred while her husband was loading hogs.

Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner, has instructed county road commissioners that all one-half load restrictions on roads in lower Michigan have been removed and that all motor vehicles on all roads in the lower peninsula be permitted the full legal load.

At the governor's instance, the state administrative board has authorized the building of a new $90,000 structure to house agricultural displays on the state fair grounds. The state auditor's records show that there is only about $21,000 in the fund out of which the new building expense is to be met and that no additional monies for the fund are in sight until the next fiscal year appropriation, which is principally for state fair premiums, is received, unless the operation of the fair this fall shows a profit.

Two members of the senior literary class and a junior literary student at the University of Michigan have had their college careers curtailed as the result of an expulsion order passed by the university committee on discipline. The official bulletin in the Michigan Daily states that expulsion followed "long continued conduct of a nature clearly detrimental to the welfare of the student body and to the best interests of the University of Michigan, as a whole."

Prof. O. E. Reed, head of the dairy department at Michigan State College has been appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for a meeting of the various Michigan organizations which are interested in the National Dairy Show to be held in Detroit, October 6 to 13. The experiments being carried on by the dairy department in finding the necessary rations for the dairy cow will be presented at the Detroit show, Prof. Reed declared.

Richard Carter, 20 years old, of Holly, has been sentenced by Judge James S. Parker in the Genesee County Circuit court to serve six months to five years in the Michigan State prison at Jackson, for the death of Marjorie Reidel, 6 years old, of Fenton, who was struck and killed by an automobile driven by Carter as she left a Fenton school last November. Carter was found guilty by a jury on a charge of negligent homicide.

Serious injury to herself and her son and the wrecking of her new automobile resulted from Mrs. Isaac Hoebeke's attempt to learn to drive in Kalamazoo. Losing control of the car as it swerved to the side of the street, Mrs. Hoebeke stepped on the accelerator, in the belief that she was applying the brakes and the machine crashed into a telephone pole which snapped off at the base and fell across the automobile.

M. E. Cunningham, 48 years old, electrician, employed by the Tecumseh Electric company, was electrocuted while working on a line northeast of there. He had been in the employ of the company for six months before that time. He was station lineman for the Western Union Telegraph company there. He was working alone. The body was found by persons passing by in an automobile.

Plans to develop Lake Harbor, a 217-acre tract on Lake Michigan, two miles south of Muskegon, have been announced by Paul Rader, noted Chicago evangelist, who recently completed the purchase of the tract. The consideration is understood to have been around $250,000. Rader terms Lake Harbor one of the beauty spots of the nation, and plans to develop it fully.

Dr. Purviss Willson, 56 years old, prominent Owosso physician, is dead at his home, a martyr to his profession. During an epidemic of influenza two years ago Dr. Willson worked day and night, finally contracting the contagion. After apparently recovering he refused to take a needed rest and was again stricken. Spinal trouble developed and he had been ill since.

Although an airplane in which they were riding took a 500-foot nose dive, burying its nose in 18 inches of sand Harry and Roy Trepanir, brothers, escaped death at Ludington. Roy was taking his first flying lesson. The men were unconscious when taken from the wreckage of the plane but were quickly revived and are not believed to have been seriously injured.

The cost of a new survey of the land involved is the cause of further dispute in the Michigan Wisconsin boundary case. Wisconsin urges that the expense be borne equally by the two states. Attorney-General Daugherty states, however, that inasmuch as Wisconsin has won, it is up to her to survey her own territory and stand the whole expense.

The first public health clinic in Birmingham opened May 11, at the Birmingham community house, under auspices of the Oakland county branch of the Tuberculosis association and the Birmingham Civic league. Dr. A. W. Newitt, health officer, and Dr. A. B. Wickham, of Detroit, were in charge.

Tired, Lame, Achy?

Are you dragging around with a constant backache? Feel weak, worn and achy; so miserable you can't enjoy a moment's comfort? How about your kidneys? Well kidneys filter off body poisons. But when the kidneys slow up, poisons accumulate and upset the system. Backache is apt to follow, with sharp pains, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities. Don't delay! If you suspect faulty kidney action, use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands—are recommended the world over. Ask your neighbor!

A Michigan Case

Mrs. Jos. Bal, 913 Cedar Ave., Iron Mountain, Mich., says: "I had a dull ache through the small of my back and when I stooped, sharp twinges caught me across my kidneys. My kidneys were disordered, too. I used Doan's Pills and they rid me of all the trouble."

Woman's "Second Leisure"

There comes a time in most women's lives when the children are grown that there is a let-down in life's responsibilities. That time I call the "second leisure." It is a blessing for such women to have an interest in something outside their home. It keeps them young. And their energies which have been heretofore employed in rearing a family, if they are harnessed, can be made of infinite use to the world and joy to themselves.—Congresswoman Kahn of California.

It doesn't necessarily mean that a girl can accomplish anything just because she is accomplished.

Says He Felt Drunk

Most of the Time
Brooklyn, Mr. Fred G. Marquart writes:—"I felt drunk most of the time. My head was dizzy. I couldn't think clearly. One day I dropped a coin and when I stooped to get it I got so dizzy I almost fell. I later found out that the cause of this condition was constipation. This was overcome by a short course of Carter's Little Liver Pills. My appetite has doubled, and my dizziness has entirely left me." Carter's Little Liver Pills move the bowels and relieve the system of its poisonous matter. Druggists, 25 & 75c red packages.

"To set the face in the right direction, and then simply travel on, unimpaired and never discouraged by frequent relapses by the way, is the secret of all human achievement."

EMERGENCY DISHES

One of the earmarks of a good housekeeper is to be mistress of any occasion. A well supplied emergency shelf or a convenient corner grocery, will insure her serenity, even with a carload of friends arriving unexpectedly within an hour of meal time.

The hostess who urges her guests to remain to a meal which she is wildly planning out of the air, will lack the ring of true sincerity, no matter how carefully put.

The woman who lives five miles from a lemon must supply herself with the necessary things. Each household has special tastes, so no list of foods for the emergency shelf will fit all conditions; however, a few staples such as the following will be needed: Canned salmon, tuna, sardines—some home canned chicken will be a real treat to your city friends—other meats, if you live on a farm, can be canned when the meat is plentiful, and kept for occasions when there is little.

With coconut, a box of marshmallows, a bottle of olives and maraschino cherries one may dress up an otherwise plain dish.

An omelet is a most satisfying dish and one which the most inexperienced cook can make with a little practice. A salad of fresh vegetables with some of the good salad dressing that one always keeps on hand will, with bread in some form, and a light dessert, make a good meal.

Peach Mallows.—Fill halves of canned peaches with marshmallows. Take a cupful of peach juice, add a teaspoonful of cornstarch and the yolk of an egg. Cook, and when cool, flavor with almond and pour over the peaches in sherbet cups.

English Chutney.—This is a favorite conserve with our English cousins. Chop and cook together twelve apples (cores but not skins removed), two green peppers, one onion, one cupful of raisins, one cupful of sugar, one pint of vinegar, the juice of a lemon, one-half tablespoonful each of salt and ginger. Seal like jelly, or put into glass cans.

Dishes From Grains.

The coarser foods are quite necessary in our diet and should be used freely in all seasons of the year.

Oatmeal Tomato Soup.—Take one-half of a can of tomatoes, one-third of a cupful of oatmeal, two cupfuls of water, one tablespoonful of sugar, one-half of a small onion, pepper and salt to taste, a bit of bay leaf, and two tablespoonfuls of peanut butter. Cook one hour, rub through a sieve, add such seasonings as are needed and serve.

Hominy Gems.—Pour one cupful of scalded milk over one-half cupful of corn meal, add one-fourth of a cupful of cooked hominy, a tablespoonful of sugar, and the same of shortening; mix well, cool, add the beaten yolk of an egg and the stiffly beaten white. Sift in one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a little salt; beat well and bake in hot buttered gem pans.

Corn Flour Griddle Cakes.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of sour milk, the same of corn flour, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, and one well-beaten egg. Beat well and fry on a hot griddle.

Scotch Oat Crackers.—Put two cupfuls of rolled oats through the meat grinder, add one-fourth of a cupful each of milk and molasses, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of shortening, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of soda and one-fourth of a cupful of raisins or nuts cut into bits. Mix well, roll very thin and cut into fancy shapes. Bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Hominy and Pecan Croquettes.—Boil one-half cupful of hominy with one-half teaspoonful of salt in two cupfuls of boiling water for five minutes, then place in a double boiler for two hours' slow cooking. Add two tablespoonfuls of shortening, one-half cupful of chopped pecans and a teaspoonful of scraped onion. Cool and shape into cylinders. Beat one egg lightly, add two tablespoonfuls of cold water, roll in crumbs and egg, then in crumbs again, and fry in deep fat. This recipe makes one dozen croquettes.

Etymological Note

There has been some discussion of how the name Miami originated. One version is that a Seminole buck told his ducky sweet back in 1880 that she was standing on land that would some day sell for $40,000 a front foot, and her reply was: "My, am I!"—Florida Times-Union.

Forty-Mile Nose

Vultures have the highest developed sense of smell of most all birds. They will scent carrion for 40 miles. It is said. In the country, where a vulture has not been seen for months maybe, a dead carcass of a hog or a calf sometimes will bring a 100 to the spot.

To Cut Marshmallows

To prevent marshmallows from sticking to your scissors when cutting them in small pieces, dip the scissors in ice water and use them without drying. The work may be done very rapidly, as the marshmallows do not stick to the scissors.

Voltaire's Name Aroust

Voltaire was not the real name of the great French writer. His name was Francois Marie Aroust. The exact origin of the name "Voltaire" is not known, though many explanations are given by students of the writer.

Breaking Up Ugly Space

An ugly wall space can be broken up by using a wall bracket which holds one, two or three vases. These brackets fit in especially well in small corners where it is impossible to hang a panel or picture.

Samoans Still Fear

Old Spirits of Evil

The Samoan's love for ceremony, especially dignified ceremony, and for singing, has helped much in making him a church member and regular service attendant. But even with his acceptance of Christianity he still, in many cases, keeps a weather eye open for the ancient alu (devil) that had the fear and respect of his ancestors. The alu may be a back number, but you never can tell says the Dearborn Independent.

There was the young fellow, for instance, who showed his irreverence a couple of years ago by walking across an old chief's grave. His family and every one else warned him about the alu, did they not? Still he walked on the grave. A few days later he had a bad cold. Shortly after he was dead. Quick tuberculosis.

How much better it is for a Christian or any one to respect ancient things and thus not arouse the wrath of the alu on guard! So the Samoan gives the alu a wide berth, hoping his slumbers among the holy places he guards will be undisturbed so long that they will become permanent.

Royal Stubbornness

George III disliked Franklin's political opinions and was anxious to discredit his scientific discoveries as well, says John O'London's Weekly. He, therefore, ordered the lightning conductors on Kew palace to have blunt instead of pointed ends. When he asked Sir John Pringle, then president of the Royal society, what he thought of the change, Sir John Pringle told him plainly that "the laws of nature are not changeable at the royal pleasure." This annoyed his majesty so much that he suggested Sir John had better resign his presidency of the royal society. He did so, and the breach between them was never healed. Sides were taken over the quarrel, the court naturally supporting the king, while the wits sympathized with Sir John.

SHOWING HIS STUFF

Base ball fans have the habit of disagreeing on the merits of different players, but local followers of the national sport are entirely unanimous in pulling hard for Charlie Gehringer, the Livingston county youth, whose debut in fast company is now showing him to be of the proper calibre to strengthen the Tigers in the present pennant race.

That he is really making good seems certain, as the Free Press, which has heretofore been reluctant to give him desirable publicity, has at last seen something good in his playing. The May 24th issue says:

"Gehringer's improvement stands out over that of any of his mates. The Fowlerville, Michigan boy was plainly a bundle of nerves when the White Sox were playing here and he kicked in with a couple of glaring and costly errors. Sunday he handled himself around the keystone sack like a seasoned veteran and helped himself to a couple of hits."

R. E. BARRON, Howell

The flesh of the ostrich is used for food to a limited extent in the sections of the world where the ostrich is bred. It is used fairly frequently by the Arabs, who regard it as most wholesome and palatable. The value of the feathers, however, makes it improbable that the flesh of the ostrich will ever be used to any considerable extent.

Beasts That Blunder

People are always talking of the senses of beasts and birds. Yet instinct often errs. You would certainly think that instinct would warn an animal against poison. Yet many horses and cattle are killed by eating yew, saffron, and other plants, while in America the loco-weed is even more harmful.—London Mail.

STATE OF MICHIGAN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF LIVINGSTON IN CHANCERY

George E. Pless and Valora E. Pless,
Plaintiffs,

vs.
Mansing Hathaway and Nehemiah Boutwell and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, Defendants.

Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Livingston in Chancery at Howell, Michigan, on the 6th day of May 1926.

It appearing from the sworn bill of complaint as filed in said cause, that the plaintiffs have not been able after diligent search and inquiry to ascertain whether the said defendants are alive or dead, or where they may reside if living or if they have any personal representatives or heirs, living or where they or any of them may reside, or whether the title, interest, claim, lien or possible right of these defendants have been assigned to any other person or persons, or whether such title, interest, claim, lien or possible right has been disposed of by will by the said defendants.

And it further appearing that the plaintiffs do not know and have not been able after diligent search and inquiry to ascertain the names of the persons who are included as defendants without being named.

Upon motion, therefore, of Don W. Van Winkle, Attorney for plaintiffs, it is ordered that the above named defendants and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns cause their appearance to be entered herein within three months from the date hereof and that in default thereof said bill be taken as confessed by said defendants and each and all of them.

It is further ordered that the plaintiffs cause this order to be published within forty days in the Pinckney Dispatch a newspaper printed, published and circulating in said County, once in each week for at least six successive weeks.
