BARNARD'S

OBITUARY

Ella Briggs, daughter of Mr and Mrs Hiram Briggs, was born in Howell, Mich., November 9 1872, and departed this life June 6 1892, after an illness of six months at the age of 53 years, 6 months and 27 days.

In her early teens she moved with her parents to Pinckney. Here she lived until March 16, 1892 when she was united in marriage to Wm. Docking, also of Pinckney.

Her entire married life has been spent on farms in this vicinity.

To this union 3 children were born: Mrs Wm Allen of Howell, A. Z. and Olah at home, all of whom with her husband are left to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother. She is also survived by her aged mother, Mrs Eliza Briggs of Howell and one grandson, and a host of relatives and friends.

She will be greatly missed by many, for one of her greatest pleasures was helping others in time of need to make their burdens lighter, even at the sacrifice of her own strength.

The funeral services were held at the family home Tuesday, June 8, Rev. Orr of Howell Presbyterian church officiating.

Interment was in the Pinckney cemetery.

FITZIMMONS—JEFFREYS

Saturday, June 12th, at St. John's church, Jackson, Miss Bessie Fitzimmons of Jackson and William Jeffreys of Pinckney were united in marriage.

Both bride and groom are well known, here, Mr and Mrs John Fitzimmons and Mr and Mrs John Jeffreys being their parents.

Both attended the Pinckney schools and the bride has been filling a responsible position with the Consumers Power Co.

They intend to make their home in Jackson after the wedding trip.

MARTIN—BORTZ

The spacious farm home of Mr and Mrs John R Martin of Pinckney was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, June 9, when their daughter, Beulah S. was united in marriage to Fredrick C. Bortz of Ypsilanti.

At 8:30 Mrs Glen Dusibier sang "For You Alone," and "I Love You Truly," after which Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by Mrs. Leonard Herman of Carleton, and the bridal party was lead to the altar by the ringbearer, Little Doris Longwish.

The bride was attended by Miss Pauline Phillips and the groom by Emory Mulholland, Rev. Hugo Fenker of Ypsilanti, assisted by Rev Martin Phillips of Bridgewater, using the double ring service, pronounced them man and wife.

The bride was attired in white satin crepe, trimmed with rhinestones and pearls, and an embroidered veil gathered in a pearl trimmed headpiece and carried a shower bouquet of roses and baby's breath. The groom wore navy blue.

The bridesmaid, cousin of the groom, was dressed in peach colored georgette and carried a corsage of pink roses. The best man, cousin of the bride, wore blue.

Congratulations were received amid showers of rice, after which a sumptuous three-course luncheon was served by the older girls of the school at which the bride has taught for the past four years.

Plans for the capture of the bride was allayed by the young couple as they spent the entire evening at home until the departure of the guests, after which they left for Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

The ceremony took place under an electric lighted arch of pink and white embanked with palms and ivy.

The bride will be remembered as a graduate of Pinckney High School, also of M S N C of Ypsilanti, as well as having taught in Livingston, Oakland and Wayne counties.

The groom has held for some time a responsible position with the D J C.

Many beautiful gifts showed the esteem in which the young couple are held in the communities where they have lived.

They will be at home in Ypsilanti to their friends after July 1.

WALTER CAMP: "Father of Football"

E. K. Hall, Chairman Memorial Committee

Walter Camp at His Last Game

Proposed Walter Camp Memorial

DID you read a brief news item which recently appeared in the press throughout the country announcing plans for the erection of a national memorial to the late Walter Camp, known wherever the game is played as the "Father of American Football"?

Unless you know the story of Walter Camp and the part he played in making football what it is today, and in addition the story of his ups and downs during the many years he had charge of athletics at Yale—unless you have this background you won't appreciate fully the significance of this honor and the climax it produces in a drama of football politics.

Years ago, long before college football profits ran into seven figures, Walter Camp, then known as the "Caesar of Football" at Yale, stood before a gathering of that university's athletic heads and announced that he had contrived to save $135,000 out of football receipts.

Astounded by the vastness of this sum, they were further astounded by Mr. Camp's ambitious plans for a great football arena, the Yale Bowl, a new boathouse fully equipped, and a new athletic field.

Questions immediately formed in the minds of his listeners. Whence this secret fund? Where did it come from, and why? There was the customary investigation. He might have withstood the attack, but the investigation disclosed that Camp, who was then a member of the faculty, had received some compensation for his services.

No Yale coach had ever taken pay for his services. Camp had not been paid for coaching, but he had received a modest sum, about one-fifth or less even than the remuneration of a present-day coach, for his services as treasurer and manager of Yale athletics and his job on the faculty.

But they were after Camp. It was pointed out that he had written books and articles for magazines and newspapers. He had turned his knowledge of football into money. The fact that several hundred other Yale men were receiving money by this time for coaching and writing on football was overlooked.

In 1910, when Fred Daly was captain and Ted Coy was field coach, the break came. Sharing the fate that ungrateful republics are pleased to bestow, Walter Camp and his wizardry, which for many years had not only kept Yale football supreme, but also dominated the entire football world, was deposited forever as adviser and director of the sport at Yale.

At the time of Camp's death on March 14, 1925, the New Haven correspondent of the Boston Globe, in writing a resume of the football wizard's career, pointed out that two years after Camp left Yale that university was paying Yale men twice as much for coaching as Camp ever received, and that in addition Yale football was on that "sure and certain downgrade course it pursued until the past two seasons."

Today Yale alumni and nearly 500 American colleges and universities are raising a fund of $300,000 for a memorial to take the form of a monumental gateway to the Yale athletic fields at New Haven. Carved in stone over the arched entrance will be an inscription "Walter Camp Fields." Upon bronze tablets set into the walls flanking the arch will appear by states the names of all universities, colleges and prep schools which helped in making possible this memorial to perhaps the foremost exponent of popular athletics in American history.

Represented on the committee in charge are such nationally-known figures in the world of sport as E. K. Hall of Dartmouth, chairman, who for many years headed the football rules committee; Alonzo A. Stagg, University of Chicago, and Robert C. Zuppke, University of Illinois.

Plans for the memorial were designed by a Yale man, John W. Cross, 1900, and have been approved by the Yale corporation. The National Collegiate Athletic association is functioning the campaign for funds among the colleges of the country, and early success in the project of recognition for the "Father of American Football" is assured.

"Walter Camp took a game that was so crude that it could not possibly be recognized as the predecessor of modern football and made it over into a game of strategy, scientifically balanced as between offense and defense," commented Albert Barclay, the New Haven correspondent of the Boston Globe, in reviewing Camp's life. "Into it he put new ideas from his resourceful mind, all the time careful ly and shrewdly keeping to himself the whys and wherefores of these ideas.

"For ten years he stood alone as creator and originator of modern football, and Yale triumphed. Deland conceived the flying wedge. Camp hurled a single sturdy guard into it, broke it, and sent a half-back through the opening to tackle the runner. He had solved the defense before the offense ever got under way.

"Away back in the early '90s, Camp, who was a good business man, conceived the idea that football, which attracted the public, could and should pay the way for other college sports, that the receipts and disbursements of Yale sports should be pooled, and that by running college sports on a business basis they could be made to pay, and that the constant passing of the hat for money to run sports among both undergraduates and graduates should be abolished.

"The idea was too revolutionary to spring on the happy-go-lucky college world. Hence Camp created at Yale the Yale Field association. He became its head and treasurer. He husbanded its funds, and for fifteen years no one, except a chosen few, knew that Yale athletics were making money.

"Then Camp began to unfold his plans, a great football arena, an up-to-date boathouse, and a new athletic field, and he told Yale men that he had saved $135,000 toward carrying out his plans."

"Balloon" Tires for Giant Aerial Liners

When "balloon" tires first began to make their appearance on the roads, much comment was excited by their size. But they are midgets compared with the huge rubber tires which are now being manufactured for use on the new giant aerial liners.

These tires are seven and a half feet in diameter, and weigh nearly two hundredweight each. They are of the "wired" type, and a breaking load of 18 tons on each bead can be withstood by their bead wires.

The inner tubes are about 38 pounds each in weight, whereas the ordinary inner tube of a light car tire only weighs about one pound and three-quarters. The wheels of the air liners to which they are to be fitted have hubs 20 inches long and weigh nearly a quarter of a ton apiece.

Swiss Alarmed at Peak's Subsidence

Mount Arlino, a 5,550-foot peak in Switzerland, is moving slightly, if observations recorded by the Swiss topographical bureau since 1888 can be relied on, says the Pathfinder Magazine. It is believed that the plateau on the summit has become dangerously undermined. Forty years ago the summit of the mountain was shifting horizontally at the rate of one inch a year. Since then it has gradually speeded up until it is now moving nearly four inches annually.

The mountain is also subsiding. During the first 14 months of observation it settled about an inch and a half a year, but during the last 12 months it has sunk six inches. Geologists say that when the underlying mass of rock gives way, which may be any time, the whole plateau will crash into the valley below.

Flying Is Subsidized

Despite the great fame of European flying routes, it is known that aviation abroad has not yet been brought to a profit-making status. With eyes on the future the governments allow the air lines subsidies. A prominent example cited is that of the Dutch "K. L. M." lines that, while popular, are making less than 50 per cent.

Wall Built to Last

Workmen excavating the site of the old Astor house, New York, were unable to tear down the brick and cement wall of two cisterns which had been sunk beneath the hotel to store rain water. A huge steam shovel could make no progress against the cisterns. Compressed air drills were necessary to tear the masonry apart.

SHOULD HUSBANDS DO HOUSE WORK?

How Mrs. Dyer Solved the Problem.

Mrs. Mildred Dyer was lucky. She had a good-natured husband who helped her with much of her housework. Because she was in ill health for five years, it was often necessary for him to do this. But it bothered Mrs. Dyer. She felt that he had to work hard enough anyway. The time he spent in doing her work was needed for his own. She determined to find the road to better health.

She writes: "I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is simply wonderful. My health is better than it has ever been. I am getting stronger and gaining in weight."

She has solved her problem and her household is happier. The Dyers live at Redlands, Calif., Route A, Box 133.

How often does your husband have to do your housework? No matter how willing he is, no woman feels comfortable about it. Perhaps you, too, will find better health through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Troglodytes of Cappadocia

Caves Near Udj Assaru.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

IT IS a curious paradox in the history of human migrations and human development that in that very land which historians and geographers characterize as "the cradle of civilization," there is to be found today a people whose mode of living is, in one of its basic principles, more primitive than that of the most benighted tribes of Africa or the South Pacific.

Residing within a stone's throw, metaphorically speaking, of the wonderful civilization which flourished on the banks of the Nile 6,000 years ago; of the mighty kingdoms of Assyria and Babylonia which arose in the valleys of the Euphrates and the Tigris, their power and splendor dazzling the world 2,000 years before the Christian era; and at the very threshold of ancient Greece, with its unrivaled culture and political advancement, the Troglodytes of Cappadocia still retain toward their fellow men an attitude of mind akin to that which obtained in the Stone Age, when there was no such thing as human society, but every man was his own law and the mortal enemy of his neighbor.

The only difference between the society of these Troglodytes and that of primitive man consists in this, that primitive man did not brook the presence of any other man, while here the isolation of the clan takes the place of the isolation of the individual.

The caves, cones, and cliff dwellings of the Cappadocian Troglodytes of both ancient and modern times are to be found in greatest number in the shadow of Asia Minor's loftiest peak, snow-clad Mt. Argaeus (called by the Turks Erjlis Dagh), an extinct volcano whose eruption in the dim past laid the foundations and supplied the material for these remarkable habitations, while the Halys river of the ancients (now known as Kizil Irmak) in succeeding centuries became their tireless architect.

The practice of living in caves, in cliffs, or in excavated cavities in the open plain is to be traced to a state of society which we of today have some difficulty in depicting to ourselves. And yet the central thought of the Troglodytic habit is the basic principle upon which ancient civilization was founded. That basic thought was absolute isolation.

Types of Troglodytes.

Several kinds of Troglodytes are still to be seen in various parts of Asia Minor. The most primitive type is to be found in Cilicia Trachela. They may be found in many places, but they are best seen in a pass in the Taurus mountains some ten miles north of Ermenek (Germanicopolis). The inhabitants of this valley, known as Bakluzan Dere, are cliff-dwellers of the secondary type—that is, they have done considerable work in the way of improving their abodes, whose entrances have been walled in with fences of stout masonry.

The entrances to their dwellings are high up in the almost perpendicular walls of the cliffs, and they are reached solely by means of long poles, which are light enough to be drawn up when the lord of the den and his family are safely housed. And they really are safe from intrusion, for it would require a host to force an entrance against the will of the family.

This very method of reaching the entrance by means of a pole makes it imperative for all the members of the several families of these cliff-dwelling Troglodytes to be strong and vigorous persons, for the sick, the aged, and the infirm can neither enter nor leave the dwelling, nor can they be brought in nor taken out by others, unless they be strapped to the back of a man, who would need to be not only strong, but very active as well.

Though the cliffs of the Bakluzan Dere are thickly studded with dwellings that give evidence of being inhabited by a large number of people, the infrequent traveler does not get a glimpse of any of them, nor does he often find a doorway open.

Troglodytes, or semi-Troglodytes, of a ruder but less inhospitable type may be seen in many places in Lycaonia.

At Seral, north of Karaman, a stratum of rock lies upon a bed of clay, which, of course, may be excavated ad infinitum without very great labor, and the formation is made, as it were, for the Troglodytes. But the people who inhabit these abodes are not true Troglodytes, since they use them only during the long summer season.

The life there is most crude, and the cavities in the ground show no signs of having been improved by man. It is certain that the primitive Troglodytes lived in just such dwellings; but for all that, these people are not primitive at heart, for they have made no attempt to secure isolation.

The Greeks have left us accounts of engrossing interest concerning the Troglodytes of antiquity.

Herodotus' account of "the Ethiopians who dwell in holes" informs us that, "of all the nations of whom any account has reached my ears they are by far the swiftest of foot. They feed on serpents, lizards, and other similar reptiles. Their language is unlike that of any other people; it sounds like the screeching of bats." These Troglodytes have been identified with the Tibboos of Pezzan.

Xenophon gives us a delightful picture of the Troglodytes of Armenia, who have remained so unchanged throughout the centuries that his description might be used of them at this present moment.

In Pumice Stone Cones.

Mount Argaeus, now an extinct volcano, though it was still smouldering in the time of Strabo, is situated almost in the center of the peninsula of Asia Minor. The material ejected by this volcano during the many ages when it was active covers an immense area and consists of a vast bed of pumice stone or tufa of unknown depth, on top of which there flowed a sheet of lava which varies in depth from four to ten or twenty feet.

The territory thus affected by the eruptions of Mount Argaeus extends from the southwest to the northwest of the mountain for a distance of between thirty and forty miles, covering the entire region between Injesu, Martchan, Urgub, Udj Assaru, Nev Shehir, and Tatlar on the west and extending to Soghanlu Dere (valley) on the south, while on the north and northwest it extends far to the north of the Kizil Irmak (Halys), which has been flowing across the bed of pumice stone from remote geological times.

The pumice stone is soft. It is reported that one man excavated a chamber 25 feet long, 13 feet broad, and 10 feet high within the space of 30 days.

Paul Lukas, who traveled in Asia Minor at the behest of Louis XIV, was the first European to visit this region, but his visit was very hurried, and, strange as it may seem, he thought that these cones were bulldged by man, and the stories he told about the wonders he saw were not believed by anyone.

And yet Lukas was right, except in supposing that the cones were constructed by man, if indeed he did actually entertain such a belief. As a matter of fact, there are more than 50,000 cones in the field covered by this formation.

The cones of Cappadocia were characteristic features of the country in the third millennium before Christ. History and archeology cannot trace them further, because, as yet, nothing is known about periods in Asia Minor more remote than that; but the spad and the archeologist may soon reveal that history to a waiting world.

Wyoming Great Game State

Wyoming this year has shown one of the greatest increases in game of any state in the nation. A census of game in the state taken by the fish and game commissioners shows at the present time 89,770 elk, 26,180 deer, 19,900 antelope, 4,275 moose, 2,830 mountain sheep and more than 2,000 bears. The annual increase in elk is so great that the game commissioner says 3,000 more bull elk should be killed during the hunting season of 1928 than were slain last year.

PAVEMENT ASSURED

The petition for paving Main street from Dexter Road to the curve in the west end has been presented to the many property owners and the result must be gratifying to President Kennedy and Postmaster Miller, who are sponsoring the movement.

The law requires 66 per cent of the property owners on the street must sign the petition in order to get the pavement. Already 75 per cent have signed and the prospects are good that fully 90 per cent will sign.

The preliminary work is going on so rapidly that the prospects are good for the work to be all completed before next winter.

Robert Culhane of Monongahela, Pa. and Miss Josephine Culham of Lapeer were in town one day last week. They report their mother, Mrs. R. Culham to be seriously ill at Lapeer.

E. A. Kuhn of Gregory was a Pinckney caller Monday.

Village tax payers will not be peeved when they read the following: Work of graveling village streets has progressed, all bills paid to date, a nice comfortable balance in the treasury, and a tax rate of only 7 mills for this year. The Village President and councilmen are to be congratulated on the fine showing.

OLDEST FRAME HOUSE

What is said to be the first frame house built in Pinckney, standing on the Norman Reason property, West Main street, is no longer standing. The high winds this spring have finally laid it low. It has not been occupied for many years, so the loss is small.

Justice Albert Frost, in looking over the ruins found that the walls were decorated with newspapers, a common practice with the first settlers. Many layers of papers were found, some dating as far as 1833, nearly a hundred years ago.

One paper, "The Philanthropist", was published in 1839 at Cincinnati and was the official organ of the Ohio State Anti-Slavery society.

Another paper, the new York Commercial has some price quotations that are very interesting now:

brings out the flavor of other fruits. Equal parts of sliced peaches and stoned cherries, marinated in sugar sirup and garnished with frosted mint makes an attractive cocktail. Diced peaches, twice the amount of ripe, large blackberries, treated with a lemon sirup and flavored with a bit of the rind if liked, makes another popular cocktail. Such fruits as prunes, figs, raisins persimmons, pawpaws have more food value than most other fruits, though the acids and minerals in all fruits are valuable in the diet. The addition of stock, egg or milk, of course, adds to the nourishment of the soup.

Michigan Happenings

A federal hardwood experiment station is to be established on a tract of virgin hardwood timber in Marquette county, it has been announced by the state conservation department. The tract also probably will be used as a laboratory for elementary students in forestry from Marquette normal. It is planned, when the experimental station gets under way, to produce hardwood seedlings for distribution in Michigan. The state will erect the necessary building, and the federal government will support the station.

The recent announcement by officers of the General Motors Corporation of their intention to build a new $5,000,000 plant for the manufacture of Pontiac sixes was one of the biggest industrial surprises Pontiac has ever enjoyed. It came out of a clear sky and was known in advance to few persons outside of Oakland officials. The new plant will be built just outside the north limits of Pontiac, and will employ, it is estimated, about 3,500 men.

The medical societies of Jackson and Washtenaw counties will join in an open air meeting at the Sylvan Estate Country Club, east of Grass Lake, Thursday, June 24, it was decided at a meeting of committees from the two organizations. It is planned to make the affair an annual one. A golf tournament, quoits and indoor baseball will be sports for the outing. After dinner each society will be expected to offer two entertainment features.

A demand for an accounting and repayment of upwards of $1,000,000 alleged to have been obtained by misrepresentation in the financing of the Fallon Coal Mines Co., is made in a suit filed at Bay City by 166 plaintiffs against the promoters of the coal company. The plaintiffs chiefly are farmers and business men of Bay City, Saginaw, Tuscola and Midland counties with a few scattered through sections of the State. Several live in Detroit.

Encouraged by the co-operation given by manufacturers and municipalities in clearing streams of pollution in Southern Michigan, the State Department of Conservation, the Department of Health and the Attorney-General's office will hold a series of meetings in the Upper Peninsula beginning July 13 to request the same co-operation in stream pollution work in that section.

At the request of Representative Cramton, an investigation was recently made in regard to a star mail route from Imlay City to Cass City and as a result an order has been issued by the postoffice department, effective June 14, changing the service on this route so as to supply the postoffice at Wilmet and Deford and to include also supply of the postoffices at Lum and Kings Mill.

Immediate start on the $303,000 paving program which will result in the improvement this year of practically every street in Wayne has been announced by the commission of that village. The final action necessary to clear the way for the paving project was taken when the sale of the bond issue was placed with a Detroit concern.

The thirty-third annual convention of Michigan grand council, United Commercial Travelers of America, opened June 3, at Lansing, with headquarters in the new Hotel Olds. Grand Rapids looms as the probable meeting place of the Travelers next year. Sault Ste. Marie also is making an effort to land the convention.

A closed season on partridge until 1927 in the Upper Peninsula has been declared by the State Conservation Commission. The commission has also directed that the bass season, which opens elsewhere in the State June 16, shall remain closed in the Upper Peninsula until July 16.

Members of the University of Michigan's new board in control of athletics at a 10-hour session recently, completed plans for the purchase of a site for the new athletic stadium, but, according to Fielding H. Yost, director of inter-collegiate athletics and a member of the board, all announcements relative to location and construction are to be withheld until later in the week. A style of stadium seating approximately 79,000 persons and with sufficient land adjoining to provide space for all manner of intramural activities would be recommended.

A meeting of about 50 of the descendants of the Navarre family was held at Monroe, May 30. Colonel Francis Navarre was the first settler along the banks of the River Raisin, having been born at Detroit in 1767. In 1780 he bargained with the Pottawatomie Indians, for a great portion of the property now in the city of Monroe south of the river, which was called Nomet Cybi. The Navarre families are to take an important part in the pageant here June 23 and 24 and will provide a special exhibit of old relics.

Isaac Bates, 72 years old, Ionia county resident who shot and severely wounded Mrs. Elmer Peterson in a row over a line fence and who announced he would fight the case, changed his mind and pleaded guilty to felonious assault, a lesser charge than that originally on the warrant. The plea was accepted and he was immediately sentenced to the Michigan reformatory for a term of 18 months to three years, with the recommendation of the minimum period.

Three hundred and thirty-two business and professional men of Chicago, alumni of the University of Michigan, have registered with their association secretary their businesses, addresses and telephone numbers, and have individually pledged themselves to "give kindly welcome" to any Michigan graduate or student calling upon them, to give such advice and help as they are able and to assist in finding positions for those desirous of obtaining them.

State Trooper Carl Braun recently staged a movie stunt when he stood on the front fender of Sheriff Bates' car and leaped to the rear of a fleeing touring car on a rough country road in Baldwin, while traveling 30 miles an hour. The lead car proved to contain four gallons of moonshine. Ernest Metcalf, of Chase, the driver, was jailed on charges of possessing and transporting liquor.

With enrollment already started, and 550 courses offered, plans for the thirty-third annual summer session of the University of Michigan have been announced. Sixty special lectures and excursions will also be held during the summer months for the benefit of the students. The summer session begins June 15 for the law school, and June 21 for the other schools and colleges.

The Rev. Julia N. Budlong, 31 years old, formerly pastor of the Peoples Church at Kalamazoo, was married to Paul Velez, New York and San Francisco actor and playwright, May 24, at Berkeley, Calif., friends have been informed. Installed as pastor at the age of 24, Miss Budlong was the youngest minister ever to occupy the pulpit of one of Kalamazoo's largest churches.

Peter Speyer, 41 years old, manager of an exclusive woman's shop at Kalamazoo, was accidentally drowned while taking a bath in his apartment, according to the Kalamazoo police, who have rejected early theories of foul play. Police believe he was overcome while bathing by the effects of medicine he had taken and the warmth of the water.

Matt Boudin, 25 years old, a "fire eater" who was performing at the Flint Amusement Park, is in a hospital there with burns about his face received when a strong wind blew some burning gasoline into his face after he had blown the liquid onto a lighted torch to exhibit his fire eating ability. Hospital attaches said his burns were not serious.

Rural America Holds Its Own

So-Called "Declining" Villages Rival Biggest Cities in Rate of Growth.

New York.—Contrary to the prevailing notion that rural America is losing ground against the city, the Institute of Social and Religious Research has analyzed hitherto unpublished census data which cut the rate of city increase, 1900 to 1920 from 84.0 per cent to 52.1 per cent and actually pushes the rural rate of growth up to 20.7 per cent.

The facts are brought out by Robert W. McCulloch in a recent issue of The Survey. One explanation lies in the government's bookkeeping; when a village reaches 2,500 people it automatically becomes a city according to census categories, and without moving an inch from their own dooryards its villagers get into the urban column. Even so, between 1900 and 1920, the villages in this country with 250 and 2,500 inhabitants increased 5,674 in number. To quote in advance from Mr. McCulloch:

"The recent report of the National Industrial Conference board showing that radical tendencies have shifted from the industrial workers to the farmers, is only one of many warnings that have roused interest in the rural situation and caused an increasing demand for facts about the country's rural people.

"The people of the industrial centers have been studied from every viewpoint. About the rural folk, there is an astonishing dearth of trustworthy information. More than this, a study by the Institute of Social and Religious Research, some of the results of which are now available, indicates that actual misinformation concerning rural conditions is very general.

"It is believed, even by the experts, that the rural areas of the United States are being depleted by a great, nationwide migration of country folk to the cities. In support of this, stories of the decline of America's villages are circulated with disheartening frequency.

"But is the cityward migration so great and so menacing a population movement after all? Are American villages really declining?"

"Decline" Is Explained.

"If one turns to the census, one is impressed by the relentless decline in relative importance of the rural element of the population from decade to decade. As recently as 1880 only 28.6 per cent of America's total population lived in incorporated places having 2,500 or more, the boundary line between 'rural' and 'urban' as defined by the census. In other words, 71.4 per cent of all Americans were, in 1880, rural folk. In 1920 this proportion had dropped to 48.6 per cent.

"Even if there were no movement to the cities, there would still be, from one census period to the next, a steady decrease in the number of people classified as 'rural'; because this is a growing nation, and many places classified as rural at the end of one decade grow sufficiently to cross into the urban class by the time the next census is taken.

"In Alabama, for example, Alabama City, a village with 2,276 inhabitants in 1900, passed into the urban class in 1910 with a population of 4,313; and Andalusia City, with 551 in 1900 and 2,480 in 1910, got over the line with 4,023 in 1920.

"Here then we see how some thousands of people in two villages ceased to be villagers and became urban folk; not by migration cityward, but by a process of governmental bookkeeping that did not move a single villager out of his own dooryard.

What Figures Show.

"The Institute of Social and Religious Research got returns from the villages of all the states. These figures show that between 1900 and 1910, 476 places which had been classified as rural in 1900, passed the 2,500 mark and entered the urban class; while during the next decade, the number of places that passed from the rural to the urban class was 474. In addition, 118 places in the earlier decade and 73 in the last, entered the urban ranks because they became incorporated. It is the census procedure to classify unincorporated places as rural no matter what their size.

"The institute compiled a special tabulation showing the growth in population since 1900 of the territory that was urban and of the territory that was rural in that year. This was done to eliminate the confusion due to the constant shift of villages to the urban class. New England was eliminated from this calculation because the township form of government makes it difficult to divide the population into groups comparable with the urban and rural groups in other sections, but for the rest of the United States, this special tabulation showed that 4,620,055 rural people became city folk between 1900 and 1920, not because they migrated but because the places in which they had been living grew sufficiently to be lifted from the rural into the urban class.

"The institute's report of this study, 'American Villagers,' written by Dr. C. Luther Fry, shows that with the differences in classification eliminated, the rural increase becomes 23.6 per cent, which is the normal increase of births over deaths and nearly twice as large as the increase based upon the ordinary census figures. When, for purposes of comparison, the growth of cities between 1900 and 1920 is limited solely to the places that were cities in 1900 the rate of growth for the period is 68.4 per cent instead of 84.0.

"This rate of actual growth for the places that were cities in 1900 needs a further correction.

Explains City Growth.

"In 1920 there were 13,920,692 foreign-born people living in the United States. Of this number 10,500,942 lived in cities, while only 3,419,750 resided in rural areas. Of these 10,500,942 urban aliens, 5,478,989 are known to have entered the country after 1900, while only 1,416,108 of the immigrants in rural areas fall into this group. The fact that during the last twenty years 4,000,000 more immigrants settled in our urban areas than in our rural areas helps explain the relatively rapid growth of cities. When corrected for this factor, the rate of city increase drops still further—from 68.4 per cent to 52.1 per cent, and the rural rate of growth, corrected in like manner, becomes 20.7 per cent.

"The institute devoted particular attention to the question of the growth and decline of villages. In 1920 there were 10,239 incorporated villages, with a population of 8,509,659; and in relation to the population of the remaining rural area they are growing very rapidly indeed.

"From 1900 to 1920 the incorporated villages increased 41 per cent, both in number and in population. During the same period the population of the United States as a whole increased 39 per cent. During these twenty years, therefore, incorporated villages increased in population more rapidly than the nation as a whole.

"Despite the fact that nearly a thousand incorporated villages, with all the people who dwell in them, were lost from the rural classification because they grew into the city class, the number of villages increased 5,674 from 1900 to 1920. Thousands of little open-country population centers, therefore, became villages as a result of actual increase in open-country population; and their growth, by sending them into the village class, checked them out as a loss to the open country in this analysis of open-country and village populations.

Village Growth.

"To find out whether the village increase in population might be explained by this increase in the number of places classed as villages, the institute worked out the rate of growth since 1900 of all the places that in 1900 were incorporated villages. This computation revealed that the places that were incorporated villages in 1900 grew 51.3 per cent during the next twenty years, compared with a 68 per cent increase for places that in 1900 were cities of 100,000 and over; 91 per cent for cities of 25,000 to 100,000; 67 per cent for cities from 10,000 to 25,000; 59 per cent for places of from 2,500 to 10,000, and 19.5 per cent for the open country. Here is the interesting discovery, not only that the greatest rate of growth since 1900 has occurred in cities of from 25,000 to 100,000, instead of in metropolitan cities; but that the villages have been expanding almost as rapidly as the large metropolitan centers.

"The census gathers at great cost a mass of facts about the residents of incorporated villages, covering occupation, age, sex, nationality, tenure of farm, home ownership, marital condition and school attendance. All this material lies in the census files virtually unused, because no provision has ever been made for its analysis and publication.

"Through the courtesy of the census bureau, the Institute of Social and Religious Research was able to make a special study of this unpublished material for 177 villages which were selected as representative of the agricultural villages of the entire United States, and which had a total population of a quarter of a million.

"A phase of this study helps to account for both villageward and cityward migration by showing that an unskilled worker who goes from the farm to the village, or from either the farm or the village to the city, improves both his social and his economic position.

"The census method of classifying gainfully employed workers by the great fields of industry in which they are engaged, and by which Charles M. Schwab and a day laborer in his plant would be classified together, does not show this; but the institute organized the data for the 177 villages—and for purposes of comparison, the census data for 38 medium-size cities also—to get at differences in the economic status of the people, by ascertaining the number of employers and the number of employees, the number of clerks, of skilled and of semi-skilled workers, and of laborers.

Fewer Women Work.

"The number of gainfully employed women in villages was found to be disproportionately small. Among the males, the relative number of persons who may be regarded as their own bosses, was found to be more than half again as high in the villages as in the cities, 30.4 per cent as against 18.9 per cent; but for those who are not their own bosses the villages have less to offer.

"This is shown by their relatively large number of laborers and servants; 31.5 per cent as compared with 23.5 per cent in the cities; by their smaller proportion of skilled workers, 17.6 per cent as against 23.4 per cent in the cities; by the still smaller showing of semi-skilled, of whom there are relatively only about half as many in the villages as in the cities, and by the very few clerical workers, 11.7 per cent, while 15.2 per cent of the city workers are 'white collar men.'

"These occupational differences indicate that if a man with small capital wants to go into business for himself he has a better chance of success in the village; but that if he wants a good job as a wage earner, his chances are better in the city. Nevertheless the villages have many skilled and semi-skilled workers, showing the presence of a surprising number of manufacturing plants in these smaller centers, and indicating that the villages of the United States, which are growing rapidly instead of declining, are also sharing to a hitherto unsuspected extent in the country's industrial development."

WAYS WITH FISH

There is an old saying that "small fish should swim twice, once in water and once in oil," which we infer to mean that they should be fried in deep fat. When buying fish, select fish with a firm flesh, red gills and bright eyes. As soon as it is caught, if possible, scale it at once, place in a cold place and serve cooked within a short time. If the fish is bought in the market, give it the same treatment.

To Boil Fish.—Wipe the fish carefully, dust well with salt and wrap in a cheesecloth, well tied up. Drop into boiling water, add a teaspoonful of salt, a bay leaf, a sprig of parsley, a slice of onion and a bit of celery. Cover the kettle and just simmer ten minutes to the pound. Lift out carefully and turn the fish on a folded napkin on a hot platter. Garnish with lemon quarters and parsley and serve with drawn butter sauce.

Planked White Fish.—One may serve a planked fish at home in all its perfection. Secure a two-inch plank made from hardwood—hickory, maple or oak—a groove running round the edge two inches from the edge will hold the juices. A plank cut oblong a foot or a little more will be long enough. These planks may be purchased in any utensil store. Have the fish split open down the back and lay it skin-side down on the plank which has previously been heated so hot that it cannot be handled without a holder. Place in a hot oven and bake a half hour or longer. When the fish is done, garnish the plank with mashed potato, parsley and lemon. Set the plank on a hot platter and serve. The longer the plank is used the better the flavor. Scrape it after using, wrap carefully and it will keep for years, growing more valuable with use. If one wishes to cook the fish before an open fire, tack it on the plank and stand it before the fire.

Jellied chicken, sweetbreads and fish are all used as sickroom foods.

Fruit Cocktails.

There can be no more appetizing beginning for a summer meal than a fruit cocktail. They should be served very cold in glasses or in fruit cups of lemon, orange or grapefruit. Tomato is one of the vegetables that is often served as a cocktail as it is so much like fruit.

In preparing fruits for cocktails two things should be remembered. The fruit should stand in the sirup or fruit juice until well sweetened. The sugar sirup is prepared by boiling together twice as much sugar as water, until a thick sirup is made.

The menu following should always be considered when preparing a cocktail. If a vegetable cocktail to which salad dressing is added is served, the salad for that menu may be omitted.

The small pear-shaped yellow tomatoes make most attractive serving; they may be combined with fruit which has a decided flavor, like pineapple, then with a little diced or cubed pear and a fruit sauce, the combination thus being well flavored.

One of the most attractive cocktails to look at is made by using the heart of a well-ripened watermelon. Cut ball-shaped pieces with a French potato cutter, serve with a chilled lemon or pineapple sugar sirup. Prepared the same way, use muskmelon and canton ginger sirup; this is especially delicious to those who enjoy the ginger flavor. It is not wise to add a highly-flavored sirup or sauce to a fruit which has a delicate flavor which should predominate. A lemon sauce is good as it brings out the flavor of other fruits.

Equal parts of sliced peaches and stoned cherries, marinated in sugar sirup and garnished with frosted mint makes an attractive cocktail. Ripe peaches, twice the amount of sliced blackberries, treated with a lemon sirup and flavored with a bit of the rind if liked, makes another popular cocktail.

Such fruits as prunes, figs, raisins, persimmons, pawpaws have more food value than most other fruits, though the acids and minerals in all fruits are valuable in the diet. The addition of stock, egg or milk, of course, adds to the nourishment of the soup.

What Sheridan Said

Everybody has heard of the famous ride from Winchester made by Gen. Phil Sheridan. When he reached his retreating troops, according to tradition, he shouted, "Turn, boys, turn, we're going back." But Mrs. Sheridan, the general's widow, who lives in Washington, says those are far from being the exact words spoken by her husband upon that historic occasion. What he actually said, according to Mrs. Sheridan, could best be expressed by a series of dashes.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Be sure you are right before going ahead and somebody will crowd in front of you.

THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF LIVINGSTON IN CHANCERY

George E. Pless and Valora E. Pless, Plaintiffs, vs.
Mansing Hathaway and Nehemiah Boutwell and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, Defendants.

Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Livingston in Chancery at Howell, Michigan, on the 6th day of May 1926.

It appearing from the sworn bill of complaint as filed in said cause, that the plaintiffs have not been able after diligent search and inquiry to ascertain whether the said defendants are alive or dead, or where they may reside if living or if they have any personal representatives or heirs, living or where they or any of them may reside, or whether the title, interest, claim, lien or possible right of these defendants have been assigned to any other person or persons, or whether such title, interest, claim, lien or possible right has been disposed of by will by the said defendants.

And it further appearing that the plaintiffs do not know and have not been able after diligent search and inquiry to ascertain the names of the persons who are included as defendants without being named.

Upon motion, therefore, of Don W. Van Winkle, Attorney for plaintiffs, it is ordered that the above named defendants and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns cause their appearance to be entered herein within three months from the date hereof and that in default thereof said bill be taken as confessed by said defendants and each and all of them.

It is further ordered that the plaintiffs cause this order to be published within forty days in the Pinckney Dispatch a newspaper printed, published and circulating in said County, once in each week for at least six successive weeks.

The First National Bank of Howell

announces the election of

William B. Reader as President

Willis L. Lyons as Director to fill vacancies caused by the death of Louis E. Howlett

Mr. Reader has been actively associated with the bank as director and assistant cashier since its organization in 1920. His election to the presidency was prompted by the supreme confidence placed in Mr. Reader by the people of this community. His active experience in the affairs of the institution have fitted him for the duties of the responsible position to which he has been elected.

In electing Willis L. Lyons a member of the board of directors, the Board feel that they have selected one of the strongest men that it would be possible for them to secure for the place. Judge Lyons is well and favorably known throughout the county. It is the privilege of but few men to enjoy the confidence of the people as does Mr. Lyons.

The steady and consistent growth of this institution can be attributed to the service which it renders its customers and to the confidence which the public has in its officers and board of directors. Each one of whom has been successful in the business or profession in which he has been engaged. They are nearly all Livingston County products and enjoy the esteem of the communities in which they live.

If you are a patron of this bank you are acquainted with the service which it renders and the treatment which it accords its customers. If you have not availed yourself of this privilege, you are cordially invited to do so and enjoy the excellent service and courteous treatment which its officers and employees will be pleased to extend to you.
