BARNARD'S

JUNIOR BANQUET

The Class of 1926 were honor guests on Monday evening at a dinner dance given in their honor at the Masonic Hall by the Juniors of the High School. A sumptuous three-course dinner was first enjoyed, after which Merwin Campbell introduced Miss Elisabeth Bokros, who assumed charge of the meeting, proving herself a very capable toastmistress. Toasts were responded to very cleverly by Miss Hazel Smith, who welcomed the guests, by Robert Stackable whose message was in the form of congratulations to the Juniors, and by Victor Bourbonnais and Morgan Harris, who spoke in behalf of the alumni. Other pleasing after dinner speeches were given by Claude Kennedy, on Success, and by Ross Read who urged the re-organization of the Alumni Association. Prof Doyle gave a very inspirational talk on "Winning the Game," at which time members of the Athletic Club received their honor letters.

Vocal numbers by Miss Nellie Gardner and by Mrs. Clifford Van Horn added much to the pleasure of the occasion. Music for dancing was furnished by the Dexter Orchestra.

JEREMIAH C. DUNN

Another of the older ones born in this vicinity, Jeremiah C. Dunn, has gone to the final resting place.

He was born on the farm north of Pinckney, now owned by Frank Mowers, about 75 years ago, and for many years he was prominent in all local affairs. He was supervisor of Putnam township for two terms in the early 90's of the last century, while he was on the farm. With his wife and sister, Miss Rose Dunn, he moved to Pinckney where they remained until Mrs. Dunn's death, when they moved to Chelsea, where he has since resided. In his later years he was an occasional visitor to the old home town and was deeply interested in the welfare of the community.

The funeral services were held in Chelsea, the burial being in the Pinckney St. Mary's cemetery.

MRS. EMMA BROWN

Mrs Emma Brown, formerly of Pinckney, died from the effects of an apopleptic stroke in Chicago Saturday, June 19th. The remains were brought to Pinckney for burial.

Emma Sigler was born in this township 72 years ago. Her parents were Mr and Mrs John Sigler, who were early settlers here.

She was married to Preston Brown, brother of Mrs C V Van Winkle.

A son, Harold, of New York and a daughter, Mrs David Van Horn survive.

She died in Chicago where her husband is buried, but the cemetery there has been condemned for municipal purposes, and will be removed to Pinckney.

The funeral services of Mrs Brown were held in Pinckney, Monday, June 21, Rev H E Maycroft officiating.

MRS. JOSEPHINE CULHANE

Mrs. Josephine Culhane, mother of the County Normal principal, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs Grant Sherman, in Deerfield township Monday noon.

Mrs Culhane was born in Ontario, April 7, 1850. When a small child she came with her parents to Port Huron and was married there to Robert Culhane on October 26, 1864. They made their home in Port Huron for ten years and then moved to Pinckney where most of their married life was spent. They were the parents of eight children, five of whom are living. Mr. Culhane died about two years ago and since that time Mrs. Culhane has resided with her children.

Surviving are the sons and daughters Mrs Frank Hewitt of Ypsilanti, Robert Jr., of Pittsburg, Pa., Casper W. of Palisade, Colo.; Mrs Grant Sherman of Deerfield township, and Miss Josephine Culhane of Lapeer, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Catholic church in Port Huron at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, following which interment was made in Mt. Hope cemetery, Port Huron.

DANCE AT PATTERSON

There will be a dance at Chalker's Landing, Patterson Lake, Friday evening, June 25.

Good music.

All welcome.

Michigan Happenings

The State Association of Farm Mutual Insurance companies held a two-day session at Clare, June 9 and 10. It was largely attended by delegates representing the companies in every section of the state, insuring 433,000 farms carrying $1,000,300,000 insurance. The attendance was larger than any previous meeting of the association. Efforts, extending over a period of nine years, to adopt a standard form policy, were successful after a full afternoon session by a 70 per cent vote of delegates present.

Miss Avis M. Brown, daughter of E. E. Brown, editor and publisher of the Northville Record, will act as valedictorian of the class of 1926, of the Northville high school at its graduation exercises. She has the highest average attained thus far by any graduate of the school, her standing for the school year being 97.52. Miss Brown is editor-in-chief of the school's annual paper, the Palladium, and the accompanist for the glee club.

Failure of several bus companies to enforce compliance with speed laws for motor vehicles may result in license revocations, Sherman T. Handy, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, states. Letters advising operators of the 30-mile per hour limit were mailed to all companies some time ago. Since then, flagrant violations and disregard of the warning which have often resulted in serious accidents, have been reported to the commission.

Increased competition among Grand Rapids milk dealers has forced the price down to the point that some of the smaller dealers are offering raw milk at eight cents a quart. It is said that there were never so many dealers in Grand Rapids as at the present time. A plentiful supply of milk, a good demand for the product and the competition has so upset the market that the retail prices range from 12 cents per quart to the new low figure.

The Michigan Education association is working out plans for selection and distribution of reading circle books for schools of the state this fall and winter. At a recent meeting of the executive committee action was taken to bring about the service. Distribution of the books will be handled through a special reading circle board which will maintain an approval list of books, from which each school may make its selection.

Jazz music has failed to justify its existence in the opinion of Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the University of Michigan, who delivered the principal address at the thirty-first annual commencement of the University School of Music. Dr. Little declared that modern music, like modern painting, "lacks beauty" and owes its origin to the efforts of producers seeking to satisfy a pleasure-mad and lovely-hungry public.

A load of experimental cattle, which were fed at the Michigan State College during the past winter, were sold recently at the top figure of $11 per hundred pounds. These cattle weighed over the scales at an average of 837 pounds, and were classed as prime baby beef. Their average weight at the beginning of the experiment in November was 409 pounds, and the cost in the lots $8.50 per hundred pounds.

The fortieth reunion of the famous Seventh Michigan Volunteer Infantry formed at Monroe in 1861, is to be held there during the historic pageant, June 23-24 according to a letter received from President Major Robert C. Knaggs permanent president. Evanston, Ill. Burton S. Knapp, general chairman of the pageant, has invited the veterans to participate in the parade.

Atty.-Gen. Andrew B. Dougherty ruled recently that when automobile drivers' licenses are revoked for recklessness or driving while intoxicated, they must remain invalid for the period designated by the trial judge. Neither the court nor the Secretary of State has the power to reinstate the license prior to the expiration of the term, he held.

Mrs. Josephine L. August, Cassopolis telephone operator for the Dowagiac Telephone company, has been presented with the Theodore N. Vail silver medal and $250 in gold for her bravery in staying at her post over the bank while bandits terrified the town the night of November 24, 1925.

Veterans of Foreign wars in convention at Jackson, adopted resolutions opposing any changes in the present immigration law and asking that Armistice day, November 11, be made a state holiday, that exemptions of general taxes now enjoyed by veterans of the Civil and Spanish American wars be applicable to World War veterans, and that the national encampment change its by-laws to permit taking into active V. F. W. membership any veteran who served honorably with any of the allies in the World War and who since has become an American citizen.

Invitations to more than 1,500 physicians throughout the state, have been mailed to the special course for practitioners to be given at the University of Michigan summer school. The courses, which will begin June 21, are open to a limited number of graduated medical men. The six weeks' term of the summer session has been divided into two parts. General medicine and special courses in metabolism and cardiology will be given for the first period; and surgery, urological diagnosis and treatment of fracture, the second.

Ten Michigan State college students arrested at Lansing, May 24 for disturbing the peace and given 10 days to pay their fines, may be brought into court and given prison sentences, it was intimated when it became known that the boys had failed to pay the fines as ordered by Municipal Judge John McClellan. The youths were arrested following the celebration in connection with the baseball victory over the University of Michigan.

The postoffice department at Washington has announced that it has accepted the proposal of the First National bank to lease new quarters on the northwest corner of Water and Pleasant street, Algonac, for 10 years from July 1 or date of occupancy. The lease for the new quarters is to include equipment, heat, light, water, safe, power for electric fans, parcel post and savings furniture when necessary.

Freight passing through St. Mary's Falls canal dropped 4,000,000 tons below the record made last year in May and April, the statistical report of lakes commerce shows. The total freight tonnage locking through Sault Ste. Marie in May and April this year was 10,157,561 tons, compared with 14,800,000 last year. The drop this year is attributed to the late opening of the navigation season.

Immediate start on the $303,000 paying program which will result in the improvement this year of practically every street in Wayne has been announced by the commission of that village. The final action necessary to clear the way for the paving project was taken when the sale of the bond issue was placed with a Detroit concern.

Detroit has been chosen as the site for the 1927 convention of Michigan postmasters, members of the National League of District Postmasters, decided in concluding their annual convention at Port Huron. John P. Robertson, Metamora, and M. Barnum, Bailey, Mich., were re-elected president and secretary-treasurer, respectively.

The Harper Dry Goods company of Marshall, has filed articles of incorporation. It is capitalized at $20,000 and is to do a general merchandise business and handle dry goods. The stockholders are Charles A. Harper, Marshall; William S. Bengo, Ann Arbor, and Stanley K. Loveland, Milan.

J. Joseph Herbert, department commander of the American Legion in Michigan, states that preparations are being made to hold the 1926 convention in Lansing. Herbert was recently quoted as having said the convention had not been given to any city.

Grand Army of the Republic veterans and 10 other patriotic organizations, will meet in Benton Harbor for next year's convention it was decided by delegates to the forty-eighth G. A. R. Encampment at Jackson.

Flint's summer tax rate for 1926 will be $19.50 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation. The rate is based on a valuation of $164,285,602. This is an increase of $1.50 over the 1925 summer rate.

The Ohio Fuel corporation, one of the biggest exploiters and refiners in the petroleum field, has entered the Saginaw territory and have started a rig for drilling for oil.

Gordon Barhyte, of Pennfield, arrested for netting fish on Clear Lake in Pennfield, paid $100 fine and 10 cents in Justice Hughes' court.

Arctic Mystery Not Yet Solved

Test of Beef Left by Franklin Expedition Shows Members Not Poisoned.

London.—A tin of beef has revived interest in a subject that thrilled the world 75 years ago. It was at about that time that the British admiralty and the world at large became convinced that Sir John Franklin's expedition was hopelessly lost in the Arctic seas. Searching parties that braved the hazards of the North, first to take assistance to the heroic band of men marooned in the iceflows and last, when all hope had been abandoned, to bring back some word of the fate that had befallen them, returned with a few relics found scattered on the fields of ice at Beechey island. Among the salvaged articles were some cans of beef.

It was thought that when the sealed top of the receptacle containing the "bully" beef on which Franklin and his companions lived was lifted a possible reason for their death might be disclosed. Could it be that the contents of the can had not come up to the required standard and that the explorers had succumbed to its poison? Professor Beachey of Liverpool was elected to solve the mystery. The tin was cut and the meat removed and examined. It was found in as sound a condition as when it left the packers' hands 81 years ago. If the rest of the provisions sent with the expedition to feed the men for a period of three years were as fresh as this beef, another theory regarding the "lost expedition" has been exploded.

It was in 1845 that the sturdy ships, the Terror and the Erebus, set forth from England to discover the northwest passage, never to return. They were under the command of Sir John Franklin, a skillful leader.

Clue Fourteen Years Old.

Many theories have been advanced as to what befell his vessels and their crews. Not until 14 years later was a clue found that permitted those in command of the searching parties to establish to a degree the course taken by the expedition. It was an admiralty form placed under a cairn on Point Victory, around the margin the words being written:

"April 25, 1848.—H. M. ships Terror and Erebus were deserted on April 22, five leagues N. N. W. of this, having been beset since September 12, 1846. The officers and crews, consisting of 105 souls, under the command of Captain F. R. M. Crozier, landed in lat. 69° 37' 42" N., long. 90° 41' W. This paper was found by Lieutenant Irving where it had been deposited by the late Commander Gore in June, 1847. Sir John Franklin died on June 11, 1847, and the total loss by death in the expedition has been to this date nine officers and fifteen men."

Silence and the ice sea henceforth wrapped them in eternal mystery. Of the ships not even a broken spar was found by the searchers. A few skeletons indicated where some of the crew had fallen. Eskimos told of having seen straggling figures making their way across the frozen fields and of abandoned provisions.

Sir John Franklin in 1845, at the age of fifty-nine, had made a reputation as a navigator and an explorer. At the age of ten he first had sight of the sea from the shore of Saltfleet, England. He determined to be a sailor. Hoping to cure him of his desire, his parents permitted him to embark on a merchantman bound for Lisbon. Far from being the end, it was the beginning of his seafaring career.

Adventure followed adventure. On board the Polyphemus he took part in the battle of Copenhagen; in the Investigator he learned the science of navigation and became expert in making maps; while exploring the coast of Australia he was shipwrecked. He was in the battle of Trafalgar, in the blockade of Flushing and the attack on New Orleans.

Meanwhile, the British admiralty's interest in the Arctic regions, which had been dormant for half a century, began to revive under the leadership of Sir John Barrow, secretary of the navy. An expedition was organized under the command of Captain Buchanan of the Dorothea, in which Lieutenant Franklin was invited to join, taking charge of the Trent. It ended unfortunately for the Dorothea, and Franklin returned, convoying a damaged ship.

Tried a Third Time.

All England was afire with the desire to know what lay to the north and west of Hudson bay. Maps indicated two rivers, the Mackenzie and the Coppermine, but of the indentures of the coast between their estuaries nothing had been learned. The following year Franklin was ordered to traverse the land lying between Hudson bay and the Arctic sea. Three years of hardship followed, but the party returned triumphant, having descended the Coppermine to its mouth.

When next he sailed, he was Commander Franklin. That time he penetrated still further, reaching Mackenzie bay. The commander himself sailed along the unfriendly coast, while Doctor Richardson was detailed to journey in an eastwardly direction, exploring the coast to the mouth of the Coppermine. This second Arctic voyage was not to be followed by another until 20 years later, when he undertook the one that was to prove fatal.

Franklin returned to England from Tasmania, where he had been lieutenant-governor. Since his last effort to establish the northern contours of the American continent, important additions had been made to his own findings by others. Only 300 miles lay between him and the fulfillment of his life's dream—the discovery of the northwest passage. He sought the command of the expedition under consideration by the admiralty. His wish was granted.

His ships, the Terror and the Erebus, were commissioned by his former mates. Captain Crozier, who had commanded the Terror in her Antarctic trip, was second in command. Each ship carried 87 officers and men. They were provisioned for three years. Taking every precaution, Franklin ordered them equipped with steam power and screw propellers.

It was agreed between the admiralty and Franklin, at the latter's suggestion, that he should have his choice of two alternatives. He was either to pass through and beyond Lancaster sound to Cape Walker and thence southward in the direction of the American coast, or, that being impossible to carry out, he was to attempt a northerly course through Wellington channel.

The little company reached the coast of Greenland by July. Franklin's last letter to his wife was written from Disco bay. It was full of good cheer and they expected soon to be on their way aboard the Erebus. Reports reached them of clearing ice and fair weather, and they expected soon to be on their way. Five weeks later they were seen moored to an iceberg, delayed by frozen seas and fogs, when they had hoped to be well on their way to Lancaster sound.

Effort to Escape Afoot.

It was at about that time that they were last seen by a whaler, ten days after they had left Disco. "All well and of remarkable spirits," is the report the whaler's log made of them.

From then on the expedition was wrapped in the silence of the North.

Evidence found in later years leads to the belief that, leaving winter quarters at Beechey island in 1846, the expedition shaped its course down Peel sound. The voyage was apparently a slow one and came to an end when they were "beset since September 12."

The evidence pieced together shows that the following year they must have traveled further south into the channel named for the explorer, where they came into a wider stretch of ice and water. Again their progress was halted and for 587 days they were locked in an icy prison. Many died and others made a vain desperate dash for freedom. Relics picked up in later years told of the horrors of their march, but apparently had beef was not one of them.—New York Times.

Railroad in Alaska Boosts Tourist Trade

Anchorage, Alaska.—The Alaskan railroad was constructed to develop the assets of Uncle Sam's northern possession, but it also has brought satisfaction to the road's officials from another source—tourists.

The route of the railway from Seward, on the Pacific ocean, to Fairbanks in the interior, passes through one of the most beautiful sections of the northland. Each year has brought an increasing number of visitors.

The entire trip, with the exception of 40 hours on the Gulf of Alaska, is made through what is known as the Inside passage, a land-locked route, which is described as being as smooth as a mill pond.

The trip from Seattle to Fairbanks and return takes three weeks. From May 15 to September 15 there is no snow, but abundant sunshine.

Only Middle-Aged Dance in London's Night Clubs

London, England.—Gray heads, or heads that would be gray if nature had not been assisted, are so numerous in London night clubs that newspapers generally agree with the statement of the late Sir Squire Bancroft that the "young-man-about-town" no longer exists in England.

The Kit-Cat and other well-known London night clubs are the haunts of the middle-aged and aged. Practically none of the dancers is really young. This is true of the women as well as the men.

Youth has its fling in the popular dance halls where the cost is less and it is not necessary to be so formally dressed.

LEADS NOVEL TOUR

Thirty-eight artists, headed by Dudley C. Watson of the Chicago Art Institute, will travel 365 miles beyond the Arctic circle on a painting tour of the northern polar regions. Much of the way they will go by airplane. Above is a portrait of Mr. Watson.

On their way to bury a pet black cat in Highgate woods, two London spinsters placed the body, wrapped in brown paper, no the rack of a railroad compartment. A fellow traveler, a man, placed beside it a parcel similar in appearance, and when he left he took the wrong parcel. The women failed to find a suitable burial ground, and on their return home decided to bury the cat in the garden. When they opened the parcel they found, to their astonishment, a joint of salt beef. They are now wondering what happened when the joint their fellow traveler took home was discovered.

SUMMER SALADS

The simplest of salads are usually the best liked. Head lettuce with a spoonful of chopped onion and green pepper, with a good salad dressing is always popular.
Cheese and Banana Salad.—Remove the skin from two bananas, scrape and cut into halves lengthwise. Mix one neufchatel cheese with two tablespoonfuls of chopped mint leaves, add salt and French dressing. Spread half of the mixture on two slices of banana, cover with the other slices and press firmly. Cut into slices and arrange on lettuce; serve with French dressing. Chopped nuts or chopped olives may be used for variety in place of the mint leaves.

Summer Salad.—A most attractive salad may be prepared with two or three cooked vegetables. Make small mounds of chopped seasoned spinach, peas and chopped cooked potato, outlining each with chopped cooked beets. The vegetables should all be marinated with French dressing. Smoked salmon, sardines or herring cut into strips may be used in place of beets. When preparing any salad, especially potato, it should stand several hours in a good salad dressing to season. There is nothing more unpalatable than cold potato coated with dressing which has not seasoned it.

Fish Aspic.—Put head and bones of white fish into one quart of cold water, add two cupfuls of tomato juice, two tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, two tablespoonfuls each of chopped carrot and celery, two sprigs of parsley, a bit of bay leaf, and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of peppercorns. Simmer gently one and one-half hours, strain, season with salt, cayenne and lemon juice. When cool add the whites and yolks of two eggs and four tablespoonfuls of gelatin; stir constantly until the boiling point is reached, let stand ten minutes, strain through a double cheesecloth and pour into mold until firm. Serve on lettuce with any desired dressing. This aspic may be used for any number of fish salads. Some of this aspic with shrimps, hard-cooked egg, cucumber, makes a most pleasing combination.

Helpful Hints.

A teaspoonful of sugar added to any roast of meat adds to its flavor and appearance.

A tablespoonful of vinegar added to the boiling water in which fish is cooked improves the flavor and makes the fish more flaky and better liked.

If a custard is curdled, pour it into a cold bowl and beat well with an egg beater; if this does not make it smooth, strain and use it as a thin custard sauce.

Boiling the molasses to be used in cookies or cake makes them taste richer and cut more smooth.

Serve mashed potato piled lightly into the hot potato dish. If smoothed and patted down it makes it soppy.

To decorate cakes for children, frost them, then dip a small brush into melted chocolate or beaten egg yolk and put on design or name as desired. Any color may be used by adding fruit coloring to confectioner's sugar mixed with a bit of milk or water.

When washing spinach or any greens add a little salt to the first water; it will dislodge any insects that may be on the leaves.

When creaming butter for a cake add a tablespoonful or two of hot milk or water to the butter; it will hasten the creaming. The moisture used may be omitted from the liquid which the recipe requires.

For a caramel custard brown two tablespoonfuls of sugar in a smooth frying pan, add two cupfuls of scalding hot milk and stir until all the caramel is dissolved, then add one-fourth of a cupful of sugar; pour into custard cups and bake or steam until firm. A bit of salt always improves any custard.

Where there is such infinite variety from which to choose, it shows lack of progression to serve foods in the same way year in and year out. The average housewife, because of overwork, often confines herself to a few dishes and repeats them so often that the family rebels.

The field mushroom makes delicious eating. Fry in butter, serve with cream over buttered toast.

GREGORY CHURCH NOTES N

Milton W. Dressel, Pastor
Visitors are welcome to come to any or all of the Daily sessions of the D. V. B. S. which meets every day this week from 8:55 to 12 noon from Monday to Friday inclusive. Remember the D. V. B. S. picnic on Friday afternoon, leaving the church at 2 p. m.

It is certainly an impossible thing to have too many people spend too much time in Prayer. YOU are invited to attend the mid-week service of prayer, praise and Bible study each Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

On next Sunday morning at 10:30 the pastor will preach on the subject "What Are You Worth?"

There is a deep and abiding longing within the heart of the pastor for the time to come when 125 persons will be in attendance at our Sunday School at 11:30. The School where the friendly Spirit prevails.

Are YOU interested in the BOYS and GIRLS of our Church? Then show it by your presence when they receive public recognition for the faithful work done in the D. V. B. S. next Sunday night at 8 o'clock. There will be a splendid program rendered by the pupils of the D. V. B. S.

Important dates to remember: July 4th in our Church both morning and evening, Mr. Howard MacClusky and Mr. Garrett Fielstra of Michigan University at Ann Arbor will be present and speak to us. Also at 2:30 the Patriotic Band of Jackson will play at the Patriotic Service in Stockbridge on the Town Square. Mr. Grant Hudson our Representative from this district will be one of the speakers. Show your loyalty to the cause of righteousness by being present.

Union picnic on July 29th.
We invite all to come to the LITTLE CHURCH WITH THE BIG WELCOME!

A COMPLETE SUCCESS

Nearly a hundred per cent of property owners on Main street, east and west, have signed the petition for paving Main street.

This splendid showing is another indication that the people and taxpayers are in favor of public improvements. Looking back for a period of eight years, the writer cannot recall a single instance when the citizens of Pinckney have not responded favorably to every appeal for public improvement.

It seems that all that has been lacking for more progress is in leadership. President Kennedy, the Common Council and Postmaster Miller have handled the pavement proposition to such an unqualified success and with the practically unanimous approval of the citizens of the village and all others who use our streets, that this writer, at least, hopes that the fine encouragement that has been given them will be an incentive for further village improvements.

"Let the good work go on."

Hoboes—1926 Models

I CIRCLED the globe on twenty-six dollars. "Four of us traveled from coast to coast on nineteen dollars." "We left for Florida with fifty dollars and came back with ninety."

Statements similar to these are heard frequently nowadays. Every one is traveling. It matters little, it seems, whether you can afford to travel. Just set out and Providence will take care of you, seems to be the formula.

At least, this was true until recently. Now, it appears, "bumming" one's way is becoming increasingly difficult. Interviews with recent adventurers who had set out with a burning desire and a five-dollar bill to see the world, all indicate that the world is becoming hard-boiled and has grown tired of lending its co-operation to ambitious but practically bankrupt "bummers."

This is thrown in here at the beginning as a bit of precautionary information for those, who, reading this, may find in it the spark which would set off that urge present in most of us at some time, to break with our surroundings and go. Five years ago you might have made a success of it, but today it's different. Too many have played the game. The sympathy of the world toward such enterprises is nearly exhausted. Ask those who have had recent experiences.

The hobo of yesteryear was a clown character. He was more laughed at than pitied. Prodigal son of one kind or another, he found the open road an avenue of escape from his burdens. It was a life of danger in which was mixed adventure and hardship, hungry days and bedless nights, and even jail and the rockpile.

The "blanket stiff," the most romantic of the hoboes, followed the early trails westward and crowded the frontier to the ocean. With the rest of the pioneers, the "blanket stiff" has all but vanished. By his brawn the railroads were built. And in turn, this thing he created served only to spell his doom, and create in his stead the train-riding hobo.

The Motor Tramp Arrives. The paved highway and the automobile today is hastening the passing of the train-riding generation. The day of the motor tramp is here, and, scoff the 'boes of the old school, it's a soft life. Train-riding was a man's game, and only men played it. If women ventured on the road they went carefully disguised.

But the automobile, invading hobo-land, changed things. Life is so attractive and easy that it may be followed by women and even by children. If the old hobo was a burden on society, he was a social problem merely because he was a transient and homeless man. A few meals and a short job would see him on his way. Few took him seriously. But the automobile gives us entire hobo families, resulting in any number of social and economic problems.

On the roads today are two classes:

the "hitch-hikers" without cars of their own, and the car owners. There is a wide range of types in both classes, from the penniless, jobless family to the carefree hitch-hiker with money in his pocket.

The ranks of the hitch-hikers are made up chiefly of young folk, khaki clad, with packs on their backs. Equipped for hiking, they hike but little, once they have acquired the knack of gaining the sympathetic motorist's good will. Among them you will find the modern young woman out for experience, the college graduate spending his vacation before buckling down to work, and even high school lads wearing their first long trousers.

Young married couples too poor to own a car and too energetic to stay at home find this means to break with convention, to absorb a bit of worldly wisdom, and to enjoy the thrill never encountered in their years of humdrum existence in drab homes. For many the open road is indeed an avenue of escape.

They Play and Work. Occasionally your hitch-hiker is forced to work. Here and there he or she will wrestle dishes in a restaurant, perhaps wash windows, mow lawns, or take any odd job that presents itself. For emergencies most of them have resources upon which they can draw. This is a wise precaution, for at times the labor supply in the odd-job market exceeds the demand.

Society may be just a bit bored by these hitch-hiking hoboes, with their flair for "self-expression" and the "new freedom." They are tolerated, however, for they present no considerable social problem. Generally they know where they are going and how they are going to get there.

The second class of modern hoboes—the "auto gypsy," the "flivver family"—has become a pest to the towns and a trial to the cities in many sections of the country. From all indications their number is on the increase. They are most troublesome in the West, particularly along the Pacific coast, where food is plentiful, fuel is cheap, and the climate pleasant.

The hobo of the old school was a colorful gent who begged and pilfered as he went. While his exploits were spectacular, the social problems involved were not difficult. They could be jailed or driven out of town. Bring women and children into the picture and such methods cannot be applied. The wandering family cannot be driven and they must not be sent away hungry.

"Cheese it, de cops!" would scatter a campfire gathering of old-time hoboes. But other methods must be found in handling the auto gypsies who infest the camps and parking grounds so generously provided in towns and cities.

A Bee-Line for Charity. Arriving in town, the auto gypsy and his family seek out the nearest charitable organization. If there is no such body, he approaches the town officials. He wants work, he says. Meanwhile, his family throw themselves upon the charity of the townspeople.

If no work is found, the usual procedure is to stock the car with rations for a few days, fill the gas tank, and hurry them away. It's the easiest way out of an unfortunate situation. Both sides win: the town has rid itself of another charge, and the family has prolonged its miserable existence.

And a miserable existence it is—from the point of view of the individual who loves his home. Here is a hobo plus his family. Instead of leaving them and wandering alone, he takes his family along. The old train-riding hobo frequently was a family deserter, but in the new order the family stick together. All their worldly possessions are in or strapped to their decrepit vehicle.

What happens to the children reared under such circumstances? What of their education? Will they, too, grow up to be hoboes? This is the gravest aspect of the many social problems arising from life on the open road. Pauperism breeds pauperism. True, the child learns many tricks, but they will be of little use in the ordinary walks of life.

The Country Has Been Kind.

As the family travels the education of the road child is interrupted again and again. Absence from school as long as an entire year is not uncommon. Already steps have been taken for reaching the truant child of the auto gypsy. Several counties in California have truant officers on motorcycles. Patrolling the highways, they are ever alert for these dodgers of the three R's.

Good roads, cheap cars and fuel make it easy for the auto gypsy. Until recently the country has been kind to his tribe. Enjoying the prestige afforded by possession of an automobile, he and his family have been regarded in the past as an exceptional case. "These poor folks have been unfortunate," thought the townspeople, touched deeply by the sight of a woman and her children, poorly clothed, dusty, tired, hungry. And so they helped them.

But as their tribe increased, and "these poor folks" came to be regarded as just another hobo family, sentiment began to change. "It's a fine game, this 'bumming' your way about the country," say the exasperated people of town and countryside.

Can't Overcome Power Ascribed to Evil Eye

The power of the "evil eye" is greatly feared by immigrant mothers, who use all sorts of charms to protect their babies from it, according to an article in Hygeia Magazine.

The difficulty in persuading foreign families to have medical attention is chiefly due to the belief in the "evil eye" and similar powers of darkness, against which a mere physician would be helpless, they argue.

Most of the immigrant women refuse to have a male physician attend them during childbirth, preferring the ignorant midwife, who follows the customs of their native country. The result is an appalling loss of life, of both mothers and infants, in childbirth.

The grandmothers have tremendous influence in the immigrant families. The young mothers fear and obey them, thus making it extremely difficult for health workers to persuade them to have medical attention.

Peaks Long Defied Mountain Climbers

The first attempt to ascend Mount Chimborazo in Ecuador, then thought to be the highest peak in South America, was commenced 124 years ago by Humboldt, the eminent scientist, and his companions. They reached a height of 18,576 feet above sea level, when, with blood gushing from eyes, lips and mouth and almost frozen, they were forced to begin the return journey.

A narrow, deep valley also prevented them from going on to the summit, 1,922 feet higher. In 1831 Boussingault and Hall attempted the feat but failed, and it was not accomplished until 1881, when Edward Whymper made the topmost peak.

It has since been found that South America's loftiest mountain is Aconcagua, in Chile, which is 23,097 feet, and is the ninth highest mountain in the world, and the loftiest in the New world. Husacan, in Peru, and no less than six mountains in Bolivia, are higher than Chimborazo, and the latter is 189 feet higher than Mount McKinley, in Alaska, the highest mountain in North America.—Chicago Journal.

Sink or Swim!

Robbins was stuck at a little crossroads junction with a train two hours late. He went into the one eating place in the village for lunch.

"Whata y' want?" the waitress asked him as he sat down on the high stool.

"Let me see your bill of fare," Robbins requested.

"Ain't none," she informed him.

"Whata y' want?" "Well, what have you?" Robbins asked.

"Beef or pork, coffee or milk," the girl rattled off. "But the pork's all gone an' th' milk's sour. Whata y' want?"

Even Nuns Must Vote

All citizens of the republic of Czechoslovakia must turn out to vote on election day, or pay a fine. In some cases failure to vote means a short term in jail. Recently 18,500 vote slackers were fined about $1 each; all these cases were in Bratislava alone. Even the Barnabite nuns of Prague had to vote, although their vows oblige them never to leave their convent, to keep their faces veiled and not to converse.—Chicago Daily News.

CHILDREN'S NURSE RESUMES HER DUTIES

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time and I would not be without it in the house. As I am a children's nurse, I have to be on my feet a great deal and your medicine has helped me wonderfully. I was hardly able to do my housework when I began taking it, and now I am a strong and well woman, able to do all that and go out nursing besides. I have also used the Sanative Wash and found it beneficial."—Mrs. GEORGE L. STREW, Apt. 103 Davis St., Greenfield, Mass.

Valuable for Weakness

"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a valuable medicine for weakness."—Mrs. J. A. FURSON, Box 397, Lancaster, Pa. Hundreds of letters like these are received by the Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Grateful women from Pennsylvania to Washington, from Texas to Illinois and from Rhode Island to Nebraska say that their health has improved since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Calamity

"Lawsy, but Ah suttlingly does hate to lose dis job," sighed the colored maid upon being discharged. "You have a family to support?" asked her late mistress. "No'm, but Ah's got an engagement to be broked," groaned the poor girl.

GROWING CHICKS NEED CLEAN PEN

Costs of poultry production can be lowered by raising big hatches just as the cost of pork production can be reduced by the raising of big litters. Heavy mortality among chicks can often be prevented by timely observation and care.

By the time they are a week old the chicks should be allowed, in the ordinary season, to run out doors. Confine them in small yards at first or until they learn where the heat is to be found and they will go in and out of the brooder house freely. In the early spring the yard should be inclosed in muslin-covered frames which later can be supplanted by poultry netting or lath. As the chick grow, the yard should be enlarged sufficiently to keep them on green grass. Once put on free range, there is likely to be difficulty in feeding the chicks unless they are kept apart from the hens. The same difficulty arises when chicks of different ages are being raised close together. To avoid interference by the older chicks or hens, the younger ones should be fed in small movable pens, says N. E. Chapman, poultry specialist at University farm at St. Paul. The sides of the pens may be made of lath placed so that the lower strip is high enough to permit the entrance of the smaller chicks, but low enough to keep out the larger ones.

Pullets will grow more rapidly if separated from the cockerels when about eight weeks old. Cockerels that are to be sold as broilers should have the run of a small green yard while being prepared for market.

Open Type of Equipment Useful for the Chicks

There are two good reasons why some open type of equipment is useful in raising young chickens. They are: Need for more room than is supplied by the regular equipment and need for a house that can be thoroughly ventilated in hot weather.

A house can be cheaply constructed that will be of material help in successfully growing out young chickens. For a small flock this can be made six feet square and a board roof extending from six inches to a foot over the inclosure. The framework of the house may be made of 2 by 2-inch pieces if they are well braced. Two-inch wire mesh is satisfactory for the walls. No floor is necessary, as the house can easily be moved.

On a small house the side walls do not need to be over two and one-half feet high, which will make it somewhat higher in the center. Low roosts should be provided so the chicks may be comfortable and be off of the ground.

After the warm weather comes the protection which the chickens need is from storms and rodents and other pests which bother mostly at night.

Transmit Tuberculosis From Poultry to Stock

Some thought should be given by poultry raisers, particularly in the dairy districts of northern Illinois, to the probability of finding tuberculosis in their poultry flock. It has been definitely proved, as described in the Orange Judd Illinois Farmer, that tuberculosis may be transmitted from poultry to other live stock or from other live stock to poultry.

If chickens show distinct white spots on the liver it is safe to be very suspicious that they have tuberculosis. In case of any question on matters of this kind it is possible to send specimens to the state universities and arrange to have technical examination made.

Mash Brings Forth Eggs

It's the mash that is going to influence the egg yield, yet if hens have their choice of grain or mash, they may slight the mash. By giving them a light feed of grain in the morning, their hunger will drive them to the mash hopper and hence to the nests. One hundred hens should consume 12 to 15 pounds of scratch grain daily, two-thirds of which should be given them at the night feeding. Let the fowls go to roost with a full crop.

Feed for Ducklings

Equal measures of rolled oats and bread crumbs, with a sprinkling of about 8 per cent sand, will make a good starting feed for incubator-hatched ducklings. This can be fed three times per day until the fourth day, when a mash composed of equal parts of rolled oats, bread crumbs, bran and corn meal will produce good results. A mash recommended after the first week consists of three parts bran, one part low-grade flour, and one part corn meal.

VALUE OF COVER CROP IN ORCHARD

(By E. L. PROEBSTING, University of California.)

Cover crops, provided adequate moisture is present for both the trees and the crop, are of considerable benefit to the orchard. The more important of these beneficial effects may be listed as follows:

1. If the crop is leguminous it adds nitrogen to the soil.
2. It provides a favorable medium for growth of soil organisms.
3. It improves the physical condition of the soil.

It is well known that certain bacteria grow in nodules formed on the roots of legumes. These bacteria have the power of "fixing" atmospheric nitrogen, that is, changing it from a form practically useless to the plant to one which is readily absorbed. The addition of this element is an important part of maintaining permanent agriculture.

It is not so generally known that there are many kinds of microscopic organisms that occur in the soil. These are of many sorts, both animals and plants being among them. One of the important kinds is the ammonifying bacteria. These bacteria take the complex forms of nitrogen compounds, such as proteins, and digest them with the production of ammonia. A small amount of ammonia is used directly by the plant. A much larger amount is transformed to nitrites by another group of bacteria, and still another group carries the process further to the nitrate state. This is probably the form in which most nitrogen used by the plant is absorbed.

Besides these organisms working in the soil on the forms of nitrogen there are many acting on other compounds, such as those of sulphur, iron, phosphorus, etc. They also help to put the elements into a form suitable for absorption by the plants. In order that these beneficial processes may be carried on in the soil it is necessary that a proper environment be supplied. This is very greatly aided by the use of cover crops.

It has been found that the ability of the soil to maintain a desirable texture is greatly influenced by the amount of certain materials in it. An important group of these materials is supplied to the soil by the decomposition of cover crops. They tend to prevent puddling of the soil, especially heavy soils, where this is apt to be serious. They also increase the water-holding capacity of the soil, which is especially important in a region of prolonged dry weather.

While these items do not tell all of the story they serve to show the value of a cover crop to the orchard.

Cedar Rust Trouble Is Being Watched Closely

Fruit-growers are watching West Virginia to see what progress she makes in her battle against red cedars, which cause millions of dollars in losses to orchard owners, due to the red-cedar spores being carried to nearby apple orchards. West Virginia has a cedar-rust law which provides that red cedars, within three miles of any commercial orchard, may be cut down, and approximately 100,000 acres have been cleared of cedars since January.

But will the law stand the test of the courts? Some of the farmers in Berkeley county have started a test case by securing an injunction against the cutting of cedars on their farms. This case will be heard in the near future in the Circuit court there and is virtually certain to be carried to the state Supreme court.

The large orchard interests of the Eastern Panhandle have taken the lead in helping the state department of agriculture to enforce the law. The cost of destroying the trees is paid out of the county treasury and this money is repaid the county by a special levy upon all orchards in that particular county. The levy must not exceed $1 an acre on orchards planted ten years or more, or 50 cents an acre on orchards planted more than two years and less than ten years.

Summer Sprays

The third summer orchard spray should be followed in about two weeks with another application. If apple blotch is not present, lime-sulphur solution and arsenate of lead may be used. Where the grower anticipates injury from apple blotch or bitter rot, bordeaux and arsenate of lead should be applied. Practically all orchards should receive at least four summer sprays. In most cases they will be greatly benefited by applying from five to seven sprays.

Plants and Electricity

Despite the fact that experiments have been conducted for many years to determine the effect of a current of electricity upon growing plants, there is still a diversity of opinion on the subject of the influence of electricity upon plant development. In England, where the electrical treatment has been applied by charging a network placed high enough above the growing crops to permit cultivation with homes, increased yields are reported. Eight years of similar experiments, tests by the United States Department of Agriculture have not shown any positive response by plants.

Inks That Last

Through the use of the gas-heated cauldron it is believed the long lost art of the ancients in making ink that grows darker with the years instead of fading, has been rediscovered. The new process retains the color and will not corrode. The old inks, which are still bright and clear after hundreds of years, were made of various plant juices.

POULTRY SCHOOL TO TRAIN FARM JUDGES NATIONAL AUTHORITIES BOOK-

ED ON M S C SHORT COURSE DURING WEEK JULY 5

Michigan poultry raisers will have opportunity to brush up on the latest developments of their profession during a special Poultry Judging School which is to be held at the Michigan State College during the week of July 5 this year. It will be the third annual school of this kind at East Lansing.

Practical instruction and laboratory practice in various phases of poultry production, from the point of view of both the farm and the commercial flock will be given during the school week.

Staff of specialists who will handle the work of the school, in addition to M. S. C. men, will include many national authorities in the poultry world. Among them will be: W. R. Graham, Ontario Agricultural College; Prof. J. G. Halpin, University of Wisconsin; and W. G. Crum, Cornell University.

Programs and information about the special school, which is open to any Michigan poultry raiser, may be had from the Poultry Department at M. S. C.

Only large, clean, well graded, and well packed fruit sells to advantage when the market is well supplied, according to H. D. Hootman, extension specialist at the Michigan State College. Federal forecasts place this year's peach crop at 12,000,000 bushels more than that of 1925. Therefore the advise to thin this season.

"Peaches should be thinned following the 'June Drop' and before the pits harden", says Mr. Hootman. "The old rule of thinning peaches, leaving them six inches apart on the individual branches, is a good one. However, each tree as a problem in itself and the rule of a six inch distance between fruits must be adapted to fit individual cases.

"In the light of present prospects, Michigan fruit growers cannot afford to grow small peaches; neither can they afford to weaken their trees by over production."
