HAS BACK BROKEN

Albert Nelson who lives on one of the George Reason farms near Anderson was badly hurt last Saturday morning while working for the Tubbs' sawmill outfit in the Charles Eullis woods west of Anderson. He was felling a tree when in some way it split in two and he was unable to get clear of it. He was struck by the tree trunk and suffered a broken back and internal injuries. As soon as possible he was taken to the U. of M. Hospital at Ann Arbor where he is in a serious condition. He is unmarried.

HAD BIG TIME

The Pinckney base ball fans excursion to Detroit came off as planned last Friday. The run to the Wayne county line was made in good time. Met Chalker then undertook to act as guide and after much aimless wandering the entire bus load ended up in a blind street somewhere in the wilds of Wyandotte where the huge coach was turned around only after the destruction of numerous flower beds, sidewalks and fences. Arriving the ball park at 12 tickets were secured and then the entire party went to the hotel Book-Kirby for dinner. The ball games were long drawn out slugging affairs and it was dusk before they were completed. The trip home started at 8:30 P. M. and ended at 11:30 and the only casualties of the day were a broken window in the bus.

KING'S DAUGHTERS

The Kings Daughters held their regular business and social meeting at the summer cottage of Mrs. S. H. Carr at Portage Lake on Wednesday, July 7, with about 35 people present. Swimming being the prevailing entertainment there was no program offered.

After the business meeting which was conducted by the President, Mrs. Viola Read, one new member was taken into the order.

The hostess then served a dainty luncheon of ice cream and cake. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Sadie Read at her cottage at Portage Lake.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING

The annual school meeting of District No. 2, Putnam was held at the school house Monday evening, G. W. Teeple, President of the board presided. There were about twenty-two people present. A motion to vote by acclamation was made and carried. Leo Lavey was elected to fill the unexpired term of L. E. Smith, resigned, of one year. Ross Read was elected for three years to take the place of G. W. Teeple. W. E. Murphy presented his resignation which was not accepted. There being no further business the meeting adjourned.

DANCING AT LAKE LAND

There will be dancing at Euler's Pavilion every Friday and Saturday evening. Old and new dances on Friday night and popular dances on Saturday night.

CARS COLLIDE

Last Saturday afternoon when Roy Reason was on his way home with his father's car he collided with the car of Ed. Gehringer. Gehringer who was ahead suddenly turned off the road to drive into his yard when he reached Anderson and Roy was unable to stop quick enough to avoid hitting him. Both cars were badly damaged, Gehringer having a wheel torn off and the radiator hood and almost the whole front of the Reason car being smashed up.

OAKMAN A. C. HERE SUNDAY

The Pinckney Independents will tackle the Oakman Boulevard Athletic Club base ball team of Detroit at Pinckney next Sunday, July 17. This team has beaten some of the best teams in the state and the locals will have their hands full if they win the decision from them. Pinckney will have the strongest line-up possible in the field and the game should be a good one. It is costing considerable to get this team here and a good attendance is required. The home teams record up to date is 8 games won and 2 lost.

ENTERTAINS ALTAR SOCIETY

The Altar Society of St. Mary's church were entertained by Mrs. Lawrence Spears at her farm home west of Pinckney. A bountiful luncheon was served after the conclusion of the business meeting. About forty were present and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent for which those there extend their thanks to the hostess.

AUCTION SALE

On account of failing health, I will sell my personal property consisting of 2 horses 12 head of cattle, 4 hogs, poultry, tools etc., at public auction on the L. A. Taft farm in Oceola, 7 miles northeast of Howell and 1 1/2 miles east and 1 mile south of Oak Grove, on Monday, July 18. Sale begins at 12:00 sharp.

George Angus, Auctioneer.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harris, Mrs. E. H. Hoonan and children attended services at St. Thomas church at Ann Arbor Sunday and later spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sharp of Dexter.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Amburgey and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Engle and daughter of Detroit were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Frost.

PINCKNEY WINS ANOTHER

Pinckney got away to a flying start and scored seven runs in the first two innings in their game with the Donovan All Stars of Ann Arbor Sunday and although Pinckney only scored one more run in the next six innings, their lead proved too big for their opponents to overcome. Lewis led off for Pinckney and was hit by the pitcher, Kennedy singled through short, Brown hit to center for two bases scoring Lewis, but was out trying to make three bases on it. Doyle was thrown out by the short stop, Kennedy scoring, Bowman hit a home run over the center field fence, Cox got a base on ball and VanBlaricum struck out. In the second Pinckney got four more runs. Swarthout singled to left, VanHorn was safe when the center fielder muffed his fly, Swarthout scoring, Lewis and Kennedy were both hit by the pitcher Brown hit to short, forcing VanHorn at home, Doyle hit to short who tried to get Lewis at plate but his throw was bad, Bowman hit over third scoring Kennedy and Brown, Cox struck out and VanBlaricum was out pitcher to first. This ended Pinckney's scoring until the 2th when VanBlaricum singled and scored on a hit by VanHorn. The colored boys got a run in the first, two in the fourth, one in the fifth and sixth. Swarthout only allowed eight scattered hits being extremely hard to hit with men on bases. The Pinckney team put up a nice fielding game only making two errors.

The Lakeland Circle of Kings Daughters held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Beulah Burton at Bob White Beach last Wednesday. Mrs. Wm. Bird assisted the hostess.

There were 26 present. One new member, Mrs. Brunzing joined. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. Clyde Dunning and the time was taken up in discussing plans and appointing committees for the banquet to be held at the Hotel Zeiser, Lakeland, on July 27. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Spanslitz at Pleasant Lake Hills on July 20.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Last Saturday at 5:00 P. M., a man from Lansing whose name we were unable to learn had a narrow escape from death. He was driving a Reo Flying Cloud sedan and while headed west on the Pinckney Dexter road attempted to pass another car on the causeway between Big and Little Portage Lakes near the bridge. However he turned out too far and to avoid going down the 8 ft. bank turned sharply to the right and struck the railing smashing it. Two of the 2x8 of which the railing was made pierced the front of the car narrowly missing the driver and tearing the front seat out from under him. W. H. Meyers went out and pulled the car up the embankment and it was later removed to Lansing.

NOTICE

The Ann Arbor Ramblers will furnish music for the dances at Hi-Land Lake Saturday evening, July 16. New and old dances will be put on. Refreshments served and a good time promised. Bill $1.

FORD THROWS GLOVER

Frank Ford of Flint proved to be too much for Glover in their wrestling match at the Pinckney opera house Saturday night and by taking the first and third fall won the decision. He use a wrist lock and took the first in 8 minutes, lost the second in 8 1/2 and won the third in 4. Some time ago he was thrown by Glover at Hartland and for the last six months he has been in training to reverse the decision which he succeeded in doing. Farmer Newton threw Cyclone Thompson in the preliminary but was forced to extend himself in order to do so. This week Saturday night Glover will tackle Carl Dumler of Flint. The latter has posted a forfeit to assure his appearance. Cyclone Thompson of Pinckney will take on Wild Bill Hill, another local wrestler. Doors open at 8:15. Wrestling starts at 9:00 P. M.
Born to Mr. and Mrs. Dan Reilly, on Wednesday, July 13, a nine lb son.

The Sandman Story

By Martha Martin

WITCH-HAZEL FLOWERS

"IN THE fall of the year," said the Sandman, "there are yellow flowers to be seen on bushes which have large and thick leaves. These flowers are alongside of the twigs of these bushes and they are known as the Witch-Hazel flowers. There are some that flower in the spring but the ones of which I'm speaking flower in the fall. Miss Witch-Hazel Bush was dressed up in her very best, and very, very proud was she. 'I'm going to have an exciting time next summer,' she said. 'Instead of wearing a flower dress I shall think only of you and I will shoot forth seeds as my fruit pods burst and in this way more witch-hazel shrubs will be able to grow up. 'I really live for that wonderful time when I can shoot forth these seeds. I shoot them some distance. It is most exciting. 'I hope you will always be able to recognize me—which means that I hope you will always be able to know who I am when my leaves are falling. 'My leaves are broad and have straight veins. My leaves and bark go to make up my namesake in the medicine chest. 'Yes, you've all heard of witch-hazel. Well, witch-hazel got its name from our family, for we make witch-hazel. 'We're not the kind either that creatures turn up their noses at as they do at old castor oil and some of those disagreeable things. 'We're not to be swallowed. No indeed. That's where we are so nice. 'We don't go about with that manner which castor oil has as though to say: 'You'll be sick if you don't take us. Maybe we'll make you sick for a while, but in the end we will make you well.' 'We don't make anyone sick first. No, we're not like that. As I said, we don't want to be swallowed—I mean my Medicine Closet relative doesn't want to be swallowed. 'Witch-hazel was never supposed to be swallowed. No, it can be used for burns and sprains and all kinds of sore places. But it is never to be swallowed. Never, never. 'We help gentlemen after shaving—they can put our Medicine Closet Cousin over their faces and so keep their faces from feeling rough. 'Oh, we're very useful. Homes, in my opinion, aren't homes without us. 'We help headaches. We don't do people any harm either the way some horrid medicines will do. 'No, we're cool and pleasant when some of the drops of the Witch-Hazel family are put upon a big handkerchief and then put upon the aching head. 'No horrible swallowing of us! We're to be used outside and not taken inside! 'So," said the Sandman, "you may see Witch-Hazel shrubs some day and you will know that it is from the witch-hazel plants that witch-hazel comes and that Miss Witch-Hazel is going to shoot forth seeds from her fruit pods this summer. And, too, that she is already looking forward to that day!"

Natalie Kingston

The large hat has unusual possibilities in the wardrobe. Trimmings appear to impart a more feminine touch to the hats. Flowers and feathers frequently soften rather trim outlines. Side treatments are much used while in some cases the trimming appears at the back at the nape of the neck. Natalie Kingston, the "movie" actress, whose rather large hats introduce this type into favor, wears several charming models in the film, "Diamonds in the Rough."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

CAPTAIN KIDD

WHETHER it is through a grown-up who attends a masque as Captain Kidd, a small boy exhibiting his prowess with a toy sword and calling himself "Captain Kidd" or one of those periodic revivals of the legend of Captain Kidd's buried treasure, we are never without some reminder of this character who has come down to us not only in legend and tradition and fiction, but in history. For Captain Kidd, though a highly colored and romantic figure, is no fictitious character out of a fable or old play, as many people who are unfamiliar with his origin may imagine. The authentic ancestor of the modern masquerading Captain Kidd was William Kidd, a British navigator who lived from 1650 to 1701. He was a well-known trader out of the colony of New York and during the war between England and France became famous for his bravery and his skill as a seaman. In 1685 Captain Kidd received commissions from the king to capture pirates, and when, after sailing forth in his famous galleon, the Adventure, he did not return with ships, it was rumored that he himself had turned pirate and was roving the seas with his stolen treasure. Learning of this, he sailed boldly into Boston harbor and delivered to the governor a great hoard of treasure which he had captured. Nevertheless he was arrested, and history tells us, unjustly tried and hanged in London on May 23, 1701.

After Captain Kidd's death it was rumored about that he and his crew had buried immense treasure along the coast of the United States. A part of the booty of the ship Quedah was actually found secreted off Gardner's island, off Montauk Point, Long Island. (Copyright.)

Do You Know That...

"EUREKA," meaning "I have found it out," is an exclamation attributed to Archimedes, the Syracuse philosopher, upon discovering a method of determining the purity of the gold in King Hiero's crown. The story is that Hiero delivered a certain weight of gold to a workman to be made into a votive crown, but suspecting that the workman had alloyed the gold with an inferior metal, asked Archimedes to test the crown. The philosopher went to bathe and in stepping into the bath, which was quite full, noticed that some of the water ran over. It immediately struck him that a body must remove its own bulk of water when immersed. When the idea flashed across his mind, the philosopher jumped out of the bath exclaiming, "Eureka, Eureka," and then ran home to try his experiment on the crown. He reasoned, silver is lighter than gold, therefore a pound-weight of silver will be more bulky than a pound-weight of gold, and being of greater bulk will remove more water. Hence "Eureka" signifies an expression of triumph concerning a discovery. It is also the motto of the state of California.—Anna S. Turnquist. (© 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

THAT WINNING NUMBER

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

YOU could tell by the important air with which the old man shut the gate behind him that he was not merely going out for a walk but with an object.

He had been entrusted with a commission—to buy something for the boy. And it was actually Corona who was sending him. During the six weeks that Abner Foster had been living at his son's house, by repeated snubs his daughter-in-law had indicated that she had poor opinion of "Father Foster's" abilities. But the sale of children's stockings at Donaldson's, advertised in her last night's paper, was to be between nine and eleven only; in the midst of her rush to get her breakfast dishes washed and an early start the kitchen sink had sprung a leak. Such a mess! And no telling when the plumber would come.

"I'll show her I ain't in my dotage yet," grinned Father Foster to himself as he entered the store. And never did small stockings undergo such scrutiny as the four pairs selected by the old man who perched on the first vacated stool—gold specs perched on the tip of his nose.

"Your dollar purchase entitles you to a ticket in our prize pony contest," the clerk announced as she made out her sales check. "The drawing's to be in six weeks. Please fill out this card with your name, address and number of ticket for our record." Even Corona's sharp eyes could find no fault with the stockings proudly exhibited on his return.

"I forgot to give you the money," she said, "but you'll find a silver dollar in the dining-room shelf."

"I don't want any money," said Father Foster. "Them stockings are a present from me to the boy."

"Nothing of the kind," declared Corona. "Some time you can buy Bobbie a toy if you've a mind to, but you've no call to get him things to wear."

"Them stockings are my present," reiterated the old man obstinately. For he had reasoned it all out. If Corona paid for the stockings he would have to give her the pony ticket.

"And nothing doing!" grinned Abner Foster. "Bobbie's pony is to come from his grandpop and nobody else." For the fact that countless tickets were in circulation did not make a dent upon the old man's confidence that he held the winning number.

His first intention was to wait and spring the pony on Bobbie as a surprise. But the drawing would not be for six weeks, and that evening when Bobbie climbed upon his knee and coaxed for a story, he could not resist telling the wonderful thing in store for him.

"A secret just between you and me and nobody else," he said in whispered confidence. And from that time on the two were never five minutes together that they did not talk pony, while at least three afternoons a week they went downtown, hand in hand, to stand enraptured before Donaldson's window.

For in the window was a life-size effigy of a pony cut out of wood and highly colored in chocolate brown, with spots of dazling white. A pony with arching neck and tall. A spirited animal at full gallop.

"Father's perked up considerable," commented Bob Foster to his wife with a relieved sigh. "I was worried about him at first. He seemed to have lost his grip."

"Your father's an old man," said Corona. "And being turned off at the mills because of his age was a hard blow," Bob continued. "It wasn't easy, either, for him to pull up stakes and come out here to live with us."

"He ought to be thankful he had a good home to come to."

"I know. But it's kind of lonesome for the old man." His face lighted up. "He and Bobbie seem to have taken a shine to each other, though."

"Yes, since the Simpson children moved away and Bobbie has nobody to play with."

But the next morning a furniture van backed up at the house opposite where the Simpsons had lived, and that afternoon Bobbie informed his grandfather that a new little boy had come to live on the block.

"Just my size. He's sitting out on his steps now. I'm going straight over to make his acquaintance."

LIVE STOCK

MONEY IN FEEDING LAMBS AND STEERS

Financial results of feeding lambs and steers during the winter of 1925-26, have been released in a preliminary report by the department of economics and sociology, Colorado Agricultural college. The figures upon which this report is based were secured from detailed farm records kept by 19 operators in the Greeley area. In making a four-year comparison of lamb feeding and a three-year comparison of cattle feeding it is shown that the man who handles 1,000 lambs per year and 100 steers per year would have $550 total net income from lambs and $170 from cattle, or a total of $720, thus giving a return of approximately $200 per year.

Upon the face of the returns this does not appear to be a very profitable business, but it should be remembered that during the four years each operator had a home market for his alfalfa, barley and other farm raised feeds at prices as high as the local market would offer. This enterprise also provided labor for the operator and his helper during the winter. It was also possible to provide some work for the horses during a slack season of the year.

In addition to these advantages the manure produced was available for soil improvement. No credit was given to either sheep or cattle in these reports for the value of the manure. It is certain that the systematic application of farm manure to the land will result in securing larger crop yields. Larger yields increase the farm income.

When a long-time point of view is taken, and losses are set against gains, the general opinion will tally with the results shown in this report, namely, that the farmer who feeds sheep or cattle, or both, will be ahead at the end of the period. His farm will be in better condition, his crop yields will be greater and his bank account in better shape than the man who relies upon crops for his income. —R. T. Burdick, Associate Economist, Colorado Agricultural College.

First Bridal Shower Gift of Kind Hearts

The origin of the bridal shower, one of the prettiest customs that has survived the centuries, is, according to tradition, closely linked with the dowry. The story goes that once upon a time in old Holland a beautiful girl gave her heart to a miller, a young fellow who hadn't much in worldly goods, but whom every one loved because of his kindness. He was poor because he gave his bread and his flour to the needy. The girl's father forbade the marriage, and told his daughter that she could not have the dowry he had placed aside for her if she married the poor miller. He had selected what he considered a satisfactory husband for her, a man who owned a farm and a hundred pigs. The people to whom the miller had given bread heard the story and were sorry. They got together and talked the matter over. Too had the beautiful girl would lose her dowry! Couldn't they do something about it? They didn't have much money, but each one thought of a gift he or she could contribute so that the miller and the beautiful girl could marry and have their own home. They came to the girl in gay procession, one with an old Dutch vase, one with plates for the kitchen shelves, one with linens made on the hand loom at home, one with a shiny new pot. They showered her with their gifts and gave her a finer dowry than her father ever could. Many brides-to-be should be grateful to the little Dutch maiden whose shower set such a happy precedent.

Test Longer Rails

Experiments with rails of greater length than those now in use by the Japanese railways are to be conducted by that country. Because of a large number of accidents, attributed to poor rail joints and the fact that almost one-half of the maintenance cost of the government railways is spent in repairing, inspecting and bonding rail joints, the government is considering a change to a longer length rail. An order for three and one-half miles of rails 18 meters in length recently has been placed in France by the department of railways and experiments will be conducted on a road built of these rails.

His Business

In a certain case one of the counsel tried to serve his client by throwing suspicion on a witness. The first question was: "You admit you were at defendant's house every evening during this period?" "Yes, sir." "State whether you and he were interested in any special transaction, business or otherwise." "Yes, sir, we were." "Ah!" exclaimed the counsel; "then you will be good enough to tell us the nature of the business in which you were jointly interested." "I was courting his daughter."

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

GOATS AND HEALTH

A SUPERSTITION fairly common in this country and practically universal in England as well as in certain continental countries of Europe, is that, if one keeps other animals, it is a good thing to have a goat or two around also. The goats keep the other animals healthy. This is in accordance with the character assigned the goat as a bearer of the afflictions and sins of others from time immemorial. Witness the scapegoat of the Jews. Among the early races of India goats were sacrificed by the thousand at certain festivals as offerings to the deities of the lower cult and the goat as a substitute for the human sacrifice of a boy was offered to Dionysus, the wine-god, by the Greeks. In being thus sacrificed it will be seen the goat played his characteristic part, a part well expressed by a modern slang phrase voicing an old idea. When anyone is made to bear the blame for the derelictions of others we say, "He is the goat," or "It seems I am the goat." So we can see why it is well to have a goat or two about the place to take upon themselves the diseases which otherwise might be attached to the other domestic animals and to absorb our bad luck. And the goat is especially dedicated to "being the goat" for animals from the fact that he is sacred to the great god Pan, the god of the fields and farms and of the flocks and herds. In fact Pan was represented in Greek art as having the upper part of his body like that of an elderly man while the lower part was like the hind quarters of a goat. ### HUMAN STORAGE BATTERIES

THE battery refused to turn the engine over. The wiring was found to be in first-class condition, all contacts were properly made, and yet the engine would not start. Of course not; the battery had run down. One thing about an electric storage battery—you can get out of it only what you put into it.

Some persons start the venture in life with the idea that all depends upon luck and chance. If one succeeds in life's undertakings it is because favorable circumstances created opportunities. Failure is due to the absence of a chance; and that chance is a matter of sheer luck.

Those who have succeeded in life know the folly of this argument. Their experience has taught them that opportunities are not created for people so much as people create their own opportunities. The man who sits down and waits for something to turn up soon finds failure staring him in the face.

The person who succeeds in life is the one who is prepared to seize the opportunity after he creates it. Many persons have splendid chances but they lack the ability to take advantage of them. The successful man is the ready man, ready with the necessary materials at his hand.

Fifteen minutes of time have decided the fate of many an adventurer. Opportunities come on the wing, in the flash of the moment, sometimes only after a long period of time spent in creating them. He is a wise man who is able to recognize an opportunity even after he has succeeded in creating it.

Whatever is worth having in this world costs something. The most expensive price one can pay for life's success lies not in creating an opportunity but in preparation for it. There is no short cut to the shining goal of success. This preparation consists not only in becoming conversant with the principles of our chosen profession and how to apply them, but in making human contacts. In order to succeed with people we must first know them. Much time is given to the study of arts and sciences, but too little to the study of personality or which some call the human soul. This is a basic value, for upon it everything else depends. We get out of life no more than we put into it. (© 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible through the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl.

Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she had to have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 118 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon.

Girls who work in factories know just how Miss Schmidt felt. Perhaps they, too, will find better health by taking the Vegetable Compound.

Snappy Answer Left Honors With Johnson

Samuel Johnson, who received $7,850 for compiling his dictionary, had almost exhausted the patience of the bookshelves by whom he was employed, and was frequently urged to complete his engagement. Andrew Miller, who had the principal charge of conducting the publication, could not forbear acknowledging the receipt of the last sheet of the manuscript in the following terms:

"Andrew Miller sends his compliments to Mr. Samuel Johnson, with the money for the last sheet of the copy of the dictionary, and thanks God he has done with him."

To which Johnson returned this brief answer: "Samuel Johnson returns his compliments to Mr. Andrew Miller, and is very glad to find (as he does by his note) that Andrew Miller has the grace to thank God for anything."—Market for Exchange.

Will Raise $850,000

An expedition that kindles the imagination is one that will put to sea from San Diego this summer in an effort to raise a ship sunk off the California coast in 1865, when the Brother Jonathan, laden with a government pay roll of $850,000 for Civil war soldiers, foundered. . . . The vessel has been definitely located, and it is thought that by means of recent improvements in methods of deep-sea diving the wreck can be reached and her strong boxes opened. It is said that war records which were aboard the craft would be of great benefit to the pension department should they prove to be decipherable.—New York Evening Post.

Two-Piece Sports Dress for Summer

Jacket Adds Smart Touch to Youthful Frocks Now in Limelight

The vogue that introduced a coat for every dress in the ensemble mode for spring and summer has added a jacket to many of the sports frocks that will make the summer an extremely smart one sartorially.

In general, the youth-giving novelties that exert so wide an appeal are found incorporated into the group of summer clothes labeled sports. As a matter of fact, sports clothes are worn for occasions other than active sports, and particularly in the summer time make their appearance at all times except for strictly formal occasions.

In general, the straight line is strictly adhered to in sports models, but it generally possesses smart detours in achieving this straight effect. The sports ensemble is extremely important. Often several colors and fabrics are combined, but they are always worked together to maintain the basic ensemble idea.

Both one and two-piece modes prevail in chic, but almost always they possess a plaited skirt, box plaits being most often used. The blouse is either straight or broken by a bolero movement. Neckline is V-shaped, square or round. Geometric lines are the basis of the sports mode with vertical, horizontal, diagonal, curved, diamond-shaped or zigzagged lines shown through tucks, pipings, stitchings, braid and cut.

The jacket that plays so important a role in the sports mode may accom-

Dress for Women Who Wish to Look Slender

Flattering to many, but especially to those who wish to look slender, is the long surplus line of this dress, says the Woman's Home Companion. Continuing below the skirt edge it gives an impression of greater height and at the same time furnishes the skirt with the broken hemline so smart this season. There are many possibilities in the double fold of fabric that is set on the front band with hemstitching. It may be matching, contrasting or harmonizing in color. Interest in the back centers on the oval yoke. The set-in belt gives a tailored look and holds the dress firmly in place. Any of the sheer fabrics would be successful in this dress, especially those with a slight body, such as chenille or crepe roma.

Floral Prints for Wear at the Bathing Beaches

Hand-blocked linen, printed radium and taffeta are mentioned as the favored materials in bathing suits for the summer. The array of new bathing apparel offered is diversified and interesting in pattern and style.

Illustrative of the hand-blocked linen suit is a straight model with black and white wavy background and large cluster of colorful flowers in the center of the front. Another, in multi-colored blocks, repeats one of the bright hues in yoke and hemline trims of taffeta, inserted along the edges of the squares in step effect.

The printed radium suits elect flowered patterns, certain versions of the floral type of decoration are newer than the futuristic theme. One of the former group, simple of silhouette with a plain-color tie and long cravat, while a flowered French crepe introduces the finely tucked vestee of color, outlined with lines of black. The floral theme is again evident in the indorsement of cretonne, but in allover effect, notably a coat style with notched revers and flared skirt section, and also in the application of cretonne motifs on plain-color suits. One, of green taffeta, has cretonne applique above the hemline, further decoration appearing in bandings of black, which describe a swastika motif, and outline a square neckline.

The plain suits are noted frequently to include sections of other colors as trimming usually geometrical in character. Particularly effective is one of black satin etolle, with a deeply pointed border of white taffeta above a gray taffeta hem. The vogue for black and white receives further indorsement in the case of a white taffeta suit, with panels and pipings of black satin. The extremely abbreviated length is observed in a model of scarlet satin, a mere coat, which is worn over a white jersey.

A wide variety of crepe de chine suits is vividly illuminated with Russian decaline work in scattered figures or florals. Practically all suits may be had with matching caps, bags, omes and other accessories to complete the effective beach ensemble stressed here.

Capes and coats of wool jersey are also being featured and here, again, floral motifs are often applied as trimming. In some instances bath prints are employed. Another group of coats is developed of coated silks, such as pongee, crepe de chine or shantung and in blocked linen.

Along Classic Lines

The Washington memorial, near Alexandria, Va., is modeled after the ancient towers which were used as beacons to guide mariners into harbor, as exemplified in those of Rhodes. The building will consist of four colonnaded stories of diminishing perimeters, tapering from the base through successive stages to the observation tower provided at the top.

Explaining Wars

The cause of the war was due to gaseous trails left in the earth's atmosphere by Halley's comet in 1910, declared a speaker at a meeting in Washington. The gas made humanity nervous, suspicious and irritable, he said, and if another war occurs, in 1923, the Pons-Winnicke comet of last June must be blamed.

Without considerable imagination, classical music can't be understood.

The end of wisdom is consultation and deliberation.—Demosthenes.

pany a frock in exact fabric and color and may introduce both new tone and material.

Jean Arthur, motion-picture actress, appearing in the film, "The Poor Nut," has selected a smart sports outfit which introduces the new jacket treatment. It is an open jacket smartly scalloped at the edges and is in a lovely shade of blue, while the frock itself is of white. An artist's bow of dotted silk is worn at the neck, and also forms a colorful handkerchief in the jacket pocket.

Buttons to Ornament Short Sports Jackets

On some of the short sports jackets a few buttons are used as an ornamental detail or, in those cut in the tuxedo style, one or two as a fastening far down in front. In the matter of trimming other ways are employed by the different designers, French and American, particularly in these lighter versions of sports dress. Nothing is really elaborate, of course, but a touch of something that adds decorative detail is shown in many of the better sports costumes. On some are shown a bit of needlework, embroidery, cross-stitch, or cloth patterns appliqued. The peasant embroidery and crochet edgings are particularly good, and besides these are braid, ribbon in bands and motifs and leather. On a swagger sports suits from Martial et Armand snakeskin is added as a narrow border all around the baited jacket and on the pockets, collars and cuffs.

Velvet Evening Coats

Velvet evening coats at the Paris fashion centers are either in black or in the light shades such as pale green, pink and blue, and are worn over matching frocks of chiffon or crepe. Deep blue seems to be coming into favor, and the lining of lame or broche coats is either silk velvet or panne. The lame and broche coats appear in greater number than the velvet.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Army Lieutenants Fly to Honolulu, and Byrd Hops to France.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
TWO more great feats in aviation marked the week, and both were American accomplishments. First and of more importance was the flight of Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger from San Francisco to Honolulu. Taking off from the Oakland municipal airport in a huge three-engine Fokker monoplane early Tuesday morning, they reached Wheeler field on the island of Oahu, their destination, in 26 hours and 50 minutes. The distance is about 2,400 miles.

The army aviators thus made the longest transoceanic airplane flight on record, and made it without mishap. The passengers and crew of the steamer Socomo, 740 miles from the Golden Gate, were electrified when Maitland brought his plane out of the mist and dropped to within 200 feet of the water as he passed by. He had then been more than nine hours on his way.

The next report from the flyers came from the steamship President Pierce, 1,100 miles from California, which reported hearing their radio signals for a bearing to be sent to establish location. At 3 a. m. the plane reported that the flyers were 700 miles from Honolulu.

The landing was made on a rain-soaked field. The huge plane taxied the entire length of the field. Then, circling it, came back to the front of the review stand, where army, navy and civil authorities were waiting to extend congratulations to the flyers. The crowd went wild with joy and enthusiasm. Guns thundered in salute as the plane stopped before the reviewing stand.

Colonel Howard, department air officer, rushed to the plane, grasped Maitland's hand and shouted, "You did it, and I congratulate you." Maj. Gen. Edward M. Lewis, commander of the Hawaiian department of the army, clasped hands with Maitland and Hegenberger. The eyes of both aviators filled with tears as he said: "My boys, I congratulate you."

Maitland said that the radio beacon on the island of Maui failed to function. "Our compass," he said, "is what got us here. If we hadn't had that we should have been out of luck."

The flyers were presented to Gov. Wallace H. Farrington, Rear Admiral John B. McDonald and other dignitaries, who loaded them with beautiful Hawaiian flowers and leis, the native emblems of greeting.

Cablegrams and radio messages of congratulation were showered on the happy young men, and they were especially pleased by a congratulatory wire from Commander Byrd, who started by radio of the success of his flight while himself winging his way across the Atlantic. Army officials in Washington were especially pleased by the achievement of two of the army's big game, which supplemented the already successful attempt of Commander John Rodgers of the navy in the fall of 1925. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, in his dispatch to the House, said:

"I can't help alluding to the fact that coming on top of the Byrd polar flight and the Lindbergh and Chamberlain flights, this latest flight again demonstrates the reliability of the airplane engine and represents a distinct advance in aviation."

dense fog and low-lying clouds which completely cut off the vision of the aviators.

Friday morning at 8:30 the aviators made a forced landing on the beach near Hayra. The plane was wrecked, but none of the men was injured. The America approached near Paris at 3 a. m. Friday, and in the rain and fog lost its way and turned to the north, finally coming down within 850 feet of the beach at Ver-sur-Mer.

AFTER several days in Washington and New York, conferring with officials and business men concerned with aviation development, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew back to St. Louis for the purpose of getting his Spirit of St. Louis and making a non-stop flight to Ottawa, Canada, where he was to be the guest at the jubilee celebration of the Confederation of Canada. In New York, Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, made this announcement:

"Arrangements have just been completed under which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will undertake a country-wide airplane tour of the United States for the purpose of furthering public interest in aviation development."

PROSPECTS are growing brighter for some good results from the naval limitation conference in Geneva. Great Britain had been steadfastly demanding virtual revision of the Washington agreement in a way the United States could scarcely accept, and Japan caused surprise by coming out in favor of the British proposals. But unanimity is a requisite and the American delegates showed not the slightest sign of yielding. Then the British apparently, though tactically, recognized they could not put across their plan, though they still hoped that the question of the size of battleships might be discussed at a plenary session of the conference. The technical committee announced that "a considerable measure of agreement between the three delegations" concerning destroyers had been revealed.

In the matter of cruisers, the English delegates proposed that those vessels be divided into two classes. Only a limited number of the 10,000-ton 8-inch gun cruisers would be allocated, the balance of the cruiser tonnage going into ships below 7,500 tons, carrying 6-inch guns. These lighter ships would be worthless to the United States because it is without naval bases and the ships are incapable of accompanying a battle fleet into combat operations any great distance from a base. As the technicians decided against any limit for small craft under 600 tons, the Japanese and British could set the seas swarming with little boats jammed full of torpedoes, any one of which is capable of disabling a capital ship.

SACCO and Vanzetti, the Massachusetts radicals whose conviction for murder has attracted international attention, will not be executed during the week of July 10. Governor Fuller, who has been studying the case carefully, has granted the men a reprieve of 30 days. He has also given a 30-day respite to Celestino Madeiros, sentenced to death for another murder. Madeiros has asserted he was a member of the gang that committed the murders for which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted and that they were not involved.

THREE years of trouble over the defunct Grain Marketing company and the Armour company was in a fair way to be ended when petitions were filed with the Illinois commerce commission to bring into existence a corporation to control eleven grain elevators in place of the Grain Marketing company. The Armour Grain company asks permission to quit operating public warehouses in Chicago and the Rosenbaum Grain corporation asks authority to enlarge its business and to issue $2,500,000 of bonds. The documents are in the names of the Export Elevator company, an Armour property, and the Postal Elevator company, a Rosenbaum organization.

island possessions would be gathered together under one civil department head. He told this to the correspondents after his conference with Governor General Wood. The idea is not new and has been suggested before by Mr. Coolidge.

The President said he had no change in Philippines policy in view as a result of his conversation with General Wood. He was encouraged, he said, by the report that the general gave as to conditions. The general result of the administration's attitude has been, he finds, an acceptance of the policy on the part of the Philippine people (political leaders excepted) and a feeling of security and stability. He pointed out that 96 per cent of the local government is in the hands of the natives; they hold nearly all the offices and carry on most of the government.

SOCIETY, especially in the East, was intensely interested in the news that Miss Grace Vanderbilt, twenty-seven-year-old daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and Henry Gasaway Davis III, a mining engineer, had eloped in New York and were married first in the municipal building and later in the Little Church Around the Corner. The bride, according to report, had been sought in marriage by many men of high position, including Prince George of England, Lord Iver Spencer Churchill and the marquis of Donegal. Her brother said that General and Mrs. Vanderbilt were strongly opposed to her marriage to Mr. Davis. The groom is a grandson of former Senator Davis of West Virginia. He was graduated from Princeton in 1924 and has been a post-graduate student at the Columbia school of mines.

REPRESENTATIVES of 45 nations gathered in Stockholm for the twenty-fourth convention of the International Chamber of Commerce. King Gustaf and the crown prince attended the opening session and the delegates were given a reception in the royal palace. The 400 German delegates were greeted with special warmth by the other members, since this is the first time Germany has been represented at the international business parliament.

INDICTMENTS against three of the most prominent bankers in Los Angeles in connection with the investigation of the overissue of stock of the Julian Petroleum corporation were returned in Superior court there. Fifty-five others already had been indicted in connection with the case.

The indicted bankers are Charles F. Stern, president of the Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings bank; John E. Barber, president of the First Securities company and vice president of the Pacific Southwest; and Motley H. Flint, executive vice president of the Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings bank. Stern and Barber are charged with felonies—three counts of embezzlement and another count of accepting a banker's bonus. Flint is charged with usury.

SHANGHAI cablegrams say that the Nationalists suffered a tremendous reverse at the hands of the northern army, losing hundreds of thousands killed, wounded and captured. But not much reliance should be placed on such stories until they are confirmed. Peking dispatches indicate that Chiang Kai-shek's offensive in Shantung is in full swing. Japanese along the Shantung are in a state of panic and calling for troops from Tientsin. The moderate branch of the Nationalists has formally charged the Japanese with breach of neutrality, asserting that Japanese troops were sent into Shantung province for the purpose of enabling Marshal Chang to maintain the dictatorship of North China. Immediate withdrawal of the troops was demanded.

BOTH major political parties were warned by the Anti-Saloon league that, under the league's guidance, the drys in both parties will be organized to demand the nomination of "satisfactory" candidates for President and congress and on state and local tickets in the 1928 campaign. The proclamation of the league, issued by its general counsel, Wayne B. Wheeler, asserts that "the Anti-Saloon league will use its well-established and successful methods in the coming political campaign."

Reforestation the Only Practical Solution of the Flood Problem

By CHARLES LATHEROP PACK, American Tree Association.

OUR population is increasing at the rate of about 1,000,000 a year. Despite the food situation and the population increase, trees at the headwaters play a big part in flood control. Western farming, the backbone of the country, faces the danger that some time in the future much of the vegetation and forest cover on the watersheds of that section may entirely disappear. Trees break the force of the rainfall, and the forest floor, acting as a large sponge, absorbs rain, permits gradual run-off and aids in preventing floods. In the bread basket of the nation drained by western streams the run-off water is not absorbed as it should be.

This condition helps to cause floods. The available supply of rain water needed for the thirsty crops is wasted as flood water. This is one of the lessons of deforestation set forth in the forestry primer which we published to mark 1926 the semi-centennial of forestry. Farmers suffer on account of the lack of irrigation water. Towns and cities that depended on the mountain streams for their water supplies would be handicapped severely. In a thousand ways, a deficient water supply, due to forest depletion, causes hardships in the region exposed to such misfortune.

Reforestation must enter into any plan for control of the Mississippi. Every acre of land in this valley, the nation's bread basket, contributes to flood conditions. Failure to hold the absorptive surface soil of fields and pastures against the denudation of erosion has contributed to a much more rapid removal of the water that falls upon these eroded lands. The census figures, coupled with the flood lesson, put before you a problem the country must solve. This backbone of the nation must not be broken.

Public School System Not Doing Anything to Reward Character and Ability

By DR. LITTLE, President University of Michigan.

Our public school system is not democratic because it has done nothing to reward character and ability. It moves the great mass of students forward all together, treating all exactly alike. All receive merit marks for doing a specified amount of work, but few are checked up as to their full capacity. A passing mark is the goal of all. "What can I do to get through?" is the one question we have put in every student's mind. That isn't democracy. That plan doesn't breed leaders; it kills them.

The universities of the country have been suffering from an aggravated case of academic dry-rot. It is a tragedy for a young democracy when its institutions of learning suffer from crystallization.

We must learn that we cannot get real scholarship by hunting for it any more than we can find happiness by conducting a deliberate search for it. True scholarship is a byproduct of life spent in self-forgetfulness and service. It is not attained by cramming a certain number of facts into one's head through the medium of textbooks.

A college education, at least in a college supported by public funds, is the right only of those who have vision, ability and sincerity of purpose. Our system should attempt to reward those who are living up to the full measure of their ability. We must give less attention to academic standing and look for courage, sincerity and honesty in a boy or girl. Those are the things you can build upon. They lead to greater attainment. And they have been left out of our academic system entirely.

"America for the World" Better Slogan Than "America First"

By BISHOP THIRKIELD, Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The United States is in peril of failure in meeting those stern conditions of moral fitness, not to speak of brotherhood, in her relations to South America and Mexico because of her adherence to the Monroe doctrine.

These nineteen republics charge that the Monroe doctrine is interpreted in terms of imperialism to secure to the United States political and commercial ascendancy over South America. They charge that it is not Pan-American but a United States doctrine, in whose application they do not share.

The United States, through its selfish interpretation of entangling alliances with other nations is in danger of shutting herself out from the brotherhood of the world.

We must do away with the slogan: "America First." This may mean America damned to selfishness, isolation and shame. Let the slogan rather be: "America for the world."

Failure of Children Too Frequently Fault of Those in Authority

By DR. ALBERT W. BEAVEN, Rochester (N. Y.) Minister.

It is the fault of the parents, the Sunday school teacher, the preacher and all the rest of us if the children fail. You can't hold eight-cylinder power with a five-cylinder control, and that's what's the matter with the young people today. We are putting into our children's hands a great deal of power without an increase in those spiritual and moral ideals which will help them to control that power.

You give them five times as much spending money as they used to have, high-powered machines, social culture, unlimited freedom, and that calls for a high degree of moral ideals to help them to steer straight. There is nothing our young folks need so much today as the ideals of religion. A good moral character on the part of the majority of our citizens is not to the interest of the few, but it is everybody's job, for every honest man pays the bills of the deadbeat and the criminal.

Really, Criticism of the Rising Generation Is Not Warranted by Facts

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, Newspaper Publisher.

I am not one who finds anything to criticize in the rising generation. I think it is a wonderful generation, the most wonderful the world has ever seen; and this conclusion, when you think of it, is but natural and logical and unavoidable.

We know from researches in history and archeology that the human race has continually improved. And how has it improved? How could it have improved except by advancement and improvement of each succeeding generation over the generations which preceded?

The fact that these young people differ from their elders in some things is not necessarily an indication of error; it may be the exact measure of their superiority.

POULTRY

CULLING CHICKENS AIDS BUILD FLOCK

It seldom pays to raise a weak or crippled chick. One of the secrets of successful poultry culture lies in discarding weaklings as soon as found. Often the owners of chicks are the "chicken-hearted" to kill weak chicks but they should consider that such action is really more humane than nursing sick or crippled ones along, letting them die later after they have consumed a lot of food and a lot of labor has been spent on them.

Generally speaking, weak chicks are the result of some specific trouble. Often it is a disease such as white diarrhea or coccidiosis. Such diseases spread through droppings, and leaving weak chicks in the flock invite further spread of disease. If the trouble is caused by some fault in management or feeding, it is usually best to cull out the weak birds and try and correct the fault.

Culling chicks helps to rid a flock of weak vitality. On several occasions we have had letters from our readers telling about white diarrhea in their chicks this year, and later in the letter they mention that they had a little trouble last year. They have saved birds that recovered from the disease, and they have spread the disease to chicks this year through the egg. These diseased chicks have, in turn, spread the disease to their mates with heavy loss.

Good feeding and management must be combined with culling. Even the best chicks cannot make a satisfactory growth if they do not have the proper feed. Culling helps owners who practice proper feeding and management.

Duck Eggs Incubated in Much Same Way as Hens

Duck eggs are incubated in much the same way as are hen eggs. The temperature of the machine should be kept at 101 to 102 for the first five days, after which it should be kept as near 103 as possible. After the first five days the eggs must be turned and watered daily. A great deal of water is used, many people sprinkling so much on that it runs out of the bottom of the incubator. The period of incubation is 28 days.

A good feed mixture is the following: 200 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds low-grade flour, 100 pounds bran, to which is added 10 per cent of beef scraps. If milk is available, the beef scraps may be reduced. Plenty of sand and green feed should be provided at all times.

Of Much Importance to Keep Chick Rations Dry

Each year finds an increasing number using a factory-mixed or home-mixed mash in the starting and growing of their chicks. The use of a feeder or mash hopper is a part of this method of feeding. If the feeder is placed outside the house it is very important to see that the top and sides of the feeder are tight. Keeping the mash or starter dry is very important. There is nothing worse for young chicks than sour, wet mash. It is frequently a cause of digestive trouble that stunts the growth of a large number of chicks, even if no death loss results.

Chick Precautions

- Avoid moldy litter or feed of any kind.
- Kill all weak, crippled or deformed chicks.
- Get chicks out on the ground as soon as possible.
- Feed sparingly, but often, during the first two weeks.
- Be sure chicks are not chilled while being transferred to brooder.
- Be sure the house and all equipment is thoroughly clean and kept clean.
- Do not remove chicks from incubators until they are at least thirty-six hours old.
- Remember that crowding means losses with the youngsters. See to it that they have ample room at all times in their brooders or hovers.
- Do not feed chicks before they are forty-eight hours old. They will eat, and may appear hungry, but they are better off with no other feed than that provided by nature for at least 48 hours after hatching.
- Be sure your brooder stove is regulated before chicks are placed under hover.
- New ground is far safer for chicks than ground where poultry has been previously grown.
- Plenty of green feed and milk are essential for the natural and normal development of the baby chick.
- Don't allow the chicks to become chilled. Keep them growing by feeding wholesome ration.

Douquet and Braddock

ILLUSTRATION OF BRADDOCK's army, painting by C. Schweser, in the foreground of America, The University Press

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

NE hundred and seventy-two years ago (July 9, 1755), there occurred within the present city limits of Pittsburgh a battle which was one of the greatest defeats ever inflicted upon an army of white men by their red enemies. An army of 1,500 British regulars and provincials, commanded by Gen. Edward Braddock, marching to the capture of the French Fort Duquesne, was met on the banks of the Monongahela river by a force of less than 900 French and Indians and utterly routed with a loss of nearly 900 killed and wounded. Thus Braddock's defeat became a high spot in American school history.

Eight years later another army of British regulars and colonials, numbering 450 men and commanded by Col. Henry Bouquet, was marching through the forest only a few miles away from the spot where the unburied bones of Braddock's men still littered the ground. They, too, were on their way to this same fort at the forks of the Ohio, only it was now in the hands of the British and was called Fort Pitt instead of Fort Duquesne. But it was closely beleaguered by the enemy, the warriors of the great chief Pontiac, and if Fort Pitt fell a veritable red wave of destruction would sweep over the border settlements of the Quaker colony. If it held out until Bouquet arrived, that danger would be greatly lessened.

Twenty-five miles from their goal, on the banks of a little creek called Bushy Run, the soldiers were attacked by Indians. There, on August 5 and 6, 1763, occurred one of the most brilliant victories ever registered by an army of white men over their Indian foes and one of the most decisive defeats that the red man ever suffered. It was due solely to the skill of Col. Henry Bouquet, a Swiss soldier of fortune.

Braddock's defeat is a familiar word to everyone. You will search the schoolbooks in vain for mention of Bouquet's victory. Such is the inconsistency of history!

The story of Gen. Edward Braddock is also an example of the injustice of history, especially the so-called "popular history." For more than a hundred and fifty years "popular history" has done him a grave injustice, has painted him as a strong-willed professional soldier, scorning advice, a stubborn fool rushing to a well-merited destruction. Fortunately for his fame, modern historians have revised that estimate and one of them, no less an authority than Archer Butler Hulbert, has even declared that Braddock's defeat should really be Braddock's victory, because it was the ability of the British as demonstrated by this unfortunate general, to make a road across the country from the Potomac to the Ohio and to make a second three years later that really won the Ohio country. It has remained for other historians to correct many of the other utterly distorted ideas about this "bloody business" of Braddock.

By digging up contemporary documents long hidden away in musty archives, they have proved that, contrary to all the statements of "popular history," Braddock did not fall into an ambush, that he did not scorn the advice of Washington and other colonials, that he did not throw away the only chance to win a victory after his army was attacked by driving his soldiers back into line, instead of letting them fight from behind trees as they tried to do. A study of the map of this engagement which appears in Parkman's "Montcalm and Wolfe" will dispel at once that ambush theory.

COL. HENRY BOUQUET

Recent biographies of Washington show that Braddock did take this young Virginia colonel's advice and that he profited by it. As for the charge that it would have been better to have let men fight from behind trees, military experts have declared that Braddock did the only possible thing to do when he attempted to accept his losses, form a column, and push his way forward out of the vise in which his army was caught.

Apparently the earlier generation of historians thought it necessary to build up the reputation of Washington and his other colonials by running down those of Braddock and his British subordinates. Certainly this was not necessary in the case of Washington, for a simple recital of the fact is enough to show the brilliance of his achievement in this affair. It is now generally admitted that one of the contributing factors to the disaster was the jealousy and lack of co-operation shown by the various colonial governments and that under the circumstances his expedition was doomed from the start. If Americans can take pride in the part played by any of their fellow Americans, Washington and Franklin are about the only ones entitled to their admiration. Modern historical scholarship has revealed Edward Braddock in the light of a man who, for all of his faults, was a real military leader, as the victim of circumstances and as a man who deserves better from history than the odium which so long has been attached to his name.

When we see how unjust history has been to Braddock, the defeated, it is little to be wondered at that it has not done better by Bouquet, the victor. In considering his achievement in relation to the circumstances under which he fought, his gallant fight and the forces which he had at hand to wrest victory from what seemed to be certain defeat, it is not saying too much to rank him among the great captains of American history. Picture if you can the situation in which this leader found himself on that hot August night, away out on the western frontier of Pennsylvania. Encamped upon a low barren hill to which they had been driven after the attack that morning, his little force of 450 men were posted on the slopes in a large circle. In the center of the circle lay 85 desperately wounded officers and men. In the blackness of the forest which surrounded Bouquet's army on every side were hidden Indians three or four times as many as the whites. Flushed with their recent successes in the capture of a number of British army posts and remembering the great victory which they had won over Braddock, who had more than three times as many men as did Bouquet, the savages were confident of another victory. Outside of the circle lay the bodies of some 25 soldiers, killed in the fighting during the day. On the hill there was suffering from heat and thirst and undressed wounds, for there was not a drop of water to be had.

This was the situation which Bou-quet faced at the dawn of August 8. There was no hope for rescue either from the tiny force which garrisoned Fort Pitt and which was praying for his arrival, nor from any of the posts which lay behind him. He must fight it out by himself. Defeat meant the annihilation of every man in that little army and a horde of blood-mad savages sweeping eastward with tomahawks and scalping knives against the women and children crowded into the unprotected towns behind him. With the coming of daylight the Indians resumed their attack and slowly but surely the plunging fire of the Indians cut down the number of defenders on the hill. At last, Bouquet, seeing that destruction was inevitable if this type of fighting continued, resolved to attempt one risky maneuver and wager everything on one desperate chance.

If he could get the enemy out into the open long enough to give his Highlanders an opportunity for a bayonet charge, he believed that one such decisive stroke might end the affair. Explaining clearly to his men what he wanted them to do, so there would be no mistake, the colonel ordered the two companies of Highlanders to withdraw suddenly from the line, retreat rapidly across the hill, until they reached the little ravine which ran along one side of it, advance down this ravine and be ready to attack from it when necessary. As the Highlanders did this, the Indians, seeing the maneuver and believing it to be the beginning of a retreat which would give them a chance to fall upon the rear of the retiring column, abandoned their cover and the whooping mob of savages came charging out into the open and like a thunderbolt struck the weakened line which had been extended across the hill to replace the Highlanders. Under the terrific onset this line gave way, but just in the nick of time the Highlanders came charging out of the ravine and fell upon the rear of the Indians. As they bore down upon the howling red men with their flashing steel the Indians realized that they had been trapped. Then Bouquet put the final touch upon his magnificent tactics.

Once more taking a desperate chance, he again broke his line and threw two companies of light infantry out of the circle on the other flank. The flying Indians, retreating before the Highlanders, ran squarely into the infantry and withered away before the volleys which swept their line. A few moments later the savages had fled, leaving Bouquet in full possession of the field. It had been a dearly bought victory for the gallant colonel. Nearly a fourth of his force had been killed and wounded, but he had saved his army and with it he saved Pennsylvania. As he advanced toward Fort Pitt he met but little opposition from the Indians and when he relieved that fort he sounded the knell to the high hopes of the great Pontiac. Within a year Pontiac's conspiracy had collapsed entirely, and the last threat to English occupation of the North American continent was ended.

Potential of Babyhood

Consider the power of human personality. In a tiny bundle of flesh that we call a baby there lies dormant power sufficient to lift the entire race to loftier heights and turn the course of history into fairer ways. The baby grows to manhood becomes a soldier leading his country's troops to victory in the hour of apparent defeat; an orator, grasping a nation with his eloquence; a sudden composing strains destined to thrill unborn generations; an inventor whose creative genius will enrich the world and make life easier and more abundant for hundreds of millions.—Psychology Magazine.

Oldtime Gambling Game

Hieronymus is an old gambling game which was often played at fairs. The layout usually consisted of a piece of cloth with figures on it from 1 to 6. The players placed their money on the numbers. The operator shook three big dice in a dice cup, then turned the cup down on the board. When the cup was lifted the numbers displayed on the dice were the winning numbers.

Show Dog Vaccination Stamping Out Rabies
Paris.—Vaccination of dogs has done much to stamp out rabies, it was agreed by scientists attending a recent rabies congress at the Pasteur Institute. Japan, Italy and the United States, it was said, had vaccinated several hundred thousand dogs. The results have shown that dogs so treated developed rabies in only a small percentage of the cases. This vaccination, however, is said to give only temporary protection. It must be repeated every year to be effective.

PROPER TIRE INFLATION

"Tire mileage life and service depend on several factors according to the local Firestone dealers in Pinckney.

"These factors include tire, driver, roads, and last but not least, on using tires large enough for the heaviest load placed on them at any time and keeping them inflated to the correct pressure.

Nearly every day some one will say to us, Why do some people get 25,000 miles from their tires when the best I ever get is around 10,000 miles? How do you account for that?

"The trouble is not with the tires, but with the way they are overloaded or underinflated. Nothing man made or mechanical device can stand up under great abuse. The remedy is to provide tires large enough for the maximum load that may be placed on them and to keep them properly inflated.

Reasonable care and regular inspection of tires for minor injuries and checking of air pressure will enable the motorist to get the most mileage and useful service.
