FALLS FROM BARN ROOF

M. B. Hubbard who owns the Will Bland farm west of town was quite badly hurt last Friday afternoon. He was on the roof of his barn applying tar to the roof when in some way he lost his balance and fell to the ground, sustaining a broken hip and other injuries. He was taken at once to the U. of M. Hospital at Ann Arbor where he submitted to blood transfusions and other treatment. According to reports he will recover although he is still in a very serious condition.

HISTORY AND HISTORY

Dexter, Mich., July 19, 27

Editor Dispatch:

Please let me call attention of your readers to the writing by Elmo Scott Watson on Braddock, the English soldier, while the matter is yet in their memory.

The value of history depends upon sources of authority; if this writer is calling upon English authorities, (documents long hidden away in dusty archives), then in all his writings we may look for strictures upon American historians, (popular history).

If the purpose of Education is to instill in the mind of the young love for American institutions, then it should be told how in the English army in Braddock's day: commissions were sold openly. Places in the Commons House of Parliament were purchased too, and America was considered as of account only as it might be exploited, a land "peopled by our convicts."

Now, here is some "popular history" that I should like to see comment upon; Braddock was killed not by his enemies, but by a Virginian; Braddock in his ignorance, trying to align his men struck one of his Virginia soldiers in the face with the broad side of his sword and this man's brother not out of resentment but for the safety of the whole English forces, shot Braddock out of his saddle.

Again Braddock was at a complete loss for a way to transport his army to Fort Duquesne. Ben Franklin went among the farmers of Pennsylvania and secured wagons and horses and paid for them personally, and when he looked to the English authorities for his compensation he was put off and finally lost all.

Much more might be told but this will do, I fancy for the present.

Yours Truly

M. T. Kelly, Dexter, Mich.

NOTICE

The Ladies Aid Society will hold a Bake sale next Saturday in the Crookout building. The sale will begin at ten thirty A.M.

ST. MARY'S ANNUAL PICNIC

The annual Picnic of St. Mary's Parish, Pinckney, will be held at the Lapnam's Grove on Tuesday, August 1. A chicken pie dinner will be served and an interesting program will be given consisting of addresses by prominent men and musical numbers. There will be a baseball game between Pinckney and an outside team and a dance in the evening. All roads will lead to Pinckney on August.

FOWLERVILLE. HERE. SUNDAY

Fowlerville will play at Pinckney, Sunday, July 24. This team defeated Pinckney early in the season and the locals are determined to even things up with them. Last Sunday the crowd was the largest of the year and another big attendance is looked for next Sunday as Fowlerville draws well. The Pinckney team has scheduled the following games: Sunday, July 31, The Detroit Tool Shop Hardware Team; Aug. 7, Clarenceville A.C.; Aug. 14, Lansing Reo Bus Team, Aug. 21, Detroit News Tigers of Jackson. On Tuesday, Aug. 9, at St. Mary's Picnic, they will probably meet the Lansing K. of C. team.

ANNUAL CONVENTION

The twenty-fifth annual convention of the Michigan Rural Letter Carriers Association will be held at Ludington, Michigan, July 26-27-28, 1927. All rural carriers, patrons, and every one interested in the service are cordially invited to attend.

Chris O. Ludtke, Sec'y.

NOTICE

Livingston County Club members will hold their annual basket picnic at Belle Isle, July 23rd at the usual place just east of the casino.

A large attendance is desired.

GLOVER WINS FROM DUMLER.

Max Glover took on Carl Dumler of Flint at the Pinckney Opera House Saturday evening and won handily taking the first and third falls, the second going to Dumler.

Cyclone Thompson took on Wild Bill Hill in the preliminary and proved to be a bit too shifty for the latter, taking the first two falls from him. The next match will be held at the Pinckney Opera House on Wednesday July 27 when Glover will meet Frank Ford of Flint. This man recently won over Glover and the latter is out to redeem himself. Farmer Newton will also meet Ted (Strangler) Lewis of Unadilla.

Mesdames L.G. Devereaux, Irvin Kennedy and C.J. Clinton were in Jackson Tuesday.

Rev. and Mrs. H.E. Maycroft and daughter spent Monday and Tuesday in Grand Rapids.

PINCKNEY LOSES TO OAKMAN

The Pinckney base ball team dropped a game to the Oakman Boulevard A.C. of Detroit Sunday by a score of 7 to 1. Don Swartout pitched for Pinckney and although not hit hard was shy on control walking ten men. Oakman got a run in the first inning on Hanvey's hit and a Pinckney error. Neither side scored from then until the sixth when Oakman got three runs on singles by Oliver and Rutla a base on balls to Konola and a single by Karhu. The score at the beginning of the ninth was Oakman 4, Pinckney 0. In this inning Swartout lost control and walked four men and committed two hits and a Pinckney error gave the visitors three more runs. Pinckney had men on in every inning but couldn't get them around. Lewis got a hit in the first inning. Doyle one in the second, Van Horn hit a two bagger in the sixth but was out trying to make three on it. Brown hit safely in the seventh and Swartout in the eighth but their team-mates were unable to score them. In the ninth Lewis beat out a bunt and Kennedy a slow grounder, and after Brown and Shehan had flied out Doyle scored Lewis with a two base hit to left field, Kennedy being held at third. The latter tried to steal home but Bowman who was at bat lined out to the second baseman on the pitch, ending the game. All things considered, Pinckney made a good showing against the invading team which is playing three games a week and meeting all comers.

PRESS. ASSOC. MEET

About 35 members of the Livingston Genesee Press Assoc. were entertained by the General Motors Corporation at their proving grounds near Milford Saturday. A chicken dinner was served at the club house after which the Supt. of the proving grounds gave a brief talk in which he explained the purpose of the place.

The General Motors own 1245 acres of ground here which is in one solid block and has a total investment of $2,000,000.00. It is located on the Oakland-Livingston County line about four miles from Milford. The acreage was purchased for $80 per acre about three years ago, adjoining owners now ask $250 per acre for their lands. The tract is fenced and contains 12 miles of testing roads, part of which is pavement. The reasons for the purchase of this seeming extravagance are many. Testing on the public highways is becoming less practical each year and owing to the high rate of speed necessary and congestion, more dangerous. It is only a matter of time when the different states will pass laws forbidding it. Then as each test car is driven approximately 25,000 miles, some times a year is required to complete the test and many accidents occur for which the Co. has to pay the cost. In the proving grounds it is possible to drive the 25,000 miles in three months by driving night and day and in the three years of existence there has not been a single accident which is remarkable as some of the cars attain a speed of 110 miles per hour. All cars made by the General Motors have their own garages and are listed here, each one having about 20 drivers each. As the Co. makes 80,000 cars and trucks a year a tax of 25 cents on each pays for the investment. The Press Assoc. was then taken for a ride over the proving grounds in General Motors cars and the different tests to which the cars are subjected explained to them. The business meeting was then held at the club house at which Len Feighner of Nashville, Mich., State Field Agent for the Mich. Press, spoke.

OLD MR. MOON

OFF in the distance was the moon. It was a very enormous moon, too. Oh, yes, old Mr. Moon was looking his best.

"I'm in the best of health," he seemed to be saying. "Just see how I actually grow with health. In fact, I'm not a pale moon at all but a ruddy moon."

"I've color and they say that when a creature has color it means that that creature has lots of health."

"I almost look sunburned, too. You see I'm a golden-red moon, which makes me look both sunburned and the owner of a fine color. But I must explain this.

"To Be Pale Is the Moon's Usual Way."

"When I am a pale moon it does not mean that I am not well. To be pale is natural to me. Of course I like to say I look so healthy now, and healthy I do look. But I am equally healthy when pale. Some people have to go to the doctor's when they look very pale. But not Mr. Moon.

"In the first place, if I did have to go to a doctor I don't know what I would do, as there is no doctor up in the sky.

"Mr. Sun never needs a doctor. Neither do I. He is like a doctor himself and sometimes he has been called Doctor Sun.

"Yet sometimes when doctors do feel well they go to other doctors. Mr. Sun never feels poorly so he never has to think of another doctor.

"Still it would be a waste of thought, for as I've already said, there is no doctor up in the sky.

"Wouldn't it cause a commotion if some one should come up to the sky and hang out a sign over one of the clouds which would read:

"Bright Sky, M. D. Office hours from one to five and Sundays by appointment."

"Yes, it would be absurd and the poor doctor would have no patients."

"We might go to call on him to pass the time of day, or night as it were, but we would not want his sky pills if he had any, nor his sky tonics."

"I must explain why it doesn't mean anything because I am pale most of the time."

"To be pale is the moon's usual way and it doesn't mean anything like a sickness coming on any more than it means that I must add weight when I am only half a moon."

"I will get back to being a full moon in good time without having to eat fattening foods. Oh, yes, I'm a healthy moon all right."

Now the little girl spoke to her brother about touching the moon and her brother said that no one could touch the moon even though it seemed to be right on top of the hill, and even though it looked as though if one went to the top of the hill one could touch it. But he was willing to take her to the top of the hill to let her see for herself. And the little girl went with her brother.

"The moon seems to be touching that hill over yonder," she said.

"Oh, dear, how I do wish I could go and touch the moon. I would like to stroke Mr. Moon's face and perhaps if I stroked it with a feather Mr. Moon would grin and squirm as I do when my face is tickled by a feather. Oh, that would be a good joke."

Up to the top of the hill they climbed and when they got there Mr. Moon did not seem to be touching the hill at all.

In fact he was far off in the sky and yet it had not seemed as though they had seen him move.

"I can't tickle Mr. Moon's face," the little girl said, "for you were right, brother. I don't believe anyone can touch the moon."

Mr. Moon grinned to himself as the sky messengers came hurrying along to tell him what the little girl had said.

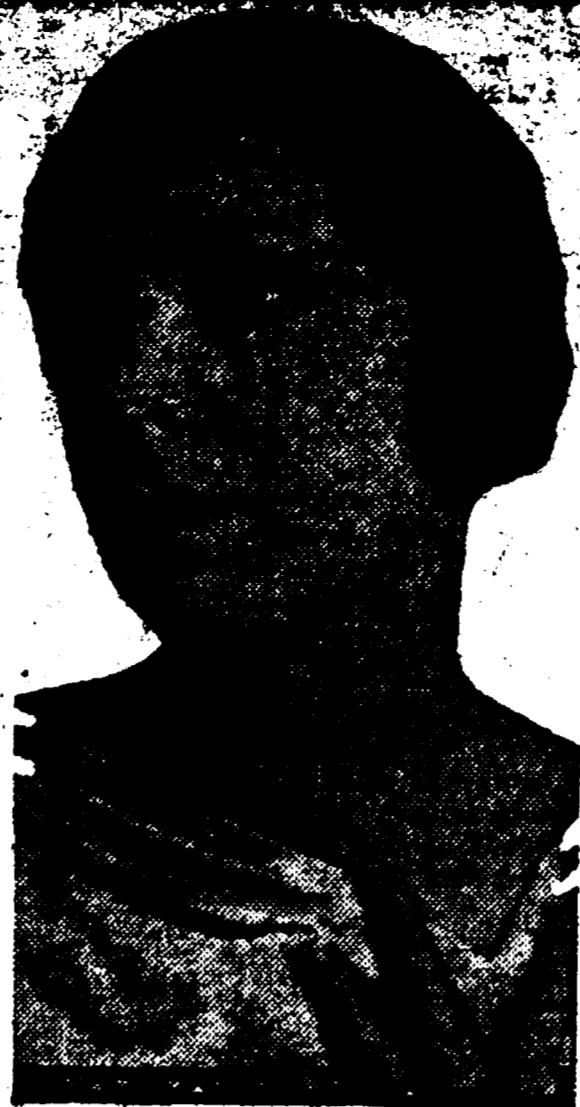

"Touch me," he said. "I should say not! I'm not proud or anything like that, but Mr. Moon is not a creature to be handled by humans. They might forget I was a moon and treat me as though I were an enormous ball or something of the sort."

"At any rate I'm not taking any chances. I'll smile at everyone, but I also say to everyone:

"Keep your distance! Keep your distance!"

"And I'll see that they do it, too!"

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

INTEGRITY

AT LEAST one-half of the business of the world is done on credit. Without integrity credit would be impossible. Remove integrity from education and the professional world would have little to offer for the alleviation of human suffering or the advancement of civilization. Integrity is the very soul of progress. The exact sciences like engineering, medicine, surgery, and many other professions have made their contributions to the advancement of the race because the spirit of integrity kept men at work in laboratories. A mistake due to the lack of integrity would play havoc with the findings of the exact sciences.

We are more dependent upon the spirit of integrity than we sometimes think. A deposit of money in the bank is safe, not because of steel vaults but because of the integrity of those who are responsible for the bank's investments. The vaults of the bank may be ever so burglar and fire proof, but unless those in control of the bank's funds are reliable and honest, our funds are not safe. We purchase a block of bonds. Our only guarantee of their genuineness is the faith we have in the integrity of those from whom we purchased them. They may be forgeries for all we know.

The very best loan is what is called a character loan. No collateral is supplied. Only the name of one to whom the money is loaned is affixed to the note. Such notes are always paid. They are more safe than any other form of investment because integrity is the very best security in the world.

The best investment a person can make in himself is to be stocked with a large amount of integrity. The supreme question in business is not, is the article of merchandise selling, but is the article worth selling? An inferior article might be sold once, but not the second time. If our constituency loses confidence in our integrity we might as well give up. If we maintain our integrity at all cost, our future both in the financial and social world is secured. The vital force which not only makes business but creates friendships and the finer things in life is INTEGRITY.

Canaries Don't Like Jazz

Those who breed and train canaries for the market say that the feathered songsters will be wrecked for life if they are brought up in a jazz environment. The blare of the saxophones with their syncopated music not only spoils their voices, but their tempers. Good music on the piano or violin will help and inspire them, but the jazz stuff is just about fatal to their vocal prospects. If the hot-baby ration does that to the lowly and innocent canary what will it do to the musical nature of a youthful human student?

Editor Points to Part of "New Sex Democracy."

The judgment of time has been that it is an exceedingly difficult problem for men and women to understand each other. The male has on innumerable occasions acknowledged his inability to fathom the workings of the female mind, and this doubtful compliment has in many instances been returned. No longer, it is said, is this sentiment mutual. The modern girl understands men.

This disclosure comes from the pen of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who in a magazine article considers the changes that have transformed the romantic period into the flapper age. Chief among these causes, she says, is that men are no longer able to feel girls. The day of flattery, she believes, has passed, and dashing cavaliers "tall, dark and handsome," no longer fill the heroic role in a young maid's fancy.

Instead, the writer finds a "new sex democracy," which has brought an era of comradeship in which young people "take each other as they are and not as they believe they are," and girls no longer fall in love with the image, only to come eventually to the day of great disillusionment.

A girl now has some hand in the choice of her husband, if she does not determine upon the man and then proceed to make him hers.

There will be men who will not agree readily with the author. Many there are who will be loath to abandon the soft-turned phrase on the road to a maiden's heart. The language of lovers dates too far back to be lightly dismissed when spring is in the air, the moon is full and two young hearts register a mutual impulse. The day's outward show is more brusque than demonstrative, but it does not tell the whole story.

Nor will all men and women agree that the day has but just arrived when the maid refuses to sit idly by as the man for whom her heart has waited finally comes into her orbit. Maybe today the chase is more direct and impetuous, but there were ways in other days, and who knows but they were more effective. The "way of a man with a maid" is no more puzzling than the way of a maid with a man from the beginning of time.

No Women Gourmets

The discussion in Paris as to what is a gourmet has resulted in the claim of one well-known writer that no woman ever was one. In defining a gourmet, he says: "A gourmet is not a person, who, as some think, over-eats or overdrinks merely for the sake of eating and drinking. No, he is too particular for that. Gourmets are rarely or never 'gormandisers'—they are too particular about those two twin temples of their devotion—the stomach and the brain—real gourmets partake of but one serious meal a day. People who are always nibbling are the very opposite of gourmets, and there is no habit so unsocial or deleterious as picking at food when sitting down. That is why there may be women painters, musicians, barristers and voters, but never a woman gourmet."

Odd Toy Balloons

Toy balloons shaped like such familiar figures as Santa Claus or the Easter rabbit, as well as scores of fanciful and grotesque animals, birds and people have created a new field for inflated rubber toys. Queer cats, with a squawker concealed in them, emit plaintive howls. Another improvement on the old-time balloons is the addition of a simple valve which does away with the trouble of tying the balloon with string after inflating. The toys, which appear simple enough, are the product of complicated manufacturing processes. Sheets of special high-grade rubber are cut out by dies, one for each side of the toy, the two parts are then joined at the edges to form an airtight balloon, the designs are stamped on in colors and finally the valve is added.

Bureau Supplies Fighters

If you need the services of a first-class pugilist just ring up a bureau in Bethnal Green, England, which makes a business of supplying professional fighting men, who are as meek to masters and ferocious to his foes as a police dog. The emporium of swatters, although naturally not advertised, is being well patronized, especially by rich men's sons who had gotten into trouble and fear being blackmailed. Bookmakers also are good patrons and at general election time the firm is busy. The fees run from $5 upward, and the men who do the job are guaranteed to be not bullies, but simply strong young men who know how to use their fists.

Ready Money Always Best

I like to pay my debts promptly; not for a noble reason, but because I hear deadbeats abused so much. For fifty years and more I have heard collectors growl viciously at deadbeats; so I like to pay promptly. I not only clean up every debt I owe at the end of the month, but when possible, I prefer to pay cash as I go. No one's credit is actually as good as his money. I know hundreds of men who are being injured because collectors "talk" about them. Most of these men finally pay in full. If a man intends to finally pay his bills, it is extremely foolish to be slow about it.—M. W. Howe's Monthly.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

DIAMOND DUST DEADLY

THERE is a widespread belief today, not only among the ignorant, but among those "who ought to know better," that diamond dust, taken internally, is a deadly poison. The poisoners of the Middle Ages and after used diamond dust as an ingredient of their lethal draughts and every now and then today you will hear some one say: "Diamonds are poisons if you swallow them." Sir Thomas Overbury was poisoned in the Tower in the reign of James I by being fed arsenic and diamond dust, and his death was sacrificed quite as much to the harmless dust of diamond as to the deadly arsenic. Not many years ago an attempt was made to poison the British resident at the court of the Galkwar of Baroda by means of a like mixture.

We find this belief in the poisonous qualities of the diamond taken internally extending far back in history. But also we find that the diamond was, paradoxical as it may seem, supposed to possess curative qualities of great value. Applied externally it was highly recommended as a cure for fevers.

The diamond gets its reputation as a cure and as a poison from the same fact—that of its resemblance to ice—ice that won't melt. This gave it the character among the ancients of a refrigerative stone of great potency. Applied externally it reduced the temperature and cured a fever; taken internally it froze the intestines and produced death. The first of these superstitions we have apparently lost; the second is still with us. The idea which ended the diamond with its refrigerative qualities is akin to that which produces the "doctrine of signatures" by which plants were supposed to indicate by their markings or structure their particular place in medicine.

The 4 Things That Make

There are four qualities we look for in motor oils.

1. It must give perfect lubrication.
2. It must leave the engine in clean condition.
3. It must be economical to use.
4. It must be free from impurities that damage the engine.

On these four counts we have chosen Opaline Motor Oils and recommend them to our customers.

classes—coast defense craft of about 600 tons and fleet submarines capable of going to sea with a combat apparatus approximating 1,600 tons, were abandoned. The experts decided strictly to limit the size of the largest submarines and set 1,800 tons as the tentative maximum.

China's voice was heard in the conference for the first time when Chao Hain-chu, representative in the council of the League of Nations, made this announcement:

"It is repeatedly reported in the press of the Far East that the naval conference may also consider questions relating to China. I therefore have been requested by the Chinese national government and the people to state that the republic will refuse to recognize any decision affecting China which may be arrived at by the present, or any other conference in which China is not represented, participating equally in the deliberations."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE had a lot of fun last week, mixed up with business. In the first place he celebrated his fifty-fifth birthday on the birthday of the nation, receiving innumerable messages of congratulation, eating a wonderful cake and receiving the mounted boy scout troop from Custer. The lads presented to the President a beautiful bay mare and a complete cowboy outfit of clothing, and he promptly donned the elaborate regalia. Next day, still wearing his cowboy hat, he attended the Tri-State Roundup at Bellefourche. Mrs. Coolidge accompanied him, and they enjoyed hugely the doings of the wild riders, Indians in war dress, cowboys and trick riders gathered from all parts of the West. The Chief Executive had ignored protests from organized sentimentalists against what they called the "commercialized cruelty" of the rodeo. Wednesday Mr. Coolidge put on his chaps and took a long ride on his new mare.

Most important of the week's visitors at the summer White House was Ambassador Sheffield, who conferred with the President on the Mexican situation, reporting fully on conditions in the neighboring republic, and presumably also discussing the question of his resignation. He has been wanting for a year to give up his post and the time may be considered opportune. John J. Garrett of Maryland and Silas Strawn have been mentioned as successor to Mr. Sheffield.

COMMANDER BYRD and the other members of the crew of the transatlantic plane, America, were the recipients of many honors in Paris, and the commander was awarded the cross of the Legion of Honor. The aviators booked passage for return to the United States starting July 12. Byrd says he plans to lead a two-plane expedition to the Antarctic in the fall which will spend perhaps a year and a half in procuring information about the continent at the South pole. Clarence Chamberlin also planned immediate return to the United States by steamer, having declined to pilot the Columbia back, but Charles A. Levine said he was hunting for a French pilot who would bring him home on the big plane.

GENERAL CHEN and a large part of his Chinese army went over to the Nationalists and as a result the southerners gained possession of most of Shantung province and at last reports were, but a few miles from Tientsin. The northern forces were still holding Tientsin, the capital, and a narrow strip north of the Yellow river. Conditions in Shantung were such that Japan decided to send two thousand more Japanese troops from Dairen to Tientsin, and a hundred military railwaymen and telegraphers also were hurried into that region. This movement further enraged the Chinese against the Japanese and caused them to forget their animosity against the British.

KING FUAD of Egypt, whose sovereignty was threatened recently by Great Britain, went to London on a state visit and was received with great pomp by King George, the royal family and the government. He was accompanied by Premier Sarwat Pasha, and the British foreign office undertook to work out with him a treaty which should settle the relations between Egypt and Great Britain for years to come. This plan, however, was opposed by Lord Lloyd, British commissioner in Egypt, who believes the parliamentary regime there will collapse before long and that the British will then have to revive the protectorate. King Fuad is entirely subservient to the British, but Sarwat Pasha is said to be under the influence of Zaghloul Pasha, the Nationalist leader, who opposes the surrender of Egyptian claims to independence.

THOUGH stories of counter-revolutionary movements in Russia are often not trustworthy, those coming now are too numerous and too detailed to be ignored. The revival of the Red terror by the Soviet rulers has failed to terrify their opponents and the anti-British campaign conducted by the government does not distract the attention of the population from domestic to foreign questions. In secret meetings held in central Europe the couriers of the counter-revolution reported a tremendous increase in the disensions among the Bolshevik leaders, with a new man rising in the background as a lieutenant of M. Stalin, present dictator of Moscow policies. He is M. Ellawa, formerly a quiet member of the party but steadily gaining influence over M. Stalin, since he, too, is a former south Russian peasant. Meanwhile 50,000 counter-revolutionists have succeeded in smuggling themselves into Russian factories.

AT LAST D. C. Stephenson, former ruler of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan and now a life convict, has told to the authorities his story of alleged corruption in Hoosier politics, and the people of the state are awaiting a grand explosion. Stephenson made his revelations to Prosecuting Attorney W. H. Remy of Indianapolis, and that official declined to tell what he heard until he is ready for action. Indianapolis newspapers asserted that Stephenson "told all"; that he hit high and low officialdom; that he revealed how he managed and paid for the campaign of Gov. Ed Jackson; that he told of ruling the legislature, dictating which bills should pass and which should die; that he played a stellar role in the election of Mayor John L. Duvall of Indianapolis; that he dabbled in the election of a United States senator, and much more along that line.

On the other hand, Stephenson's attorney declared that his client's only charges had to do with the pending prosecution of Mayor Duvall. The ex-grand dragon himself said in part: "There's a little seat in the chair shop next to me that is vacant, and I expect to have company before long. I have not blown the entire lid off the Indiana situation. Remy did not insist that I do so. The rest will come later, and I promise that when the entire truth is told there will be a clean-up in this state that will startle the country and will benefit the state immeasurably."

REPUBLICANS of New Jersey, in state convention, overrode the decision of their resolutions committee and the protests of the women delegates and wrote into their platform a plank calling for a Volstead law referendum similar to that passed by the voters of New York last fall. The debate was bitter, the final vote being 67 to 18. It is believed the action will have an important bearing on the gubernatorial and senatorial elections of 1928.

The New Jersey Democrats also held their convention and adopted a platform demanding the right to make and consume light wines and beer.

ATLANTIC CITY had one of its most disastrous fires in years. Nearly one block of the famous Board Walk was wiped out and eight hotels and rooming houses went up in flames. More than five hundred persons were made homeless, and many excursionists lost their belongings.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made in an article under New York American copyright that Henry Ford has ordered his publication, the Dearborn Independent, to discontinue all articles hostile to Jewish people. Ford makes a statement which is an apology to the Jews for admitted injuries at tactics.

IN AMERICA

By FLOYD PARSONS, Professor of Economics.

IN AMERICA we find a lot of people educated so far beyond the capacity of their intellects that they live in a world of impractical theories. Then, turning in the other direction, we find that here in our own country, nearly one-quarter of our adult population cannot read a newspaper or write an intelligent letter.

Furthermore, out of 35,000,000 population between the ages of five and seventeen, 3,800,000 do not go to school. If there is any truth in the conclusions of one group of investigators that an ordinary school education doubles a child's potential earning power, then it is conservative to say that America's illiteracy bill now totals at least a billion dollars a year.

Along with the challenge of illiteracy to American education is the menace of propaganda. The educator is interested in how people think—the propagandist in what they think. And the principal desire of the educational propagandist is that people act promptly without further thought or investigation. Teachers are pulling for maturer thinking and propagandists for hastier thinking.

And the battle is one-sided. The compensation given the propagandist is many times more than that paid the professional educator. Until, therefore, we pay our teachers better money, we may expect to see propagandists winning the battle for looser thinking and hastier conclusions and a more errorful America. Each new convert to propaganda increases the army of people who refuse to think. And a nation made up of a minimum of doubters and skeptics will not make rapid advances in education. Doubt is the foundation stone of progress.

University Students Interested in Public Policies Only as Citizens

By DAVID KINLEY, President University of Illinois.

In the years since the war there has been a notable increase in the attempts to use college and university students for purposes of propaganda. Conferences have been called by individuals, "representatives" of students and institutions have been sent to attend them, and resolutions have been duly drawn up to be presented to congress or the President, or to some other public authority.

I have refused to participate in any of these conferences. I have taken the ground that if the students wish to participate, they are free to do so; that if they wish my help I will give it; but that I have no right to send one or two students, picked by myself, to any conference and say that they represent the 13,000 men and women of the University of Illinois. They do not represent them in any true sense, because they were not selected by them.

Conferences of the kind referred to have been called mainly to help on movements for or against some particular public policy. Such matters are not students' business. Their interest in those matters is their interest as citizens and not as students. Such attempts to "use" college and university students seem to me highly objectionable. In some other than English-speaking countries it has been customary for university students to interfere in governmental matters, national and international. The practice has never prevailed among university students in English-speaking countries. Such practice, in my opinion, is unfortunate and not within the province of university students.

Atmosphere of Fear From Bottom to Top in World of Business

By ANNE W. ARMSTRONG, Business Problem Lecturer.

Our great businesses are breeding atmospheres in which fear flourishes. Granite walls, marble corridors, smart uniformed guides, hushed ante-rooms, luxurious suites—the environment conspires to awe what with all its bravado is the essentially timid human spirit.

But it is not merely a question of the problem of the right kind of home-like and amiable scenery. To be candid, it is the business leader far more than the business scene that prevents business life from fulfilling more of the conditions of the good life. They have become unapproachable and cold in their personal relations with their employees. And this has made their employees afraid of them. And so there is fear in the ranks of labor in our great corporations.

But there is also fear at the top. Business leaders are plagued day and night by visions of Bolsheviks and a hundred other bugaboos. Many business men see industrial spooks everywhere and they live in a state of perpetual fear.

If it is not fear, what is the source of that savage abuse heaped upon anyone who presumes to point out a single business blemish? In Roosevelt's day, he was, at worst, a muckraker. Now even the most friendly and good-humored critic of business has become the garbage gatherer. Or he has fastened upon him the supreme epithet of condemnation—"Uplifter."

We must get rid of fear in business. It is destroying character. It is limiting production. It is keeping business back.

Speed of Modern Life Cuts Into Time for Meditation and Reflection

By DR. SELDEN P. DELANY, New York.

The breakneck speed of the Twentieth century and the ever-growing duties of a modern pastor are occupying some clergymen to such an extent that they do not have time to pray.

The speed and intensity of modern life have virtually eliminated any time which once was given over to meditation and reflection on the part of clergy and laymen. The lack of reflection is one of the greatest evils of modern life.

America needs silence and solitude. The question recently was asked: "Is the woman of leisure a danger to society?" If her leisure time is properly applied, there is no question but that such a woman would be a decided asset to society. We need more leisure in this day and age, but we also need to apply our leisure time to better ends. Religion, in its true sense, is what a man does with his solitude.

No one will doubt the effectiveness and value of two minutes of silence on Armistice day, or when the Unknown Soldier was buried in Washington. If such a short period of meditation and reflection is so effective, what a tremendous effect a period of ten or fifteen minutes a day given to quiet thinking would have upon the nation and Christianity!

Clergymen of today expect their parishioners to regard their churches as "houses of prayer," yet too often the clergyman does not observe the church as such himself. Faith and depth of character can be developed only through meditation.

POULTRY

KEEPING TURKEYS IN PROPER HEALTH

Turkeys are heir to all the poultry ailments, and treatment is about the same. But while the young are tender, the adults are able to withstand considerable hardship.

When allowed to range over fields, woods and highways they keep in the best of condition and pick up a very large portion of their feed, writes Michael K. Boyer in the Farm and Ranch. As the nature of the turkey is to roam, it does not thrive in confinement.

Inbreeding is one of the worst errors and the cause of much degeneracy among stock. Indigestion is the chief turkey trouble, and this is usually brought on by improper feeding.

Looseness of the bowels may come from bad feeding, dampness, filth, and infestation with lice.

Young turkeys are sometimes lost through rheumatism, caused by exposure, damp roosting places, too little green food, or poorly-constructed houses.

There is a difference between ordinary leg weakness and rheumatism. In the latter the shanks remain contracted and stiff, while in leg weakness they are soft. Leg weakness is brought on by a lack of muscle and bone-forming material. In rheumatism the trouble is aggravated by the meat food, which in leg weakness is needed.

Young turkeys must not be allowed to become wet. The slightest dampness is apt to be fatal. Filth will soon make short work of the youngsters.

The delicacy of young turkeys is largely due to the rapid growth of feathers. Unlike the chick, the young turkey at once starts to put out large feathers on its wings and tail, and this heavy growth has a tendency to sap the vitality from the body, leaving it an easy prey to weakness and disease. A damp soil, such as heavy clay land, is very unsuitable for rearing the young. A very cold, exposed situation is likewise unfit.

Market Broilers Need Two Weeks Fattening

It is a good plan to give the broilers that are to be marketed about two weeks of fattening before they are sold. This is especially advisable if something has happened during the brooding period to check the growth of these young birds. One way to fatten them is to confine a group of them in a small house—about 100 in a 10 by 12 house—for a period of two weeks just before selling them. Darken the house as much as possible, making sure there is plenty of ventilation. Remove any roosts or dropping boards that may be in the house and have plenty of clean litter on the floor to start with.

Feed them a wet mash of the consistency of pancake batter, composed of any of the good commercial fatteners moistened with milk. Fine cracked yellow corn or yellow corn meal and milk are great fatteners for poultry. Feed the birds three times a day in troughs, what they will clean up at each feeding. Keep water away from them so they will eat lots of mash. Watch sanitary conditions carefully, to prevent any spoiling of feed and possible disease infection. Keep everything clean.

Free Range With Grass and Shade Is Favored

As soon as the chicks are old enough to leave the brooder—from six to eight weeks—they should be placed on free range with grass and shade if possible. If white diarrhea, gape worms or the little roundworms affected the chicks last year, place the coops on new range if possible, for these diseases are not easily gotten rid of and will remain on the ground from one season to another. This is especially true of the worms. If there is tuberculosis in the old flock keep the young chicks from going over the same ground for they contract the disease easily.

Grass will furnish all of the green feed necessary during the summer if chicks are on free range.

Examine the Hens

Handle the flock. There is dependability about touch which does not belong to sight. Feeling the breast bone of a fowl is an index to her condition. Looking at her tells little of her body. A hen that is out of condition may puff her feathers like a broody hen. Wasting is common after a hard winter. Of the wasting diseases, tuberculosis comes first. Worms, lice and mites follow. The normal fowl in good health is in good flesh.

Good Chick Waterer

A good waterer for chicks can be made with a tomato can and stucco or a sirup pail and pie tin. Punch holes about one inch from the upper edge of the can or pail—from six to eight holes are plenty. When ready to use fill can or pail with water, turn the saucer or pie tin over the top, held tightly in place and invert. The water will come through the holes till the saucer or pan is full and as the chicks drink the dish will automatically be refilled.

DOG DAYS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

"STUBBY"

"SERGEANT JIGGS"

Senator Vest's Tribute

The best friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads.

The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground, where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer; he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert, he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is a constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens.

If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him, to guard him against danger, to fight against his enemies. And when the last scene of all comes and death takes his master to its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way; there by the grave side will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death.

killing of Drum. The body of Drum was laid out and four days and nights were given for the jury to make a verdict in his favor. On May 2, 1870, a motion for a new trial was granted. The original claim by Burden for damages was $50, and in the new trial in the Circuit court, Burden was given a jury verdict for $50, as was first demanded, and Drum, the old hound won.

It was in this later litigation that the big legal guns appeared. Uncle Lon Hornsby employed Crittenden & Cockrell and Uncle Charley retained Phillips & Vest and Elliott & Blodgett. This was Col. Thomas T. Crittenden, later governor of Missouri, and Colonel Cockrell, later United States senator from Missouri. Blodgett became general solicitor of the North Missouri railroad, afterward of the Wabash system. Elliott was also an eminent lawyer. Phillips and Vest were distinguished in their profession and later prominent in the public service. John F. Phillips became United States judge at Kansas City, and George G. Vest, United States senator from Missouri. Such was the array of learned counsel when the case was tried before a jury September 21, 1870. Judge Foster P. Wright was the presiding judge. Blodgett opened for Drum, followed by Crittenden and then Cockrell in opposition, all three making brilliant speeches. Oratory ran high. Then Vest spoke and won the case for the hound, for by this time the interest centered more in Drum than either Uncle Charley, the plaintiff, or Uncle Lon, the defendant.

Vest's speech has become a classic on the dog in American literature, in the case of old Drum who was accidentally shot with an overcharge of beans, when he was disturbing the pans of milk at the old home place of my grandfather, Brinkley Hornsby. Uncle Lon appealed to the Supreme court of Missouri.

So much for the facts in the myth story so often told, as to the parties involved, the story of the poor, friendless man whose hound was ruthlessly killed, and the remarkable statement that the plaintiff demanded $200 for the death of Drum and the jury awarded him $500.

Relieving Body's Tension

French gymnastics are to make the body flexible and to free it from habits of muscular tension, and relaxing exercises are used. These consist in making absolutely limp one part of the body after another, and finally the whole at once by removing all tension from the articulation.

PRINCESS AND FAIRY PRINCE

(By D. J. Walsh.)

PAULINE had just two great interests in life. One was a love for fairy stories that amounted to an enthusiasm to the nth power and the other was the absorbing passion for wandering through old second-hand shops where she bought something new and again.

The fairy tales she no longer read, of course, being grown up and now in the so-called business world. But she never could forget about fairy tales—especially the happy endings, where the girl always was found by the fairy prince and they lived happily ever after. Pauline entertained the secret belief that she, too, would some day meet a fairy prince dressed like an ordinary young American business man.

"But I'll know him for the prince when I see him," Pauline would tell herself with shining eyes as she brushed her hair to a glossy silkiness. "And there'll be no more rushing through breakfast to get a crowded street car; no more lunching in twenty minutes in a cafeteria where a thousand persons can be seated at once, reminding one of—of cows at lunch! No, and there'll be no more rushing after 5:30 to get a seat, and—oh, bah! Instead I'll be getting up in the morning, pulling the shades up high to get the morning sun, running the vacuum around to clean up nicely and cooking delectable little suppers for two—And Pauline would dream away a few minutes, in which she was the fairy princess pursued by the fairy prince.

But all of that was mere "maybe" dreaming. At the present time Pauline had only a room, third floor rear; a room which she furnished herself and kept tidy to the queen's taste. The various little trifles and curios which she had bought at the second-hand shops needed some sort of cabinet to guard them or at least hold them together. For this purpose Pauline had purchased a hanging wall-case of brilliant red lacquer.

Strangely enough, she had not noticed the long, slender space in the center of it—a space which really needed some tall, slender figure to fill it nicely. After the wall-case was in place she noticed this, but among all the little trifles she possessed there was nothing to fit the space.

The next day being Saturday she set out for her favorite second-hand shop, an excess of 55 cents in her purse. She would find something inexpensive to fill that space while she saved up for some fitting piece to take the central place in her cabinet. There was a tiny wedge-shaped jar of dull blue with dusty white figures dancing toward a sun dial. The dealer asked only 60 cents for it, which was cheap enough except that she had only fifty-five. There were little figurines, any one of which might have filled the place, but Pauline liked none of them.

"I want—oh, I don't know exactly what I want, but I'll know when I see it," she murmured. "I just want some little thing—inexpensive."

"Say, you want a figure?" asked the man shrewdly.

"I have just the thing and—and—I'll give it to you," he said excitedly. "Here—take it!"

He held up a tiny Buddha figure, which was very ugly and very heavy and—strangely enough—the exact size to fit her space.

"You not—what you call—superstitious?" he asked anxiously. "It bring bad luck. I have it three days now and," he shrugged, "not one sale. Bad-luck Buddha, they call him. A man in Minneapolis sent him to me. A man in Fargo sent it there; Seattle was before that—and bad luck, bad luck, bad luck fellow heem every-where! I—I am not what you call superstitious, and so I told my fren', but—three days and not a sale! You take heem? I give heem to you—he lapsed into broken English and dropped his head on his chest.

"I can't take it, but I'll pay—what? Fifty cents?"

"A quarter," said he magnanimously. "The man in Fargo was—killed. The man in Minneapolis found a bomb—just in time—take heem—a gift."

But in the end Pauline triumphantly carried home the little figure and still had 80 cents in her purse. It was very, very heavy, considering its size. The shop owner reluctantly agreed that it looked to him like solid silver, but in spite of that fact he was delighted to be rid of it. He even followed her to the door and said doubtfully that he hoped nothing ill would befall her as he liked to keep his regular customers!

Even that, however, failed to dampen Pauline's enthusiasm. She scrubbed it good with her hand-brush in the bathroom before she put it into the red lacquer case. Then cross-legged, she sat on her little bed at night and surveyed it. Then she shook her head in bewilderment. Why that had been said to bring bad luck, was past all understanding. Mutely sat the Buddha regarding something in the air before him. A banging on her room door startled her.

"Come," she said with an ease which she did not feel.

The door burst open and a red-headed young man stood there blinking at her in the light to which his eyes were as yet unaccustomed after

"What?" he asked, staring at the silver figure in the case.

"He has toward it, like I do, and then he popped his face with his handkerchief. 'It's all right,' he said. 'It's all right.' He twisted the nose of the Buddha now and the face poked from the backhead. He snuck down on the floor, did this red-headed young man, and from the interior of the silver figure dropped down and came out of glittering gems.

"Just like a fairy story," murmured Pauline in amazement.

The red-headed young man smiled widely. "You've said it and—" he looked at her now with a long, long look. One might have thought him incapable of moving his eyes. "I—I've chased after this silver Buddha over two continents and now I've found it and—and you, too."

Pauline stared at him.

"You'll get twenty thousand out of this," said the amazing young man. He looked quickly at her left hand, bare. "I'll—I'll be back—you'll be here in an hour!" he begged. "We could take in a movie. Old Crader told me where you lived and I—say, I got up here in just no time. Sacred jewels these are—worth a fortune outside of their intrinsic value—and—you'll be ready—in an hour!"

Pauline felt like the last scene in a "movie" thriller and as he was to go, feet she took the card he held out. She glanced at it only when he was at the door. On it it said:

F. PRINCE

Royal Detective Agency.

She went to the door and called softly: "What—what is your first name?"

"Fred," he called back. "Why?"

But Pauline did not tell him until a long time afterward anything about the princess and the fairy prince.

Nicknames Given to the Various States

Many of the states have more than one nickname. The commonest is usually given first in the following list: Alabama, Cotton, Lizard, Yellowhammer; Arizona, Baby, Sunset, Apache; Arkansas, Bear, Bowtie; California, Golden; Colorado, Centennial, Silver; Connecticut, Nutmeg, Constitution; Delaware, Blue Hen, Diamond; Florida, Flowery, Everglade; Georgia, Cracker, Empire State of the South, Buzzard; Idaho, Gem; Illinois, Sucker, Prairie; Indiana, Hoosier; Iowa, Hawkeye; Kansas, Sunflower, Jayhawk; Kentucky, Blue Grass; Louisiana, Creole, Pelican; Maine, Pine Tree; Maryland, Old Line, Free State.

Massachusetts, Bay, Old Colony; Michigan, Wolverine; Minnesota, Gopher; Mississippi, Bayou, Magnolia; Missouri, Show Me, Iron Mountain, Ozark; Montana, Bonanza, Treasure; Nebraska, Cornhusker; Nevada, Silver, Sagebrush; New Hampshire, Granite; New Jersey, Garden, Mosquito.

New Mexico, Sunshine, Spanish; New York, Empire, Excelsior; North Carolina, Tar Heel; North Dakota, Sioux, Flickertail; Ohio, Buckeye; Oklahoma, Sooner, Oil; Oregon, Beaver; Pennsylvania, Keystone; Rhode Island, Little Rhody, Plantation; South Carolina, Palmetto.

Trodden by Pioneers

A century after the first settlements in America were established it was evident that the future of the country depended upon overcoming the barrier of the Appalachian mountains and the great forests that clothed them. New colonists pushed inland along the rivers and later struck into the mighty forests from the head of navigation. They followed the Indian trails which they found, and these trails came into general use. Thus Nemacon's path, which Washington followed on his mission to the French (1754), was the forerunner of Braddock's trail (1755) and the National road. The Kittanning path up the Juniata to the Allegheny furnished the route of Fort Duquesne (1758). The Warrior's path from the Shenandoah valley through the Cumberland gap to the falls of the Ohio became Boone's Wilderness road (1769), over which Kentucky was settled, and the Iroquois trail from Albany to Lake Erie developed into the Great Genesee road.

And Garret Rent Free

The West Virginia legislature has established the post of post-laureate for that state and fixed the salary of the incumbent at $300 a year. That seems like a heap of money for a poet. The state will have only itself to blame if it turns the head of some promising young artist. Given $300, a poet who isn't too prolific can buy all of his copy paper, typewriter ribbons and postage; and outside of that he will have nothing to do but work for a living.

Sheep-Killing Dogs

After a dog has once killed sheep it seemingly becomes a mania with him and he is seldom, is ever, broken of the habit. He not only destroys sheep himself, but leads other dogs to do so. No consideration should be given to such a dog. If additional losses from the source are to be avoided, the dog should be killed as soon as his habit is known. Exchange.

Geographic Division

"Piedmont Plain" is a name used in the physiography of the United States to designate that part of the Atlantic coast plain which lies between the Appalachian highland and the low coastal plain proper. It is distinguished from the latter topographically by being more rugged and eroded with deeper river valleys and geologically by consisting of much older and harder rock strata. The change from the hard to the soft and recent formation is marked by a definite line of escarpments over which nearly all the Atlantic rivers fall in rapids or cataracts, and the line is known as the "fall line." The Piedmont plain is less defined in New England than in the southern states. It is narrowest and also approaches closest to the sea in New York and broadens southward, being about 300 miles wide in North Carolina.

Early Christian Basilica

The church of St. Apollinaris, in Ravenna, Italy, is perhaps the most important existing early Christian basilica. It was begun in 534 and is noted for its very singular circular tower, which is 120 feet high.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

In memory of Brother Charles Smith who died July 5th, 1927.

Death has again entered our Chapter Hall and has called to the Eternal Home a dear brother, who has completed his faithful labor here in ministering to the cry of the orphan, to the call of want and to the piteous cry of sorrow, and as a recompense has received the welcome plaudit, "well done," from the Great Master.

And, Whereas, the loving Father has called our beloved and respected Brother home, and he having been a true and faithful member of our Chapter, therefore be it—

RESOLVED, That—Pickney Chapter No. 145, Order of the Eastern Star of Pickney, Michigan, in testimony of its loss, be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that we tender to the family our sincere condolences in their deep affliction, and that copies of these resolutions be sent to the family.

USE OVERSIZE TIRES FOR MORE MILEAGE

"The use of oversize tires will enable many motorists to get much greater satisfaction and longer mileage than with regular tires," according to Fred Slayton of Slayton & Parker, Firestone dealers of Pinckney.

"Motor cars are equipped with tires that are ample for any ordinary use, provided they are inflated to the correct pressure. However, most motorists abuse their tires by overloading them and through failure to keep them 'pumped up'.

"Oversizing allows a much greater margin of safety, and in the long run justifies the extra expense. There are many advantages to using oversize tires, including more comfortable riding, better braking with less tendency to skid, and less tire trouble. The larger tire is not so easily cut or bruised and the tread wears much longer.

"Last but not least, the oversize tire will average far greater mileage, which in terms of cost per mile means economy. In tires as in every thing else, it pays to buy dependable, quality merchandise and Firestones have a long established reputation for being the leader in that field."

Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Livingston in Chancery at Howell, Michigan, on the 9th day of July, 1927.

It appearing from the sworn bill of complaint as filed in said cause, that the plaintiffs have not been able after diligent search and inquiry to ascertain whether the said defendants are alive or dead, or where they may reside if living or if they have any personal representatives or heirs living, or where they or any of them may reside, or whether the title, interest, claim, lien or possible right of these defendants have been disposed of by will by the said defendants, or whether such title, interest, claim, lien or possible right of these defendants has been assigned to any other person or persons.

And it further appearing that the plaintiffs do not know and have not been able after diligent search and inquiry to ascertain the names of the persons who are included as defendants without being named.

Upon motion, therefore, of Don W. VanWinkle, Attorney for plaintiffs, it is ordered that the above named defendants and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns cause their appearance to be entered herein within three months from the date hereof and that in default thereof said bill be taken as confessed by said defendants and each and all of them.

It is further ordered that the plaintiff cause this order to be published within forty days in the Pinckney Dispatch, a newspaper printed, published and circulating in said County, once in each week for at least six successive weeks.
