REV. F. J. McQUILLAN TO LEAVE

Rev. Frank J. McQuillan, for the past four years rector of St. Mary's church, Pinckney, has been transferred to a newly created parish at Redford, Wayne county, where he will erect a church and rectory. He may remain in Pinckney for several Sunday longer until a successor to him is chosen.

Rev. Fr. McQuillan during his pastorate here has built up and strengthened the parish in many ways and made a wide circle of friends in all sects and walks of life by whom his departure will be greatly regretted. He is a man of great force and energy and there is no doubt of his being a success in his new charge.

LAST HOME GAME SUNDAY

The Pinckney Independents will close the season at Pinckney for 1927 when they meet the Dexter team on the local grounds next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 P. M.

The two line-ups which played at the Pinckney at Dexter Labor Day will be adhered to as much as possible with Zahn and Drinkert being the battery for Pinckney and Barkley and Wrigley for Dexter. In the game played at Dexter no scores were made until the seventh inning when Dexter got a run. Pinckney tied it up in the eighth and won out in the ninth. Final score 2 to 1. A big crowd is expected to turn out Sunday as the Dexter team will come loaded to win.

Word has been received from both Zahn and Drinkert that they will be here Sunday and it is rumored that Gas Eck has been trying to borrow a pitcher and catcher of Frank Navin, owner of the Detroit Tigers.

HUNTING SEASON OPENS

The hunting season opens on Friday, Sept. 16 and licenses are on sale at the office of the county clerk. For residents of Michigan the license fee is $1.25 and for residents of another state $1.00.

The duck season opens on Sept. 16 and closes on Sept. 30. The pheasant season is from October 25 to 31. It will be lawful to hunt rabbits from October 25 to January 31. Deer may be hunted from November 15 to 30.

A new feature of the law provides that all trappers of fur bearing animals must take out a license.

BAILEY CASTLE BURNS

The large farm house about one mile west of town and just north of M-49 was struck by lightning and burned to the ground Monday night at 11:00 P. M. The Pinckney fire department went to the scene of the fire but were unable to do anything as the upper stories were all in flames and the structure was about half gone. The place was owned by Mrs. Alex Lazo who was in Detroit at the time. Her two sons, Alex and Joe Kovak however were at home. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

The house was built by Charles Bailey in the summer of 1881. Eddy Bros. of Durand being the contractors. It was three stories high, had thirty-five rooms with a full basement. The cost of construction was $20,000. Some of the persons from this vicinity who worked on the construction of it were W. E. Murphy, Malachi Roche and Thomas Ross. It was never entirely completed as the builder ran out of funds and sold the place. For years it was known as Bailey's Folly or Bailey Castle. Fred Hemingway later became its owner and lived there for many years. About ten years ago he sold to Detroit parties and purchased a farm at Gregory. Since then it has only been occupied part of the time.

FARMER SHOTS WIFE

William Newton, aged 52 years, a farmer living near Fowlerville shot and seriously wounded his wife Sunday evening following a drunken spree. He was arrested and is held in the Howell jail on $50,000 bonds which he has not been able to raise. Mr. and Mrs. Newton are the parents of nine children, most of whom are grown up. The story of the shooting is that Mrs. Newton announced her intention of leaving home on account of her husband's drunkenness and he refused to let her have her clothes. She started to leave without them and he followed and shot her three times. It is said she has a chance to recover.

BERNARD LAVEY FARM SOLD

Bernard Lavey sold his farm near Hi-Land Lake to Wayne Attlee of Detroit last week. The farm consists of forty acres and is situated on Reeves creek. Mr. Attlee who has a cottage at Hi-Land Lake will use it for a summer home.

TOOK MAJORITY OF PRIZES

W. C. Hendee and Son were very successful with their black Top DeLaine sheep. They won 11 out of 14 first at the Livingston County Fair at Howell and $246 in prize money out of $400 at the Michigan State Fair at Detroit. They are exhibiting at the Jackson Fair this week.

ACCEPTS CALL TO PINCKNEY

Rev. Esic of Ann Arbor has accepted the call to become the pastor of the Pinckney Community Congregational church and will move to Pinckney and assume his duties at once.

4H CLUBS MAKE GOOD AT FAIR

The 4H Clubs of Livingston county were the outstanding winners at the County Fair held last week. In the dairy classes the Cohoctah Township Calf Club of which Howard Steinacker is leader were the premier winners carrying away the club banner and another for the champion female calf belonging to one of its members, Ralph Holmes.

The Reece school in Cohoctah township were the outstanding exhibitors in Handicraft work and first year sewing. Kenneth Olsen won the purple banner in Handicraft work and his sister, Doris Olsen, received the same for sewing work. Much credit for the clubs splendid showing is due to the assistance of the teacher Mrs. Hazel O'Dell.

In second year sewing, honors go to the Merry Worker's Club of Conway and Handy township of which Mrs. Ruth Kelly is leader and teacher. Eleanor Wilkinson won the banner for the best exhibit.

Daniel VanSlambrook of Pinckney last year's County Champion Club member carried away the sweepstakes again this year in potatoes. The Silent Worker's Canning Club of Oceola township of which Mrs. Jennie Hosley is leader, carried away the honors in canning work.

DANCE AT PATTERSON LAKE

Met Chalker will give a dance at his dance hall at Patterson Lake on Saturday evening, Sept. 17. There will be dances for both young and old. Everybody invited to come and have a good time. Bill $1.00. Refreshments.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR RALLY

The Christian Endeavor Convention for the counties of Livingston, Ingham, Shiawassee and Clinton will be held at the Presbyterian church, Howell on October 1 and 2. Rev. Savage of Pontiac will be the principal speaker.

DEFEATS HUDSON TEAM

There being no ball game scheduled for Pinckney last Sunday some of the boys picked up a team and played the Hudson team at Hudson on the Pinckney-Dexter road, winning by a score of 14 to 8. The game was featured by hard hitting with the Pinckney boys doing the most of it. Their lineup was as follows: Bowman catch, Swarthout pitch, K. Reason, 1b, Meabon, 2b, VanBlaricum 3b, Battle, s, Harris 1 f, Doyle c f, R. Reason, r f.

Cash Valentine and nephew, Alfred Webster were in Pinckney Tuesday.

DON'T BE CONFUSED ABOUT TIRES

With scores of different brands of tires on the market, each looking pretty much like the others—with everyone claiming the best—with this and that "special offer"—it's no wonder car owners are confused.

But the safe, sane, sensible, time-saving thing to do is to buy a good tire at the right price from a good dependable dealer.

Isn't that the way you buy nearly everything else? Ask our price on Goodyears in your size.

ABOUT THE WALRUS

"WELL tell of our ways," said Mother Walrus. "Yes, we'll let them know about us."

Billie Brownie was wearing his warm, warm coat which Old Man Winter had given him. It was made out of the same material that Old Man Winter had his wardrobe made of, for no matter how cold it is, it is never too cold for Old Man Winter.

He is protected from the cold by his regular winter clothing! But he won't tell anyone just how it is made.

And Billie was wearing the shoes and the cap and the earmuffs Old Man Winter had given him, too.

"There are many of us about, as you can see," said Mother Walrus.

"Ah, Mr. Walrus isn't One of Your Skinny Gentlemen."

"But, though we love to go about in big groups, we have a nice family life and are devoted to our own."

"We are great, huge creatures, aren't we?"

"Enormous," said Billie Brownie. "If it wouldn't be rude," he added, after a moment, "I would like to know how much you weigh."

"Not rude at all, Billie Brownie," said Mother Walrus. "Not rude at all. Now my Mr. Walrus is one of the grandest and most superb of creatures."

"He's a Walrus after my own heart and, of course, why wouldn't he be?" Mother Walrus laughed a great, deep laugh.

"Of course," she repeated, "why wouldn't he be, considering he is the Walrus of my own heart?"

"He weighs three thousand pounds, and I weigh two thousand pounds."

"Ah, Mr. Walrus isn't one of your skinny gentlemen. No, he is fat, good and fat, and full of wrinkles, for the fat all wrinkles up, as there is so much of it."

"There is plenty of fat to spare, you see, and it just folds up and wrinkles up and lets you know that there is nothing stingy about the fatness—it's all there—plenty of it!"

"His two ivory tusks are the most beautiful I have ever seen."

"We are slow creatures when we go over the ice, but we're good swimmers."

"Gracious," said Billie Brownie. "To think of weighing three thousand pounds!"

"It's a majestic thought, isn't it?" said Mother Walrus, with a Walrus smile.

"Ah, yes," she continued, "we're not small or dainty. We go in for size and little else."

"We have so much fat that there isn't much room for brains. We're not very bright. In fact, we might almost be considered stupid."

"But we're as sociable as sociable can be, and we're all very friendly with one another."

"And, as I said before, though we are so friendly with one another, our own family always comes first."

"I'm not much of a fighter. I will do no one any harm."

"But—if any one should come after my baby—then, it is very different! I should be so excited then, to protect my big little one, that I'd be afraid of no one and I'd fight, fight, fight."

"The Mother Walruses will fight for their young. They are afraid of nothing, nothing, nothing if their young are in danger."

"Such are the ways of the Walrus creatures," ended Mother Walrus, as she bellowed a good-by to Billie Brownie.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

TRIPLE LEVEL OF LIFE

THE stone is dead. It cannot communicate with anything that surrounds it. It has no correspondence. A stalled automobile is on a dead level. Its intrinsic value has not decreased; but its horse power is nil. An automaton is on the dead level. The flowers are on a higher level. They make contact with a larger world of correspondence. They derive benefit from the sun, rain and soil. Such contacts are necessary for their development. The bird lives a still larger life because it has a larger correspondence. Nature has provided it with a larger area of communication. Put the bird into a vacuum and immediately it goes back to the dead level, because its nerve of correspondence has been broken.

The stone on the dead level is acted upon from without. The bird on the living level possesses from within its power of communication. You may succeed in teaching a dog a trick, but the trick dies with the dog. He cannot teach it to another dog. The living level is circumscribed by very definite limitations.

The aspiring level knows no such limitations. The aspiring level is the realm of ideals, purposes, burning ambitions. This innate desire to aspire has been denied to all creation but man. He possesses intelligence, the brute only instinct. Emerson wrote, "Man, thou art a palace of sight and sound, carrying in thy senses the nights and mornings, the summers and winters, carrying in thy brain the geometry of the city of God, and in thy breast all the bowers of love and all the realms of right and wrong."

On the aspiring level, purposes should be high enough to give a constructive value to life and deep enough to guarantee a very real satisfaction—for, "The hand can never execute anything higher than the character can inspire."

Kidder's Fashions Adult Miniatures

Styles for Youngsters Now Like Mothers and Sisters Are Wearing.

Clothes for little girls, in particular, are perfect miniatures of their mother's and older sister's.

This striking similarity, however, does not mean that modern children are becoming super-sophisticated or that their adults are striving for exaggerated youthfulness. It illustrates the simplicity of the established fashions which makes them appropriate for women and children.

The "baby" sister, for example, (from four to fourteen years) may wear for school or play a sweater costume which is an exact duplicate of the one which her mother or sister wears to the links for her game of golf. The horizontal stripes, graduated in size, usually take on more vivid colors for the younger generation and may be matched by striped socks worn on little brown legs, but otherwise the sweater and skirt costume is only a big one reduced.

The cardigan, too, as well as the slipover, has shrunk to the proportions of a six-year-old who wears it traveling with no small amount of child-smartness. It is of light-weight wool crepe just like the grown-up sizes and is worn with either a little silk blouse or another sweater.

And silk underwear is by no means the exclusive right of the debutante or teen-age daughter. Tiny glove-silk vests and bloomers in dainty pink and peach shades are found in the lingerie drawer of the family along with the everyday white muslin combinations.

The grown-ups have no monopoly even upon coolie coats—for they too have been minimized into small-size wrappers or lounging coats, with the same exotic colors and designs that appear on the large ones.

The scaling-down of the fashions does not stop with the larger articles of apparel but continues to the details.

Small felt hats, too (with medium brims), look almost exactly like the tailored ones which belong to older members of the family and are often almost the same in head size (when the grown-ups have a close shingle-bob).

Choose Stocking Heel That Will Fit Shoe

When you purchase stockings, does it ever occur to you to see that the heel of the stocking is becoming to the type of shoe it is to be worn with, or do you buy the particular type of heel you have seen advertised as being the "smart thing" and then wear it with any and all styles of shoes?

A low-heeled shoe, or any sports shoe, demands a square-heeled stocking. The pointed heel is worn with the opera pump or the severely plain one-strap slipper. The intricately strapped or cutout dress shoe takes the square heel, as the pointed heel worn with this type of shoe would make just one more irregular outline!

Hats, Handbags Match; Shown in Many Colors

Hats and handbags to match are being produced in many colors in Paris. Usually felt is chosen for the accessory ensemble, but one also sees crepe de chine and taffeta. The ensemble match the dress in color.

Felt hats and handbags, kasha or silk sport dresses, and colored kid shoes make bright costumes when such colors as green, blue or pink are chosen.

Brushed Angora Strands Are Used as Embroidery

Weaving an interesting yarn—the embroidery of many of the smartest new frocks of lightweight woolen is worked in brushed angora strands. Often a deep yoke and upper portion of the sleeves are worked in dull-white yarn in a design perfectly simulating lace.

Marcel White Printed Children for Fall Wear

Blue and white printed chiffon, with long coat of navy blue wool georgette, comprises this pleasing outfit designed for autumn.

Extremely Flattering Diagonal Lines Liked

The extremely flattering diagonal lines in fall frocks are meeting favor among not only the women of moderate means, but those generally known as the ultra-smart. Shops are showing black with white a great deal, and black with flesh and with beige. On a colored frock there is very often a lighter shade of the same color. Leaf green and chartreuse are smart together and so are navy blue and slate blue.

Semi-sheer crepes, it is asserted, are here to stay. A frock of georgette crepe that is put on like a coat and fastened with a bow at the waistline, with shirred fullness in the skirt, is smart.

That three-year-old favorite, the jumper frock, will be worn again by many women. One version has a box-plaited skirt, collarless neckline, snug hips. The straight skirt was hung on a bodice top and the plaits were only in the front, where they will not be disarranged. It should look well beneath a straight, furless coat.

Hoop Skirt Models on Display at Paris Races

The women who dieted, exercised and went without sleep to reduce themselves to dressmaker's specifications are looking with suspicion at the hoop skirt models which are in evidence now, in Paris.

Crinoline skirts were worn by a few mannequins at the fashionable Drags at the Auteuil race course. Hoops were the note of a Philippe and Gaston collection at a Paris hotel showing recently. The full-skirted robe de style seems to be gaining in favor. Women who pride themselves on their slenderness have plenty of evidence that certain dressmakers would like to see hips reinstated and the pencil silhouette obliterated.

Taffetas or chiffon are the materials most used for the full-skirted dresses. Most of them have uneven hemlines, but a few cover the ankles all around. The bodices of these dresses are usually straight, simple and fitted to a waistline slightly lower than normal.

Sweaters, Sleeveless Jackets and Jumpers

Sweaters, sleeveless jackets and jumpers—these are among the most popular dress accessories for fall. The cardigan, with the front striped in varying lengths of different colors and the back plain, is most attractive. The sleeveless jacket, which combines duvetyn and leather, is splendid for autumn weather. The woolen sweater for fall is plain except the roll collar, which usually is in three contrasting colors.

Checks in Black and White, Also Navy Blue

Many small checks in black and white and also in navy blue and white silk are a phase of the late summer styles displayed in Paris.

Molyneux is one of the dressmakers who sponsors the checked silks. She makes them into simple dresses with matching short coats. The same application is made of polka dots for summer. There are simple black and white hats to match both types of costume.

Curved Seam Features New Kid Oxford Ties

Seemingly specially sporty, some of the newest kid oxford ties have their front tapered upward toward the arch of the foot. These stunning two-eyelet shoes have their upper edge cut low enough to gracefully curve below the ankle and have high, slender heels to impart additional daintiness and grace.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

CAULS

THE superstition with regard to the caul—the membrane which sometimes envelopes a child's head at birth—is by no means extinct. It is still by many supposed to indicate good fortune for the child so born and by many to be an infallible charm against drowning, for the person who can get possession of one and wears it about him. Now and then cauls are advertised for sale. What their market price is now is uncertain; but it is said that "In the Seventeenth century sailors used to pay from $50 to $150 for one."

"I was born with a caul," says Dickens in the beginning of "David Copperfield," and relates how his caul was purchased by an old lady in the neighborhood whom it preserved from death by drowning; the fact that she never in her life ventured on the water being merely incidental.

The caul superstition can be clearly traced back into remote history. It is a survival of the worship of the Egyptian goddess Isis—the caul is the "Vell of Isis." The word itself is a form of the old Gaelic "call," a veil. Just why Isis should have had an especial connection with the water and those who ventured upon it is a trifle hazy; but there is no doubt that she did and a ship was carried in the procession in her honor.

It is rather remarkable how often, in investigating modern superstitions, we run across traces of Isis-worship; it is a reminder of the persistency with which her cult introduced itself into Grecian and Roman communities in spite of the opposition of priests and lawgivers.

FOR THE GOOSE—THE first time a kid does some'm bad might not be his fault. But the second time is always yours.

The kid that gets scalded drinkin' cocoa'll blow on an ice cream soda.

You can gen'rally get bread for the askin' . . . pearls without.

FOR THE GANDER—

Formerly it was considered good dope to make friends with a girl's mother. Nowadays girls is so contrary it's almost as much as your chances is worth, to have a girl's mother put in a kind word for you.

Besides months of cultivatin' a girl's mother won't prove half as enlightenin' to a man as five minutes' talk with a kid sister or brother.

However, it don't hurt to toss the old lady a few kind words now and then. Because if they don't like you, they got a way of hangin' around the dining room, with the French doors half open and crampin' your style.

But of course if you gotta lotta Jack you can count on your money to make the mere go.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE "THRESHOLD"

THIS word which describes a door-step or an entrance to a house or to a room and is used figuratively to indicate the beginning or entering upon any experience as "the threshold of life," "the threshold of a career," has a very interesting story.

Specifically, the threshold is a plank or stone or piece of timber which lies under a door, the sill, the place over which the first step is taken on entering. It comes to us—and that is the strange part of the story—from the Anglo-Saxon "perswald" which, from "perscan," signifies "to thresh."

Tracing the connection of the word in its modern sense with its origin, we find that threshing, the beating out of the straw from grains, has for ages been the first step in the preparation of the harvest for market.

THIS WOMAN NOW HAS GOOD HEALTH

Phelps Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time and I would not be without it in the future. As I am a childless woman, I have to be on my feet a great deal and your medicine has helped me wonderfully. I was hardly able to do my housework when I began taking it, and now I am a strong and well woman, able to do all that and go out running errands. I have also used the 'Sanat' - Wash and found it beneficial."—Mrs. Gertrude L. Swanson, 106 Davis St., Greenfield, Mass.

BARON CHALLENGED BY PARIS JEWELER

Rothschild, However, Laughed at Idea of Duel.

Paris.—A high society drama which led to Louis Cartier, the Rue de la Paix jeweler, challenging Baron Maurice de Rothschild, a racing man and member of the chamber of deputies, to fight a duel with him has caused a tremendous sensation in Paris.

In making up a list of guests for a dance that he was giving in his magnificent home in the Rue Monceau recently, Baron Maurice, who is a great-grandson of the founder of the famous financial dynasty, wrote down the name of Mme. Louis Cartier, who is one of the great Parisian beauties, but intentionally left out that of her husband. His social secretary made an error and sent the invitation to "Monsieur and Madame Louis Cartier," who were ignorant of the baron's real wishes.

"What are you doing here?" Baron Maurice asked M. Cartier as soon as he saw him.

"I am here because you invited me," M. Cartier replied sharply. "You are mistaken," the baron insisted, while a number of guests stood listening to this conversation in amazement.

"Our invitation was addressed to Monsieur and Madame Cartier," M. Cartier declared hotly.

"Anyway, I don't want you here," the baron remarked and walked away. Flushed with anger, M. Cartier called his wife, who was dancing at the time, and they walked out of the house, which threw a certain chill over the party. The first thing next morning, M. Cartier sent the invitation marked "Monsieur and Madame" to Baron de Rothschild and at the same time he sent his card and two seconds, who explained that their friend wished to avenge his honor with swords, pistols or any other weapon the baron preferred, and asked him to name his seconds.

Baron de Rothschild laughed at the idea of a duel and the affair still hangs in suspense with all the upper crust of Parisian society anxiously waiting to see what will happen. He has just left Paris to take a month's cure at Marienbad, however, and the jeweler can do nothing except gnash his teeth until his opponent returns.

"No Learn Step on Gas," Say Old Indian Braves

Glacier Park, Mont.—The automobile will not entirely replace ponies among the Indians until the present older generation of braves has entirely passed away, according to the observation of Chief Two Guns White Wolf of the Glacier National park reservation. He says that while the younger Indians take speedily to the modern, their seniors never could learn automatic use of the pressure on the gas pedal, brake and clutch, since they had been too long in the reverse habit of "digging" their heels into the car's ribs.

Boston Housewife Walks About Eight Miles Daily

Boston.—The average housewife walks eight miles a day in doing her day's work, according to the survey made here by the National Foundation for Foot Health.
The foundation survey showed that the number of trips the woman housekeeper makes up and down stairs during a day would more than equal climbing to the top of the Boston custom-house tower—approximately thirty stories.

California Astronomer Measures the Universe

Berkeley, Calif.—The sidereal universe, that vast expanse beyond the earth which provides an ethereal setting for a billion stars, is estimated to have a diameter of 194 quadrillion miles by Allan Douglas Maxwell, a James M. Goodyear fellow in astronomy.

This computation is the result of preliminary studies concluded at the University of California Lick observatory on Mount Hamilton.
Maxwell's conclusions were reached in a study of the destiny of stars toward the edge of the sidereal galaxy in which the solar system is found. His computation was offered as a working supposition, which may be altered by further observations.

Peering into the heavens, he made his observations by means of the spectroscopic in six areas in the Cygnus region of the Milky way. The problem confronting Maxwell was to compute the distances of the fainter stars and to discover how far into space the cloudlike mass extended.

Maxwell is believed to have reached a greater distance from the earth than has previously been reached in the section of the sky he studied, with single stars as an objective. He successfully photographed the spectra of stars approximately 90,000,000,000,000 miles away. At that distance few stars were observable, and Maxwell believes the sidereal universe probably ends not far beyond.

NOT MANY NURSES OF CIVIL WAR STILL LIVE

Only 46 of 2,800 in Union Army Survive.

Washington.—Nurses who served in the Civil war, like the heroes to whom they ministered, are growing fewer as the conflict fades into history.

Of 2,800 nurses who served with the Union forces government records disclose the names of but 46 survivors. The list is admittedly incomplete, for it includes only those drawing pensions for their service. In Civil war time army records were kept less carefully than today. Many who served were not mentioned, or were listed only by first names which came to the attention of record keepers through some outstanding act of mercy or heroism.

Not a Profession Then.

Nursing was not yet a profession in the '60s. It was the need disclosed by the war, rather, which brought about the establishment of the first schools for training nurses. A great deal of the burden had to be borne by the Catholic sisterhoods. Hurriedly trained volunteers were also recruited. Many of these had independent means, others who felt the need of pensions in later years were unable to establish records to meet the legal requirements.

Dorothea L. Dix, who served without pay, headed the government nurses, under an appointment which made her superintendent of female nurses. Many young and eager volunteers were rejected by her, but they found a place in the volunteer ranks. These included Clara Harlowe Barton, who later was to organize the American Red Cross, and Amelia Barlow.

The Confederacy acclaimed Ella K. Newsom, wealthy and beautiful widow who spent a fortune in her work, as "Dixie's Florence Nightingale."

The thinning ranks include some like Mrs. Wade McClellan, whose name does not appear in the pension records. She bore her first child at Gettysburg, Pa., during the battle there. A month later she entered the service of the Union as a nurse on the battlefield. Later she went to Emory hospital at Washington to serve. Now, at eighty-six, she lives in Carroll, Iowa, where she is active in the Woman's Relief corps.

Cornelia Hancock Best Known.
Of those on the pension roll probably the most widely known, judging from available records, is Cornelia Hancock, now at Atlantic City. She was trained at Philadelphia and ministered to the wounded at the front during the long campaign of the Army of the Potomac in 1862-63.

Some others on the roll and the states in which they reside include: Illinois—Clarissa Crossman, Julia McCarthy, Irene D. Cook of Chicago; Addie Emery of Pontiac, Eliza Fyle of Norris City, Kate McLaughlin of Quincy, Mary C. Upton of Vera.

Indiana—Mary Brady of Indianapolis, Sister M. de Sales and Sister M. Paula of Notre Dame, Mary E. Miller of Logansport.
Wisconsin—Helen B. Cole of Sheboygan Falls.
Michigan—Rena L. Miner of St. Charles.

Friends Redeem Goods of Bankrupt Farmer

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—A friend in need is a friend indeed.

Peter Gulbranson, farmer, of Humboldt, had a demonstration of the truth of the adage recently.

Mr. Gulbranson had not prospered. There was a mortgage on everything he owned on his little farm and the sheriff had advertised a sale to satisfy creditors. Friends of Mr. Gulbranson heard of his predicament, and the day of the sale, they assembled on his farm and bought in his farm goods, paid off the mortgage and presented the paper to him.

He burned it in their presence and a happy group told Mr. Gulbranson to start life anew with their best wishes.

Spurned Parents' Plan, Now "Big Business" Girl

Charlotte, S. C.—Nancy Alexander spurned her parents' plan for her future when she decided to leave college and launch her craft into the stormy waters of business. She started out as a stenographer two years ago.

Today, at the age of twenty-one, she is in charge of a large northwestern lumber company branch here, with control of the business in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama.

Not only is she a full-fledged business woman but she is an exponent of the idea a business office need not be in an office building. She has moved the company's office to her residence.

Stroudsburg, Pa.—The champion nonmixer is William Lacey. Caught in a big concrete mixer, into which he had crawled to make repairs, Lacey was whirled for three minutes in the contents of sand, water and cement, but escaped with some cuts and bruises.

Outdoor Stage

A new outdoor stage, equipped with lights, fountains and dressing rooms, has been built at Montpellier, France. It is a gift to the city from Auguste Bosc, now a Paris dramatist and theatrical manager, who was born and educated in Montpellier.

TO CROWN HIROHITO ON ECONOMY BASIS

Japan Will Keep Cost of the Ceremony Low.

Tokyo.—Preparations are under way for the great coronation to be held in Kyoto in November of 1928, when Hirohito, the young successor of the late Emperor Taisho, will be formally crowned as the ruler of Japan.

Committees are being appointed to take charge of the event and accountants are figuring out a coronation budget of several million yen which will be presented to the diet that convenes next spring.

Unlike the coronation ceremonies for Emperor Taisho, no special foreign envoys will come to Japan for the Hirohito coronation. The Japanese government has requested the various nations not to send extraordinary representatives, as in the past, and it is expected that the ambassadors and ministers stationed in Tokyo will be delegated to attend in the extraordinary capacity.

The request that special representatives be dispensed with is said to have been due to Japan's wish to economize.

The officials in charge intend to exert every effort to simplify the ceremonies in order that the least possible cost may be incurred. But even with the utmost economy it is feared that the Hirohito coronation expenses will be greater than those of the Emperor Taisho, which were approximately 10,000,000 yen, because general costs have increased.

A number of special carriages are to be built and blooded horses imported for the occasion. The music to be played during the various ceremonies is to be especially composed by both Japanese and European musicians.

The music to be played at the grand banquet following the coronation will be purely Japanese, the orchestra using flutes, harps, drums, gongs and other native instruments. At a subsequent banquet to be held later in the evening, the army and navy bands will play Western music exclusively.

Lift Ban on Yank Wives Seeking to Enter Cuba

Havana.—Regulations preventing women from visiting Cuba without permission of their husbands have been modified by President Machado, so far as Americans are concerned.

A stir was created when Dr. Santiago Canizares, commissioner of immigration, announced that under the terms of the original decree, women who did not have proper papers from their husbands would not be permitted to enter the country.

The decree was aimed at undesirable foreign women. It had never been used against an American until it was invoked against Mrs. Anna Joy.

As a consequence transport agents and a tourist commission drew orders from the secretary of the treasury that discretion be used in invoking the decree. President Machado guaranteed American citizens every facility within reason for landing here.

Child Pronounced Dead Awakens at Her Funeral

San Vicente, Argentina.—After being pronounced dead by a local physician, Vicenta Corozot, five, came to life three days later, the death certificate having already been issued.

Her eyes opened and she began to cry from the coffin around which a crowd of sympathetic friends and relations had assembled to assist in the funeral.

At the time she was pronounced dead, her distraught parents were not convinced but gave in after being sternly lectured by the officiating physician for doubting his professional word.

Forecasting Earthquakes

Leningrad.—One hundred seismological stations are being built throughout the soviet union by the Academy of Science, which is undertaking to forecast earthquakes before they occur, in the hope of saving life and property. Professor Nikiforoff, a distinguished earthquake expert, is in charge of the work.

Housemaids of Paris Get Their "Rights"

Paris.—The Paris house servant is in a fair way to becoming spoiled. A labor contract just drawn up, signed and sealed, reads:

"The lady of the house engages herself to treat with all the desired solicitude her new domestique, Mademoiselle Emma. She will accord her two hours every day to go to her courses in clothes-cutting, stenography, piano playing and singing.

"Her wages will be 350 francs a month for the first three months, with an increase of 25 francs every month at the end of the fourth, up to the limit of 600 francs monthly. The new servant shall have the right to use the bathroom twice a week.

"Mademoiselle Emma will not be called by her first name, but 'Mademoiselle.'"

"She must be aided by a chambermaid or charwoman, according to the needs of the household."

"What is my present car worth in trade?"

OCCASIONALLY you hear a car owner say: "I'm going to buy such and such a new car because the dealer has offered me the best deal on my present car."

But without understanding the economics of trade-in transactions, you cannot be sure that the largest allowance offered means the best deal for you.

These are basic facts:

- 1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
- 2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
- 3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
- 4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
- 5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car.

Remember that when you trade-in your present car you are after all making a purchase, not a sale. You are simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of a new car.

Stowaways Guard Monkey

Two young stowaways on the steamer The Lamba, in the port of Baltimore from Manila, with a cargo of sugar, made themselves so useful as caretakers of four monkeys that the captain had aboard that they've been signed on for a Far East trip and have decided to follow the sea.

The boys boarded the ship at the Canal Zone. They are Claude and John W. Dawson, both of St. Louis. Only once on the voyage did their charges get away and then one of them entered an officer's cabin and devoured two cakes of soap.

One Bill Later

"I'm sorry I can't pay you today," said the debtor. "My shoemaker's just been here."

"Yes, I know," said the tailor. "He told me that you hadn't paid him because you expected your tailor. Here's the bill!"—Boston Post.

"Is your car a good climber?"
"No, but you should see how it runs up a garage bill."

Now Is the Time

before bad weather sets in to get everything shipshape about the house and barns. Maybe it is a broken window, a leaky roof or a bit of painting that has been left undone which did not matter so much in fair weather but it would never do to leave it all winter in that condition.

U. S. Embassies Are Always Kept Busy

Gossipy Folks From Home and Cranks Take Up Lots of Time

London.—"I'm awfully sorry the ambassador is away."

"I can't tell you how sorry I am that the embassy couldn't arrange an audience for you with the king."

"We are sorry, but the office of works will not permit you to climb the clock over the house of parliament."

These and fifty or more stock phrases are kept constantly on tap during the summer rush of the American tourist season in Europe, for during the rush season thousands of Americans crowd the American embassy here demanding everything from an immediate audience with King George or the prince of Wales to the securing of authority to climb the exterior of the clock tower of Westminster palace or Westminster abbey.

Practically everyone who visits Europe from the United States desires to visit one of the embassies or legations or his own country. To the American embassy in London, by virtue of its central position and rank in Europe, come most people. It has been estimated that telephone calls to the embassy here by people who have no actual business to transact, but "only want to hear an American voice again," average more than fifty a day—each taking a precious five or ten minutes' time of a busy secretary or embassy attaché.

Worries of U. S. Officials.

If telephone callers were the least trouble, the life of an American embassy or legation abroad would be a continuous path of roses, but it is not, for the callers who present themselves with passports, letters from friendly congressmen, introductions from friends in the Department of State at Washington and a thousand others who feel that their "names must be well known over there," are the chief worries of the American government's foreign representatives.

The callers at the American embassy during twenty minutes here recently, included an associate justice of the Supreme court, who occupied 45 minutes of the ambassador's time, talking small town politics, while another foreign ambassador cooled his heels in an anteroom, waiting for the ambassador long after his appointment time; a holder of a minor office in the Department of Education of the state of New York, who wanted the embassy to arrange a tour around England for a middle western college glee club which he assured the embassy was the "best in the states," and seventeen people clamoring for the two tickets to the gallery of the house of commons which the embassy is daily allotted.

Up to the Secretaries.

Those whose cards or credentials do not establish them as sufficiently prominent to warrant a session for even small-town talk with a busy ambassador are shunted off on some unsuspecting secretary or counselor, whose duty it is to sit from one-half to three-quarters of an hour hearing how famous the visitor from home is, and all about the trip which has either already been taken around Europe or is to be taken.

In an anteroom of the American embassy here is a man who is far more busy than any diplomat in the embassy. His name is Thomas Smith, formerly the courier of the diplomatic pouch between Berlin and London before the United States entered the war. Having been under fire many times while going through the lines between the two great opposing capitals during the war, Smith has long since become accustomed to being under fire of cranks who write long letters to their home town congressmen or even to the State department protesting the "slights and discourteous treatment received at the American embassy in London."

Smith's Job Difficult.

Smith's position is not an easy one, for upon his hands fall all of the visitors at the embassy. Some—a rare few—have legitimate business to transact; the others have a thousand petty wants and complaints which must be cared for by a small embassy staff. Each, however, must be properly cared for and sent away with the impression that he was the most important person who called that day.

The casual tourist who wishes merely to return home and tell the folks how he called upon the ambassador somewhere in Europe is not the only pest who takes the embassy attaches from work on long and tedious reports, for the crank, who enters the embassy with his hat pulled down over his eyes and a wise look on his face may take hours before he is gotten rid of.

This latter person usually demands to see the ambassador immediately on a "subject of great national importance." Frequently he complains to the doorman that he is "next to some important and astounding information."

As is the case with all others he sees some secretary or attaché in the embassy. His tale is a long and tedious one. His story is usually so absurd that it is seldom investigated, while investigations of the informant have frequently shown him to be a mania and in a number of cases these persons have proven to be escaped convicts who have become demented with the constant fear of the police following them.

Where They Get Information.

In some cases their "information" is picked up in saloons and flavored with sufficient imagination to make the story one which they feel the American government would surely be interested in.

One of the worst fears of a foreign embassy or legation is for the petty politician—the attorney general from Podunk, or the state legislator from some remote spot. Although his position may be small, or even laughable to a foreign dignitary, he inevitably wants to be presented at the palace or expects at least to lunch with the ambassador.

It has frequently been found that this type of man actually prefers to be slighted so that he may leave the embassy or legation with great gusto, declaring that he will "write about it to the President and secretary of state."

He frequently does and through the aid of some congressman, who little realizes the problems of those stationed abroad, causes some unsuspecting secretary much trouble and frequently a shift to another post.

Britons Ask When Is Fresh Egg Fresh

London.—When is a fresh egg fresh? That is what a committee appointed by the ministry of agriculture is trying to ascertain. The committee has had sittings with the National Farmers' union and the National Poultry council on the application for an order making the marking of imported eggs compulsory.

Many poultry dealers said they agreed that the age limit for a fresh egg was fourteen days. A Leith importer, however, said that he had frequently eaten Russian eggs, cooked in various ways, which were six weeks old, but were quite fresh.

Then said the chairman of the committee:

"I don't suppose you'd say you eat them from preference, but rather by way of experience."

Pledges on Decrease in Madrid Pawnshop

Madrid, Spain.—Pledges in the Madrid pawnshop, which is run as a city monopoly, showed a decrease of 54,265 items during the last fiscal year, but the municipality managed to earn 612,787 pesetas on the business.

Jewelry formed the larger part of the pledges and clothing was second.

The annual public auction of unredeemed pledges brought in 1,912,127 pesetas on articles upon which only 1,239,360 pesetas had been loaned.

Pawnshops are municipal monopolies throughout Spain.

hoisting the largest type naval planes. A secret contrivance is set on the deck floor to stop landing airplanes within a distance of several hundred feet. This equipment is said to be fool proof and to prevent possibility of any mishap in landing during a rough sea.

The ship's armament in addition to the 106 airplanes which she carries, consists of eight 8-inch 15-caliber long-range rifles and twelve 5-inch 50-caliber anti-aircraft guns capable of warding off destroyers as well as enemy aircraft attacks. These latter guns are placed in groups of three at strategic points about the ship which facilitates concentrated and accurately directed fire as well as rapid supply of ammunition.

The flying deck will accommodate at one time the entire ship's complement of set-up airplanes and still leave sufficient room for a take off. Near the bow is a newly adopted device for launching seaplanes.

A rural bus line in Tokio is using automobiles imported in 1910, which are said to be still in good condition.

U. S. S. LEXINGTON TO CARRY OVER A HUNDRED AIRPLANES

Largest Naval Vessel in World Is to Have Deck Surface 900 Feet in Length.

Boston.—The U. S. S. Lexington, largest and highest-powered naval vessel in the world, will be ready for her trials at sea within the next six months.

Final touches are being put on the ship at the Fore River Shipbuilding yards in Quincy, Mass., where she was launched two years ago. The vessel, one of the queen ships of the United States navy, belongs to the electrically driven group that includes the U. S. S. Maryland, West Virginia and Saratoga.

The Lexington, like the Saratoga, which was launched in the spring of 1925 at Camden, N. J., is an airplane carrier. Originally these two vessels were to have been battle cruisers and as such would have been among the navy's largest fighting vessels.

Due to the modification of the American naval program decided on at the conference of the limitation of armaments the ships were converted to airplane carriers.

The interiors of the Lexington will be quite different from the space plans below decks on most naval vessels. There will be ample space to store flying machines as well as elevators and cranes with which to hoist them up from below preparatory to hopping off from the flying deck.

Because of the minimum deck apparatus the Lexington seems unusually low in the water. The long sweep of flying deck, broken only by a massive combined funnel enclosure set at one side of the hull, resembles a marine drill ground. The elevators are so constructed as to come flush with the flying deck making an unbroken flying surface about 900 feet long. The elevators are capable of

G. O. P. Men in Legion Plan to Boom Pershing for President of U. S.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

POLITICAL leaders in Washington have learned that there is a full-fledged movement within the American Legion to promote the nomination of General Pershing for the Presidency by the Republican party. The general is to go to France on the Leviathan as the guest of the Legion, and it is said that influential members of the organization who are also influential Republicans will be aboard with him and will take the opportunity to arrange the details of the plan. Then, at the Legion's convention in Paris, the boom is to be sprung as the climax of a series of demonstrations. It will be easy to keep the former commander of the A. E. F. in the limelight over there, and the boom will be brought back to the United States all developed, according to the plans of its promoters.

Ever since General Pershing returned from France after the war he has been intermittently boomed for the Presidency. In 1919 a movement for his nomination in the 1920 convention was started, but it failed to develop sufficient momentum to place him actively in the field in the pre-convention contest. His name figured occasionally in the discussions during the convention, which finally selected Warren G. Harding.

If General Pershing should become a serious contender for the nomination next year he would be the oldest candidate in the field. He will be sixty-seven years of age on September 13. Frank O. Lowden will be sixty-seven next January. Charles E. Hughes was sixty-five last April, while Charles G. Dawes is sixty-two and Herbert Hoover fifty-three.

Vice President Dawes and Secretary Hoover are still leaving their booms in the hands of their friends, both having said they were not seeking the nomination. Mr. Lowden, on the other hand, is out in the open as a contender and has appointed as his pre-convention manager Fred Starek, former director of the war finance corporation. Just before President Coolidge left Yellowstone park he was visited by a party of Wyoming editors, nearly all of whom told him they and their communities favored the nomination of Hoover because he helped frame the Coolidge policies, is a good administrator and, they believed, would safely carry on the present national prosperity.

Reports have been current in official circles in the summer capital in Rapid City that Secretary Hoover will offer his resignation to President Coolidge within the next few months and devote his energies to winning delegates. Campaign committees for Hoover are ready to spring into existence in many states and headquarters will be opened in Washington and directed by his present secretary, George Ackerson.

DEMOCRATIC leaders hear that there is a prospect that many states, especially in the South, will send uninstructed delegations to the Democratic national convention for the purpose of avoiding, so far as possible, the bitter factional strife that characterized the convention of 1924. Some of the backers of William G. McAdoo in that contest are among those responsible for the uninstructed delegation policy. Their original thought was to bring about harmony by agreeing in conference at convention time upon the nomination of some one other than either McAdoo or Gov. Al Smith of New York.

EARLY among the President's callers after his return to the Black Hills was Senator Wesley Jones of Washington. He is chairman of the senate merchant marine committee, and after his talk with the Chief Executive he declared himself in favor of keeping the American merchant marine afloat and insisted that if it were necessary to accomplish this the government would continue to operate the fleet and would provide funds for replacement. He said he agreed with the President's view that the government should get out of the business, but did not think the United States should get out of the seas. "It appears to me now," said the senator, "that unless we continue to operate the ships that is what will happen. Other plans of placing the American shipping on a parity with foreign shipping by a subsidy such as exists in most countries have failed to enlist the support of congress. It appears that we can do nothing through a subsidy to help private concerns engaged in shipping. Therefore, the situation is plain to me the government must continue to operate the ships and vast sums must be expended to keep our fleet abreast of competition."

Senator Jones told the President that in his opinion it would be wise to call a special session of the senate in October for the consideration of the cases of Senator-elect Smith of Illinois and Senator-elect Vane of Pennsylvania. He said the pressure of business made this advisable so that legislation should not get jammed. Senator Reed of Missouri, chairman of the senate campaign funds investigation committee, while in Chicago to attend the funeral of J. Ogden Armour, issued a call for a meeting of that committee in Chicago on September 7 to take up the matter of destruction of the Pennsylvania ballots. He said there had been no developments that called for further consideration of the case of Smith by the committee.

TRANSOCEANIC flights, successful and otherwise, are becoming matters of almost daily occurrence. W. S. Brock and E. F. Schlee in the plane Pride of Detroit made a fine flight from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to Croydon, the London airport, and then continued their journey to Munich, to Beigrade and to Constantinople in their projected flight around the world in what they hope will be record-breaking time. Another pair of flyers started from London, Ont., for London, England, but were turned back by bad weather. Charles A. Levine, tired of waiting for Drouhin, his French pilot, jumped into his Columbia plane at Paris and flew alone to Croydon where he just barely managed to make a safe landing. The British airmen were astonished by his nerve performance. Levine selected Capt. W. C. Hinchcliffe, an English war ace, to pilot the Columbia back to America but afterward said he might change his mind and fly eastward.

The spectacular flight of the week was that of Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Col. F. F. Minchin of England, with Princess Lowenstein Wertheimer as passenger, from Upavon, England, across the Atlantic to Ottawa, Canada. The princess, who financed the flight, is sixty-one years old and has been a licensed pilot for thirteen years. Usually flying under her maiden name, Lady Anne Saville, Minchin and Hamilton are old-timers at the flying game.

RENEWED hope that Paul Redfern, who disappeared in his flight from Georgia to Brazil, might be found came with the report that a plane was seen two days after his start, over the delta of the Orinoco river in Venezuela. It was said to be moving south-easterly, and later another report from a government telegraph operator at Ciudad Bolivar said a plane had been sighted flying over the village of Macarieto. It was believed Redfern might have landed safely and was making his way out to civilization.

DESPERATE fighting in China took place between the northern troops of Marshal Sun Chuang-fang and the armies of the south which were trying to keep possession of Shanghai. Though the northerners were reported to have met with a severe defeat in a four days' battle along the Yangtze, later advices said they were hanging on and steadily pushing men across the river. The southerners apparently had abandoned Nanking and withdrawn to prepared positions south of that city. Chinese cruisers in the river at first fought against the northern troops that were crossing, but afterward held aloof, probably having been bought off by Marshal Sun.

The Twenty-sixth Nationalist army is in and about Shanghai, under the command of Gen. Chou Feng-chi, but its loyalty to the Nationalists was questioned. This matter worried the foreigners there, for the men of that army were supposed to be anti-foreign as well as communistic.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY LOWMAN intends to stop the smuggling of liquor from Canada if it can be done, and has been conferring with members of the royal Canadian commission with that in view. The United States is seeking a supplementary agreement under which Canada will attempt to prevent liquor shipments to the United States instead of limiting its activity to merely giving notice that such shipments have been declared. Canada, on the other hand, wants the United States to do its utmost to stop smuggling of industrial alcohol to Canada, for the reason that such shipments are seriously cutting into the dominion revenues.

Mr. Lowman said the border patrol westward from Buffalo, including the Detroit river area, would be increased from 200 to 400 men, and that it might be necessary to enlarge the coast guard fleet on the Great Lakes. The prohibition bureau instead of the customs service is now handling the liquor smuggling prevention work.

VISCOUNT CECIL, chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, created a sensation by resigning from the British cabinet, giving as his chief reason the attitude of the cabinet toward the United States in the recent futile naval disarmament conference. He also let it be known that he expressly opposes the tyranny of the big powers over the affairs of the League of Nations. In the procedure of which he has been a dominating factor.

"I have resigned because of the handling of the disarmament question generally, culminating in the failure of the naval conference," Lord Cecil told the correspondents. "I was not in sympathy with the instructions I received from the British cabinet and I believe an agreement could have been reached without any sacrifice of the British interests."

Lord Cecil's withdrawal from the League of Nations, and the resignation of M. de Jouveval, the French delegate, were believed in Geneva to open the way to Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany to become the dominating figure in the league. It was said he would have the solid support of the smaller nations and the war-time neutrals if he would honestly stand by the covenant regarding disarmament.

CHICAGO'S moving picture theaters, 350 or more in number, were shut up tight last week by their owners because of disputes with the Motion Picture Operators' union. A few independent houses undertook to operate, but film distributors cut off their supply of pictures. Both sides were apparently determined to make it a fight to a finish, and there were prospects that the strike and lockout might be extended to other territory. It was estimated that the theaters were losing $225,000 daily, and that 25,000 employees were out of work. Attorneys for the union applied to the Federal courts for an injunction against the film distributors to force them to deliver films to the independent theaters.

ECHOES of the Sacco-Vanzetti case are heard daily, in the form of riotous demonstrations, quarrels among the radicals over the defense fund, and threats against the American Legion by French communists. The General Confederation of Labor, representing a great majority of French unionized labor, gave way to the radical element and voted after a stormy meeting not to participate in the national holiday activities in connection with the Legion on September 19.

SO-CALLED "ease and desist" orders charging them with fraud and deception in the promotion of Texas oil stock schemes have been issued against Shepherd & Co., a Chicago stock brokerage firm, and eight similar companies, all of Texas, by the federal trade commission. The orders are the first results of an investigation into "blue sky" securities undertaken several months ago by the commission.

To South Pole by Plane

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Commander Richard E. Byrd has announced that he will try to add to his laurels as an explorer, gained by being the first to fly to the North pole and among the first to make a nonstop flight across the Atlantic, by flying over the South pole in the next two years. Not less than the interest in this latest exploit of the gallant Virginian is its significance as a connecting link between Antarctic and Arctic exploration. The first man to reach the South pole was Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, who achieved the goal in 1911. Last year Mr. Amundsen was in the party which flew a dirigible to the North pole soon after Commander Byrd had made his epic dash there by airplane. Now Commander Byrd is going into the regions where Amundsen won his fame—sort of repaying the visit, as it were.

But Commander Byrd's project is to be more than just a dash to the South pole so that he can say that he has flown "to the uttermost ends of the earth," both North and South. It is to be a scientific expedition which is expected to open an unknown continent, twice the size of the United States, to the knowledge of mankind. The two explorers, Amundsen and Scott, who did reach the Pole found only a lifeless plain there. Several other explorers have skirted along the edge of the great ice fields which surround the Antarctic continent and one or two of them have penetrated it for some distance, only to lose their ships or to be frozen in for an Antarctic winter. So that today this great plateau, which has an altitude of 10,000 feet is a modern "unknown continent," and it is expected that from coast to coast in two directions, by visiting its center and its four corners Commander Byrd hopes to discover some of its secrets.

Especially does he hope to reveal the fact that there is on this continent forms of animal and plant life hitherto unknown to man, and if he is successful it is likely that the penguin, so well known to all explorers in this region, will no longer be the symbol of the Antarctic, just as the polar bear is the symbol of the Arctic. And certain that somewhere in this vast area there are wide stretches of lowland where extreme low temperatures do not exist, and believe that if we are successful in finding such an area we will find a completely new form of animal life," said Commander Byrd recently. "So far the discovery of animal life in the Antarctic has been confined to birds, fish, seals and a few species of microscopic organisms. Inland, where the great plateaus stretch out to the pole, there is nothing. The temperature, which even in summer gets down to 30 or 40 degrees below zero and which sinks far below that in winter, is too extreme for animal life of any sort.

Because of the extreme temperatures which Commander Byrd mentions, as well as several other factors characteristic of that region, Antarctic exploration is even more perilous than Arctic. Among these other factors are the blizzards of high velocity which sweep down from the plateau and these winds, laden with snow and fine particles of ice, often reach a speed of 70 miles an hour. It was in one of these blizzards that the gallant Capt. Robert F. Scott lost his life in that tragic retreat from the South pole in 1912 when he perished only eleven miles from his base and safety. The Antarctic has special perils for the aviator-explorer because the wind conditions there are further complicated by numerous mountain ranges and lofty peaks, some of them as high as 15,000 feet, and two of them active volcanoes.

In view of the perilous nature of this expedition, Commander Byrd is taking unusual precautions and making the most careful preparations before setting out. It was first announced that he would start this fall, but a later announcement indicates that the size of the expedition and the many things that must be accomplished have made this impossible. Commander Byrd has decided that no less than a year of forethought and attention to minute detail will be necessary to reduce the hazards of the trip.

The general plan is to sail first to New Zealand and from there to strike out for the ice pack on the border of Ross sea. After penetrating this ice barrier he will set up his permanent base near Discovery harbor, where he will build his houses, assemble his plane and make a number of test flights. Two planes will be taken, one large three-motor ship, capable of lifting 14,000 pounds and the other a small single-motor plane. Commander Byrd will load the smaller plane with six months' supplies of food and spare cans of oil and gasoline and fly 100 miles toward the South pole. If he finds conditions favorable he will land, set up a base, take observations and return to the home base for a second load. Then by a series of short flights he will set down a line of emergency bases to within 400 or 500 miles of the pole. From the last of these he will make the long flight to his goal, land if possible, and then return. If the trip to the pole is successful and winter has not closed in, Byrd will also make flights to the southeast and southwest somewhere at the foot of the great plateau. He will also skirt the coastline, flying over thousands and thousands of square miles never before seen by man. If all of his plans are successful, for the first time in history, the great Antarctic continent will at last be charted and mapped.

Although the exploring will be done mainly by the two planes, it is interesting to note that equipment similar to that of previous explorers will also be taken along. On his polar flight Commander Byrd will carry a sled, pemmican to last many months, sleeping bags, oil burners, skis and snowshoes, so that if he is forced to land and abandon the plane he will be able to trek back over the plateau to the home base. It is for this reason also that the food supplies will be planted along the route to the pole.

And these are only a few of the innumerable details which must be thought of before the expedition sets out. In this polar expedition, perhaps the most important of modern times, the margin between success and failure will be very small. Nothing will be left to chance and if adequate preparation for every possible contingency counts for anything the expedition should be successful and Commander Byrd, the first to reach the North pole by air, will also be the first to carry the Stars and Stripes to the other end of the earth.

When a man is so enthusiastic that his face lights up, his eyes shine, and his voice is vibrant, he compels attention and his words carry conviction. Learn to talk with your face. The man who never changes expression seldom amounts to much. He whose face so registers his thoughts that a deaf person would be drawn to him intensifies his impact manifold. A baseball game minus the enthusiasm would be a dead affair, indeed.—Dr. Henry Knight Miller in Psychology Magazine

Profit in Humbugging

Barnum would have found a striking illustration of his idea that people like to be humbugged in the story of the cripple who, having placed his hat in a convenient position for receiving coins, and having then accidentally fallen asleep and awakened to find himself richer by $25, turned the discovery to his continued profit by taking a dose of heroin every day and allowing the public—and his hat—to do the rest. His easy prosperity has been stopped by a cruel judge. Stories as disillusioning as this are printed almost every week. Apparently there is no way of inducing people to investigate before they bestow some of their loose change upon anybody who stretches out his hand—or hat—for it.—New York Evening Post.

Talk With Your Face

Nothing so clearly distinguishes the successful person as enthusiasm.

has been in accomplishment. The work accomplished justifies the effort that the knowledge of the cause and means of transmission, with the use of dependable measures of prevention of most of the infectious diseases, and sanitary science could make the world free of these plagues—the captains of the hosts of death.

We cannot rest and be satisfied with acknowledgements of these splendid accomplishments, because there are still hundreds of problems to be solved which are of the greatest importance. There still are infectious diseases to be investigated and we must learn their microbic cause and find specific means for their prevention and cure.

Of these infectious diseases epidemic influenza is probably the most important, because we are ignorant of the nature of its etiologic virus. Without this knowledge we are unable to prevent its epidemic recurrence.

We have no definite knowledge of the cause of insanity or feeble-mindedness. Clinical studies of these conditions have been interesting, but not especially productive. It is believed that the problem of prevention may be solved by an intense clinical laboratory research, utilizing biochemistry, physical chemistry, and biology. Birth control and sterilization should not be adopted until the underlying problems of heredity have been thoroughly investigated.

Career of Service and Profit Before the Nation's Advertising Men

By FRANCIS H. Sisson, New York Financier.

In nearly every decade there are men who believe the country has reached a saturation point and who fear that they will find trouble in maintaining their volume of business in the face of growing competition. Actually, however, conditions are now more favorable than at any time in the history of the country. We have today a smoothly running financial mechanism, such as the past never knew, which, if properly managed, should aid materially in preventing fiscal panics and enable efficient business interests to operate nine years out of ten without seeing red ink in their annual statements.

There lies before advertising and advertising men not only the opportunity for services and profit but the clear call to duty. There rests upon business and industrial leaders of the world the distinct responsibility to state and explain the facts and principles upon which national and international business progress must be built, through the printed and the spoken word, so clearly that he who runs may read, and that the oft quoted "man in the street" may understand.

A large and constantly increasing reading public seeks eagerly to know, and it is the mission of the publicist to inform and advise them through all the mediums at his command. To fulfill that mission we must call to arms the vision of the builder, the courage of the explorer, the keenness of the trader, and the wisdom of the student.

Time to End Sanctimoniousness Too Long Associated With Religion

By REV. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK, New York.

We must grant that there are plenty of things associated with religion that deserve to be snuffed at. They are a weariness, and we would better confess it.

There, for example, is a kind of sanctimoniousness which has commonly been associated with religion. Oliver Wendell Holmes said that he might well have become a minister if he had not known a minister who looked and talked so like an undertaker. What a weariness that is! Or, again, intelligent people may well yawn at our religious sectarianism. Nothing in this world ought to be so break down men's provincialism, unite them in a common bond of brotherhood as religion. Yet, instead, a large part of the influence of organized religion in the United States tends to rip people apart, embitter their lives with controversy.

We may be sure that any force which so puts a man in a morally reasonable universe with adequate spiritual resources to live by and a unified personality to live with, will issue in goodness, and that is not to be snuffed at.

Religion is terrific in its power. When it goes right it is the most beneficent force in civilization. When it goes wrong it can devastate a civilization more cruelly than an unharnessed river. In either case only ignorance will snuff it.

tity, and vessels containing infectants should be kept away from the poultry yard if you want to have health reign.

Prepare Chicken House for Fall and Winter

To prepare the poultry house for fall and winter and to keep it sanitary at all times, the following is recommended: Thoroughly clean the inside of the house removing all portable fixtures. Then spray the inside with a solution made as follows: five quarts cream lime (fresh burned lime slaked with hot water and covered while slaking), one pint of a good coal tar dip and one quart of kerosene. Dilute this mixture with an equal quantity of water and apply with a force pump or brush. The coal tar dip will kill all disease germs that it touches and the kerosene will rid the house of mites and lice.

Poultry Specialists Give Five Good Rules

Poultry specialists at Ohio State university give five rules for poultry men to follow, if they wish to raise a large percentage of their chicks. They are as follows:

- Keep the brooder house clean and disinfected.
- Move the brooder house as often as the grass around it is killed, so that it has no poultry on it for a year.
- Provide plenty of clean, sweet litter.
- Feed a good ration containing all nutritive essentials.
- Raise chicks on range away from old stock to avoid disease and parasites.

Poultry Squibs

The well-fed, well-housed hen certainly knows her eggs.

Sanitation in the houses and runs aids in the control of certain diseases among poultry.

Nests under the dropping boards save space, but take light from the back part of the floor. They make it impossible to observe the fowls properly, are less sanitary and make it more difficult to gather the eggs.

Live poultry sometimes shrinks as much as 17 per cent in weight while in transit to market.

Egg income constitutes 82.4 per cent of the total cash income in the light breeds and 68.8 per cent in the heavy breeds.

Many people do a lot of figuring to show the increased profit that would come by breeding birds that are heavier producers but they fail to make any additional charge for feed.

Not only is oatmeal used for poultry, but at all times during the growing period and for wintering.

The average poultry man usually makes more money by marketing his surplus males as broilers than as exponents.

There is nothing that will thrive in hot weather any more than lice and mites. Don't let them get a start. Keep the brood coops well cleaned and sprayed with some good lice killer or disinfectant.

Stucco work was known to the ancients and was much prized by them, particularly by the Romans who excelled in it. It was revived by D'Udine about the year 1850, and in Italy, France, and England in the eighteenth century.
