OBITUARY

Cornelius Lynch, son of Michael and Bridget Lynch, was born October 12th, 1851 at Syracuse, N. Y., and passed away at his home in Pinckney October 7th aged 75 years, 11 months and 25 days.

At the age of 26 years he came to Pinckney where he spent the rest of his life. On November 16th, 1879, he was united in marriage to Mary Smith. To this union two children were born, Mrs. C. H. Kennedy of this place and Bernadine of Kalamazoo. Besides to mourn his loss he leaves one sister, Mrs. E. P. Boyle, and two brothers, Andrew and Edward Lynch of Syracuse.

The funeral services were conducted from St. Mary's Church, by Rev. Fr. McQuillan assisted by Rev. J. V. Coyne of Albion and Rev. John Crowe of Howell. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

MRS. SAVILLA J. CLARK

Mrs. Savilla Kennedy Clark, widow of the late Daniel C. Clark, died at her home in Huntington Park, Calif. on September 24 of paralysis.

She was the daughter of William H. and Louisa J. Kennedy, pioneers of Livingston county. There are left to mourn her loss, one sister, Miss Belle Kennedy, of Huntington Park, California, a former teacher in the Pinckney High School and two brothers, Ira W. Kennedy of Waukesha, Wisconsin and Irving Fremont Kennedy of Lincoln, Nebraska. Her husband died a number of years ago.

AUTOS COLLIDE

Last Saturday afternoon at about 5:00 p. m., cars driven by George Bland and Lester Smith ran together in front of the store of W. W. Barnard. Mr. Bland had just driven in to town from the west and had turned in order to park in front of the Barnard store when Smith who was coming from the east struck him. One front wheel was torn off the Bland car and a lamp and fender badly damaged. The whole front end of the Smith car was damaged and Will VanBlaricum's Buick sedan which was parked near got a bent fender and a dent in the gas tank when the Smith machine after hitting the Bland car sideswiped the back end of it. No one was hurt and we understand both cars were insured.

SCME LOG CABIN

Elmer Glenn has patterned after his father and is building himself a log cabin which he intends to use as his residence. However he has deviated from the plan followed by the pioneers in a number of instances. Where they were usually content with one room on the ground floor and a loft above he will have sixteen rooms in his, to say nothing of a full basement, running water, built in book cases and a hundred other things that the pioneers never dreamed of. It is about 40x50 and is built almost entirely of lumber which was sawed on the farm. Tamarack logs are used for the exterior and the finish will be oak and walnut. About one half of the main floor is given over to the large assembly hall. Here the local Izanc Walden league of which Mr. Glenn is treasurer and one of the organizers will hold their meetings. It can also be made into smaller rooms by means of sliding doors which push back out of sight. At either end of the room are two large stone fireplaces. Mr. Glenn is his own architect and drew and worked out the plans for the house himself besides getting out the logs, sawing the lumber and doing the work of construction himself in which he has been assisted by A. F. Wegener of Pinckney. Mr. Roepcke of Onondilla built the fireplaces. Mr. Glenn has had some experience in the building of log cottages, having constructed a number on his lake front lots at Half Moon lake but this is the only large one he ever tackled.

PHILATHEA PARTY

The Philathea Class of the Congregational church was pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. M. T. Graves. The regular devotional and business sessions were observed after which a bountiful pot-luck lunch was enjoyed by 25 members and friends present.

FOWLerville FAIR

Many Pinckney people attended the Fowlerville Fair held last week. Pleasant Lake with Jabolonsky, former U. of M. pitcher but now with the Cincinnati Reds in the box had an easy time winning the baseball championship defeating Holly by a score of 9 to 0 Friday and Williamston 7 to 1 Saturday. Williamston had Andy Messenger in the box but he failed to show the form he displayed last year when he bested Fowlerville with Whithill of the Detroit Tigers in the box.

Horse racing is beginning to be just one broken record after another for James Roche, Pinckney's premier horseman. Not satisfied with breaking the track record at the Jackson Fair two weeks ago he repeated by breaking the Fowlerville track record when he won the 2:14 trot with Morgan Dewey, his time being 2:11. This has been another big year for Jim who won first money at Ann Arbor, Northville, Adrian, Jackson and Fowlerville with Morgan Dewey and second at the Milford Fair. He also won two second moneys and one first with Diamond Dewey, a two year old. The older Jim gets the better he seems to drive.

W. C. Hendee & Son were also successful with their Black Top Delaine Sheep taking 12 out of 14 firsts. They also won a majority of the second premiums. This ends their exhibitions for the season.

PINCKNEY DEFEATS RESERVES

Byron was supposed to play the Pinckney High School team at this place last Friday but cancelled last Wednesday and a game was secured with the Howell high school reserves for Thursday. They proved to be no match for Pinckney who won from them by a score of 20 to 0. This would undoubtedly have been much larger if it had not been for the rain which fell during part of the game, rendering the field muddy and slippery and hard to run on. Neither side scored in the first quarter but in the second Blades took off forty yards around end for a touchdown and Roy Reason went through tackle for the extra point. In the third quarter Pinckney opened up her forward passing attack with Roy Reason on the throwing end and Blades on the receiving end and had the ball on the five yard line where Reason went through tackle for a touchdown and Graves made the extra point. In the last quarter with one minute to play Hendee received a forward pass from Reason which traveled at least forty yards and ran unmolested the remaining ten yards for a touchdown.

The Pinckney team played a nice game making but one fumble and pulling no boners which were prominent in their first two games. The line held firm, Howell only being able to gain five yards through it during the whole game. Blades and Roy Reason were Pinckney's best ground gaining combination and varied their forward passing game by running the end and hitting the line. Of the seven forward passes thrown all by Reason all but one were completed. Pinckney plays Brighton at Brighton next Friday, October 14. The next home game will be on Friday, October 21 with Brighton and the following Saturday Chelsea plays here.

The following is the Pinckney lineup:

Hendee, right end
N. Miller, right tackle
Hornshaw, right guard
Carr, center
Yoemans, left guard
C. Miller, left end
Nash, quarter back
Blades, right half
Graves, full back
Touchdowns—Blades, R. Reason, Hendee. Extra points—R. Reason, Graves. Substitutions—McCluskey for Hornshaw, Stackable for Yoemans, Gertz for Stackable, Reference Hooker, Cleary College. Head linesman—Campbell, Pinckney. Timekeeper—Wegener, Patterson Lake.

CAPTURES FOUR RATTLERS

Sylvester Harris while hunting frogs last week at Barber Lake came upon four rattlers which he succeeded in capturing alive. One was of considerable size but three were small. They were captured by placing a forked stick around their necks and pinning them to the ground. Saturday they were sold to the laboratory department at the U. of M.

KINGS DAUGHTERS MEET

The Kings Daughters were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. A. E. VanSlambrook Thursday afternoon. Carr, Mrs. Norman Reason, Mrs. W. C. Miller, Mrs. Ross Read. During the social hour dainty refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. John Chambers Mrs. Claude Swarthout and Mrs. Mark Swarthout.

Story for Kiddies at Bedtime

By Martha Martin

"I AM GOING to marry a builder," said Miss Betty Beaver.

"And a fine builder he is, too," she added. "He has asked me to be his mate, and I have consented. He gave me a handsome twig for an engagement present. Oh, it was delicious."

"I ate it at once. We so love to eat twigs and bits of bark," Miss Beaver continued.

"All Beavers do, but my Mr. Beaver picked out such a nice one on his engagement day.

"We shall be married this very day and together we shall make our home. Of course," Miss Betty Beaver added, and the other Beavers listened, "Beavers are all famous for being fine builders, but I think my Mr. Beaver stands at the head of his trade."

"Yes, I do not think any Beaver is so fine a builder."

"Not so very polite to us," said the other Beavers, "but still Miss Betty Beaver is in love and she naturally thinks her Mr. Beaver is the best of all in every way."

"It would be very strange if she didn't think so, very strange indeed. And the nice part is that she will always think so, for Beavers do not change their minds."

"And they are devoted to their mates throughout their lives."

"Then, too, her Mr. Beaver is a fine Mr. Beaver and one of the best of Beaver builders."

They talked almost as though Miss Betty Beaver could not hear what they were saying, but of course she heard, and she, too, was pleased that others thought as she did.

"Mr. Beaver has started our home," said Miss Betty Beaver after a few moments.

"He is going to have it so that floods will not overtake our dwelling

Her Mr. Beaver Was One of the Best Beaver Builders.

other Beavers. "We don't like to be disturbed by people."

"They're so apt to be rude and hunt us. Yes, they're apt to be very rude and try to get us in their horrible traps."

"So your Mr. Beaver is very wise." Then Miss Betty Beaver saw Mr. Beaver coming to get her, and they went off together while the other Beavers wished them well and said they hoped to see them soon again.

So Miss Betty Beaver became Mrs. Beaver, and they built one of the finest homes ever had in Beaver Meadow, where these Beavers lived.

All the other Beavers admired it and said it was one of the most perfectly built homes they had ever seen.

"It was Mr. Beaver's splendid work," said his mate. "He just comes by building naturally."

"But it was Mrs. Beaver," her mate added, "who gave it the lovely touch of home. She has done that."

Beaver building, Beaver building, Beaver building is fine; Of clever brains and skillful ways is this a certain sign; But the best of homes we've ever seen, or, rather, almost ever, is this home of the Beaver pair whose love will never sever.

This was what the Beavers recited for Mr. and Mrs. Beaver, and then one of them added before leaving:

"When we said your love will never sever we meant that it would never be parted from you, and that we know you would keep your love for each other and wouldn't let it run away!"

"We might have chosen another word, but never did so beautifully for the rhyme!"

And Mr. and Mrs. Beaver laughed happily as they said good-by to their guests.

A FLOWER MISSED

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

MANY the songs they sing you, mothers of men. Many the flowers they bring you, mothers of men.

But think, if you see and know, There is a fairer blossom, though, Just a daisy of long ago, Mothers of men.

Once from a wilder garden, mothers of men, Asking your praise and pardon, mothers of men, Came a child with a little fist Bearing a daisy, that you kissed, Just a flower that the reader missed, Mothers of men.

Soon will our blossoms perish, mothers of men, But there is one you cherish, mothers of men. Never long will the flowers last, Flowers wither and fade so fast, But there is one that the reaper passed, Mothers of men.

One you will wear in heaven, mothers of men, One in our childhood given, mothers of men. Once a child with a little fist Brought you a daisy, that you kissed.

There is one that the reaper missed, Mothers of men. (By McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The Lipstick Age

Managers of Atlantic City hotels say that their maintenance costs have increased enormously because women use so much lipstick and other cosmetics. The women, according to the managers, not only use napkins, bath and face towels to wipe off the lipstick, but also employ tablecloths on occasion. And the lipstick is so strong that bleaching agents are necessary to restore the goods to their pristine whiteness.

DATE OF THE EARTH'S BIRTH

By F. A. Walker

IF WE knew just the date of the Earth's birth we could add another holiday to the ones we now celebrate.

Professor Moreaux of the observatory of Bourges in France, while he has not attempted to fix the exact birth of the earth, issued a statement that his study and investigations establish the age of the earth at not less than 500,000,000 years and the period of life on this planet at about 250,000,000 years.

If the French professor is right Mother Earth is getting old enough to be quite sensible and life has been here long enough to have established pretty substantial evidence of what natural development can accomplish.

The greatest age hitherto ascribed to the earth has been the figures arrived at by the calculations of the time which it has taken the earth to cool from a white hot mass to its present temperature and the retarding effects of the tides on the period of the earth's revolution.

Sir William Thompson, applying the Fourier method of heat conduction, concluded that the earth could not be less than 20,000,000 years old else it would still be too hot to live on and not more than 400,000,000 years old or we would not find any increase in temperature in deep excavations.

The same scientist computing the effects of the tides concluded that the earth was about 100,000,000 years old.

These computations are, of course, largely theoretical, but in geology we have a more direct evidence both as to the age of the earth and as to the time life has been existent.

The study of rock formation and the investigation of fossil remains definitely establish the age of the earth at millions on millions of years and the existence of life to have been of almost equal millions.

Certainly it is that the stalactites and the stalagmites in the caves at Luray in Virginia have been millions of years in formation for this is proven by direct computation from the present rate of increase in size.

It is certain that man, or at least a being endowed with reason, has been in existence since before the age of the mastodons and while the horse was still a four-toed animal no larger than a good-sized dog.

Man as he then existed knew of fire and its uses and had already devised for himself simple weapons of offense and defense, and the remains of human skulls such as the Skull of Ensis or that of Cro Magnon would evidence that even at that remote time the human race was high above its animal associates and had established its dominion over the lower forms of life and intelligence.

Slowly we are learning something of the history of the globe on which we live. More slowly man is developing and advancing.

The next 500,000,000 years of the earth's existence should be worth living, the next 250,000,000 years of the development of life should bring forth some human beings who will have a genuine excuse for existence; who will accomplish something well worth while.

So far the human race has not been

SEASONABLE RECIPES

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Oh! suns and skies and clouds of June, And days of June together, You cannot rival for one hour October's bright-blue weather.

—Helen Hunt Jackson.

THE fall months when the nuts and games are in season, we turn to some of the cherished dishes which so many enjoy.

New York Chestnut Bread.

Take two cupfuls of unsifted graham flour, one cupful of pastry flour, two-thirds of a cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two cupfuls of buttermilk, one and one-eighth teaspoonfuls of soda, one cupful of finely chopped chestnuts. To the flours add the sugar, salt and baking powder; when well mixed add the remaining ingredients. Turn into a buttered pan, cover and let stand twenty-four minutes. Bake in a moderate oven for forty-five minutes.

Old-fashioned Gingerbread.

Take one cupful of butter, two cupfuls of brown sugar, three eggs, one tablespoonful of ginger, one cupful of milk, one teaspoonful of soda and seven cupfuls of pastry flour. When the butter and sugar are well creamed, break in an egg and beat well; repeat until all the eggs are used, then add ginger, salt, soda with the latter dissolved in the milk. Now add the sifted flour. Put a small cake of dough on a well greased baking sheet and roll out to a quarter inch in thickness. Bake in a rather hot oven until brown. Remove from the oven, cut in squares or oblongs, lay on a cake cobble and frost if desired. These gingerbread cakes will keep for a long time if kept in tin boxes.

Chestnut Stuffing for Turkey.

Remove the shells from as many chestnuts as needed, then boil in their skins in salted water. When they are soft, remove the nuts and peel them. Now mash as thoroughly as potatoes. Take equal portions of fine bread crumbs, sweet mashed potatoes and chestnuts, mix well, adding butter and, if too dry, a little cream. Season with fine herbs, finely chopped onion and pepper to taste. Some prefer all chestnuts, omitting the potato and crumbs.

Thoughtful Children

"Are your children thoughtful of you?" asked the neighbor.

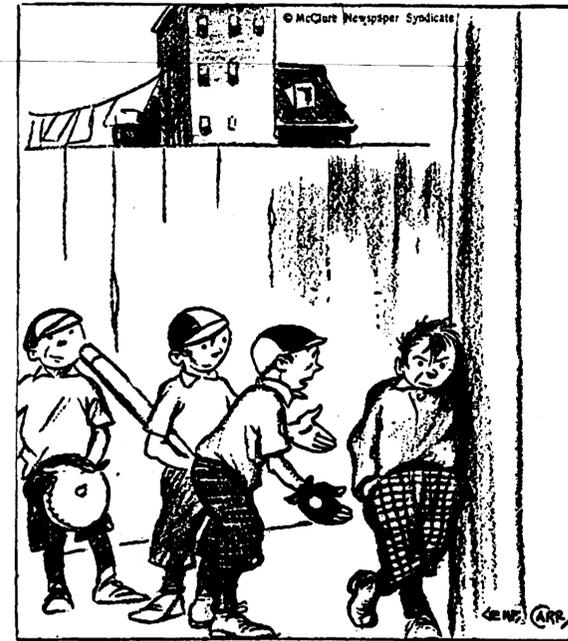

"Oh, very," beamed the mother.

THE HOLD OUT

Throwing Old Shoes After Bridal Couples

By H. IRVING KING

THE custom of throwing an old shoe after a bridal couple is regarded by most authorities as the survival of a very ancient custom connected with the transfer of property. Among the peoples where the custom is first found existing women were regarded as a species of property and in some ancient civilizations, that of the Jews especially, the removal and giving of the shoe or sandals confirmed an exchange or sale; a custom asserted to have been derived from the Egyptians or some other peoples with whom the Jews were brought in contact.

A superstition with regard to the worn shoe was very widespread and existed even among the barbarous races. Some have even tried to ascribe it to the time when the bridegroom carried off the bride by force and the bride's family threw things after him as he decamped. In old Saxon marriages the bride's father handed the bridegroom the bride's shoe and he touched her with it on the forehead in token of authority.

The idea of luck which attaches to the throwing of the shoe would indicate that originally it had to do with some religious rite—the propitiation of some god or goddess.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day a booklet was left on her front door. Idly she turned and began to read. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine, and you can use these facts as a testimonial. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. M. DAUGHERTY, 1908 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

Battleship Texas Now Flag Ship of U. S. Fleet

The United States battleship Texas passing under the Manhattan bridge, New York, on her way to take her place as flagship of the United States fleet, replacing the Seattle. The Texas has just passed through a long process of reconditioning, at a cost of more than $2,000,000. She has been converted from a coal burner to an oil burner and fitted with bilge keels for protection against torpedo attack, and also provided with new deck armor to give additional protection against bombs from the air. Her masts have been changed; the old foremast, of the "cage" type, has been altered to a tripod, resembling the British masts, and the other mast has been converted from the "cage" type to the ordinary type.

COMPARED WITH REAL YOUTH

(By D. J. Walsh.)

HULDA LEWIS was expecting Everett Waters to call upon her that evening. They were very old friends in that casual way which is pleasant without being provocative. Everett Waters had once proposed to Helen and she had put him off gently, leaving him to hope that if he ever asked her again she would probably accept him. But he had not asked her again, although he continued to call upon her regularly, to write to her when he was away, to send her gifts at holiday time or upon her birthday. Meanwhile Hulda was very content. She was too comfortable as she was to care to change the condition of her life. Her father had left her well provided for. She had her own home, a mother who bore the duties of the household and plenty of money to paint charming little pictures that she never sold. And she was still young, attractive, graceful. Lots of time yet for marrying. Possibly, too, somebody might appear who was more like the lover of her dreams than the plain, quiet lawyer who had been her schoolmate and now managed her few business affairs. She did not stop to think that Everett was lonely, that in keeping him out of happiness and some other woman out of a home and a companionship. As far as that went she was not afraid of any other woman. She was absolutely sure of Everett Waters.

Upon this summer day she was painting in the large northern room which she called her studio when the door opened softly and a young girl entered. Hulda numbered no young girls among her friends and she stared at this one in surprise. Then she recognized the lovely blooming face under the stern little black hat—such a hat as Hulda would not have dared to wear.

"Why, it's Ethel!" she exclaimed. "Your own niece, Ethel, Aunt Hulda." The girl kissed her. "I knew you'd be easy to see me. Dad and I just got back from Paris last week—and here I am. I've been gone two whole years, do you know it?"

"Of course, I am glad, dear—I suppose those clothes are French?"

"Entirely so." Ethel spun around to show them. "Dad loosened up his purse strings just before we sailed. But you must see what I've got in my trunk! I brought my trunk, auntie. You see, I'm going to stay a while. How well granny is looking! You, too—only you are getting gray, did you know it? What a nice little picture! Oh, how is dear old Everett Waters? Is he just the same constant thing as ever?"

Hulda flushed and bit her lip. She arose from her easel and took off her apron. Downstairs she could hear her mother at the telephone ordering from the grocer. The peaceful current of life had suddenly become a brisk torrent owing to the arrival of this gay young visitor.

Twenty years before Hulda's brother had married a girl whom Hulda and her mother did not like. Ethel was like her mother. Somehow Earl Lewis had been able to acquire a good deal of money which he spent in leading a careless, roving life. Two years before he had "natched up Ethel and gone abroad. Now here was the girl developed into something so beautiful and altogether fascinating that Hulda felt a curious pang of jealousy.

Ethel took possession of the house. The trunk came and she appeared in pink and black. Hulda, who had grown a bit careless in dress, promptly made a toilet. Ethel laughed at the blue crepe. But when Everett Waters came up the steps in the moonlight she did not laugh at him. Instead she ran to him, flung her arms about his neck and kissed him. Holding her at arm's length Everett studied her through his glasses. Hulda looking on grew cold. She suddenly felt old, ugly, unfashionable. And while Ethel chattered gayly she sat silent, not listening, but thinking strange, inexplicable thoughts of her own.

Afterward Ethel came into Hulda's room clad in astonishing silken pajamas, which, with her black hobbled hair, made her look like a surprising, adorable pierrette.

"Everett's a dear," she said. "He's improved so much, while I've been gone. That gray hair makes him look very distinguished. He reminds me of a great diplomat, I saw in Paris. I'm quite wild about Everett, auntie. Did you know that he remembered every one of my birthdays while I was away? The day that he did. He sent me a letter. I am wearing." She turned the slipper round her wrist.

Hulda did not sleep much that night. She lay awake thinking. It was true. Everett had improved, while she—it had never occurred to her that she was not as young and pretty as ever. She had been so self-assured. Now, compared with real youth such as Ethel's, she realized that she was but a faded flower. To Ethel she was old and uninteresting. Suddenly she buried her face in the pillow and wept.

The days that followed were agony to Hulda. They motored in Everett's car—and Ethel sat with Everett. Ethel led Everett to the tennis court and they played enthusiastically, while Hulda, who had the misfortune to turn her ankle, looked on. Evenings Ethel turned on the phonograph and taught Everett new steps while Hulda pretended not to see.

There came a day when Hulda knew two things certainly—she loved Everett and she was never going to be able to have him. He had tired of her in the long years she had kept him waiting. She was no longer the woman of his dreams, one younger and fairer had supplanted her. It was her own fault. But oh, the pity of it that after long pursuing of an imaginary Everett embodied that very ideal.

That day a telegram came for Ethel from her father. He wanted her to return immediately. She made no explanation, but in an hour she was gone, leaving Hulda to pack the trunk and send it after her. Hulda's feelings were indescribable as she conscientiously stowed away the brief, colorful silks, woollens and chiffons that had made her niece so radiant during her short stay.

That night Everett came; he had been coming nearly every evening of late. He inquired for Ethel and when Hulda told him that Ethel was gone he looked away, smoking in silence. Disappointed, Hulda knew that was what shadowed his face.

Suddenly he came and sat down beside her on the porch hammock. His hand on hers, looking into her eyes he said softly:

"Are you going to let me propose again, dear? Please let me—I want you very much, Hulda."

This time Hulda did not refuse him. She did not dare refuse him. Never mind if she was second choice, never mind anything as long as she had him to love.

"So Ethel's gone!" Everett said after a while. "Cute little girl; amusing, very. Shall you miss her, dear?"

"Shall you?" returned Hulda.

Everett laughed. "Why, no. Why should I? I've got you."

Afterward Hulda felt that she had broken faith with Ethel. Suppose Ethel loved Everett? The thought terrified her.

She was at breakfast next morning when a telegram came—such a long one from Ethel.

"I'm engaged to Dick—we met on shipboard; married next month; tell Everett—he's getting ready to propose to you again—told me so—take him—no mistake—must have him for my uncle."

Hulda passed the telegram across the table to her mother. Then she covered her face with her hands and laughed with a sob of thankfulness is her laughter.

Wireless Takes Place of Spinners of Yarns

It is indeed sad news that the professional story-tellers of the Near East are being hard hit by the wireless.

It appears that when the spinner of yarns calls round to charm the jaded merchant with his narrative of the caliph and his beautiful Persian or the new episode in the life of Sindbad or Ali Baba, he finds the merchant sitting before his loud-speaker or with the earphones attached to his head, listening to the latest news from the Bagdad markets or the Cairo Stock exchange.

An ancient and honorable calling is thus in danger of extinction, and Arabian nights no longer know the soft voice of Scheherazade beguiling the sultan with her fairy-tales, though it is lucky for the maiden that she had no wireless competition in those days, when her life depended on her skill in persuading the cynical ruler to wait just one more story.

As the East is the East, the story-tellers will probably accept their fate with a resigned "Kismet," but there seems one excellent way out of their difficulty.

With their gifts they could become the world's premier wireless salesmen. As a commercial traveler Scheherazade would have been a gold mine to any firm in the radio world.

Life's Journey

As I often remark to my nearest companion, I realize more and more as I grow older the stark truth in the poet-Pope's line: "Kifn never is but always to be blest," with accents on the verbs. No doubt it is wise to keep the end and aim of our journey through life always in mind. But that ought not to make us blind to the sacramental blessings by the wayside. The beauties of sky and landscape, of flowers, beasts, birds and fellow creatures are for our enjoyment, to help to perfect happiness. The Persian fable said that on his arrival in Paradise a mortal was asked by his Owner: "How did you enjoy the world through which you have passed?" "I was so anxious to get through it to this world, I hardly noticed it," he answered. "Ye, I made and furnished for you that world too!" said the Master!—"Observer," in Montreal Family Herald.

A Memory

Winston Churchill's intervention in the war debt controversy between Secretary Mellon and the professors led George Dunn Marvin, the San Francisco economist, to say: "Churchill is always leaping up into the limelight. Have you read his two volumes that tell how he won the war?"

"Churchill in his war book has forgotten the Dardanelles, but I'll never forget the remark that an old colored man made in the course of that disastrous campaign.

"Dem Dardanelles, mah," said the old man, "am sholy showin' demselves better fighters dan wot dat Churchill feller reckoned on."

Jersey, Tweed for Twelve-to-Twenty

Either Alone, or Combined, Smart for Fall Sports Outfit.

A suitable slogan for anyone seeking to sum up the season's fashions for girls of twelve to twenty might be phrased thus: "Jerseys and tweeds, jerseys and tweeds—these are the sports clothes that every girl needs."

The prevailing notion of a smart sports costume for fall is tweed and jersey—or both. The tweed may be one of the heavy nubby ones that look well in top coats. Or it may be plain, jacquard, checked, chevron-weave or plaid. In fact, it may be many more things too numerous to mention.

And the jersey is no less versatile. It may be the plain everyday wool jersey that can be bought on any counter. It may be embroidered. Or it may be knitted in combinations of silk and wool, in colors and in patterns that suggest or perhaps were really originated by Rodier.

The two-piece sports dress is highly recommended by Hazel Rawson Cades of the Woman's Home Companion, who notes that often the top section is of a different weave or color from the skirt. Neck or sleeve trimming frequently repeats the skirt material and brings the costume into unity.

Skirts are usually set to fitted hip sections of silk and adjusted by elastics at the waist. There is plenty of fullness; inverted or box plaits in the front of the skirt are stitched part way down, often in fancy designs; and there's often at least one kick plait in back.

Necks of jumpers are square, V or round. There are some collars, and, almost always, belts.

The three-piece adds a coat, and often a different fabric to the costume. Tweed top coats, three-quarters or full length, are mannishly tailored with raglan sleeves. Skirts match the coats and pull-over jerseys are the correct third partners. A good example of this sort of costume features coat and skirt of a brown novelty-tweed. And the pull-over jersey is of silk and wool knit, with belt and trimming of the tweed.

This costume gives plenty of warmth, but in California or Florida or Virginia or Texas, a lighter version of the three-piece may be more useful. That is why Miss Cades shows the costume at the right, with a shorter coat.

Coat, Skirt of Brown Novelty Tweed, and Lighter Weight Model.

The basic material for this is a natural kasha-colored jersey, but the body of the sweater and the sleeves are striped with horizontal woven bands of black and purple, ending in little arrow heads.

For wet football games, there are new rubberized raincoats. They are reversible, which in this case means a choice of black, or black and white pin checks. The Eastern college girl may root for Harvard with the dark red side, and use the tan covert effect for days when she steps out with Yale.

At the risk of saying something that has often been said before, it might well be remarked that sports accessories are a special brand. The jersey and tweeds should not be spoiled with a head bag and silk stockings.

The simplest soft little floppy brim felt hat looks well, and it doesn't need any trimming. A flat leather envelope bag, the rather loose slip-on gloves, are the things to buy. Oxfords or ties or strap pumps of moderately heavy weight and sports effect, and stockings of lisle or wool are correct in appearance, and give good wear. Belts are called for in almost every fall sports costume, and there is a good chance here to use some of the smart leather ones that are being shown, and to work a matching-up scheme with pocketbook, gloves or shoes.

Velvet Tams for Winter

If you are wondering whether velvet hats of the late summer will carry over into the winter—they are being renewed by the addition of a new model—a soft little velvet tam bound with gossamer ribbon and crushed becomingly over one side of the head to the ear.

Dress of Black Satin, Rayon Braid Trimming

Being featured for the fall season afternoon wear is this chic dress of black satin. It is trimmed with flat rayon braid.

Chiffon Velvet Liked for Chic Sports Duds

One new note that strikes the eye first on the field of sports taking on the hues of autumn is the introduction of the transparent chiffon velvet. Here, indeed, is a radical adoption of this silk, hitherto assigned almost exclusively to a stately, dignified role, which appeared to the best advantage when the electric lights were ablaze. It has, however, been adapted, and with signal success, by fashion authorities, who show it in both sports dresses and in ensembles, but almost invariably in black. It is consistently featured in the flaring circular skirt, and there oftentimes is a flare in the coats, especially in the full-from-the-shoulder type. In the more formal ensembles plain velvet skirts are topped by blouses of the printed chiffon velvet, the metal brocaded crepes and the other tinsel novelties. In some ensembles the long top coats of velvet and the brocaded silks in which the metallic threads scintillate.

Goat, Popular Sports Fur for Fall Season

"Goat, this season, is the leading sports fur," reports the fashion expert of Vanity Fair Magazine. "It may be either long and curly, or it may be shaved to make a flat, sleek fur."

"For this season, the short fur jacket is not worn as a coat with a number of dresses, but is part of an ensemble. A very important coat fashion for both town and country wear is a coat with a slight flare from the shoulders all around that closes diagonally. These coats are usually bordered with fur all the way to the hem. Gray and brown are two of the newest and strongest notes in sports clothes. Suits and ensembles are more popular than they have been for several seasons."

Draped Frock of Velvet, Chiffon or Crepe Satin

Upon where we go depends how we dress. The most elegant frock is lost to chic in the wrong setting, for dress must be as right to the occasion as to the style. For restaurant dining and dancing the semi-frock is correct, though one sees women in frocks of very great elegance at both restaurants and supper clubs on their way to or from more important engagements. The most useful type is the fluttering draped frock of velvet, chiffon or crepe satin. The décolletage should not be extreme. Mlle. Chandel says that to her way of thinking it is very strange to see women displaying themselves in too startling décolletage in public places.—Delineator.

Brown Shoes for Wear With Tailored Costume

Brown shoes, for so long the stepchildren of French shoe manufacturers, are popular for wear with most tailored costumes and for sports.

The Parisian woman still prefers moderately high heels on her town shoes. She leaves the low-heeled shoes for country walking and golf. Brown calf shoes, with one or two straps, are what she wears for morning walking in Paris. In the afternoon her shoes are usually light, to match her dress.

A Wadded Coat

Seen recently, worn with white clothes, was a very short coat of cherry colored silk that was quilted at regular intervals. It had a small stand-up collar that was immensely chic.

Chiffon Ensembles

Chiffon ensembles are especially smart if the frock is of the printed fabric while the coat is of a plain color.

The days between

At this season, damp, chilly days come often to remind us that summer has fled—though not yet so far away as to require the starting of the furnace.

It is, in these changing days, alternately cold and raw, or warm and pleasant, that the Electric Air Heater proves a godsend. The bathroom on cold mornings is made comfortable; the chill is taken off the breakfast room; in cool evenings it is welcome in the living room.

The Electric Air Heater is portable and quickly connected to the electric supply. It costs about 2 1/2 cents an hour to run.

TON LITTER CONTEST

Livingston County's first ton litter in the state contest is won by O. E. Arnold of Gregory. This litter of Chester White pigs was born April 7, were just six months old on Oct. 7. An official weighing on that day proved that the pigs totaled 2387 lbs of fancy pork. This is an average weight of 217 lbs per pig at 180 days of age. Mr. Arnold had another litter the same age, consisting of eight pigs that had an average weight of 213 lbs per pig, or a total of 1704 lbs of pork. As a result of Mr. Arnold's good feeding largely, two sows in six months produced two tons of pork for the market. This is a very economical way of producing pork especially in this instance as a great deal of the food was furnished by good clover pasture.

County Agent Bolander supervised the contest and has one more farmer in the contest who will soon be ready to report.

BETTER FARMING AT LOWER COSTS

By DAN H. OTIS
Director Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association

PRODUCTIVITY of labor in several industries shows a remarkable increase in output per man since 1914. In the iron and steel industry there has been an increase of 59 per cent; boots and shoes, 6 per cent; leather tanning, 26 per cent; slaughtering and meat packing, 27 per cent; petroleum refining, 83 per cent; paper and pulp, 34 per cent; cement, 61 per cent; automobiles, 172 per cent; rubber tires, 211 per cent. These lowering costs of production have made it possible for industry to face the hazards of over-production.

Industry has laboratories that are lowering production costs. In the agricultural colleges the farmers have their laboratories—experiment stations that are constantly working on problems affecting farmers' interests, and in them many methods have been worked out by which it is possible to increase materially the yield, reduce the cost of production and follow the same business principles that have been followed by industry.

Farm costs may be reduced through improved live stock. If there were only pure-bred live stock on the farms and ranges, we could get along with millions less animals, and that would release millions of acres for other purposes.

The accompanying table shows what each of seven items of live stock is producing; what each of these items could be made to produce by improved methods, and finally what the saving would be in each class. It gives a total national saving of over two million dollars.

feed the animals only one year. Taking the amount of food that could be reasonably obtained from a two-year old we find that it would be possible to keep up the present supply of beef and cut down on the number of animals slaughtered by 3,684,000. This would mean great savings in feed.

In a similar manner our present supply of slaughtered and inspected

CONTESTS AND BETTER FARMING

By D. H. OTIS
American Bankers Association

Much interest has been aroused over the country by ten pig litter contests. In a number of instances these litters have even exceeded two tons. If brood sows were developed so as to produce ten litters, it would be possible to obtain from each litter at least 1,500 pounds dressed meat, which would make it possible to cut down the number of brood sows from 9,000,000 to 6,000,000, a saving of 3,000,000 head.

Egg production per hen is today exceedingly low, amounting to only 56 eggs per year. Under the direction of the colleges of agriculture there have been carried on tests with demonstration farms which show it is easily possible to have flocks able to produce an average of 135 eggs per hen, or more than double the present production. If this were done throughout the United States, we could dispense with 239,000,000 hens, and still maintain the present production of eggs.

The importance and significance of quality production in our live stock is well illustrated in some figures taken from Wisconsin, where over 5,000 cows belonging to cow testing associations have made definite records. Results are shown in the following:

| No. of Cows | Av. Lbs. Butterfat | Total Cost | Profit |
|-------------|--------------------|------------|--------|
| 1,111 | 233 | $98.60 | $ 23 |
| 1,476 | 250 | 107.00 | 18.00 |
| 1,226 | 238 | 116.00 | 32.00 |
| 1,147 | 316 | 128.00 | 47.00 |
| 233 | 296 | 132.00 | 45.00 |
| 122 | 445 | 146.00 | 78.00 |

It will be noticed that with each increase of about 50 pounds per cow of butterfat, there is an increase of $15 to $18 per cow in net profit.

The 250 pound cow, which produces $16 profit, represents 6 per cent interest on $266. The 445 pound cow producing $78 profit represents 6 per cent interest on $1,300. In other words, the 445 pound cow will produce as much net profit as two 250 pound cows. Any surplus in dairy products can readily be taken care of by simply eliminating unprofitable or low-producing cows.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Scores Killed and Hundreds Injured by a Tornado at St. Louis, Mo.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
BETWEEN seventy and one hundred persons were killed and about six hundred injured by a terrific tornado that swept through St. Louis, Mo., Thursday. An area of six square miles in the city was ravaged by the wind and heavy rain, and the property damage may exceed $75,000,000. More than 5,000 homes were destroyed, as well as numerous business buildings. The storm's path was northeast, across the Mississippi river, and in the Illinois towns of Granite City, Venice and Madison several persons were killed and much damage done.

Governor Baker of Missouri ordered out the National Guard to patrol the storm area in St. Louis, and the local Red Cross as well as hundreds of members of the American Legion turned out for relief work. Mayor Victor Miller issued an appeal for cash contributions to aid the thousands who had been rendered homeless, and a citizens' committee was organized to co-operate with the Red Cross in raising funds.

FINANCIERS and many other persons are still immensely interested in the recent action of the federal reserve board reducing its discount rate, and it seems certain that the affair will be the subject of a congressional investigation. Members of the board, it is said, expect such an inquiry and are prepared to defend their course. It is charged that the rate was reduced at the behest of the governors of the British, French and German central banks, and at least one Federal Reserve bank governor, George W. Norris of Philadelphia, frankly admits that the action was taken for the purpose of aiding European finances, and thus benefiting the United States. He explains this as follows:

"Great Britain has just recently gone back to the gold standard, Germany, Austria and Hungary are stabilized. Poland is about to be stabilized, while France and Italy are not. The United States, with half the gold in the world, is vitally interested in the preservation of the gold standard among nations.

"The situation in Europe is such that several of the great banks in England and on the continent saw that they would have to raise their discount rates unless the rates over here were lowered. If they had been compelled to advance their rates, it would have thrown a chill on business throughout the continent and in England. This in turn, would seriously affect our export business with those nations just at the time when volume shipments of cotton, wheat and other commodities are beginning."

It is said the visit in the summer of Sir Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, who was accompanied by Schacht and Rist of the German and French banks, respectively, was for the express purpose of inducing the federal reserve board to reduce the discount rate and thus bring about the flow of money to Europe, where higher rates were maintained. Norman succeeded in this and the immediate result was what he aimed at. With the American rate 1 per cent below that of London funds began to flow back to the British market and sterling exchange began to advance, being now at par, an unprecedented situation at a time of year when there is heavy British buying of American cotton, grain and other products.

REAR ADMIRAL THOMAS P. MAGRUDER, commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard, stirred up a lot of discussion by a magazine article in which he severely criticized the navy as "overorganized and run on wasteful lines." Though the admiral might have been disciplined for publishing the article without first submitting it to the Navy department, Secretary Wilbur has taken what most of us will regard as the wiser course and has called on Magruder to "submit to the Navy department promptly a full and detailed statement embodying his plan for reorganizing the navy and the Navy department upon more economical lines."

"Of course, I have no such plan now," said the admiral, "and I have so informed the department. To make such a plan would require the expert assistance of a number of officers and the necessary clerical help over a long period."

Admiral Magruder charged that the navy supported too many admirals and too few enlisted men, was tied up with red tape, was overorganized ashore and afloat, that uneconomical methods begun in war time were continued and that the navy had failed completely to demobilize following the World war. He asserted that many of the navy yards would be discontinued were it not for political influences.

BEARING on the navy situation comes a statement from the V night House that President Coolidge wants first-class army and navy establishments maintained in this country and has no intention of asking any reduction in the amount of funds now expended annually for national defense. The President is convinced that the country is well able to meet the taxes imposed by present expenditures of $700,000,000 annually, for the army and navy, and his main desire is to insure that the best possible military and naval establishments are obtained with the funds voted by congress.

AMERICAN Legionnaires, who are traveling about Europe after the close of their convention, are being received everywhere with great enthusiasm. So far the only unpleasantness was the attempt to bomb the train on which Commander Savage and his party were going to Italy. This was laid to the Communists and fortunately was frustrated by the fact that the train was running behind time. King Victor Emmanuel received the party in the royal palace at Pisa in most democratic fashion, and in Rome the Legionnaires were greeted by the city officials and immense throngs of cheering citizens. They marched to the grave of the Unknown Soldier and laid a wreath upon it, then changed to evening dress and were received in audience by the pope.

Meanwhile another group of the Legionnaires was having a fine time in London and elaborate plans were made by the English for festivities and a reception by King George this week, when the party with Mr. Savage were due there.

GREAT BRITAIN won the Schneider trophy in the seaplane race at Venice when Flight Lieut. S. N. Webster in a Napier supermarine plane whirled over the course of 31 1/4 miles at an average speed of 281.488 miles an hour or about 4.7 miles a minute. This broke all existing speed records, and on the straightaways Webster flew at a rate of five miles a minute. His average time for the closed course was five miles an hour faster than the average of Maj. Mario de Bernardi in a land plane over the open course two years ago, when the Italian established a world's speed record.

Motor trouble forced all the Italian entries to quit before completing the course. The United States did not participate in the race this year because its only entrant, Lieut. Alford J. Williams, crack navy flyer, did not have time to complete preparatory tests in his specially constructed seaplane.

that eight relatives of Duval hold positions in the city government. Arthur Gilliom, attorney general of Indiana, addressing a gathering of Republican workers, warned them that unless they killed the klan in the state they would kill the party. He declared the Democrats were partly responsible for the super-government rule there, but this was warmly denied by R. Earl Peters, Democratic state chairman.

COMPLETE anarchy seems about to prevail in all China south of the Yangtze river. The Hankow Nationalist government virtually collapsed when the Central Bank of Canton, the Bank of China and the Bank of Communications declared a two months' moratorium. They have a total of $84,000,000 in paper currency issued in Hupoh province alone. Tang Shenshi, military head of the government, fled aboard a warship. The Nanking government of the moderate Nationalists, also seemed about to fall, and the Communists are forming councils of the workers and peasants and calling on all of those classes to take arms.

An official Russian dispatch says Eugene Chen, former Chinese Nationalist foreign minister, and Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese republic, were married recently in Moscow.

LICHTENSTEIN, the little European principality which lies between Switzerland and Austria, suffered severely from floods that followed three days of torrential rains. Its villages were almost wiped out and many lives were lost. Bavarian, Austrian and Swiss troops all crossed the borders to help rescue the people. The floods also caused great damage in neighboring regions and railway service was interrupted.

GREECE is having a strenuous time trying to prevent a coup by agents of Pangalos, the former dictator who is in a fortress awaiting trial on a charge of treason. His desertion in Syria was brief and was caused merely by homesickness.

The long-distance telephone line between Washington and Mexico City was formally opened last week by a personal conversation between President Coolidge and President Calles. As neither understands the other's language the talk was interpreted at both terminals. Other distinguished persons were at each end of the line, and the United States army band and the Mexican national band played the national anthems.

Ships Pestered by Stowaways

Youth Finds Thrills in Trying to Beat Way to Honolulu.

Honolulu, T. H.—One of the chief diversions of the usual ocean voyage between Honolulu and mainland ports of the United States is the uncovering of stowaways and their transfer to passing ships in mid-Pacific. Scarcely a trip is made without the passengers being entertained by stirring incidents connected with stowaways.

As the City of Honolulu was passing out of the harbor at Honolulu on her last trip to Wilmington, the Los Angeles port, she met the Calawall of the same line coming into port. Both ships stopped and the Calawall let down a lifeboat to transfer two stowaways to the City of Honolulu. While the transfer was being made one of the stowaways, Edward J. O'Hara, twenty-two years old, of New Orleans, jumped overboard and started to swim ashore, two miles.

Unaware of sharks. Either O'Hara was ignorant of the fact that the waters outside the reef here are infested with sharks, or he was willing to take a desperate chance to reach the islands of his dreams. At any rate, he started out with strong swimming strokes for the distant palm-lined shore, while the passengers of both the Calawall and the City of Honolulu lined the decks to watch the outcome of the dangerous exploit. They shouted their encouragement to the young man.

The small boat delivered the other stowaway to the City of Honolulu, and in the meanwhile the one who had taken to the water was making fast progress toward the reef where the white breakers plied a flood of water into the more quiet inner harbor. It happened that the officer of a submarine which was cruising nearby saw the stowaway jump overboard and strike out for shore. The submarine started in pursuit of the daring swimmer. It came alongside the stowaway in the course of 20 or 30 minutes and a life preserver to which a rope was attached was thrown to him. O'Hara was hauled on board and was delivered to port officers. He was permitted to remain here, as the law of deportation applies only to aliens. The other stowaway was made to work his way back to Wilmington on the City of Honolulu.

Most of these stowaways, both on the ships plying between San Francisco and Honolulu and between Los Angeles and Honolulu, are youths of seventeen to the early twenties in years of age. They are much more numerous during the college vacation period, and this is explained by the statement that many of them are students who are merely seeking adventure. They know that the worst thing that can happen to them is to be put to work, once they are discovered, or to be returned to their port of embarkation. Once Honolulu or the mainland ports are reached, they are permitted to go ashore and go about their own business.

Searching the ships for stowaways is a daily performance on these boats. Many Methods Adopted. Many ingenious methods are adopted by stowaways to gain free passage across the Pacific. It is not a difficult matter for them to get aboard while the ships are in port and once aboard they are able to select whatever hiding place may best suit them. One of the most unusual instances of a successful voyage of this kind was that of a young college student who, by some means not known to the ship's officers, gained access to one of the best and highest-priced first-class cabins which had not been sold and was therefore unoccupied.

This young man was well dressed, a good conversationalist and no suspicion was aroused among the stewards and passengers whom he met that he was not a paid passenger. He evidently had gotten aboard before the regular passengers began to arrive, as he escaped being asked for his ticket. He was careful to go in and out of the stateroom when the room steward for that section was not looking and he kept his door locked at all times.

After the first day or two out of the port of Wilmington, however, he took his meals in the first class dining room and his table companions enjoyed his conversation very much, they afterward declared. This stowaway reached Honolulu and then wrote a letter to the steamship company thanking its officials for the splendid treatment he had received and promising to patronize the line again when he got ready to return to the mainland.

May Be World's Record for Bumping One's Way

Champaign, Ill.—A pair of itching feet, a new school of journalism, and the desire to become a newspaper man, led to the establishing of what may be a world's record for bumping one's way across the United States. It was disclosed when Byron Riley, former movie stage carpenter and student at the University of California, rode into Champaign.

For five years, Riley built scenes for the Metro-Goldwyn studios in Hollywood, then he became bitten with the germ of the idea that he needed more education. The more he thought about it the more he desired to become immersed in the joys of "book learning" and as a result quit the studios of Hollywood for the more sedate and

Ham and Egg Record Set by Lumberjack

Iron Mountain, Mich.—Lumberjack; are known to have large appetites and one, Charles Smith, certainly upheld this reputation.

Smith walked into a local restaurant and wagered $100 he could eat two dozen of eggs and a piece of ham a foot long and an inch thick. His bet was covered and Smith won. He is a lanky chap, towering over six feet in height.

After he finished his meal he offered to bet $200 more he could eat ten more eggs, but the onlookers only looked at each other and shook their heads. Smith said he was hungry when he ordered 24 eggs and ham, but not hungry enough to eat a hearty meal.

peaceful halls of Berkeley. For a year he studied there, then came the announcement of the opening of the new school of journalism of the University of Illinois.

Straightway he went to his Berkeley bank, drew a check for $3 and set out, afoot, for the Illinois institution. Just outside Berkeley he caught a ride with a traveling man who was making a fast jump East. The traveler made him a proposition, if Byron would drive at night while the knight of the grip slumbered, bounteous meals would be forthcoming. A bargain was struck.

Six times during the next ten days a similar bargain was made and, after only ten days of travel, the would-be journalist rode into Champaign with the original $3 still intact in his pocket. Byron has $75 in all to start the year with! He'll make it.

Alphonse Has Record as the Youngest King

Paris.—Although the new king of Rumania, Mihail II, son of the ex-Crown Prince Carol, is only five years of age, he is not the youngest child ever to become monarch.

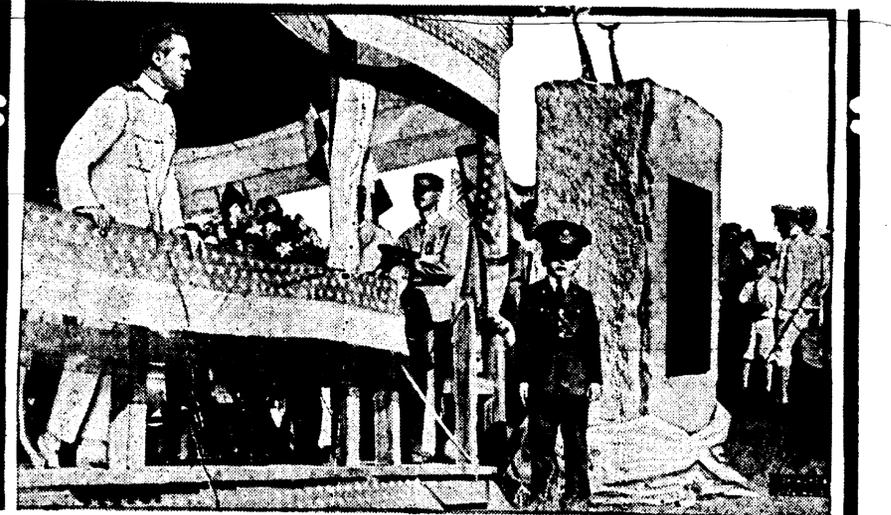

According to historians of royalty in Paris, it is King Alphonso XIII of Spain, who holds this record. For Alphonso, in fact, was born king of Spain, his father having died six months before his birth.

Queen Wilhelmina succeeded to the crown of Holland when she was only ten years old.

Cards and Dice Burned After Church Revival

Comanche, Texas.—Cards and dice from four leading stores were piled in the courthouse square and burned as the result of a revival campaign held here. A local pastor gathered the gambling paraphernalia for the bonfire and the tax collector applied the torch. Forty-eight decks of cards and 404 dice were burned. Bibles have been placed on sale where the cards and dice were offered.

PRINCESS STEPHANIE ONE OF THE SADDEST OF WOMEN

Love, Hatred, Murder and Suicide Caused Most of Unhappiness of Her Life.

Brussels.—One of the saddest women in the world is in Brussels. She is Princess Stephanie, a daughter of the late King Leopold II of Belgium, and is here for the purpose of assisting in the settlement of the estate of her aunt, ex-Empress Charlotte of Mexico. Love, hatred, murder, and suicide caused most of the unhappiness which has been her lot in life and which has caused many of those who know of her fearful plight, to call her a "princess of tragedy."

It was her brother-in-law, Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria, who was assassinated at Sarajevo in July, 1914.

German Envoy's Name a Series of Initials

Berlin.—Ambassador von Maltzan has admitted to friends that his real name isn't Ago at all. He was christened Adolf Georg Otto, but his father, handling the succession of names troublesome, made a new name of the initials A. G. O. The ambassador to Washington is now so generally known as Baron Ago von Maltzan that few persons know his real name.

The great war which followed the Sarajevo incident, was her father-in-law.

who was assassinated at Geneva in 1894.

Her father, King Leopold of Belgium, brought consternation into his home when he married the daughter of a French janitor, later cutting off his daughter, in his will without a cent.

Her husband, Archduke Rudolf of Austria, committed suicide with his mistress in 1889.

The escapades of Stephanie's sister, Princess Louise, scandalized Europe's blue bloods for more than twenty years.

Ex-Empress Charlotte of Mexico, who died a short time ago, after having been insane for 50 years, was Stephanie's aunt.

A cousin of Princess Stephanie was Emperor Charles, who died of a broken heart at Madeira.

Providence, R. I.—Baron and Baroness Francois de Levay de Wolf are to renounce their titles in the Hungarian nobility and become citizens of the United States. The title means nothing to him, he says.

A New National Holiday?

PATRIOTIC PLUGS AT MONTICELLO

STATUE OF THOMAS JEFFERSON

NEW national holiday will be added to the list of days officially recognized by the government for patriotic observance if congress heeds the recommendations made by the Thomas Jefferson Centennial commission at its meeting held in connection with the sessions of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, recently. These recommendations were to celebrate April 13 each year as Jefferson's birthday, to assure the preservation of Monticello, the home of Jefferson, to establish an appropriate shrine in Washington where may be preserved records and relics connected with the adoption of the Declaration of American Independence and to continue the nonpartisan work of patriotic education conducted by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial foundation.

Thus the name of Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence and third President of the United States, would be immortalized along with that of Washington and Lincoln as the only Presidents whose birthdays are national holidays and Monticello would take its place with Mount Vernon and the house in Springfield, Ill., as a patriotic shrine. Although Jefferson is regarded as the "Patron saint" of one of the two major political parties and the term "Jeffersonian democracy" is a part of our current speech, this proposal to honor him should have the support of all Americans because it is strictly nonpartisan. The officers of the commission, appointed under an act of congress, are: President Coolidge; Vice President Dawes; Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house; George P. McLean (R.), senator from Connecticut; Joseph T. Robinson (D.), senator from Arkansas; Simeon D. Fess (R.), senator from Ohio; Royal S. Copeland (D.), senator from New York; Finis J. Garrett (D.), representative from Tennessee; John Q. Tilson (R.), representative from Connecticut; R. Walton Moore (R.), representative from Virginia; Robert L. Bacon (R.), representative from New York, and Dr. Edwin A. Aldema; Claude G. Bowers; Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook; Henry Ford; Stuart G. Gibbons; Thomas F. Ryan, and Felix M. Warburg.

Through the work of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial foundation Monticello is being gradually restored to its original condition and visitors there find it easy to believe that they are living in the past of more than a century ago. One aid especially in establishing that atmosphere is the large number of Jefferson relics which have been presented to the foundation within the last few months and which will be on exhibition at Monticello henceforth. The foundation recently made this announcement:

The following items were donated by the late Jane Randolph Harrison Randall, a descendant of Thomas Jefferson, and the wife of Alexander B. Randall of Waterbury, Conn., who with her son Burton H. Randall, carried out the wishes expressed by the donor in her life time.

The Chippendale dining room table originally presented to Jefferson by George Wythe, the famous chancellor of Virginia and the first law professor in America and signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Three Heppelwhite dining room chairs purchased by Jefferson while minister to France, and brought by him to Monticello, where the chairs remained until a few years after his death.

The original mahogany bedside, candle-table used for many years at Monticello and which originally belonged to Jane Randolph Jefferson, mother of Thomas Jefferson.

Thomas Jefferson's original writing and drafting desk used by him for many years at Monticello. This desk has a double top with a sliding board on the side and discloses a number of the ingenious features used by Thomas Jefferson in his design for the little desk on which he wrote the draft for the Declaration of Independence.

The following articles were donated by Miss Fanny M. Burke of Alexandria, a descendant of Thomas Jefferson:

Thomas Jefferson's paint box, used by him at Monticello, particularly for his architectural drawings. Many of these drawings are still preserved, as he is the father of American architecture.

Thomas Jefferson's ivory memorandum leaflet pads, a locket with Jefferson's hair, a number of personal trinkets, buttons, buckles, etc., and three pillows from Jefferson's bed, two of which were under his head when he died.

Mrs. Victor Kauffman, wife of the editor of the Washington Star, has donated three dining room chairs which formerly belonged to Jefferson, and she has delegated Mrs. Rose Gouverneur of Washington, chairman of the Jefferson committee in that city and a descendant of James Monroe, to present the chairs in her behalf to Monticello.

In addition the foundation acknowledges presentation of a very unusual and interesting colored drawing of Monticello, made many years ago in France from the recollection of a visiting Frenchman. This drawing was purchased by and presented to the foundation by Mrs. Martin W. Littleton of New York city.

The foundation also acknowledges presentation of a handsome silk Virginia flag, presented to Monticello by the women's committee who had charge of the replica of the Jefferson house on High street at the Sesqui-centennial exposition in Philadelphia, of which committee Miss Caroline Sinkler was chairman, and which committee was represented by Miss Agnes Morrison and a delegation which formally delivered the flag to Monticello.

Of interest, too, to all Americans was the recent announcement by President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university upon his return from Italy that he was bringing with him as a gift to the Columbia library a hitherto unpublished letter of Jefferson's. This letter, ordering a packet of books for Jefferson's private library, dated Monticello, April 19, 1821, and addressed to Messrs. De Bures Freres, Rue Serpente, Paris, gives an interesting and instructive view of the wide and varied range of Jefferson's intellectual activities and interests. The letter follows:

Monticello, April 19-21. Messrs. de Bure Freres: The packet of books you were so kind as to send me the last year came safely to hand, and I duly note the balance of 184-46 to my debit. I now engage my friend, John Vaughan of Philadelphia to place 100 Dollars in Paris at your order, and request you to send me the books on the back hereof, or so many of them as the remittance will pay for, curtailing the catalogue at the end, so as to bring it within the limit of the remittance. It is arranged with a view of omitting those which I am the least anxious to possess, but retain in your hands the sum necessary to procure the Dion Cassius from Germany if not to be had nearer Villers in his "Etat de la literature en Allemagne en 1807," p. 33, says "le savant M. Fr. Guil. Sturtz a publie en 1807. un Dion Cassius," and a "catalogue de la Librairie Grec, Latine, Allemande," which I enclose, announces it in these words: "Dionis Casali Historia Romana, ed. Sturtz Leipzig in 3vo (sous presse)" the little page of this catalogue being lost, I know not its date of time & place, but I suspect it to be German, and of the date of 1818, as I see articles of that date in it and none later. I must request your endeavor to procure this edition. Let the bindings be all solid and handsome.

I have seen announced a "Recueil et parallele des edifices de tout genre, anciens et modernes par L. N. Durand a l'ecole Polytechnique," books of this kind are so often at extravagant prices, that one is afraid to ask them without knowing their price. If it does not cost more than 40. of 50. of send it, if more I pray you to write me the cost, that I may judge whether to put it into my next invoice, as I wish to get it if within reasonable bounds.

Be so good as to dispatch these books with as little delay as possible, that they may arrive before the storms of autumn or winter, and accept the assurance of my esteem & respect.

TH. JEFFERSON.

Doctor Butler's announcement led to the revelation by John Uri Lloyd, president of the Lloyd library in Cincinnati, that his library also had a hitherto unpublished Jefferson letter. The discovery of this letter came about in a dramatic manner. Several years ago the Lloyd library purchased in Paris the first volume of "North American Sylva" by F. Andre Michaux, a noted French traveler and botanist. When Miss Edith Wycoff, present curator of the library, was cataloguing the book, she discovered securely pasted in it a letter written by Jefferson to M. Michaux. This letter written eight years earlier than the Columbia letter as a token of esteem to the President's friend, in France, also reveals in a manner fully as interesting as the other communication one of the interests of the many-sided Jefferson, viz. his keen appreciation of any contribution to the existing scientific knowledge of the time. The text of the letter follows:

Monticello, Dec. 14, 1813. Sir: My interior situation among the mountains, and great distance from any seaport town, is extremely unfavorable to the purchase of correspondence with the other side of the Atlantic. Vessels bound to that quarter are generally gone before I learn their destination by the public papers. I have received from you, at different times, several livraisons of your excellent work on the forest trees of America, viz. the 1st and 2nd sur les Pins et Sapins et sur les Chenes and the 3rd and 10th on the Betula, Castanea, Fagus, Diospyros, etc. I have gone over them with great pleasure and received from them much interesting information which had escaped my own eye, although the subjects lie under my nose. They contain a valuable addition to the knowledge of American trees and claim for you the thanks of all who are interested in a better and more extensive branch of science. I pray you to accept my portion of that tribute as being among those who set the highest value on your work.

I have not seen the work of M. Tessier, mentioned by you on the subject of the Merino, but that race of sheep is multiplying among us most extensively. The general attention paid to them will soon render their wool an article of export, although our own manufactures are fast increasing and will soon make us independent of England for manufacture of wool and cotton, as well as for many other articles. Besides the domestic benefit to be derived from this economy, the political advantage of weakening permanently a bitter and permanent enemy are of real importance. With every wish for the successful prosecution of the valuable labors you are engaged in, be pleased to accept the assurance of my great respect and esteem.

TH. JEFFERSON.

house, and there was great consternation. William Blodgett, aged ten, was offered a "treat," value not announced, for any hint that would lead to the return of the missing grandfather. At noon he came home from school breathless. "I think, mother," he said, "I think we can find grandfather's picture." "Where?" "Downtown. I saw a notice on a shop window and it said: 'Paintings restored within.'"

New South American Nut

People of the United States are now buying small quantities from South America of which is known as the "paradise nut." It resembles a Brazil nut in shape, but is said to be a little finer in flavor. There is an interesting story told about this nut, which grows in a large round pod with a small cap at one end. As the story goes, the gas which forms in the pod after it has fallen to the ground forces the cap out with a loud report. This report attracts the monkeys, who then search for the nuts in the thick undergrowth, where they have been blown by the force of the explosion. This is given as the chief reason for the small supply of paradise nuts brought to our markets.

POULTRY

SMALL PROFIT IN GROWING CAPONS

The margin of profit in growing capons as compared to selling the male birds as broilers is usually small, according to experiments conducted at the poultry department of the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y. Feed appears to be the item of greatest cost in raising capons, and this increases rapidly after the birds reach the broiler stage. It requires about eight to ten pounds of grain and mash for one pound of gain in live weight, and capons of American varieties gain six to eight pounds in about as many months after they are caponized.

Feeding, housing, marketing and labor costs are often so large that they more than offset the increase in price received for them. Low feed costs and high meat prices may make the business profitable for some sections. However, in the Middle West, where feed is usually cheaper than in New York state, experiments and figures indicate that capons are not nearly as profitable as laying pullets.

The poultrymen at the college say that it usually is more profitable to market surplus males as broilers than as capons. But, if males must be held several months for special trade, caponizing may be advisable and often is desirable because it is easier and more convenient to keep them and the meat will bring a higher price.

Fattening Turkeys for Thanksgiving Market

Not many weeks remain till the holiday season when fat turkeys will be in demand. Those who are to supply the trade with Thanksgiving and Christmas turkeys should begin to fatten the birds.

The time will come when city consumers will be more rigid about the birds they buy for the Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons. They will want to know how the birds were kept, where they were raised and the feeds they had access to. And this is just, for much depends upon the food the birds have eaten.

The young turkeys should have the range as long as it is safe. It is true there is always more or less danger of losing birds from the various causes, but the birds need exercise, insects they may be able to find, and this will mean economy in raising them.

Nothing will take the place of grain in fattening. The birds will need corn, wheat, oats, kafir, milo or some grain for finishing them off the range. Where there are grain fields for the birds they may stay in the fields till marketing time. But if this is not feasible they had best be penned and fed for a while before they are offered for sale.

Ducks Oil Feathers to Aid in Shedding Water

Ducks and other waterfowls are able to shed water because their feathers are kept in an oiled condition, says The Pathfinder. Oil and water will not mix. If you will observe ducks in a rain storm or as they paddle about in a pond you will notice that they frequently bend their heads back and rub oil from the oil gland at the base of the tail onto their heads. Then from their heads they oil their entire body. In addition to being supplied with this oil, the feathers on a duck are exceedingly close together, a condition which aids considerably in keeping out the water.

Poultry Notes

High-producing flocks have slightly lower mortality than low-producing flocks.

The meat income constitutes 16.1 per cent of the total cash income in the light breeds and 29.5 per cent in the heavy breeds.

A shed closed on three sides makes a good summer house for pullets. The fourth side should be provided with fine mesh wire to keep out rodents of all kinds.

Mortality seems to parallel egg production, being lower in the fall and winter months and higher in the spring.

The greater the egg production per hen the greater the total expense, feed cost, and investment, but the lower the feed cost per dozen eggs.

A dust wallow is used by hens in summer for two reasons; one is to keep external parasites in check, and the other to keep cool. They enjoy a wallow of moist earth.

A heavy layer is like a heavy producing cow. The hen needs a definite amount of feed to maintain her body.

Late moulting hens should be saved for breeders. These are usually the late-laying birds. Mark the late laying hens with colored celluloid leg bands.

When pullets do not begin laying before February, it may be the fault of being late hatched, or it may be due to insufficient feeding of the proper bone and muscle food.

MONARCH Quality for 70 Years

Half Century Since Birth of "Tom Sawyer"

That perennial American boy, "Tom Sawyer," is fifty years old and literary societies of the country are celebrating the birth of Mark Twain's incorrigible pen child, an event which marked a distinct epoch in American literature. While his stories of "Tom" and "Huckleberry Finn" established Mark Twain's genius in the eyes of later-day critics, his worldwide reputation as a humorist had been achieved almost ten years before they gained wide circulation. A. H. Espenshade recalls, writing a biographical sketch of Mark Twain in St. Nicholas Magazine.

His "Innocents Abroad," a collection of newspaper letters sent back during his trip to Europe and the Holy Land, was published in 1890, and by that date his popularity and royalties were rivaling even those of modern best-seller authors. On a single lecture tour he earned $8,000 and the royalties on "Innocents Abroad" reached $8,000 in the first six months.

Proof That Ancients Suffered as We Do

Sufferers from pyorrhea, and kindred diseases of modern civilization are apt, even if they lose all their teeth, to console themselves with the thought that, at least, they have contracted something original.

They think to themselves, perhaps: "Well, Sir Walter Raleigh could not have had this. My great-grandfather, the admiral, did not suffer from this. He may have had gout and bronchitis, but never pyorrhea or the fashionable influenza."

But these modern sufferers have apparently been congratulating themselves unduly. There is nothing new under the sun; certainly there is no disease which has any true claims to originality. Even "rheumatoid arthritis" is proved to be thousands of years old. A mummy that goes back to 2900 B. C. shows the existence of this disease. Other mummies examined showed gout, tuberculosis and pyorrhea.—London Ancestral.

The Rarer Sort

Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service, said at the Army and Navy club in Washington the other day:

"Young Colonel Lindbergh is remarkable for the nonmercenary character of his ambition. He's ambitious to do better and better work, but he cares nothing about money."

"Now most of us are like Jones. A man said to Jones one day:

"Jones, what would you do if you had $1,000,000?"

"Do?" said Jones. "Why, I'd do the same as anybody else would do, of course. I'd overwork myself into dyspeptic neurasthenia trying to make it $2,000,000."

Analyzing Lindy

To have shown us that we still honor most in life courage, ethics, cleanliness of mind and fitness of body is the biggest thing that Lindbergh has done.—The American Magazine.

ALL THE LADIES OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

Protestants and Jews Among Donators to New Escanaba Institution

Escanaba—Because Protestant and Catholic, Jew and gentile, church-goers and those who sometimes scoff at religion contributed wholeheartedly to the fund, heeding only the call of charity without thought of creed, the new $250,000 St. Francis hospital, in this city, is a reality. The institution was dedicated and blessed, recently, by the Rt. Rev. Paul J. Nussbaum, D. D., Bishop of Marquette, for the Order of the Sisters of St. Francis, which conducts the hospital.

Prominent among the list of contributors to the fund are the Swedish Baptist Ladies' Aid Society and the Ladies of the Escanaba Jewish Churches. The campaign offered everyone an opportunity to give and a large majority of the citizenry of the community accepted.

The Order of the Sisters of St. Francis purchased the site which now bears the name of their patron saint in 1913. The first brick buildings were erected in 1914 and were dedicated the following year. Older frame buildings, in the rear of the brick structure, were used to house some of the departments of the institutions until April 4, 1926, when a disastrous fire wrecked all of the original frame buildings.

The hospital, however, long had been crowded and it was decided to replace the buildings destroyed by fire with new fireproof wings which cost approximately $210,000 and an additional $40,000 to furnish and equip. The new wings are four stories in height and will add 45 private rooms for patients, in addition to living quarters for the Sisters and employees, a chapel, laundry, heating plant, isolation ward, X-ray department and other facilities. New sun parlors will add to the comfort of convalescent patients.

Space formerly occupied by the X-ray department has been converted into an infants' room and a children's ward will be added.

St. Francis hospital in 1926 admitted 1,895 patients. There were 163 births during the year and 59 deaths. More than 2,000 laboratory tests were made, 1087 plates developed in the X-ray room in addition to 68 cases treated by the X-ray and 34 fluoroscopic cases handled. In the surgical department, more than 900 operations were performed.

There are at present 24 Sisters employed as dieticians, office clerks, laboratory technicians, surgical and drug supervisors and special nurses. One of the Sisters has a record of having witnessed more than 15,000 surgical operations, assisting the operating surgeon in most of them. The hospital is the city utilities largest consumer of water, light and gas.

YOUNG MEN COLLECT SEMINARY PLEDGES

15 Are Now Engaged at Suggestion of Bishop Gallagher

Fifteen Detroit young men, most of them seniors in major seminaries in various parts of the United States, are at work in the diocese in a campaign for the completion of a collection of pledges made to the Sacred Heart Seminary Fund. The seminarians are working at the suggestion of the Rt. Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., Bishop of Detroit, whose plan it is that every donor to the fund, whose pledge has not been paid in full shall be called upon.

In 1930 Bishop Gallagher asked the Catholic people of his diocese for a fund to erect, equip and endow Sacred Heart Seminary. Priests and laymen, in one of the most thorough and comprehensive campaigns ever undertaken here, covered the diocese and in a "drive" lasting two weeks, obtained pledges of $4,000,000 for the building and $5,000,000 for endowment. The generous response caused Bishop Gallagher and his advisers greatly to enlarge plans for the institution and today 450 boys are cared for in what is said to be one of the largest and finest diocesan seminaries in the world.

The endowment feature of the plan is the reason for the present campaign for the completion of pledge collections. While a large percentage has been paid in full, the amount outstanding represents a considerable portion of the endowment fund necessary for the perpetual care and operation of the institution.

The young seminarians undertaking the work of collection are Detroit boys who have returned to their homes for vacation. Several of them are students in the major seminaries in Cincinnati and Baltimore.

MOISTURE HIGH IN SEED CORN
Seed corn, which this year contains a high percentage of moisture, will be seriously damaged by early freezes if the corn is not properly stored, according to an announcement by the farm crops department at the Michigan State College.

The percentage of moisture in a great deal of Michigan corn runs as high as 45 to 55 percent. Temperatures of 23 to 30 degrees will ruin such corn for seed purposes if the seeds are out of doors "it is said."

High priced equipment is not necessary to care for seed corn properly. An unused room in the house may be utilized brooder houses make excellent places for drying seed corn, in some counties, commercial concerns will dry corn for a small charge per bushel.

Michigan farmers who have a good type of well matured corn this year will make a good profit on the time which is necessary to prepare the corn for seed purposes, according to the crops specialists. Good seed corn is scarce throughout the corn growing states.

It is said to be more economical to dry the corn now than later, when the air temperature becomes so low that a great deal of heat is wasted in warming the air in the storage room. The corn should be above the source of heat while being dried.

The Clothing project being conducted in Livingston County by the Home Economics Dept., Mich. State College, is meeting with an enthusiastic response.

A NEW NATIONAL HOLIDAY

If a proposal which is expected to be made before the next session of congress is carried out, April 13 may become a new national holiday. For that is the day upon which a great Virginian was born—Thomas Jefferson author of the Declaration of Independence and the first President of the United States.

This proposal has special interest at this time because of several new Jefferson letters which have recently come to light. If you will read the illustrated feature article, "A New National Holiday" in this issue of The Dispatch, by Elmo Scott Watson, you will find what these letters contain and you will also learn about the proposal to make Jefferson's birthday a national holiday and Monticello a national patriotic shrine.
