P. H. S. ALUMNI REUNION

Held Saturday. Was a Big Success
Attended by 219 People

The Annual Alumni Banquet and Reunion of the Pinckney High School was held at the Masonic Hall Saturday evening, June 23. This year the attendance broke all records 219 being present. The classes formed in groups at the Pinckney Community Hall according to the years in which they graduated and marched to the Masonic dining hall where a sumptuous banquet was served by the Kings' Daughters assisted by a number of the Kings Sons. The hall was tastefully decorated, the colors green and white being used.

After the banquet P. H. Swarhout, president of the Alumni made the address of "Welcome" and introduced the toastmaster, Lucius Wilson, of Oak Park, Ill. who requested the assembly to rise and sing "America." Mrs. Alta Myers, Class of 1914 was then called upon and responded in her usual breezy manner. Emil Lambertson, of Lansing, Class of 1905, followed with a short toast and Miss Grace Young of Detroit, Class of 1892 was next called by Mr. Wilson and kept the crowd laughing with anecdotes of old school days. Mrs. Ethel Read Smoyer of Akron, Ohio, Class of 1898, then gave an interesting talk, reminiscent of old time days.

Supt. J. P. Doyle delivered an excellent address, taking for his subject "The Five Yard Line" and related how many a time people in all walks of life failed after they had reached the five yard line. Edwin Brown, Class of 1920, responded with a fine discourse on school days. Morgan Harris, Class of 1924, was then called on and acquitted himself in an able manner. The next in order was Harry Jackson, Class of 1918 who in a few brief words thanked the assembly for the honor shown him. Louis Monks, of Jackson, Class of 1904, was next in order and said that out of seven living members of his class five were present and that next year they would make an effort to have a 100 o'o attendance.

Mrs. Florence Andrews Ratz, the original president of the class being deceased, Miss Josephine Harris was elected president by acclamation to replace her. Eugene Reason of Detroit, Class of 1904, related several happenings of bye gone days and was followed by Dr. Norman Wilson of Jackson, Class of 1891 who related some of the difficulties in securing the present school. However he said the "Old Red Schoolhouse" was fortunately struck by lightning and a new one had to be built. He also related the story of the ghost discovered by Perry Blunt, the janitor, in one of the rooms of the school. It however disappeared when a splinter was removed from a certain window.

James Green of Lansing then gave a short talk in which he expressed his pleasure in being present. The rolls of the different classes from 1891 to 1928 were then called and all were found to be represented except the classes of 1901 and 1908. Two classes those of 1891 and 1909 had 100 o'o attendance records. Dr. Norman Wilson and Mrs. Laura Wilson Howlett composing the former and Gregory Devereaux, Ella Clair McCluskey, Florence Reason Ratz and Mary Lynch Kennedy the latter. The other classes pledged themselves to increase their attendance next year. An Alumni Endowment Association was formed the members pledging themselves to pay $1.00 a year for the benefit of the school. The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place. Ross Read was elected president, Norman Reason, vice president and Calvin Hooker, sec'y-treas.

Then the company broke up, most of the crowd repairing to the Pinckney Community Hall where an old fashioned ball was put on for their benefit. Others remained in the banquet room to renew old friendships. Taking all things into consideration it was a complete success and plans are being made to make next years a still bigger one.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK

Last week, being commencement week, was one of the busiest periods in the history of Pinckney. The annual school picnic was set for Monday at Portage Lake but was postponed until Tuesday on account of rain when a very enjoyable time was had.

Tuesday evening the reception to the Senior Class was given by the Juniors at the Masonic Hall. After a satisfying feast, Supt. J. P. Doyle introduced the toastmistress, Miss Helen Feidler who called upon Miss Gertrude Tapper to give the address of welcome to the Seniors. Wayne Carr responded to this on behalf of the Seniors. This was followed by short addresses on the "Past" by Cecil Hendee, the "Present" by Raymond Ledwidge and the "Future" by Wilhelmina Bourbonnais. Ed Brown then responded to a toast in behalf of the Alumni. Calvin Hooker was next called upon and gave a very interesting discourse on "Physical Culture." Miss Nellie Gardner and Mrs. Beatrice VanHorn favored with vocal selection which were heartily encored.

Wednesday evening was commencement night and once more the portals of the Pinckney High School opened and another graduating class emerged to liner for a brief moment in the spotlight and then go their several ways.

The class made a fine appearance as they marched in and took their places on a fern and flower befestooned stage in the Pinckney Community Hall. After the invocation by Rev. B. F. Esic, Miss Loretta Dillingham salutatorian, welcomed the audience with an appropriate address. This was followed by the class song given by Miss Gladys Esic. Next in order was the Class History by Clare Miller in which he related the ups and downs of the class and their gradually diminishing numbers until only nine arrived at the goal line. Velma Hinchey Class Giffartorian, presented the various members of the graduating class with tokens suitable to their tastes. Mrs. Clifford VanHorn then rendered a vocal solo and responded to an encore. The Class Will was read by Norman Miller and was followed by the Class Poem written by Elnor Gage. Cecil Hendee delivered the Class Oration in his usual forcible manner. Mrs. Carl Zinn then favored with two vocal solos and Wayne Carr delivered the class farewell in which he bade adieu to his class mates, teachers, faculty and nations. The diplomas were presented by Supt. Doyle with a few appropriate remarks. The Albert and Sarah Wilson Memorial Prize to the student with the best standing in English was awarded. This prize of $25 was divided equally between Wayne Carr and Cecil Hendee, the Damon and Pythias of the class who tying for first in the class standings were also found to have the same average in English.

A letter was read from Ed T. Kearney of Sioux City, Iowa, former Pinckneyite, who in behalf of the Sons of the American Revolution offered a medal to the student with this standing in American History. This was awarded to Miss Loretta Dillingham. The gathering was dismissed by Rev. Esic.

FREE MOVIES DRAW BIG CROWD

The free movie show put on under the auspices of the Pinckney business men last Thursday evening drew such a large crowd that the streets were blocked. Hereafter the entertainments will be put on Wednesday evening, starting tonight.

OLDEST GRADS ATTEND

One of the preludes of the Alumni reunion last Saturday was the arrival of the "Olde Grads". At about 4:00 p. m. a strange vehicle was seen coming down Main St. It proved to be an ancient surrey of the 1890 vintage drawn by a couple of plodding farm horses. The carry-all was gayly decorated and its occupants were dressed in the raiment of bygone days. These on close scrutiny were found to be Mrs. M. J. Reason of this place and Herman Vedder of Detroit.

COST PER MILE $45,691.89

According to the state highway department, the paving of the 1.294 miles in the village of Pinckney was let for $59,125.32. The average cost per mile was $45,691.89. The cost of excavation was 55c per yd. The unit cost was $1.30 with a 7 to 9 in. concrete elevation.

ALL SAILS SET AND ON THE ROCKS

This remarkable maritime picture was made on the coast of Oregon at Neakahine mountain when the full-rigged British ship Gloucester went on the rocks while all sails were set. All members of the crew were rescued.

Billie's Visit to the Zoo

BILLIE BROWNIE was off a visit to the zoo creatures and the first he saw were the members of the seal family.

"Well, you are a splendid family," he said, "with your diving and swimming and performing. How you do delight people! Everyone stands around and watches you and every one has so good a time looking at the performance you are constantly giving."

"We have a good time, too," they said, as they splashed about.

"There is one game we enjoy particularly. Our keeper throws the fish into our pool and we always catch it as he throws it.

"We know when it is time for our meal, too," they went on. "Yes, we are always ready waiting for the fish and the keeper."

"Perhaps it would be more polite to mention the keeper first, for we couldn't have the fish pail, or rather the fish from the fish pail, without the keeper, and anyway we're most extremely fond of our keeper."

"But then you know we aren't public speakers and we don't always say things as we should. We have other things to do such as swimming and splashing."

"The little ones can swim when they're six weeks old. I doubt if babies could do as much."

"I very much doubt it, too," roared Billie Brownie. "In fact, I'm sure they couldn't."

"Well, you've given me an interesting little talk," he added, "and then I've been glad to watch you perform."

"Hello Teddy Tahr," he said. And Teddy Tahr, a wild goat from India, laughed and said:

"Well, Billie Brownie, so you've come to see me again. You do say all sorts of things about me, too, I've heard. Of course they're all true. But I mean I can scarcely walk around but that you'd think it was an interesting fact."

"And so I do, Teddy," said Billie Brownie. "For a Tahr isn't the sort of a creature one runs into every day. In fact, you're my only Tahr friend."

"I haven't lots and lots of them. I couldn't give a party with only one guest."

"But why, Teddy, are you resting your feet in your feed box?"

"Ah, that is so my feet are kept warm," said Teddy.

"You see, it would not be dignified for a Tahr to have a hot water bottle for his feet, such as I've heard people have. And yet he doesn't want cold feet."

"Well, maybe I've met a few more besides you," said Billie Brownie, "but I don't know the family intimately, you know. However, the one Tahr I know well I like so much that I am delighted to call upon him whenever I get the chance." And Teddy Tahr was much pleased at the compliment.

"You're quiet now, I suppose, because you're waiting for dinner?"

"Yes, our keeper will soon be along with the fish pail," they said.

"Well, good-by, Billie Brownie, call again."

And they all splashed a most polite good-by.

Then Billie Brownie paid a visit to his friends the Zebu and family. They had always been friends of his in their quieter way and they had often told him of the days in India when they had seen so many curious sights. Those days were so very different from the ones they now knew and the people were so different, too.

Mrs. Zebu, an animal something like a cow with a bump, gave Billie Brownie a kiss and her tongue felt rough on Billie Brownie's hand, but he was pleased with the kiss, and he thanked her and said she had sweet, gentle cow ways.

Then he went to call on the Himaayan Tahr.

FINDING A WAY OUT

By JOHN BLAKE

The water flowing from the nozzle collects in a little basin beneath it, then overflows, in this direction or that, wherever it can find a channel.

Watch it for a few minutes.

It is difficult to believe that it is not actuated by its own intelligence, its own intelligence which rules this universe.

The heads of the tiny streams creep this way or that, pause and turn and twist, till sooner or later they find a way out—a path that leads from the little pool down through the grass—always down and down.

If the hose is left flowing long enough, all the little basins in the grass will have filled and overflowed and when the ground becomes saturated the water will flow out of the yard and into the street, to find its way sooner or later into the brook or gutter that has already discovered the direction of the sea.

Over the whole face of the world water is hunting a lower level, trying to get back to the ocean, so that after a while clouds can form and rain may fall to refresh and cleanse the land again.

It is interesting and useful to watch these little streams that radiate fanwise from the pool under the hose—and to discover the channel which all of them are seeking.

Thus men and women work patiently to find their way, guided by an intelligence which is in themselves, and not merely in the universal law of gravitation.

The patient and the resourceful get out and away from the places where they start, but not till after repeated testing of every possible exit, and careful exploration of the surrounding country.

Thus did population flow out of the spot on earth where humanity first sprang into existence or hunted into existence, hunting out every possible abiding place, till now nearly the whole world is filled.

Thus by careful experiment must we each of us learn which is the best way for us to take.

It is easier to do this today, for we have the benefit of billions of experiments by our fellows.

Yet, if our minds are inert, we can move without thought or plan, and get nowhere, for there is no inevitable force to push us along our way, as in the case of the water, which is supplied with a substitute for the intelligence it lacks.

Most lives are turnings and twistings and gropings. But those which are directed by thought and energy, attain at least some of their objectives, are far more happy and useful than are those which only seek, like water, to move on and on.

A FEW GOOD EVERYDAY FOODS

By NELLIE MAXWELL

A man has two creators, his God and himself. His first Creator furnishes him with raw materials for his life and the laws in conformity with which he can make that life what he will. His second creator, himself, has marvelous powers he rarely realizes. It is what a man makes of himself that counts.—William George Jordan

EVERYDAY foods are the most important, so we should see to it that they are attractive and well served.

Kidney With Mushroom. Brown a tablespoonful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour, then one cupful of brown stock, salt, paprika and cayenne to taste, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and one-half cupful of mushrooms cut into slices. Add the kidneys, which have been parboiled, cook until well heated through and serve.

One may dry or pickle or can mushrooms in their season, thus having them when out of season or too expensive.

Farina Spoon Bread. Take two cupfuls of cooked farina; add two well-beaten egg yolks and a cupful of milk, one cupful of white corn meal, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix well and fold in the stiffly beaten white. Pour into a well-buttered baking dish and bake forty minutes. Serve from the dish.

Coconut Meal Pudding. Take two tablespoonfuls of corn meal, one of tapioca and one of coconut, salt to season and one-fourth cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of molasses, one pint of milk. Mix well and bake slowly two hours. Serve warm with cream.

Sweet Sandwiches. Chop fine one-half cupful each of candied cherries, pineapple and crystallized orange peel. Add three-fourths of a cupful of blanched almonds, moisten with orange marmalade. Use as a filling for Boston brown bread. Shape the rounds with a small cookie cutter or slice thin when steamed in small baking powder tins. Garnish with a maraschino cherry on top of each. Serve with tea or cocoa.

Mint sauce is made by bruising two tablespoonfuls of mint, add a tablespoonful of honey or sugar and just a hint of vinegar, all heated hot. This sauce is good with veal, venison, mutton or lamb.

AT THE UNMARKED CROSS-ROAD

By F. A. WALKER

AS YOU journey along on the by-ways and highways of life, you will come frequently upon the unmarked cross-road where you must decide on your future course.

At the cross-road, where the scenes of youth change, you must bring into play every faculty of reason, ere you turn in the wrong direction and tread the path that takes to failure.

A mile or two on the wrong route may change your whole life, for it is on such a highway that you encounter and associate with mischievous fellow-travelers who are apt to lead you farther and farther astray.

You forget the pleadings of conscience and the promises you made in your earlier days to head always in the right direction.

It is at the cross-road that men and women make the first upward step to fame, or take the initial stride down ward toward disaster and shame.

So, young man or young woman, when you come to the cross-road, the fateful turning point in your career, pause a while and let your memory take you back to your mother at the old homestead gate, as she stood there and watched you turn to a new world.

Try to interpret the loves in her moist eyes.

Think of her misgivings and fears, and the deep sorrow in her heart as the cherished home ties were rudely broken forever.

If you will do these things the likelihood is that you will choose the right course when you come to the cross-road, and keep your feet ever on the way that leads to highest achievement and an honored name.

But at this stage of life you are confronted with new difficulties. There are obstacles of self-importance, fancied wisdom, gathered first-hand from your brief experience with the world, dominated by foolish pride.

You are so sure of your ground that you consider it would be trivial at this juncture to think of a mother's love, when in reality it is the grandest act you can do, sure in itself of clearing your vision and equipping you for any field of worthy endeavor.

Rothafel as a Composer

S. L. Rothafel, the moving spirit of the programs by Roxy and His Gang, which program is heard on Monday evenings over the NBC Blue network, recently made his bow as a composer. The new selection is "Through the Air," and is dedicated to M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company.

POULTRY

SEPARATE SEXES WHILE YET YOUNG

When the cockerels in a poultry flock reach a live weight of from one and one-fourth to two pounds each they should be separated from the pullets and put on a different range or in another enclosure. This will aid in the growth of both the pullets and cockerels, according to the poultry men at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. They explain that the pullets will be less crowded and will thus have a better chance to eat and grow.

The cockerels fight less and grow faster when they, too, have less competition in their range area and roosting quarters. They should have a shelter house, preferably among trees, to insure shade and open air roosting places. To raise vigorous males for breeding purposes the cockerels should be grouped together by size and vigor; all should have large range areas, with feed hoppers and water troughs in at least three separate parts of the range so that there will be less chance for intimidation and consequent under-nourishment for the smaller birds.

In choosing cockerels for breeding or for market, begin the selective process as soon as the birds begin to show marked sexual characteristics. The time may vary according to breed and feed, but for leghorns they may be selected first at from six to eight weeks of age, and from ten to twelve weeks in the heavier varieties. The earlier the market cockerels can be separated from the rest for crate fattening, the better, because the price by weight for broilers decreases with the season faster than the birds can put on weight.

Broilers Bring Profits Now Only When in Prime

New Jersey poultrymen having surplus cockerels to dispose of as broilers are finding that there is little or no profit in them unless they are in prime condition.

Because farmers in all parts of the country are getting rid of their excess young male birds during May, June, July and August, the market offers only moderate prices. Birds in poor or only fair condition are sold at a loss.

"Observation has shown," says C. S. Platt, assistant poultry husbandman at the New Jersey experiment station, "that the poultrymen who have their broilers always in prime condition and ready to sell at a moment's notice, make the greatest profits through their ability to take advantage of favorable turns in the market. These men start with young chicks and by proper feeding and management endeavor to get rapid, uniform growth. No finishing is necessary. From the time the birds are first large enough to sell as broilers, until they are finally sold, they are in prime condition."

To cause this favorable growth poultrymen keep the birds confined and feed them a special ration.

Laying Mash Suggested by New York Station

An egg is a pretty complicated thing, and the hen that makes it needs a lot of material of different kinds, especially if she is going to do herself proud and make you a profit by a big year's output.

The ingredients commonly used in egg-laying mashes, says the New York agricultural experiment station, are wheat bran, wheat middlings, linseed oil meal, corn gluten feed, corn meal, ground oats, alfalfa meal, meat scrap, fish meal and dried buttermilk feed.

Of course you don't use all of these materials at the same time, but you need several. The Cornell mash, for instance, which has become so standardized that dealers are putting it on the market already mixed, consists of "equal parts by weight of wheat bran, wheat middlings, corn meal, ground oats and meat scraps."

The above mixture makes a pretty good growing mash, too, except that rolled oats or oatmeal may be used in place of the ground oats. Bone meal or lime is also usually added.

Size of House

Most authorities recommend a poultry house 16 to 20 feet wide facing the south with single slope shed roof, or one 20 to 25 feet wide with low double roof. Half-monitor poultry houses are not very popular because of the large amount of waste space at top. From three to five square feet of floor space per fowl is recommended, depending on type, with four square feet as a good working rule. For a house 16 feet wide, this would mean four fowls per foot length.

Poultry House Floors

Poultry authorities differ as to best floor for poultry houses. Important things are freedom from dampness, cold, drafts and dust. Double wood floors with heavy paper between are much used and very good, except that they are short-lived and do not keep out rats. Dirt, gravel or sand-clay floors are dusty and harbor rats and are hard to keep clean. Cement floors are satisfactory when properly made. Foundation walls should extend 12 to 18 inches into the ground.

Municipal Opera

AS AN experiment as well as to have a delightful place for folks to go for uplifting entertainment on warm nights, a group of St. Louisans, in 1919, hit upon the idea of constructing an open-air municipal theater in a great natural park which since has become a mecca for music and opera lovers.

"The open-air Municipal Opera of St. Louis," declared a New York visitor, "is a bit of Mittel Europa set down in our American Midwest. It is strangely exotic and yet it fits into Forest park like a lady's hand in a well-made glove."

The meandering little River Des Peres (often jokingly referred to as the River Despair), floored over, made a stage of generous proportions. A group of lovely trees provided a background; two huge oaks rising through the flooring completed this lovely, nature-made setting. An orchestra pit was arranged and lighting effects capable of producing scenes of fairy-like loveliness installed. A convenient, curving hillside which slopes down to the stage was lined with seemingly endless rows of seats and the ensemble was complete.

A 40-piece orchestra provides the music and the chorus is made up of some 66 picked St. Louis boys and girls, some of whom have been heard at the New York Metropolitan opera house, and took part in the cast.

There are 7,613 reserved and 1,600 free seats, with standing room for 2,000 additional visitors. The season is for 12 weeks, starting about June 1. On one evening during the 1928 season, 11,000 persons crowded themselves into the enclosure and 5,000 more were turned away—85,000 came in one week.

San Xavier Del Bac

SAN XAVIER DEL BAC is a great white church near Tucson, Ariz., which reaches well back toward the beginning of history in America.

Somewhat contrary to the general rule, this venerable edifice, said to be the most complete Spanish mission in the world today, faces due south—presumably because of the fact that such supply trains and visitors that might come were likely to approach from the south—Mexico.

Dates connected with its history are confused. It appears to have been established about 1692, by the aged Father Kino, who set out northward from the City of Mexico to spread the light of Christianity among the tribes of the North.

Approached from the south, the symmetry and beauty of the mission is decidedly impressive. There are two great towers with flying buttresses on either side of a highly ornate entrance, above which rests a noble dome. One of the towers is incomplete. The reason why probably never will be known. Immediately in front of the church is a walled enclosure which became a burying ground. The Indian believed that the nearer to the church his remains rested the better were his chances of reaching Paradise.

The thick walls of masonry stop the heat without impeding the flow of light, since the sun's rays strike the recess and enter the church by reflection. Inside the air is laden with ages of incense, but walls disclose a decorative effect which appears a bit bizarre, with frescoes of genuine merit—all symbolic, apparently, of San Xavier, in which the shell plays an outstanding part.

Go Far Into History

The Druses form a community of Arabic-speaking mountaineers numbering about 150,000, scattered through different parts of Syria. The settlement in the Jebel Hauran is the most important, owing to its virtual independence. The Druses are so-called from the missionary, Darazi, who founded the sect in the first quarter of the Eleventh Christian century.

Distance Computation

The adopted unit of stellar distance is the distance traveled by a light wave in a year. This unit is called the light year. The distance in light years astronomically is then translated into miles, using as a basis the fact that the velocity of light is 186,300 miles per second, and it travels from the sun to the earth in 499 seconds.

Diamonds

A diamond in the rough may be any color, but diamonds in this state generally have a greasy luster. Different colors may be seen to the stone before it is polished, if the stone is fractured; but these colors are not the colors that are seen in cut and polished stones. The United States geological survey says that a diamond can be tested only by an expert.

Peculiar Trees

The most extraordinary forest in the world occupies a tableland six miles in width, near the west coast of Africa. The peculiarity of the trees is that, though their trunks are as much as four feet in diameter, they attain the height of only a foot. No tree bears more than two leaves, and these attain a breadth of two feet.

The Bus Driver

Buses have to operate on schedule and we make sure of dependable service by using Champion Spark Plugs.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sill-manite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

Prince's Simple Life on Ranch in Calgary

The prince of Wales, so they say, is developing an American accent. Seven years of annual association with the cowboys and neighboring ranchers at Calgary, Alberta, where he is owner of the El ranch, have erased much of his carefully cultivated Oxford enunciation and substituted the drawl of the American Northwest.

The British royal heir even jokes about the change in his speech. A favorite story with him is one in which an American acquaintance explains that the difference between a ranch and a "ranch" is that "a ranch pays and a 'ranch' doesn't."

"But everybody in Calgary knows that the prince runs a ranch and not a 'ranch,'" says Chief Long Lance, a neighbor. "By 8:30 every morning he has breakfast and is out inspecting his cattle and barns. One of his chores is hauling manure in a wheelbarrow."—Los Angeles Times.

Name "Dark Continent" Credited to Stanley

Africa is called the "Dark continent" on account of the fact that it was for many years an unexplored region. Henry M. Stanley, who knew more about Africa than anyone else, traversed its darkest part, and told the story of his travels under the title, "In Darkest Africa." Stanley's white aides, Surgeon Thomas Parke and Lieut. William Bonny, both published books in England after their return home, and others returned with them. So it is untrue that Stanley's white aides perished as claimed by A. Aloysius Smith, alias "Trader Horn." Leopold, king of the Belgians, financed the expedition for the relief of Emin Pasha and the exploration of the Congo. That is why the territory came under the Belgian flag.

The simile "Dark as Egypt" may relate to the fact that the Egyptians were superstitious, and, as people who were continually seeking omens, they avoided work on certain days.—Literary Digest.

Selfish Lives

Bishop William Lawrence of Massachusetts has retired voluntarily after 34 years of splendid service, on the ground that:

"Old men should give way in order that younger ones may have full opportunity of authority."

Bishop Lawrence's life has been one of self-sacrifice, and he has always hated selfish lives. In a recent Y. M. C. A. address he said:

"Some of our millionaires in their success talks preach an admirable philosophy. Only the other day a millionaire said to a high school graduating class:

"In this race for success let me tell ye, young men, it ain't enough to know how to push yourself along—no, siree! Ye gotta know how to push the other fellow out of the way."

Try This for Amusement

Here is a little problem to try when you are lonesome. It is more than odd and interesting. Set down these figures—1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8, leaving out 8. Choose one of these figures and multiply it by 9. Then multiply 12345679 by the result. To your surprise the final result will be made of nothing but the first figure chosen. For example, suppose you choose figure 5. Multiplying 5 by 9 gives 45. Multiplying 12345679 by 45 gives 555555555. And no matter which figure is chosen to begin with the final result will always contain 9 duplicates.—Pathfinder Magazine.

MONARCH

The question is often asked--"Why is the grocer who owns and operates his own store the only one from whom MONARCH FOOD PRODUCTS can be purchased.

Here is the answer:

His creed of service--like that of the family doctor--goes beyond the required. He is a builder. He adds his part in character and employment to the welfare of your sons and daughters; extends his help when you need it most; contributes his portion to your schools, churches and other community enterprises.

His interest in you, your activities and the well-being of the community is a personal interest. In short he gives the sort of service possible only from a man who owns and operates his own business.

OLDFIELD

FIRESTONE BUILT

"The Most Trustworthy Tires Built"

Takes a New Place in the Tire World

Now that Firestone has taken over the manufacture and distribution of this high-grade standard tire, the Oldfield Tire emerges from the comparatively limited production class to that of nation-wide distribution and sale through 30,000 Firestone Service-Dealers.

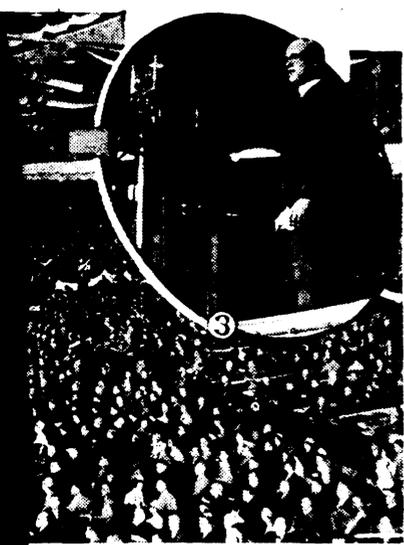

What does this mean to the millions of users of high grade standard tire everywhere in America. It means that this famous tire which for more than four years has been distributed through the Oldfield Co.'s own dealers--can now be bought at LOWER prices than those of any other tire of equal quality, durability and mileage performance.

The Oldfield Tire takes its new place in the tire world, backed by the tremendous resources of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., the advantage of a Firestone scientifically designed tread with greater gripping power, longer wear, greater comfort, security and economy and the advantage of Firestone special methods of building into tires extra mileage at lowest cost.

Republican national convention in session. 3—Sen-

CURRENT EVENTS

Nomination of Hoover by Republicans Outstanding Event of the Week.

THE Republican national convention focused the attention of the country for at least five days of the week. The nomination of Herbert C. Hoover as the Republican candidate for the Presidency, a foregone conclusion before the doors of the convention hall were opened to the delegates, left the proceedings largely a matter of routine, except for the battle over the platform.

The outstanding feature of the convention, seen in retrospect, was the Hoover control of the proceedings. It was supreme, but it was a mannerly, orderly control. No rough stuff. Opponents of the Hoover majority were courteously given ample opportunity to present their side of the questions at issue and no restraint was put upon the delegates when their enthusiasm burst into long and noisy demonstrations, as it did particularly when the nominations were made.

The agricultural plank of the platform, as expected, launched the big fight of the convention. A determined fight on the plank presented by the majority of the committee was made by the western farm leaders.

This plank, formulated after two days and nights of labor in the committee, ignored any mention of the controverted equalization fee of the McNary-Haugen bill, but pledged every assistance in the reorganization of the farmers' marketing machinery. It proposed the creation of a farm board with power to set up farmer owned and controlled corporations to prevent and control surpluses through orderly distribution.

Facing an admittedly losing fight the farm leaders battled on earnestly and at great length, submitting only when the majority of the delegates voted approval of the committee report.

A no less earnest but less time consuming battle, and also a losing one, was waged on the prohibition plank which advocated observance and vigorous enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment.

For the first time the radio made the proceedings of a national political convention available to people in all parts of the country. Other conventions have been broadcast, but never before was there a hook-up of broadcasting stations so distributed that anyone with a receiving set anywhere in the country could hear the entire proceedings.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE on Monday night gave his semiannual report on the business of government as it has been handled during the last few years and outlined his policies for the next six months before a gathering of the department heads in Memorial hall, Washington.

"It has been my endeavor," he said "so to manage the national finances as to secure the greatest benefit to the people. I have rejoiced in keeping down the annual budget, in reducing taxes, and paying off the national debt, because the influence of such action is felt in every home in the land."

The people, he said, must furnish their own prosperity. It cannot be handed down to them by the government. And when they have it they must rise above it in spiritual outlook.

"Prosperity," he said, "is only an instrument to be used, not a deity to be worshipped."

Reviewing the condition of industry and trade since 1921, he said:

"Stabilization and a feeling of security have been the primary factors in the great upward swing of American industry and commerce since 1921."

The tax question, he declared, has been approached from the angle of requiring no more from the people than necessary to operate the government efficiently.

"The revenue acts of 1921, 1924, 1926 and 1928," he said, "when fully additional payment of $142,000 also was dismissed.

The case included testimony from former War department officials and officers of the airplane company, which during the war had held contracts for aircraft for the government totaling about $11,000,000.

THE elimination of President Coolidge as a candidate to succeed himself caused a tremendous crash on the New York stock market Monday. Prices broke from 2 to 25 points. Not since the hectic record-breaking session of March, 1926, has the exchange experienced such wild selling. Marked recovery in prices was shown later in the week.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE have settled down for the season at the summer White House on the Brule river in Wisconsin. After a two days' delay in vacation departure, due to the illness of Mrs. Coolidge, the Presidential party left Washington Wednesday night. Mrs. Coolidge had improved greatly, was cheerful and anxious to get started on the journey. The offices of the White House staff have been established at Superior and the President is expected to motor to that city when business requires his attention.

The President is being guarded by regular troops from Fort Snelling, Minn., who are camped about a quarter of a mile from the lodge.

THE price of educating a public school pupil has more than doubled in the last 15 years. It is shown by figures compiled by the federal bureau of education. In 1913 the cost was $38.31, and the present figure is $102.50.

Expenditures for public school buildings have almost doubled since 1920, with the peak being reached in 1925 when $433,000,000 was spent for new buildings. In 1926, however, the annual expenditures for public school buildings decreased $22,000,000, indicating, the bureau said, that construction had overtaken the shortage caused by the World war.

The bureau attributed the increase in school expenditures to the decreased purchasing power of the dollar and the general improved school facilities.

THE Baltic bitterness, resulting from the unsettled dispute between Lithuania and Poland, remains as the only danger to European peace, was the opinion expressed generally by the council of the League of Nations, under its fiftieth session at Geneva.

Council members made no attempt to conceal their chagrin that the body had found itself unable to liquidate this quarrel. The basis of the dispute is the Polish possession of the city of Vilna, former capital of Lithuania, and recently named anew, in the constitution of that country, as the seat of its government.

Members of the council separated with the feeling that the Baltic situation will be either better or worse by September. If the latter proves to be the case, the whole controversy is likely to be thrashed out before the general assembly of the league.

ROBERT W. STEWART, chairman of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, was acquitted by a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme court in Washington on a charge of refusing to answer questions of the senate investigating committee regarding Continental Oil company bonds. Stewart specifically was accused of violating section 102 of the criminal code, which makes it mandatory that witnesses before congressional committees answer questions pertinent to the subject of inquiry.

ONE of the most picturesque figures in the woman suffrage movement, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, died in a nursing home in London, England, at the age of sixty-nine. Death came after a comparatively short illness.

Mrs. Pankhurst was the first militant suffragist in efforts to obtain the vote for women, millions of whom are now enjoying the privilege of casting their ballots at parliamentary elections as a result of the work of her and her supporters. This early work was often done at great personal risk.

Kansas Hit by Violent Deaths

Fires, Automobiles and Murders Take Toll of Lives at El Dorado.

El Dorado, Kan.—When will the end come?

That is what residents of this ordinarily peaceful community are asking each other as the toll of sudden and violent deaths mounts almost daily. Since January 1, 31 persons in the El Dorado community have met sudden death.

Fourteen of those who have perished were burned to death in their homes, or fell into scalding water. Motor car accidents have claimed five others and mishaps of other kinds have claimed the remainder.

Of the 14 who have succumbed as the result of fire, 12 perished in burning homes.

A fire that took the lives of five persons occurred early this year at White station, eight miles southwest of here. This blaze was the forerunner of the string of tragedies. In this fire, Harry Miller and his three children, Opal Raymond and Bernice, were burned beyond recognition. Mrs. Minnie Miller, the mother, was burned so badly that she died a few weeks later. Two other children also were burned, but recovered.

Asleep in Their Home.

At the time this fire occurred, the Millers were asleep in their home. Raymond, aged eight years, had arisen to start the kitchen fire. Whether he used kerosene was never learned. But shortly after he touched a match to the fuel the house was in flames. Raymond was trapped on the second floor of the home with the others and perished. He ran to warn them that the place was in flames.

The second holocaust occurred 20 miles northwest of El Dorado the night of April 20, when Mr. and Mrs. William Oberst, well-known German farmers of North Butler county, and their five younger children, Herbert Edith, Hugh, Ralph and Dorothy, perished. Owen, seventeen, the only survivor of the family, is being held at the county jail pending trial on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Owen has confessed that he first shot and killed the other members of the family with a .22 caliber rifle and then set fire to the home after pouring oil on the kitchen floor.

Owen committed the murders, he told officers, because he was "mad at his father." The latter, a well-to-do farmer, had refused Owen permission to use the family motor car when the youth had dates. Owen never drove the car except in the daytime, and then when his father was with him.

For two weeks after the murders, Owen defied county officers to fasten the crime on him. Finally, he broke down and confessed. Asked why he did it, he said he wanted to clean up the whole affair. Owen's confession did not go into the killings in detail. He merely says he shot one member of the family and then another. He refuses to say what the other members of the family were doing when he was killing them one at a time. A search of the ruins revealed the badly charred bodies of six victims in that part of the house where the kitchen was located. The body of the seventh person, believed to be that of the mother, was found in the dining room after the blaze.

Scalded to Death.

Robert Mellot, aged eight months, was the youngest person of the 14 who have lost their lives from burns so far this year. The youngster, while playing on the floor at his home, fell into some scalding water. Germaine Wilson, aged five years, was burned to death late one morning while asleep in the home of her parents at Sullyards, east of here. Two other children narrowly escaped. The mother was in the garden working.

Mrs. Esther Blanche Moore, Lewis E. Williams and Fred Wright dropped dead from heart disease. William F. Lowrey was instantly killed when he was struck on the head by a large bridge timber. Dave Coffman, farm boy, was fatally injured when a falling tree struck him during a high windstorm. Charles Cannon, farmer, died as the result of a rifle wound. John Belt and Ray Allen were asphyxiated while at work in an oil tank. Mrs. Lucy J. Sorter was fatally injured in a fall at her home. J. R. Scott met death when he leaped from a wagon on which he was riding and driving a team of horses, after the latter became frightened at a passing motor car. Russell Suppes was killed instantly when his clothing was caught in some machinery in the oil fields.

Women Lag in Inventive Skill, London Discovers

London.—Is it true that women have little constructive or inventive ability?

The proportion of women applying for patents for inventions seems to point to this.

As against 3,000 men there are only 500 women, and although women are engaged in almost every trade and profession and are numbered in the thousands as drivers of motor cars, their inventions are almost entirely domestic and labor saving.

Men, on the other hand, contribute ideas that range from a new life saving raft, complete with cabin for rough weather, to a hair clasp for attaching a "switch."

They too, however, have some bright ideas on domestic problems.

One man has invented a new dust receptacle which opens and closes automatically and is so designed that the dust from the head of the mop cannot escape into the room.

Perhaps one of the most welcome inventions of 1928 is iodine in a new form—solidified and contained in a small case. It will be invaluable for traveling and can quite well be carried in a handbag, where it is hoped it will not be confused with a lipstick.

Gardeners will delight in a weapon for the destruction of dandelion roots. It is on the principle of a suction cork extractor, and lifts out the whole root most effectively.

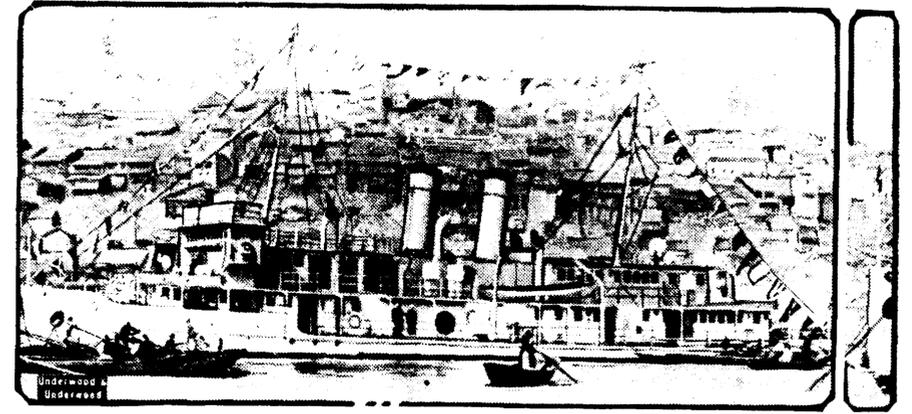

An electric kettle that automatically cuts off the current when it is beginning to boil dry will be a boon to the absent minded and a preventative of fire.

Alaska Volcano Appears Ready to Greet Scientist

Seward, Alaska.—Mount Katmai, western Alaska's great inland vent, is preparing to serenade Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, volcanologist, now enroute to the region for a season's study.

For several weeks smoke emissions have been noted, and the throbbing recesses of the Aleutian Islands, where there are more than forty active volcanoes cast red reflections into the night skies. Eighteen years ago Katmai hurled forth masses of ash and completely buried the surrounding country.

MOTORIZED MAST FOR NAVY BLIMPS IS NEW INVENTION

Will Revolutionize Handling of Big Airships and Do Away With Big Ground Crews.

New York.—A mobile mooring mast, mounted on heavy caterpillar tractors which is expected to revolutionize handling big airships and do away with large "ground crews" to get such craft in and out of their hangars, is under construction for the United States navy, and will be delivered early this summer at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air base for tests with the dirigible Los Angeles.

It is a three-legged "stub" affair only 60 feet in height, being similar to the "stub" mast successfully used in Panama on the Los Angeles' recent Caribbean cruise except that the latter was stationary.

The movable mast will be used both for "mooring out" purposes on the field and for "locking" and "unlocking" the airship in the huge shed that houses her.

The procedure will be to moor the dirigible to the mast, which will then haul her, tug-like, into the hangar. Included in the "stub" mast equipment is a large pneumatic-tired wheel to which the stern of the airship is attached. It acts as a caster, allowing the ship's tail to swing with the wind but keeping it from moving either up or down. To protect the airship against sudden side gusts of wind that might crush her against the hangar lines will be attached to her sides at points of vantage and secured to tractors running on rails leading into the hangar.

Not only is the "stub" mast far cheaper than the towering structures heretofore utilized at Lakehurst, the Ford airport in Detroit, and elsewhere, but it is said by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, and other experts to be more satisfactory because it will keep the dirigible near the ground, where air currents are less treacherous than at an altitude of 100 feet or more.

If the movable mast proves a success it will solve one of the greatest problems which has baffled lighter-than-air experts in establishing airship travel on a commercial basis, ground handling heretofore having been an almost prohibitive factor for private operation.

Yale Gift for Tunney

New Haven, Conn.—Gene Tunney has been deeply touched by a lovely set of Shakespeare sent him by Yale boys to whom he lectured recently about the bard. He also has written the boys that he got a great kick out of the public's reaction.
