Testing the "Lung," New Submarine Safety Device

Lieut. C. B. Monson, United States navy, one of the inventors of the new submarine safety device called the "lung," testing it at the Washington Navy yard. It is destined to be the one avenue of escape to the sailor imperiled in the depths aboard a sunken submarine. The "lung" used today resembles a gas mask and weighs four pounds, and by the use of a mouthpiece the person is enabled to breathe.

BOTH WISE AND FOOLISH MUST PAY

By F. A. WALKER

THERE is sure to come some day to every human being now journeying through life an austere agent of nature, empowered to collect certain personal debts and obligations, long overdue.

The simple process of falling behind in payments is a common one, brought out in most cases by indifference. In youth we ride madly disregarding reason and health.

But all of a sudden we find ourselves unhealed, lying upon an unknown road, hurt in body and broken in spirit.

And beside us stands this obdurate collector who insists that we hand out our toll, to the last penny.

It seems as if he had never heard or seen us until that moment; but by report of his memory, he must have known us a long while.

"I know you all," says he, "the wise and the foolish, but it is from the fools that I gather the heavier tolls."

To those who in the springtime shunned wisdom and understanding, he presents a heavy bill. They must work it out in dismal shops where work is menial and a lifetime is required in which to cancel the debt.

From others, who in their early days were wild, indiscreet and evil-minded, who ran up obligations which in middle life must be paid in disease, repining and broken manhood or womanhood, he exacts staggering accounts, till all is gone and hope is fled.

From the vicious and depraved, he levies tolls in prison walls without tate or tect.

Thousands are piling up such debts today, which must in the days to come be paid in full.

Those who travel the primrose path, sow tares, waste time, sneer at instruction and forget their Creator in the days of youth, will sooner or later be compelled to pay for their follies with their last drop of blood and their last ounce of strength.

Only a few years ago these merry-makers were clear-eyed, happy and innocent boys and girls.

But now, as the grim messenger comes to gather his toll in pain, sorrow, sobbing and sickness, it must be paid, for nothing but this form of payment will suffice to cancel the account.

I HAVE SPOKEN

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

Bronze arms across a copper chest. A statue, yet a living man. He gives the council-fire his best. Whether a challenge or a plan. Born swift of thought and slow of speech.

When once his silence he has broken. He speaks to all, yet speaks to each. And ends the matter, "I have spoken."

But men who call themselves more wise.

Because God chanced to make them white.

Argue and answer and advise. Debate and shout, and even write. Yet, if it is the truth we tell.

Truth needs no other sign or token. Let us speak wisely, and speak well. Then speak no further, having spoken.

For who can add more truth to truth. When once the sword of speech he girds?

Yet old men argue, yes, and youth. Obscure the truth with useless words. Will repetition make steel steel.

Or gold more golden, oak more oak? Great clouds of words will but conceal. The truth's high mountains, I have spoken.

(C) 1925, Douglas Malloch

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. INTELLECTUAL INFANTS

By JOHN BLAKE

MOST parents realize that children like to ask questions.

They realize also that their off-spring's queries are likely to be most persistent when the victim is trying to concentrate on something else, or when he doesn't know the answer to the question.

At such time many parents take refuge in "Don't ask questions, dear." This saves them the annoyance of turning their attention to the new subject; and it saves their pride if they don't know the answer to the question that is being propounded.

It is, however, a rather cowardly subterfuge. And it is rather discouraging for the child.

In the past curiosity has been looked upon rather as a vice. "Curiosity killed a cat," says some one when a child seems to be over-inquisitive. And that seems to be the end of the matter.

There are several kinds of curiosity. One is a snooping, meddling, gossip sort often met with.

The other is the driving force behind great inventions and discoveries.

Columbus was not interested in prying into his neighbors' private affairs. But he did want to know what was on the other side of the ocean.

Amundsen was similarly interested in the region between Alaska and the North pole.

Edison was curious to know if the human voice could be reproduced. Every great scientist, inventor and explorer that ever lived has been actuated by curiosity.

And so we see that curiosity, far from being a mere annoying inquisitiveness, may be a very noble thing.

Of late the term "intellectual curiosity" has come into vogue. It is not a disparaging term. On the contrary anyone who is possessed of a bump of intellectual curiosity is generally conceded to be a high brow.

Most children do not ask questions because they want to be annoying. They ask questions because they want to know the answers. In the same way did Socrates ask questions of the citizens of Athens.

A child has not been in the world as long as an adult. Consequently it has not had as much opportunity to learn things good and bad. Shall it be condemned for wanting to learn them?

If you stop to consider it, curiosity is rather a hopeful sign in a child. A dull person doesn't want to know about things. But an intelligent one does—about the things in which he is interested anyway.

It is irritating to be interrupted when you are in the midst of a train of thought. But if the child is really anxious to acquire knowledge his offense is certainly forgivable.

And no wise person is ever ashamed to admit that he doesn't know the answer to a question. Socrates, the wisest of the Greeks, said that his knowledge lay in his unashamed admission of his ignorance.

Some Good Things To Eat

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Not understood, we gather, also im-

And hark them closer as the years go by.

Till often virtues seem to us trans-gressions. And those man roses, falls and lives and dyes.

Not understood.

WHEN a quick luncheon dish is required, a can or two of sardines will make a very tasty dish. Heat the sardines in their own oil until very hot, then place on buttered toast and serve.

When serving French dressing, change the seasoning by adding a tea-spoonful of Worcestershire sauce and cut-up, Chopped flavor vegetables such as onion, pepper, chives or a bit of garlic will offer another variety.

Eggs De Lesseps.

Saute four eggs in butter, taking care not to break the yolks. Place them on a hot platter and dust with salt; to the browned butter add a teaspoonful of vinegar and one teaspoonful of minced parsley. Serve with calf's brains boiled and then sauted in butter. Pour the sauce over the eggs and serve.

Fruit Pie.

Take one cupful of fresh fruit crushed, one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, the yolks of two eggs and a pinch of salt. Bake a shell of pastry and turn in the fruit mixture after it has been cooked and cooled. Cover with a meringue, brown lightly and serve cold.

Kiddies' Bedtime Story

"TODAY," said the policeman's horse to some of the other horses, "we had a picnic—my master and I."

"A picnic?" the horses exclaimed in their own fashion. "Neigh, neigh! Weren't you on duty today?"

"Yes, we were on duty, but we had a picnic, too," the horse answered. "I'll have to tell you about it," he said.

"An automobile came along and in it were some people. That's the usual way, of course."

"An automobile doesn't come along by itself."

"But no matter, you understand me. The people in the automobile asked my master how to get to a place where they wanted to have their picnic."

"There were a number of children and they had a fine dog with them too."

"They told my master that when they stopped at their picnic grounds the dog sat on the step along the side of the automobile so that people passing by would know that he was not a stray dog looking for food but that he was really a part of the picnic party."

"They said he always did this except for a few moments now and then when he went for a run or a swim or chasing sticks."

"My master and the people chatted for quite a few moments and then my master told them how to get to the place they wanted to reach."

"Before they left they offered my master some candy and my master said:

"Thank you, and my horse will have one if you don't mind. He loves sweet things. He has what is known as a 'sweet tooth'."

"Well, they fixed up a little box and in it were some pieces of cake and some candy and some sugar as a special treat for me."

"Of course I got sugar very often but it is always a 'special treat' for me."

"Then they hurried on."

"But my master and I had a picnic."

"You All Know What I Think of My Master."

between busy times. Oh, it was such fun!

"My master told the people that I was brave but that I was enough of a 'child' to care for sweets."

"And he said he was a 'child' that way, too. But he didn't say anything about his bravery, and of course they couldn't understand me."

"I think perhaps they knew by the way I looked that I was pretty devoted to my master and I think perhaps they had an idea he was brave."

"For he looks so splendid and he has such a fine face. But then you all know what I think of my master."

"After they had gone on my nibbled at something good every once in awhile."

"Oh, yes, we had our picnic, the master and I."

"And the master stroked me and patted me as he does so often, and I thought, just as I think so often how splendid to have such a master."

"They say I do my work well and that I'm filled with courage and wisdom, but kindness and good treatment have helped me more than anyone knows."

"I should have liked to have told the people these things and I should have liked to have told them of the little girl my master saved the other day—she would have been run over if it hadn't been for my master, and he risked his life, too."

"Oh, I should have liked to have told them so many, many things he has done."

"For sometimes it seems to me that the brave things the master has done are so particularly, unusually, beautifully brave!"

"Yes, I wished today I could speak I don't need to speak to the master. He understands. He knows what I want and how I feel and how much I love him."

"But he doesn't seem to know how magnificently brave he is. It comes to him so naturally, I suppose."

WOMAN STUDIES HAREM SECRETS

Finds Peephole in Ancient Seraglio Palace.

Constantinople.—An American woman, the first foreigner whom the Ottoman government permitted to enter the harem of Seraglio palace, has just completed an exhaustive study of that mysterious labyrinth.

She is Dr. Barnette Miller, head of the history department of Wellesley college, who returned to Stamboul this year to complete the investigations she began in 1907. Aided by a young Turkish girl, Mebrouke Hanem, a member of the staff of Constantinople College for Women, Doctor Miller is the first American to delve deeply into the shadowy history of the vast 500-year-old palace where Turkish padishahs and thousands of their hundreds of thousands of slaves lived hidden lives.

The American investigator discovered in her prowling through the palace that there existed one peephole by which the women of the harem could look upon men other than their sultan master and their guardian eunuchs. High in the wall of the palace mosque where the sultan and his masculine followers worshiped, Doctor Miller found a tiny window covered with a golden lattice and discovered that this window connected with the room in the harem where the women gathered to pray.

During her final investigations this year Doctor Miller was given permission by the new republican Turkish authorities to enter every one of the hundreds of palace rooms save one. No human except the sultans, not even the sultan's smiling, religion-defying Mustapha Kemal, has ever entered that sanctum sanctorum where the beard of the Prophet reposes. Outside the heavily barred window of that room, 40 turbaned priests, in groups of four, chant prayers from the Koran day and night, year after year, century after century.

TRAWLER'S CREW IN FIGHT WITH SHARKS

Captain of Vessel Reports He Saw 7,000.

Fleetwood, Eng.—While fishing for herring at grounds known as Klon-dyke, which lie between the north coast of Ireland and Barra Head, in the South Hebridean Islands, a steam trawler had a thrilling fight with a shoal of sharks. The trawler concerned, the Castelnau of Boulogne, carries a crew of 22, in addition to a Fleetwood trawlerman, Skipper John Wright, who is sailing in the vessel as fishing pilot.

"During our voyage," Skipper Wright explained when the Castelnau returned to Fleetwood, "we came upon shoals of vicious sharks. There must have been 6,000 or 7,000 lashing the sea into foam for miles around. They completely surrounded our boat and bit huge holes in our net, and it was only with the utmost difficulty that we could haul it in. As night-time approached we had to start sorting our catch and throwing smaller fish back into the sea."

Hooked 18 Sharks.
"The hungry sharks were on us immediately and we decided to clear the infested water as much as possible. We laid hooks on long poles which we suspended from the side of the ship, but the twine was not strong enough, and as the sharks grabbed the hooks with bait on they gave a violent lurch and carried the hooks and twine away with them."

"Our mascot kitten was unfortunately knocked overboard and, although it was only in the water a few seconds, a shark had bitten one of its legs off and we had to drown it on board to put an end to its misery. In the end we got 18 sharks on board, and we had to stand clear. They were lashing about the deck so fiercely that it would have been fatal to have approached them."

Drowned One by One.
"Finally we lassoed each one and suspended them from the ship, head downwards in the sea, and thus drowned them one by one. During our homeward voyage the Frenchmen reveled in shark steaks and the French skipper invited me to have some, but I told him I did not want any."

"The skipper then told me to have beefsteak and chips, but the beefsteak turned out to be shark steak, and I could not discern any difference in taste. In France shark steak is worth four or five francs a pound, but in England they find their way to fish-meal works."

Wife Sues Poker Club for Husband's Losses

Washington.—The Supreme court was asked to decide whether clubs are liable for damages to wives for depriving them of the companionship of their husband's income.

The case came from McGill, White Pine county, Nev., and was brought by Mrs. Gladys Anderson against the McGill club where she asserted her husband played poker.

She declared in her suit that her husband spent much of his time at the club and lost a large portion of his salary, causing her "worry, humiliation, sickness and grievous mental pain." She insisted in her complaint that the club, as a public nuisance, was liable to her for damages.

The state courts dismissed the suit, however, holding that there was no provision in law warranting action against a club on such grounds. Mrs. Anderson would have the Supreme court reverse this decision.

HinJenburg Dam Makes Ocean Build New Land

Westerland-on-Sylt, Germany.—Through the building of the HinJenburg dam to the Island of Sylt, two years ago, the swift current sweeping between the island and the mainland was checked, with the result that silt began to accumulate in the so-called Watten sea.

The dam, which carried a railway track, was built only two years ago, but soundings have now disclosed that the accumulation in places has reached a full yard, so that it will be only a few years before what had been the sea will be land. This will add thousands of acres of tillable soil to Germany.

Last African Slave on Nassau, Bahamas, Dies

Nassau, Bahamas.—Martin Sawyer, the last of the African slaves on this island, died at the age of one hundred and five. When a small boy, Sawyer was captured in Africa by the Spaniards.

The slave ship was captured by a British vessel and the human cargo brought to Nassau. The boy was sold to the late R. H. Sawyer, who later gave him his freedom. Late in life Sawyer continued to yearn for the Africa which he remembered only faintly.

He remembered his tribal language and sang African songs.

TOURS DOMINION TO SAVE FORESTS

Tree Planting Car Is Operated in Canada.

Edmonton, Alta.—A tree-planting car, operated by the Canadian Forestry association, has just returned from the West and left for Peace river following a two months' trip over the lines of the Canadian National railways between Edmonton and Prince Rupert.

By the operation of the car the dominion government hopes to achieve direction of reforestation of burnt-over areas and at the same time to instruct townspeople, and others in more remote communities, in the care and protection of their forests.

The line of the Canadian National westward from Edmonton to the Pacific port of Prince Rupert, runs through heavily wooded territory, threading its way along the Fraser, the Bulkley and the Skeena rivers.

This is a country which owes its beauty as much to the heavy green forests which cover it as to the mountains with which it is hemmed. The increasing tourist traffic, coupled with lumbering and ranching activities, renders fire a real peril.

During their stay in British Columbia, the complement of the forestry car, accompanied lately by George Harcourt, representing the University of Alberta, held 351 meetings in the interests of forestry preservation. It is estimated that 60,000 persons attended these gatherings.

The distribution of placards took place at key points. These signs, bearing a brief conservation message, posted at cross roads, along the highways and the trails, present a pertinent message to the passer-by.

World's Tallest Building Is Planned for Chicago

Chicago.—Chicago gave birth to the skyscraper and now it is to regain the honor of having the tallest building in the world.

The Chicago Tower, which has been announced for construction in February, will rise 880 feet above the street level of Wacker drive, exceeding the height of the Woolworth building by 88 feet.

The Chicago Tower will have a gross floor area of 5,007,778 square feet which will make it the largest building in the world.

Nine classes of tenancy will be included in the new building. Besides a 75 story office building the skyscraper will house the Chicago Apparel Mart, a 440-room hotel, a 25-story garage, two clubs and two convention halls.

The building will be erected on air rights over the Illinois Central railroad tracks and its estimated cost is $45,000,000.

Walter W. Ahlschlager is the architect for the Chicago Tower.

Caterpillars Peril Crops in Portugal

Lisbon, Portugal.—A plague of flying caterpillars is threatening to destroy Portugal.

There has not been a similar outbreak since 1883 and Portuguese farmers, unable to cope with the situation, have called for government assistance.

The invading caterpillar has been identified as a night-flying agrotis. It is green or grayish in color, with darker markings, and has pale pink underwings. It can fly only during the first two hours after nightfall, but in that time does much damage.

New Barley, Alfalfa, Produced in Michigan

East Lansing, Mich.—Michigan's latest contribution to American agriculture is the new "Spartan" barley and "Hardigan" alfalfa. Both, in statewide production for the first time, will be offered on the market this year.

Spartan barley was developed in an experimental laboratory 12 years ago by crossing the Michigan "Two Row" and Michigan "Black Barley" varieties. It has an early maturity, a large yield, and does not have the usual rough beard.

Beckkeepers Insure Selves Against Damage Suits

London.—Pioneer "Beckkeepers" association does not want to be stung by people who are stung by its bees. As a result the association has insured its members against public liability. For about 12 cents a year beekeepers can be insured for claims up to $500. The third party risks are very small, for bees do not attack people unless they are interfered with.

Heart Stops Beating but He Isn't Dead

Warsaw, Poland.—Medical circles are greatly interested in reports from the village of Sielakonie, in the Vilna district, of a man whose heart action apparently has ceased but who still retains normal body temperature.

The man, Adam Woylnsz, was struck by lightning and was considered dead. Shortly before his funeral his coffin was opened on his mother's wish and the man was found in what appeared a deep coma.

is the new Style

Nowhere such beauty and luxury nowhere such pleasing lines and contours nowhere Bodies that equal these new Masterpiece Bodies by Fisher--The entire country is saying, 'That's the Style'

Setting an entirely new, a revolutionary, style--introducing what will unquestionably be the trend of smart body-design during the next several years--the new Buicks of the Silver Anniversary Buick are enjoying universal acclaim as the most original and distinctive, as well as the finest and most beautiful ever created by the world-famous Fisher organization!

Here is not only a new car but a new vogue--a vogue of symmetry, born of graceful contours instead of straight lines--a vogue of distinction, derived from sparkling colors, brilliant chrome-plating and arresting new roof, radiator and fender design--a vogue of tasteful luxury, composed of finest mohair velvet upholstery, artistic hardware and fittings and new appointments of comfort and convenience.

The entire country is hailing the Silver Anniversary Buick. The entire country is saying, "That's the style!"

Surviving are his brother, Hugh, and a sister, Katie. The funeral was held from St. Joseph's church, Dexter, Friday Rev. McCabe of Detroit and Coyle of Albion, both cousins of the deceased, officiating. Assisted by Rev. Wall of Albion. Interment was in St. Joseph's cemetery.

THE FOWLERVILLE FAIR

Fowlerville pulled off one of the most successful fairs in its history last week. Good weather continued all three days and a huge crowd was present at all times. While the exhibits were not as large as those displayed at some of the fairs, the midway was one of the longest ever observed in these parts. The concession which seemed to command the greatest amount of attention was the one where two wrestlers and a boxer held forth and offered $10 to anyone who could stay in the ring five minutes with them. Carl Glover of Hartland and Farmer Newton of Fowlerville both stayed the limit with the wrestlers and the former won a decision over the boxer. The pugilist however vanquished both a Howell and Fowlerville antagonist. With admission at 50c a head they reaped a rich harvest.

The horse races were high class. The horse of Pinckney won the fore-hall with his three years old colt, Diamond Dewey, taking three straight heats. He did not start Morgan Dewey who was hurt at the Northville Fair.

The base ball games attracted the usual great attention. Charlie Gehringer, the pride of Fowlerville, failed to show up going on a barnstorming trip to Wisconsin instead. Several reasons were given for this. One was that they failed to offer him the same financial inducement as they extended to Whitehill of the Detroit Tigers who pitched the first game for them and Bob Veach of Toledo who also played with them. Whatever the reason the fair was Gehringerless. Fowlerville beat Williamston in the first game 4 to 1. Whitehill winning a pitching battle from Andy Messenger principally because he got the best support. The Battle Creek Postum won from Pleasant Lake the second day 5 to 3, with Lefty McDonald in the box. Fowlerville defeated the Postum Saturday 16 to 1. McDonald only pitched part of it, as he had a pitching assignment for Sun. Lefty Carmen and Smoky Brannon, who succeeded him were both good. Guy Kuhn playing for Fowlerville hit a double, triple and two bases. Messenger pitched for the Postum.

The Renown

The last few years have seen a big change in small home heating.

Base burners, oak stoves, etc. have gone out of style because their heating capacity was limited. People are no longer content to live in drafty under-heated rooms or be forced to shut off some of the rooms in the winter.

Instead they have turned to the Renown, the heating plant that looks like a cabinet and works like a furnace. It replaces ugliness with beauty, half hearted heat with solid comfort and fuel waste with fuel economy.

One Renown Does the Work of Several Stoves and Fireplaces

This heating device is recognized as the standard heating appliance for small homes, old and new, one story and two story. It is used too in schools, churches, garages and in a great many other types of buildings.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Mabel Willebrandt's Hoover Speeches Create a Stir—Help Storm Victims.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MRS. MABEL WILLEBRANDT, assistant attorney general of the United States, was the storm center of the political campaign last week, and if she enjoys publicity she must have had the time of her life for she fairly crowded the candidates themselves off the front page. Mrs. Willebrandt has special charge of the government's legal proceedings against dry law violators and already had incurred the enmity of wet New Yorkers who resented the raiding of night clubs and similar doings. Then she started out to make speeches for Mr. Hoover and one of her first efforts in this line was an address to a big Methodist gathering in Ohio in which she urged that all members of that church should get together to help in the defeat of Al Smith. That gentleman and countless others immediately accused her of attacking him on religious grounds, and there were numerous demands that she be separated from her government job and also that she be taken from the list of accredited Republican speakers. Some of the Hooverites seemed to be fearful lest she become the female Doctor Burchard of the campaign.

Declining to retract or modify any of her utterances, Mrs. Willebrandt asserted she had asked the Methodists to oppose Smith on the ground of his views on prohibition and had made no mention of his religious beliefs. She said Smith himself was trying to "dodge behind his own church," and furthermore that the Democratic candidate was the one who had made prohibition an issue of the campaign. Congressman Walter Newton of Minnesota, chairman of the Republican speakers' bureau, stated that Mrs. Willebrandt was speaking under the auspices of that bureau and that demands for her, from every part of the Middle West, were far more than she could fill.

GOVERNOR SMITH, in the course of his Western tour, spoke at Denver in advocacy of absolute government ownership and control of the natural water power resources of the country and for immediate action in the construction of Boulder canyon dam. Then he moved up through Wyoming to Montana and in Helena devoted most of his address to the Teapot Dome scandal and the alleged responsibility of the Republican party therefor. The chiefs of the seven Indian tribes of the state made him a member with the name "Leading Star." Turning back toward the east, he passed through North Dakota, where the political situation is peculiarly complicated, and during a brief stop in Bismarck he was christened "Chief Chargin' Hawk" by the Sioux. Thursday night he spoke in St. Paul on a variety of topics, and next day he entered the Wisconsin tangle. It was believed that in his Milwaukee address he might take up the subject of prohibition, hitherto ignored during the tour. Some days before Senator Blaine of Wisconsin had completed his flop by announcing his intention to vote for Smith. Republican leaders said this amounted to little since Blaine never had been a real Republican.

Senator Borah of Idaho was the big gun of the Republican speaking battery during the week and his loudest explosion was in Kansas City, where in lively fashion he contrasted Smith's record and knowledge of the farm problem with that of Hoover, violently assailed the equalization fee, and blew up the charge that Hoover was responsible for the lowering of the price of wheat during the war. He also defended the Eighteenth amendment and paid his disrespects to Tammany.

WITH the approval of President Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg sent identic notes to Great Britain and France setting forth our government's attitude toward the naval limitation agreement reached by those two nations. The contents of the notes were not made public, but it was understood that they stated the British and French suggestions could not be accepted by the United States as a basis for naval limitation, and pointed out the reason. The American objection to the Anglo-French agreement was tersely expressed by the London Daily News when it said: "It gives Great Britain unlimited small submarines, France unlimited small submarines, and gives America nothing she wanted. It is almost too crude to be true." Dispatches from London insist there are no secret clauses in the agreement. Some of the French papers are indignant over the American opposition to the pact, saying England and France are held slaves of the United States by their war debts.

WITHOUT having made much progress toward disarmament, the assembly of the League of Nations ended its full session. Almost its last act was to pass a resolution that the disarmament preparatory commission should meet again not later than January 1. No mention was made in it of any plan for a general disarmament conference, and Germany and Hungary refused to vote after Count von Bernstorff had made a bitter speech chiding the league for its slowness and asserting that Germany was helpless and surrounded by heavily armed neighbors. At the final session the earl of Lytton, speaking for India, warned the league that while it was firmly established in Europe, its position in Asia was not assured. Costa Rica, which resigned from the league in 1925, gave notice that it would rejoin.

REHABILITATION is now the great task in Florida and Porto Rico and the job is in the hands of the Red Cross, as is that of feeding the thousands of storm sufferers. An immense sum is being raised by popular subscription for these purposes. In Florida the dead are now estimated to number more than 2,300, most of them in the region about Lake Okechobee, where the dikes broke down and the waters were driven over the land. The exact number never will be known. Reports indicated that the white death list was about 700. The danger of pestilence made it necessary to burn most of the bodies as soon as they were found. The Porto Ricans were reported to be in pitiful state. There were more than 15,000 cases of influenza, and malaria, measles and other diseases prevailed among the refugees. The homeless on the island are stated to number 254,000.

Probably 150 persons, including children, perished when the big Nevada theater in Madrid, Spain, burned. The fire started on the stage and the tragedy closely resembled the burning of the Tremont theater in Chicago years ago. The flames spread through the business district of the city, destroying many buildings.

Five villages in the state of Coahuila, Mexico, were swept away by floods and many lives were lost. The Chinese city of Hankow was the scene of a tremendous conflagration that destroyed thousands of buildings and an unknown number of lives. The old Spanish fort of Cabezas Blancas on a hill above Medellin, Moravia, was demolished by an explosion of the powder magazine and scores of lives were lost.

EMILIO PORTES GIL, secretary of the interior, was elected provisional President of Mexico by a joint session of the senate and chamber of deputies, without opposition. He will take office on December 1, when President Calles' term expires. The congress also ordered that a popular Presidential election should be held on the third Sunday of November, 1929.

Senor Portes Gil will be one of the few Presidents Mexico has ever had of exclusively civilian career, being devoid of any active military experience. Until selected by President Calles for his cabinet he had been governor of Tamaulipas, where he established partial prohibition, suppressed open gambling, and established the first state supported industrial school in Mexico for indigent children. He is known as a friend of the United States. According to a statement issued by him, he will follow the policy of the late President, Elect Alvaro Obregon in the uplift of the peasantry, encouragement of irrigation and extension of schools in the rural districts and mountains. He will work to incorporate the Indians, which form 50 per cent of the population, into the body of the nation. He will go along the lines laid down by President Calles. While organized labor will not be represented in the cabinet, he will, nevertheless, extend a helping hand to the labor unions as part of the government policy to uplift the laboring masses.

INLAND WATERWAYS CORPORATION, in an application filed with the interstate commerce commission, proposes extension of the government barge lines services on the Mississippi and Warrior rivers to all parts of the country through the establishment of joint barge and rail rates and barge and rail through routes. The corporation's application first asks the commission to declare that the services of the barge lines are a public convenience and necessity for expansion of the services to the tributaries of the Mississippi, including the Illinois waterway. Virtually every railroad in the country is named in the part of the application asking the establishment of through routes and joint rates. Joint barge and rail rates 20 per cent lower than all-rail rates between specified points are sought by the corporation, that being the basis on which existing barge and rail rates are generally made.

WHEN Nicaraguans go to the polls on November 4 to elect a President every voter will be marked on the hand with a chemical stain as he casts his ballot in order to prevent repeating. To avoid misunderstandings the election board, headed by Gen. Frank L. McCoy, U. S. A., issued a statement explaining that the chemical was harmless and the stain will disappear within a day or two. An election official said malicious agents are spreading reports among the Indians that the Americans will use a chemical that will poison the voters. Other alleged threats to hinder the voting are rumors that the Americans eat children, and that the Sandinistas will attack the booths, or kill those registering or voting.

MME. GANNA WALSKA, opera singer and the wife of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, is an American citizen, despite her residence in France, and will have to pay duty on jewelry and personal effects, which are said to be valued at about $2,500,000. This ruling was made by Philip Elling, collector of the port of New York, who told Henry D. Bulkeley, attorney for Madame Walska, that her claim to foreign residence and consequent immunity from duty had been denied. Bulkeley immediately made plans to appeal and will, if necessary, carry the matter to the United States Customs court and the Court of Customs Appeals.

ANOTHER "hair derby," this time from Los Angeles to Cincinnati, was pulled off last week. First place in class A was won by Robert A. Drake of Pittsburgh, Pa., and in class B by Charles W. Holman of St. Paul. Arthur Goebel, flying his "Yankee Doodle" plane, won the nonstop race in 15 hours and 17 minutes.

CHINESE Nationalists in Shanghai unofficially announced that they had practically completed the reorganization of the system of government, eliminating the previous Soviet form, which was borrowed from Russia. Under the new scheme, General Chiang will head the Nationalist government council, his position being similar to that of President or premier.

Gen. Pai Chung-hsi reported from northern Chihli province that he had completely defeated a remnant of the Chihli-Shantung troops and that Gen. Chang Chung-chang had fled, presumably to the Japanese leased area in Manchuria.

DEATHS of the week include those of Sir Horace Darwin, son of Charles Darwin and himself a noted scientist, and R. F. Outcault, veteran newspaper comic strip artist.

Belt and Buckle Add Fancy Touch

Gilt and Silver Kid Among Favored Styles; Handbags to Match.

Some of the new belts are of unusual materials. For example, a beige rodier fabric is made into a sports belt, with two white enameled buckles. This and other models of soft kids and fabrics are fastened with two buckles at a space of several inches apart in front, others are drawn through two rings ingeniously arranged to make a firm fastening. Ribbon, braided and leather of lovely colors are made into decorative belts that are suitable for the softer frocks.

It is considered especially chic to have belt, shoes and hatband match in real sports costume, and buckles, pins and shoe clasps in the same pattern. Besides the natural reptile skins are many beautiful colors in these accessories—blue, purple, brown and new reds—and suede in new "shadow" shades, which are used in handbags as well as belts.

Belts are among the smaller items of dress that are receiving particular attention among the designers. Gilt and silver kid are considered very chic. The belts have leather-covered buckles. They are delightfully decorative and because they are worn so loosely are like lines of metal about the figure. Wider belts of this sort are chased, embossed, stamped in dull finish on the bright surface, stitched and appliqued. One novelty among many is a belt of suede and wool braid in tan and brown with a slender, inconspicuous dull-gold clasp. A belt made of braided thongs in brown, blue, gray and parchment shades is fastened with a blue enameled buckle.

The hip-length overblouse, which is a feature in fall outfits for both school girls and women, has created an unusual demand for belts of many kinds. Lucien Lelone has devoted especial attention to them in his sports and semisports frocks. A brown leather belt of his designing has a new style of buckle which is merely two silver bars slipped through loops of the leather. Another is made of beige snake-skin, fastened with a harness buckle, matching a pair of smart strap slippers of the same leather.

Shoes That Contrast Is Paris Evening Fashion

Evening shoes which contrast with rather than match the evening dress are a new Paris development.

Shoes of sapphire blue, cerise, cherry red or emerald green crepe de chine are frequently worn with dresses of white or cream shades. Two shades of blue or pink and combinations of fuchsia purple with soft blues, and venetian pink with pale blue are chosen for dress and shoes the shoes always being the darker color.

Chiffon handkerchiefs to match the shoes and occasionally a chiffon handkerchief draped around the head are part of the new vogue of contrasts.

Hats of Two Materials

Very new and chic are hats made of two materials, such as velvet and suede cloth. A small hat with a tan o'shanter crown of velvet has a snug fitting headband of the suede, which is finished with a bow of the same that hugs the head.

New Accessories

Accessories promise to play an important part in fall and winter fashions, and scarfs and handkerchiefs will do much to add smartness to feminine costumes.

Fur Sleeves

A blonde satin coat for autumn wear has mink sleeves of wide, flaring cuffs and a high, roll collar of pink.

Lace for Dinner Dress or for Evening Gown

Just now there is nothing more fashionable than lace for a dinner dress or an informal evening gown. It is so truly feminine and so becoming to nearly every woman. And if you are ever in doubt as to what to put on after six o'clock a sleeveless lace dress is nearly always sure to be the correct thing. The frock illustrated is just right for this purpose. It is sleeveless, simple in cut and suitable, you will find, for either black or ecru margot, chantilly or alencon lace.—Woman's Home Companion.

On Rearing Children from CRIB to COLLEGE

Fresh air is as necessary to nutrition as food.

As children grow older and recreation takes the form of parties and dances, it becomes a problem to keep them from snatching too eagerly at the new delight and turning honest fun into dissipation. It is a wise rule to allow this sort of recreation only on Friday and Saturday evenings. A proper amount however, should be encouraged.

Let your child splash his water colors with the new vividly colored paints and model his unbelievable fancies in clay. Out of his first-hand experience with the raw material of art is apt to grow a genuine appreciation of that which is great and enduring.

Every child has the same right to have all his talents exercised as to have all his limbs developed. A talent will often lie latent for years because the possessor is never brought into contact with the environment which would bring it out. Children ought to be put into possession of all the possible means of expressing talent—musical instruments, color, tools and materials suitable to their age. They should also have access to the society of people of all ages, and those differently situated from themselves to bring out any talents they may have for social living, for leadership, or for politics. They should be brought into contact with every possible kind of work. Merely seeing things done will often call forth the latent aptitude which the parent or teacher has never suspected.

A shy child while playing alone often works out original ideas for games and stunts which would help to entertain a whole group if he could be persuaded to present them. Help him to develop some special proficiency or skill, so that when he is thrown with others the consciousness of this skill will become a valuable asset in overcoming his timidity.

Is your child's appetite good? If not, it is because:

He eats between meals.
He is finicky in his choice of foods.
He is physically or mentally over-tired.

He takes too much liquid and "feels full" quickly.

He is indoors most of the time and inactive.

Corsets Now Important in Paris' Fashion List

That the return toward femininity continues unabated is evident in every field of Paris fashions. Thus the new French corsets which are coming to occupy a much more important place than they have in recent years, have practically done away with boning. It is their function to faintly emphasize the curves of the natural silhouette, and this they do by appearing in a one-piece garment and utilizing elastic absolutely devoid of whalebone. Satin and batiste are the principal materials.

New Bouffant

A patterned moire in dull garnet has a new bouffant silhouette created by having the left side puff at the waistline, with the right side flaring from knee length where a full flounce is attached.

THE EARLIEST PICTURE OF THE LANDING OF COLUMBUS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

OCTOBER 12 is a day which Americans set aside for honoring the memory of the Genoese sailor who is almost universally credited with being the "discoverer" of the New World and in twenty-three states of the Union—Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont and Washington—Columbus day is a legal holiday.

Most of us know something about Columbus, for the story of his life with the record of his dauntless ambition which drove him on in spite of many disappointments and discouragements until success came to him, only to end in poverty and failure, is one of the most romantic and at the same time one of the most tragic in the annals of mankind. But what of the history-making event itself, the anniversary of which we are about to celebrate again? How clear a picture do we have of what took place on that October day, 436 years ago? For all of the millions of words that have been written about Christopher Columbus and his voyages of discovery in the past four centuries, there is none which paints the scene more vividly than do the words of an American historian who wrote it more than a hundred years ago, and modern scholarship has found but little to correct in the record as it is set down by Washington Irving in his "Life and Voyages of Columbus."

Here is the story of that historic day as Irving tells it:

It was on Friday morning the 12th of October, that Columbus first beheld the New World. As the vessel he saw before him a level island, several leagues in extent, and covered with trees like a continual orchard. Though apparently uncultivated, it was populous, for the inhabitants were seen issuing from all parts of the woods and running to the shore. They were perfectly naked, and as they stood gazing at the ships, appeared by their attitudes and gestures to be lost in astonishment. Columbus made signal for the ships to cast anchor, and the boats to be manned and armed. He entered his own boat, richly attired in apparel, and hiding the royal standard, while Martin Alonso Pinzon, and Vicente Yanez, his brother, put off in company in their boats, each with a banner of the enterprise emblazoned with a green cross, having on either side the letters P. and Y. the initials of the Castilian monarchs, Fernando and Isabella, surmounted by crowns.

As he approached the shore, Columbus, who was disposed for all kinds of agreeable impressions, was delighted with the purity and suavity of the atmosphere, the crystal transparency of the sea, and the extraordinary beauty of the vegetation. He beheld, also, fruits of an unknown kind upon the trees which overhung the shores. On landing he threw himself on his knees, kissed the earth, and returned thanks to God with tears of joy. His example was followed by the rest, whose hearts indeed overflowed with the same feelings of gratitude. Columbus, then rising, drew his sword, displayed the royal standard, and assembling round him the two captains, with Rodrigo de Eschobedo, notary of the armament, Rodrigo Sanchez, and the rest who had landed, he took solemn possession in the name of the Castilian sovereigns, giving the island the name of San Salvador. Having complied with the requisite forms and ceremonies, he called upon all present to take the oath of obedience to him, as admiral and viceroy, representing the persons of the sovereigns.

The feelings of the crew now burst forth in the most extravagant transports. They had recently considered themselves devoted men, hurrying forward to destruction; they now looked upon themselves as favorites of fortune, and gave themselves up to the most unbounded joy. They thronged around the admiral with overflowing zeal, some embracing him, others kissing his hands. These who had been most anxious and turbulent during the voyage were now most devoted and enthusiastic. Some begged favors of him, as if he already had wealth and honors in his gift. Many about spirits, who had outraged him by their insolence, now cringed at his feet, begging pardon for all the trouble they had caused him and promising the blindest obedience for the future.

The natives of the island, when at the dawn of day, they had beheld the ships hovering on their coast, had supposed them natives, which had issued from the deep during the night. They had moved to the beach and watched their movements with awful anxiety. Their terror about, apparently without effort, and the shifting and faring of the sails, resembling huge wings, filled them with astonishment. When they beheld their boats approach the shore, and a number of strange beings clad in glittering steel, and armed with various colors, landing upon the beach, they fled in affright to the woods. Finding, however, that there was no attempt to pursue or molest them, they gradually recovered from their terror, and approached the Spaniards with great awe, frequently prostrating themselves on the earth, and making signs of adoration. During the ceremonies of taking possession, they remained seated in timid admiration at the complexion, the beard, the shining armor, and splendid dress of the Spaniards. The admiral particularly attracted their attention, from his commanding height, his air of authority, his dress of velvet, and the deflection which was paid him by his companions, all which pointed him out to be the commander. When they had still further recovered from their fears, they approached the Spaniards, touched their beards, and examined their hands and faces, admiring their whiteness, Columbus was pleased with their gentleness and confiding simplicity, and suffered their scrutiny with perfect acquiescence, winning them by his benignity. They now supposed that the ships had sailed out of the crystal firmament which bounded their horizon, or had descended from above on their ample wings, and that these marvelous beings were inhabitants of the skies.

The natives of the island were no less objects of curiosity to the Spaniards, as they did, from any race of men they had ever seen. Their appearance gave no promise of either wealth or civilization, for they were entirely naked, and painted with a variety of colors. With some it was confined merely to a part of the face, the nose or around the eyes; with others it extended to the whole body and gave them a wild and fantastic appearance. Their complexion was of a tawny or copper hue, and they were entirely destitute of beards. Their hair was not crisped, like the recently discovered tribes of the African coast, under the same latitude, but straight and coarse, partly cut short above the ears, but some locks were left long behind and falling upon their shoulders. These features, though obscured and disfigured by paint, were generally of a fine type. They were of moderate stature and well-shaped, most of them appeared to be under thirty years of age, and some were but one female, with them quite young, looked like their companions, but beautifully formed.

As Columbus supposed himself to have landed on an island and at the extremity of India, he called the natives by the generic name of Indians, which was universally adopted before the true nature of his discovery was known, and has since been extended to all the aboriginals of the New World.

The Spaniards were friendly and gentle. Their only arms were lances, hardened at the end by fire, or pointed with a flint, or the teeth or bone of a fish. There was no iron to be seen, nor did they appear acquainted with its properties. For when a drawn sword was presented to them they unguardedly took it by the edge.

Columbus distributed among them colored caps, glass beads, hawk's bells, and other trifles, such as the Portuguese were accustomed to trade for among the nations of the gold coast of Africa. They received them eagerly, hung the beads round their necks, and their, and with the sound of the bells. The Spaniards remained all day on shore, refreshing themselves after their anxious voyage amid the beautiful groves of the island.

The island where Columbus had thus for the first time, set his foot upon the New World was called by the natives Guanahani. It still retains the name of San Salvador, which he gave it, though called by the English Cat Island. The night which he had spent the evening previous to his making land may have been on Watling's Island, which lies a few leagues to the east. San Salvador is one of the great cluster of the Lucays or Bahamas Islands, which stretch southwestward and northwest from the coast of Florida to Hispaniola.

portance to no other. And when it seemed that his ship would sink at any moment he set to work to make a record of his mighty undertaking, hoping that by some will of the Fates it would not be lost to posterity.

No he carefully prepared as complete an account of his marvelous voyage as was possible under the circumstances. He wrote the details of his journey on a stout piece of parchment, wrapped it carefully in a piece of waterproof cloth, then placed it in an ironbound barrel and threw

Columbus' Story Lost

When Columbus returned to Spain from the New World, he stopped on February 14, 1493, at Santa Maria, one of the islands of the Azores, probably to take water. Four days before this he had encountered a most terrific storm and was convinced that he, his men and his vessels must perish.

Now Columbus realized in his heart that he was going back to Spain with news of a discovery second in im-

POULTRY

PLAN TO FATTEN HOLIDAY TURKEYS

The marketing season for turkeys is from about the middle of November to the last of December.

Containing turkeys during the fattening season has not proved successful. They will eat heartily for two or three days, but after this they will lose their appetite and begin to lose flesh rapidly. Naturally, they are wild birds and thrive only when they have access to open range. During the summer and fall they find an abundance of feed on the average farm; however, it is advisable to give them a small feed at night for the purpose of bringing them home to roost. Grasshoppers and other insects, weeds and grass seeds, green vegetation, berries and grain picked up in the fields and about go to make up the turkey's daily ration, and when all these are plentiful they are in splendid condition when the fattening season arrives.

A satisfactory plan for fattening is to begin by feeding small "crust" night and morning, not enough at a time but that the birds will walk away still a little hungry, and gradually increase the quantity, adding some corn, until they are given all they will eat three times a day. Along at the close of the fattening season corn, supplemented with fresh sour milk, may constitute the full ration. New corn may be fed safely provided the turkeys are gradually accustomed to it, otherwise scours may result.

Various kinds of nuts are a natural fattening feed picked up by turkeys on the range. In parts of Texas many growers, properly situated, depend solely on acorns for fattening their turkeys, and when the mast is plentiful the birds are marketed in fairly good condition.

Use Lights in Poultry House During Winter

A series of cautions for the user of lights in the poultry house is found in the Ohio state poultry calendar. They are as follows:

Grade and pen pullets according to age, condition, and laying qualities, so that each group may be properly handled.

Excessive fall production makes it hard to keep the flock in heavy production during the winter.

Don't use lights to produce more than a 14-hour day. Excessive use of lights means overproduction, followed by a slump.

To avoid a spring molt, discontinue lights slowly in the spring.

Use lights on breeders only after January 1 to 15, in order to help them back into production.

Don't crowd production over 60 per cent, otherwise the flock will become thin and molt.

Be regular in management and use of lights.

Feed grain liberally when using lights.

Always have food and water available when lights are on.

Do not turn lights off too early in the spring.

Do not stop feeding early and late in the day when lights are finally eliminated.

Early Layers Usually Heavy Egg Producers

Pullets that begin to lay early usually are the heaviest producers in the flock and for this reason it is an excellent practice to mark them so that they can be given due consideration for their performance next year when it comes time to cull the flock. It is pointed out by L. E. Card, of the University of Illinois, that early layers are always certain to be the least desirable birds to use as breeders. In breeding for higher egg production, individuals of this type should be kept out of the breeding pens.

If the early-laying pullets are banded with numbered leg bands, all that is necessary is to make a record of the individual band numbers and the approximate date on which egg laying starts. Another equally satisfactory scheme is to use colored leg bands, in which case a different colored band should be used to mark the pullets that start laying in the different months.

Laying Hen Sings

A laying hen is usually a singing hen and happiness is encouraged by plenty of good oat or wheat straw on the floor. Practical poultrymen differ as to the respective merits of wheat, rye, and oat straw for litter. Each has been used without any noticeable differences as to wearing and sanitary qualities. Rye straw is somewhat stiff and oat straw breaks rather readily. The best advice is to use what is convenient and keep the house in good sanitary condition.

Cause of Fowl Typhoid

Thank your lucky stars if you've never met up with Eberthella sanguinarum. She's the germ that causes fowl typhoid, a most destructive disease. It acts much like fowl cholera, the bird becoming dull, droopy, with pale combs and a greenish or yellowish diarrhoea. Death usually isn't as rapid as with cholera. One mark of typhoid is that the liver enlarges and becomes a brownish or greenish color, while the kidneys look faded, as if cooked.

ARE YOU SUPERSTITIOUS ???

By FRANK ELLIS, JR.

Numbers in Buddhism

IN BUDDHISM the three causes of demerits are: Lust, anger and ignorance. The first has for its destroying agent fire; anger has water; and ignorance, wind. The three precious things are Buddha, the law, and the assembly. There are three great divisions in the sacred books. The images of Buddha are only represented in three positions; sitting cross-legged, standing, as if ready to advance, and reclining on his side with his head resting on a pillow.

The superstition respecting climacterics, or critical periods of life, was very strong during the Middle Ages; and even down to recent times. The mystic numbers seven and nine so frequently occurring in the Bible had their influence with many persons.

It was believed that the constitution of man changes every seven years; that the whole of the solids and fluids of the body changes during that time, the old cast off and new matter formed. At seven years of age a child had left infancy, at fourteen he had attained manhood, at twenty-one he had reached maturity, and so on.

The power of the seventh son of the seventh son to heal diseases is believed.

The Scotch spawfife (fortune teller) generally pretended that she was the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter, and was supposed, in consequence, by the lower orders, to possess second sight.

What Is Luck?

THERE are few words in our language of such unlimited application as that of luck, a word influencing to a large degree the thought, speech and actions of individuals generally. How many men are there who laugh at the idea of being considered superstitious who often carry such trinkets as a coin with a hole in it for "luck," a rabbit's foot, a lost key, a tooth and other similar rubbish? If found out, the only reason for carrying such trinkets in their pockets, they will be candid enough to confess it.

that it has become a sort of a pocket-piece, or a habit, they have carried it so long. But they will not confess their weakness or admit that they are the least bit superstitious.

Many who smile at the superstitions of the ignorant, entertain pet superstitions of their own. Superstition has played a great part in the lives of some of the great peoples of antiquity. Some of the older superstitions have been supplanted by more modern ones. People will continue to allow superstition to play a great part in their lives and destiny.

To step on an ant's mound and kill a number of ants is a sign of rain.

Even Steven

"The attract can always find a balance in the scheme of life," said George Bernard Shaw. "A throng of the rich, lily draped over the luxurious furniture of a fashionable London hotel caused a friend of mine to remark scornfully: 'These rich people make me sick. Just sitting around doing nothing. What is the use of having money if you don't know how to enjoy it?' 'But why fret about it, old chap?' I replied. 'Are you any better off?' What is the use of knowing how to enjoy money if you haven't any?"

As You Like It

OF THE things which make a house a home, not the least is the small electrical convenience outlet that permits you to "plug in" a lamp or an appliance just where and as you like it—no unscrewing of lamp bulbs, no dangling cords from lamp sockets to trip your steps or disturb your temper.

An outlet costs very little—it adds to comfort very much. Why not consult an electrical contractor about this matter. Or, let us advise you.
