The Safest Diamond Buy

Automobiles, clothes and about everything else you buy steadily depreciate in value—yet good diamonds have a consistent record of steadily increasing in value. The only diamond that does not eventually increase in value is the overpriced diamond—our diamonds represent full value. Each contains a registration number that fixes its value. What is it worth to be certain.

W. W. BARNARD

PEARSON TRIAL STARTS AT HOWELL MONDAY

The trial of Dr. A. H. Pearson for burning of a barn on his farm in Hamburg township last fall started in the circuit court at Howell before Judge Joseph Collins Monday.

Pearson and Goodrich, his caretaker who is also on trial are represented by Attorneys Carl Lehman, George Burke and Victor VanWinkle of Ann Arbor and Don VanWinkle of Howell. The case of the prosecution is in the hands of Prosecutor Jay Sweeney and Assistant Attorney General Wajks. The jury was picked late Monday and is as follows: Stephen VanHorn, Hamburg; Glen Wiggins, Deerfield; A. J. McClements, Brighton; Harry Preston, Hartland; Byron Fischer, Howell; Carl White, Iosco; Claude Parrish, Oscoda; Ed Cranna, Unadilla; Franks Dodds, Tyone; Leonard Richards, Genoa; George Sweeten, Conway; Christian Grill, Conway.

Sam Potts, caretaker and confessed arsonist by whose testimony the prosecution expects to link up the Dr. with the burning of the barn was the principal witness called. He testified that the Dr. hired him to burn the barn and that he did so. Sec'y. Larkin of the Livingston County Mutual Insurance Co. testified to the value of the buildings. It was this company in which the burned barn was insured. Other witnesses called were T. H. Howlett, Gregory, Paul McCleer and Wayne Jury of Hamburg.

William B. Peach, a nephew of the Dr. will also testify that the latter offered him money to burn the barn. Attorney Don VanWinkle made a motion to quash the information against Pearson and discharge him from custody on the grounds that the prosecution had charged the information. The motion was denied.

The trial was adjourned from 1 o'clock a. m. Tuesday until Wednesday morning to permit Judge Collins to attend the funeral of a relative.

CRUMBAUGH AGAIN RAIDED

Deputies from the sheriff's office under Chief Deputy Claude Fawcett hopped on to Jim Crumbaugh's Keystone Club at Lakeland which has been doing its best to allay thirsts for the past year, confiscated a considerable amount of booze and lodged Jim in the county bastille. The raid was pulled off Sunday evening during rush hour business. Jim was out on bail again Monday. Sheriff Wimbles staged a raid on Jim last fall and although a whole truck load of wet goods was seized, Crumbaugh went free on account of a flaw in the search warrant.

NEW RURAL MAIL BOXES

The postoffice department at Washington has decided that the rural mail boxes are too small to hold the mail which is delivered to the farmers and have authorized the building of a new type of box which will measure 7 by 11 by 14 inches and will be ready for use on or before July 1st, next. The old type of boxes will be permitted as long as they last however.

PHILATHEA CLASS MEETS

The March meeting of the Philathea Class was held at the pleasant home of Mrs. B. F. Esic Wednesday March 13 with a good attendance. After the business and devotional session various games featuring St. Patrick's day were enjoyed by all. The decorations were of green and with green candles. A pot luck lunch was served.

ENTERTAINS CLUB

The Jolly five hundred club was entertained by Mesdames Rhua Frost and Flora Smith at the latter's home Thursday P. M. The tables were decorated with emblems significant of St. Patrick's day. The two course luncheon also bore out the motif. Honors awarded to Mrs. C. J. Clinton first, Mrs. C. P. Sykes second.

HOTEL CORNER LEASED

The corner of Main and Howell Sts. where the old Hotel formerly stood has been leased by Ed Farnum to the McPherson family of Howell for a period of ten years. Since the destruction of the old hotel by fire nine years ago it has been an eyesore. At this time it was owned by Toledo parties and was later sold for taxes. Mr. Farnum succeeded in getting a clear title to it about a year ago. We understand that the Purcell Co. which the McPhersons hold a controlling interest will erect an oil station there at once. The lot will be graded up and an attractive building 25x60 erected. It will undoubtedly result in an improved appearance of the town. The lease was drawn up Monday.

REASON PICKED ON ALL-STAR TEAM

At the conclusion of the regional basketball tournament at Ypsilanti last Saturday, the officials and newspaper writers picked an honorary Class "C" and "D" team from the members of the teams who competed at the tournament. Roy Reason of the Pinckney high schools team was placed on the All-Star class "D" team. The entire team is as follows: Class D—Sodt of Waldron and C. Hasek of Montgomery, forwards; Pape of Salina (Fordson) and Reason of Pinckney guards; Wilson of Grosse Ile, center.

Class C—Dancer, St. John's and Williamson of Tecumseh, forwards; Cicott of Lady of Lourds, center; Cummings of University and Arnold of Tecumseh, guards.

This is the second time Pinckney has been given state recognition. Three years ago Coach Remington picked Don Swarthout on his All-State High School football eleven.

The above selection was taken from the Jackson and Lansing papers.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Council convened March 14, 1929, with the following members present: Pres. Kennedy, Trustees Read, Lavey, Reason, VanBlaricum and Meyer. Absent Murphy.

The following bills were presented: P. W. Curlett, printing $ 8.65
Dr. C. L. Sigler, salary health officer $10.00
Nellie Gardner, clerk's salary expenses $37.00
J. C. Dinkel, salary fire chief $50.00
Ed. Parker, salary fire chief $50.00
Motion by Reason and supported by Read to allow bills. Motion carried.
Motion by Reason and supported by Lavey that a guarantee of $50.00 by township board be given village council to pay for services of the fire engine for each trip made outside of corporation. Otherwise fire protection is refused beyond the village limits. Motion carried.
Motion by Lavey and supported by Read to adjourn. Motion carried.
Nellie Gardner, clerk.

A Sad Necessity

When you step out to buy a tire—and much as we hate to do it, it's got to be done every once in a while—what do you want?

Of course, you'd like to rub a lamp or make a wish, or have some good fairy appear, and slip a nice new tire on the rim for nothing. But, unfortunately, these things only happen in our dreams.

What you want is a tire that will get you back on the road again and keep you going for a long, long time. So, as long as you've got to buy a tire, you want something good and you want it at the right price. The next time you are up against the sad necessity of buying a tire—call us up and we'll sell you a Good-year and make you glad to buy it.

CO-ED RIFLE TEAM COMPLETES SEASON

Michigan State College co-ed rifle team has just completed an unusually successful season against co-ed opponents from all over the United States. The Spartan sharpshooters fired their way to victory in thirteen matches and dropped but three matches all season. All matches were fired on the new range at the Demonstration Hall and results were telegraphed to opponents.

The Michigan State team won victories over the co-ed teams of Nevada University Northwestern University, Massachusetts Agricultural College, Kansas State College, University of Missouri, University of South Dakota, DePauw University, Washington State College, Kansas University and South Dakota State College. University of Vermont, Cornell University and Carnegie Tech defeated the Spartans during the season.

Capt. Joseph H. Hinwood of the infantry division of the college military department was coach of the team. Over a hundred girls turned out for practice.

The following girls finished the season as members of the first and second squads. Alice Hunter, Virginia Kaiser, Dorothy Kehkopf, Nellie Walker, Fern Kinton, Marjorie Ashley, Winifred Kaitchauer, Alice Stewart, Grace Floten, Phyllis Shassberger, Thera Austin, Mildred Wangeman, Robena Wood, Margaret Larry, Genevieve Fox, Marie Fox, Kathryn Tinsman, Helen Craze, Helen Goodspeed, Elizabeth Case and Bernice Howard.

U. of M. Museum Gets State's Aid

At its February session the conservation commission acted favorably on a request from the University of Michigan museum that the department cooperate in providing wild life specimens for the university collections.

With a splendid new building now in use, the museum is in a position to attempt work previously impossible and collections of all Michigan's wild life forms now can be handled to the best advantage.

The commission's approval of the project resulted in a circular letter to all district conservation officers and state trappers, instructing them to forward directly to Ann Arbor the unpelted carcasses of wolves, coyotes, foxes, bear, deer and various other animals which are picked up along the highways or railroads, or which are taken within reasonable distance of an express office. The first of these shipments has been sent to the university.

When the university collections have been built up it is planned that typical sets of birds and animals will be mounted and cased so as to provide loan collections to be sent to various secondary schools of the state.

M. S. T. Senior Activities Will Start May 8th

Dates for spring term activities of the senior class of Michigan State College are announced by William Muller, president.

Swingout, when seniors appear on the campus for the first time in caps and gowns, has been set for Wednesday, May 8. After that State seniors will appear on the campus one day a week in their regalia.

The annual water carnival, sponsored by the class, is to take place Thursday and Friday, June 13 and 14. This event will be held on the banks of the Red Cedar river. The entire student body will take part.

Recommended dates for several other affairs follow: Cap night, when freshmen burn their green pots and seniors their books, Wednesday, June 12; lantern night, traditional co-ed ceremony similar to the men's cap night, Monday, June 17.

Baccalaureate Sunday will be June 23 and commencement exercises will be held the next day.

Chairmen of the various committees are: Water carnival, Warren Shook, Grand Rapids; senior publicity, George Kelsner, Marshall; senior party, George Farley, Albion; commencement arrangements, Ted Stevens, Dollar Bay; finance, Melvin Losey, Springport.

Hall Converted Into Modern Reception Room

By HILDA HUNT

The old-fashioned hall, large as a room, we still have with us in many of the old-fashioned homes, as well as in many of the more modern summer cottages. In days gone by this hall was the receptacle for the family coats, hats, rubbers and other over-shoes. Sometimes it had a closet in which to hide these things, but more often there was a spacious hatrack with mirror, hooks and marble top, with its card receiver above, and a cupboard beneath for the over-shoes. Except for the hatrack and possibly a bench, the hall was bare. We did not need to make a reception room of it, as we then had our big double parlors. In other words, rooms and room were not then at a premium. Housemaids were plentiful, and we could afford to live in big houses with some leisure.

Now today, when rooms, room and servants are all at a premium, the utilization of the hall, if we happen to possess one of any size, becomes a problem. We want a little more room, so we turn the hall into a reception room. The sketch shows one of these halls furnished plainly but practically, utilizing some of the old-fashioned furniture we have no room for elsewhere. The hall and stairway are paneled in pine, stained dark to represent oak. The furniture consists of two old-fashioned chairs of oak with rush seats, a small table between with old-fashioned lamps modernized with electricity, and a dresser minus its mirror. The dresser and table are in maple, which goes very well with the oak stained panels and the oak chairs.

The dresser affords the room for over-shoes once the function of the hatrack, as well as for other things the hatrack could not accommodate. A small hooked and a larger rag rug cover the oak stained floor. A view of the dining room is afforded through the open door at the front of the stairs. This dining room is as simply furnished as the hall, and a rag carpet covers the floor. There is no attempt to combine the simple elegance of the antique, nor the elaborateness of the modern, with the simple old-fashioned furniture of the hall. All is in perfect harmony, restful and comfortable, with a pleasant air of invitation about it.

CADILLAC'S HISTORY TO BE PORTRAYED

An historical pageant depicting events of early days of Cadillac and the region round about will be one of the principal features of the July 4 celebration at Cadillac. The pageant, which is to be produced in three evening performances, will be put on by a cast of 500 persons.

The idea and general outline of the production is the creation of Perry F. Powers, Cadillac pioneer newspaper publisher.

Though Cadillac is little more than 50 years old it has had a varied experience in its struggle to manhood and there is much excellent material for episodes that will be used, according to Postmaster Powers.

While the famous French cavalier whose name the city bears did not know of this locality, his travels in Michigan and romantic life will be a part of the spectacle. Indian life and activities and their relations with the first white settlers will be portrayed. The woodcraft activities of this region, reminiscent of early lumbering days, will play a part.

Junior Three-Piece

The coat and skirt of this junior three-piece ensemble are made of kasha in pastel shades. The blouse is pale tan. A natural straw hat completes the costume.

Federation Plans Spring Contests

The Michigan Federation of Music Clubs announces that the elimination hearings of the Young Artists and Student Musicians contests will be held April 17 in Pontiac, beginning at 9 o'clock and continuing throughout the day. Some of the events will be carried on simultaneously, if necessary, in order to be finished that day.

Applications are coming in rapidly and prospective contestants are urged to file their applications at once. Pianists, violinists and singers from the ages of 16 to 22 years are eligible; organists and violinedists from 16 to 24 years of age only.

State and district prizes are being offered with national prizes aggregating $4,000 to be distributed among the winners. Opportunities for radio, concert and opera appearances are open to the successful finalists.

State winners from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana will meet at the Great Lakes district contest May 14 in Indianapolis, to compete for the right to enter the national contests to be held in Boston in June of this year, during the biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

For information, required selections, and all contest literature, address the state contest chairman, Mrs. Morris D. Silver, 48 Marston Ave., Detroit.

First Aid Week Observed March 17 to 23

The Good Samaritan figures in the 1929 "First Aid—Home Remedy Week" and is designated as the "First Aid." This annual merchandising festival arrives with St. Patrick's day, continues March 17-23, and marks the eighth anniversary of the plan dedicated to Drugdom by Sterling Products Incorporated, in 1922, and immediately sponsored by the National Association of Retail Druggists. Seeing the great advertising and sales possibilities in the plan and its helpfulness to humanity, the National Wholesale Druggists' Association has swung behind it with the enthusiastic suggestion that druggists use local newspapers, and providing them with suggestive advertising copy tied to the national slogan, "Fill That Medicine Chest Now!"

Coming at a time when housewives are thinking of house cleaning, the command has added psychological sales value. Secretary S. C. Henry of the N. A. R. D., out of long experience says: "No one knows better than the average retail druggist how much needless suffering there is because most people are neglectful in the matter of making provision for the hour of need which is sure to come when sudden illness or unforeseen accident calls for immediate attention."

"Quick Relief Insurance" is the new definition of First Aid—Home Remedy Week's objective, and is thus bringing the nation's "Health Service Stations" into closer every day life.

Broiled Hamburg Steak on Onion Rings

Scalloped Potatoes Waldorf Salad
Cheese Pie Coffee

In today's recipes is a new version of the familiar hamburger steak and onions. You may have your own recipe for cheese pie, but here is a new one for you to try out.

Today's Recipes

Cheese Pie—For the crust, mix together one and one-fourth glasses of flour, one-fourth glass sugar, one teaspoon making powder, a pinch of salt. Beat an egg, and add together with two tablespoons of butter which has been melted. Add one-half teaspoon of vanilla and knead. If milk is necessary to make the dough soft, use a small quantity. Line the pie plate with this crust mixture. For the cheese mixture, strain all water from a pound of pot cheese, and cream well. Add five tablespoons sugar, mix well. Add a table-spoon of melted butter and two well-beaten eggs, then a pinch of salt. Add three-fourths glass of cream. Stir till the mixture is smooth. Add two table-spoons flour and a teaspoon vanilla. Pour this batter into pie plate which has been lined with the dough, and bake in a moderate oven until slightly browned.

Broiled Hamburg Steak on Onion Rings—Two cups ground lean raw beef, one-fourth cup ground suet, one cup soft fine bread crumbs, seven strips bacon, seven slices Spanish onion one-half inch thick, one table-spoon chopped parsley, three table-spoons butter, two teaspoons onion juice, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one table-spoon water. Lay the slices of onion in a buttered shallow baking dish. Pour over them two table-spoons of melted butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper, add the water, cover closely and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for thirty minutes or until tender. In the meantime cook the chopped parsley in one table-spoon of butter and combine with the beef, suet, crumbs and seasonings. Knead until thoroughly mixed. Mold into seven flat cakes and wrap each with a slice of bacon. Place each cake on an onion slice in the baking dish and broil under direct heat for five minutes on each side. Baste occasionally with the drippings. Serve at once from the baking dish. If it is not convenient to broil the meat cakes by direct heat pan-broil them in a hot skillet and serve on the onion slices.

Straighten Curtains

Newly washed curtains will not always hang straight. Try inserting a curtain rod in the lower hem for a day or two. This will pull them into shape.

Use Soap

When painting a window or picture frame, rub soap around the glass near the edge. Then, if the paint splashes onto the glass, it can be easily removed with a soft cloth.

The World and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

IN NEW YORK

New York hasn't always been a city of apartment dwellers. It is only 59 years since the first apartment house was built in the city.

A chorus of dwellers in old apartments may greet this information with sneers, saying, "Why, the apartment I live in must be at least twice that old, and maybe it isn't absolutely the first one."

But the first apartment house built in New York is still an apartment house and is still fully occupied.

It is at 142 East Eighteenth street, and is five stories high, built of red brick, and contains apartments of four, seven and nine rooms. The rooms are large and high, in the old style.

Rutherford Stuyvesant, who built the first apartment house in New York, borrowed the idea from Paris builders. The first demonstration made the idea go, and now every New Yorker is generally believed by outsiders to live in an apartment. As a matter of fact, there are still a great many separate houses with lawns and back yards in Brooklyn, Richmond, Queens and Bronx boroughs.

One of the most spectacular residence "developments" in New York is Tudor City, fronting on the East river, on and near Forty-second street.

Now, Forty-second street, as nearly everybody knows, runs through the heart of the busiest part of Manhattan island. It runs straight from the East river to the Hudson river, and it is one of the chief traffic arteries east and west. Grand Central Terminal fronts on it. The new Chrysler building, tallest in the world, abuts it. The new Lincoln building, largest in floor space, fronts on it. The Times building also, and many other famous and great structures.

Nevertheless, down on the East river front property could be had for a song only three or four years ago. Fred F. French saw his chance. He bought up blocks and blocks of this cheap real estate, and began erecting towering apartment houses.

Tudor City consists of a group of buildings, a dozen or more. You can't keep track of the number, for a new one starts before the last one is half completed. The buildings vary in height six stories to 42 stories, and still higher units are under way. The builder of this residence city in the heart of the business area of New York looks out for light and air for his tenants. He keeps some of his ground vacant of buildings and plants it to shrubs and trees and flowers, despite the mousing taxes and the temptation to use every square foot for rentable property.

This experiment doubtless will lead to other large undertakings, for the Tudor City project has been an immense financial success.

EDUCATION AN EFFORT TO GET OUT OF CHILD WHAT THE LORD PUT IN

Here is a new definition of education and very different from the old idea of it. "Education is an effort to get out of a child what the Lord put in."

Education, then, continues all through life, doesn't it? All that the Lord put in us when we were born comes out in the stress and strain of living. The meanness and desire to win at any cost, the yellow streak that makes us let others bear the burdens, saving our own backs, they all come out in the crucible of life. And the fine qualities—courage, unselfishness, energy, high ideals—also come out—as pure as gold.

"My Dear Virginia Lee: I take pleasure in reading your column and seeing the letter about the young man who is trying to make something of himself despite his people, who are common, I decided to write you in regard to my problem, and will appreciate any information you may give me."

"My family is also common and averse to education. In order to get ahead and make something of myself I was obliged to leave home at an early age and have had to assume all responsibilities, which have made me much older in mind than I am in years. I am now 20 and engaged to marry a very capable girl somewhat older than myself. Now, I would like to know if I can be married at this age without my parents' consent, and if one has to have a residence of any length of time when applying for a license. I have an offer of a position in the city and would like to be married upon my arrival there in order that I may enjoy the comforts of a good home and well cooked food. I will watch the column for your kind reply. "G. G."

The legal age at which a man may marry in your state, without his parents' consent, is 21. G. G. If you are younger you must file notice five days in advance and present your birth certificate or other proof of age. You can then be married at the city chapel, only by a judge of a court of record.

"Dear Virginia Lee: Will you please answer this question for me before St. Patrick's day, as I am to have a party at that time? I am engaged to a young man and have been keeping company with him three years. He has given me two diamond rings, one of which is an engagement ring. I have been wearing both on the same finger. Please tell me if this is correct or not, or should the engagement ring be worn alone? I have been very puzzled about this and have been criticized on several occasions. "Margaret."

I would wear the engagement ring alone, Margaret, although as your fiancé gave them both to you I don't see that it matters much. Why not wear one on the right hand and the engagement ring on the corresponding finger on the left?"

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am in great need of help. I am a girl 18 and am in high school. I am in love with a boy whom my parents will not allow me to talk to. I have been going with him secretly for over a year. My parents seem to think that a decent boy will not come from another town to see a girl. Do you think so? Should an 18-year-old girl ask her parents when she can go on a date? At what time should she be home? Thanks, a lot. "Jacqueline."

As long as a girl lives at home and is dependent on her parents she should defer to them, don't you think so? I can't say I think much of a young man who will go with a girl secretly, if he has made no effort to get her parents to like and trust him to come to her home. A girl of 18 in school should be in by 10 any school night, but is usually allowed to stay out later Friday or Saturday nights. She must settle such matters with her parents, however.

Star Gazing

Did you know that: Six of the cast of "The Iron Mask" also appeared in its forerunner, "The Three Musketeers"?

Bobby Clark and Paul McCullough have started another one, "The Medicine Men"?

Larry Kent is supposed to be a double of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh?

Eve Southern is recuperating from a recent illness?

Richard Dix has gone back to Hollywood to resume work there after making a talkie in New York?

Hoot Gibson's next is B. M. Bower's "Points West"?

In her next Louise Dresser sings the numbers of a coon shouter in a cabaret?

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back" will be modernized into a talkie?

Emil Jannings and Janet Gaynor have been awarded prizes for best performances of 1928?

"Here Comes the Band Wagon" will be the first sound circus picture?

Gary Cooper will have the chief role?

Richard Arlen is a star hockey player and a former St. Paul, Minn., sports writer?

S. S. Van Dine, whose detective stories are being made into pictures, says you theatergoers are no longer satisfied with one murder in a story? He says murder stories must now have three or four slayings?

Did you know that: Eleanor Boardman's next is "She Goes to War"?

Hollywood expects soon to hear wedding bells ringing merrily for Bebe Daniels and—guess who!—why, Ben Lyons, of course. Bebe and Ben began to like each other a whole lot when they discovered they both were interested in airplanes and flying.

Marguerite de la Motte was born in Duluth, Minn.?

D. W. Griffith has made something like 430 pictures? His biggest, "The Birth of a Nation," is still running places? It has pulled in over $10,000,000?

Alice White was a script girl two years ago?

Folklore Legends That Have Many Believers

Curious old customs, legends and superstitions still existing in the British Isles were recalled at a congress of the British Folklore Society. For example, one speaker told the congress that there still is a belief in the life of Man that the cats of the island being king of their own. During the day the "king" lives the life of an ordinary house cat. At night he assumes his royal attributes and travels about in regal state. It is dangerous for a householder with whom he lives to treat the "king cat" unkindly. Cats are further believed to be in intimate terms with fairies and other invisible inhabitants of the world of mystery. The cat is the only member of the household allowed to remain in the kitchen when the fairies enter to warm themselves after the human residents have gone to bed. Again, large black dogs with flaming eyes are supposed to roam the island at night. The best way to pursue a witch is to chase her with a greyhound having not a single black hair. An old Manx law is to the effect that any Manxman might kill a Scotsman provided that the Manxman must go to Scotland and bring back two goats to keep the victim's ghost away.—Pierre Van Paes in the Atlanta Constitution.

Indian Good Swimmers

The Bureau of American Ethnology says that the Indians were remarkable swimmers and some of the tribes were in the water as much as were the primitive Polynesians. They swam six or seven different ways, including treading water, and would dive to the bottom of deep water. A common institution among the Indians was the sweat bath. They would sweat in a specially constructed sweathouse, which was closed up to keep the heat in, and when they thought they had sweated enough would suddenly run outdoors, giving themselves a shower, then themselves into the cold water, and after a while re-enter the sweathouse to dry off, since they had no towels.

The Lombards

Lombard street, the principal bank quarter of the city of London, takes its name from the Lombards, so-called Italian goldsmiths and money-lenders, who settled there in the beginning of the Twelfth century. They were then commonly called "Longbeards," and the name of the thoroughfare was spelt indifferently Longbord and Langbeord. A century or so later it had become corrupted into Langbourne—that is, "long brook"—and this misleading title is still retained for the ward in which it is situated.

PAUL W. CORLETT

STANDARD OIL CONCERT

But few people who hear the Sunday evening concert of the world famous Chicago Symphony Orchestra which the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) is broadcasting every Sunday evening between 6 and 7 o'clock, through stations associated with the National Broadcasting Company, realize how much work that production involves. While the concert itself is played by approximately seventy-five men, including Dr. Frederick Stock, noted conductor under whose personal direction the broadcast is made, at least fifty other persons, experts in their own fields, are involved in presenting the hour of master music. The program of music to be played during the hour is selected and built by musical synopsis is submitted to the program director for the Chicago NBC studios, who in turn submits it to officials of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana for their approval. After the music has been approved the synopsis is turned over to the continuity editor, who works with Dr. Stock in preparing the explanations preceding each number which make the music intelligible in theme to the listening millions. When the continuity is finished a stenographer makes a stencil of it and a first mimeography copy is run off. Copies of this are gone over again for further corrections and after adjustments for time etc., have been made another mimeograph set is made and labeled "Final."

When these copies are approved a "Master" set is made and these are put in the hands of Sen Kaney, the announcer, Dr. Stock, officials of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), program director and the heads of various departments. In the meantime, the story on the concert has been written by the press relations department and forwarded to New York City where a copy editor reads it, sends it to the composing room where a linotype operator sets it into type, and probably five or six other men handle it before it is finally printed and sent to papers all over the country. In each of these newspaper offices the radio editor clips the program and sends it to the composing room of the paper where it is again handled by many hands before it is printed in the paper for the benefit of the radio listener.

The broadcaster is preceded by hours of rehearsal on the part of the orchestra, while the electrical engineers in charge of the machinery involved in putting the concert on the air spend hours checking equipment so that the most perfect transmission possible will be obtained. When the concert is actually broadcast the orchestra of seventy-five men and the announcer are in the studio. In the monitor studio sits the program director, reading a duplicate score so that each tonal value can be given its full value as he gives his running line of instructions to the engineer on the "mixing board." A Morse wire operator is in constant touch with the plant department to check on the manner in which the music is going on the air and other Morse operators are constantly in touch with each station during the broadcast.

Peach Grower's Friends

The ladybird beetles are perhaps the most beneficial of the several insects that set as a check on the peach tree insects. They prey upon scale insects, aphids and thrips. The two-spotted ladybird beetle is usually prevalent on peach trees that are heavily infested with the San Jose scale. It is jet black in color and has two orange or red spots on the back. Ladybird beetles take their nourishment by sucking scale insects dry. They also assist materially in checking infestations of the rusty-brown plum aphid or other aphids. Syrphus flies, lacewing flies, tachina flies, ground beetles and some of the assassin bugs and praying mantis are other insects that are beneficial to the peach grower.

Deerfield had the best team in class "D." However they were used to a low gym and could not negotiate the baskets losing to Grosse Ile in an overtime game 18 to 24.

Pinckney had the smallest team in the tournament all the other entries were large and in some cases towered over the Class "B" and "C" entries.

Salina and Grosse Ile the two Wayne county teams entered are the class of the tournament. The former is situated near the Ford Rouge factory and is composed almost entirely of tall Polish players.

Funny how the crowd favors the under dog. Pinckney was cheered repeatedly by the Deerfield, Grosse Ile and Salina delegations when they made their big spurt in the final period scoring 11 points to their opponents 4.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

However illogical it may be in truth, the observance of this great day is left to Catholic Irishmen alone, and to tell the honest truth, they make a mighty poor effort, often a disgraceful effort.

The first mistake those people make, and the most dangerous, is the assumption of a "religious question" in the relation between Ireland and England.

A Catholic England began the conquest and their idea of responsibility may be learned from the fact that they held the killing of an Irishman was no more a crime than killing a dog and as it often happened, when any of their warlike monks, in line with this teaching of theirs, did kill an Irishman, there was no need to refrain from saying nuss even for a day. Lecky, the historian, states this and gives his authority.

The Protestant Reformation affected conditions, of course, but found Ireland under a well organized system of English exploitation.

Roger Casement said "Protestantism was presented to Ireland at the point of a Tudor sword," which is true but he should have said, further, it was presented by Tudor Imperialism and at the expense of Protestantism and to the ruin of Christianity.

The Protestant Ireland that England created prospered, to just the extent needed for demoralization, and then the Protestants had to feel the heavy hand of exploitation and an exodus of them found new homes in America and they helped powerfully in the revolution.

These Irishmen, are called by our teachers "Scotch-Irish" just because they were not Catholics. The Sullivans, Clintons, Butlers, Dexters and all the rest make splendid Scotchmen for the propagandizing historians. Dexter, Mar. 10, '29 M. T. Kelly.

COMING THROUGH THE COUNTY

On April 8th, the first event of the kind in Livingston County will take place when the Ann Arbor Railroad with the Co-operation of the Michigan State College and other interested agencies will run an Educational Potato Train. There will be two or three cars with exhibits of good potatoes, cultural methods, value of certified seed etc. also a place for holding a meeting and giving lectures. The special, will be in Howell, Monday afternoon, April 8th. at 1:00 o'clock and it is hoped everyone who can will take advantage of seeing the exhibits and hearing the program. The Howell Board of Commerce have plans underway to make this a real educational event.

Plans are also to make it possible for farmers wishing to order certified seed to do so at this time.

At the price of certified seed this year, it is likely many farmers will take advantage of ordering a supply for this seasons needs.

It is possible that a carload of certified seed will be shipped to Howell which will be the first time in history this has been done here. This method of ordering will also make them delivered here cheaper which will benefit the farmers directly. Nearly a half carload of orders have already been placed with Co. Agent C. L. Bolander.

CURRENT COMMENT

Senator Seymour Person of this district while we are of the opinion that he is wrong 50 ole of the time, is nevertheless an able legislator and in his mastery of ridicule and invective he rivals Senator Jim Reed of Missouri. His two pet aversions are the capital punishment bills and certain features of the criminal code. The capital punishment bills repose peacefully in the judiciary committee of which he is a member and if Person has his way they will remain there till doomsday. The other day he threw the house into laughter by remarking that the Consumers Power Co. was behind the capital punishment bill so they could sell power to the state for the electric chair.

The battle between the wets and dries in the legislature still wages in the Michigan legislature. First the criminal code changes which vassed the house removed liquor violators from the dangers of the life penalty for fourth offenders by making it apply only to those offences for which the maximum for first offenders was five years. They then killed this change by passing the Cuthbertson bill making the sentence for first time liquor offenders five years. This bill came up in the senate last week and that body broke all precedents by suspending the rules and taking it out of the hands of Lt. Gov. Dickinson and sending it to the state affairs committee where it was predicted it would never be heard of again. An exchange of compliments ensued between Lt. Gov. Dickinson and Gov. Green, the former charging that he understood the governor had ordered the Cuthbertson bill killed. The latter denied that and said he would be pleased to see it reported out. On hearing this the state affairs committee obligingly reported it out and it is due to come up next Thursday.

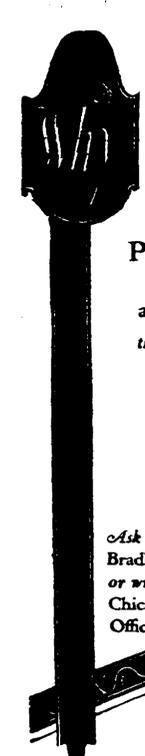

The district and regional tournaments of the state basket ball contest are over. The titles in most cases are won by the city schools as they have a greater wealth of material to pick from. In this district, Gross Ile and Lady of the Lourdes, both Wayne county entries took the class "D" and "C" titles and Adrian the class "B". However there are occasional exceptions to this rule. In Colorado the class "D" title in the state was won by Jose high school which town only has a population of 90. However they were able to muster 5 six footers for their basket ball team who played the entire schedule without substitutes.

Maj. Gen. Edwin Winans son of the late Gov. Winans of Hamburg is in command of the United States troops on the Mexican border. His boyhood was spent in this county and he is well known to many of the older inhabitants.

A Quarter Million NEW SIX CYLINDER CHEVROLETS on the road since JAN. 1st

To satisfy the overwhelming public demand for the new Chevrolet Six, the Chevrolet Motor Company has accomplished one of the most remarkable industrial achievements of all time. In less than three months after the first Chevrolet Six was delivered to the public, the Chevrolet factories are producing 6,000 cars a day. As a result, more than a quarter-million new Chevrolet Sixes have been delivered to date—and this tremendous popularity is increasing every day! If you have not yet seen and driven this remarkable car—come in for a demonstration!

WEEK OF MARCH 24

Cold and generally clear weather is to be expected during the opening days of the week of March 24. Temperatures will range below the seasonal normal during the greater part of the first half, although we are expecting a moderate rise not later than the middle of the week.

From Monday to Wednesday there will be a storm period over Michigan. As a result we are looking for some moderation in temperature in connection with general rains or snow storms. Along with this storm center there will be some strong winds. The probability of some sleet storms is not so very remote with the consequence highways or wire communications in some sections of Michigan may be in danger.

General storminess will probably continue over the state as a whole until Thursday or Friday with the temperatures gradually dropping lower and to points below the seasonal normal.

The week ends with temperatures low and the sky generally clear. Expect Cool April Emerson's poem "April Cold With Dropping Rain" seems to about fit in with what we are expecting in most parts of Michigan during April this year. The Indians called this the grass month and this will also be appropriate, we think, since grass, grain and meadows should thrive well.

Yellowjackets and queen bumblebees will be visiting the early flowers that brave the chilling winds but these honey procuring insects should be watched and guarded against unseasonal temperatures during this month.

This will also prove a better month than March in which to buy and raise chicks, yet even in this month the average cool temperatures will make it difficult for the chickens to get the proper exercise.

Charlotte Youth Now a Soldier of the Sea

While looking forward to service on land or sea with the U. S. Marines, Clayton W. Wright of Charlotte will soon complete his preliminary training with the soldiers of the sea at Parris Island, S. C., according to a recent report of enlistments at that training station.

Wright is 18 years old, was born at Vermontville, and is a son of Mrs. Nora Sanders of 424 Shaw St. He joined the Marine Corps at Lansing and was sent to Parris Island for training. Within a few weeks he will probably leave for some foreign station, go aboard a naval vessel or be assigned to one of the many duties that fall to the lot of the Marines.

Wright enlisted for four years, but during this period free educational courses, taught by the Marine Corps Institution, are available to all members of the corps. Many young men take advantage of these studies and complete their enlistments especially equipped to take up some trade, art or profession.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

JACK and JILL

By CLIFFORD WEBB

(Copyright, 1923, the Central Press Association, Inc.)

But, as Jack Stuart had boasted, he had plenty of blood, and could well spare a large quantity. And it was a large quantity that was pumped straight from his arteries into those of Sister Monica. The cut on the side of her foot, as Jack had surmised, had severed two or three small arteries. The way she explained it when she had recovered, it seemed that she had made an attempt to jump across the creek. The jump was successful, but when her foot struck on the opposite side, the right had come down on the sharp edge of a broken bottle embedded in the sand. Knowing she had cut her foot, she had immediately jumped back, with the intention of hurrying up the hill and getting help. She had taken only a step or two when she realized the cut was bleeding in great spurts. It was then that she had attempted to stop the flow of blood with her stocking, but having no stick for a tourniquet, her efforts had proven almost futile—almost, because she had been found by Jack.

And Jack—what of him? He was suddenly the sleepiest man in the world. All that he wanted, he yawned drowsily, was a thousand years of sleep. Would they please—would everybody please—please go away and let him sleep?

CHAPTER XXV

They would—and they did. They let him sleep, just as the hospital folk, doctors and nurses, had arranged that he should do, knowing how sleepy he would be after the hypodermic and giving up so much of his vital fluid.

Finally he opened his eyes and looked around. Then gradually his faculties started to work and he began the process of readjustment. At that moment the door opened and a white uniformed nurse entered. Before she could speak he was talking. "Tell me—quick!" he begged, unaware of his weakness. But even before she had opened her mouth to tell him, he knew from the happy look in her eyes that all was well. Still he wanted to hear all about it by word of mouth. And so, having her mouth open, she told him. "She's getting along splendidly—thanks to you!" was the nice way the charming young nurse expressed herself, while she trained her most exclusive smile on the receptive Jack, the hero of the hour, in that House of Aches and Pains. "Father Ryan will be here in half an hour," she added, patting the pillows around his ear with a deft touch here and there. "Then you'll be taken in to see her."

"She" and "her," of course, referred to Sister Monica. And when, some 35 minutes later, he was ushered in with Father Ryan and Mother Martha, and was received by the woman whose life it had been his good fortune to save twice within an hour, Jack Stuart had the feeling that he was living, right then, through the most sublime moment of his life.

And then, when it was all over, and he was in the parlor with Father Ryan, the realization suddenly struck him that something was missing. It was the same with him then as it had been with Jill that night in Pittsburgh—there was something lacking, something he had been expecting. What was it? Jill—where was Jill? Why hadn't she been here with him in his great hour—to share with him in the felicitations, the good wishes? He turned to Father Ryan. "Hasn't Jill—my wife—been here this morning, Father?" he asked, with a little sinking feeling, as he glanced up at the clock on the wall and noted that the hour hand marked 11. The priest looked at him and slowly shook his head. "I haven't seen nor heard a word from Jill since before the accident yesterday," he said, and then added: "I was so busy and so worried last night that I neglected several important duties. But I telephoned your apartment three times before midnight, and the nurse girl said her mistress had not returned from the picnic. I don't know for sure whether she knows about Sister Monica's accident. If she didn't, that would account for her having made no inquiries about you."

But Jack Stuart was asking himself various questions, things that, until now, had seemed unimportant. Where could Jill have been up until 12 o'clock the night before, when Father Ryan had last called

HE: "You worrying about me? That's good! You had to go on a party, you felt so bad?" SHE: "What are you raving about? I've been right here in this bed since 7 o'clock last night!" HE: "Now, Jill, what's the sense of telling me a thing like that? Where were you th' three times Father Ryan called, or telephoned, between 8 and 12?" SHE: "I was right here, I tell you, since 7 last night!" HE: "And I tell you that you're lying! You were out all night and, I suppose, with that dancer from Pittsburgh!" SHE: "Oh—Oh—Jack Stuart! Aren't you ashamed to say such an awful thing to me—me th' mother of your children? And you? Where were you all night? With that vamp from Chicago—or with your Mike?" HE: "That'll be enough, Jill Stuart! You're a fine one to be casting slurs. As for me, and where I was last night, I'll tell you, since you don't really seem to know! I was in the hospital after th' doctors had pumped a pint or more of my blood into th' empty veins of Sister Monica, who fell and cut th' arteries in her foot so badly she came close to bleeding to death! That's where I was last night, my lady! It's a shame you haven't got as good an alibi!"

He stood for a brief instant following his blistering arraignment, looking at his wife, the mother of his three beautiful children.

She was sitting on the edge of the wide, double-mattressed bed, robed in a short-sleeved, white-silk nightgown, through which the curving slenderness of her perfect figure was partially revealed. She had removed the towel from her head immediately after his entrance, and her black, naturally wavy hair, clug in clusters of curls, enhancing the youthful attractiveness of her face.

Her pretty brown eyes were now wide with amazed inquiry. For Jill had suddenly become aware of her true position and that it was quite likely she had wrongfully accused Jack. As this realization came to her, all her hardness vanished. A great wave of maternal pity swept over her. Her pallor and sunken cheeks were now signals of real distress.

At that instant, and without a word further, Jack turned and stalked out of the room. She called after him: "Jack! Oh, Jack! Wait! Come back! I want to—"

Whether he heard or not, he paid no attention, but kept on going, out the hall. He saw Clara at the kitchen door, and heard the voices of Peter and Paul in one of the three rooms used for a nursery. The other two belonged to Clara and Jennie, the maid, who was also cook and assistant housekeeper.

He wanted to get away—to be alone for a while, where he could think. But concentration was difficult for Jack Stuart just then. He didn't realize that in draining his body of three cubic centimeters—three pints—of blood, he had been physically and mentally weakened. He should have remained in bed for at least 24 hours after the operation. Instead, he had rushed right out and into a state of over-exertion, physical and mental.

CHAPTER XXVI

The muscles of his legs suddenly began to ache. Before he had reached the end of the block he had to stop. A convenient tree provided something for him to lean against, and that was just what Jack most wanted at that moment. Not only was he in need of physical support, but his senses were calling for the tonic of human sympathy. He wanted somebody to pity him. It was the Devil of Chance that sent him Mike Sweeney in her powerful roadster.

"Jack Stuart! Why, you're ill—you're—"

She had stopped her car at the curb as she saw him stagger up to the tree. Then, catching sight of his face, pale and drawn, she threw open the door, leaped out, and rushed over to him.

"What are you doing—trying to kill yourself? They shouldn't have let you out of th' hospital yet! Good Lord! You oughta be in bed this instant! C'mon, get right in that car now, and I'll take you back where you belong!"

Jack Stuart was in no condition, physically or mentally, to argue the question. A terrible weakness, a mental and body languor, was gripping him, a languor, it seemed to him, of soul and brain and heart. He wanted—oh, he wanted something—somebody just to lean on. He wanted—to cry!

And he cried—right there! Not loudly, nor passionately, but just weakly—like a great baby, whimpering. Mike Sweeney seemed intuitively to understand, as she helped him across the green grass sward to the open door of her car. He dropped into the low, cushioned seat, and there, quietly, unostentatiously, and for the first time in his life, Jack Stuart fainted!

But Mike didn't know it—then. She pushed the door shut, ran around to the left side, and squeezed in behind the big steering wheel. Mindful of the fact that she had a sick man for a passenger, she got under way without the usual accompanying roar. Then she looked at her passenger, observed that his eyes were shut, that his mouth was a little open and that he was resting in the deep seat with all the grace and poise of a big sack of meal.

she stepped on the accelerator. The heavy roadster jumped ahead like a live thing. Neither to the right nor the left did she look for the straight run of a mile. Then she slowed down for the turn into the hospital grounds.

She looked again at her passenger. His eyes were still closed, his mouth still open. Something, a slackness of the mouth, perhaps, drew her attention closer. She reached over with her right hand and grasped his left wrist, lying supinely across his leg. The eyes remained closed. The lower lip sagged a little lower.

"Jack!" she cried out in sudden alarm, and shook his arm. There was no response, although she saw by the rise and fall of his chest that he was breathing. How fortunate that she had found him when she did, and had brought him to the hospital.

She stopped the car under the portico. At the same instant the door opened and Mother Martha stepped out. Swiftly Mike made her acquaintance with the facts as she knew them. She had found Mr. Stuart, she said, in a fainting condition, leaning against a tree, and had got him into her car. She had just discovered that he had fainted.

The Mother Superior called two orderlies who lifted Jack out of the car into a hospital cart. He was rushed to the operating room, where the same two doctors who had performed on him the afternoon before went to work on him again.

"I suppose I ought to notify his wife," said Mike, when word was sent down a few minutes later that the patient had recovered consciousness and had been put to bed, where he had already fallen asleep. The Mother Superior nodded.

"Yes," she acquiesced, "the wife should be told, although she seemed to show no anxiety last night and this forenoon, never even telephoning to inquire about him."

"Mrs. Stuart just went out," came Clara's musical tones over the wire in response to Mike's call. "Mr. Stuart came in, stayed just a few minutes, and then went out again, not an hour ago. Now she's gone out again, too."

"Gone out again?" repeated the curious Mike. "Was not Mrs. Stuart home when he came in?" "She must have been," replied the nurse girl, as if puzzled over the self-evident fact, "although I didn't hear her come in last night. But I heard their voices in their room. Then I saw him go out as I was in th' hall when he left."

"Well, tell Mrs. Stuart when she comes in that her husband is in th' hospital," instructed Mike, and rang off.

In the meantime what of Jill? She was left sitting on the bed, it will be recalled, when Jack strode from the room.

But she didn't sit on the bed very long. When she heard the hall door slam she rose quickly, made a swift toilet, and hurriedly departed in the wake of the man who, she now realized, she had accused wrongfully.

She wanted to tell him how sorry she was. She wanted to prove to him, also, that he had wronged her in thinking she had failed to come to the hospital because she had been out with—oh, how could Jack ever have thought so vile a thing of her? But she would prove to him—

Alas, poor Jill. . . . Circumstances certainly were weaving a tangled web for you that day.

She wanted to find Jack. But where to look for him? She would go to the garage. Perhaps. . . . But Jack had not been there, she was told.

"Has Mr. Green come down yet?" she asked George, the man on the floor. Mr. Green was the garage owner, and he had been on duty the evening before, when she drove in just before 7 o'clock.

"Why, Mr. Green went on his vacation this morning, Mrs. Stuart," replied George. "He won't be back for a month or more!"

Her heart sank. Mr. Green was the one person who could substantiate her claim of having driven in before 7 o'clock. Her alibi—but surely Jack would believe her. She hurried away in the direction of the Central drug store. Maybe Jack would be there.

Jack was not there, but Ann McGuffy and Billie Browne, both of them her friends, were there, and both of them were loaded to the cars with curiosity.

"Oh, Jill!" erupted hisping Billie, her eyes shining and her lip working overtime, "it must be grand to have a hero for a husband! But, my dear, you are th' Thilly thing to let that natty Mike Thweency threal him th' first day he ith a hero!" (To be continued!)

You Can't Dye a Dress with Promises!
You can't dye a dress—no matter how careful you may be—without real color. That's the idea behind Diamond Dyes. They are made to give you real service. They contain from three to five times more aniline than other dyes on the market.
Next time you want to dye, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking, or spotting. See how soft, bright, new looking the colors are. Then observe how they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. If you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes, your dealer will refund your money.
The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

NEW INSTRUMENTS MAY LOCATE ORE

The days of the "doodle bug" man, that seer of seers who traveled about the land using his boasted wizardry and mysterious instruments to determine mineral wealth beneath the surface, have long since been numbered but, if he actually ever occupied a position of economic importance, he is being pushed out of it by scientifically designed devices.

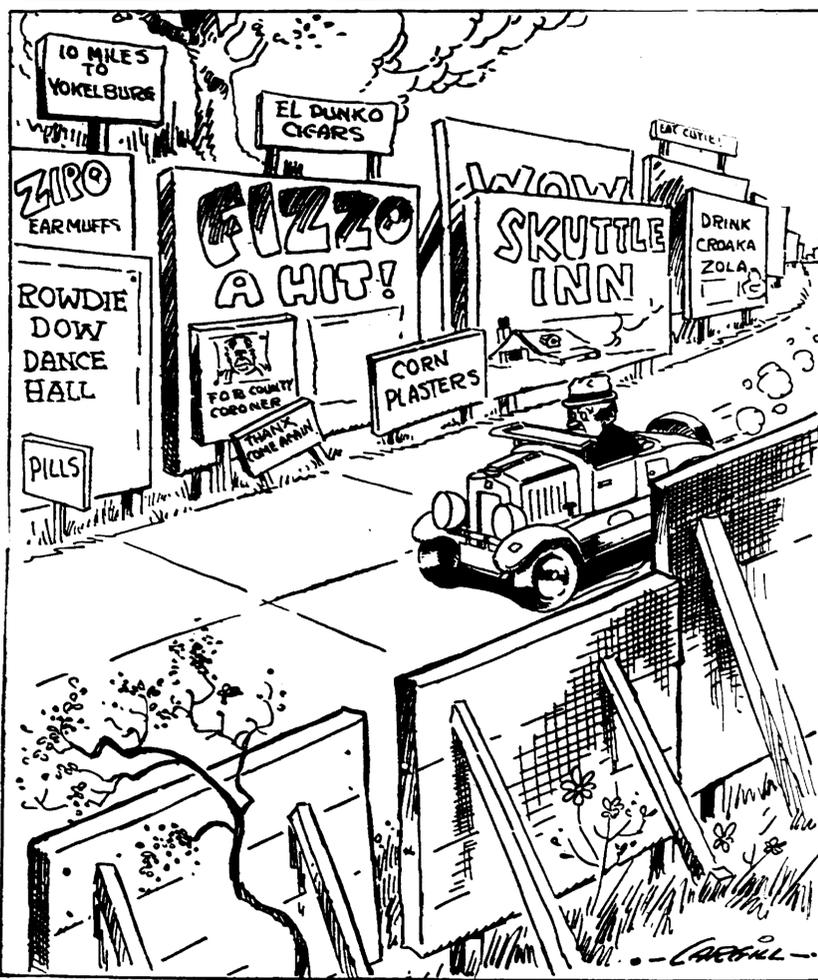

Experiments being conducted under the direction of the geological division of the state department of conservation are steps taken to prove the worth of the resistance variometer, an instrument to measure electrical resistance through different substances, e. g., through different kinds of rock strata. If, after extensive work, the engineers decide its results may be relied upon, the instrument may be of great value in the world of geological science.

The variometer does not determine the ore or pools of oil. It does not possess such exact information as the "doodle bug" man professed to have in his crocheted stick, but, providing the resistance variometer makes good, it will be possible to determine the depths of certain rock formations. Knowing the depth of these formations, it is possible to deduct whether or not geological conditions are favorable for oil or gas.

The new device is very simple in structure. It may readily be transported in a light automobile, another feature that fits it for use in almost any region. Many "bugs" or frailties of its structure have been eliminated through study during the past winter season. With the coming of spring, a party will be sent into the localities, for experimental work, where oil and gas-bearing structures have been accurately determined by many drill holes and wells. The instrument will be carefully checked against this knowledge for possible discrepancies. It was planned to carry on work in the field during the winter months but the men interested in the development discovered that they could not sink their steel pins through the frost readily and this handicapped their efforts.

Macomb Bankers Form $150,000 Trust Company

Organization of the Macomb Trust Company, with offices in Mt. Clemens, for the purpose of doing a trust business and for the improvement of financing conditions in Macomb county without recourse to outside bankers, has been announced by Charles G. Niemetta, president of the new company. The trust company will be controlled by bankers of the county, will have a capital of $150,000 and a surplus of $50,000.

The charter application for the new concern has been signed by the following Macomb county bankers: C. G. Niemetta, director of the Ullrich Savings Bank, Mt. Clemens, and president of the Niemetta hotel system in Detroit; Henry E. Beecher, vice president of the Citizens Savings Bank, New Baltimore; Henry O. Chapoton, president of the Mt. Clemens Savings Bank; H. J. McGill, vice president of the Citizens Savings Bank, Mt. Clemens; Harry Diehl, vice president of the First National Bank of Mt. Clemens; Spencer Dalby, vice president of the Ullrich Savings Bank, Mt. Clemens; and Mt. Clemens executive consists of Chapoton.

Candy for Mother's Day

The Lowney Candy Co. are putting up Special Boxes of candy for Mothers Day. We will soon see in an order. If you wish to get a box of this special candy you should get your order in now. The Lowney Candies are the standard for excellence and can't greater than the growth in the state's population during the same period, as shown by the fact that the prisoners received from the courts in 1927 numbered 78.2 per 100,000 of population, as compared with 19.9 in 1910. The number of prisoners received from courts and also the ratio of such prisoners to the general population increased steadily from 1910 to 1927.

The number of prisoners confined in the Michigan state penal institutions on January 1, 1928, was 6,338, as compared with 1,596 on January 1, 1910; and the ratio of such prisoners per 100,000 of general population increased from 56.8 on January 1, 1910, to 139.4 on January 1, 1928.

These statistics for Michigan represent only male prisoners, since the female prisoners of the state are confined in the Detroit (municipal) House of Correction.

Work on Mt. Clemens Bridge Again Starts

Construction of the new $150,000 seven-span bridge over the Clinton river to carry Jefferson avenue as a through route north to the New Baltimore and Marine City roads, has been hastened in view of the break-up of the ice jam in the river this week.

Three of the five river piers are partially constructed, steel is on the ground for the superstructure, and a quarter mile fill from the South River road, where Jefferson now comes in, to the bridge has been completed.

The new span is expected to be completed for the summer resort traffic.

CHARLOTTE'S GAS PLANT TO CLOSE

Plans for the construction of a new high pressure transmission gas main from Mason to Charlotte by way of Eaton Rapids are announced by the Consumers Power Co. This will be the company's principal item of gas construction outside of Lansing in connection with the expenditure of nearly three-quarters of a million dollars provided for work in the Lansing district, which is a portion of the $18,000,000 in appropriations made by the company for construction and improvement work in Michigan.

When the gas main is built from Mason to Charlotte the gas plant in this city will be closed, as Charlotte then will receive its gas supply by way of Mason, reversing the present system of supplying Eaton Rapids with its gas from the plant here. The route by way of Eaton Rapids was chosen chiefly to permit of the installation of a new main between that city and Charlotte. The present main connects

UPPER MICHIGAN PLAYGROUND FOR WEALTHY PEOPLE

The imagination is immediately captivated with the picture realtors paint of the future of the upper peninsula of Michigan as a resort and tourist paradise.

This expanse of nature's wonderland has inevitably become one of the last frontiers of development for recreational purposes; not because of limited attractions, but because humanity follows the course of least resistance, and has turned in play as in work to the most convenient localities. These have been the scenic attractions nearest home.

By no means can the upper peninsula be referred to as a virgin field, but for all practical purposes it might be. Whereas development agencies are looking toward a semi-saturation point in the lower peninsula, they are only now turning to view the more northern expanse as a commercial playground. Certainly there is no dearth of the choicest sites for any kind of development that may be thought of—and at prices commensurately favorable to the pioneer.

The upper peninsula must primarily be a rich man's playground. It is too far for week-ending, hence cannot become a popular playground of the mass of people, with their moderate incomes. It may be traversed by thousands, but it will be developed by the men who can afford to own summer homes and develop large acreages for a few weeks of pleasant seclusion during the year.

Those who can afford seclusion keep pushing outward, and Michigan's upper peninsula is one of the last places to push to. It borders to the north on Lake Superior—largest of the five Great Lakes. It invites exclusive hunting clubs on an extravagant scale; motor launches (not motorboats); it is readily accessible to Isle Royale, often described as the greatest unexplored scenic attraction in America; it is accessible—but not too accessible—by boat and by auto, yet it has few railroads and scarcely any industries. It is near the wilds of northern Wisconsin and southern Ontario, with their limitless canoeing and exploring possibilities.

The upper peninsula needs development, since mining has waned and timbering has vanished. Perhaps its greatest potential value is its lakes, its rolling mountains, and its verdant setting.

Although commercially "timbered out," the upper peninsula still has verdure in abundance, and just those forest settings which the out of doors vacationer dearly loves. Its isolation sparse population are tourist attractions.

In this day when millionaires abound the country over; when people develop more and more yearning for isolated beauty spots in which to spend their summers; when fast motor cars and airplanes bring the world's ends to the door of the wealthy; in such a day it cannot be long until development of an Eden like the upper peninsula on an extensive scale is consummated. That development is now taking place more rapidly than many realize and realtors confidently predict that within another decade this outpost of natural grandeur will be one of the great commercial assets of the land "beyond the Straits."

Holland Carp Fishing Again Proves Costly

Carp fishing operations, which were transferred from Black lake to the river some time ago, have been returned to Pine Creek bay. Two tons of sheep head and one-half ton of carp were lifted in the net Friday, besides a large amount of game fish that was returned to the water.

The experiment of seining for carp in the river was costly as the big net was badly torn by coming in contact with submerged snags. The season has been unsuccessful as compared with last year.

Pet Crow Comes Home After Long Absence

A pet crow belonging to a St. Joseph woman recently returned home after an absence of four years during which nothing is known of its whereabouts.

The crow had been a pet in the family for many years but finally was banished and turned out in the world to shift for itself as a result of its mischievous habits.

A short time ago the bird returned and when its name was called it strutted up to its mistress and accepted some scraps of meat she offered it.

DETROIT FASTEST GROWING CITY

"Detroit is recognized today as the fastest growing city in the world," Harry M. Seldon, president of the Detroit Real Estate board, said in an address recently. "Indications are this expansion will continue. An industrial city quickly reflects general prosperity. Detroit grows more in two weeks than Cincinnati in a year and as much in a month as Pittsburgh in a year. It is growing as much, if not more, than Chicago, two-thirds as fast as New York, twice as fast as Philadelphia, Cleveland or Los Angeles. Detroit's past record guarantees her future growth when we consider that she has tripled in population each 25 years and increased 10 times in population while increasing only six-fold in area.

"When you buy a lot be sure that you get into a restricted area and one near transportation. Your lot must have sewer, water, sidewalk and electricity before you can get a loan from a bank or loan company to build. Like any other investment, this requires sound counsel and advice. It requires the touch of men and organizations who know fundamentals and understand values, who recognize trends and indications. This is the job of any member of the Detroit Real Estate board. He knows real estate in all its phases. He knows what is happening to affect values. He knows developments. He is a member of the National Real Estate association and subscribes to its well-established code of ethics which absolutely protects the purchaser against any misrepresented purchase or unscrupulous deal, and it condemns the use of all free-lot schemes. It is my hope that the unscrupulous real estate broker will become as scarce as the quack doctor.

"If you find the property you purchased is not up to the specifications under which it was sold to you and you will report that to the secretary of any real estate board affiliated with the national association, I am sure the matter will be corrected. When you think of buying a piece of real estate, go to the most reliable realtor you know. Make sure that he is a member in good standing. If you will do this, you will find yourself better satisfied and will save yourself money besides.

"The rapid transit plan is the most important project that has come before us since the electric car supplanted the horse car." Mr. Seldon said in conclusion, "Detroit needs this now and owes it to the men who are working in our plants all over the city."

Joe: "I'll play you a game of ball."
Joe: "I can't. I have to work in the garden."

His Early Struggles
Reporter: "Tell me, Mr. Success, of your early struggles."
Mr. Success: "Well, my mother says they were terrible when she wanted to scrub my ears."

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drugstore has the genuine, prescription product.

A new Reo Flying Cloud the Mate

Different, but not too different—the requisite of good fashion. Reo is readily distinguished from all other cars by its distinctive new wave line that accentuates the graceful contour of the fore-fenders. A motish car, well proportioned, built for swift motion. And, of course, the same fine car, mechanically that Reo has always been. Now you can have a Reo Flying Cloud at a lower price than ever before.

BIRTHDAY SUPRISE

The Junior and Senior class held a party last Thursday evening in honor of the birthday of Supt. J. P. Doyle. A fine evening of pleasure was spent and refreshments were served. Besides the two classes the teachers were present.

THE PUBLIC SQUARE

The degree in the public square case was filed for record Nov. 14th. The defendants will be allowed 45 days from that date in which to appeal or move for a new trial. The degree carries with it a writ of possession, so if no appeal is taken the sheriff will be expected to put the plaintiffs in possession at the expiration of forty-days. Dispatch of Nov. 23, 1883.

The defendants in the "Public Square" case have been granted an extension of time to Feb. 10 in which to appeal their case. In the meantime they must have all the testimony copied or drop the case. Dispatch of Jan. 10, 1884.

The Public Square case came up before Judge Newton at Howell Tuesday on motion of Messrs. Bullock, Havens and Pearson to set aside the degree on account of irregularities. The Judge denied the motion, affirming his decision. The plaintiffs will now attempt to take possession. From the Dispatch of April 17 1884.

Sheriff Axtell was in town yesterday to take possession of the public square for the township of Putnam.

The "public square" case has reached a conclusion, so far as the courts are concerned, the defendants Bullock, Havens and Pearson, having finally (after all means of procrastination were exhausted) given up, and acknowledged possession of the plaintiffs, without forcible ejection. We have no need to add, to and no reason to recall any words of censure this paper has spoken in the past. The defendants have suffered the consequences of defeat at every step and have won only contempt of honest people, and the severe censure of the court. In no case that has come before him since he sat on the Livingston County bench has Judge Newton won more esteem than by his admirable discretion in recognizing principles of equity and rebuking deceit and fraud. And now that the matter has been settled as far as the court can do it, we hope no time may be lost in unnecessary delay, but that the matter may be brought at once before the people and settled so as to put the question of title at rest. We think we can safely say that the future of the village depends largely upon prompt action in this matter. As to the means for replacing the square in possession of the village we shall have more to say next week. Dispatch, April 24, 1884.

The final settlement of the Pinckney public square matter is at last within reach of the people of the township. The title of the property has been conveyed by warranty deed from the Kirkland heirs through another party to a syndicate of eight persons, who furnished means to contest the title in the courts. This deed is now on record in the register's office. There is, however, in the hands of James Marble, supervisor of the township, a contract by which it is agreed that the township of Putnam may regain possession of the property in question on payment of the expenses incurred in the litigation incident to its recovery. If the township votes to purchase from these parties it will effect an immediate and final settlement. Should it fail to do so, the property must remain in its present condition for at least two years to come, with possible if not probable litigation to follow even that period. Nothing that has ever occurred has been so great an injury to the village as the unfortunate litigation which has put the title of the square in question during the past year. The township at large is responsible in a measure for the misfortune occasioned by its neglect to improve and make good the title to property which was set apart for its use. And we feel that the people of the township are under some obligation to remove this obstructor which endangers future prosperity of the village. While the expense may seem large to some it will be trifling when spread over a valuation of nearly a million dollars taxable property. The building now on the ground is worth the amount involved. Its use by the village, (for which it would pay rent to the township) together with its proper use for township purposes would pay interest on the investment. What is for the interest of every farmer in the township. You have paid thousands of dollars to secure a railroad so as to build up a market town. Will you throw away all the advantages you thus hoped to secure by crushing out the life of the village through means of this public square matter, which stands as "a dog in the manger" to prevent any substantial improvement by the doubt it casts upon the availability of other locations which might be used for business purposes. If the square could be appropriated to private use and sold off for building lots, that would change the condition of affairs somewhat, but however desirable such disposition of the matter might seem it is impossible. The only immediate settlement of the matter that can be made is for the township to purchase it. A petition has been presented to the Township Board asking them to call a special election for the purpose of accepting or rejecting the contract mentioned. We have no doubt the board will order such election, and we hope every voter in the township will carefully consider the matter in all its bearings. There are many features of the question we have not space to notice this week, but will call attention to in future issues.

On motion of Hiram R. Smith, attorney for plaintiffs, it is ordered that the appearance of the said defendants,
