JUNIORS BRANCH ORGANIZED PUTNAM SCHOOL DIST. NO. 10

At a meeting held at the Congregational Parsonage Friday afternoon a Junior Circle of the King's Daughters was organized with Mrs. Ben White and Mrs. W. H. Gardner as sponsors. The following officers were elected: President Constance Darrow; Vice Pres. Virginia Darrow; Sec'y. Betty Clinton; Treas. Elizabeth Aschenbrenner. This circle will collaborate with the Pinckney King's Daughters and carry on the same activities.

TO GET STATE AID

Director Irving Kennedy of the Pinckney school board received word from School Commissioner Alma Sharpe that this school district was one of those districts listed to receive additional financial aid from the state if the measure appropriating two million dollars for the aid of the poorer school districts passed the Senate and indications were that it would become a law. It was primarily intended for the relief of the cut over counties of northern Michigan.

BASE BALL TEAM ORGANIZED

A meeting was held at the Dispatch Office last Wednesday evening for the purpose of organizing an independent base ball team for the season. Frank Bowers of the Michigamme Oil Company was present and stated that the oil company would buy the suits but the team must agree to play a full season. The suits will be gray with blue letters. The team will be known as the Pinckney-Michigamme team. Thirty people were present and considerable enthusiasm was manifested. J. P. Doyle was named team manager, Dallas Cox, captain, and P. V. Curlett secretary-treasurer. It is expected that the first game will be played the first week in May, if the weather permits. The grounds will be put in first class shape, more seats built and fence put up. It is planned to use all home players as much as possible as hired players have been found bad for the team's moral. There is nothing that does as much to advertise a town during the summer months as a good base ball team. Pinckney for years was known for its good teams but like a great many of towns it suffered a slump here and there and found it hard to come back. However this year with new uniforms and incentive the boys are determined to put Pinckney on the base ball map once more if possible along with Dexter, Albion, and other famous teams. So all fans should be in readiness for the opening game which will probably be with Howell about May 5.

SCHOOL NOTES

Pinckney's representatives in the Oratorical and Declamatory contests appeared well last Friday. The following schools were represented, Ann Arbor Senior H. S., Ann Arbor Junior H. S., Central H. S., Ypsilanti, Fowlerville, Manchester, Chelsea, Milan, Howell and Pinckney.

One of the three judges awarded Pinckney first place in Oratory.

Pinckney's representatives Marion Derkis and Alice Gearhart were awarded dictionaries for their efforts.

The High School students are working hard on their annual play which they will present in the near future.

Pinckney defeated Hartland by a score of 6 to 3 Monday afternoon. Friday afternoon the Fowlerville team comes to Pinckney.

The pictures of the sixty outstanding High School Debating teams of the state will be published in the Detroit Free Press Sunday April 21. Pinckney's team composed of Helene Fielder, Wilhelmina Bourbons and Marion Derkis is to have this honor.

CHURCH NOTES

Sunday morning and evening Evangelist W. E. Lytle spoke in a general way to those present. He informed the people that he did not come here to club them but to help them see the way, the truth and the life. Those who missed the Monday evening service lost the opportunity of hearing one of the best sermons ever preached in this town on John 3:3.

Meetings every evening at 7:30 until further notice, in the Community Cong. Church.

Every one invited, this means you.

DAIRY FARMERS TO MEET TO SHAKE UP THE MILK BUSINESS

A meeting will be held in the court house at Howell Mich. at 1:30 Saturday April 20 for a general discussion on how to improve the milk business and make it more profitable to the dairy farmer.

Real farmers from Monroe, Washtenaw and Wayne County will be present to give their view.

Farmers residing in Livingston County and close by that would be glad to get a better price, than they now receive for their milk are all invited to attend this meeting.

Such deep and open discussion on the cost of production and marketing milk was never before presented to farmers of this vicinity.

Farmers who do not take time to attend such a meeting should not complain about present prices.

Farmers sponsoring this meeting are:

PINCKNEY TO HAVE A BAND

Unless plans miscarry Pinckney for the first time in many years will have a band. Practise has already started and the weird sounds that have disturbed the tranquility of this peaceful village are the beginners trying to master the intricacies of the different instruments. The Misses Iseler will act as instructors. The pupils will be taught individually at first and later on as a class. Those who have signed up as members of the band are Harry Murphy, M. E. Darrow, Henry and Marvin Shirey, Clare and Norman Miller, D. W. Cox, Andrew and Merwin Campbell, J. C. Bowman, Roy Reason, Mylo Kettler, C. W. Hooker, Glen Slayton and Cecil Hendee. Later when the boys have become more proficient, they will be joined by some of the old band men of this section.

SEELEY HARGER

Seeley Harger, aged 71 years died at his home near Williamson, Thursday after a short illness. He was a resident of Pinckney for several years, moving from here to Fenton about two years ago. He later moved to Williamson. The funeral was held from the home Saturday at 2:00 p.m., Rev. J. V. Cook of Athens officiating. Burial was in the Foote cemetery near there.

PHILATHEA CLASS MEETING

The Philathea Class of Congregational S. S. was pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Russell Bokros on Wednesday P. M. April 10. Following the devotional and business session, Miss Clella Fish read the Philathea constitution which was adopted by an unanimous vote of the class. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in various guessing games which were enjoyed by all. Mrs. Gladys Lee, Mrs. Millie Bowman and Mrs. Esic winning the prizes. A pot luck supper was served to about twenty-five people.

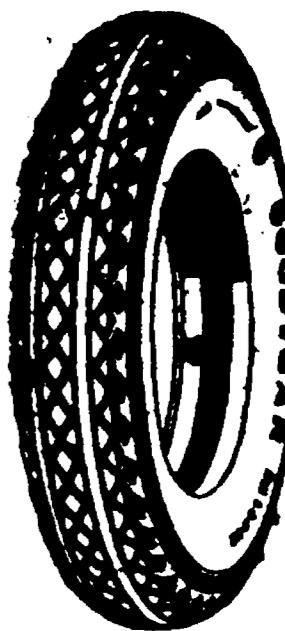

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Mae Daller in Howell May 8.

TO OPEN SEASON HERE MAY 5

The Pinckney-Michigamme base ball team will open the season at Pinckney May 5, with the Howell team. The new uniforms are expected to be ordered this week so as to be here in time for the opening game. About $100 has been collected on a subscription list. This will be used to buy equipment with and put the grounds in first class shape. The team held a practise meet Sunday for the first time. During the season they will practise Wednesday and Friday nights at 7:00 p.m. All those wishing to play are invited to attend these workouts.

The team will practise next Sunday at 3:00 p.m.

CADILLAC TO STAGE FIRST PAGEANT JULY 4

The first historical pageant ever to be held in northern Michigan, so far as can be ascertained, will be a feature of the celebration of the Fourth of July in Cadillac this year.

The celebration will be sponsored by the American Legion, but the pageant is being arranged by a coalition committee including representatives of all civic and patriotic organizations.

The idea of the pageant originated with Postmaster Perry F. Powers, who is the author of a volume of history on northern Michigan. He is a pioneer newspaperman of this region and well acquainted with the legends and lore of the district.

Cadillac has a wealth of material for a pageant depicting the evolution of the city from a tract of timber to a community of industry and wealth.

The origin of the name of the city will furnish an opportunity for the symbolic presentation of incidents in the early history of the state. Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac, the famous French explorer, for whom the city was named, is closely identified with the settlement of the straits region and the city of Detroit. His activities will be pictured with fidelity to actual historical incidents.

The life of the Indians of the early days and their relations with the first settlers will be portrayed, as well as the great lumbering industry on which the original prosperity of the section was built.

There is planned a series of pantomimes depicting all the operations of the woods, closely paralleling the actual scenes of yesterday.

The origin of the Swedish colony will be pictured with many of the original participants taking roles in the reproduction of a migration that established a large Scandinavian colony in Cadillac.

Many of the original buildings will be reproduced either in miniature or on scenic canvas.

The pageant will be produced by 100 characters for three consecutive evenings.

Crystal Lake Camp Site For Illinois Scouts

To Resume Study of German in St. Joseph

Another boys' camp has been located near Fremont, the DuPage, Ill., council of Boy Scouts having purchased a tract of 50 acres located on the south side of Crystal lake from Oren Mayo. The property is a beautiful wooded spot with about 600 feet of shore line.

John F. Conley, scout executive of the council, which includes organizations in six communities in that country, states his organization plans on building 12 cabins and a dining hall this year. The camp will be added to each season until the maximum facilities are obtained.

This is the second boys' camp to locate near here in the past three years. Camp Echo, the camp of the Evanston, Ill., Y. M. C. A., is located on Long lake, a short distance from the new location.

New Home for Olivet Freshmen

Moving day for freshmen of Olivet college. They have gathered their goods and chattels from private homes and moved into the new dormitory for men.

The new dormitory is of modern construction with up-to-date equipment and furnishings. It will house about 100 men. In it are guest rooms, infirmary, baths and showers on each of the three floors besides a large club room on the first floor. All freshmen are to room in the dormitory by decree of the college.

Formal dedication will be held during the June commencement.

Poems That Live

THE RONDEAU

You bid me try, Blue Eyes, to write A Rondeau. What! Forthwith?—To night?

Reflect. Some skill I have, 'tis true;

But thirteen lines!—and rhymed on two!

"Refrain," as well. Ah, hapless plight!

Still, there are five lines—ranged aright

These Gallic bonds, I swear, would fright

My easy Muse. They did till you—

You bid me try!

That makes them eight. The port's in sight:

'Tis all because your eyes are bright! Now just a pair to end in "oo."

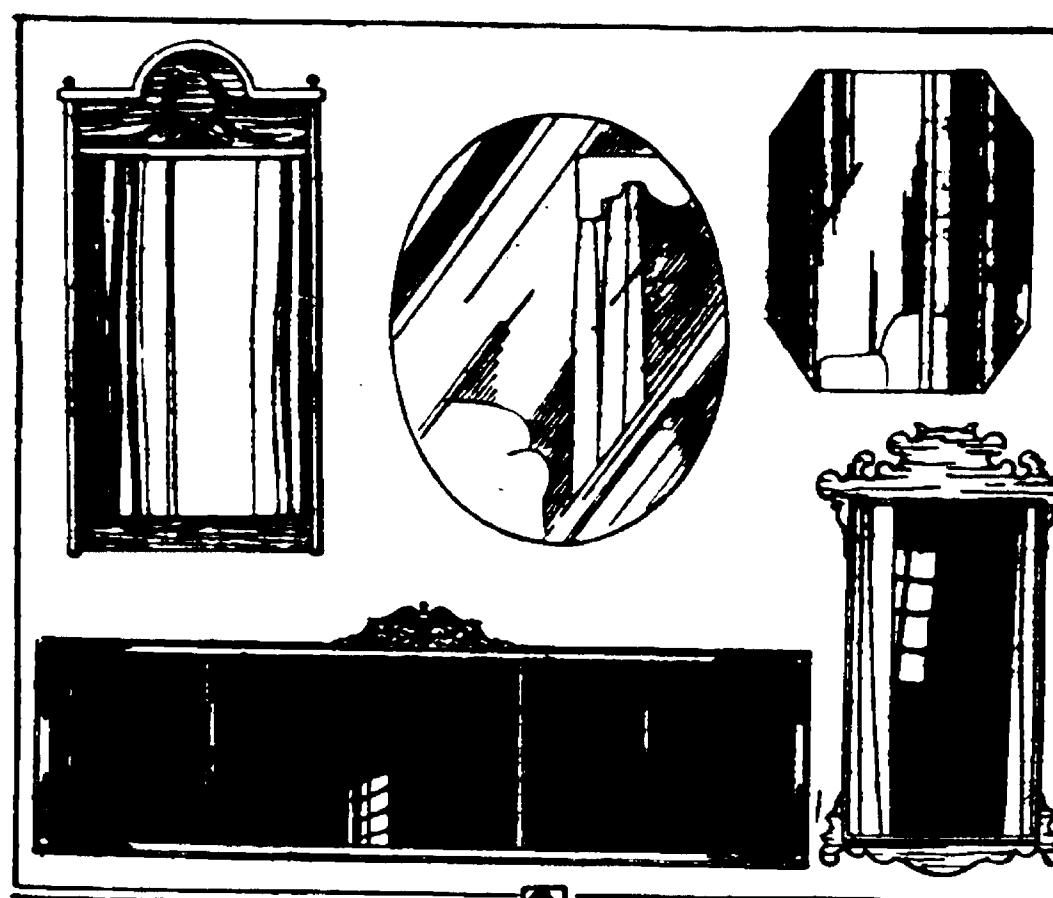

When maids command, what can't we do!

Behold!—the Rondeau, tasteful, light.

You bid me try!

After the French of Voiture by Austin Dobson (1840-1921)

Mirrors Reflect Taste

By HILDA HUNT

From living room to kitchen, the mirror invades every part of the home. Not on the walls only are mirrors the fashion of the moment in interior decorating. They are used as tops to tables and dressers and for fixtures of tiny corner shelves for the bath room. Of course one does not want too many mirrors in one room, but a mirror in every room is a great convenience, to say the least. It has its place in the scheme of interior decorating because it possesses both beauty and usefulness. As the interior decorator will tell you, a thing must be useful to be beautiful and beautiful to be useful. Otherwise it should be eliminated. We are even coloring the pots and pans in the kitchen to make them more presentable to our sense of the artistic.

The framed mirror is by no means out. It all depends upon the type of room—whether it is furnished in truly modern style or with early American or period furniture. The modern room usually calls for the unframed mirror flat against the wall, or flat on the table. The period or early American room calls for the framed mirror, although there are exceptions to both rules.

The oval mirror in the center of the sketch is especially adaptable to the draped dresser with a mirror top. With it should be used either small glass tree or flowering plant ornaments, or glass boudoir lamps with mirror bases with silk shades to match the color of the drape. This mirror is fastened flat against the wall with small inconspicuous glass top screws.

Modernistic Shape

If one prefers the more modernistic shaped mirror, that at the upper right will better suit the taste. Here the screws which fasten it to the wall are headed with small glass flowers. Either of these mirrors would also add charm to the living room or hall over the console table.

Two framed hall mirrors are shown at the upper left and lower right. These are suitable where the furniture is of period or early American type. That at the upper left would go best with period furniture, while that at the lower right would look best with the early American type. Both are framed in wood. Fruit wood is used for the frame on the first and mahogany for that on the second.

The mirror shown at the lower center was designed for a sideboard. It is practical for the long sideboard that has no back, and would go well with either early American or period furniture, or even in the more modern room where the furniture was not too strictly modernistic. A plainer frame, or no frame at all, would be better in the modernistic room, as in this type of furnishing no ornamentation at all is used.

Life-Saving Medals Are Presented to 17 Resuscitators

That special training in the saving of human life will earn its own reward is remarkably proved by the recent awards of the President's Medal of the National Safety Council for successful resuscitation.

A splendid example was the saving on Aug. 20, 1928, of the life of little Sallie Lou Arold, aged 2, of 817 Ferris Court, Kalamazoo, Mich. The child had disappeared and had been found in a lake, apparently drowned. But Hartsell, through 45 minutes of prone-pressure first aid work, in which he was skilled through company training, was able to revive her. About a year previously he had saved another life in similar manner.

Following are additional awards made:

Harry Faurot, 57 Kearney Ave., Kearney, N. J., for resuscitating Thomas Leddy, 65 1/2 Passaic St., Newark, N. J., on Nov. 2, 1928, from electric shock.

C. L. Quinn, 323 N. Mulberry St., Muncie, Ind., an electric company line foreman, for resuscitating Ray Lane, 203 Calvert St., Muncie, Ind., from electric shock.

Delbert Bussell, Pineville, Ky., for resuscitating on Aug. 14, 1928, Freeman, Lamb, Pineville, Ky., electric shock.

Fred J. Lockwood, 113-15 199 St., Hollis, Long Island, N. Y., on Dec. 7, 1928, for resuscitating Mrs. C. Kind, 117-15 199 St., Hollis, Long Island, from gas, after 45 minutes of prone-pressure work.

Harry Stevenson, Greenwood, Ind., on May 22, 1928, for resuscitating Richard Hood, 526 S. Alabama St., Indianapolis, Ind., electric shock.

A. Lovren, El Dorado, Kan., on Dec. 10, 1928, for resuscitating William H. Fankhouser, El Dorado, Kan., electric shock.

Charles Harvey Wood, 1116 King St., Wilmington, Del., on Aug. 29, 1928, trained in first aid with the local telephone company, was passing in his automobile, and stopped to resuscitate Raymond Mills, 622 E. Third St., Wilmington, Del., from gas inhalation.

Raymond Lee Carey, 22 Sixth Ave., Wilmington, Del., on July 1, 1928, also trained by the telephone company, resuscitated Ralph Hutchinson, 24 Sixth Ave., Wilmington, from gas asphyxiation.

Bachelor Degree Given 90 at Hope

Nearly 90 students of Hope college's 1929 class will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree at the annual commencement in June. The membership of the class represents 10 states, while the Michigan students are from 11 different cities and villages.

Among the seniors in the college is Miss Margaret Wilhelmina Otto, daughter of Mrs. John Otto. Mrs. Otto was one of the first two women to be graduated from the college, having obtained her degree in 1882. Miss Otto's grandfather, Rev. Philip Phelps, was Hope's first president. His term of office was from 1866 to 1868. Mrs. Otto's husband died several years ago while engaged in medical mission work in China.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

MENU HINT

Spanish Steak Browne Potatoes Creamed Asparagus Lettuce and Watercress Halved Grapefruits Coffee

The dinner menu is fairly heavy, so I have given you a light fruit dessert. The grapefruit may either be served in the shells as suggested, simply halved and the pulp loosened and sweetened to taste, or it may be taken out of the shell and served with orange sections in sherbet cups. Bananas may also be added.

Today's Recipe

Spanish Steak—Have one and one-half pounds round steak cut one inch thick. Dust with salt, pepper and flour. Fry until brown on both sides in a little fat. Add one sliced onion, one green pepper and one large tomato, fresh or canned. Continue frying until vegetables are partly cooked. Cover with boiling water and allow to simmer about two hours until tender. Thicken gravy and serve.

SUGGESTIONS

Paint the Rug

If you have a carpet or rug that is badly faded why not give it a new color?

Either use a very thin paint or dissolve a dye in cold water and add a little acetic acid to make the color fast, then apply it all over the carpet with a brush. Let dry for about a week, then give it another coat. Both coats should be thin so the paint will not soak through.

Faded Wiltons, velvets and Brussels carpets turned face down, then cleaned, painted (on wrong side) and varnished will look well and give long service.

A few drops of ammonia added to the water when washing pantry shelves will help to keep ants away, and a few drops sprinkled in the cupboard will keep moths away.

Sike Prof. I am dismissing you ten minutes earlier. Try not to wake the other class.

The World and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

IN NEW YORK

This is a typical story of the market. A friend of mine is a dealer in rare books. He was a salesman in a book store until a year ago, when he managed to borrow enough money to set up for himself.

He made money slowly, and put it back into the business, paying off loans. He has acquired a nice stock of books, but $3,500 was all the money he could actually call his own. Three months ago he said to me, "I'm not going to buy stocks in this Hoover market until prices retrace. When the shake-out comes, I'm going in with every cent I have, and I'm going to buy on the most liberal margin I can get. Then, when prices start soaring, watch me make my fortune!"

He waited until there was a sharp recession. One day I found him nervous, but happy.

"I've staked my wad," he said. "Every cent I had I put into the market today, on five good stocks. I put up only about 25 per cent of the price of the stocks, and I stand to make $30,000 in the next two months."

A week later he borrowed a few hundred dollars at his bank, and staked that, too.

The day of the big crash I met him late in the afternoon.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

CHESTNUT, BROWN AND BLACK

By Madame Rubinstein

The darker-haired women of the world have a fortunate gift in common—their hair is usually thicker and stronger than that of their blonde-haired sisters.

But dark hair—like blonde—requires painstaking care to keep it soft, shining and healthy. Where blondes are inclined to "fuss" with their hair to keep it light in color and fluffy, the brunette is more inclined to neglect hers. For this reason dark hair is less likely to be noticed for its color and beauty than the blonde.

Daughter of one of the oldest families of Spain, her grandfather one of its famous admirals, and married to the son of an equally historic European family, Countess Albani has lived in America since she was 3 years old. She was educated in a Long Island convent and the Horace Mann school of New York City, and received practically all of her musical training on Manhattan Island.

Young, vivacious, a typical daughter of Spain in appearance, and an independent, up-and-doing type of American girl in spirit, she is rapidly winning recognition as one of the foremost interpreters of Spanish and Latin American folk song, ballads and lyric poetry.

To take care of her varied interests, the president's wife, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, employs two secretaries, Miss Ruth Fessler and Miss Mildred Hall, one of whom accompanies her on all trips.

BANKERS IN NATIONAL MOVE FOR UNIFORM FINANCIAL PRACTICES

Would Promote Greater Consistency Among All the State Laws in Respect to Banking Conditions—Uniformity of Practice and Understanding Will Make for Greater Convenience, Efficiency and Safety for All Business.

By S. J. HIGH

State Bank Division-American Bankers Association

Under which banking is conducted in various parts of the country since they come from both state and federal authorities. The national banks are all chartered by the federal government and therefore operate on the same lines in every state of the Union, but there is no such regularity in respect to the conditions under which the state banks chartered by the respective forty-eight states must conduct their business. All state banking codes, while they have similarities, also have many great dissimilarities in respect both to the national bank laws and the banking laws covering state bank operations in other jurisdictions.

Bankers Move for Uniform Laws
The State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association, which latter includes in its membership banks of all descriptions throughout the country subject to all the variations of state and federal banking laws, is committed to the effort to bring about greater consistency and uniformity among the statutes of all these various jurisdictions. This body is conducting a vigorous nation-wide campaign urging that active steps be taken to secure greater co-operation in banking legislation, more equitable conditions and more uniformly efficient public supervision of banks in the several states.

The organization is particularly concerned with fostering this movement to bring about more uniformly desirable conditions throughout the United States in respect to the public supervision of banking institutions by the state banking departments. It is on record as favoring the policy that the important office of state bank commissioner should be kept as free from entangling partisan politics as the judiciary itself and should be completely detached from all other functions of state government.

It is also on record as favoring the policy that the tenure of office of state bank commissioners should be made more secure and lasting than is now the case in many state jurisdictions and that this important public officer be granted sufficient compensation and discretionary power so that the office shall attract and retain the services of men of outstanding executive ability and successful banking experience.

It is also part of this policy that the bank commissioner's ability to serve well should be strengthened by providing him with adequate forces of bank examiners, selected on the basis of merit from men having the requisite qualifications of honesty, ability, training and banking knowledge to carry out the duties of their offices on the highest plane of usefulness to the public as well as to banking.

The Trend of State Laws

The Association's State Bank Division has recently concluded a nationwide survey of state banking legislation and conditions and in general has discovered a definite trend along the following lines:

There is a distinct tendency among the states to raise the minimum capital required for banking institutions to $25,000 and also to give the bank commissioners or the banking boards sole power as to the granting of charters for new banks, thus enabling them to use discretion as to the need or desirability of added banking facilities or the fitness of the organizers to enter the banking field. In this connection many states are creating banking boards to act in an advisory capacity with the state bank commissioners.

There has also been observed a tendency to increase the compensation of the bank commissioners and to lengthen their terms of office and to give them power to appoint necessary deputies and examiners so as to build up an adequate force to carry out their responsibilities and duties. An important augmentation of the powers of

LEGISLATURE NEWS

Legislators are in gay mood and are "Making Whoopie," because they are glimpseing the beginning of the end of the session. The number of the last chapter had not yet been designated, but a conference committee recommended April 27, while more conservative members hope it can be made May 4; still others of the older heads predict May 11 at the earliest possible date. Long calendars are the daily program and the work is going through with a zest not hitherto exhibited during the session. The proposed eight mill tax passed the House this week and has gone to the Senate for its approval and the Senate proposal to appropriate two millions for the aid of the poorer school districts has been approved by the House. This is getting vexing questions partially settled and the budget appropriation bill will follow through probably without any more severe battles than are daily occurring in Mexico.

The Boyle egg standardizing bill was up for a hot discussion in the House Thursday afternoon and was the occasion for almost everything but eggs being thrown from all parts of the House. The bill, more or less mutilated by amendments, was finally placed upon third reading, as was the controversial garnishment bill. Probably neither will go through without more warfare when they make their appearance on third reading.

The income tax measure which passed the House last week is thought buried in the Senate. The bill is a peculiar one, good in some respects and bad in others. It is perhaps as well if it does not go through in its present form, but it is an offering wedge for a similar and perhaps a better measure for the next session.

A proposition to release the obligations to the state against the Union Memorial building at Michigan State College was brought out in the House this week. The building was erected by college alumni under pledges of financial aid, many of which have not been made good, and the income of the building is sufficient to cover interest and other fixed charges. Inasmuch as the building is an important unit at State college and is used extensively by the student body as well as by farm organizations and other citizens of the state, the request to have the indebtedness to the state cancelled meets with favor from many members of the legislature.

The Senate has passed the bill repealing the corn borer legislation 1927 and the corn borer regulations will become dead if the governor signs the bill, which had already been passed by the House.

In the Public Interest

Distinctly in the public interest are laws prohibiting or limiting an officer or director of a bank from borrowing from his own bank unless his collateral security is approved by a majority of the board of directors of the bank. Also there is recent legislation noted providing for closer supervision and regulation of building and loan associations, credit unions, finance companies and private banks.

In some states measures have been enacted broadening the field for investment of funds of savings banks and trust companies, which have materially enhanced the service that these institutions can render, particularly in the way of co-operation with their customers in personal financial management. Another type of legislation, important especially to banking in view of the frequent efforts to defraud banks, is that which makes the issuance of worthless checks a misdemeanor with specific penalties.

The State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association endorses in the fullest degree in principle the development of banking laws along the foregoing lines and is actively engaged in fostering the spread of such legislation wherever its services are considered useful both to banking and to the public. Uniformly sound banking institutions and practices, together with common methods and understanding, will materially add to the convenience, efficiency and safety of business in serving the well-being of the public in all parts of the nation, especially in those transactions involving dealings between different localities.

AMERICA LEADS THE WORLD IN SAVINGS

The past year saw the greatest gains in savings in a single twelve-month ever recorded in the United States, bringing the total savings deposits in banks to over $28,400,000,000 on June 30, 1928, held in more than 53,000 individual accounts, it is reported by the American Bankers Association. These are the biggest figures in this field shown by any country in the world.

These figures are indicative of prosperity more general than any time since the business depression of 1920, the report declares. Only three states failed to show a gain and the 1928 volume of savings constituted an increase of more than $3,27,000,000 above the 1927 figure. The gain per inhabitant for 1928 over 1927 was $17 and the gain in number of savings depositors was 2,496,078, an increase of 5.2% as against a growth in the population of the country of 1.2%.

The gain in savings per inhabitant in New England and the Middle Atlantic states over the previous year was $36. These groups of states, with 29.9% of the population of the United States and 52.8% of the total savings deposits, have the largest savings rate, $461 per inhabitant, of any area in the world.

The per capita savings for the United States as a whole this year stands at $237 as compared with $220 last year.

"An acre of alfalfa for every cow in Howard County, Iowa," is the slogan adopted by the county bankers association there after watching several hundred thousand dollars go out of their county last winter for feed.

duced by Rep. Sergeant authorizing closing of the plant.

Rep. Culver's whipping post bill has been reported out by the judiciary committee of the House and will be on the battle line next week. A similar bill was vetoed by Gov. Green two years ago.

Capital punishment makes its appearance on the floor of the Senate. The measure was reported out Wednesday afternoon. Under provisions of the bill as reported out by the judiciary committee, the matter, if passed by the Senate and House and signed by the governor, is to be voted upon by the people of the state at the November election. The measure is made a special order in the Senate Tuesday afternoon at 2:30.

The House decisively defeated Rep. McBride's bill providing for nomination of township officers by non-partisan caucuses. The vote was 65 to 63. Rep. MacRea's bill for compulsory automobile insurance was also defeated by referring it to the committee of judiciary, where it is thought to be buried. The vote was 18 to 71.

Senator Conlon proposes a bill inflicting a penalty of $5,000 fine and a prison term of ten years for any state official making away with $50 or more of public funds.

Compulsory grading of eggs and regulation of the baby chick industry are apparently due for hard sailing unless proponents of the measure rally additional support.

Rep. Nichols proposes yearly meetings of the legislature sessions to be limited to 100 days, in a bill introduced Wednesday. If approved, the measure will go to the people of the state on a referendum at the November election.

Rep. Claude Milliman of Bro Mountain sponsors a bill introduced Wednesday requiring all flight pilots to hold federal licenses and have federal approved equipment before flying in Michigan.

Rep. Feighner sponsors a bill which will define all legal notices by statute.

A bill was introduced Thursday by Rep. McEachron providing a salary of $2,500 per year for each member of the state administrative board. At present only three members of the board get the extra pay, those being the state treasurer, secretary of state and auditor general. The proposed bill would be also include the governor, highway commission, attorney general and superintendent of public instruction.

A proposition to tax motion picture films at motion picture theaters was submitted by Rep. Thompson, but was later shelved by referring back to the committee, where it will probably remain.

Investigation of the public safety commission is under way, but little accomplished up to date. The committee adjourned Tuesday evening, when the investigation might again be taken up.

Governor Green, who is the state Grand Rapids hospital director in that operation, will probably take the job Monday, and with both "rain" to go next week promises to be the big week of the year.

Speaker Ming said in the short of day morning to the legislative leaders we were not at the post of duty we measures which they had taken came up in general order of the day and arranged for the speaker to return in such cases their bills would be referred back to committee, which would usually mean their demise. More power to his feet.

WEEK OF APRIL 21

Moderately warm weather for this time of year is expected at the very beginning of the week of April 21. During Sunday and Monday we are expecting some storms of rain or snow which will be quickly followed by a marked change to much colder weather.

There is reason to believe that the cold coming out of the west and north at this time will bring ruination to any early crops growing in Michigan unless well protected by glass or other means of heat.

The middle days of this week will be generally fair and cold. About Thursday there will be a moderately rapid rising of the thermometer. This action of the elements will be a warning of the rain and wind storms to follow, which will affect Michigan during the closing days of the week.

The barometer in Michigan will reach a low point within 24 hours, centering on Friday, and much precipitation will fall in most parts of the state. The wind storms at this time will be severe and bordering on tornado characteristics.

Best Days This Week

For fishing: April 24 and 25. For baking: April 21, 22 and 23. Set fowls: All week. Set ducks, geese and turkeys: April 21, 22 and 23.

Society Matron: "When a tooth has been extracted, why does the hole feel so large to one's tongue?" Dr. Victor: "It must be the tongue's natural tendency to exaggerate, madam."

Robert: "I guess daddy's right when he says a woman can't keep a thing to herself."

Japanese Giant Radish

This is the great Sakurajima Radish from Japan. The largest radish grown, often attaining the enormous weight of 16 pounds and sometimes 20 or 30 pounds. It is a real novelty to most Americans, and the taste will immediately convince anyone of the fact that it is not merely a curious radish, but an extraordinary quality. The flesh is solid, firm and brittle, and of most excellent flavor. It will grow and thrive in any soil or climate. This is a radish that can be planted in the spring and fall, and the roots can also be kept through the winter, as they are in the late fall and buried in a box of dry sand in the cellar. As a summer radish it is a wonder, and it will grow and thrive when it is so hot and dry that common radishes would fail. If you will try the Sakurajima Radish and you will be surprised at the real value of this monstrous variety. Send for package of the seed today before it is all gone. Package, 10c; 3 packages, 25c; by mail, postpaid. Address Novelty Garden Club, 58 Market St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Are You Ready?

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what may experienced nurses would do—what most physicians would tell you to do: give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

JACK and JILL

By CLIFFORD WEBB

(Copyright, 1928, the Central Press Association, Inc.)

CHAPTER XXXIII

"Listen, Tony," said Jill, when the girls had gone to their rooms to dress for dinner, leaving her brother, Jack, and herself in her room, "I'm gonna give you a scolding."

"Shoot," said Tony, spreading out his chest. "I can stand for anything once."

"You know as well as I do," she proceeded forthwith, "that to make a success of this venture we've got to travel a straight and narrow course. Cocktails and Black Bottom don't associate with each other on congenial terms. You'll recall what th' manager said today:

"I don't want any hooch-hounds in my employ," he told us. "Not even among his entertainers," he said. They won't stand for it, Tony!"

"Where d'yuh get that stuff, anyhow?" erupted Tony, waxing wroth and swelling up very like a poisoned pup. "Just because a cocktail makes your face red and your nose shiny you never drink any. So you want to regulate things for other people. You just watch your own step, sister! I'll keep an eye on mine!"

"That's my advice, also, Jill," vouchsafed Jack, with quick forethought, lest she take the notion to include him in her scolding. "A man may do many things a woman can't do, and get away with it. Just see to it that your own foot doesn't slip!"

Before Jack's return to Elliston

Tony had proven the truth of his brother-in-law's original remark that "a man may do many things a woman can't do."

It was because of some of the things a woman could do, however, that Master Tony didn't lose his dancing job, even before he had started working at it. A woman could humble herself before a cafe manager, and plead that a weak brother be given another chance. That had been Jill's privilege their first night in Pittsburgh.

She had observed, during the dinner, that Tony and Jack were more than ordinarily exuberant. At 10:30 the manager came to her room. Four of the girls, Mike, Billie, Ann and Amity were with her.

"I'm very sorry, Mrs. Stuart," said the manager, addressing her from just inside the door, "but I'm afraid we shall have to cancel our contract. There is a clause in it, as I pointed out to your brother and you, regarding alcohol. I will not tolerate drinking among my employees, servants or entertainers. Your brother is down in the Palm room now, but I shall not permit him to go on the floor. He has been drinking."

Jill had no difficulty in finding Tony, Jack and he, surrounded by a coterie of young hoopers and flappers, with Nita Ravelle and the professor looking on and applauding discreetly, were holding forth on the merits and demerits of various famous dancers.

Jill, with feeling better imagined than described, managed finally, with Mike's aid, in coaxing Tony into another room. Jill told herself that Jack was responsible for Tony's condition—that he didn't want her to go through with the dancing contract. In this respect, however, she wronged Jack. He had really tried to keep Tony from drinking with the hoopers and flappers, and in the effort had been drawn into drinking himself.

Mike and Jill finally succeeded in convincing the manager that Tony would be all right if allowed to go on the floor.

"But not again!" the manager warned them. "Liquor is one thing I will not permit among my employees. Its use I cannot prevent among my guests, but I can prevent it among those who work for me, whether it is in a menial capacity or as entertainers."

Instead of gratitude to Jill for saving the situation, Tony's manner indicated a feeling of resentment on his part.

"I suppose you feel better now," he said, grumpily, when they had been on the floor half an hour and were taking a short rest.

"You showed me up properly before Mike Sweeney," he went on, irritably, "bringing her in there th' way you did."

Jill felt sorry for him, just as she was eternally feeling sorry for others, and occasionally for herself. Hers was a big, generous heart that ached at the sight of suffering, no matter who the sufferer might be, as in the case of Amity Smythe, when Mike "cut" her.

So it was now. Tony had "got himself in bad" by drinking. She had humiliated herself by interceding and saving his job for him. In return, instead of a manly apology and thanking her, he was accusing her of a meanness, the nature of which he knew she was incapable. And yet, when she saw that he was suffering, even though it was his own fault, she straightway forgave him his surly injustice and felt sorry for him. It must have been of such a woman that Crabbe wrote:

"Man may be the sterner virtues know,
Determined justice, truth severe,
But female hearts with pity glow,
And woman holds affliction dear;
For guiltless woes her sorrows flow,
And suffering vice compels her tear;
'Tis hers to soothe the ill below,
And bid Life's fairer views appear!"

The "sterner virtues of determined justice," as mentioned in the preceding lines, would have sanctioned the telling of Jill's kid brother, just what a selfish, ungrateful cad he was. Instead, she had only pity for him now, in his moment of suffering.

"It's tough, old dear, I know," she sympathized with him in his whimpering. "But just keep a stiff upper lip."

"Yeh-ah," came the irritable retort, "it's easy 'nough for you to say

"keep a stiff upper lip, it don't cost anything—advice don't!"

Then the contemptible unfairness, the unmitigated selfishness embodied in his disgruntled reproaches, must have combined to bring him to something like a realization of the truth. This was indicated a moment later, when he spoke again.

"Forgive me, Jill, old scout!" he grunted huskily in her ear as she glided across the floor. "I'm a darned rotter, talking to you in this way. But honest, I feel so mean I want to bite myself. Forget it, Sis—if you can!"

In a commodiously furnished apartment on the fourth floor of the Alphcreston hotel, two persons, a man and a woman, sat in deep-cushioned chairs drawn up in friendly tête-à-tête. There was a humidor of cigarettes. Sociability marked the setting of the scene. But underneath the casual surface of things lurked the makings of a tragedy.

In the liquid depths of the woman's from the stiffness of her knees that she must have been standing in the one position for many minutes.

She, too, felt the craving for a stimulant, the stimulant of a love that had grown into every crevice of her heart and soul, into every fibre of her vibrant young body—a stimulant that hypnotized her thoughts. She knew how this was being denied her after four years and more of daily assimilation.

It had become to her the complete analogy of a habit-forming drug, this love that had been hers so long.

Who, or what had taken it from her? Was it another woman? or, was it—the curse of Easy Money?

Before the coming of the money Jack and she had been happy in each other's love, however hard the pinch of poverty had seemed. Their babies, their love—and their trust.

And now—what? From the very day the money was placed in the bank, life both of them had been just one endless job of pleasure seeking—a ceaseless battle for excitement. Where eyes, dark, brooding and inscrutable, lay a lazy sensuousness, the red emblem of danger, had the man but understood.

"Listen, Tony," said Jill, "I'm gonna give you a scolding!"

"Oh, you'll marry again some day, Nita," he laughed in response to her declaration as to matrimonial prospects. "As pretty a woman as you are can't escape for more than a year or so, even if she tries."

She shook her black-haired, boyish-headed head—beautiful head, as he had frequently noted.

"If I were foolish to marry again," she said, just the hint of a sardonic smile twisting her full, red lips, "I'd lose my steady, sure income of $12,000 a year. And it isn't every man, believe me—even if rich—who gives his wife a thousand dollars a month, just to spend on herself!"

"Granted," he said, helping himself to a cigaret from the ornate humidor.

one of the trifles she had brought along in her big leather bag, "but don't you consider that love is of more value in the last, the final summing-up of things in our chase for happiness, than is the acquirement of, or the spending of money?"

He believed he knew about the sort of answer she would make, and was nowise surprised at the accuracy of his surmise.

"Love—in a matrimonial cage—to a woman long accustomed to every luxury," she averred, studying him covertly, "is like a one-piece salad minus any dressing—utterly devoid of savor!"

"You say 'love in a matrimonial cage.' You believe in the sanctity and need of the marriage bond, don't you?"

"For the social protection of a woman, yes."

"Your husband was 60 years old. You didn't, of course, love him. Have you ever been in love, Nita?" he asked curiously.

CHAPTER XXXIV

Nita Ravelle laughed softly, but the slumberous passion that lay brooding in the depths of her hypnotic eyes glowed with life.

"Are you merely curious?" she queried, "or would you really like to know?"

"Both," he replied, frankly. "Other people's love stories always interest me. Yours, I think, would be of special interest!"

As their glances met he seemed to see, or perhaps he actually saw, the dull glow in her black eyes kindle, to brighten into a living flame that burned its way through the ether and into his very veins, running hot through his arteries. He felt himself rising to his feet.

In No. 264, on the second floor of the Alphcreston hotel, a woman stood before a cheval mirror, looking, apparently, at the exquisite figure reflected in the clear glass.

But she saw no reflection. Her eyes, perhaps, envisioned it, but her brain was not working in juxtaposition with her eyes. Her mind was visualizing a scene photographed on the brain's negative, a scene that had evolved itself out of the materials of her own logic and tabulated sociability. She couldn't envision that scene with her eyes, but she could visualize it on the lens in her mind.

Jill offered no comment on his explanation. She could have told him that Tony had stopped at her door on his way from Nita Ravelle's room, where he had left Jack and the professor. But she didn't. Nor did she mention that the professor had telephoned her shortly afterward from his own room "just to assure her that Jack would be right down." That was at 1 o'clock, she might have told him. But she didn't.

She just slipped quietly beneath the covers of the bed on which she had been sitting and closed her eyes. He spent some time under the shower, took a brisk rubdown, and then—so as not to disturb her, presumably crawled into the other bed.

The members of Mike's party—with the exception, of course, of Jill and Tony—departed shortly after 12 o'clock luncheon on Sunday for Elliston. They bade good-bye to the two "hoofers," who watched the departure through the plate glass window of the hotel lobby as the big limousine pulled away from the curb. A moment later it had disappeared in the mazy traffic of the narrow street in the city famous for its narrow streets.

It was a dully aching heart that Jill Stuart carried back up to her apartment on the second floor. She had observed the studied air of indifference that had marked the attitudes of Jack and Nita Ravelle toward each other. But they were poor actors, both of them, and overplayed their parts.

Days passed—as days will do, even in a small town like Elliston. Come Friday, and with it came Tony Justin, back to the home of his nativity, back to the town of tall smokestacks and glass-baking ovens.

But he came alone, did Tony. The partner of his sporadic "career" remained in the city of narrow streets, coal smoke and huge steel mills.

"But you say your contract is canceled," said Jack Stuart, who had been aroused from his "beauty" slumber at the early hour of 10 a.m. and was feeling none too sociable. Tony had come straight from the train to the Stuart apartments. Jack looked him over speculatively.

"Why didn't Jill come with you?" he wanted to know.

"Oh, I'm th' one that's let out," sniveled Tony, his manner indicating deep grievance.

"Jill has a new contract. And—" he added, his voice taking on an indigo tint—"a new dancing partner! Oh, yes—indeed!"

he went on quickly, in answer to his brother-in-law's inquiring look, "and I'm tellin' yuh plain, Jack, that I'm good an' sore at th' trick Jill turned. It looks a lot like th' thing was fixed!"

Be it noted, incidentally and here, that when Tony Justin became entirely sober and gave careful thought to the words he had uttered under the influence of drink and his "grievance," he tried to smooth out their effect on his sister's husband. He realized he had played the part of an utter cad.

"But—her partner" prompted Jack, an angry light beginning to glow in his eyes, "tell me—who is this partner?"

"Why, it's that Professor Le Tarte who else?" answered Tony, feeding his grievance with indignant recollection of the professor's quick adaptability and skill in stepping into his place.

"I was sick Tuesday night—unable to go on. Then what does Jill do but up and ask him to let her get another partner and—that's what she did; called up Le Tarte!"

CHAPTER XXXV

"And so he's her partner now, eh?"

The angry light in Jack Stuart's eye had grown into an ugly glitter. Never had he liked the professor from the hour of their first meeting, and now.

"I tell you, Jack, you're letting your wife make a fool of you!"

This was the consoling opinion, contemptuously given, that Jack Stuart obtained from Nita Ravelle that same afternoon. She was sitting cross-legged in one of his luxurious office chairs. Here was just a "sociable" call, and therefore they could discuss personal affairs without transgressing business ethics.

"I could have told you yesterday," she went on, in spite of resentment against his expression of faith in Jill, "that she had asked th' professor to join her in place of her brother. But you wouldn't have believed me!"

CURRENT COMMENT

A year or more ago a farmer living near Chelsea returning home Sunday evening discovered that during his absence someone had stolen 14 sheep from his flock. He informed the sheriff and the latter arrested Austin Easterale, a Grass Lake telegraph operator with the sheep in his possession, on US 12 between Chelsea and Ann Arbor. He claimed to have bought them from a person whose truck had broken down. He was tried for the theft of the sheep twice and both times the jury failed to agree. The value of the sheep was about $100 and his two trials cost Washtenaw county several thousand dollars and were devoid of results. In each case the weight of the evidence favored the people but the jury, which by the way contained several women, failed to agree.

A good many people do not like the present methods of judging high school debates, oratorical contests now in use. They are given a percentage on composition, delivery, platform, appearance etc. On account of this method the members of the fairer sex are favored for what boy can compete with a girl in appearance. However this does not hold true in life for W. J. Bryan and Clarence Darrow two of the best orators and debators in the world would have scored few points on appearance. In famous evolution trial in Tennessee, Darrow appeared coatless, in shirt sleeves, and suspenders and Bryan also appeared coatless wielding a huge palm leaf fan.

Capital punishment, that panacea and cure-all for all crime has at last forced itself out of committee and is due to be voted on in the state senate some time this week. We are of the opinion that the only fruits of this law, if passed and signed by the governor will be a great increase in the number of acquittals, disagreements and appeals to higher courts.

LEONE TEEPLE WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST

One of the most interesting oratorical contests in years was held at the High School Auditorium, at Howell Friday evening, April 12th. Eight high schools were represented—Ypsilanti, Pinckney, Chelsea, Milan, Fowlerville, Manchester, Ann Arbor and Howell. All the contestants did exceptionally well. Marion Derkis representing Pinckney spoke on the subject "War and Civilization." She handled the subject well and her delivery was pleasing and forceful. Fourth place was awarded to her. Alden Stowe, of the Fowlerville High School had as his subject, "Prohibition and American Youth." Mr. Stowe certainly deserves special mention and in the opinion of many should have had one of the honor places. He is a good speaker. He handled his subject in a pleasing, forceful and effective manner. Fowlerville High School will be proud of Mr. Stowe. We can safely trust the future of the country in the hands of such young men.

Miss Leona Teeple, of Howell High School, who won first place is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Teeple of Howell. Her subject was "World Peace." It is not often that one finds in a speaker a combination of the qualities possessed by Miss Teeple. Sweetness of disposition, graceful in manner, earnest of purpose and faith in the future, her personality reflected and fitted perfectly the subject which she chose. She portrayed with vivid contrast the horrors of war and the blessings of peace. Jealousy, suspicion, hatred, these exist among nations as well as individuals and form the seed from which war springs. The character of any nation always has been and always will be reflected by the character of its people. As individuals therefore should see to it that the clouds of greed, jealousy, suspicion and hatred are dissipated and the warm sunlight of love and toleration take their place. Toleration one to another and among all peoples is the basic principle upon which world peace depends.

These were the general thoughts in the winning oration. So skillfully was the subject handled and so well was it delivered that Miss Teeple received first place from two of the three judges. Howell High School, as well as Miss Teeple's friends and admirers, are proud of her and know that she will be an honor to her school and to the community she represents at the District Contest, the same being held at Ann Arbor May 3.

Second place was awarded to Edith Squiers, of Ypsilanti High School, who spoke on "Nathan Hale" American Patriot. Third place was given to Jeanette Nackel, of Chelsea High School, whose subject was "America at the Crossroads." The judges of the contest were Charles Forsythe, Lansing Central High School; A. G. Leonard of Pontiac and Supt. George Smith of Plymouth.

In the declamatory contest Pinckney was represented by Alice Gearhart. Her subject was "The Secret of Lincoln's Power." Her declamation was well rendered and received much favorable comment. First place was awarded to Mildred Cook of Mack High School, Ann Arbor whose subject was "American Infancy." Abe Zwerdling of Ann Arbor High School won second, taking for his subject "The Predatory Rich." Third was given Ida Sayles of Howell whose subject was "Toussaint L'Overture."

FOREST-FIRES

H. J. Andrews in charge of the forest fire division of the state department of conservation, takes occasion to warn against careless burning of right-of-ways or the setting of fires in dangerous areas during the next month or six weeks. With the snow rapidly disappearing from the ground and high winds to be expected, the early spring frequently makes for forest fire hazards. The fact that green stuff has not sufficiently developed in the woods is another reason why fires spread rapidly during the in-between-season period.

The first fire of the year has been reported. A man in Muskeon county thoughtlessly started a blaze that burned over two acres. The fire fighters were prepared, however, and kept it from becoming big blaze. The man who started it saw his mistake and paid all the damages.

Mr. Andrews points out that fires originating at this time of the year are usually started by local residents. The tourists have not commenced their annual pilgrimages at this stage of the game, and the hunter, unless he is violating the law, is not in the field.

The Pinckney grade boys have organized a team and are ready for games. They play Gregory this week and also wish to hear from other schools. Their lineup is as follows: M. Kennedy, p., H.
