LAST NUMBER ON PINCKNEY LECTURE COURSE To Be Presented Friday Evening, April 26

Lucile Elmore cousin of Fred Stone the comedian and a prominent member of the original Broadway cast of "Stepping Stones" is one of the star attractions of the entertainment world. "Attraction" is precisely the correct word to describe this very small, very "peggy," and very beautiful and entertaining young lady.

Miss Elmore and company will present a revue that depends for its appeal on cleverness and artistry rather than on dashing sensationalism. It is more on the order of Chaillot's Revue of London which toured this country for several seasons winning universal praise. It consists of a series of individual units monologues, characterizations, songs, — in short a few bright chapters out of musical comedy of the Fred Stone brand, clean, wholesome, with every bit of the suggestiveness and questionable features left out.

Group singing, solos, and close harmony duets of the Duncan Sisters typify about Miss Elmore impersonates all sorts of noted people does a perfect ventriloquism number with a big Sammy doll, gives with marvelous mimicry Chic Sale's Sermon on "Old Mother Hubbard" and other amusing impersonations, all in a great variety of make-up and beautiful costumes and all very appealing and unbelievably clever.

Jean Harper co-star with Miss Elmore possesses a very beautiful soprano voice sings exquisitely Spanish and Indian songs in costume, does a rag-doll dance in pantomime that is one of the big hits of the Revue, interprets certain Indian tribal ceremonials, and introduces other interesting and entertaining novelties.

Betty Postlethwaite is a pianist, singer, and all around entertainer, with a important part in the Revue. The Lucille Elmore Revue has been a sensational success wherever presented. There is nothing like it on the platform.

It will be presented at the Pinckney Community Hall Thursday evening April 26.

MRS. SARAH ANN REASON

Sarah A. Reason was born in Cambridge, England, and passed from this life April 18, 1929 at the age of 88 years.

She came to America at the age of 28 years and was united in marriage to George W. Reason in 1877 settling on a farm in Unadilla. Remaining here twelve years, they came to Pinckney where she resided in one house for 45 years.

To this union was born 5 children, George of Detroit, Mrs. Anna Grieve of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Josephine Harland (Deceased), Norman of Pinckney and Mrs. Harold Houston of Pontiac.

In the passing of Mrs. Reason Pinckney has lost one of its most respected and upright citizens who will be greatly missed by her many friends.

Following a prayer service at the daughters home in Pontiac at 10 a. m. Monday the body was taken to the home of Norman Reason at Pinckney where funeral services were held at 2 p. m. Burial was at Pinckney Sweet and evening star. And one clear call for me. And may there be no moaning at the bar. When I put out to sea.

JAMES CRUMBAUGH IS BOUND OVER

The adjourned hearing of James Crumbaugh of Lakeland on the charge of violating the prohibition law was held before Judge Yelland of Howell last week. The hearing developed the fact that the arrest was made on information furnished by 5 young men of Brighton, William Dillon, Howard Bridger, Howard McIntosh, Ernest Feilder, and John McIntosh, who are all employed by the Lumbar Products Co. of Brighton. The men stated that they had bought drinks there Sunday, March 17. The said Crumbaugh's place followed Feilder swearing out the search warrant. At the hearing Hiram Smith rousel for Crumbaugh presented affidavits from Dillon, Bridger and Howard McIntosh repudiating their former statements that they had bought drinks of Crumbaugh on March 17, and declaring that they had been in Brighton all day on that date. This was the only testimony presented. Judge Yelland overruled the motion to dismiss the case, stating that the matter of the repudiated affidavits was a question for the Circuit Court Judge to decide and bound Crumbaugh over to the Circuit court for trial to appear May 20. The testimony of Feilder and John McIntosh still stands. They were arrested March 17 for drunkenness and paid fines of $15 each in addition to 10 days in jail, being sentenced by Justice Collet of Brighton.

BIG BENEFIT DANCE

In order to raise the money with which to get instruments, the Pinckney band will give a dance at Met Chalmers' Dance Hall at Patterson Lake on Saturday evening April 27. Music will be furnished by the "Tunesters" of Ann Arbor. There will be dances for both old and young. The public is cordially invited to help the good cause along. There will be card playing for those who do not care to dance. Bill $1.00.

SENIOR PLAY "MR. BOBS"

To Be Presented at the Pinckney Community Hall Friday Eve, May 3

Mr. Bobs, is the name of the play to be presented by the Senior and Junior classes of the Pinckney High School this year. The date is Friday evening, May 3 and the place is the Pinckney Community Hall. It is a rollicking comedy and there is not a dull moment in it. The proceeds of this play are used for defraying the expenses of the graduating class and also for the athletic and debating teams. Reserve seats will be on sale at Barry's Drug Store.

M. S. C. ANNOUNCES HONOR STUDENTS

Students who captured scholastic honors in the various agriculture short courses conducted this winter at Michigan State College were announced recently by R. W. Tenny, short course director.

Weller Taylor of Lake City had the best scholastic record of all students enrolled in the second-year class of the two-year 16-week course in general agriculture. Henry Pangborn of Bad Axe was at the head of the first-year class.

In the eight weeks' general agriculture course, Maynard Webster of Williamston was first. Mrs. Louise Snyder of East Lansing won scholastic honors in the eight weeks' home economics short course. Charles Beal of Manitowish Beach was first in the dairy production course, while Paul Hansen, Battle Creek, had the highest record in dairy manufacturing.

Honors in the eight weeks' horticulture course went to Winsor Dunbar of Benton Harbor. Zbigniew Tomaszewski of Novi had the best record in the poultry short course, while John Ruesank, Adrian, was the high student in the eight weeks' agricultural engineering short course.

University Prexy Favors Goldfinch

The goldfinch has won the favor of Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the University of Michigan, as the bird best qualified to be state bird.

Points in the bird's favor, mentioned by President Little, are its speed and skill in flying, its beauty and song, its residence in all parts of the state during the whole year and its nest-building habits which permit close study of the bird and its young.

In connection with the Audubon society's contest for a state bird Muskegon school children have voted in favor of the robin, which received 1,226 votes of a total of 3,862. The bluebird was second with 483 votes.

Ferris Needs Cash to Complete New Edifice

With very little cash on hand, but with almost $200,000 pledged, construction work on Ferris Institute's new Alumni building is progressing.

Although the possibility of discontinuing the construction program because of lack of funds is very remote some anxiety is felt by the campaign committee. In fact, they have asked that the $40,000 subscribed by Big Rapids citizens be released at once. The remainder of the fund has been pledged by former Ferris students throughout the country. The drive for additional money continues.

Providing the Big Rapids pledge is turned into cash there is sufficient capital to pay for the new $12,000 structure.

Expect Three Hundred For Interlochen High School Orchestra Camp

The National High School Orchestra camp has crossed the halfway mark in its 1929 enrollment goal. Willis Pennington, secretary of the camp association, announced. The camp has signed 165 pupils and there is reason to believe the enrollment will reach 300. Joseph E. Maddy, director, is in the southwest selecting applicants and awarding scholarships. Last summer, in its first season, the camp enrolled 115 students.

Two small buildings will be built at the rear of the Interlochen bowl, one for a classroom and one to house the instruments. At least six more classrooms will be erected around the campus, it was said.

Dr. John S. Marshall of Syracuse university, will become head of the department of philosophy of Albion college next September. President John J. Seaton announces. Dr. Marshall succeeds Dean Robert Williams, who becomes president of Ohio Northern university.

Poems That Live

"VOICE OF THE WESTERN WIND"
Voice of the western wind
Thou singest from afar,
Rich with the music of a land
Where all my memories are:

But in thy song I only hear
The echo of a tone
That fell divinely on my ear
In days forever flown.

Star of the western sky!
Thou beamest from afar,
With luster caught from eyes I knew
Whose orbs were each a star;

But, oh, those orbs, too wildly bright—
No more eclipse thine own,
And never shall I find the light
Of days forever flown!

—Edmund C. Stedman (1833-1908)

Blue and Green Makes a Cool Color Scheme

By Hilda Hunt

Spring is here and it's house renovating time in hometown. The home needs its change to cooler interiors, less draperies, fewer ornaments and cooler colors, just as the family needs a change of raiment in keeping with the season. Green is about the coolest color one can find, and it certainly suggests spring and summer. Slip covers, if only placed on one or two pieces of furniture in the room, give an air of cool comfort rather than of preservation which would be the effect if every piece were covered. The sketch shows a living room, in a New York apartment, dressed for spring and summer. Large rugs have been replaced with small scatter rugs. Heavy drapes have been removed from the windows and glazed chintz hung in their place. The color scheme has been changed from the warm tones suitable for winter to the cool tones of the great outdoors.

The walls are painted a chalky blue like the sky on a fair spring day, as a background for the green tones of the draperies and upholstery. The side curtains and valance are of bottle green chintz with motifs shading from cream white to magenta. To tie up with these curtains the easy chair at the left and a sofa against the opposite wall, have been covered with slip covers of the same material and color. The magenta tone in the chintz is repeated in the lamp shades, which are of metal tinted magenta and blue. These metal lamp shades, to be meaning tin, as they are sometimes called, are quite le dernier cri just now with the modernistic trend. They are painted sky blue or pink, or any color one may choose, on the inside, and shed an effective softly tinted glow. Those in the sketch are lined with sky blue to match the walls, and to carry on the cool effect of the color scheme.

The director's bench in front of the window is left uncovered, as a slip cover would spoil the beauty of its lines. It is upholstered in a hunter green material, as is also the stool at the right. Both these pieces are in black walnut. The piano, tables and chairs are of black wood with fine traceries of gold, which looks very well indeed against the background of blue and green. The glass curtains are of the sheerest material in a light shade of golden yellow. Even the pictures on the wall are chosen with an eye to the coolness of their scenes. One of those shown on the sketch is a water scene, the other a wood scene.

WILL DEDICATE HOPE CHAPEL IN JUNE

"The Pascent of the Passion" will be staged in connection with the dedication of Hope's new memorial chapel in June. The work is composed of quoted Biblical poetry and blank verse. It was written by Dr. Edward D. Dimmitt, president of Hope college.

The characters will be chosen from the student body, faculty and outsiders and the departments will be managed by faculty members with student assistants. The chimes, organ and cho organ will be used in the production. Dr. John B. Nykerk will have charge of the music.

Rooms in the new chapel have been assigned to the department of Bible, now in charge of Rev. H. J. Hager; religious education, in charge of Rev. E. Paul McLean; philosophy, in charge of Rev. Paul E. Hinkamp. Hope Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Home Volunteers and Student Volunteers also have been allotted rooms.

Candy Is Hailed As Pep Saver

For tired business men, overworked stenographers and "blues" singers who really feel that way, here is a prescription from a famous physician. It may not be spring fever or an aching heart after all. Perhaps you are sugar starved.

"All hard-driven business, professional or working men and women should keep a box of good candy, or some raisins or other dried or candied fruit, in a drawer of their desks or benches." This is the advice given by Woods Hutchinson, M. D., an internationally recognized medical authority, writing in the Ladies Home Journal.

"Then, if they begin to flag after the middle of the morning or during the afternoon, they should eat a small handful or so of these quick-action foods. This emergency ration will hit the right spot at once and give the necessary calories or kick for another hour's work."

"Our attitude toward sweet foods has changed radically in the past ten years, he points out, as science has discovered the energy value of sweets. 'A dilute solution of sugar in the blood is absolutely necessary to life,' Dr. Hutchinson reports. 'It is the quickest food stimulant there is. It can actually be detected in the blood and brain twenty minutes after it has been eaten.'"

This revised knowledge is now being applied to the diet of athletes in training. Many Marathon runners are fed candy and sweet fruit juice during the last two or three miles of the race. "Instead of finishing grim masks of gray agony, half dazed and staggering, to collapse at the moment they cross the line, they now pass the judges in good form, with heads up and faces cheerful," says Dr. Hutchinson.

Grant Physician Now Is Newaygo Red Cross Head

At a meeting of the Newaygo county chapter of the Red Cross at First State bank at Newaygo officers were elected as follows: Chairman, Dr. Peter Drummond of Grant; vice chairman, Mrs. William Barnum of Fremont; secretary, Mrs. A. J. McKinley of Grant; treasurer, M. P. Hatch of Newaygo.

A committee consisting of Miss Carrie Carter, Mrs. Barnum, Mrs. Ray Gannon and Dr. Drummond was appointed to investigate cases of school children whose parents are unable to care for necessary medical treatment.

Make bluing water just before it is to be used. If allowed to stand for a long time it is likely to streak clothes. Test the shade by dipping in a small garment and holding it to the light, or by holding a little of the water in the hollow of the hand. Heavy fabrics require more bluing than thin ones. Blue only a few pieces together and do not let them soak in the bluing water. Never draw off the bluing water, leaving the clothes in the washer or tub; this may streak them.

Four people may be served with the rice loaf. It makes a nice variation for the fish dinner, if you serve fish once a week. It would also make a good luncheon dish.

Today's Recipes

Rice Loaf—Three cups warm cooked rice, one can salmon, or one and one-half cups flaked smoked or fresh salmon. Line a buttered bread pan or other brick mold with the cooked rice. Fill center with the salmon, moisten with egg sauce. Cover with rice. Set in a pan of hot water and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit). Turn out on hot platter. Garnish with parsley and pour remaining egg sauce over it.

Egg Sauce—Two and one-half tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, one and one-half cups milk, one-half teaspoon salt, two egg yolks, one teaspoon lemon juice, three tablespoons butter, few grains pepper. Melt the butter in a double boiler, add the flour. Stir until smooth. Add the hot milk gradually, stirring constantly. When thickened, pour a little of the sauce slowly into the slightly beaten yolks, stir well. Add the remaining sauce over hot water. Add lemon juice and seasoning and the butter bit by bit.

M. S. C. Has 500,000 Seedlings to Distribute

Farmers of Michigan may obtain evergreen seedlings at the Michigan State College, the forestry department has announced.

Almost 500,000 evergreen seedlings still remain to be sold at cost for forest and windbreak plantings. More than 1,000,000 seedlings already have been sold. The year's shipments have exceeded last year's total by 200,000. The college's foresters recommend the seedlings be set at a rate of 1,200 to the acre.

The World and All

IN NEW YORK

Almost anybody who has visited New York will tell you that women smoke while walking along the streets in the big town.

It isn't true. Or, if I may modify that just a little, it wasn't true a month ago, and it still isn't very true.

I have been watching for years for the first woman pedestrian smoker. I am on the streets in Times Square daily and often at night, and I am something of a Byrd for exploring in all parts of the city. And I saw a woman walking on the sidewalk and smoking for the first time in my life on the day before last Easter Sunday.

She was a middle-aged woman, almost typical of respectability, and she was walking and talking with a man of similar age and characteristics. He wasn't smoking.

That was on Forty-seventh street, near Fifth avenue. The couple turned into the avenue, the woman puffing ostentatiously at her cigarette.

The following day, Easter Sunday, a group of young women, escorted by top-hatted young men, paraded up and down Fifth avenue, smoking continuously.

My own opinion is that all the symptoms I have mentioned are staged by interests devoted to the future consumption of cigarettes. I think a concerted drive was begun on the day before Easter, and continued for some time, in an effort to get the public accustomed to the sight of women smoking in the crowded streets.

Movies were taken of the Easter Sunday cigarette paraders, and, unless someone suspected a plant, were probably shown in news pictures all over the world.

I suspect the feminine smokers thus far appearing on New York sidewalks have been hired for the job.

But next week or next month the publicity trick will work, and within a year I expect to see sidewalk smoking by women almost as common as is taxi smoking now. These publicity plants do work, sometimes.

ACCEPTING FINANCIAL AID FROM A MAN PUTS GIRL IN EMBARRASSING PLACE

Even rules of etiquette have changed since mother was a girl. Chaperones are out, although the pendulum threatens to swing the other way and bring them in again.

Some rules of etiquette seem to have no foundation in common sense or reason, although undoubtedly they did mean something once upon a time. Others against which the youngsters fret and fume are readily traced to their source and seem reasonable enough once they are explained.

Now, in the case of a young woman accepting financial aid from a young man friend, it's not done. And the reason is that she puts herself under obligations to him and usually such obligations are misconstrued by outsiders. One should not pay too much attention to idle gossip, but it is well to be cautious and not give gossipers too much food for talk. Besides, a young man has a right to think of a girl who accepts his financial help as his fiancée, and if she later decides she does not love him, it is somewhat embarrassing. This convention has some foundation in common sense, you see.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a young man of 23, madly in love with a girl not quite 18. She lives in another town not far from here. She is working for her board while going to high school. Is it wrong for me to help her financially on my own accord? I am not a rich man, but want to help her all I can to make her last year of school a success.

"Is it wrong for me to spend a week-end with her occasionally at the place she boards, without an invitation from the hostess? They do not approve of her having a steady friend, but we have been so for a long time. "A Lonesome Pal."

If the girl can manage without your assistance it would be better, Pal. She would always feel under obligations to you, and as she is so young she may easily change in her feelings towards you. You would not want her to feel herself bound to you, would you?

Star Gazing

Like comedy, movie shorts are staging a comeback, due entirely to talkies.

One and two-reel dramas had their day during the early period of the movies. The rise of feature length pictures pushed the two-reelers into the background and they dwindled to just fillers—comedy shorts, travelogues and nature studies.

These shorts, however, have persisted to the present day. They have been a kingdom to themselves, having their own stars just as did the big feature films.

Charlie Chaplin was the first king of the shorts. When he graduated to feature pictures Harold Lloyd seemed to be his most logical successor. When Harold went up the ladder there remained no outstanding figure in the shorts until Charles Chase came along.

Of all the better comedians who appeared in the shorts Chase is the only one who preferred remaining with them. Chaplin, Lloyd, Buster Keaton, Harry Langdon and others going in for features and not always with success.

When the talkies came the shorts were still filling in the time between stage presentations or news reels and the feature pictures. Sound effects brought experiments in short dramas and monologues as well as oral com-

LEGISLATURE NEWS

The senate taxation committee has been "sitting" on the Snow income tax measure since its passage through the house. This and other taxation measures are designed to reduce the amount necessary to be raised by the general property tax of the state.

By a vote of 19 to 12, the upper house killed off Sen. Peter B. Lennon's proposed tax on cigars which would have yielded almost $4,000,000 annually to the general fund for the consequent reduction of the property tax.

It thus appeared late in the week that the legislature would be unable to agree on any one special form of taxation which might be calculated to reduce the property tax. Every time anyone moves to tax any commodity or source, objections of sufficient intensity to reduce such intentions are raised with the result that no progress toward lightening of the property tax burden seems probable.

Inasmuch as the Hartman mill tax is merely an additional burden to the general taxes to be raised from the apparently only source of taxation, general property, the prospect has arisen that the governor might veto this measure, with the dropping of the fondly conceived institutional building program, rather than increase the property tax.

While Sen. Lennon lost in his battle for a cigar tax, he won an important legislative contest when the senate passed his electric chair bill, providing death for those convicted of first degree murder. The measure carries a referendum, by which voters of the state would be asked to decide the matter finally, at the general election of November, 1930. The measure was sent to the house.

The bill by which exemptions from forced sale would be raised, introduced by Sen. Miner, was passed in the house, slightly amended after which the senate agreed to accept the changes. Household goods would be exempted to the value of $350 and not $500 as the senate passed the measure. The house left untouched the increase from $250 to $500 valuation exemption for technical or professional tools and instruments.

This week has seen passage in the senate of the administration budget bill for the coming two years. The annual needs running the state, as indicated by the measure, are about $28,000,000. To this sum, however, must be added the annual mill tax provisions for the University of Michigan and Michigan State College, which total some $6,600,000, bringing up the total state running expenses to more than $34,000,000. As the state annually receives about $13,000,000 from fees and privilege taxes, as the corporations tax, this leaves a total of about $21,000,000 to be raised by direct tax on the general property of the state.

Sen. Albert J. Engel, Lake City, cast the only dissenting vote against the passage of this measure in the senate.

Last week the eight-tenths of a mill tax bill, proposed by Roy G. Hartman, of Houghton, which would raise the $28,000,000 in four years, struck snag in the senate finance and appropriations committee after having been passed in the House. The measure was amended in committee so as to read "not to exceed eight-tenths of a mill" so that the governor might veto certain of the provisions of the measure without killing the entire bill. Technical objections were raised and the committee voted to suspend consideration of the measure temporarily.

Sportsmen and the general public were attracted by the passage in the house of the 15 round boxing measure from the desk of Rep. William F. Jahnke, of Saginaw. The measure now before the senate for approval would sanction such bouts when national or international titles are at stake. Championship bouts in Michigan are contemplated by the measure.

Rep. Harnley was successful in preventing passage of a measure which would have repealed the present 5-day marriage license law.

Passage in the senate of the election code, as sponsored by Sen. Claude H. Sted of Highland Park, was marked by the care with which the upper house guarded the present method of selecting delegates to county conventions. The measure which, because of senate committee amendments, would have provided for the election of delegates to these conventions, was amended on the floor so as to retain the caucus system of selection. The committee amendment providing that each ward and township in a county would have at least one delegate was also cast out by the senate. The most important changes, so far as the general public is concerned is the abandonment of the poll book system of registration, in all cities and townships of 5,000 population or more. A card index plan would be substituted. The House has yet to approve the measure.

Elimination of the resident rod license of $1 is contemplated by amendments which were written into the inland fishing bill, the latter half of the week. The measure was extensively amended in the senate committee on fish and game to which the measure had been referred.

Sen. Norman B. Horton's concurrent resolution, which would have petitioned Congress to abolish the tariff on Canadian lumber was tabled in the senate shortly after its introduction, because of the strong opposition of other administration forces, headed by Sen. Rushton, from Escanaba.

Sen. Calvin A. Campbell's bill providing for the collection of a 2-cent a gallon gasoline tax on all such fuel used in commercial airplanes in this state, was passed in the senate Thursday, as one of the first steps toward the creation of a state-wide string of airports which would be partly financed by the proceeds from this tax. Counties would share in the revenues thus raised, with a limit of $15,000 to any one county.

Odd Creatures Found in Subterranean Life

Subterranean animal life presents many curious features. The life of the animals of the caves is unique. The subterranean forms of life develop, reproduce and die entirely without sunlight. Among such forms of life there is none of the mammal form, except a species of rat; and there is no cavebird. Then, too, none of the subterranean animals requires much nourishment.

The greater abundance and variety of this life is met in grottoes with underground rivers. Usually the subterranean life resembles the general types of the country. It has entered the caves and there become acclimated, undergoing curious adaptive modifications. So it happens that we generally find, in modified forms, the life of our own time. In some caverns, however, there seem to be disclosed the remains of an ancient animal life that has everywhere else disappeared from the terrestrial rivers, living only in the caverns.

The creatures of modern species that have adapted themselves to underground conditions are sharply differentiated from the dwellers in the light. Their skin is of a whitish hue or else transparent. The eye atrophies or altogether disappears. The optic nerve and the optic lobes vanish, leaving the brain extraordinarily modified. Other organs develop in proportion; those of bearing, smell and touch become enlarged to a degree. Sensative hairs, long and coarse, appear all over the body.

Din of Modern Battle

Ended Drum's Prestige

It was France which took the initiative, years ago, in doing away with the drum. Other nations followed the example, and long before the World War the drum had disappeared.

It still figures in military bands, of course, but it plays no more part in warfare than the harp or the violin.

Thus ended a long and honorable military career. The Greeks ascribed the invention of the drum to Bacchus. The Egyptians charged behind a rank of drummers. Pizarro found drums in South American temples. The Puritans of New England used the drum as a church bell and as a call to arms against invading Indians.

The heroic drummer boy was the stock figure of authors from Phiny down to Kipling.

But France pointed out to the world that the drum was a serious encumbrance to marching, that rain spoiled it, that its calls could not be heard in the din of battle, that it took two years to train an efficient drummer, and that the instrument's abandonment would release many young men for active service.

The drum was accordingly done away with.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Reserved Opinion

The noncommittalness of the clerk servant is proverbial but this gem recorded by Lord Asquith takes the cake:

"It used to be said of one of the most distinguished civil servants, Sir Alfred Lyall, who was a poet to boot, that even on such a topic as weather he would not go further than:

"I'm inclined to guess that is a touch of wet."

Ad Writer's Idea of Great American Home

According to the advertisements it is a private residence and gentleman's estate and built of certified lumber and southern pine, the aristocrat of soft woods brought direct from the mills, and colored stucco, hollow tile, concrete for permanence, sheet steel for every purpose, the inherent charm of stone, and brick that is cheaper in the long run, and it is covered with everlasting shingles, lined with cork insulation, appointed with correct hardware, painted with imperishable colors, heated with an absolutely silent oil furnace and radiators from a world institute of heating that blankets the nation. It has artistic interiors made so with lacquer, beautiful ceilings, screens that last, a modern breakfast nook inspired by Old world craftsmanship, the secret of lovely oak floors, the last word in living room style that turns into a bedroom at night, the recognized leader of all coal windows, the utmost in sanitary engineering, instant hot water from plumbing fixtures with finest quality of brass pipes that contain more copper, and bathroom luxury used on Park Avenue yet priced low enough for the most modest cottage, and is desirably located in a fast-growing community with rising values and filled with period furniture, genuine linoleum, and music from radios, phonographs and grand pianos used by the immortals and bought on the installment plan with a small down payment or what have you?—Kansas City Star.

Happy Gorilla Family.

The gorilla is monogamous and divorce and remarriage are not among his problems. When domestic relations have once been formed they remain "until death doth part." No compassionate or trial marriages in the forest. The young child in the family group until matured, and often longer, bringing their own mates to live in the habitat of their parents. The reputation of this type of ape for ferocity is said to have been greatly exaggerated. As might be expected of an animal loving peaceful home life with its family, the gorilla, naturalists assert, rarely becomes dangerous unless attacked. In defense of its family or itself, however, it will savagely attack an aggressor who forces it into battle.

Study in Birds.

In kindergarten little Mary held up her hand and remarked to the teacher in charge: "See, I am a little bluebird because I am all dressed in blue." Hearing this, and not to be outdone, little William stood up and said: "I am a little redbird because I have red underwear."

Tiny Broadway Star Heads Entertainment Revue

Lucille Elmore, One of Original "Stepping Stones," to Appear Here Soon.

THE LUCILLE ELMORE REVUE

Lucille Elmore, niece of Fred Stone, the famous comedian, and the charming "Little Red Riding Hood" from the original Broadway cast of "Stepping Stones," has been secured for an engagement here.

Miss Elmore and her company will present a revue (a form of entertainment that has almost taken possession of the theatres in the metropolitan centers) which depends for its appeal on cleverness rather than on smashing size or bizarre sensationalism. It will consist of a succession of individual stunts, monologues, characterizations, songs—in short a few chapters out of musical comedy of the Fred Stone brand—clean, wholesome fun with all the suggestiveness and questionable features left out.

There are many singing numbers and close harmony duets of the Duncan Sisters type. Miss Elmore impersonates all sorts of noted people, does a comical ventriloquist number, mimics noted personages and performs other stunts too numerous to mention.

Jean Harper sings beautiful Indian and Spanish songs in costume, does a rag-doll dance and many other interesting specialties. Betty Postlethwaite is pianist, singer, and all-round entertainer.

WEEK OF APRIL 28

Severe storms in action in Michigan at the end of last week will be putting on final touches throughout many counties as the week of April 28 begins.

Temperatures will be generally falling during early part of this week until about Tuesday. By this time readings of the thermometer will have reached a daily mean of between 50 and 60 degrees and, for a day or so, will remain at about this mark.

Aside from temperatures remaining close to the seasonal normal during the middle days of this week, we expect the weather to remain generally fair with little or no cloudiness or precipitation.

Not until the closing days of this week will there be much activity in storminess. At this time there will be some general rains and a decided fall in temperature making one realize that summer is by no means present.

May Variable Month

"U-kee-kay," the planting moon, as the Great Lakes Indians called the month of May, is with us beginning the latter part of this week. It is the month most critical and dangerous to the farm garden and causes no little worry to the big crop farmer.

The farmer generally finds his hands full getting all his crops in when the weather is favorable. This year we are expecting the conditions to be somewhat changeable with part of the period wet and other parts rather dry. The month will prove a generally active one for the farmer and most of the conditions favorable towards his welfare.

Japanese Giant Radish

This is the great Sakurajima Radish from Japan. It is the largest radish grown in this country, attaining an enormous weight of 16 pounds and sometimes 20 or 30 pounds.

It is a real "novelty" to most Americans, and the taste will immediately convince anyone of the fact that it is not merely curiosity but a radish of extraordinary quality.

The flesh is solid, firm and brittle, and of most excellent flavor. It will grow and thrive in any soil or climate.

This is a radish that can be planted in the spring and also all summer long and can also be kept through the winter if dug in the late fall and buried in a box of dry sand in the cellar. As a summer radish it is a wonder, and it will grow and thrive when it is so hot and dry that common radishes would be a failure.

Send for package of the seed today before it is all gone. Package, 10c; 5 packages, 45c; by mail, postage. Address: Novelty Garden Club, 58 Market St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria. At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort.

And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks.

Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however; because they may be grown-upers.

Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments.

Any day of the day or night that Baby becomes fussy, or restless, Castoria is never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

JACK and JILL

By CLIFFORD WEBB

(Copyright, 1928, the Central Press Association, Inc.)

"No," she said calmly, coolly, collectedly. "I shall not give up my job. Nor shall I stop dancing with, talking with, or going around with whom I choose. That is," she qualified, "not under the existing conditions. So long as you continue to run around, I'll do a little gadding about, also! And I want to tell you, Jack," she added quickly, seeming to lose a little of the nonchalance with which she had started out to answer him, "in the event that I should, as you so gallantly suggested as possible, that day in Pittsburgh before my kid brother, let my foot slip, you may know it was your own fault. Your own fault, Jack Stuart," she repeated, her self-control almost getting out of bounds for an instant, "for I'm ready, any day, to lived, and Jill's heart beat with a holy joy at the tenderness and passion it expressed. Jack must still love her, she told herself, fiercely, as she clung to him, sick with the rapture of being in his arms once more.

And to Jack Stuart that night came something of the realization that a love like Jill's was "a love that passeth all understanding"—a love that was clean, pure and well worth while. She was his, the mother of his children—bound to him by the closest ties of mortal conception. To hold her sweet body, vibrantly and vitally alive, glowing with splendid health, was his right. Other nights, other scenes, flashed before his mental vision, and he wished—fervently wished—that he could wipe them off the lens of his dim with the years had subsided, he made answer to his daughter's question.

"Once," he began, and then he chuckled again, softly. "Once, when you were 'so-year-old'—about so big" holding his hand waist high from the floor to indicate height—"a little past five, and Tony was just four, you disappeared one day taking him with you. It was early in the forenoon when his and your absence was reported to me. Just as the shades of twilight were falling you came home, dragging him with you, both of you tired out, dirty and sunburned—and nearly starved."

"Where had you been? Not till the next morning, when you woke up, did we learn. You had just been down to the river, learning to swim?" "Can you imagine now, Jill?" asked Peter Justin, his whimsical smile taking on an added softness as he looked at his pretty daughter, the mother now of three beautiful children of her own, "can you imagine how I felt—you five, and Tony four, and playing all day long along a river where at any moment, you might have stepped into a hole and drowned?"

"You needed a licking, of course. But I decided to make it a lesson you would remember. So I went out into the orchard and cut a gad. But I ran my knife around it in several places, so that it would break easily."

"Now, my daughter, I said, after I had led you—th' two of you—into th' woodshed, 'you have been a naughty, a very naughty girl, taking your little brother, as you did, off into such danger."

"But, I went on, trying to be very impressive, 'just as you are th' older and should be punished for leading your brother into danger, so am I, being older than you, guilty of wrong. So I should be punished for not watching you closer."

"Therefore, my daughter, I said, 'you must punish me. Take this whip and break it up over your father's shoulders, and as you do it, remember that whenever you are tempted hereafter to do wrong, that it is others who must suffer for your wrongdoing!' Then I put th' whip into your hands."

"And did I—did I whip you, Dad?" queried Jill, curiously. "I don't remember th' incident."

"No, probably you don't," said Peter Justin, dryly. "Th' lesson was not a success, so I didn't try to impress it upon your mind."

"But, what did I do?" persisted Jill, a trifle impatiently. "Did I actually whip you?"

"Oh, no," replied her father, smiling his slow, easy smile. "You took the whip, looked at it dubiously and then looked at me. Then you looked at your little brother, standing there big-eyed and scared."

"Tony," you said—just like that—'Tony, I have been a naughty girl and I need punishing. But my father hasn't got th' heart to do it, Tony. He says I gotta lick him! But I'm a girl, Tony, and I—I haven't got th' heart to lick him. But you're a boy, Tony, and boys—' With that you pushed th' whip into his hand and turned to me. 'Let Tony do it, Daddy,' you said softly. 'I—I haven't got th' heart!'"

"And she's just like that today, Dad Peter!" proclaimed Jack, a very tender light in his eyes as they rested on the young mother who, as a girl of five, didn't "have the heart" to hurt another. "And I agree with her," he went on; his glance roving over to the twins, perched, on each huge knee of Father Pat. "Th' boys are too much like her ever to be spoiled by th' sparing of any rod, or bootjack or anything of that sort!"

A glorious Christmas eve! A glorious dinner party! A glorious light that shone like that wondrous star of another Christmas eve in the dark brown eyes of Jill Stuart!

"God has been good to me, Father Pat!" she whispered, happily, to the priest some time later, as she paused for a moment at his side. Baby Helen had gone to sleep and Jill was taking her to her crib in the nursery. Peter and Paul were still "carrying on," waiting to greet Santa Claus—Alias Tony in this instance—"expected along any time now!"

Father Ryan nodded his leonine head in response to his god-child's declaration. "May His blessings continue forever, my daughter," he said, in a fervent tone. But in the depths of the great, dark eye there was a brooding look, a look that seemed to pre-empt heartache and disaster!

Since the enactment of the Volstead law, which marked the coming of the modern flapper into her own—her private flask and the fast-stepping life of today—the country roadhouse has sprung up in almost every community throughout the land.

Some ten miles west of Elliston, and on a detour that branched off from the main highway, was located the Casino. This was a great, rambling, castle-like structure supposed to be patterned after the famous Casino of Monte Carlo. It was something on the order of a stockade. Here every device known to gambling could be found.

During the months following the Pat Sweeney "windfall," when Tony Justin came into possession of $50,000 cash, the young "hooper" had visited the Casino some half dozen times. Fortunately for his bank account, Tony had lost and won rather consistently—not any big sums, but just enough to make him cautious.

One day, in a conversation with Mike Sweeney and Nita Ravelle, Tony inadvertently referred to the Casino. "Oh, I'd give anything to see that place in operation!" exclaimed Mike, the always-willing-to-try-anything-once young flapper of ultra-modern ideas.

of men have lost fortunes there and then shot themselves!" "Well, I'll take you out some time—maybe," said Tony, who was an excellent promiser and then straightway forgot about it. But there was one who did not forget about it, as shall be disclosed shortly.

It was about 3 p. m. on the day after Christmas that the Stuart telephone rang. Jill had gone out about noon—to do some shopping, she told Jack—"th' inevitable after-Christmas shopping." So Jack answered the phone.

"Mister Stuart—Jack Stuart?" queried an unfamiliar voice, in response to Jack's "hello."

"This is Jack Stuart talking," the latter replied.

"Well, then, please listen, Mister Stuart," came the voice across the wire. "You don't know me, but I'm a friend of Tony Justin, a good friend, and I hate to see him walk into a trap, which is just what he is going to do this afternoon!"

"A trap?" repeated Jack, alarm in his voice. "What d'you mean, trap?" "Well, it's just like this, Stuart," came back the voice. "A pair of gamblers have got Tony in tow and they're steering him out to th' Casino—you know that gambling roadhouse. They induce him to draw eight grand—$8,000—outta th' bank on th' old wire-tapping scheme, to clean th' cleaners—you know what it is. Of course he hasn't a chance in th' world. I've called you up so you can get up there and put him wise. I'd go myself, but Tony probably wouldn't listen to me. He would to you. Yes, they've gone already—just left—but if you hurried you could get out there in time. So long!"

Before Jack had thought to ask the name of his informant, the man on the other end of the wire hung up the receiver.

What should he do? He asked himself the question, but he knew, of course, there was only one thing for him to do. His wife's kid brother was in the toils of sharpers and stood to lose $8,000. He must make all possible haste in getting out to the Casino.

He called one of the girls, Clara. No use, he thought, in worrying Jill with the truth.

CHAPTER XXXVII "When Mrs. Stuart comes home tell her I've been called out of town," he instructed the girl. "I may be gone all night, although I expect to be back sooner."

Then he slipped his emergency flask into his hip pocket, donned his overcoat, and hurried down to the garage. Jill had taken the sedan, so he rented a fast roadster. Three minutes later he was on his way to the Casino.

Tony Justin was being well entertained by congenial companions. The plotters in the little game naturally saw to that. It was costing the Lady of Large Alimony a tidy sum to fix everything just right, but—the Lady was playing for a stake, for something she particularly wanted. That this happened to be another woman's husband was all the same to her. All men were fools, and fools were fair game.

She was that among women, a love thief, a wife robber. No man found any appeal in her eyes until he had become the beloved of some other woman. Then straightway he began to look good to her.

It was because she had immediately sensed Jill Stuart's deep, passionate love for her husband, and Mike Sweeney's strong admiration for him, that Nita Ravelle had found Jack desirable.

She didn't want to marry him. She wouldn't, as she often avowed, marry any man, even though he were a millionaire. Her observations had shown her that not all wives, even of millionaires, had $12,000 a year to spend on themselves. And her annuity was guaranteed by a trust company—$12,000 a year as long as she remained unmarried.

Stealing of other women's husbands—that was her game, her pastime. Opposition lent piquancy to the game, made her all the keener for conquest. That Chance had sent such a love-thief to Elliston was Jill Stuart's misfortune. And now hear what the love thief has to say to her leading ballyhoo man and assistant, Francois Le Tarte.

"You telephone her at 5 o'clock," she instructed him. "She'll be home by that time. Tell her he's gone to the Casino to meet me. She'll want proof, so tell her to get her friend, McGuffy, and you'll drive 'em out there, where she can see for herself. Believe me, what she'll see will be a plenty! But she must not be allowed to talk with him, nor he to see her or to know she's there. Then, when he finally decides that Tony isn't coming, I'll ask him to let me ride home with him. Home—hah!"

"Oh, I'd give anything to see that place in operation!" exclaimed Mike.

cut out this crazy stuff—to go back to th' old home and th' real life! We could be happy there with dad and th' kids! What do you say, Jack? Let's go back to—"

"No," he interrupted, angrily. "I will NOT live with my wife's family! We've thrashed that out times enough."

Four weeks later Jill made another attempt—seemingly successful this time—to straighten the tangle of Jack's and her domestic affairs. For three whole days and nights she was wildly happy in the fond belief that she had succeeded.

The temporary reconciliation came about immediately upon the termination of her engagement at the Alphonse hotel and her return home two days before Christmas. They had been out to dinner on the evening of her return, at the Prince Sing Tu Fong, with her father and Father Pat as their guests.

Jill was looking more like her old self than she had looked for many months. Jack noticed the bright sparkle in her eyes and the natural color in her cheeks. She must have been getting plenty of sleep. He noted again, too, as he had done on many previous occasions, that his wife never drank any liquor, as nearly all the women in their set did. He remarked upon this.

"It's their privilege, if they want to drink," she replied, cheerfully. "Just as it's my privilege to refuse it." She picked up her handbag lying on the dresser, opened it and searched about in its various compartments. At last she found it—a folded slip of light blue paper.

"Here, Jack," she said, extending the slip toward him, "take it and deposit it tomorrow with th' regular account."

He unfolded the paper and looked at it. Jill, watching him covertly, saw his face light up suddenly in surprise and pleasure. It was a certified bank draft for $1,000, drawn on a Pittsburgh bank. That which had occasioned Jack's surprise, however, was the fact that it was made payable to him, Jack M. Stuart.

"Oh, but really, Jill!" he exclaimed, protestingly, "it belongs to you entirely—you earned it! I couldn't think of accepting it."

"I'm not asking you to accept it, old dear," she made answer, with the first touch of humor she had used in her talk to him for a month. "Just plaster it onto our joint account. You made me a partner in that account—your money. So there's no reason you shouldn't be a partner in th' money I get. Otherwise it would be a case of 'what's yours is mine and what's mine is my own.'"

"Well, it's certainly mighty nice in you, Jill, dear!" He tied the little expression of endearment on, after an almost imperceptible hesitation. But, since it was the first time he had used the old familiar term—or even addressed her directly—in more than four weeks she grabbed at it almost desperately.

"Oh, Jack!" She swayed toward him. "That's th' first-time you—you have called me—that in ages—dear!" she said, her voice low, vibrant. Then: "And—Jack, you haven't—haven't kissed me in—in heaven knows when!"

She brought out the last three words of the accusation in a tone that went into crescendo. As the final note was struck, his arms went around her, and hers around his neck. Then the kiss that he had been withholding since "heaven knows when" was de-memory. He drew the form in his arms a little closer, felt the pounding of her heart against his. Nothing, he told himself, fiercely, should ever come between them again—nothing—nothing.

That was a wonderful Christmas in the Stuart home. A Christmas tree! Peter and Paul, three and one-half years old, and Baby Helen, with fifteen months to her credit, had never had a Christmas tree before. And such a tree! Loaded with presents for everyone present. But those present comprised only a few of their nearest friends.

There was Father Pat, Peter Justin, Tony, Pat Sweeney and Mike; Mrs. Logan, who still kept boarders; Ann McGuffy and Billie Brown, and A. J. Smythe, who was altogether unlike the Amity of "the forked tongue." And then there was Clara and Jennie. They had been with the Stuarts for eight months. The children adored them and they adored the children.

Peter and Paul—"Hans and Fritz," their grandfather, Peter, had dubbed them—were as near alike as it is possible even for twins to be. Clara and their mother could differentiate one from the other. But only by means of a secret mark of identification known exclusively to them!

This was a tiny gold speck in the iris of Paul's left eye, a marking not found in Peter's optic. Without this infallible bit of identification, neither Jill nor Clara could tell the boys apart. Jill had imparted the secret to Clara for obvious reasons, but under promise of the latter not to reveal it.

CHAPTER XXXVI The father, grandfather and uncle of the twins made no pretense of knowing which was which, or whether Paul was Peter or Peter was Paul. To make the resemblance still more striking, Jill invariably dressed them, precisely alike.

"It'll be tough on both of 'em when they get old enough to lick," remarked Jack, discussing the pair that afternoon before Christmas, as Peter Justin and Father Pat and he sat smoking in the living room containing the tree. "Half th' time Peter'll be getting Paul's lickin', or vice versa!"

"There'll be no lickings for either Peter or Paul," announced the Lady of the House, chancing to hear the remark. "If," she proceeded with calm deliberation, "such an unlikely thing should arise that either deserved punishment, there are plenty of ways besides whipping!"

"Remember th' old biblical adage," said Father Pat, who was not above contradicting certain scriptural passages. "We are warned to 'spare not the rod lest we spoil the child,' you know."

"There may be children," agreed Jill, matter-of-factly, "who might be spoiled by th' sparing of th' rod. But mine are not that kind. They are too much like me; easy enough to persuade through kindness, but impossible to drive. Both Peter and Paul can be coaxed into doing what they really dislike. But try and drive them. It can't be done!" She turned suddenly at the conclusion of her speech to her father.

"I really don't remember, Dad," she said, inquiringly. "Did you ever give me a spanking, or tanning, or—any kind of corporal chastisement?"

Peter Justin chuckled. Then he laughed. Then he laughed some more. Finally, when the mirth engendered by recollections that had grown

LAUD MICHIGAN FIRE VIGILANCE

The value of statewide effort in fire prevention is demonstrated in the results achieved by Michigan cities in the 1928 Fire Waste Contest conducted by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the National Fire Waste Council. This is a national competition among chambers of commerce and similar organizations affiliated with the national chamber.

Of the twenty-three Michigan organizations submitting reports, four received high recognition. The Detroit Board of Commerce was not only winner among cities of over 500,000 population, but also was named grand winner for the best record regardless of size. The chambers of commerce of both Lansing and Fremont both finished second among cities of their size throughout the country. The Grand Rapids Association of Commerce was named seventh among cities of between 100,000 and 500,000 population.

Under the chairmanship of Paxton Mendelssohn, the Fire Prevention Committee of the Detroit Board of Commerce has functioned continuously to reduce fire losses and eliminate hazards. During the last year Detroit's per capita fire loss was reduced to the low figure of $2.34. The per capita loss for 1928 for Grand Rapids was $2.05, for Lansing $1.08 and for Fremont 18 cents. All of these figures are unusually low for cities of their size.

In recognition of the fine work done in Michigan and particularly in these four cities, William Butterworth, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, has invited Governor Fred W. Green to make the presentation address and award the trophies to the winners of the 1928 contest. This ceremony will take place in Washington on April 29, the first day of the 1929 annual meeting of the national chamber.

State Forestry Work Reaches Peak in 1928

The peak of reforestation in Michigan was reached last year when 13,027 acres were planted with more than 11,000,000 trees, the conservation department announces. In both acreage and number of trees planted these figures nearly double any previous year's attainment.

Conservation department records show that up to the present 54,255 acres of state-owned lands have been reforested with more than 62,000,000 trees.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even then early there were cases of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite, and sleep. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. SPEAKING OF DANCE REVIVALS

JACKSON PLANS G.O.P. MARKER

A Republican memorial committee of the Chamber of Commerce has outlined preliminary plans for a campaign to build a permanent memorial to the Republican party at Jackson.

The campaign will be conducted in connection with the observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the party's founding to be celebrated in connection with the Jackson centennial in July. It is believed the plan will be rational in its scope and donations will be asked from residents of every state in the Union.

Consideration was given to a similar plan several months ago when it was proposed to build a substantial memorial near the corner of Jackson and second streets, where the party was first organized.

Publisher Named By Commerce Body

Harry L. Hayden, publisher of the Berrien County Record, who came to Buchanan a year ago from Muskegon Heights, where he published the Muskegon Heights Record, was named secretary of the Buchanan Chamber of Commerce, to succeed Alfred W. Charles. The latter resigned, after serving four years.

The chamber has sponsored a home-building campaign during the past year to help relieve an acute housing shortage, and this campaign will be continued on an enlarged scale during 1929, it was announced.

Directors announced that 1,000 road maps of Michigan had been distributed free to tourists during the year just closed. The directors were optimistic over the prospects ahead for Buchanan.

The Chestnut Bean

This wonderful Bean looks like a giant Pea. When boiled it has a flavor like boiled chestnuts, and is one of the most delicious beans grown. Grows in the form of a tall bush, and is completely covered with pods. For soup and turkey stuffing it can not be surpassed. It is a Spanish Bean, and is known as the "Garden of Eden" Bean. After once you grow a few you will want to plant a lot of them. We have but a limited amount of the seed to offer this season, so are selling same in packets only. Packet, 10¢; 8 pkts., 25¢; 7 pkts., 50¢; 15 pkts., $1.00, postpaid.

Paper Makers Fight Case in Tariff Raise

A committee to fight the proposed increase in the tariff on casein, which would cost the coated paper mills of the Kalamazoo valley $600,000 a year, was appointed at a conference of Michigan paper mill executives at Kalamazoo recently.

The committee, Fred M. Hodges, Felix Pagenstecher and William M. Loveland of Kalamazoo, will go to Washington to interview members of the Michigan delegation in congress, the ways and means committee of the house and the finance committee of the senate.

The proposal would increase the casein tariff from two and one-half to eight cents a pound. Speakers declared the proposal would deal a severe blow to the Argentine, from which the United States imports most of its casein.

Denying the tariff increase was necessary to protect an infant American industry, the speakers asserted the casein produced in Michigan would not be sufficient for one day's work in the Kalamazoo mills. Representative Joseph L. Hooper of Battle Creek, and Frederick W. Hume of New York, a paper mill representative at Washington, attended the conference.

AUTO WAR BEGUN BY STATE POLICE

Motorists in the district patrolled by the St. Clair post of Michigan state police must toe the mark or be arrested.

Sergeant W. Byron Babcock, in charge of the St. Clair post, has announced that drivers from now on are to be held strictly to account for the 10 road commandments of the state. These are:

1—Wait until the road ahead of you is clear before you attempt to pass a car going in the same direction. If you pass on a hill or curve you cannot see what is approaching. Be sure the distance ahead is clear of dangerous approaching traffic and sound your horn to signal the car ahead of your intentions.

2—Be sure that your brakes are in proper working order, capable of stopping your car within a distance of 40 feet at a speed of 20 miles an hour, and emergency brakes capable of keeping your car under safe control before you drive on the highways.

3—Drive your car at a speed that will enable you to stop it WITHIN THE ASSURED CLEAR DISTANCE AHEAD. You are to blame if you run into objects on the road.

4—See that your lights are working properly when driving at night.

5—Drive off the paved or graveled portion of the highway before you stop to fix a tire or view the scenery. Many persons have been killed due to cars parking on the highway.

6—Stay in line when another car is overtaking and passing you from the rear, and your speed should not be increased.

7—The undertakers are doing a good business for persons who pay no attention to Stop and Caution signals. You should also Look and Listen.

8—Give a signal to the other fellow before you STOP, TURN or DRIVE into a line of traffic. The other person is entitled to a warning. It will pay you to get into the habit of using the arm and hand for this purpose.

9—Stay on your own side of the road, except when overtaking and passing a vehicle traveling in the same direction. Approaching traffic is entitled to half the highway.

10—Stay in line at railway crossings and intersections.

Drain Injunction Is Made Permanent

The temporary injunction granted Lapeer county in June, 1928, to stop work on the Mill Creek drain, was made permanent by Judge H. H. Smith.

The temporary injunction was granted last year at the request of five Lapeer county townships on their contention that the old drain, known as the south branch of the Mill Creek drain, was sufficient, and that levying of practically one-third of the total cost, $262,000, was unfair in view of the fact that but one-sixth of the drain entered Lapeer county.

It was also said that the petition for the drain and its description was irregular.

Bridge Delayed Year

Defects in the steel cables of the $20,000,000 Ambassador bridge from Detroit to the border cities have resulted in a decision by the McClintic-Marshall Company of Pittsburgh, general contractors, to rebuild the cables, according to Joseph A. Bower, president of the Detroit International Bridge Company. Work of tearing down the cables now spanning the Detroit river and the replacing of them by new ones will delay the opening of the bridge. The bridge was to have opened next July, but the recent announcement will delay the opening for another year, which would still be within the original contract time, Mr. Bower said. Work on the structure had been progressing at a record pace and was far ahead of schedule.

The fact that the cables were defective was discovered by the contracting company when defects of a similar nature were found in the cables of the Mount Hope bridge, now under construction between Newport and the mainland of Rhode Island at Bristol. When fault was found with the eastern span, the McClintic-Marshall company decided to halt work on the Detroit bridge until an investigation could be made.

Ann Arbor to Have New "Talkie" Theater

With plans under way for the completion of a new theater to take the place of the Arcade, which was recently destroyed by fire, Ann Arbor is assured one of the most modern movie houses in the country.

The construction of this theater will be unique in that it is being built with plans laid expressly for the projection of sound pictures. This will be the first of its kind, according to Selby A. Moran, who is backing the project. All other theaters now showing sound pictures have been rebuilt to satisfy the demands of the sound producing equipment, he said.

The building will cost approximately $250,000 and will have a seating capacity of approximately 1,500 people. The plans are being made by a leading architect in Detroit, who is drawing them with especial attention to the sound effects.

Mr. Moran expects to have a store in the building, but at the present time no occupant has been named.

The theater will be leased to the Butterfield interests, which have a monopoly on Ann Arbor theaters at the present time. Plans are under way for a contest to determine a name for the new theater, and suitable prizes will be awarded for the best suggestions.

Champion at Capacity

Another index that automobile production in the United States will exceed even the record output of 1928 is cited by officials of the Champion Spark Plug Company, who forecast new high figures for the industry from the unprecedented volume of business coming to them in recent weeks.

In response to orders placed since the first of the year, the company's 1929 manufacturing schedules have been set at over 50,000,000 spark plugs, compared with the 1928 production of about 43,000,000. All departments of the company's plants at Toledo, Detroit and Windsor are working at capacity to keep pace with the demand from car manufacturers and motorists in all sections.

Will Build Modern Blocks in Holland

Walter C. Walsh, one of Holland's leading real estate men and the owner of many business blocks on Eighth street, will replace two frame buildings with modern brick blocks. The one will be 23x100 feet and the other 52x100 feet.

The latter will be erected on the site of the Walsh drug store and will remove one of the few landmarks in the business district erected more than 50 years ago.

DAVIDITE ROW FANNED ANEW

Hint that "civil war" in the House of David, between factions headed by Attorney H. T. Dewhurst and "Queen" Mary Purnell, rivals for colony leadership, may result in a legal scrap, was revealed with the filing in the Berrien county register of deeds office of a notice of its pendency by Dewhurst.

The notice announced that in case the supreme court ruling on the state receivership decree, fails to set forth the rights of the members of the colony, the House of David will institute such action as is necessary to protect the rights of the members to the property.

The filing of the paper serves formal notice that the board of control at the House of David on June 21, 1928, suspended the authority of "Queen" Mary, sole surviving trustee following the death of "King" Benjamin Purnell, Dec. 16, 1927.

Smelt Seen as Menace To Other Fish in North

Danger of smelt wiping other fish from northern Michigan lakes was expressed by George R. Hogarth, director of conservation.

"The ever-increasing presence of smelt in northern Michigan lakes is causing a decrease in the number of other fish every year," Hogarth said. "If the smelt continue to increase in "Crystal lake, where smelt are most fishing will be sadly depleted.

"Crystal lake, where smelt are most abundant, used to be an excellent perch lake, but now the perch are decreasing rapidly and if smelt continue to increase the other fish will disappear."

Up until this year Cold creek at Beulah was the only place where smelt were found in large numbers. This season, however, they have been found in other streams and lakes. They are not regulated by spate. Only regulations attempted are "strong arm" rules put in force by the conservation department and state police to regulate crowds of fishermen who annually attend the "smelt carnival" at Beulah.

What's in Your Tires
Rubber and Cotton or MILEAGE?

If they are Kelly-Springfield tires, you can be sure there is mileage, and plenty of it, built in. Kellys had a reputation for many years. Possibly a tire dealer who sells some other make will tell you Kellys are overrated. The fact remains that they have a reputation—and they must have done something to earn it and hold it.

There are a number of good tires on the market. Kelly-Springfields are better tires. And now they cost no more than the other kind.

NEIGHBORING NEWS

The new community fire engine for Stockbridge has arrived and is now ready for work. It is capable of making 60 miles per hour with a full load.

Stockbridge which has twice voted down a proposition to bond for a new school will vote a third time on April 26. This is partially caused by the school being dropped from the University list and a certainty that it would suffer a big loss in foreign students if the school remained in its present condition.

The Stockbridge Exchange Club tendered H. W. Morgan who recently retired as editor of the Stockbridge Brief-Sun a banquet in honor of his 34 years association with the paper.

Seven members of the Fowlerville High School orchestra won places on the All State orchestra which plays at the School Masters Convention at Ann Arbor April 24-28.

Supervisor Oscar Schoenhals of Genoa, Democrat, was elected chairman of the Livingston county board of supervisors.

Giles Webster and Leslie Jacobs of Brighton were found guilty of killing Bert Anders while holding up a blind pig in Detroit at Grand River and Seven Mile Road and sentenced to life imprisonment at Jackson.

The City of Jackson will celebrate its hundredth anniversary in July.

St. Joseph's Parish of Dexter will put on the play "Stray Cats" in May.

Eids for a new poor house in Ingham County have been asked $250,000 has been appropriated for it.

Richard Kiney of South Lyons was elected president of the well diggers association at the convention held at Lansing recently.

The South Lyon Union school board has purchased the field opposite the Seamless Tube factory for athletic purposes.

ITEMS OF 25 YEARS AGO

From the Dispatch of April 21, 1904 Thomas Burchiel of Windsor, Ontario, has purchased the residence of Erastus Kennedy in the east part of town and will move here.

Burglars visited the store of W. E. Murphy Wednesday night and took a considerable amount of merchandise.

At the last meeting of the Young Men's Club Gale Johnson and Clyde McIntyre were first in the bag punching events and Fred Teeple and Arthur Swarthout in the boxing contests.

Delegates to the Congregational Church convention at Sandstone from here were Brayton Placeway, Rev. G. W. Mylne and Mrs. Ella Jackson.

Harry Jacobs and Mae Whipple of Plainfield were married April 20 by Rev. Ostrander.

The North Hamburg Ladies Aid met at the home of Alex Mercer Wednesday. The following officers were elected: Pres. Addie Kice, Vice Pres. Mrs. Boylan, Sec. Mrs. Stewart, Treas. Mrs. Gattrol.

RAIN STOPS GAME IN FIFTH

The ball game here last Friday between Fowlerville and Pinckney high schools was called at beginning of the fifth inning by a heavy downpour of rain. The score at that time was Fowlerville four, Pinckney 0. Peterson who pitched for the visitors was a complete puzzle to the home team, only two men reaching first base, Meabon on a base on balls and Graves on the only hit Pinckney made. Reason for Pinckney only allowed two hits but issued four walks, three of which were turned into runs by Pinckney errors. Fowlerville gave their pitcher errorless support. As the game did not go the required five innings it may have to be played over.

Pinckney's next game will be with Howell at Howell, this week Friday at 4:00 p. m. Howell defeated the local boys by one sided scores last year and they are determined to even matters up.

TURNER BILL WOULD AID THIS SCHOOL DISTRICT

The following letter has been received by the Pinckney P. T. A. in regard to the Turner Bill. If this bill becomes a law Livingston county would receive $4,664 more money for school purposes:

Lansing, Michigan
April 11, 1929

Dear President:

The Turner Bill will require the distribution from state funds of two million dollars annually to the poorer school district of Michigan. Practically every school district having a school tax rate of more than ten dollars per thousand will share in this distribution. The bill has passed the Senate and the House by an overwhelming vote and will soon be before the Gov. for his approval.

"The Turner Bill is the most forward-looking step in education that Michigan can take," believes Webster H. Pearce, Superintendent of Public Instruction. "It would begin the program of equalizing the burden of taxation in Michigan. Equalizing of tax is the most important step in equalization of educational opportunities."

As state president I would like to join the Michigan Education Association in urging all members of the P. T. A. to support this bill. This is keeping with the resolution formally adopted by the Michigan Congress of Parents and Teachers expressing approval of equalization of school tax rates. Some of the ways in which your association can help are:

1. Adopt resolutions favoring the Turner Bill and send them to the Governor.

2. Appeal to your Senator and Representatives in the State Legislature to use all their influence in support of the bill.

3. Urge county and local officials to do their utmost.

For the sake of the children of your community, and for the benefit of the children of Michigan, do your part now.

Sincerely,
(Signed) Frances S. Pettengill, Pres.
Michigan Congress of Parents and Teachers.

CURRENT COMMENT

Stockbridge voted twice on a proposition to bond for a new school. The first time it lost by the small margin of 21 votes and the last time by about 40. A third vote has now been called for. In the meantime the school has been dropped from the U. of M. accredited list. Middle aged people whose children have already received their education are generally credited with defeating the proposition both times. Pinckney people had better get in a receptive mood on the same subject as the time is not far distant when they will have to face the same issue here.

A short time ago Jack Dempsey, ex-heavyweight champion visited the Mich. legislature, shook hands with different members and otherwise made himself generally agreeable. Since, an appreciative legislature has passed the Jahnke bill legalizing 15 round championship bouts in Michigan. It is said that Dempsey wishes to stage a heavyweight championship bout in Detroit on account of its proximity to wet Canada. Rep. Lynn Gardner voted against the measure.

Pork measures bob up in every session of the legislature. The measure last year contemplating the removal of the state tuberculosis sanitarium to Ann Arbor was one. This year two more such measures came up but up to date no action has been taken on them. One provides for selling the present site of the Mich. State Fair, and buying a cheaper location and the other would do the same thing with asylum for the insane at Pontiac. The only reason for this seems to be that the land on which these institutions are located has become immensely valuable and could be sold at a handsome profit. However the real reason is no doubt that someone else has some sites which they wish to unload.

PRE SCHOOL CLINICS

The Livingston County Medical Association, co-operating with the county nurse, has planned a series of seven free preschool clinics to be held after the middle of May. These clinics will be so spread over the county that every child who is expected to enter school in the fall for the first time, will be given an opportunity for a physical examination, which will be made by local physicians, assisted by dentists and optometrists.

Dates, places and hours of the clinics will be announced later.

Mrs. Mary Nowlin and daughter, Mrs. Irene Smith, Miss Smith and Mrs. and Mrs. Chapman and daughter of Pontiac were Sunday afternoon callers at the home of Mrs. Jas. McCluskey.

"MEN may come and men may go, but I go on forever," sang the mill stream. Our lives are dedicated to a service that shall always be a Service of Sincerity.
