WILLIAM VANBLARICUM

William VanBlaricum youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert VanBlaricum was born in Putnam township, September 23, 1903 and passed away July 7, 1929 at the Howell Memorial Hospital at the age of 21 years, 9 months and 14 days. He graduated from the Pinckney High School at the age of 17 years. A few months later he acquired a position in the Buick factory at Flint where he worked for three years and during this time he attended night school taking up Electrical Engineering in which he was an "A" student. During the last year and a half he has been at home and at the time of his death was taking up Civil Engineering through the International Correspondence School.

Always of a cheerful disposition, William was liked by everyone and left a host of friends.

The funeral services were held at St. Mary's Church of Pinckney Wednesday at 10 A. M. The services were conducted by Rev. Frank McQuillan, Rev. John Crowe, and Rev. Leo Dorsey. The funeral was one of the largest ever held in this community.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his father and mother, two brothers eight sisters and other relatives and friends.

J. C. BOWMAN

J. C. Bowman, only son of Fred and Mildred Parker Bowman, was born Nov. 16, 1908, and passed away July 9, 1929, aged 20 years, seven months, and 23 days. As a boy, he attended the Pinckney Public School, pursuing his studies until he reached the eleventh grade, when he left school, to engage in the carpenter business with his father, which profession he has since followed, save for a few months spent with the U. S. Navy. April 24, 1926 he was married to Frances Russel of Howell, which union has been blessed by two children, Harriet, aged 2 years; and Leonard Russel, aged 6 months.

J. C. was prominent in athletic circles, his last base ball game having been creditably played at Whitmore Lake, July 4.

Thus proficient in his chosen lines of endeavor, kindly disposed toward neighbors and friends, and popular with his associates, his untimely passing is greatly regretted; and the entire community join in extending sympathy to the widow and her little ones; and to the father and mother.

The funeral was held from the home of his parents in this village on Friday, July 12, Rev. Schwarzkopf of the Howell M. E. Church officiating, assisted by Rev. Esic. Burial was in the Pinckney Cemetery.

C. Bowman batting in Hub Lee with the winning run in the last half of the 13th. It is expected that a large number of Pinckney fans will accompany the team. The cottage, which it is claimed cost $8,000 was recently sold at a receiver's sale here to E. J. Dreyer, of Howell, at $1,925. Stebbins and Ketchum were both placed on the witness stand, the former stating that he was ill and unable to be present when the recent sale was made. Attorney Fitzgerald being his representative and who made the motion for appeal, asserting that the place was worth much more than the purchase price bid at the receiver's sale.

PEARSON JURY DISAGREES

IN ARSON TRIAL
After 21 hours of deliberation the jury setting in the arson trial of Dr. A. H. Pearson, and George Goodrich at Howell failed to agree and were discharged by Judge Collins at 11:30 a. m. Sunday. A third trial of the two men has been set for Sept. 23 by Judge Joseph H. Collins. It is understood that the jury stood 10 to 2 for conviction which was the same in March trial.

The jury returned to the court room once Saturday afternoon and requested a re-reading of some of the testimony. At 11 o'clock Saturday night Judge Collins called the members in and asked if they desired any more information, but they answered negatively. A similar procedure was gone through at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

The trial grew out of the burning of a barn on Dr. Pearson's farm near here last November. The first trial in March resulted in a disagreement. It is alleged that Dr. Pearson either set fire himself or asked a farmhand to burn the building in order that he might collect insurance.

BEEN BUYING other tires because you had an idea that Goodyears, because they're so much better, must therefore be higher-priced?

Or because you're trading in your car soon—or drive less than other people do—and feel you don't need such exceptionally long-mileage tires as Goodyear All-Weathers, Double Eagles, and Pathfinder? Too bad—if you have.

First, it costs no more to buy Goodyears, grade for grade. Second, Goodyear also builds low-priced tires.

WEEK OF JULY 21

The beginning of this week will be feeling the last effects of the storm center predicted the latter part of last week.

By Monday or Tuesday the sky will have cleared and with the rising barometer we are expecting the temperatures will take a rather sharp downward course for the season.

During the middle days of this week the temperatures will range not much more than the normal, with the nights unusually cool.

We look for some rather hard summer rains that will induce rising temperatures temporarily.

Clearness from these eddies will come to a close at the end of this week, resulting in clear skies and temperatures much below the seasonal warmth usually experienced about this time.

Best Time This Week For fishing: July 24, 25 and 26. For baking: July 21 and 27. For setting fowls: All this week. For setting ducks, geese and turkeys: July 21.

The Missing Attache

Sturdevant, Ace of the Secret Service, Risks Everything To Nab Mad Conspirator; He Wins and Loses

By SEABURY QUINN

Atkinson of the Star, and Shreve of the Blade, both long enough in Washington to have developed immunity to the epidemics of rumors constantly current in the capital, sat in the Blade's office on the ninth floor of the Munsey Building, discussing the coming Pan-American conference and a quart of bootleg liquor.

"What's the latest development?" asked Atkinson, helping himself to a jigger of alleged rye. "The Panaravian delegate's secretary been found yet?"

"Nope." Shreve scowled down at the lights bordering Pennsylvania Avenue. "Looks as if the fellow's dried up and blown off. Jermyn of the Herald-Intelligencer, was up to the embassy this afternoon. Said the spigs were chasing each other around in circles, telephoning the superintendent of police and the Secret Service and the railroads at three-minute intervals. Seems as if the secretary is a sort of Get me? This Panaravian secretary's disappearance isn't any mere happen-so. It's the culmination of a deep-laid plot."

"Huh?" grunted Atkinson. "All right, go ahead and sneer," Loomis challenged, "but, all the same, what I'm telling you is the solemn truth. I've remember all the deviltry the Bolshevik agents hatched up right after the Armistice? Remember Bela Kun, and what he did to Hungary? Remember Foster and the steel strike? Remember how they started hell popping in Argentina and Brazil? Well, you don't know the half of it."

"The weirdest, most unlikely movement of all was launched in Central America—right outside our back door. The sucker crop is always fat around the Isthmus, and there's always a lunatic fringe in every country, ready to join anybody's parade if the band only plays loud enough, you know. The crack-brained movement the Reds past month, posing as an unappreciated genius, and hearing some things that would curl the hair on a cast-iron dog. The Arioca is due from Panama in a few minutes, and there's a young man on her I have to see before he leaves the dock. He's got some papers for the Panaravian embassy in his dispatch bag that must get to Washington, but they won't if those devils beat me to the piers."

"Whom do you mean?" I asked. "Why, the League for the Restoration of Ancient Empires, as it's called. It aims at the overthrow of every government in Central and South America by means of revolutions fomented to restore the ancient Indian dynasties. When they've thrown the southern continent out of gear, they'll try to extend the movement north. Maybe by stirring up trouble with the Negroes."

"We raced through Christopher Street till we sighted the forest of

"Yes, sir," the guard answered. "I took special notice of 'em, 'cause they was so different looking. Young man wasn't hardly no bigger than a girl, while the blond guy was six feet if he were a inch. Seemed pretty thick, too, sir. Just 'fore they got in a taxi the big guy insisted on takin' a leather satchel with a shoulder strap on it from the little feller. You'd thought he was the little 'un's daddy, the way he was babyin' 'im."

"Sturdevant heard him through, then put his hands to his head, as if to tear his hair out by the roots. "Which way did they go," he asked the policeman.

"Down toward Christopher Street, sir," the other replied. "Shall I call a cab for you?" He held up an arresting hand to a passing taxi.

"No," Sturdevant declined, handing him a half-dollar. "Come on, Loomis; we've got a needle to hunt in this haystack of a town."

"He glowered at the muck-covered pavement, tugging at his precise white beard reflectively. "No use trying to follow 'em," he murmured to himself. "One taxi's as yellow as another in this town. Guess we'd better go where we're likely to hear something. C'mon, son; let's travel!"

"Where are we going?" I asked as he turned eastward away from the piers.

"To eat," he answered laconically. "There was no use talking to him when he was in one of these moods,

"Where's the Panaravian courier?" he asked the chief inspector.

fifty-ninth cousin or something of the president of Panaravia, and the ambassador's apt to be hunting a job if anything happens to him. Wonder where the blighter can have got to?"

"He's, for the love of Patrick Jerome Casey, gimme a drink and then hide the bottle!" Jermyn, the Herald-Intelligencer's Washington representative, burst through the door. "Quick! Frank Loomis is comin' down the hall. The son-of-a-gun hasn't bought a drink since Hector was a pup."

"Right-o," replied Atkinson, pouring Jermyn a sup in the water tumbler and thrusting the bottle beneath his desk with a single comprehensive movement.

"Lo, fellers," Loomis greeted his brother correspondents. Loomis paused, his naturally tippled nose held still higher as he sniffed the office atmosphere. "Who's got a drink?" he asked.

"Sorry; not a drop in the house," Shreve declared.

"H'm. Too bad," Loomis answered, seating himself in the most comfortable chair. "Hear the latest about the missing Panaravian secretary?" He looked from one to the other in thirsty expectation.

"S-a-y," Atkinson temporized, "if I can find you some squirrel juice, will you loosen up on the story?" "This ain't blackmail, old top," Loomis assured him, "but I'm so dead beat I just gotta have some stimulant for I can't get up energy to talk."

"A—t, thanks!" He poured a drink of noble proportions from the proffered bottle, smacked his lips, and gave vent to another soul-satisfied sigh.

"In my opinion," he announced ominously, "they'll never see that young man again. Never!" Retaining his clutch on the bottle, he fixed his three companions with a questioning stare. "Ever hear of Sturdevant?" he asked.

"No," the denial was unanimous. "Never heard of Sturdevant?" he repeated in an unbelieving tone. "Never heard of the highest ace in the deck of Uncle Sam's Secret Service!" He shook his head sorrowfully, then straightened abruptly in his chair.

"Lookie, infants," he commanded. "I'm goin' to let you in on some mighty secret stuff. Some diplomatic history never before whispered outside the State, War and Navy Building would have put across if Sturdevant hadn't butted into the game was a restoration of the ancient Indian empires.

"Now, that was the bit of Latin-American psychology the Internationalists banked on. All the population having Indian blood were to be enlisted in a grand crusade to sweep the white oppressors into the sea and restore the ancient American empires to their pristine glory. Every half-caste and quarter blood was assured a seat in the chair of state once occupied by his illustrious forebears."

"Where'd you get all this dope?" Shreve cut in skeptically. "I never heard anything about it."

Loomis favored him with a withering stare. "Well, as I was saying when you interrupted, they were all set for the greatest little slaughtering-bee staged since the Jamaica slaves revolted when Sturdevant took cards in the game."

"Like most revolutions in Latin-America, this one had its G. H. Q. in New York."

"I was up in the big town, 'tending to some private business, and happened to be walking through West Eighth Street one autumn evening, a couple of years ago, when whom should I meet, going like a Ford ambulance, but Sturdevant."

"I believe you fellows said you didn't know him? Too bad; he's a man worth knowing. He served in three wars, getting about a peck of medals in each of 'em, and there isn't a finer intelligence officer in the world. Tall, square chap he is; white hair; white moustache, white imperial—looks like a vitalized portrait of Napoleon III."

"Hello, Major," I called as he came abreast of me, "you're a sight for tired eyes. Where you going?"

"Down to the piers," he answered, "got important duties to perform."

"You can come if you'll promise to keep your mouth shut till I lift the embargo," he said, "otherwise, roll your hoop."

"All right," I agreed. "I'll keep mum as fried clam if you'll give me a fair break when the time to publish the story comes."

masts where steamers were warped into their berths along the waterfront. A screeching of brakes and scudding of knobbed tires over slimy cobblestones brought us to a stop none too soon. One of those interminable freight trains from the New York Central's Hudson Street depot was puffing up town along 'Death Avenue'; in a split-second more we'd have collided with it.

"Damn!" Sturdevant raged as the train bumped its endless length between us and the piers. "I'll miss that boy, sure as shootin'!"

"The train cleared our path at last, and we made the three or four blocks in championship time."

"Pay him," Sturdevant told me, nodding toward the driver, and dashed through the pier's arched doorway like a rabbit into his burrow."

"I flung the chauffeur a bill and followed Sturdevant. Disdaining the methodical lift which runs to the passenger level, he was dashing up the stairs, three at a time. Down the gloomy concrete pier he raced, almost upsetting a couple of porters struggling under an accumulation of valises and brought up at the Customs inspectors' shed puffing like a locomotive."

"Where's the Panaravian courier?" he asked the chief inspector, regaining his breath with a sob.

"Hello, Major," the official greeted. "We passed a young chap with diplomatic dispatches through the lines about five minutes ago. Fellow from Washington was here to meet him."

"Tall, fair-haired man with a Van Dyke beard. Spoke rotten English, too."

"Tall, blond man, did you say?" Sturdevant almost shouted. "D'ja notice if he had a cast in his left eye?"

"The inspector tilted his cap scratching his head. "Come to think of it," he admitted, "I believe he did have a sort of stary look in his eyes, sort of cockeyed, like."

"Good Lord!" Sturdevant groaned, catching me by the elbow and turning toward the exit. "That was Romoliski. I ran him out of Buda-pest in '19—and these ninnies swallowed his bunk about being from Washington. Damn that freight train! I'm afraid our little courier's goose is cooked."

"He walked to the street level and accosted a pier policeman. "Did a youngish, dark fellow go through here a few minutes ago with a tall, light-haired man?" he asked.

so I stalked along in silence, wondering what his next move would be.

"Presently he turned in at a small, unpretentious restaurant bearing the sign 'The Purple Stew Pan' in crudely painted letters. 'We are now in Bohemia,' he whispered, as we seated ourselves at a none too clean table."

"I looked about me. Most of the guests wore that unkempt look which proclaims the followers of the revolutionary schools of literature, painting and sculpture."

"In a far corner, edged as close to the open fire as safety permitted, four young men and a young woman sat. All were of that peculiar swarthy complexion which proclaims the Latin-American, and all, including the woman, possessed large black eyes and small black moustaches. In contrast to the other diners, they spoke in whispers, referring repeatedly to the menu card, and smoking a prodigious number of black, smelly cigarettes."

Sturdevant ordered for both of us, keeping a covert glance on the group in the corner. As the quintet rose to leave, he took the flimsy hectographed menu from our table, crumpled it into a ball, and shoved it in his pocket.

Then, with a mumbled apology to the new occupants, he borrowed the bill from the table vacated by the Spanish Americans and scanned it hastily.

"Ah—ha," he muttered after a short inspection, "just as I thought."

"He passed the paper to me, indicating a rough pencil drawing in its margin. I looked at the sketch, and passed it back, no wiser than before. An Indian, wearing the traditional feather war bonnet and brandishing a knife, was depicted, while a crescent moon was drawn in the background. What appeared to be an arrow was drawn between the man and the crescent, seemingly with no relation to the other objects in the picture."

"New art?" I asked. "If it is, I don't wonder these birds are starving. I could do better than that myself."

Oswald—"Hooray! I won't have to take any more baths."

Be sure and take this in, especially if by chance you have a western horse to break or some colts coming along.

Question Box

CURRENT COMMENT

According to the press Hon. Lyna Gardner's anti-bathing suit bill will be declared unconstitutional as it conflicts with other state statutes. We doubt if there was an general demand for any such law in this county. Mr. Gardner introduced it as an accommodation and probably was more surprised than anyone else when it passed.

Did you know that it is illegal to write a check for less than 1 dollar? Such is the fact and a law to that effect has been on the statutes for years. This law is broken every day in the year but one never reads of any arrests. Henry Ford recently became a law breaker when he issued a check for 2c in payment for a borrowed postage stamp.

We note by our exchanges that the turnouts at the school meetings in this section were unusually large. Several hundred attended the Dexter meeting, 165 Stockbridge, 100 Fenton. Heavy exactions on the schools by the Educational Department is probably the reason.

The Washtenaw County board of supervisors has become indignant at the high prices charged them by the University Hospital and has fitted up a ward at the county farm to care for indigent patients. Supervisor Gilbert Madden of Dexter township is the sponsor of the movement and believes it will save the county thousands of dollars.

George L. Adams, editor of the Fowlerville Review, for the past 55 years has sung his swan song and unlike the farewells of the late Sarah Bernhardt, it is final. On April 29, 1874 Mr. Adams arrived in Fowlerville to start a paper. On account of low finances the first issue did not appear until July. This was the first paper issued in Fowlerville. Since then seven others have started but none now survive at the present time. Brother Adams has seen the transition of printing from the days of the Washington hand press and universal hand composition to the cylinder press and linotype machines. During all that time although he has kept pace with the times by installing modern equipment, he has held firm to his precepts and maximums and refused to trim his sails. While all do not agree with him on all things none can refuse him credit for steadfast adherence to his principles. Mr. Adams has applied Christian Philosophy to his business and made a success of it for 55 years and yet some people still firmly believe it can not be done. Mr. Adams has sold his paper to Jay Raby & Son of Lansing who will take possession Aug. 1.

A few years ago a number of school districts in Augustus township, Washtenaw County consolidated and built a handsome modern school which was christened the Lincoln consolidated. About two years ago it burned down and it was rebuilt. At the present time the school district is in debt $280,000 on it. Now Eli Alban, president of the district has just died leaving his estate of between $75,000 and $100,000 to the district. The school is to receive $2,000 a year annually to apply on the interest and principal of the bonds. In case the indebtedness is paid the district is to receive $1,000 a year and the income of the residue will be added to the primary fund of the district. Washtenaw County has been fortunate in this respect as her modern County Farm was made possible by the bequest of one of her citizens the late, Lewis Yeager, after the issue had been defeated at the polls several times.

Nancy, who was only five, was much impressed when a large bunch of roses arrived for her mother.

"Why did you get them, mother?" she asked.

"You see, Nancy, seven years ago today daddy and mother were married," explained the mother.

"Goodness! He was a long time sending them, wasn't he? You'd think he'd have sent them seven years ago."

The Same Instinct

People who hide their valuables in out-of-the-way spots -- Behind pictures, under carpets, in old tea pots--are obeying the same instinct for safety that makes a dog bury a bone out in the garden. A dog, of course, knows no other protection for his treasure than to bury it and trust to luck it will not be found. But most people in this community know that for less than 1c a day they can assure absolute safety for their valuables in a Safe Deposit Box in the strong vaults of this bank.

Hugo Wilkes. On many occasions Wilkes has hitched a trailer to it containing 2,000 lb. and driven all the way to San Antonio, a distance of 125 miles. He hauls cotten bales with it regularly.

"Spark Plug" had eight owners before Mr. Wilkes bought it nine years ago. Its total mileage is indeterminate. Since Wilkes has had it, three speedometers have been in use. One registered 75,000 miles, the second 60,000, and the present one 15,000 miles. The total repair bill is $150. However it may be stated that Wilkes does his own repairing.

Electric Cooking Is COOL

IN summer, the heat of an ordinary oven makes the kitchen almost unbearable. Electric ovens are liberally insulated, and the increase in kitchen temperature when the oven is in use is hardly noticeable. The heat is kept inside where it is needed—one of the several reasons why electric cooking is efficient.

You can enjoy electric cooking in your kitchen now. Convenient time payments and a liberal allowance for your present cooking equipment make it unusually easy for you to own a modern electric range. Come in and inspect the many attractive models.

YALE CALLS 'U,' PROFESSOR FOR HISTORY WORK

Another of Michigan's faculty is to be lost when Prof. Ulrich Bonnell Phillips, for 18 years a member of the history faculty, leaves Ann Arbor, for a year on leave of absence, and after that to become a member of the history department of Yale university.

Phillips came to the University in 1911, and has become an outstanding authority on Southern history and on the period which led up to the opening of the Civil war. He has published several texts dealing with the political situation as well as transportation, economics, and other important factors. He has collected a large number of documents which shed light on that particular period, and has incorporated much into his little volume, "Life and Labor in the Old South." It is understood that he goes to Yale with the expectation of doing more writing, as his teaching schedule is to be arranged very lightly.

Before beginning his duties at Yale, Prof. Phillips will take a trip around the world under the Kahn fellowship, the honor requiring only that the recipient travel around the world observing, thinking and writing. International good-will and the desire to give qualified persons the opportunities made available by foreign travel are responsible for the formation of the fund for the fellowship. Prof. Phillips leaves Ann Arbor August 15.

During his service as a professor at the University of Michigan, Phillips has been absent for long periods only twice, one when he served as a commissioner officer of the World war, and again when he spent a semester as exchange professor, teaching at the University of California.

U. of M. to Operate Primary Grade School

Work will be started soon on a new $430,000 grade school building to be operated by the University of Michigan school of education. The announcement, by Dean H. B. Edmondson, said that the new unit would include pupils of the pre-kindergarten age and the kindergarten group as well as the first six elementary grades.

Thus the school would have in operation a system ranging from the earliest ages through the graduate school of the university, as it now operates university junior and senior high schools. The building is to be finished by September, 1930.

Know Poison Ivy?

Many people are introduced to poison ivy or its relative, poison sumac, in a most unpleasant way, because they don't know how to avoid "acquaintanceship" with these plants. Poison ivy is most readily recognized by its leaves, which are always divided into three leaflets, and by its whitish, waxy fruits (though the plants don't always have fruits) that resemble mistletoe berries. "Leaflets three, let it be" is good advice. The leaves of poison sumac are divided into from 7 to 13 leaflets, arranged in pairs, with a single leaflet at the end. Through the winter the plants have cream-colored fruits. Poison sumac grows only on wet land.

Ludington Parish Gets New Pastor

Rev. Joseph J. Malinowski, a native of Erie, Pa., has been named by Bishop Joseph G. Pinten of Grand Rapids as the new pastor of St. Stanislaus' Polish Catholic parish here. He succeeds Rev. F. J. Plaskowski, who has accepted a chaplaincy at the novitiate of the Felician sisters, Detroit.

Poems That Live

JUNE

When the bubble moon is young,
Down the sources of the breeze,
Like a yellow lantern hung,
In the tops of blackened trees,
There is promise she will glow
Into beauty unforgetful,
Into all unthought-of gold
Heigh ho!

When the Spring has dipped her foot,
Like a bather, in the air,
And the ripples warm the root,
Till the little flowers dare,
There is promise she will grow
Sweeter than the Springs of old,
Fairer than ever was told,
Heigh ho!

But the moon of the middle night,
Risen, is the rounded moon;
And the Spring of budding light
Eddies into just a June,
Ah, the promise—was it so?
Nay, the gift was fairy gold;
All the now is over-old,
Heigh ho!

—Harrison S. Morris (1856)

Sub-deb Is Wearing Formal Tea Gowns

By LUCY CLAIRE

If there is one place where summer clothes show off better than another, it is at a garden party. Here the sub-deb, home from college, appears in her dressy afternoon frock with the grass and the trees and the flowers for a background, with animation everywhere, and chiffons, both figured and plain, in a myriad different colors, floating in the breeze about daintily shod feet and shapely ankles. Skirts are so much longer for formal wear this season, you know, that they do float about the feet and ankles, especially those with the uneven hemlines and that dip in the back.

These are not what we term "college clothes." They represent the afternoon frocks procured for the occasion, and naturally the styles that the debutante is wearing at fashionable summer resorts, and therefore the latest Paris and New York have to offer in summer raiment. It is, after all, the college girls of our country who most influence styles for the younger sets in their home communities.

Printed and plain chiffons, sometimes stiffened, lace and an occasional organdie, are the principal materials now in vogue for the sub-deb garden party, or for all garden parties and afternoon affairs where smart women gather, for that matter. The college graduate may naturally be a little more sophisticated than her younger sister, so what she is wearing is indicative of what they are wearing elsewhere.

While both the even and the uneven hemline are in evidence, the uneven predominates, and there is much of the dip in the back movement. The combination of chiffon with velvet in the chiffon frock with its tissue velvet coat is frequently seen. A charming model of this type is shown at the left of the sketch. Figured chiffon is used for the long sleeved frock which dips in the back, while the coat is of tissue velvet trimmed with the chiffon, and matching the predominant color in the design. As the print is on a cream ground, white kid pumps and a white hat complete the costume. Pumps, by the way, have become very popular with the longer skirts because they apparently add length to the leg. Step-in footwear models are also becoming more popular for this reason.

Perhaps a little more popular is the short jacket with the chiffon frock. A cardigan jacket of printed chiffon is shown with a sleeveless frock of orchid chiffon at the center. This has the even hemline, and the pleated tiers of the skirt are pressed out at the edges. Beige kid shoes and a natural, medium brim bakou hat complete the costume.

Typical of a large proportion of the chiffon frocks being worn at the garden party is the printed chiffon at the right. Many are without sleeves, accompanied by capelets or jackets. Some have even hemlines, but all are fashioned to flutter in the breeze with the fascination of the greater femininity. The one in the sketch is of dull rose and pink on a cream ground, with long sleeves, a dipped in the back skirt, and a charming little capelet following the lines of the dip. A hair hat of soft pink, and white kid pumps complement the frock.

RURAL WOMEN WILL RECEIVE STATE HONORS

Public recognition of the importance of the feminine partner in a farm business will be symbolized at a presentation of medals to five Michigan farm women who will be given the title of Master Home Maker, August 2, at the conclusion of Farm Women's week at Michigan State college.

Similar groups of women have been chosen in 21 states. The acknowledgment of the national indebtedness to rural housewives is sponsored by "The Farmer's Wife," published at St. Paul, Minn. Representatives of the magazine co-operate with the home economics extension service of state college in the selection of the Michigan group.

Candidates from all of the state were nominated by their neighbors for inclusion in the group of five to be accorded public honors. Selection of the five from among those nominated will be made by a committee appointed to consider the contribution of each candidate to her family and to the community in which she lives. Groups of Master Home Makers chosen in other states will bring the total of women to be given this title to more than 100. The magazine which inaugurated this movement believes that this group of women will form a nucleus which will be of material assistance in aiding plans for the betterment of farm living conditions.

Jackson Priest Takes Charge in Charlotte

Rev. W. J. Lockwood, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Jackson for the past six years, has been appointed pastor of St. Mary's parish of Charlotte, to fill the vacancy caused by the transfer of Rev. George W. Brennan from Charlotte to the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Lapeer. The position also includes the charge of two missions—St. Peter's at Eaton Rapids and St. Anne's at Bellevue.

Members of St. Mary's church, Charlotte, held a reception in honor of their retiring pastor, Fr. Brennan. A substantial purse was made up for him at the affair, at the Robinson Tea-Off at the Charlotte Country club.

Lloyd George Shuns Politics

Upon his arrival in San Francisco, recently, Major Richard Lloyd George, son of David Lloyd George, England's war-time premier, confessed that he is only casually interested in political affairs and confines his interests largely to engineering. His sister, Megan, and brother, Gwilyn, both occupy parliament seats. He is above with his wife, the former Roberta McAlpine. They are taking a round the world tour.

The World and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

IN NEW YORK

Daruma is a Japanese restaurant on Sixth avenue. It is patronized by Japanese of the better class, and by those Americans who have lived in the Orient and have learned to like Japanese food and its preparation.

When I was taken to Daruma by an Oriental friend recently, I learned how to eat with chopsticks, and saw a most interesting and palatable meal prepared before us on our dining table.

Individual pairs of chopsticks, sealed in sanitary transparent packages, are supplied to each diner. It isn't the insanitary sanitation practiced by so many New York barber shops, either. In many barber shops the barber ostentatiously takes your hair brush out of a waxed paper envelope, but if you watch carefully you'll see that the envelope is badly wrinkled from countless handings. It is gently tossed aside, and the brush is dropped into a container after it is used on your hair. The porter comes around when the brush supply runs short, rescues brush and dirty envelope, and puts them together again.

The Japanese sanitary chopsticks come from the factory not quite separated from each other. You split them apart to use them, and it's impossible to put them together again. Americans who wish to use the less sanitary, and more civilized, knives, forks and spoons, are supplied with these tools.

My sophisticated friend ordered tenderloin beef sukiyaki with rice. This is a wonderful dish.

A deep iron skillet is placed upon an alcohol stove on the table, a little fat is applied to the bottom inside the skillet, and the quiet attendant begins piling in the armful of exotic vegetables. Far out on Long Island are highly specialized gardens that produce most of these vegetables under glass.

Many mysterious liquids are poured over the vegetables, and the whole mass simmers. It doesn't fry. Thin slices of beef tenderloin are laid all over the top, and cooked slowly with the vegetables.

Tea and rice, prepared as only Japanese can prepare them, are served, and you help yourself from the skillet with your chopsticks. Delicious!

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

By VIRGINIA LEE

Isn't it a bit pitiful the way we women sue for the approbation of the men? We think we are emancipated because we have the vote and can smoke in public and work side by side with men in business and politics.

But every minute, one gathers from reading the papers and letters that come from my feminine correspondents, we are on our toes to please these masculine censors. We must look lovely from morning to night, must direct our chatter and our every action to conform to their standards and to charm them.

We've quite a way to go yet before we shake off the age old inferiority complex engendered by man's assumed superiority and really meet them on equal terms.

"DEAR MADAM: Will you please give me advice as to the following questions:

(1) When a secret marriage is performed, and the couple wishes it to be a double-ring ceremony, does the wedding ring have to be bought at the time of the wedding, or can it be gotten just before the announcement of the marriage is made?

(2) In securing the marriage license from the county clerk is it necessary to have the witnesses go with you or not? X. F. K.

I hope this information will reach you in time X. F. K. You would have to have the rings for the ceremony, as they are included in the service. No, the witnesses would not have to go with you to secure the license.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have come to you for some much needed advice. I am a member of the so-called 'younger generation' and I am ALWAYS out for a good time, but I never smoke, drink, neck or pet to excess. I have a young man who, although he runs with our crowd, is the intellectual type. We love each other very much, but he thinks I am not worthy to be his wife. I heartily agree, but I have no direct way of knowing what he means. He calls me his 'Glad Rag Doll.' Just what does that mean? I feel sure I would understand more what he means if I knew the definition of that phrase.

"I date other boys and 'steady' a few, but my husband-to-be never says anything. He wouldn't, though, if it were killing him. Should I stop dating? GLAD RAG DOLL."

I never heard the phrase "glad rag doll" before, but I should judge that the young man does not think you are his intellectual equal, and therefore not worthy to wear the crown of wifehood with him the king.

You are a jolly little soul, apparently, in his estimation, but no brains, stuffed with sawdust—that sort of thing. He belongs to the intelligentia I take it—in his own estimation, at any rate. He thinks real deep thoughts in which you cannot share. It's up to you, of course, but do you think it will be very comfortable living with such a man? I think I'd go right on dating other boys. You may find one who reverses the order and thinks he is not worthy to marry you—which is the proper attitude of the lover.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl of 16 and think lots of a boy 21, but it doesn't seem to me that he cares anything at all about me. I want to know whether or not to fool my time away on him or not. HEART BROKEN."

I wouldn't waste any more time on him, dear. There are probably plenty of nice boys who will care if he doesn't, and anyhow, if he does really care a bit, a little competition might stir him up to show it.

With the Women of Today

Mrs. Coranne MacGregor and characters for "Little Black Sambo"

By LILIAN CAMPBELL
When Mrs. Coranne MacGregor of Cleveland was two years old, her mother found her one day gazing earnestly out of the window.

"What are you looking at, Cora?" asked her mother.

"I'm watching that cow's 'spression,'" answered the wee girl.

Mrs. MacGregor is now a white haired woman with grown children. She has just invented a process of making very real looking dolls and animals out of cross-sections of cardboard stuffed and covered with paper, with which children's books may be illustrated, and the "spressions" on the faces of these animals are amazingly life-like.

Mrs. MacGregor has been making paper dolls ever since she was a small girl. She has always been very clever with her fingers, so that when a child, her dolls were smarter and better dressed than those of any of her playmates.

Then she married and made dolls for her children. She had taken painting lessons from time to time, and she painted the faces of the dolls and made and colored circuses for her own and neighbors' children.

About a year ago the manager of a paper house for whom Mrs. MacGregor had been working, asked her if she thought she could find a way to make solid dolls and animals of paper that would tell a story. She tried and tried, experimenting with many mediums. Finally, the idea of using cross-sections of card board came to her one night, and she tried it then and there. It worked. The cross-section construction is made from a pattern, which is stuffed with moistened paper and held together with paste, paper tape and wire.

The idea has been patented, and now, when Santa Claus brings an illustrated nursery book of the old story of "Little Black Sambo," "The Three Bears" or any of the other old favorites, the paper patterns come with the book, and the child can make such lifelike characters that they look as if they had walked.

AIRPORT TAKEN FROM TAX LIST

Announcement that Pontiac is to pay its share of the school bonds in the two school districts in which its municipal airport is located but that the airport is to be stricken from the township tax rolls, was made by Goodloe H. Rogers, city attorney.

Rogers stated that the city was not legally responsible for the bonds, but that there was a moral responsibility involved which led it to pay its share of the school bonds. The Waterford Center school board, but its members announced that the matter was not discussed.

Residents in other parts of Waterford township had no comment to make, but one group on the Dixie highway indicated that it planned a meeting to discuss the matter within the next few days and that an announcement would probably be forthcoming.

Taxing of the airport has proven embarrassing to Alfred Gale, Waterford township supervisor, who, as a candidate for the vacancy on the county road commission, is seeking the support of Pontiac city supervisors. The city has claimed exemption from taxation because the airport is municipally owned, while township residents have demanded it to be taxed as it is a revenue producing venture.

Will Try New Plan of Paving in Wexford Co.

Paving US-131 between Tustin and Cadillac will be pushed rapidly, according to officials of the Cadillac office of the state highway department. An innovation for this section of the state will be tried in paving half the grade and then using the completed strip as a roadbed for hauling materials for the other half.

The section of the new pavement south of the Wexford county line will be begun about the same time as the northern piece. The pavement approaches to the overhead crossing at Leroy have not been awarded yet, as the grade separation will take all summer to build.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your drugist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

OAKLAND COUNTY BUILDINGS TO COST $430,000

Oakland county board of supervisors has provided funds for the construction of considerable new building for county institutions, this year, at a total estimated cost of $430,000.

The new work will include an additional unit for the county contagious disease hospital, to cost $180,000, and a children's unit for the tuberculosis hospital, to cost $250,000. Bids for contagious disease hospital unit will be opened soon, it was expected, and contracts awarded so that work can be started quickly. Bids for the children's addition, it was stated, will be opened some time in the fall.

Congested conditions in the several institutions it is proposed to expand is the basis for the appropriations at this time.

It is planned to make provisions for the care of at least 100 children in the Tuberculosis hospital addition.

Small Currency Not Expected to Restrict Credit

The secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, declared in an oral statement July 1 that he saw no reason to expect a credit stringency to result from the release of the new currency. Mr. Mellon explained that the process of exchanging the new money might "conceivably cause a tightness," but it was described as a far-fetched possibility under the circumstances.

Mr. Mellon observed that the release of the new money will take place just after a holiday when there will be the normal tendency toward a return flow of currency. This condition will offset any serious possibility of a stringency, in the secretary's opinion.

It was explained by the secretary, however, that there is likely to be a slight increase in circulation during the first weeks of circulation of the smaller sized bills. This, he said, would result from the natural inclination of individuals to hoard the new bills as souvenirs or for mementoes. But the treasury secretary remarked that the condition would abate rapidly and added that none of the officials charged with the distribution were concerned over it.

Although Secretary Mellon observed that it was too soon to discuss the possibility of further tax reduction in the light of the $185,000,000 surplus for the fiscal year just ended, Senator Smooth (Rep.) of Utah, chairman of the senate committee on finance, stated orally, July 1 that congress will not endeavor to reduce taxes at the forthcoming regular session to be convened in December.

Senator Smoot declared that he regarded the surplus of $185,000,000 as nothing more than the proper margin of safety for a country whose annual financial transactions exceed $4,000,000,000. There was no reason, he said, to embark on a new tax reduction program. Senator Smoot recalled that he had taken this position when the income of tax returns of last March indicated that there would be a surplus.

Senator Simmons (Dem.) of North Carolina, ranking minority member of the senate committee on finance, said he did not expect to comment on the possibility of a further reduction of taxes, at least until he had had time to make an investigation of the surplus, the financial condition of the government, and the condition of the national debt.

Candy Company Suits Amount to $1,000,000

A collection of damage suits totaling more than $1,000,000 faces the officers of the now bankrupt A. R. Walker Candy corporation, the plaintiffs being the former stockholders of the corporation who charge that the financial condition of the company was misrepresented to them for the sale of stock. There are more than 100 plaintiffs.

The defendants are A. R. Walker, founder of the company, and his wife and daughter; A. L. Merrick, former treasurer, and Jacob J. Kooman, former secretary.

The A. R. Walker Candy corporation went into bankruptcy some months ago and since then the Walker Candy, Inc., has been formed with two of the officials of the original company at the head of the new organization.

Hope for State Farms To Take Place of Jails

One of the most significant movements in the country today is the movement of the national committee on prisons and labor to substitute farms for jails.

At a meeting at Ardsley, N. Y., at the home of Adolph Lewisohn, the subject was discussed at some length. Said Mr. Lewisohn, honorary president of the committee:

"The national committee has received reports from all sections of the country indicating the appalling jail situation due to the overcrowded jails. We have come to the conclusion that some constructive plan must be developed at once.

"There are 3,000 county and municipal jails throughout the country. They are overcrowded, with no attempt made to separate types of offenders, or the rehabilitation of the prisoner. The youthful come into contact with the hardened criminal and thus crime is bred. We intend to remedy this evil.

"The change is intended not only for the good of the prisoner but also prisoners are not criminals, some being in jail awaiting trial, with the possibility of acquittal."

County and municipal jails were described as "schools of crime" by Dr. B. L. Scott, director of the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare. He was the leader in the campaign in Pennsylvania which resulted in legislation permitting counties to combine in establishing district penal farms for misdemeanor prisoners. Frank Bane, commissioner of the public welfare department of Virginia, described the success of the penal farm system in his native state.

It is hoped to introduce bills extending the penal farm system, thus doing away with the overcrowded rural jail conditions.

Motor Car Census Totals 32,000,000

More than 32,000,000 motor cars were moving along the streets and highways of the world at the beginning of this year.

The automotive division of the department of commerce, which recently completed the laborious task of counting hoods from Iceland to Australia, finds that 24,629,921, or three-fourths of the world's motor car population, is in the United States.

Spitzbergen and Bermuda are tied for bottom place with only one automobile each. The Gilbert and Ellice islands have two busses but nothing else. The New Hebrides have no passenger cars but recognize the motor age with 25 trucks and three motorcycles.

The country with the largest total, next to the United States, is England, with 1,128,000 motor cars. France is next with 1,098,000 and Canada next with 1,061,000.

China's huge family of 400,000,000 manages to get along with only 25,581.

Sues General Motors For Use of Patent

A patent infringement suit has been filed in United States district court at Bay City against the General Motors corporation and its subsidiaries by Leo Reno, of Detroit. The plaintiff claims he is the inventor of a lathe for polishing automobile crankshafts. The alleged infringement, the declaration states, consists in the use and manufacture of this lathe by various General Motors plants. The plaintiff claims damages of $40,000.

Manistee Cancels Order for Bass Fry

Edward C. Burton, president of the Izaak Walton league at Manistee, has informed the state conservation department that Manistee county will not be able to take care of the 13,000 bass fry which were recently ordered because of serious damage to the new rearing farm on the Kline farm near Onkama.

Water broke through the banks on the newly constructed pond and considerable time will be required for repairs.

VOTE POSTUM NAME CHANGE

The stockholders of Postum Company, Inc., at a special meeting recently, approved the recommendation of the directors to change the name of the company to "General Foods Corporation," as a title which more adequately describes its greatly extended field of operations in the food industry.

"The officials of the Postum company have chosen 'General Foods Corporation' as a title which is broad enough to include the varied activities of this group of companies, whose products represent many phases of the food industry," said Cobby M. Chester, Jr., president. "The name 'Postum' was given to the first product placed on the market in 1895 by C. W. Post, the founder of the company, who by judicious advertising, even in those early days, made the slogans, 'There's a Reason' and 'The Road to Wellville' well known throughout the country.

"Since 1925 the company has expanded rapidly through the acquisition of non-competitive, nationally advertised products which now include flour, coffee, cereal foods, chocolate, cocoa, mayonnaise, salt, syrups, Jello and other delicacies. The former title emphasized the original Post products; the new name indicates the varied character of its products and the prominent place which the company has achieved in the food producing and distributing field.

"It is expected that the change will become effective in the latter part of July at which time instructions will be given stockholders relative to exchange of certificates."

SEVEN MISTAKES OF LIFE

An Exchange lists the following as seven mistakes of life:

1. The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.

2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.

3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.

4. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.

5. Neglecting development and refinement of the mind by not acquiring the habit of reading fine literature.

6. Refusing to set aside trivial preferences in order that important things may be accomplished.

7. The failure to establish the habit of saving money.

POTTERVILLE DEFEATS PINCKNEY-MICHIGANNES TO RETAIN CHAMPIONSHIP

Potterville Independents, class "B" champions of Michigan for the past 2 years, defeated the Pinckney-Michigan team here last Sunday by a score of 15 to 8. They really won the game in the first inning when they scored 6 runs for although Pinckney amassed a total of 16 hits and 8 runs they were never able to catch up with them. The visiting team was made up of a good bunch of hitters and found Moran for 17 hits although many of them were fluky and could have been prevented by faster fielding. Pinckney scored 3 runs in the first on singles by Miller and Lewis, Swarthout's two base hit and Mulvaney's single. They got two more in the 5th when Miller and Lewis singled and Swarthout scored both with a hit. Another run scored in the 6th when Mulvaney singled and Moran scored him with a double. Their last two runs came in the 8th when Cooper tripled and scored on Swarthout's sacrifice fly. Mulvaney was safe on an error and Moran singled home. It was a hard game to lose, the boys are offering no abibs but admit Potterville had the better team

NOTES OF THE GAME

The Potterville team is largely made up of Lansing players. Their three outstanding stars here were Meredith catcher, Shutes and Yates, outfielders, these three accounted for most of Potterville's hits. Yates is a full blooded Indian, remarkably fast and a demon batsman. He collected a triple, double and a single in five times up. Meredith got 5 hits and Shutes 3.

Singleton of Lansing pitched for the victors. He depended mostly on a slow ball which the Pinckney team pounded safely 16 times. Good support and three double plays out of Pinckney from scoring more runs.

Pinckney's big chance came in the 5th they filled the bases with none out with hits by Lee, Miller, and Lewis. Cooper hit into a double play but Swarthout singled scoring two runs.

Southworth, Potterville, catcher made a nice game. He threw out both Swarthout and Kennedy stealing second.

Potterville met the ball lightly just hitting it over the infield. The Pinckney outfield did not catch a single fly.

Miller, Lewis, Moran and Mulvaney were the men with the stick for they getting three hits apiece. Swarthout got two.

Swarthout batted in five runs for Pinckney and scored a sixth himself. Mulvaney batted in one and Moran 2. Potterville brought along 50 rooters with them and picniced on the village square. The attendance Sunday was the largest this season so far.

Jack Hall of Howell performed stunts over the field with his airplane and made a landing in the field opposite the ball park.

Eight runs would have enabled Moran to win any of the previous games. The following are the scores of the ones he has pitched: Pinckney-Mich. 6, Del Prete 2; Pinckney-Mich. 11, Dexter 1; Pinckney-Mich. 4, Easton Rapids 1; Pinckney-Mich. 5, Dexter 4; Pinckney-Mich. 14, Lansing M. & A. 2; Pinckney-Mich. 13, Whitmore Lake 2; Pinckney-Mich. 4, Arborphone 5; Pinckney-Mich 3, Potterville 15.

Well we still have a winning percentage, the record standing 9 victories and 4 losses.

AN EDITOR'S OBLIGATIONS

As an editor we have assumed certain obligations and responsibilities which we are faithfully striving to discharge. We are in perfect accord with the code given below, which another editor penned to his readers.

"The first obligation, as I conceive it," said the editor, "is to give the news of the legitimate territory in which the newspaper is circulated.

"The second obligation is that of cleanliness. It should be morally clean, suited and appealing to the young as well as the old.

"The third obligation is that of courage. It should be fearless in the expression of righteousness, in the espousal of justice, in the defense of the weak.

"The fourth obligation is the obligation of consistency. Knowing the position of a newspaper today, one ought to be able to tell its position yesterday and where it will stand tomorrow.

"The fifth obligation is to intelligent comment on the items of news which have an important bearing on public opinion or public morals.

"The sixth obligation is service. It serves as a community adviser, the source of first aid, the civic booster the big brother of the neighborhood.

As the ninth obligation, it would place ideals above all things.

We are striving to give this community a home paper, which will measure up to high standard when subjected to the test of these obligations.
