J. FRANKLYN BABB Here October 26

The first number of the Citizen's Lecture Course is J. Franklyn Babb. Lecturer, humorist and after dinner speaker. He will be at the Pinckney Community Hall on Saturday evening, October 26. Of him the bureau has the following to say:

With a feeling of pride we present J. Franklyn Babb, brilliant scholar and eloquent lecturer in the confidence that he will cause the man who says he doesn't like lectures to exude apology from every pore. Tall, angular, Lincolnian in countenance, smart, witty and a prince of good fellows, Babb's personality wins you the moment you meet him.

What an orator and what a master of the language is he! Everything he says has all the tonic effect of a cold shower.

It's the same old Babb you all know—the Babb who brings out all the sweetness of life, who spreads the brotherhood of man, inspires men and women to higher and nobler things and brings sunshine to all.

Babb is unexcelled as an after-dinner speaker, Lecture for Educational Institutions, Sales-force Conferences, Industrial Organizations, Women's Clubs, Fraternal Assemblies, Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, etc.

Of him the Boston Globe said, "There was a laugh every minute," and the Calgary News said, "His fun never becomes foolishness."

The writer believes that "Handicapped" Babb's newest and best lecture is one of the finest things he has ever heard on the platform. There is more eloquence, beautiful word painting, wit and humor, genuine inspiration, practical help and plain horse sense in this address than in any he has heard in many a day. It will be a pity if a capacity audience is not out to hear him.

WAS ANOTHER PERSON

A report broadcasted over the radio Thursday that Harry Jackson of 3011 Fullerton Ave., Detroit had been injured there in a bus wreck. It was generally thought that it was Harry G. Jackson, former Pinckney resident. However as he lives at 15465 Wisconsin Ave., it was found to be another person.

HARRY SHANKLAND

Harry Shankland, aged 40 years, of Dexter, died at an Ann Arbor Hospital Friday. He was born in Superior township, Washtenaw county, and was married to Miss Jennie Blades of Putnam in 1912. He is survived by a widow and three children.

The funeral was held at Dexter, Sunday, being conducted by Washtenaw Lodge F. & A. M.

PINCKNEY MASONS ARE ENTERTAINED BY DETROIT LODGE

Fifty-five members of Livingston Lodge No. 76 F. & A. M., Pinckney, attended the banquet and third degree conference given by City of Straits Lodge, Detroit, at the Masonic Temple there last Saturday. The work of conferring the degree started at 3:00 P. M. when the M. M. degree was conferred on two candidates of the Pinckney Lodge taken to Detroit for that purpose. This was followed by a tour of the temple. At seven o'clock the banquet was served in the main dining room. This was followed by a short program at which James Huxtable of Detroit acted as master of ceremonies. Brief addresses were made by John Crane, Master of City of Straits Lodge, Ross Read, Norman Reason, and Reg. Schafer of the Pinckney Lodge. The assembly was then favored by songs by Miss Charlotte Meyers, noted radio singer, and by Ernest Shepard, a member of the Detroit Lodge. This was interspersed by community singing and humorous interruptions by other persons and parties. The brothers then returned to the lodge room where the third degree was conferred on the two remaining candidates. The work of the City of Straits Fellowshipcraft team in conferring this on the Pinckney Candidate (long form) drew much applause. Following this the Pinckney brothers were entertained at a theatre party given in their honor and returned home in the wee sma hours without any serious accidents as far as can be learned. These visits between the Pinckney Lodge and the City of Straits are beginning to be regular events as City of Straits has twice visited Pinckney and the latter have made two trips to Detroit. However this last one evoked more interest than usual by the fact that several candidates were taken to Detroit to receive their third degrees and also by the fact that a number of members of the local lodge who have lived in Detroit for years took this opportunity to pay their respects to their lodge. It is planned to make these intervisitations a yearly event.

FOOTBALL GAME SUNDAY

The Pinckney Panthers having won their first game from Ann Arbor have decided to try for another victory and will play the Durand Merchants at Pinckney next Sunday, Oct. 27. This team will outweigh the local aggregation, having an average weight of 170 lbs. The Pinckney team has an average of 166. However it is believed that the people would rather see a good team in action than an inferior one even if the home boys were beaten. The boys gave a good account of themselves last Sunday and are determined to take Durand into camp even if they are outweighed. The game will start at 3:00 p. m. and an admission of 25 cent will be charged.

Frye, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Reason, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Schafer, Miss Elanthe Martin, Mrs. Ida Feidler, Mrs. Bess Barry, Mr. Roy Henry and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Doyle. Mrs. Barry and Mr. Henry won first honors, and Mr. Norman Reason and Mrs. Frank Bowers second honors.

The committee in charge was Mrs. Fred Read, Mrs. Ross Read, Mrs. Reginald Schafer, and Mrs. J. P. Doyle.

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia!

When tongue or breath tells of acid condition—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescrip-tional product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

MICHIGAN mother proves her idea is right...

"MY little son was bilious and upset," says Mrs. Sam C. Jones, 5768 Vermont Avenue, Detroit. "He had no appetite, his breath was bad, his tongue was coated, and he was nearly always tired and sleepy.

"He seemed to have trouble with his stomach and bowels, and I had an idea California Fig Syrup would help him. He brightened up marvelously with the first few doses. At the end of a week, he was a different boy. I have used California Fig Syrup with him every time he has had a cold or upset, and I give it a lot of credit for his wonderful condition."

California Fig Syrup never fails to cleanse the system of bilious, headachy, feverish or constipated children, quickly and gently. It never gripes or sickens. Children love its flavor. A pure vegetable product with the highest endorsement of doctors. It helps Nature give tone and strength to the stomach and bowels.

All drug stores have the generous bottles. The name "California" marks the genuine.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP
THE RICH, FRUITY LAXATIVE AND TONIC FOR CHILDREN

It's easy to see from his wonderful condition that this little fellow's mother knows what to do when his stomach or bowels go wrong. No drugs for her! Nothing but pure vegetable California Fig Syrup. At least a million families are never without a bottle of it in their home!

CHATTY GODDESS OF GAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "MONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDER," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," etc.

COPYRIGHT 1929 CENTRAL PUBLISHING CO., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

"That reminds me—hes' not home yet," Mrs. Chatterton interrupted. "Pud ought to have been home an hour ago. Ben Tomlinson knows I want him home by nine o'clock—and he's promised to send him home then."

By a quarter past ten young Pud had not come, and Mrs. Chatterton went into the front of the house to telephone Tomlinson's drug store at the corner.

"It doesn't answer, Tomlinson must have closed up for the night," she said anxiously to Chatty, coming back into the bedroom. "We'll have to go down and look for him, Chatty. It makes me as nervous as a cat to have him out late like this."

Ben Tomlinson's drug store was in darkness, except for one small blue light that burned in the prescription room behind the store itself.

"Now where do you suppose Pud is?" Mrs. Chatterton wailed, and began to wring her hands. "You know Ben Tomlinson's been letting him deliver packages lately—and heaven only knows where he delivers them or what kind of terrible people he meets."

"He can't meet anybody very terrible in a quiet neighborhood like this," Chatty soothed her. "And as she spoke a small closed car came swiftly out of the alley behind the drug store.

The arc light on the corner sent its rays straight into it, and there sat young Pud, with Ben Tomlinson beside him.

"Pud!—Pud!—Putnam Chatterton!" his mother called shrilly, as the car passed her and Chatty.

But neither Pud nor Ben Tomlinson heard her, and the car swung into West River street and sped away into the darkness. The tail light became a tiny red spark in the vast blackness of the night, and then vanished altogether.

"Now, where on earth are they going, do you suppose?" Mrs. Chatterton wondered aloud. "At this time of the night? And why didn't Pud come home? He KNOWS he ought to be at home, and so does Ben Tomlinson!"

It was eleven o'clock before Pud did come home.

His mother and Chatty saw him drive up in front of the apartment house in Ben Tomlinson's car, and saw Tomlinson drive away.

A moment later Pud softly unlocked the door of the flat and came in. His blue eyes opened wide when he saw his mother and sister sitting in the front room—not reading or sewing, but just sitting there, waiting for him.

"Thought you two'd be getting your beauty sleep," he said, and grinned at them. "Hot zig-zag? Will you look at Chatty?"

His twinkling eyes took in the fluffy hair, the pink powder that covered her face, the bright pink nails, and the tops of Chatty's stockings, which had been "rolled" for the first time since Chatty had begun to wear stockings. "A form you love to clutch!" he misquoted, with a loud laugh. "Oh, boy! You'll knock 'em dead when you stroll into old Van Nuys' office tomorrow morning, girl!"

"Don't let me hear you speak that way of Mr. Van Nuys, Putnam," his mother said to him sharply. "Old Van Nuys? You ought to be ashamed of yourself! Now, where have you been until this hour?"

"Pud paddled," "Drug store," he answered shortly, walking towards the door that led to the bedrooms.

"No, you haven't—I saw you leaving the store almost an hour ago with Ben Tomlinson!"

"Sure," said Pud, easily. "And that's where I was—with Ben, delivering some packages in his car. He just brought me home. You can call him up and ask him—"

"I don't want to," Mrs. Chatterton told him. "You go to bed now and don't stay down there after nine o'clock any more. Understand? Come along, Chatty, we may as well get some sleep."

But she wouldn't have had her sleep if she had known where he had gone with Ben Tomlinson, and what he had been doing.

She was not to know for a long time.

"It's nice," Billie agreed, "I think I'll take it."

CHAPTER VI

The only real time that working girls have to themselves is Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

And so it was not until the next Saturday afternoon that Billie Langenau and her sister moved into the little flat just across the hall from the Chattertons' flat in Lipton street. They came about four o'clock in George Mayhew's small car. Just behind them came a truck piled high with their household goods.

"Here they are!" Chatty called to her mother, as the two machines topped in the street below. "Wonder what their furniture is like."

rumpled and his face flushed under his freckles as if he had been hurrying all day long.

"Thanks!" He took the card. But instead of looking at it he looked at her. And he frowned.

"I like you better the other way," he said. "Much better."

"What way?" Chatty was breathless.

"Without that make-up on your face," Dave Jordan said gravely. "And your hair smooth and tight the way it was yesterday. The minute I saw you I thought, 'What a nice young kid!'"

Chatty stared at him, her big eyes growing bigger with every second.

"But Miss Langenau makes up, and just see how pretty she is!" she cried. "Why, she has hardly any color of her own—and she puts black stuff on her lashes, too. I saw her wash and then fix herself all up this noon before she went out to lunch with Mr. Mayhew."

Dave Jordan raised his hand to stop her. He was laughing.

"Maybe she wouldn't like you to tell all that about her, Miss What's-Your-Name," he said. "Most girls like to have fellows think that their bloom of youth is all their own, you know."

He started away, and then he came back for just a moment.

"And most fellows don't like to see girls all made up," he added. "No foolin'!"

When Billie Langenau came back at half past four Chatty had washed most of the powder from her face and she was busily at work, scraping the too-bright pink polish from her finger nails.

"Oh, but I'm tired!" Billie sank into her chair with a little groan. "I've looked at so many flats that I'm just dizzy."

"Find one?"

Billie shook her head in its smart little bob. "Not a thing—and the rents are all so high—"

"If you could get along with four rooms I could tell you about one that's for rent," said Chatty. "The one that's just across the hall from where I live is vacant—and it's awfully nice and clean and sunny."

Billie straightened up in her chair. "Four rooms are just what my sister and I want," she said hopefully. "I'll go home and get something to eat, and then I'll have George drive me out to where you live. Can you get the key so it'll be there when I come?"

Chatty said she would, and that night she got the key from Mrs. Chatterton, and offered to "show" the flat for the landlord.

At eight o'clock Billie came, leaving her George to wait for her downstairs in his little car that was much newer looking than Dave Jordan's muddy open roadster.

WEEK OF OCTOBER 27

The first few days of the week beginning October 27th in most parts of Michigan are expected to be rather settled, fair and cool like an average October day should be, when a great deal of farm work can be accomplished without overheating.

Just before the middle of the week temperatures will have dropped close to the normal reading for this time of year. About Wednesday the sky will have become overcast with clouds generally throughout the state with resultant scattered rains or snow flurries.

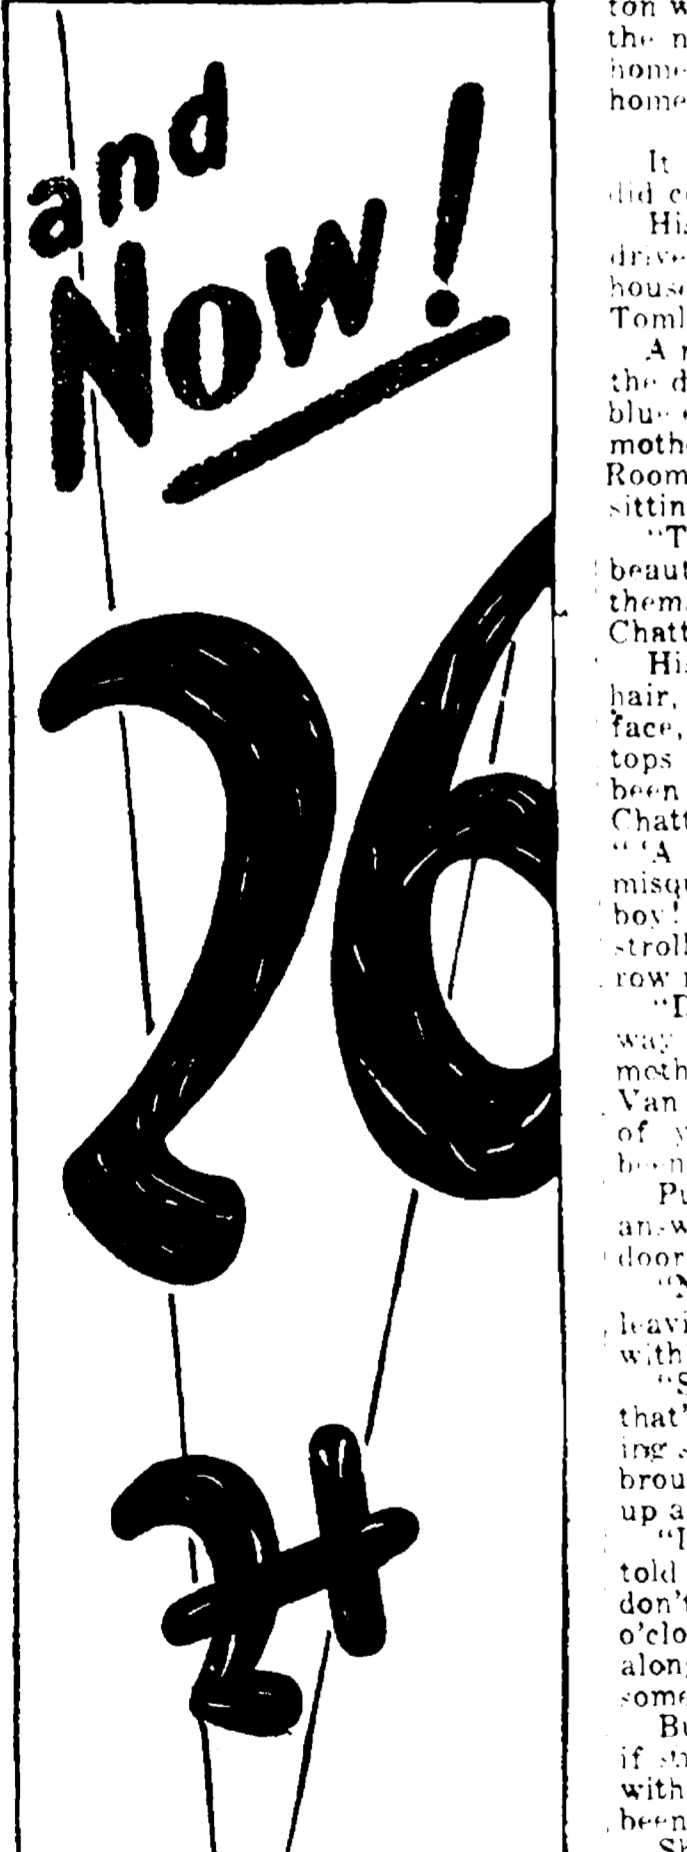

For the last half of the week temperatures will fall quite low for this time of year with frosts general throughout the state.

The last two days of the week which are also the first two days of November are expected to be rather cold and stormy, including wind, rain and probably some snow in sections.

November Prospects

Hauling and hauling corn and cartage of sugar beets and potatoes will be somewhat hindered during the month of November as a result of the many showery days expected. A great percentage of the days this month will not have a great deal of sunshine and this, together with the wet conditions expected will keep the fields too moist to properly gather the crops still outdoors. Farm work generally will be considerably hindered and little fall plowing will be done during this month. About the only good coming out of this month's weather will be seen in the winter grain fields where wheat, rye and oats are growing. These and meadows should fare well during this 30-day period in most parts of Michigan, where the temperatures are expected to be lower than usual and the precipitation somewhat higher.

and Now!

NAVY DAY

Navy Day will be observed throughout the nation next Monday, October 28. Each year since beginning in 1922, Navy Day has been observed under the sponsorship of patriotic and civic societies with the cooperation of the Navy department and other federal agencies. On that day its sponsors seek to recall the splendid services the Navy has rendered towards making and keeping us a nation and to take some thought to the American people of the proper part the Navy plays in our national life.

Government in this country is by public opinion and public opinion in order to be sound must be informed. Observances of Navy Day in the past have contributed to a better understanding of the Navy and of its unity of interest with every part of the community.

While the Navy League first sponsored the observance of Navy Day, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and many other of the great patriotic veteran and civic organizations have participated wholeheartedly in the occasion from the beginning.

On Navy Day this year, as in the past, its sponsors wish also to pay a tribute to the memory of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, the anniversary of whose birth falls on the day preceding.

FIRE PREVENTION DON'T
Common suggestions on fire prevention include the following:

Keep matches in metal boxes where children cannot reach them.

Don't keep ashes in wooden boxes or deposit them against wooden buildings or partitions.

Don't change your electric wiring without consulting a competent electrician.

Don't hang electric light cords on nails.

Don't go into closets with lighted matches or candles.

Don't pass stovepipe through ceiling roofs or wooden partitions.

Every open fire-place should have a screen.

Don't use gasoline or benzine to clean clothing near an open flame, light or fire.

Don't use liquid polishes near open lights. Many such compounds contain inflammable oils.

Don't use kerosene, benzine or naphtha in lighting fires or to quicken a slow fire.

Sweden Noted for Its Varieties of Dialects

Sweden has as many different dialects as it has provinces—ranging from the half-swallowed Danishlike talk of Scania to the high-pitched sing-song speech of Dalecarlia. But although the dialects of the country people are confusing they use the same words in most cases and a short residence among the inhabitants is sufficient to bring a glimmering of understanding, even to the person acquainted only with Stockholmese.

There is one language, however, which utterly defies comprehension by anyone not brought up with it and strangely enough it has found its origin in the heart of Stockholm, the largest city in the country. Soderamerisk, or "South American," as it is called, is spoken more or less as a slang by people living on the large island of "Soeder," which lies on the south side of Lake Maclaren and the Salt Lake. Some of the expressions are slang—taken from pure Swedish, an example of which is the word "boena," meaning "bean" in Swedish and "girl" in Soderamerisk. Most of the words are variations of foreign nouns, verbs and adjectives, which have been brought home from dozens of different countries by sailors—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Arabic Language Makes No Use of the Vowels

In Arabic, vowels are not represented at all. The English word "catalogue" would be spelled "catig" in Arabic characters. If the reader did not know the word, he could recognize it only by the context.

Although the Roman alphabet may not be ideally adapted to the Turkish language, its practicability is proved by the fact that both the Hungarians and the Finns, whose languages are closely related to Turkish, have used it for generations.

Turkish written in Roman characters looks slightly like Italian. It has the advantage over English and French in that it is completely phonetic. There are no silent letters and every letter always has the same sound wherever it appears.

The Persian language, which also uses the Arabic alphabet, would likewise be greatly benefited by a change similar to that made in Turkey. The small republic of Azerbaijan on the Caspian sea, one of the Union of Soviet Republics, is already using Roman letters, and it is expected that the other Tartar and Turcoman republics will follow suit.—The Living Age.

National Capitol Pictures

"The Baptism of Pocahontas," "The Embarkation of the Pilgrims," "The Landing of Columbus" and "The Discovery of the Mississippi River" are merely conceptions of the artists, while other pictures hung on the walls of the rotunda in the Capitol at Washington are true to life and events. These are the Trumbull paintings—"The Declaration of Independence," "The Surrender of General Burgoyne at Saratoga," "The Surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown" and "General Washington Resigning His Commission as Commander in Chief of the Continental Armies"—and were done by the artist from sketches made where the events took place and with personal acquaintance with most of the characters depicted.

Ancient Masques

A masque was a species of dramatic entertainment which reached the highest popularity in England in the reign of James I but which also was a favorite diversion at the courts of Henry VIII and Elizabeth. The masque probably grew out of the "mummings" which are heard of in England as early as 1377. Masques were commonly played before royalty and the nobility. Rev. Ronald Bayne, writing of the masque, says, "Essential masque was the appeal of the moment to the eye, and the ear, the blaze of color and light, the mist of perfumes, the succession of rapidly changing scenes and tableaux crowded with wonderful and beautiful figures."

Proof

He was a cautious young man and a firm believer in eugenics, but when he met the doctor's lovely daughter he fell in love with her, and finally threw discretion to the winds and asked her to marry him.

She accepted him and he was in the seventh heaven all the evening.

Next morning, however, his natural caution returned, and he called upon her father.

"Oh, doctor," he said, "your—your daughter has promised to marry me. I—I wanted to know—that is to say, I—came to ask if there is any—er—in sanity in your family."

The doctor looked at him gravely over his glasses.

"There must be," he said.

Man Who "Never Died"

Enoch, the father of Methuselah, never saw death, according to Heb. 11:5. "By faith," the passage says, "Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and he was not found, because God translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God." This passage is the basis for the popular but misleading statement that Methuselah, the oldest man mentioned in the Bible, died before his father did. Gen. 5:25 simply says: "and Enoch walked with God; and he was not; for God took him."

Sees Mankind Without

Eithe. Teeth or Chin

That mankind will not need to worry much longer about getting toothache or spilling remnants of breakfast on its chin is the conclusion of a British student of dental architecture, Dr. G. B. Palmer.

Soon men will have, he believes, neither teeth nor chin for any purpose at all. Toothless and chinless our descendants will roam the world, unless something forces a radical change in human food. Ages ago men and other animals needed really to work their jaws in order to eat.

Cooking had not reduced the majority of foods to a soft pulp, knives and forks had not been invented to relieve the teeth of their primal duty to tear off whatever was to be eaten.

That is why nearly all the animals of man's class developed outward pointing front teeth that can bite or gnaw bits of meat or bark or succulent root. That is the reason, too, for the sharp-pointed "canine" teeth on either side of the front ones—special implements to transfix the selected morsel while it is being gnawed loose.

Nowadays none of these duties are necessary. Cooking and table manners have displaced them. Nature is always economical, Doctor Palmer believes, and accordingly she is gradually reducing the length of the human chin, the protrusion of the front teeth and the strength and number of the teeth themselves. In a few hundred years table manners are apt to leave everybody chinless and almost jawless.—E. E. Free, Ph. D., in the Washington Star.

Odd Foods Favored in

Congo and Elsewhere

Koreans, like many orientals, live mostly on rice. They cook their seaweed in oil and serve it with slices of red peppers. Kimsbee, a kind of sauerkraut, is a favorite Korean dish. To the north, the natives of Kamchatka relish the tongues and the marrow of the bones of reindeer, but the piece-of-resistance is the meat of unborn fawns. From the stomach of the reindeer the natives obtain their greens—half-digested balls of moss. A delectable native dish is reindeer sausage which has been surrounded by dough and dropped in boiling water. On the lower end of the peninsula, where salmon are plentiful, dishes of boiled fish eyes are considered a delicacy.

Perhaps few people live as close to nature as the pygmies of the Belgian Congo. Tender roots are staples, but birds, small game, rodents or caterpillars are not objectionable. A dish of white ants is prized highly by these diminutive people, while a slice of raw elephant meat makes a feast.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

"For that they served His world"

—Kipling

NOT by luck, not by accident were Thomas A. Edison's inventions successful. Each experiment was the logical outgrowth of previous observations. His method depended but little upon theory. Having satisfied himself that there was a market for a certain invention—like the electric light—he would exhaust the literature on all allied subjects before beginning his experiments. A gas expert once said that Mr. Edison knew more about gas lighting than any other man living. When he had begun his research, he and his assistants tried everything that showed any promise. If an experiment failed, he learned why, then went about eliminating defects. His fifty-thousand storage battery experiments are illustrative of his method.

"Let There Be Light"

As a boy, Edison had an insatiable appetite for books, and in this trait he was encouraged by his mother, with whose help he read—before the age of twelve—Gibbons' "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" and other historical and scientific works of equally lofty content. His father also stimulated these literary tastes by paying him a small sum for each book mastered. He even attempted to read every book in the Detroit Public Library, and had progressed through several long shelves of volumes before he was discovered and guided into more profitable channels. In his baggage-car laboratory and another in the basement of his home, he acquired such vast knowledge in practical chemistry that today he has few peers in this science.

Mr. Edison was very fond of telling and hearing stories, and always appreciated a joke. One of his early associates relates: "I remember one that he liked to get off on us once in a while. Our lighting plant was in duplicate, and about 12:30 or 1:00 o'clock in the morning, a change would be made from one plant to the other, involving a gradual extinction of the electric lights and their slowly coming up to candle power again. The whole change requiring probably about thirty seconds. Sometimes, as this was taking place, Edison would fold his hands, compose himself as if he were in sound sleep, and when the lights were full again would apparently wake up, with the remark, "Well boys, we've had a fine rest; now let's pitch in to work again!"

ONLY a mind and a body possessing amazing stamina could have withstood such fatigue as Mr. Edison imposed upon himself—to the extent, on one occasion, of going five days without sleep. It is small wonder that such perseverance was rewarded with over 1500 patents in the United States alone.

Mr. Edison is credited with saying that if he has achieved anything worthwhile, it is due to the obstinacy and pertinacity inherited from his forefathers. Equally indicative of the man's overwhelming modesty is his classic remark, "Genius is 1 per cent inspiration and 99 per cent perspiration."

By example, by genial companionship, Mr. Edison maintained a remarkable enthusiasm and esprit de corps in his laboratories. Here is a normal, fun-loving American—plain, placid, affectionate, beloved by all his associates. Self-educated, with only three months of formal schooling, this newsboy and candy butcher lived to be decorated for his benefactions to mankind with the honors of all the leading nations and scientific societies of the earth.

BECAUSE Thomas Alva Edison lived and worked, untold millions of people are happier, more comfortable, more intelligent citizens. Because of his inventions, industry has geared its mechanism to electrical power, the world is brighter with electric light, and men and women everywhere are saved the toil now shouldered by electrical devices, in home and factory. Without the inventions of Edison, there might today be no motion picture industry, no photographs, no electric railways, no practical telephone. A hundred industries are more productive because he lived. The inventions of Thomas Alva Edison will serve his fellowmen for unnumbered generations.

True, in a certain sense of the word. Yet, when it comes to money matters a man more often than not has himself to blame if failure falls to his lot. Especially, if he stepped right into a proposition without the good council of those who have had wide financial experience.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES MAY ARREST DRUNKEN HUNTERS

State conservation officers are peace officers in the opinion of the attorney general and therefore are empowered to enforce the drunken hunter law passed by the last session of the last legislature by making arrests without a warrant.

There has been considerable controversy over the power of the game wardens in making arrests under the statute. Had it required a warrant before an arrest could be made it would have made the conservation officers powerless in enforcing the law. It is the plan of the department to take into custody all drunken hunters found in the woods or marshes. The wardens will take the hunter to the nearest court, and if a physician is available the hunter will be examined before him before he is taken into court for a hearing.

While there are exceptions to the rule a great majority of the hunting camps in Michigan operate under regulations which prohibit any member of the party from going into the woods after taking a drink, or from totting a flask with him. It was the occasional violator of the unwritten law in the enactment of the Conlon law. The penalty is 90 days or a fine of $100 or both in the discretion of the court.

WORKING WEEK OF FARM WOMEN OVER 63 HOURS

More than 63 hours a week is the average "working time" for 700 farm women who kept records and reported to the bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture.

They reported an average 52 hours and 17 minutes spent on strictly home-making activities alone. This is more than the 44-hour working week which is the standard in industry, the bureau points out. In addition, these women spent an average of 11 hours and 13 minutes a week on dairy work, care of poultry, gardening, and other outside tasks.

Some of these 700 home-makers lived in the middle west; some in New York state, and some in three far western states. The group as a whole represents rather superior home-makers—those likely to cut down working time by intelligent methods. For the country as a whole the average working time would probably be higher, the bureau says.

Figures for the New York home-makers are typical. They show that feeding the family occupied 25 hours and 51 minutes; cleaning and straightening the house required 8 hours and 15 minutes; and that other items in the care of the house added 2 hours and 17 minutes. Laundering, sewing, mending, care of clothing, care of children, and other management and miscellaneous items filled the other remaining hours of the total.

Clearly the farm home-maker enjoys very little of that leisure the modern woman is popularly credited with, according to this study. The city home-maker's situation may be somewhat different. For the farm home-maker, however, ready-made clothing, ready-cooked foods, and better equipment and household conveniences have not offset the fact that at present she gets much less help from other members of the family than the farm mothers of 40 or 50 years ago. At best the farm home-maker still has a long day, and by industry's standard, may be classed as overworked, the bureau of home economics concludes.

THE LOVER'S SONG

Lend me thy fillet, Love!
I would no longer see:
Cover mine eyelids close awhile,
And make me blind like thee.

Then might I pass her sunny face,
And know not it was fair;
Then might I hear her voice, nor guess
Her starry eyes were there.

Ah! banished so from stars and sun—
Why need it be my fate?
If only she might dream me good
And wise, and be my mate!

Lend her thy fillet, Love!
Let her no longer see:
If there is hope for me at all,
She must be blind like thee.

Directoire Influence Seen in Mode

By LUCY CLAIRE

In some of the more recent importations from Paris, especially in the evening or group for formal wear, we find the waistline raised so very high, and the skirts so long, that it reminds one of the era when women were daring enough to leave off their hoop skirts and crinolines for the long, flowing gowns that caress the figure, with the waistline marked by a girde just under the bust.

In fact, not a few of the buyers and stylists returning from Paris, see a trend toward the directoire period in the new models. It is not quite back to the empire days, but the intricate manipulations, involved cuts, fittings, points, shirtings and crossed bandings that give the flat waistline effect in front, do bring the lines up under the bust.

There is one thing to be said about the raised waistline, and that one thing is rather important. It does give a youthful silhouette which offsets the more mature long skirt. It certainly looks as though waistlines would go higher and skirts drop lower before there is any lengthening of the one and shortening of the other. Some of the later model evening skirts in the Paris openings were but five inches from the floor, just the length our rainy day sisters had such a fuss about when skirts touched the ground in their effort to shorten them a quarter of a century ago.

Fitted Lines Favored
Since girls will be their own sweet selves, and no longer boys, the fitted lines are gaining favor. Everything is now fitted, from the top of the head to the toes of the feet. Curves are once more curves and not straight lines. Shoes are simpler, but daintier than ever before, and kid is most generally used because it gives the glove-like fit in keeping with the snug hip-line and closer fitted body lines of the silhouette.

The empire or directoire influence will be noted in the evening model sketched at the left. Here the waistline is not only raised to slightly above normal, but the soft bodice, with its molded bust lines and crossed front coming well up under the bust, as well as the long, flowing skirt, show the directoire influence. The gown is of transparent velvet in one of the lighter dahlia shades, and is worn with kid pumps of the same color.

In the center sketch is shown an afternoon frock of navy blue crepe, as worn by Elsie Ferguson in her present Broadway success. Here, too, the higher waistline is featured in a princess model with bolero treatment, which gives the effect of the under-the-bust line. The bolero itself, however, would mark the Spanish influence which is strongly felt this season, both in silhouette and colors. Blue kid pumps with the self-leather bow replacing the buckle, are worn with this frock.

Still another model showing the directoire influence is shown at the right of the sketch. Here the manipulation of the bodice gives the flat front and the raised line coming under the bust. The frock is of brown cloth, and a leather belt, felt hat and kid shoes in darker brown accompany the costume. The bow at the neckline is also in the darker shade of brown.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

MENU HINT

Dinner
Beef Balls en Casserole
Creamed Corn Cabbage Salad
Fruit Salad Coffee
This menu will serve three.

RECIPES

Beef Balls en Casserole—One pound steak chopped, one-half cup bread or cracker crumbs, one egg well beaten, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon onion juice. Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Form into balls, place in a casserole in a hot oven and brown the balls. When the meat is brown, add six medium potatoes, eight onions, one green pepper, one teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups tomato soup. Cover the casserole and bake in a moderate oven for one and one-half hours.

Fruit Salad—One cup diced pineapple, two cups diced, canned peaches, one cup seeded white cherries. Mix and chill the ingredients. Drain and serve on lettuce and top with French dressing.

SUGGESTIONS

Successful Casserole Dishes
In preparing casserole meals, one may combine nutritive value and good flavor with the saving of time and labor. Casserole meals mean a lesser number of pans on the stove to be looked after, and also fewer dishes to be taken care of after the meal.

Such meals offer all kinds of opportunities for variety and a saving in expense as well. In casserole dishes, one may utilize the less expensive meats and vegetables, for the long cooking improves their flavor and makes them tender.

Special care should be taken to season casserole dishes properly—a dash of Worcestershire sauce, a bit of prepared mustard, or a few tablespoons of chili sauce or tomato soup, add much to the appetizing flavor of a slowly cooked oven meal.

Launder Often

Changing and laundering hosiery at frequent intervals add more to the wearing qualities than most people know. Hosiery that is worn but one day and then laundered will last twice as long as hosiery worn two or three days. The reason is simple. Washing removes the thinned mesh, so that the subsequent wear comes on the rematted fibers instead of on the stretched and thinned mesh. Almost all guaranteed hosiery is sold by the half-dozen pairs. Why? Because having six pairs of hosiery induces more frequent changes than having only two pairs.

The person who suffers from cold feet or excessive perspiration of the feet should wear cashmere hosiery. You can buy cashmere hose in various weights, from the heaviest to some as fine as silk hose, and beautifully woven.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D. DON'T HALT PLAYTIME ABRUPTLY

Billy was four. With his father, mother, and baby sister, he was visiting in the home of a relative. He was building with his cousin's blocks, and he had about completed a fine structure which was very precious to the lad.

Suddenly the father, looking at his watch, observed that it was late, and decided they must go home immediately.

Billy begged that he might wait until he finished his garage. "Just a few minutes more, Daddy, please," the boy begged. "No," replied the father. "Not another minute; we have stayed too long already. Put on your things at once." The lad objected, kicked and cried, yelling, "Darn you, Daddy," whereupon he was made to sit in a chair. No time limit was announced, but there was waged a verbal battle. Dad repeated what the boy had to do, and why he was being punished, and the lad continued kicking, screaming, striking, slipping from the chair, he growing angrier and the father more determined to win out. By and by the boy's coat and hat were forced upon him, and he was dragged out the door into the car, against the best resistance he could offer, shouting loudly, as long as those left behind could hear: "I want to play with the blocks."

This tragedy could well have been averted if the father had been patient, had thought through the situation, and had given the child some warning, a reasonable time for emotional adjustment.

You and I are tremendously annoyed when someone arbitrarily demands that we shift suddenly from what we are doing. But as a rule we just don't respond; we assert our rights and win; at least we almost always find a way to keep our self-respect.

Had he told the lad, "We must go in 15 minutes," or "As soon as the roof is finished we must leave for home," there doubtless would have been no difficulty. As it turned out, more than 15 minutes were used up in the unsuccessful fight, and resistances were set up to co-operation in the future.

A dad will romp with his youngster and enjoy the fun when, by and by, he wearies and announces without warning, "No more." But the child cannot be ready for such discontinuance of his joyful play and, of course, is almost sure to fly into a rage. A better way is to announce, "Just two more jumps, just two more times," so that the child can adjust himself and make ready for the ending.

Wise parents never make demands for sudden shifting or cessation of enjoyable activities by children. They give ample warning. Even when they call the child off five in from play, they first let him know that he will be called in, say, three minutes. Then after three minutes by the clock they have passed they call, expecting the child to come at once. Treated so he can easily be trained to come very promptly.

We cannot shift the child's interests and activities as we shift a lever; feelings don't respond that way. It takes time for emotional adjustments. The sooner we who are parents learn this fact the happier we will be, and the more obedient and co-operative will our children grow. Let's be sensible.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A young man signing himself "Sonny Boy," writes me his grievance. He is 28 and his wife 25. They have three children. He was wild for the first year or so of their married life—he drank and gambled, but did not go with bad women, he says. He says, "I am a self-raised man. I always was wild. I could not help it."

He came to his senses after awhile, left his home and went away to work, sending all his money home, even denying himself smokes. When he finally came home his welcome from his wife was, "Who sent for you?"

She and her mother and a woman friend and three men were drinking in his home. The wife's father and mother encourage her to drink and run around with a man much older than she.

The question is, what is the husband to do? He is anxiously awaiting my reply.

Try patience and right living awhile and see if it won't work out. Sonny Boy. You started this racket, you see, and really you had no more excuse than your wife. If you were "self-raised" she had parents who set anything but a good example. You have come to see that drink and bad companions do not get you anywhere, now see if you cannot be patient and maybe your wife will discover the same thing.

Take care of your children and try to bring them up properly, and do your best to make your companionship so pleasant that your wife will want to stay with you and the babies. And if your parents-in-law make trouble, you can forbid them the house, you know, although that would be an extreme measure.

Could you move away with your family? That would get you both away from bad company and you could start afresh. You worked in another town when you left work in the same place again and take the family with you.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 18 and have been married two years but don't have any children. I have a very pretty little home, and both my husband and I work.

"My husband is so jealous I can hardly bear it. Instead of getting better he gets worse. He won't even let me out to a show with other married girls. My friends advise me to leave him, but I love my home. What am I to do? I have coaxed and pleaded with him but he is just the same. He won't trust me out of his sight.

"Every night when I come home I have to explain everything I did and why. Please help me.

"UNHAPPY WIFE."
You will have to make the choice between your home and peace of mind, dear. Your husband is utterly selfish, and the only way you can manager him is to tell him decidedly that if he continues so unreasonable you will have to leave him. You give him no cause to be jealous, of course. You don't try to tease him by flirting even a little, do you? Because if you do you are to blame a little, too.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: For the last two years I have been going steady with a fellow, but thought I tired of him, and told him I didn't wish to see him any more. I have realized what a mistake I made and would like to win him back. I do not even speak to him. I would be satisfied only to be friends. Please tell me how to do it.

"DISCOURAGED FRIEND."
This answer of mine to you girls who give your boy friends the air and then want them back is getting to be stereotyped. Write him a note Discouraged, and tell him you are sorry you said you didn't wish to see him any more. Tell him you would like to be friends and ask him to come to see you. If he pays no attention you'll know he doesn't want to come back. Probably he'll jump at the chance to come back, however.

The World and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

MR. FORD IS A SUCCESS

Henry Ford sat in his old seat in school, not long ago. He sat there, right in time of school, and carved his initials with a jack-knife, in the top of his desk.

The children stared. They stared first at Mr. Ford, the big boy with the sharp knife, and then at the teacher. They couldn't believe it. Here was a fellow who could carve his initials in the desk, right before teacher, and teacher daren't make him stop!

What boy hasn't dreamed of achieving that degree of success?

Of course, Henry Ford dreamed that dream. He sat in that very seat, a good many years ago, and didn't seem to shine very much. His marks weren't high enough to attract attention.

But Henry could dream. Some day he would buy this old schoolhouse, move it somewhere on to his own ground, hire a teacher out of his own pocket, and sit down and carve his initials right before the teacher, and if she said anything he'd fire her. Henry could see those initials taking shape: H. F., with a great big capital H, properly trimmed and cut good and deep. Then the F, with a bit of fancy finishing on the ends of the arms. Oh,

Henry could carve all right, and some day he'd own a dandy big Barlow knife that would make all the kids stare.

Well, Henry did it. He bought the schoolhouse out of hand, and could easily buy ten thousand others just like it if he wanted to. He moved it to his own ground, where he has a whole town of antique houses and inns and people, with children going to the old schoolhouse to study under a teacher employed by himself.

Then he went in and sat down and carved his old desk up good and proper!

Henry Ford is a success. He has reached the pinnacle envisioned by every boy who ever went to a one-room rural school. He couldn't be a greater success if he were to drive the twenty-horse team on the circus bandwagon, right down Main street before all the people in town. Even if he owned a whale ship and stood on the prow and threw the harpoon into the old sperm whale, he would not be any bigger hero.

Don't get discouraged when the teacher keeps you in after school, boys! Anything is possible in this magic America of ours. See what Henry Ford did!

RESORT GROUP SETS FUND TO GREET GUESTS

The Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, at the suggestion of Elmer J. Hanna of Harbor Springs, recently set aside $5,000 to educate western Michigan residents in proper preparation for increased tourist and resort trade.

Hanna maintained the resort business would be materially injured if increased tourist business should be inadequately handled.

The association asked appointment of a committee to ascertain how insurance rates might be reduced; creation of another committee to bring about a plan for proper inspection of tourists' accommodation homes and recommended the shortening of the school year as a means of lengthening the resort season.

All officers except the second vice-president, a post to be filled by L. J. Thompson, Grand Rapids, were re-elected. They are: President, Carroll F. Sweet, Grand Rapids; first vice-president, Archie E. McCrea, Muskegon; treasurer, H. E. Hastings, Muskegon; secretary and manager, Hugh J. Gray, Grand Rapids.

Members of the executive committee, in addition to the officers, are: C. I. Monroe, Watervliet; John E. Berglin, Big Rapids; and Elmer J. Hanna, Harbor Springs.

The End of an Old Chapter and the Start of a New

Huge Flocks Are Seen on Michigan Tour

Farms where they keep 5,000 laying hens, raise 25,000 chicks, keep 28,000 rabbits, have 1,500 turkeys or grow and market 60,000 ducks a year, were just stopping places along the route of the second annual Michigan Poultry Tour.

That poultry raising has gone beyond the spare time class was also proved by the inspection of plants which are equipped to incubate 140,000 eggs at one time and those which have laying houses to accommodate 50,000 hens.

The trend of the poultry business was shown by barns which formerly had been used to house livestock but which after remodeling, are now devoted to the production of first class eggs.

Eighty-two cars left East Lansing on the aqueduct route to be increased at different points along the route. Towns visited were Bancroft, Holly, Oxford, Romeo, Denton, Ann Arbor, Bridgewater, Napoleon, Jackson, Springport, Battle Creek, Augusta, Middleville, and Lowell.

A banquet at Lowell which was attended by 200 poultry men was the closing number of this year's tour.

STATE OSTEOPATHS WILL MEET IN G. R.

Western Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons is to be host to the members of the state association at a two-day convention at the Pantlind hotel in Grand Rapids Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. Plans for entertainment of delegates at this convention were made at the October meeting of the society.

A downward revision of federal taxes on earned income was advocated in a resolution adopted by the association. Dr. R. T. Lustig, Grand Rapids, president of the association, called attention to the fluctuations in income of members of the profession and mention was made of the expense of preparing for the profession.

Improvement of business methods by doctors was suggested by Dr. R. V. Gladioux of Grand Rapids as a remedy for the heavy load of unpaid bills carried on the doctor's books. Dr. Gladioux pointed out the doctor bill is likely to come last unless he sees that his account is just as collectable as that of other businesses.

First of 100 Suing Candy Firm Wins

A verdict of $1,318.60 was awarded Adelbert Thompson, Lainesburg merchant, by a jury in circuit court against A. R. Walker of Muskegon, president of the defunct A. R. Walker Candy corporation, his wife and J. J. Kooman of Owosso and A. L. Merrick of Detroit, former officials of the company.

Thompson sued for $12,500. His case was the first of more than 100. An appeal to the supreme court will be taken and plaintiffs' attorneys have agreed not to bring any of the other cases up for trial until the supreme court decides the Thompson case.

More than $1,000,000 is asked in all of the suits.

The plaintiffs all charge conspiracy to defraud, claiming that the Walker officials represented their company as being on a sound basis financially and sold stock on the basis of this claim, when as a matter of fact, they alleged, the company was insolvent as far back as 1920.

Pipes Gas to Eaton

Eaton Rapids was given gas service through high pressure mains from the Lansing plant of the Consumers' Power company during the past week. The lines were extended from Mason to the Eaton county town. The line will be extended on to Charlotte within the next fortnight, and the Charlotte plant which formerly served that city and Eaton Rapids will be abandoned.

The Lansing plant now serves a district including, besides the city, East Lansing, Grand Ledge, Holt, Mason, Okemos, Williamston, Fowler, Webberville, Howell and Eaton Rapids. A new 2,000,000 cubic-foot gasholder and other equipment has been added to the Lansing plant recently and a still larger expansion program is contemplated next year, according to Clark R. Graves, district manager of the company.

George was waiting in her parlor.

"Either you or I, old fellow,

Unnecessary Pain!

Nowadays, people take Bayer Aspirin for many little aches and pains, and as often as they encounter any pain.

Why not? It is a proven antidote for pain. It works!

And Bayer Aspirin tablets are utterly harmless. You have the medical profession's word for that; they do not depress the heart.

So, don't let a cold "run its course." Don't wait for a headache to "wear off." Or regard neuralgia, neuritis, or even rheumatism as something you must endure. Only a physician can cope with the cause of such pain, but

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

you can always turn to Bayer Aspirin for relief. Bayer Aspirin is always available and it always helps. Family doctors recommend it with its many uses, and avoid a lot of needless suffering.

PLUMBERS OF STATE AFFECTED BY NEW LAW

Approximately 5,000 Michigan plumbers will be affected by the new law which went into operation Aug. 28, requiring the licensing after Jan. 1, 1930, of all plumbers in the state, according to announcement from the Michigan department of health, which has supervision of the enforcement of the law.

Both master and journeyman plumbers are urged by the department to file their applications for license immediately. Those applying before Jan. 1 and furnishing proof that they were engaged in the business of master or journeyman plumber on March 1, 1929, and possess the qualifications required by the law will be granted a license without examination. After Jan. 1, 1930, licenses will be issued only after the applicant has passed an examination prescribed by a board of three plumbing examiners. Plumbers' apprentices also must be registered.

Plumbing inspection will be started after the first of the year when the system of licensing has gone into effect, the announcement continues. Inspectors working under the direction of the bureau of engineering of the Michigan department of health will carry out the provisions of the law.

Reo Gets Japanese Order

The distributor of Reo products at Tokyo, Japan, has recently forwarded to the Lansing plant an order for 100 Speedwagons which are to be shipped as early as possible. The entire shipment will go to a single fleet operator, it is said, who bought another 100 Reo commercial cars earlier in the year.

Fires In Oil Fields Alarm Warden

Recent fires in the Mt. Pleasant oil fields have caused H. J. Andrews, chief fire warden, and C. V. Lane, assistant state fire marshal, department of insurance, to again call attention of all gas and oil operators of Michigan to a bulletin they issued several months ago, reviewing the 1915 oil fire prevention statute.

This statute lists means of eliminating fire hazards in the oil fields, and these were included in the bulletin sent all operators.

All slash and debris created by the erection or construction of derricks, storage tanks, nitro-glycerine magazines, storerooms, dykes and retaining walls, and in the construction of roads to them, must be disposed of in a manner and place satisfactory to representatives of the department of conservation, the bulletin says. If after the slash has been picked up and put on wagons or trucks, the operator can find some other means of disposal satisfactory to the representatives of the department of conservation, such means of disposal can be used.

A space at least 50 feet wide shall be completely cleaned around every drill rig, well, storage tank (whether permanent or temporary), and nitro-glycerine magazine. All inflammable material resulting from such clearing shall be removed and disposed.

On the outside edge of each of these cleared strips a strip of soil at least four feet wide shall be either plowed or shoveled so that the mineral soil is exposed.

A fence shall be strung around each drill rig, oil well, storage tank and nitro-glycerine magazine.

No Smoking and No Trespassing signs are furnished by the department of conservation. They shall be posted by the operator around each drilling operation, producing well, storage tank and nitro-glycerine magazine.

Marriage Records Found Incomplete

Because more than 100 returns on marriage licenses have not been sent to the county clerk by officiating clergymen expected to tie the marital Lyman A. Vincent of Jackson county has appealed for aid to couples contemplating matrimony.

They are asked to give the names of clergymen expected to tie the marital knot when they make application for licenses.

In several recent instances proof of marriage demanded by some couples could not be obtained, the county clerk said, and many persons had been caused embarrassment by the incomplete records.

Belding, Greenville To Remain on M-66

A delegation of Belding and Greenville men who called on Governor Green at Lansing recently were assured by the governor that M-66 would remain as it is and not be swung off to the east from Six Lakes and down over M-43. Governor Green said, however, that Lowell would lose M-66 and that it would go through Saranac, then to Hastings, Battle Creek and on down to the state line.

DEER AND BEAR REFUGE ADDED TO STATE PARKS

A big deer and bear refuge with thousands of acres of public hunting grounds almost surrounding it, has been established by the conservation commission in the Pigeon River district of Otsego and Cheboygan counties.

The refuge with its adjoining public hunting grounds constitutes what the department believes may be the answer to two much discussed questions: how to help increase wild life and still provide good free hunting grounds for the thousands of hunters who are not members of clubs.

During the recent years the conservation department has acquired through tax delinquency, by purchase and by exchange, the bulk of all land and water in a block of country nine miles long and six miles wide and adjoining the 16,000 acres previously acquired in the Pigeon River State Forest and Game Refuge.

These lands lie along the Pigeon River east of Wolverine and Vanderbilt. The river is well known for its trout.

A few years ago deer in this district were few and far between, but a large game refuge, most of which was on privately owned land, was established five years ago. Fires have been held to small areas and the deer have now begun to come back.

Elk were planted here in 1918 and have increased steadily so that they are now often seen by visitors and travelers along the woods roads. Elk are, of course, entirely protected in Michigan.

Bear are also quite common and seem to be more than holding their own in the Pigeon River country.

During the years when partridge were plentiful this district furnished some exceptionally good hunting.

Bus Laws Suggested

Michigan Public Utilities Commission has promulgated six rules relating to the operation of motor buses and trucks for hire. A rule requiring every vehicle to be equipped with two oil-burning torches has been suggested. This rule requires that when a bus or truck is forced to stop on the highway, one torch shall be placed 20 feet ahead and one 20 feet behind. Another new rule is that no driver shall work more than 10 hours in an 18-hour period. Other rules require that every driver shall be at least 21 years old; that every passenger bus shall carry at least one extra tire and that every bus and truck shall be equipped with a standard speedometer which shall be maintained in good working order. Operators of passenger buses are forbidden to smoke while driving.

WIN FROM ANN ARBOR TEAM

Despite a drizzling rain the game between the Pinckney Panthers and the Ann Arbor Independent foot ball came off as scheduled and the Pinckney team came out of the contest victorious by a score of 28 to 12. Pinckney starting to receive the kick off, made a couple of first downs through rushing and then lost the ball on a fumble. Ann Arbor made a number of gains through the Pinckney line but were finally forced to punt. Pinckney started on a march for the goal line with Weddige and Swarthout carrying the ball most of the time and reached the five yard line where Swarthout went over for a touchdown. Mike Blades went through tackle for the extra point. Late in the half Graham crossed the line for a touchdown. Swarthout's attempt to placekick the extra point failed. Score at half Pinckney 7, Ann Arbor 0.

In the second half the Pinckney team got started and ran up twenty-two points. Most of these were made on line plunges and end runs. Late in the first period Swarthout started a forward pass and one was caught by Hendon for a thirty yard gain. Reason caught the last one and ran for yards for a touchdown. The boys notwithstanding their long absence from the game, put up a good contest and Ann Arbor was unable to gain through their line or circle their ends. The only way they were able to advance the ball was by the aerial route, their last touchdown resulting from a forward pass. In this period with only a yard to go for a touchdown, Ann Arbor was unable to gain through the Pinckney line on three attempts and were forced to resort to forward passing to score.

PINCKNEY WINS FROM SOUTH LYON HIGH SCHOOL

Pinckney won from South Lyon high school here last Wednesday by a score of 41 to 14. Pinckney started her regular team and made two touchdowns in quick order, the Pinckney backs having little difficulty in tearing off 20 and 30 yard gains around end. Then the entire second team was put in and left in until the completion of the first half. Against this aggregation South Lyon was only able to score 14 points. They were thrown for losses on end runs repeatedly and unable to complete any forward passes. Finally they pulled their 240 pound center to the backfield and with him carrying the ball were able to score 14 points. The showing made by the youngsters is remarkable as most of them were playing their first game with only a weeks practice. This move was decided upon as the team will lose eight regulars by graduation this year and it was determined to build for next year.

At the beginning of the last half the regulars went back in and ran up 28 points in quick order. Gorycz and Shehan tore off repeated gains through the line and two forward passes were completed which were thrown by Murray Kennedy to Russell Read. South Lyon offered little opposition and if the regulars had played the whole game Pinckney could have run up 100 points. As it was the team got an excellent workout and the coaches were able to get a line on next year's team.

A strong feature of the Interstate Entertainment and Lecture Series being held here this season is J. Franklin Babb, popular lecturer and wit. "Handicapped," Mr. Babb's newest and best lecture, if the testimony of newspapers and mixed audiences all over America can be believed, is one of the very finest things being given from the platform today. There is more eloquence, beautiful word-painting wit and humor, genuine inspiration, practical help and plain horse sense in this lecture masterpiece than in any you will hear in many a day. It will be a pity if a capacity crowd is not out to hear him.

Of Babb the Boston Globe said, "There was a laugh every minute," and the Calgary News said, "His fun never becomes foolishness."

FARMERS BUY FAKE POULTRY MEDICINE FROM SWINDLERS

Michigan poultry men are warned by the poultry department at Michigan State College that at least one man has defrauded state farmers by selling them medicine supposed to cure almost every disease which affect poultry.

The salesman claimed to represent Michigan State college when he sold the remedy to one poultry raiser in St. Clair county. At other points in the state, he has posed as the representative of the Michigan Poultry Laboratory.

A sample of the remedy, when analyzed at the college, contained ground bran or middlings, wood charcoal, quassia, limestone, salt, and Epsom salts. None of these ingredients have a marked remedial effect upon diseases of poultry and any of them can be purchased at local stores if they are wanted.

College poultry specialists advise flock owners to call the local veterinarian, the county agricultural agent, or the college department before investing money in poultry remedies sold by strangers.

THE FALLING AUTUMN LEAVES

The falling autumn leaves is the annual sign that Mother Nature has made provision to save her trees from dying of thirst during the winter.

This explanation, which may serve to soothe the ruffled feelings of home owners who are now busy raking up the leaves, comes from Martin L. Davey, president of the Tree Expert Co. "On the average tree there are several acres of leaves—literally millions of them," Davey said. "Every leaf gives off water. But during the winter the tree's roots absorb very little moisture. Consequently, if the leaves remained on the tree and continued to tap the water supply, the tree would soon die. So nature sentences the leaves to death."

"The process used by Nature to make the leaves fall is complicated. Weeks before the first frost she begins to extract from the leaves all the food substances which the leaves manufacture and which the tree needs and gradually the leaves wither. Simultaneously, a thin-walled layer of cells is formed at the base of the leaf where it is attached to the twig. This layer is a zone of weakness so that eventually the leaf falls of its own weight or is blown off by the wind."

"The scar left by the falling of the leaf is well protected by Nature. It immediately becomes covered with a substance which is practically waterproof. Since the bark of the tree also is almost impervious to water, the entire tree is practically 'bottled up' for the winter."

Davey said that the long drought last summer was responsible for the early falling of the leaves in many sections of the country this fall. Nature hastened the leaf dropping process, he said, so that the tree would not be robbed, through evaporation, of the sap vital for its existence.
