

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 3

The first three days of the week beginning November 3 promise to be generally fair with the daytime temperatures slightly above the mean seasonal normal.

As the middle of the week approaches temperatures will moderate somewhat due to the oncoming of a storm center that will leave rain or snow in its wake.

Storminess will be centered over Michigan during Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. During the latter part of this period temperatures will fall rapidly and to very low readings.

Thunder Storms to Order Our prediction of fall thunder storms for early part of week of October 6 was promptly verified in the northern part of Michigan.

Predicting weather that is common for the season is comparatively easy, but forecasting the out-of-the-ordinary weather is another question.

More and More Colds Treated Externally

Demand for Vicks VapoRub Pioneer of "No Dosing" Method, Grows At Amazing Rate

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Year after year the demand for Vicks has grown until it is now the family standby for colds—adults as well as children's—in more than 60 countries.

A short time ago the famous Vicks slogan "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," was raised to "21 Million" to keep step with the ever-increasing demand.

The Mark of Genuine Aspirin

CHATTY GODDESS OF GAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," etc.

True busy-body that she was, she had hidden herself behind the crisp white curtains in the "Front Room" an hour before, to watch for them.

"They have a canary," she went on excitedly. "Billie's holding the cage in her lap, and the sister has a great big potted palm in her arms. I can't see her face. . . . George Mayhew's helping Billie out of his car, but he's letting the sister scramble out by herself."

"I don't suppose he can be in two places at once," Mrs. Chatterton broke in gently. "Chatty, don't be so hard on people."

Chatty scarcely heard her. She was lost in the scene below. . . . The driver was lifting Billie's furniture out of the truck now, and Chatty wanted to see it all.

"What lovely stuff!" she sighed. "The darriest red lacquer table and chest—and the sweetest little dressing table, all white enamel! Jiminy, but they have pretty things, mother. Just come here and take a peek! You don't know what you're missing!"

Her mother shook her head, with its top-knot of blonde hair that was still bright and wavy, and looked younger than her tired, pale face did, somehow or other.

"I don't do any peeping from behind curtains," she said firmly. "I never have spied on my neighbors, and I'm not going to start it now—and you shouldn't, either, Chatty. It's almost like peeping into their windows."

Chatty turned and gave her a quick, wondering look. "Mother, you're just not human!" she cried. "Haven't you any curiosity about people? Don't you like to know things about them?"

Her mother did not answer, and Chatty turned back to the window. "Well, they must make wonderful salaries to have furniture like that—that's all I have to say!" she declared, her eyes fastened on the truck once more. "It's the kind of stuff that Mrs. Van has in her house—little Oriental rugs and the most wonderful yellow mirror in a silver frame that you ever saw in all your life! And, upon my soul, that man is taking a little bit of a baby grand piano out of the truck! He is! A baby grand PIANO! And a davenport covered with green SATIN BROCADE, if you please! Now, where on earth do you suppose two office girls got the money for gorgeous stuff like that! And not even stenographers, either! Just filing clerks!"

"You don't know what kind of work the sister does, do you?" Mrs. Chatterton interrupted once more. "She may have some very good position, where she makes a great deal of money, Chatty. . . . And if I were you, I wouldn't make remarks like that about a girl who has been as kind as Billie Langenau has been to you! Really, I don't know where you got such a sharp tongue. Not from me, I'm sure."

Chatty turned away from the window. "Well, mother," she said, "if you'd only look at the stuff they're bringing in here you wouldn't scold me. . . . Why, there's never been such stuff on Lipton street before in all the years we've lived here. I'm going over and offer to help them get settled, and I'll just bet you anything that when I get a look at their forks and knives they'll be solid silver! I'll just bet you MONEY on it!"

Billie's sister, Sara, was about thirty. She was taller than Billie. But she had the same lovely dark eyes and hair, and she was beautifully dressed in tan and brown silk.

"Of course, we need help. We need lots of it," she said, when Chatty, covered by a bungalow apron, knocked on the door of the flat and was introduced to her.

"We're going to change our clothes, and plunge right in," Billie added, on her knees beside a suitcase that lay on the floor. "George and the moving man can set the piano up and lay the rugs—and we girls can do the rest of it. Weren't you a dear, Chatty, to come over and lend a hand?"

By half past six the little place was in order. Even the pale yellow silk curtains were at the windows and the clean towels hung in straight rows in the white-tiled bathroom.

forks of sterling silver. And upon the handle of each one of them was engraved an old English "B."

"What's 'B' for—for 'Billie'?" she asked bluntly. "Sara looked up and shook her head big as saucers. 'It's never happened. . . . Why, no, Billie's married name was never looked at any of us girls, and I know that.'"

"No, I haven't known Billie very long—only since last Monday," time, is beyond me. Why, she hasn't 'O-oo-h, I see—' And Sara, looking any more charming or 'it' than an adding as if she wished she hadn't said asmuching, has she?"

much as she had, went quickly out into the kitchen, mumbling something over one's shoulder about her ham burning people. . . . Like all gossips, she loved Chatty followed her. She was dying to listen almost as much as she loved to ask her more questions. She went to talk.

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper, mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

"If she wants to do it I suppose it's her own business," Winnie answered.

An interesting program was given and a delicious supper served.

SUNDAY HUNTING ACCIDENTS

One reading the Monday papers will not fail to understand why the great majority of farms are posted against hunting. Over in Lenawee county a deputy game warden noticed three hunters fire into a flock of sheep. He deputized two men who were visiting at a farm nearby and went after the offenders. The deputies separated in order to surround the men whom they soon caught. One of the deputies, Frances Quinn, aged 29 years of Detroit failed to show up and the other deputies took the prisoners before a justice where they paid fines for trespassing. Quinn was latter found dead of gunshot wounds and the three hunters were re-arrested and charged with murder. The dead deputy leaves a wife and several children.

Down on a farm near Belleville Adam Shovek of Detroit shot at a flock of guinea hens. Seven people who stood in line with the guineas received the most of the charge. Theothi Denza brother-in-law of Shovek being killed and five others wounded. Shovek is charged with manslaughter and held on $10,000 bail.

It is such happenings as the above that have caused the posting of the farms against hunting. The hunters in a majority of cases show a total disregard for the right of the property owners.

VISITED OIL FIELDS

AT MT. PLEASANT

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Miller visited the oil fields which are situated about six miles from Mt. Pleasant Monday. This is at the present time the largest producing field in Michigan. Oil was struck there last spring and now there are about eighty wells in operation in a radius of two miles and more are being constantly put down. Oil was struck at a depth of 2500 to 3000 feet and is taken to Canada to be refined. The land was leased there for $1.00 per acre but only a small portion was leased before drilling started. The people who are there are living in tents and tar paper shacks and the section which is called Oil City looks like Alaska in 1898 at the time of the gold strike. Buildings are beginning to be erected and it is starting to take on the appearance of a city. A large refinery will soon be built there.

This oil field is only 120 miles from Pinckney and can be driven in three hours. There is talk of a delegation from Pinckney visiting the field in a body soon.

URANIA SITE CHOSEN FOR HOSPITAL

As was predicted some time ago the Urania site in York township, Washtenaw county was chosen as the site of the new $7,500,000 state hospital for the insane. It is located 11 miles south of Ann Arbor and three miles east of Saline. It comprises 1200 acres and was purchased for $149,500 per acre. An improved road will have to be built to it as it is not located on a main highway. The New York Central railroad runs through it. The original price asked was $189,000 per acre. There are said to be a number of buildings on the tract which could be used temporarily by the hospital. The administrative board after accepting the site appropriated the $179,400 necessary to purchase the land. The legislature appropriated $7,500,000 with which to purchase the land and build the hospital. It is not expected that work will be started before next spring although the plans are said to have been already prepared.

According to Harry Musselwhite of the hospital board only one other site was given preference, being the one at Northville. However the price asked was $290 per acre which was deemed prohibitive. Other sites considered were at Holly, Linden, South Lyon, Whitmore Lake, Pinckney, Watkins, Marilla, Manchester, two at Saline, two at Owosso and Corunna, three at Lapeer and three between Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti.

By the Clerk:

SCRUB BULL IS HAILED TO COURT

Placed on Trial for Hindering Development and Prosperity of Dairy Industry.

Indicted for robbery, larceny, and a few other such charges, Scrub Bull went on trial for his life at Laurel, Mississippi, recently. It seems that for some time people had suspicions that Mr. Bull was hindering the right and lawful development of the dairy industry, thereby "maliciously and wilfully lowering production and decreasing profits in the dairy business," says the Bulletin of the American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission in commenting on the case.

This, it says, was the first trial of its kind ever held in that section and was attended by several hundred people. The jury, representing every vocation within the boundaries of the Laurel trade territory, rendered a unanimous verdict of "guilty." The death sentence was pronounced, "but during the night, before the sentence could be carried out, friends of the convict secretly spirited him away and he has not been seen since."

The arraignment came during the Milk Products Show sponsored by the banks of Laurel. People attending the show had the opportunity of also attending the bull's "trial" and went away firmly convinced of the seriousness of lax and out-of-date methods in the pursuit of dairying. The purposes of both the Milk Products Show and the trial were threefold, namely: to develop public sentiment for more and better Jersey; to foster a more cooperative spirit for dairying and livestock growing, and to promote tick eradication.

The banks of Laurel entered into a cooperative arrangement in their efforts for fostering agricultural development and successful farming in the community, offering $2,165 as premiums to the outstanding farm workers throughout the territory during 1929. An instructive booklet has been issued, showing the agricultural activity of the banks, together with announcements of contests for farmers, exhibits in the bank lobbies and prizes offered.

FRESH FOODS IN MODERN DIET TRACED TO THE DEVELOPMENT OF SCIENTIFIC REFRIGERATION

Efficient Refrigerator in Kitchen Essential if Foods Are to Reach Dining Room Table Fresh and Bacteria-Free.

By A. H. JAEGER,
Leonard Institute of Food Preservation,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

SALT meat, dried beans and corn bread, with occasionally fresh meat and a "mess of greens" by way of variety—this is the sort of meal that our pioneer ancestors sat down to day after day, year in and year out. No wonder brimstone and treacle were on the program as a necessary tonic every spring! Compare this limited diet with the sort of dinner that the average American family of even moderate means sits down to every day and takes as a matter of course.

A. H. Jaeger.
In the dead of winter, fresh fruit, including strawberries in February, for dessert, and plenty of sweet milk for the children and adults who may want it. Americans are rightly regarded by foreigners as having the highest standard of living of any nation in the world.

This vast difference in the kind of table set by our hard-working forefathers and ourselves is due not solely to our having the money with which to purchase all these delicacies which we have come to take for granted, but chiefly to the fact that scientific refrigeration affords a means of bringing them together in a perfect state of preservation from all parts of the country, and of keeping highly perishable foods fresh and wholesome for consumption when they would normally be out of season.

Battle to Protect Foods.
To make this possible, refrigerating engineering has been developed. Cold storage plants, warehouse and refrigerator cars have been perfected with the utmost ingenuity and application of scientific principles. In fact, the refrigerating engineer might be regarded as a transport officer who has undertaken to give your food safe conduct from its source to your table, combating a host of enemies every inch of the way. These enemies are the yeasts, molds and bacteria that are trying to wage war upon it constantly. The ammunition used to combat these enemies is some 60,000,000 tons of ice which are manufactured or harvested annually in the United States, to say nothing of the mechanical refrigerants employed.

Refrigeration is used in each stage of food's journey from the source until you purchase it. Milk, for example, is cooled the moment it is taken from the cow until the dairy farmer is ready to ship it a few hours later. It travels in refrigerator cars to the town where the local dealer has an ice-cooled chamber ready to pop it into the moment it arrives. The same is true of meat, eggs, fish, fresh vegetables and fruits and all other perishables. Producer and wholesaler, jobber and retailer all use every device known, at a tremendous cost, in order to supply the public with fresh and bacteria-free foods.

The last stage of the journey, however, that from the kitchen door to the dining-room table, is as vitally important as any of the others. All the precautions taken up to this point can be futile if the individual housekeeper does not make adequate provision for continuing this process of refrigeration. To do this, she must have an up-to-date efficient refrigerator, preferably all-steel, and in order to be able to use it intelligently should know something about the principles of refrigerating.

Melting Ice Cools Food.
Heat does not absorb cold. Instead a cold object will absorb the heat from a warmer one and by drawing away this heat will leave the object cold. It will do this in proportion to the intensity of the cold object. When food and ice, therefore, are put side by side, the heat is drawn from the food to the ice, which has the double effect of melting the ice and leaving the food colder. If steps are taken to prevent the ice from melting at a reasonable rate, the heat will remain in the food and spoilage will result. This shows how foolish it is to wrap heavy paper around the ice in the interest of and with the idea of economy. Food costs more than ice and therefore should be considered first, even if its purity were not a matter of health and therefore of life itself.

For this reason we place both ice and food in a special container so constructed that the ice will melt, but not too fast, that a sufficiently low temperature can be maintained and that absolute sanitation is assured. In other words, we build refrigerators.

The first refrigerators were primitive affairs. All were constructed along the same principle and all had the same object in view, but they were notoriously unsatisfactory affairs. The cold spring, the window box, the clumsy wooden chest kept down in the cellar were all forerunners of the efficient all-steel cabinets of today.

In many ways these early attempts at domestic refrigeration were more dangerous than none. If a woman had no means at all of keeping food, she shopped from day to day and did not attempt to preserve "left-overs." But when she had what she believed to be a workable refrigerating outfit, it gave her a sense of false security, and many cases of food poisoning resulted.

Old Ice Boxes Clumsy Affairs.
Besides this, the old style ice box was a clumsy affair with badly fitting lid, drains which had a way of getting broths, custards and gelatin desserts that have to "set" and screw-capped bottles of drinking water. On the bottom shelf of the large food chamber put meat, with the paper wrappings removed, and "left-overs," especially those with cream sauce. On the next shelf go fruits and eggs and raw vegetables that do not have a strong odor. These, with cheese, go on the topmost shelf.

A most important consideration in using the refrigerator is to keep a good circulation of air. Do not overcrowd the food chambers, therefore, but get a cabinet large enough to meet your family requirements. A set of small, tall, enameled food containers is a wise investment as they will save space and prove an economy, being unbreakable. Also be sure that nothing is put against the cold air intake and warm air outlet, as this would destroy the perfect circulation of air and so defeat the purpose of your refrigerator.

The cabinet should be thoroughly cleaned once a week or at least once a fortnight by washing with a clean cloth wrung out in a cold solution of sal soda and then with one wrung out in clear, cold water. Wipe up immediately any food spilled in order that a drop of gravy or gob of cream sauce may not decompose and spread bacteria to good food. A cabinet with base raised well off the floor makes it easy to sweep under. Another convenient feature to be found on good refrigerators is the pedal which enables the door to be opened with a slight pressure of the foot when both hands are full.

Frequent Icings Economical.
Most women have learned by now that it is cheaper to hang the ice card in the front window frequently than at long intervals, letting the ice chamber get too warm. In some communities the housewife leaves a standing order with the ice company to have the ice chambers kept filled and does not have to notify them each time. Not only are frequent icings economical, they are the only safe way of keeping food safe to eat. A "safety signal" or thermal gauge on the outside of the refrigerator will show when it is time to refill without the necessity of opening the ice chamber to see.

It is no exaggeration to say that a good refrigerator pays for itself. This is not just indirectly or "in the long run," as we sometimes put it, by avoiding doctors' bills and keeping fit to work well, but also directly and literally.

Having a properly operating refrigerator saves the housewife many trips to the market. It enables her to buy food in larger quantities, such as a whole ham instead of a few slices, and to take advantage of special values that may have come on the market just for the day. Left-overs, hitherto thrown away or rejected as unappetizing, can be put in the food chamber with absolute safety and made up next day into the delectablest of dishes, sometimes surpassing the original serving in flavor and tastiness. Best of all, a good refrigerator means an empty garbage pail, for there is never any need to throw out spoiled food. It has been conservatively estimated that two and one-half billion dollars' worth of food is wasted annually in the United States due to spoilage.

Use Refrigerator in Winter.
For this reason, if no other, it is not surprising that the American public is responding to the need for proper food refrigeration in the home, not just during the summer months but all the year round. This is proven by the ever-growing number of refrigerators sold each year and by the increased amount of ice manufactured and harvested each year. In fact, we are rapidly learning to duplicate in miniature in our own kitchens or kitchenettes, the science of refrigerating used on a large scale to bring our food to us healthful, appetizing and bacteria-free from the farthest reaches of the world.

YOUTH--AND THE NEW LEADERSHIP

By CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD
President American Bankers Association

LEADERSHIP is a picturesque word. With it, one pictures Hannibal fighting his way through the passes of the Alps—Napoleon in his campaigns—or Washington holding together his half-frozen army by the sheer magnetism of his character at Valley Forge. But I visualize something that holds a more astounding spectacle in many respects than any of these.

Craig B. Hazlewood

It is the onrush of our business life. Our economic progress plunges ahead at a rate unheard of in the history of the nations of the world and every industrial and financial leader is daily brought face to face with new and perplexing problems requiring the highest courage and intelligence for their solution.

Ninety billions a year, they tell us, this country is now producing in new wealth. The rate of increase is even more staggering than the amount. It is difficult to say where it may lead us in even ten or fifteen years.

We are moving exceptionally fast. Our economic and industrial structure is placing before us problems of greater and greater magnitude. Few men can see far ahead. Few are in complete control, for this is a changing world, as even the most experienced business man will readily testify. Our methods of adjusting ourselves rapidly to economic changes and of cooperating are far from perfect.

What an opportunity the leadership of five, ten or fifteen years from now presents! What an adventure it will be! What responsibilities it will lay upon the broadest shoulders that may be found! This is the challenge to leadership as I see it. In the hands of the young man must rest the responsibility for this leadership.

Boys Who Reached the Pinnacles
Business is full of the romance of youngsters whose chief characteristic was working hard and keeping at it. There was a green farmer boy who decided he would rather stand behind a counter than follow a plow. He seemed so obviously lacking in sales ability that for a time no merchant would hire him. He failed in his first position, and in his second his salary was reduced. He even agreed that he was a misfit—but he stuck. Out of his first five stores, I believe, three failed. But he persisted and worked hard. And that boy, Frank W. Woolworth, became the greatest retail merchant in the world with a store in every city of eight thousand or more population in this country.

There was another lad who clerked in a grocery store sixteen hours a day and studied mathematics in his odd moments. He became interested in the doings of the steel plant whose employees traded at this store. He began to study steel and sought a position in the plant. He carried a supervisor's chain and drove stakes. At night he studied mathematics and engineering. He did not despair. He could not be diverted. He kept the pressure on for seven years. And that boy, Charles Schwab, mastered the iron industry and became one of the country's great industrial leaders.

There was a lad who sold papers on a train. When he grew up, several million men and a score of billions of dollars of capital were given profitable employment through his inventions. Even in middle life, Thomas Edison continued to work twenty hours a day, if necessary to achieve his purpose.

Leadership is not play. Leadership offers countless positions of varying opportunity, of which the highest pinnacles will mean almost unbearable responsibility in the new era. There will be men with the fire and iron to qualify even for these places. Such men must have had the very finest preparation and the most grueling tests. Their reward will be the attainment of these highest pinnacles of achievement, and the rendering of an immeasurable service to their times.

MAIL BOX THEFTS AID CHECK FORGERS

American Bankers Association in Nationwide Warning Exposes Methods and Gives Rules to Combat Them.

NEW YORK.—Active operations in many cities of mail box thieves, who open bank communications to customers, containing details of their accounts and cancelled checks showing their banking signatures, and use this material in perpetrating check forgeries, have led the American Bankers Association to issue a nationwide warning to its members with instructions for combating this form of crime. The warning as sent out by James E. Baum in charge of the association's Protective Department says:

"Heavy losses are being sustained through cancelled vouchers and statements stolen from the mail boxes of bank depositors in apartment and office buildings, thus divulging the depositors' balances and supplying models for forged checks. As a step to put customers on guard against these methods, banks are urged to instruct every depositor to whom they mail statements of deposit accounts on the last business day of each month to notify them promptly if such statements are not received by the close of the next day.

"Also banks should educate depositors to safeguard blank checks and cancelled vouchers as they would money. Such paper stolen by forgers soon puts real money in their hands. If all blank checks and cancelled vouchers were securely kept in safes instead of filing cabinets or desks, the check crooks would be denied their chief stock in trade, namely, genuine blank checks and signatures. Warnings to depositors against leaving blank or cancelled checks accessible to sneak thieves or burglars should be sent out at once.

"Estimates broadcast by surety companies indicate that individuals, merchants, hotels and others outside of banking are shouldering more than 99 per cent of the total amount of forgery losses. The bulk of forgery loss on checks is sustained by those who are willing to risk accepting them without reliable proof of identity or title of the presenter.

"Years ago the Protective Department of the American Bankers Association adopted the slogan, 'Strangers are not always crooks, but crooks are usually strangers. If those outside of banking could be prevailed upon to observe this rule and think about it when considering accepting a check for their merchandise or services, for which they are also asked to give a substantial sum in cash in change, one of the biggest aids to the forgery business would be denied the crooks."

SQUEEZING THE BALL INTO THE GROUND TO MAKE IT RUN WITH BACK SPIN

Pinch Shot a Valuable Asset
A VERY valuable shot to know is the squeeze or pinch shot where the ball runs quickly along the ground with back spin. This shot is made by hitting the ball towards the top and squeezing it into the ground. It will jump slightly with a lot of back spin and run straight to the pin.

Those who play this shot find it useful on some courses. Those that are hard baked are preferred but soft greens are more for pinching directly to the hole. The shot must be played a lot to understand it and gauge the distance. Once the distance is properly gauged it is easy to make and a very useful shot. However, it may be said that the best golfers do not use this shot except on rare occasions.

KEEPING THE HEAD DOWN ON THE MASHIE SHOT—LISTENING FOR THE BALL TO DROP

Imperative to Keep the Head Down
IT IS a cardinal rule in golf to keep the head down in all shots. It is almost absolutely imperative that one do this in playing a mashie pitch. The main part of an approach shot if it is over a trap or water is that it goes high enough to clear everything. If the head is not kept down there will be a tendency to bring the club up also. This must not be done, as the club in order to make sure of picking up the ball must go forward. This permits the loft on the club to take care of the height of the flight. One may take the eye off the ball so long as the head is held in position, but it is not wise to attempt this.

Type Then Pick Colors

well to choose clear browns, greens and lighter blues. The woman with white or graying hair should always wear brown. I have seen a few women of the brunette type with brown eyes and gray hair, who could wear brown, but they have been the exception.

Brown Season's Color

Taking brown first because it is the most favored color of the season, the fair or medium brunette, or the medium or olive blonde would look well in the frock of dark brown satin sketched at the left. It would naturally take a slim figure to wear this model with its shirred hip section secured by bands. The skirt is circular and dips slightly in the back. The large collar is trimmed with alencon lace, which is being much used on dresses this season. Brown kid one-strap shoes and a brown felt and velvet hat complete the costume.

Choosing green next because it is a color constantly growing in popularity, and can be worn well by at least six of the types, the center sketch illustrates one of the new models for afternoon wear in canton crepe. This has the fitted bodice lines, the shirring at the front of the tunic which rises in the front and drops in the back, and is finished with a deep flounce. Either green or black kid shoes and a green or black hat should be worn with this frock. The medium brunette should choose a yellow green. Fair blondes will prefer one of the slightly grayed greens, the Titian and other types, the clearer greens. The olive brunette looks best in the darker shades.

Some shade of red can be worn by any of the types, except the Titian. This brings us to the staples, blue and black, which, generally speaking, accommodate themselves to every woman. The frock at the right is one that would be becoming to the matron with white hair and slim figure. This is in one of the brighter, clear shades of navy cloth, relieved at the neckline with bands of red ending in loops below the closing. Dark blue kid shoes and a matching felt hat are worn with this costume.

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

More than half the world can never know the mental anguish and emotional hardship of the expectant mother. Besides the many physical discomforts she endures, and depressions and anxieties she is inclined to have, she must also be subjected to untold annoyances which conventions and taboos of social customs thrust upon her.

Although the rank and file of adults are growing sadder every day toward the expectant mother, the growth is very slow. She still feels it necessary to stay at home, particularly in the latter stages of her pregnancy.

The average husband still expects his obviously pregnant wife not to go about as usual. He still feels embarrassed to be with her in public, to go with her to church, or theater, or market. Why should he? Well, his father did, and his father's father, too. The very fact that she gets less recreation, sees fewer people, subjects herself to more monotony, makes her think more about herself and causes her to be more sensitive to unusual annoyances. Added to it all is her awareness that, despite her hardships and self-sacrifices, the social world turns from her, slights her, and forgets her.

If there is anyone in all the world who is most in need of affection by those she loves, of consideration by everyone with whom she comes in contact, of recreation, freedom and companionship, it is the expectant mother.

When shall we live down, and rise above the cruel, stupid custom of our fathers, of hanging millstones upon the necks of women who are going to be mothers? When shall we husbands cease so to curse our wives for blessing us by bearing children? When shall we men acquire a chivalry to make us proud to go walking, to attend the theater, to go anywhere with our wives when they are noticeably pregnant?

There are some men who measure up to such a standard. In my classes of parents I have had a number of parent-couples of whom the mother was expectant. In several instances the child was born before the school term ended, the father announcing proudly to the class, much to the joy of all: "It is a girl," or "A boy of nine pounds."

As one mother said one day in class: "We ought to rear our boys to be good fathers as well as good men." The father who is considerate and very tender toward the mother of his boy when another baby is expected, will have a son who will be pretty sure to imitate him.

Mother, if you are expecting a new child, announce it to your older children, explaining where the baby is. Tell that boy of ten or fifteen, if you know his comrade's mother soon expects a baby. Tell him that he has the opportunity to be a little less boisterous and noisy in her presence since, because of her condition, she is likely to grow weary and, at times, to be very sensitive to noise and commotion. Then observe how considerate he becomes, and how he warms up to you for treating him as if he were grown up.

We have an opportunity to teach our boys in early childhood and adolescence to feel a reverent emotion in the presence of an obviously expectant mother. Boys who so gain an early correct attitude toward motherhood are surely going to be very courteous and considerate of their wives just before the baby comes.

SAMARKAND

There are certain spots on the earth to which everyone, it seems to me, should be drawn by desire for romantic atmosphere. Constantinople, the Straits of Babel-Mandeb, Tierra del Fuego, Venice, and, surely, Samarkand. Poets have always liked to make verses with Samarkand in them.

For instance, a Kansas poet, Patricia Lowdermilk, who should be better known, wrote a poem with this in it:

I have sailed on many seas,
Traveled many a land—
Seen Trebizond and London,
Rome and Samarkand.
But my tired little neighbor
Has dreams no money buys.
She sees the world—and heaven,
In her baby's shining eyes.

Samarkand is about the size of Tulsa, Okla. It is quite important to a great many people, for it is the capital of the Republic of Uzbek, one of the soviet republics of the Russian union. The town is not new. It was much older than St. Augustine, Fla., now is, in 329 B. C., when it was captured by Alexander the Great. In 1221 A. D. it was besieged by Jenghiz Kahn. It was a city as big as Buffalo now is, in 1369, when Tamerlane made it his home.

All in all, Samarkand is the kind of town it would be a good deal of fun to visit and write poetry in.

A book started me on this train of thought. It is "Red Star in Samarkand," by Anna Louise Strong, just published by Coward-McCann.

Miss Strong sees the romance and the goldenglow of the ancient city. She also sees the modern boom town that is growing up in the midst of the relics of other ages. She tells of the farmhand who has become president of this little republic, and lives in a six-room White House.

The author stayed in the White House on one of her visits, sleeping with the mother of the president's secretary, on a divan in the living room.

She visited the ancient monuments and historical ruins in company with a professor of archaeology, and learned that the Greeks left no impression upon this ancient land. Only a few Greek coins and figurines that have been dug out of the soil remind the inhabitants of the conquerors who thought to shape the destinies of humankind for all time.

Some day, one muse, one must go a journey, and not return until one has visited Samarkand.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

SCORNED WIFE ADVISED TO REMAIN TRUE TO VOWS DESPITE ALL TEMPTATION

Oh, dear, what CAN we do with these people who marry and then expect their mates to live without any expressions of affection whatever? Imagine a pretty young woman, just 21, married to a man ten years older, who thinks she is silly if she dances by herself, or who, when she wants to kiss him, says, "Go to the movies or find some work to do," presumably so that she won't worry him with her nonsense.

Well, there are usually other men who appreciate a young wife's beauty and charm, and the young wife gets tired of coldness and indifference, and in very many instances, she just goes off with the other man.

You can't blame her much. Most men make a tremendous fuss over a girl during the courting days, and while most women don't expect that exceeding ardor to continue, they do expect to remain desirable in the eyes of their husbands. And they have a right to expect him to act as if they were.

And that goes both ways, too. Husbands have a right to expect their wives to show appreciation and affection, likewise.

Just 21: I do sympathize with you, my dear. It is very hard to be naturally demonstrative and light hearted and to have a man who thinks such goings on are silly. But always there is something in marriage that doesn't suit.

You just can't make up your mind that your particular disappointment is unbearable and be untrue to your husband because of it. He probably has many excellent qualities that make up for it. Hasn't he, now? Give him credit.

I do think that fault is very hard on a woman and that she is tempted to think she could stand almost anything else rather than such coldness. But you have your babies to love and to love you.

The man's wife must have some consideration, too, dear. Don't encourage him to be untrue to her. I know it is hard not to think about him, but no lasting happiness could come of allowing yourselves to grieve alone.

If your husband heard of it he could not only divorce you for unfaithfulness, but take your babies away on the ground that you are an unfit person to have the care of them. Make up your mind that everyone has a cross to bear, and this attitude of your husband's is yours.

Lonesome Racy: I think, Baby, if you're in school you had better stay there and finish instead of thinking of going to work. It might be a good experience to go away from home for awhile, as it would make you appreciate your home more, and you'd be glad to get back.

I do think your mother is making a mistake in not welcoming this boy to your home as he seems such a decent chap, but two nights a week—in the middle of the week—is too much for a girl of 16 to be out late when she is in school.

Alice—"Oh, ma, I do love Mendelssohn!"

Mrs. Wonspore—"All right, my dear, invite the young man to our next party."

TREE PLANTING BY SCHOOL SUCCESSFUL

The small reforestation project begun by the Williamsburg school six years ago, when 50 white pines were planted, is worth the attention of other schools. The trees have made a fine growth. Some grew 16 inches this year.

"If every district in the county would use some of the waste land for a forest project," Commissioner Lee Hornsby points out, "in 25 or 50 years the income from the forest would go a long way toward supporting the school."

Marriage As An Institution

Something like 10,000 officials have the responsibility of issuing marriage licenses, and 130,000 clergymen are qualified to "tie the knots," and those who do not engage ministers have the choice of 30,000 different officials—from justices of the peace up.

Investigators for the Russell Sage Foundation say that there is a general and dangerous tendency to regard marriage licenses as "bought" rather than "issued." The marriage license is commercialized by the fact that in many states the remuneration of the license clerk depends wholly or partly upon the number of licenses he issues. Under these circumstances, the Foundation believes, there is a general tendency not to challenge applicants' statements about themselves and to permit many evasions of marriage laws.

Poems That Live

THE LAST WORD

Creep into thy narrow bed,
Creep, and let no more be said!
Vain thy onset! all stands fast,
Thou, thyself, must break at last.

Let the long contention cease!
Geese are swans, and swans are geese,
Let them have it how they will!
Thou are tired; best be still.

They out-talked thee, hissed thee, tore thee?
Better men fared thus before thee;
Fired their ringing shot and passed,
Hotly charged—and sank at last.

Charge once more, then, and be dumb!
Let the victors, when they come,
When the forts of folly fall,
Find thy body by the wall!

Holland Delays Its Immunization

The Holland board of health has decided to discontinue its immunization campaign against scarlet fever until investigations have been made as to its worth. In his report to the state board of health Health Officer W. Westrate asked Dr. Guy L. Kiefer about the advisability of continuing the work in view of the fact several cases of the disease developed among children who had taken the Dick test and were considered immune.

In his reply Dr. Kiefer recommended the use of the serum, with the explanation that the cases in question were so mild that it was not definitely determined whether they were of the scarlet fever type.

The board, however, authorized Dr. Westrate to continue the campaigns against smallpox and diphtheria, which have thus far been attended with excellent results.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON
MENU HINT

Chowder, Cabbage and Apple Salad
Pumpkin Pie, Tea or Coffee

Most people think that unless they have a number of dishes on their table at one meal they appear stingy. With every other person dieting these days, the less courses you serve the more popular you are. And to my mind, a simple but hearty menu, properly balanced is much more to be desired than a large and varied one. Chowder is a particularly filling dish, so I make it the main part of the meal.

Recipes

Fish chowder—Four pounds cod or haddock, four cups potatoes, cut in cubes; one sliced onion, one and one-half-inch cube fat salt pork, eight soda crackers, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one tablespoon salt, three tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, four cups scalded milk. Skin and bone fish. Cook head and backbone in two cups cold water 20 minutes; strain. Fry onion in strained, tried-out pork; add potatoes. Cook with two cups boiling water 10 minutes; add fish liquid, the raw fish cut in pieces and seasonings. Cover and let simmer ten minutes, until potatoes are tender, and add milk. Rub butter and flour together and stir in. Cook until thick and pour over split crackers.

New England Clam Chowder—One quart clams, four cups potatoes cut in three-fourth-inch cubes, one and one-half-inch cube fat salt pork, one sliced onion, one tablespoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, four tablespoons butter, four cups scalded milk, eight soda crackers. Clean and pick over clams, using one cup cold water; drain, reserve liquor, heat to boiling point and strain. Chop finely hard part of clam; cut pork in small pieces and try out; add onions, and fry five minutes and strain into a stew pan. Par-boil potatoes five minutes in boiling water to cover; drain, and put a layer in bottom of pan. Add chopped clams, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge generously with flour; add remaining potatoes, again sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and add two and one-half cups boiling water. Cook ten minutes, add milk, soft part of clam and butter, boil three minutes, add crackers split and soaked in enough cold milk to moisten. Re-heat clam water to boiling point and thicken with one tablespoon butter and flour cooked together. Add to chowder just before serving. Clam water has a tendency to cause milk to separate, hence is added at the last.

BANKERS FORM CLEARING HOUSE

At a meeting held in Albion recently 30 bankers of southwestern Michigan decided to organize the S. W. Michigan Regional Clearing House association. The association will be made up of banks in Marshall, Albion, Homer, Tekonsha, Olivet, Charlotte, Eaton Rapids, Springport, Parma, Concord, and eventually all the banks in Eaton, Branch and Calhoun counties, except Battle Creek, and a part of Jackson county. A committee consisting of W. T. Phelps, president of the Commercial Savings Bank, Marshall; B. G. Doolittle, of the Tekonsha State Bank; O. E. Wolcott, of the Olivet State Bank; Frank N. Aldrich, of the Farmers State Bank, Concord; and E. Robert Robinson, of the First National Bank Marshall; has been appointed to draft the by-laws and articles of association.

Bus Merger Authorized

Michigan Public Utilities Commission has authorized a consolidation of rural and western Michigan. The West motor vehicle freight service in central Michigan Transportation Company has been permitted to absorb six individual truck concerns. Approximately $260,000 is involved in stock transfers. A central terminal will be established in Grand Rapids.

The commission's order allows the new company to operate from Manistee to Muskegon on U. S.-31; Muskegon to Grand Rapids on M-46, M-37 and U. S.-16, providing no local business is done between Grand Rapids and Ferrysburg, Springlake and Grand Haven, Grand Haven and Coopersville; from Grand Rapids to Ionia on M-21 and U. ## When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

LENAWEE COUNTY LAKES ARE GIVEN SUPPLY OF FISH

Through the efforts of the Lenawee County Sportsmen's association, about 75,000 bluegills and 6,000 bass were placed in the lakes of Lenawee county recently. The fish were raised in the association's ponds on South McKenzie street.

It was expected that at least 15,000 bass would be raised but it is thought they escaped into a small stream which leads into the River Raisin, when a screen was accidentally left open.

The bluegills grew to one to two inches, with a few three inches in length, while the average length of the bass was four inches. A year ago 22 bass got into the bluegill pond and grew to nine and one-half inches while they reduced the bluegill population to about 11,000.

Mrs. Shimmerpate, just back from Europe, said to Mrs. Beanbrough: "I just couldn't bear looking at the ruins in Italy. They make me homesick for my husband."

"Homesick for your husband?"

"Yes. You know, Henry has fallen arches."

Diplomatic Ruling Ties-Up Estates

Three residents of Russia, heirs to estates totaling $25,000, inherited from relatives in Michigan, may not be able to collect until the United States enters into diplomatic relations with the Soviet government, it was revealed recently by Ralph Hughes, public administrator.

In the past Hughes has refused to pay inheritances to foreign residents unless their affidavits have been vided by a United States consul. He has clung to this rule in regard to the Russians, even though there are no United States consuls within that country, but because the cases have been taken up by the Russian Red Cross he is submitting the question to Attorney-General Wilber M. Brucker.

Two of the heirs are to receive $10,000 each from war risk insurance on relatives killed while serving in the United States army. The third is an estate of $5,000 inherited from a former resident of Marquette.

Seek to Invalidate Horton Game Law

Court action to invalidate the Horton law, under which clubs may lease land and hunt pheasants for a period of 60 days, whereas the open season is confined to seven days, will be taken by the Shiawassee conservation association if attorneys can find any grounds on which to base a case.

This was decided at a recent meeting of the association. The Lansing Hunting company has leased 4,000 acres in the southern part of the county, liberated 886 pheasants on it and members have been shooting there for the past ten days. They are allowed to shoot half of the birds liberated.

Local sportsmen term the act class legislation and farmers assert that if the Lansing sportsmen can shoot pheasants now, they will shoot those on their own farms.

It is also likely that a fund will be raised by popular subscription to test the validity of the anti-Sunday hunting law in effect in Shiawassee county.

Plans $750,000 Expansion

A building program at the Zilwaukee plant of the Consumers Power Company to cost approximately $750,000, which will include the construction of a concrete dock turning basin, storage facilities for 250,000 tons of coal, and equipment for unloading and handling, will be started soon, announces Samuel Ball, district manager for the company. The project will be completed sometime next spring for use after the opening of navigation.

Construction of the dock at the Saginaw river plant will result in a considerable increase in river traffic, Mr. Ball feels. The Zilwaukee gas and power plants use in the neighborhood of 450,000 tons of coal annually. "At present this coal, which comes from West Virginia and Kentucky, is shipped by rail, but with the dock project and the deeper river channel it will mean that the coal will be brought in by ship," said Mr. Ball. The Zilwaukee gas plant furnishes electric current to not only Bay City and Saginaw, but also to Flint.

COUNTY MAY CHANGE NAMES OF STREAMS

The name of any lake or stream in Michigan can be changed only upon authority from the board of supervisors of the county in which that particular lake or stream is located and the state of Michigan intends to usurp no authority in this, according to the state committee on changing geographical names.

This committee was appointed some time ago by Governor Fred W. Green to formulate some system by which names of lakes and streams could be changed, principally to avoid duplication. The committee is composed of George W. Fuller of the state historical commission, chairman; R. A. Smith, state geologist, and L. R. Shoemman, head of the land economic survey of the department of conservation; and, acting in an advisory capacity, are George E. Bishop, secretary of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau; Hugh J. Gray, secretary of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, and T. F. Marston, secretary of the East Michigan Tourist and Resort Association. A complete system of routine by which names of lakes and streams can be changed has now been formulated and announced by the board.

The state of Michigan has many lakes and streams which are duplicated in names, according to the committee. There are innumerable "Grass," "Mud" and "Crooked" lakes and several "Trout," "Silver" and "Crooked" creeks. This has often caused confusion in the past. To avoid this duplication the committee has formulated a system by means of which changes in names are to be made.

A desire to change the name of a lake or stream must initiate with the people of the county in which the body of water is situated. By petition or request, the board of supervisors may be asked by the people to take some formal action toward changing a name. This presented to the supervisors must state the names of the lake or stream whose name it is desired to change; the reasons for desiring the change; and the preferred name.

If the board of supervisors agrees and adopts a formal resolution asking that the name of the lake or stream be changed, a copy of the resolution may be sent to the state committee. The committee will consider the petition. It will determine whether a change in name is necessary and desirable. If the state committee considers the petition favorable, the petition together with the committee's recommendation, will be sent to the National Board on Geographical Names. This board in turn will consider the petition. Its decision is final. If the national board approves the change, then the name of the lake or stream will be formally changed and the new name will be listed on all official maps and documents.

Manistee Waltonians Plan New 1,280-Acre Sanctuary for Game

Another game sanctuary is virtually assured for Manistee county to supplement that recently acquired in Cleon township by the local chapter of the Izaak Walton league, according to E. C. Burton head of the local chapter.

Negotiations are now afoot to obtain a 1,280-acre tract in Stronach township between the 4 and 6-mile points on the Little Manistee.

There is an abundance of beavers in the region, Burton declared, and dams built by these animals already have flooded nearly 20 acres of land in the vicinity. There are also numerous grouse, deer, and other wild life. It is expected that the transaction will be concluded within a few days. Like the 600-acre tract in Cleon, the area will be posted and fenced in to keep out intruders.

Manistee Fathers Lease Old Airport For Oil Well Tests

The Manistee city commission has agreed to lease the old municipal airport just south of the city to the oil firm of Tackett and Drake, under condition that a well be sunk in Flier township, where the port is located, within a period of six weeks. The lease covers a period of 18 months, and the second well, providing the first proves productive, will be drilled on the city property, it is provided.

To protect city property from destruction or promiscuous drilling, the commission appointed a committee composed of Commissioners John H. Voights, Anton Carlson, Robert Miller and City Attorney Howard L. Campbell to draw up an ordinance restricting the sinking of the wells within city limits.

New Firm in Greenville To Employ to 100 Men

The Consolidated Soda Fountain corporation has completed its reorganization and has opened headquarters here. Beside utilizing the building formerly occupied by the Taplin Furnace Co., a new unit has been built at a cost of $12,000. Five acres of land are available for expansion.

Harold A. Hawn, president of the corporation, states machinery will be installed by Jan. 1, when from 75 to 100 men will be given employment.

Officers of the corporation are: President, Harold A. Hawn; secretary and treasurer, E. J. Thomp; and vice president, William M. Hoeckstra. Hoeckstra is secretary and treasurer of the Hoeckstra Ice Cream Co., Grand Rapids. Directors are C. Sophus Johnson and F. C. Mathews of Grand Rapids and Francis E. Tower of Greenville.

Seek Fund to Restore Ionia Furniture Plant

Upon the success of a committee of 14 Ionia business men to obtain pledges of $200,000, hinges Ionia's prospects of restoring the defunct Stafford Manufacturing Co. The company, 20 years in successful operation as makers of school and church furniture, became involved two years ago, went into the hands of receivers and since has been sold to brokers.

The committee composes: Chairman, Thane Benedict; Harry Udell, Irwin Martin, Alex Robertson, George E. Coe, N. J. Ogilvie, Fred D. Keister, Hiram H. Darling, K. R. Smith, Allen B. Locke, Henry F. Vorker, Earl Wright, Fred T. Wortman and Clarence L. Fuller.

HOLLAND PORT DUE FOR IMPROVEMENT

The bureau of lighthouses at Washington will take steps to improve the safety of Holland harbor, according to advices received by the Chamber of Commerce from Congressman Carl E. Mapes.

Tentative plans provide for the installation of a lighthouse at the outer end of the north breakwater and electrification of the station. A radio beacon will be given consideration.

Holland's commerce body through Secretary Charles A. Gross some time ago requested the national authorities to give Holland harbor the much-desired protection so that vessels could make this port with perfect safety under adverse weather conditions.

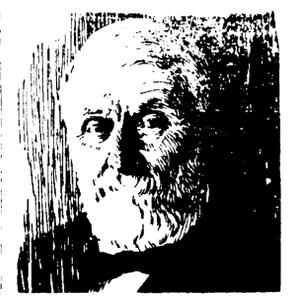

The recent completion of the new concrete north pier has given the local harbor a much-needed improvement.

'Coon Abundant Along Muskegon

After a period of closed seasons on raccoon this valuable little fur bearer seems to have made a good comeback in this section of Michigan. A day spent along the Muskegon river in Clare county, where the river angles for miles through jackpine and scrub oak country, is convincing.

Almost every log, stump or stone lying along the edge of the river or protruding above the water in the shallows, bears a record of raccoon or mink.

The skeletons of luckless crawfish, clams and water bugs abound in these places, showing where the woods prowlers made many a nocturnal meal. Occasionally, in a muddy spot along the river, the tracks of mink or raccoon may be seen. This wild and little frequented district makes excellent cover for animals that like to be near the water.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headache, and to break up fevers and colds. PINCKNEY HIGH SCHOOL WINS FROM YPSILANTI

The Pinckney High School football team won from the Ypsilanti Central High School Reserve team in a game played at Ypsilanti Saturday by a score of 14 to 7. The Ypsi boys seem to have plenty of weight and material but nevertheless were not very strong on offense. Pinckney had little difficulty in penetrating their line or circling their ends. Murray Kennedy scored both Pinckney touchdowns on sweeping runs and Pete Geryrz went through guard for both extra points. The Pinckney line held their opponents to no gains and led at the half 14 to 0. At the beginning of the second half the entire first team was taken out and the second team sent in. Against this aggregation Ypsi only succeeded in scoring seven points. The youngsters tackled well and broke up their opponents' passing game but were eventually forced back by sheer weight of the reserve team. Ypsilanti scored a touchdown and dropped kicked the extra point. At the start of the fourth period the first team returned to the game and held Ypsilanti to no gains. They seemed on the way to another touchdown but lost the ball on a fumble. Pinckney's next game is with St. Thomas High School of Ann Arbor. This game will be played at Pinckney on Friday, November 1. St. Thomas has a clean slate up to date and Pinckney will have their hands full in order to win.

CHICAGO PLANS BIGGEST NATIONAL FARM DISPLAY

America's farm wealth will be loaned to Chicago for one week. From Saturday, November 30, to the following Saturday, December 7, the choicest products of the livestockman's and farmer's skill will be on display at the International Live Stock Exposition at the Chicago Stock Yard.

As of recent years, the coming international will be as world-wide in fact as it is in name. Already samples of wheat have been received from far-away New South Wales, sent from the other side of the Earth to compete with the finest products of the fields of the United States and Canada in the International Grain and Hay Show.

Carlot Exhibits Spectacular
Entries will be accepted in the livestock departments up to November 1, says B. H. Heide, secretary of the exposition, and for the Grain and Hay Show, the closing date is set for November 10. Those who plan to compete in the spectacular carload lot contests of fat cattle, sheep, or swine, can make their entries up to November 23. At the more recent shows, over a hundred choice loads of fat cattle have each year been on view in the Chicago Stock Yard pens, adjoining the exposition buildings, and according to general opinion, are among the most interesting and educational spectacles of the entire exposition.

An unusually brilliant Horse Show is assured. Since its inception, one of the foremost Horse Shows of the world, the fact that for the coming event the leading horse fanciers in the country have indicated their intention of exhibit, leads to the confident forecast by the management that a Horse Show of extraordinary interest will take place this year.

Rail Rates Reduced
As an added incentive to many who hope to attend the 30th anniversary celebration of the International, which is accorded to be the grand wind-up of the year's agricultural show season, the railroads entering Chicago have signified their intention of granting reduced round-trip fares from all parts of the country.

CURRENT COMMENT

We see that an airplane factory is to be built near Romeo. One is also being built at Milan and an extensive sale of stock is being promoted to finance the latter deal. We admit our ignorance of airplane factories for they are something new and still to a great extent are in the experimental stage.

However we can well remember what happened when the automobile was in its infancy. Every little town and hamlet started automobile factories or had them started for them by promoters. Ypsilanti made a car called the Ace and another called the Gox. Chevrolet manufactured one called the Welch which afterwards moved to Pontiac. Allegan made the Cornelian, Saginaw the Durvea, Kalamazoo the Rambler, Adrian the Lion, Jackson the Hollier, the Briscoe and the Jackson. Now they are only a memory having ceased production years ago being unable to compete with the multiple production methods of Ford the General Motors and other lords of the auto world.

If first you don't succeed try, try again. The school district of Davison voted six times on a bond issue of $110,000 with which to build a new school. A seventh election was called and the proposition passed by a majority of 11 votes. The number of votes cast increased at each election until sufficient votes were polled to carry the proposition. It has been noted that if such a proposition is submitted repeatedly it will finally carry.

The kidnapped Jackie Thompson unlike the lost Charlie Ross has been found and restored to his parents. The alleged kidnapers, seven in number, two of which are women, are lodged in jail. James Fernando, the leader of the gang at whose house the boy was found and on whom was discovered the most of the marked $25,000 ransom money is a used car dealer with whom the boys father had had several business deals. One remarkable thing comes to light in the Fernando record. He has been arrested 24 times by the Detroit police on charges ranging from murder to larceny. He was only convicted once. Judge Jeffries sentencing him to a year in the state prison which he seems not to have served. Somewhere between the arrest and the conviction the law falls down. If Fernando had been convicted on some of the 24 charges he would not have been at liberty to have planned the kidnapping.

Look for the Name MAZDA on Every Lamp Bulb You Buy!

The trade-mark Mazda on an incandescent lamp is more than a name—it is a mark of research service. It signifies that behind the lamp are years of painstaking effort by the great organizations of the lamp manufacturers, to obtain the most light for the least current. There are cheaper imported lamps—but illumination with these is more expensive because they consume more current for the same amount of light.

The trade-mark Mazda is your assurance that the lamp bulb is a product of the latest and best methods of incandescent lamp making. When better materials and newer manufacturing processes are discovered or developed, they will be used. The Mazda standard of quality is constantly maintained, and a trained research staff is endlessly searching for ways to improve lamp efficiency.

The Detroit Edison Company carries Mazda lamps only—available in fourteen types, ample for all ordinary services. Most sizes and styles are renewed without charge at any Detroit Edison office.
