MRS. CASPER SYKES

Emma J. Finch was born in Henrietta, Jackson county, on May 12, 1855, and passed to her Heavenly home November 9, 1929, after a severe illness of seven weeks.

Her early life was spent on the farm. When she was six years old she met with a great loss in the death of her mother. Later she made her home in Pinckney with her sister, Mrs. J. J. People. She was united in marriage to Casper P. Sykes July 3, 1879, who with their two children, Mildred (Mrs. C. L. Sigler) and Carl L. survive. She also three grandchildren, Dr. Hollis Sigler, Donald Sigler and Isabel Sykes.

Mrs. Sykes was a gifted woman of rare Christian devotion, and fine personal qualities. Many years a member of the Congregational church in which organization her labors were marked; at various times a teacher in the Sunday school, a member of the choir, secretary of the Ladies Aid Society, and treasurer of the Missionary Society, holding the two last mentioned offices for more than twenty years. Always ready with a helping hand for whom she might aid, she leaves a host of friends.

The funeral was held from the late home at 2:00 p. m. Monday, Nov. 11, 1929, officiating, assisted by Rev. O. B. Thurston of Leake, a former Pinckney pastor. Burial was in the Pinckney cemetery.

SCHOOL NOTES

Pinckney meets Dexter Friday afternoon on the football field. Pinckney won the first game of the series but Dexter has a much improved team and should give the home boys a real battle, in fact, Dexter expects to defeat Pinckney.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS MEET

The regular meeting of the King's Daughters was held at the home of Mrs. Karl Niskanen near Fenton, last Wednesday with the vice pres., Mrs. R. C. Daller, presiding. Interesting reports of the state convention recently held at Jackson were given by Mrs. M. T. Groves and Mrs. Daller and the initiation service was read for one new member.

A bountiful pot luck lunch was served to about 20 guests.
The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. N. O. Frye, Dec. 4th.

Following the service last Sunday morning an unanimous call to the pastorate of the church was extended to Rev. E. J. Burquist of New Castles Pennsylvania.

A representative of the Anti-Saloon League will have charge of the service next Sunday.

THE OIL LEASE QUESTION

"To lease or not to lease" is the principal question being asked in this section at the present time. The leasing started about two years ago when Norris & Smith of West Virginia started leasing leases in this community. They were more in the nature of promoters as they subsequently sold most of their leases to the Purul Co. They operated here a second time under the name of Smith Refining Co. Subsequently the Standard Oil, The Shell and the Sun Oil Co. also obtained many leases. The most of these were obtained for 50c per acre and ran for ten years. On some work had to be commenced in a certain length of time and on some it did not. Last week representatives of the White Star Oil Co. of Ohio arrived in the field and boosted the price to $1.00 per acre. According to the survey made by geologists this section lies in the oil belt. How great quantities or how deep remains to be determined.

Many of the farmers are refusing to sign for two reasons. First the lease constitutes a lien on the farm or properly speaking a cloud on the title. The farm if sold must be sold subject to that. Second the farmers figure that if oil is here it is certain to be struck some time and when that happens they want to be free to do business with the highest bidder. It is in vain that the lease buyers tell them that there will be no oil wells drilled here until all the leases are obtained. On account of many companies here after leases the people are beginning to figure that the field is getting red hot and would not be surprised to hear at any time that drilling has started.

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 17

Generally pleasant and cold weather will rule the greater part of the state of Michigan during the opening days of the week of Nov. 17. The temperature will be modified about Monday or Tuesday as the advance notice of severe local storms which are to take place.

Locally heavy rain or snow storms are almost a certainty within 48 hours either side of Wednesday, the 20th. High winds will also accompany this storm area.

With the passage of the low area center across the state there will be a rapid falling off of the temperature. There will, however, be a slight reaction in the temperature during Saturday of this week or Sunday of next.

The Goose Has Sense
November, called by the Indians "The Mad Moon," used to be the time of year goose-bone prophets watched the sky for the honking geese on their southward trip to tell how far away winter was supposed to be. Due to the ever increasing hunter and the consequent increased strategy of the wild fowl, this sign is becoming less and less frequent to most parts of Michigan. The greater percentage of wild geese do not fly over the central part of the state where they will be obliged to settle on inland lakes for food and rest and become easy prey to the hunter. Their course is mapped out by the Great Lakes far from the hunter's range and seldom inland only in case of storm.

Bay City-Saginaw Highway Opened

Residents of Bay City and Saginaw recently celebrated the formal opening of the new river road between the two cities. The building of this road has been an engineering project that has attracted much attention because of the fact the road, for the greater part of the distance, was built through swamp ground, the filling of which at the outset seemed like an endless task.

Each Year More Mothers Treat Colds Externally

The Dangers of "Dosing" Colds Now Avoided by Use of Modern Vaporizing Ointment

When Vicks VapoRub was introduced, mothers especially were quick to appreciate it, because it is just rubbed on and cannot upset children's delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Today, the whole trend of modern medicine is away from needless "dosing." As more and more mothers adopted this modern external treatment, the fame of Vicks spread until today it is the standby for colds—adults as well as children's—in over 60 countries. Just rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster; and, at the same time its medicated vapors, released by the body heat, are inhaled direct to the inflamed passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing. Ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vicks slogan, "Made famous when Vicks reached 17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating. This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or fetid breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

CHATTY—COPDRESS OF GAB

HER MAN, "MONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SACRILEGE," "MONEY LOU," "LOVE SOUND," etc.

BEATRICE BURTON, Author of

"Because he can't afford to. Silly! It takes a bond salesman years and years to build up enough business to make a good salary! And they all have to be well dressed, because the only people they meet are well-to-do, well-dressed business men. And they have to belong to a decent club, where they can take men to lunch, and meet other rich men—"

Her voice went on. But Chatty was only half listening to her. Her eyes were fixed on the darkness outside the rain-spotted windows. And beyond that darkness she was seeing Dave Jordan and the girl he had bought all those flowers for on Easter Saturday. Perhaps she was a girl who had lots of money, the kind of a girl he would have to marry—unless he waited for years and years.

"Of course, some bond salesmen make a good salary," Billie was saying. "But those kids have only been out of college for three or four years—Dave Jordan and George. They make just about enough to keep themselves going."

Chatty nodded at her. She felt sick to her very marrow bones. "That's why I feel all right about going places with George," Billie's voice ran on. "I know he'll never ask me to marry him in a dozen years—he doesn't even imagine he's in love with me any more than I do with him. We're such good pals. And some other girl might try to make him fall in love with her."

"Doesn't he go around with anyone but you?" Billie shrugged her shoulders. "I don't know... but I don't think so. Sara says she wishes he never would come here. She thinks it's terrible for him to like me at all. But I can't stay home all the time, can I? And if George ever gets silly over me I'll tell him all about myself. Bare my purple past to him—"

She broke off with a nervous little laugh. "She's crazy about him. She can't fool me!" thought Chatty.

The next night was Saturday, and at half-past seven Mrs. Chatterton and Chatty set out for what they called their "weekly spree."

They always went to market first, and wound up with a moving picture. There was a man just ahead of Chatty when she stepped into line before the ticket window of the Stella Marie theater on West River street at half-past eight. With him was a girl—a small, blonde girl, who clung to his arm and never took her eyes from his while Chatty watched her.

When he picked up his change and turned to leave the window Chatty saw who he was. He saw her, too, and he gave a start of surprise. But he did not speak, although he knew her.

"Well, I won't let him get away with that!" thought Chatty. "How are you tonight?" she asked him, and she looked straight into his eyes when he spoke.

"That's Billie's man—George Mayhew," she said to Mrs. Chatterton, when she joined her. "Out with a blonde!"

CHAPTER VIII
The picture, a Marian Davies comedy, was just coming to its close and the theater was in half-darkness.

Chatty was not able to see very well as she and her mother followed the usher down the aisle to their seats. And it was not until she had been sitting there for two or three minutes that she made out George Mayhew and his girl sitting next to her.

A second afterward the lights flashed up as the first show came to an end, and Chatty turned her head and took a long deliberate look at George's girl.

She was almost as pretty as Billie Langenau, and she was beautifully dressed. Her coat was trimmed with a great soft, snowy collar of white fox fur, and as she put up her little hands to take off her hat Chatty saw that upon one of them was a dinner ring of big diamonds and smaller sapphires.

The bead bag that lay upon her lap was one of those frightfully expensive ones that are made in France, and that cost more than a girl like Billie Langenau would earn in a week. The faintest odor of violets came from her as she moved, and floated in the air around her.

—And we played contract bridge all afternoon," Chatty heard her say to George Mayhew, in a soft little voice. "I was so tired that I left at five and went home to lie down until it was time for you to come for me." Chatty could not hear what George said to her in answer. But his voice sounded as if it were full of pity and sympathy, and Chatty set her teeth in the darkness that suddenly settled down over the house once more.

"I wonder if he's sorry for Billie when she works all day and then goes home and gets her own dinner," she said to herself. She wondered, too, what Billie would say when she told her that George had been stepping out that evening with a beautiful and blonde Chicago girl.

forbid her to go to Billie's flat when George Mayhew was there... and she was looking forward, eagerly, to the Sunday night supper party that Billie had been planning for "some of the boys from the office."

"No... I guess you're right, mother," she said now, and followed Mrs. Chatterton into their own hallway. "It would just make Billie unhappy to know about it, although she keeps telling me that she and George are just the most ordinary friends, and nothing else... But I won't tell her. I promise you that."

Mrs. Chatterton took off her hat and coat. "It's nice to have Saturday night come around," she said, walking into the Front Room, which had taken on its week-end look of neat coziness. The sewing machine was covered and he kicked the floor at every step as he went to his own room and to bed. Mrs. Chatterton shook her head as she sank into her arm chair beside the little grate.

"I just feel, sometimes, that I don't know Pud any more. He's growing up so fast," she sighed, wearily. "I don't know anything about him any more."

She was right... But, if she had only known it, there were things more serious than cigarette smoking that she did not know about him!

Billie decided to have her Sunday night supper on the first Sunday in May. There were three girls in the Van Nuy's company's office besides herself and Chatty—and she invited them all.

"What the use talking to her? You know she's going to tell it!"

with a lace-edged cloth, and Chatty could almost make herself believe that it looked like a tea table. The half-finished dresses were hung out a sight in the closet, and the big table that held the reading lamp had been pushed into the middle of the room.

The Front Room looked like almost any nice family's living room at times like these, and Chatty loved it. "If David Jordan ever asks me if he can come to call on me, I hope and pray it'll be on Saturday or Sunday night," thought Chatty, sinking into a chair by the yellow-shaded lamp, and stretching herself luxuriously.

"I always say there's no use in telling people disagreeable things, anyway," he mother was going on with the subject of Billie Langenau and the faithless George. "Honey catches more flies than vinegar," as they say, Chatty—and Billie would only dislike you for telling her about that man of hers. Let him tell her himself. It's her business and his. Certainly it's not yours—"

She stopped suddenly, and a look of fear swept into her face. "Did you hear a noise out in the kitchen?" she asked, jumping up from her chair. "I did—Chatty, I heard someone out there! Pud, is that you?"

As she spoke there came the sound of a chair being pushed along the floor, and all at once Pud came walking out into the tiny hall that ran between the kitchen and the front room.

He stood in the doorway, grinning at the two of them. He had been having something to eat, and there were crumbs in one corner of his mouth.

"Yeah, it's just me," he said cheerfully. "I heard you both come in, but I didn't peep. I was havin' a great time listening to you." He chuckled.

"What's the use of talking to Chatty like that, mother?" he asked, blithely. "Whatever it is you don't want her to tell—why, you know, she's going to tell it! She'd talk the nose off a brass monkey, she would!"

Chatty stared at him in amazement. "What's the matter with YOU?" she asked, dumb-founded. "Why should you jump on me like this, Pud Chatterton?"

"I'm not jumpin' on you," the boy answered, the cigarette in his lower lip moving up and down with every word he spoke. "Only you're always bawlin' me out for things, and you're not so wonderful, yourself—"

Agnes Herford and Winnie Talcott and Jean Gilday, who was the telephone operator.

"I asked all of the bond salesmen—except John Artz, because he's married and his wife is a regular little high-hatted snob," Billie said, going over her list with Chatty on Saturday noon. "Then there'll be you and Sara and me. Don't you think that will make a nice crowd? If all the boys come there'll be fifteen of us."

"If Dave Jordan comes I don't care who else is there," thought Chatty, when she went to Mr. Elliott, the cashier, to get her pay envelope at half past twelve.

She looked at the three crisp new five dollar bills that were folded in it. She knew that this was the first of the month, and that two of them ought to be laid aside toward the money for the rent.

"But I need a new pair of silk stockings," she argued with herself. "And if I only could afford a little bottle of perfume," like that girl of George Mayhew's had on her closet! And a string of pearl beads. Just a few little things to make me look pretty tomorrow night."

Billie, coming up to the cashier's window, found her scowling to herself. "What's the matter, Chat?" "Everything." Her voice sounded as gloomy and despairing as she felt. "I can't come to your party... I haven't anything to wear. Not even a pair of new stockings."

Billie laughed, and looked at the money in her outstretched hand. "Well, there's your weekly wage!" she said, brightly. "Two dollars for a pair of silk stockings won't break you... And don't you worry about your clothes. You can wear that dress you have on tomorrow night... It fits you beautifully—and I'll lend you some perfectly beautiful imitation rose-point cuffs and collar for it. But I WON'T forgive you—ever—if you stay away. Why, I'm just having this little blow-out so you can get better acquainted with Dave Jordan."

She was a love, was Billie.

Six of the nine unmarried bond salesmen came to Billie's on Sunday night. They came at seven o'clock, when all of the girls were there, sitting in the pretty living room, sipping the plain, clear orange juice that the Langenau always served with thin wafers instead of cocktails.

"Isn't there any gin or anything like that in these things?" Winnie Talcott, who sat next to Chatty on the deep, broad davenport, asked her. Chatty shook her head without taking her eyes from Dave Jordan as he shook hands with Billie and Sara. "We all came together in Mayhew's bus," she heard him say. "Been playing golf all afternoon out at the Rancho club—" party—not with drinks like these." Winnie's brassy little voice broke in, close beside her. "This is going to be a Sunday school festival. Come here, Jim!"

She beckoned with one hand to Jim Bowen, the youngest man in the crowd—a handsome, blue-eyed youngster, who had been the captain of the football eleven at the state university the year before.

"Jim, will you find out from Billie if they're serving plain orange juice cocktails because they don't believe in liquor, or because they don't know where to get it?" she said to him in a stage whisper, drawing his black, shining head down to her curly, dyed one.

"Because if they want liquor—and I hope they do, or I'm just going to pass out with disgust—I know where you can get some," she added, pulling him still closer to her with one arm that was covered with wide, jingling silver bracelets. "There's a kid that works down here in Tomlinson's drug store that sells me alcohol for a dollar a quart! And I can get him on the telephone in a jiffy. Go and ask George Mayhew if it's okay to do it."

She gave him a little push in the direction of George and Billie, who were pouring out some more of the little orange juice "cocktails." Chatty stared at her, unable to move half way to her lips, like a figure carved out of marble.

"A kid that works down here in Tomlinson's drug store... Why, that must be Pud! (To Be Continued)

RUTHVEN LAUDS STUDENT BODY

Defense of the students at the University of Michigan was the substance of the first speech made by Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, in the state, since his elevation to the presidency. He blamed newspapers for drawing an unfair picture of the university student "because he prefers not to flaunt his virtues."

Dr. Ruthven spoke before a Parent-Teacher association meeting at Saginaw. He asserted that the undesirable element in the university body was smaller than the same type of persons in the general population.

"But," he continued, "unfortunately it is usually the representatives of this relatively small group who are responsible for the acts which make 'news' and thus, in the public eye typify the university student."

The new University of Michigan executive disclaimed for his faculty any responsibility for the moral training of the students, but said the institution was entirely responsible for the educational training.

"The faculties can fix educational standards and maintain them. But the tendency to hold the teacher or the institution responsible for the morals of the students is to a considerable extent unjustified," he asserted.

Smoking on the part of women students was condoned by Dr. Ruthven as a matter of manners rather than of morals.

Poems That Live

TO ARAMANTHA
(That she would dishevel her hair)
Aramantha, sweet and fair,
Ah, braid no more that shining hair!
As my curious hand or eye
Hover round thee, let it fly.

Let it fly as unconfined
As its calm ravisher the wind,
Who hath left his darling, 't east,
To wanton in that spicy nest.

Every tress must be confessed;
But neatly tangled at the best;
Like a dew of golden thread
Most excellently unravelled.

Do not, then, wind up that light
In ribbons, and o'er-cloud in night,
Like the sun in his early ray,
But shake your head and scatter day.
—Richard Lovelace (1618-1658).

Waistline Is as Elusive as Ever

By LUCY CLAIRE

The raised waistline appears to be as elusive as ever. The difference is that it has now begun to move up and down above instead of below the hip-line. The normal waistline we have been so long expecting does not prove to be quite so normal, after all. Normal would be about two inches above the hip bone, but Paris is moving it from normal to two inches below or two or three inches above. So you can place your waistline at the most becoming point, so long as you place it within an inch or two of normal.

normal. The ensemble is of black broadcloth, with tuck-in blouse in a contrasting color of large meshed tulle in a check design. Both skirt and two-thirds jacket are in panels joined with silk cord in openwork effect, the panels hung from a yoke. The fur collar is upstanding around the neck in the smart vogue of the season. A black felt hat and black kid pumps complete the costume.

Flounce Breaks Hipline

In the model by Lelong, at the center, we find the waistline posed at the top of the hips and broken by a flounce. The same type of fabric is used for coat and frock. The coat is a heavy mixture of brown, white and mauve, while the frock is of a thinner weave in more subdued coloring of the same tones. Brown astrakhan is used for collar and cuffs. The shoes are of brown kid and the hat of brown felt, matching the brown in the fabric.

Molyneux's afternoon frock of blue georgette, sketched at the right, shows practically no change in the waistline. It is posed at the top of the hips, slightly lower than that in the Lelong model, and with a bloused effect. Two plated flounces are set low on the skirt, breaking the long, straight line, but otherwise practically retaining the straight line silhouette. Blue kid shoes, a blue hat and eggshell hose and gloves complete the costume.

CHARLOTTE PUPILS TO AID DESTITUTE

The Charlotte Hi-Y club has started auspiciously this year and 10 new pupils have been elected to membership. As the club lost 12 members through graduation this year, the election brings the roster to 24.

The club has set for its project this year a Christmas party for Tennessee mountain children in the locality of Asheville, N. C. Although details of this undertaking have been worked out they will not be announced until later.

The club has planned a meeting between its members and the local Y. M. C. A. organization when area conferences and other problems confronting the two organizations will be discussed.

Several Charlotte business men were recent guests of the club at a roast pig supper. The men were told the club desires to take a quantity of Christmas gifts for the children of the Asheville region, pack them in a car or two, and with the club members in other cars, make a trip to the mountains. The members want to have the fun of gathering the presents, planning and executing the party, and get the reaction derived from spreading joy where it will be most appreciated.

Members have been in correspondence with a Mr. Burnett, in charge of all missionary work for the Methodist church, and he has informed them the project is unprecedented and would be thoroughly appreciated.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

USE BRAINS IN READING NEWSPAPERS

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

"Murders, divorces, robberies! That's all the newspapers print!" remarks the fretful parent. "Yes, isn't it awful what our children are exposed to?" another parent adds. In the next breath they begin to talk, perhaps for half an hour—and probably right before their children—about the crimes which they had followed closely every day.

And what a glorious time they have, dwelling in minute detail upon the gruesome way that Mrs. Hippy put her scissors through her husband's head; upon the shocking conduct of the deacon toward his wife as it was given in the court room, and upon the way the robber on the street had covered the bank teller with a pistol while his partner seized $5,000. Then these crimes remind them of others they read about. When their memories run dry of such awful things, Mrs. Toodles, sighing with a saintly air, concludes: "And that is the kind of stuff our papers print for us and for our children!"

Junior Toodles, who sat by breathlessly, taking all the conversation in, ran out to play.

Parents who go on ranting with good Sister Toodles may be the very ones who generally read the columns which relate to crime before they turn to other news. They may not have time to see the editorial page, to turn to the section on home helps, to follow the nation's sporting heroes, to scan the news about our government, to learn what new discoveries have been made to lighten human burdens and to satisfy our human needs. They may not find the information in the paper aimed to feed and clothe the family more effectively, to care for our children more intelligently, to guide us in reducing human pain and sickness and in lengthening life. They have failed to read about the opportunities for enjoying leisure time, for appreciating the beautiful in nature, art and music, and for learning about some of the latest useful books. So very pessimistic, they saw nothing in the daily paper to afford an interesting, wholesome conversation with the family.

Of course, you and I wish the newspapers were not so filled with crime and with suggestions of unhappiness. We also wish there were not so many such things going on to be described as news.

If parents who are most distressed about such matters which they vigorously condemn, would quit reciting them to one another and their children, this sort of news would decrease tremendously.

There is no law forbidding you to use intelligence in reading the newspaper. Read the wholesome, good things in it. Talk about them in your children's presence, and they are pretty sure to imitate you. If you look for such things you will be surprised at what you find.

Write to the editor and tell him what you consider best in his newspaper. He is just as human as you are, and as much delighted by a little praise. We treat the editor about the way we treat our children. When we don't like what they do we wear ourselves out telling them about their faults; but for the things in their behavior that we like we rarely say a word.

If you want your newspaper to improve, praise the good things which you see in it.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

DISCIPLINE YOUR GHERISHED WANTS, DON'T BE SELFISH

Loving some one "terribly hard," or being "madly in love," as one girl puts it, does not entitle one to get the loved one, no matter who is hurt. Some people seem to think that simply because they want a thing so very much it should be given to them.

Things don't work that way in this world. Many, many times one will find that the thing one wanted most, wanted so that it seemed they could not do without it and ever be happy, is the one thing that they cannot have. One finds after awhile that there is nothing one cannot do without—and even be reasonably happy without.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am an attractive blonde and am madly in love with a boy who goes with another girl. He seems to pay no attention to me. Please give me some advice for drawing his attention to me. I am madly in love with him. V. Z."

How about the girl he is going with? She may be madly in love with him, too. Why break her heart to mend yours, even if it could be done? I think if I were you I would pretend that I didn't love him until I got over it. It is always hard, I know, to stifle one's love, but it can be done and you will feel much better than if you selfishly broke up the friendship of this boy and his girl.

"Dear Virginia Lee: It is true that everyone has their faults. My outstanding fault is despicable and almost inexcusable. I think I like a boy for about two or three weeks. Then I can't enjoy his company and don't care to be with him again.

"I would give anything to overcome this and have honestly tried, but find it impossible. You have given others splendid advice and I'm sure you can help me. Won't you suggest something?" Bobbie."

Yours is the first case of this kind I've had, Bobbie. Most of them are reversed. People can't hold their friends. You have an adventurous spirit, probably, want to explore the personality of each new friend, and as soon as the newness wears off you want to change.

Are you like that with places, with clothes, with hobbies? You may outgrow some of it. Try to look deeper into things and into friends. Try to realize that they have depths that you cannot fathom in a short time, and lasting qualities that are worth cultivating for years.

You won't get much happiness out of such an attitude, and will cause many heartaches, so do try to overcome it. You recognize it as a fault and that is a hopeful sign.

Betty and Doris: So many of you girls ask the same thing. I don't see much use in printing the same answers again and again, dear girls. There is no great harm in a good night kiss, but, as I've said hundreds of times, kisses don't mean much if you're going to give them to every boy you go with.

Car riding at night may be harmless and may also be very harmful, according to the crowd you're with. I don't believe your parents would approve of it. Car riding at night, petting and smoking certainly won't improve your morals, your manners or your reputations. Three guesses as to whether I approve of them.

"Dear Virginia Lee: Is it asking too much when a girl asks her sweetheart, who is away from her city, to come and see her for Christmas? Is it improper? How would you ask him? I thank you. MISS 1929."

Not at all improper, Miss 1929. Just ask him where he is going to spend Christmas, and say that you and your parents would like him to spend it with you if he can.

The World and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

THIS WAGGING WORLD

The Lindberghs made safe landings, and again all is well. But I do not hesitate to confess that I am one of those Americans who views with considerable dread each new dangerous venture of that boy.

Flying over the West Indies, the Caribbean and the jungles of Central America and Mexico is a dangerous adventure because of the lack of emergency landing spaces.

Lindbergh is still Lindbergh, despite the circumstance that many Americans lost interest in him when he married and settled down to a job. I still consider him our most romantic hero, with the possible exception of John Paul Jones. And Jones, of course wasn't born in America, although he turned out to be one of the greatest of all Americans.

I still think that Lindbergh should be honored by having his likeness on a postage stamp and on a coin. And he should be made Secretary of Aviation.

However, the boy will live gloriously, whether the country ever offers him these honors or not.

It's good to learn that commercial flying in the United States increased 60 per cent during the first half of this year over the same period last year. That's a big increase. Transport planes flew eight million miles in this country during those six months. How many times around the earth is that? A good many times, I should estimate.

We are overtaking Europe in aviation, thanks to private enterprise in America. Our postoffice department has done some valuable pioneering but most of our advancement in aviation is due to the enterprise of those who want to make money out of flight.

Within another five years, American planes will lead the world as decisively as American automobiles now maintain their leadership. And don't worry too much about this country's aviation position in the next war. American planes will be there when the gong rings.

Things happen in the air so rapidly these days that it takes an industrious reader to keep abreast. Perhaps it is significant that Charles F. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the National City bank, recently went to Germany to talk Zeppelin financing with the Eckener group.

Zeppelins require much financing. Each ship costs a fortune, and it takes time to get the investment back. Mitchell has the money and the power to link Europe and America with regular airship service. It is well to have such a man interested in such a venture. So do we move forward.

PANTHERS WIN FROM ANN ARBOR BY SCORE OF 20 TO 0

In a game that was played in a sea of mud the Pinckney Panthers won from the Ann Arbor Triangles here last Sunday by a score of 20 to 0. The rain which fell continuously for three hours left miniature lakes in several parts of the gridiron. However it stopped about 4:00 and the game started. Pinckney was only able to muster 10 men so were forced to play one man short. Pinckney scored in the first per-

He also got the extra point. Ann Arbor braced in the second half and Pinckney did not score until in the final minutes when Swarthout threw four successive forward passes all of which were caught by Harold Reason and Hende. This placed the ball on the 5 yard line and Swarthout went through the line for a touchdown. His attempt to place kick the extra point failed. Ann Arbor made numerous gains in the center of the field but were unable to dent the Pinckney line.

ADVICE ON HOW TO AVOID TULAREMIA IS GIVEN

Dr. Edward Francis, surgeon in the United States public health service, gives the following advice on how to avoid tularemia, or rabbit fever.

Never put your unprotected hands inside a wild rabbit.

Always wear rubber gloves when handling wild rabbits.

The rabbit must be thoroughly cooked; so well cooked that there is no red meat, not any red juice, near the bone.

That as at least 1 per cent of all wild rabbits are infected, the hunter, to be perfectly assured of safety, should not take home a wild rabbit that he shoots in the field.

That although tularemia has been lately identified, the inhibition against rabbits on account of the disease, is more than 5,000 years old, in proof of which he cites Leviticus xi 4-8:

"And the coney . . . and the hare . . . of their flesh shall ye not touch; they are unclean to you."

Camels are for knowing smokers!

It's just too bad if any smoker because of misinformation denies himself or herself the pleasure of CAMELS.

New smokers are not always in a position to have a real preference in cigarettes. But when they acquaint themselves with Camels they develop that sense of discrimination that leads to real smoking pleasure. Camels are made so carefully and of so good a blend of choicest cigarette tobaccos that even those with inexperienced smoking taste quickly recognize their superiority. They are for those who appreciate the taste of choice tobaccos, the fragrance of a perfect blend and the soothing mellowness of a really satisfying cigarette.

CURRENT COMMENT

The victory of Charles Bowles over Ex-Mayor John Smith at Detroit last week was a big upset for the political dopsters who expected Smith to win. The only apparent answer is that the people of that city are becoming tired of the hi-jacking, murders and kidnappings which have occurred there lately and wanted a new deal. Bowles promised the most, consequently he got the majority of the votes, particularly the women and in the wealthy residential districts. The fulfillment of his promises will be watched with interest by the rest of the state.

Next Friday, Nov. 15, will occur the opening debate of the Mich. High School debating league. Pinckney meets South Lyon and Stockbridge meets Mason. Fowlerville also has a team but their opponent has not yet been selected. These debates are new and entail considerable expense as outside judges are necessary. The admissions received in a majority of schools have been insufficient to pay the expenses and other school funds have had to be used. Whether the interest will be any greater this year than in the past two years is hard to say. If it does not some of the schools are liable to have to drop debating.

For some time past it has been rumored that liquor was being freely dispensed and wild parties staged at certain fraternities or dormitory houses in Ann Arbor. The majority of reports paid slight attention to these reports thinking them exaggerations and doubted if drinking was wide spread at the U. of M. Last week came the raiding of Fletcher Hall which turned out to be a bootleg joint equal to Moonshine Mike's or any other place of like character. Three students were said to have been working their way through college by bootlegging. Two occupants of the room where the wet goods were seized were arrested and are out on $2,500 bail. Alexander Gow of Detroit said to have been the leader of the trio fled to Canada and was arrested by the Canadian police. He is said to have refused to waive extradition. President Ruthven acted promptly and closed the hall until the end of the present semester. The 80 students who lived there are trying to prevent this by circulating a petition claiming they were ignorant of the law violations. Although liquor is said to have been dispensed there in a wholesale manner and several telephone orders for the same are said to have been received by the officers at the time of the raid. This is said to be in line with the new policy established by the U. of M. authorities who have recently warned five fraternities to cease serving liquor or their closing would result.

Mr. Burroughs has never owned an automobile and never intends to, and said one reason why he desired the old fashioned carriage was that it was low down and easy to get in and out of. This is the first buggy the dealers

FIVE RED CROSS CAMPS HOUSE FLOOD REFUGEES

A total of 27,791 persons were maintained by the American Red Cross in camps or in their own homes in the three States of Alabama, Georgia and Florida, following the disastrous floods of early last Spring. Five camps were organized, of which four were in Alabama and one in Florida. Small temporary camps were set up in various places in addition to these, but the persons not sheltered in the five main camps soon were able to return home or to friends and relatives. Red Cross nurses were at all five camps, assisting the State health authorities in care of the sick and in inoculating against epidemics.

EDUCATED BEAR SIDESTEP TRAPS

Paul Houlmont, the state trapper having charge of the work of ridding the Triangle ranch district of the bear that have been killing the calves, was in Crystal Falls last week and he had a story of bear cunning that gives one an idea of the difficulty that the state men encounter in their contest of wits with Mr. Bruin.

It seems that efforts have been made to catch the bear by local workers and with traps that were altogether too small for the purpose of bear trapping. Many times these small traps have been sprung which means that a bear has stumbled into one of them, got his paws severely pinched but managed to free himself. That happening has served to educate the bear and it would appear that their education has been advanced nearly to the high school period in the bear education.

Mr. Houlmont has had the advice and assistance of George Premo, one of the best versed men in wild life in Michigan. Several large traps were secured from the department and were set in the most approved fashion with wooden entrances so arranged that as Mr. and Mrs. Bruin entered the front door he or she would be met with the jaws of the trap ready to catch and hold the bear.

But trappers didn't take into consideration the education that the bear had received. Instead of entering the front door the bear went around to the back door, and when a house without any back door was erected, the bear proceeded to make a back door for himself.

Mr. Houlmont hopes to correct the shortcomings of his trap arrangement so as to fool Mr. Bear and a contest of wits is now on in earnest.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest drugist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

ANOTHER HIT SKIP DRIVER

CITY STREETS TRAVERSE CITY MEANDER LINE

After learning that the meander line of Grand Traverse bay runs through the middle of Traverse City's principal business street, the Grand Traverse county board of supervisors dispatched a plea to Governor Fred W. Green asking "an immediate settlement of the relicted land problem by legislative enactment or other action which will give to owners of adjacent property title to land to the water's edge."

The board's action was a protest against the governor's intention to have his relicted land commission report at the next regular session of the legislature, more than a year hence. The petition points out that approximately 75 miles of shore line in Grand Traverse county is affected and that owners of hundreds of acres of valuable resort property in the county cannot give title to their land.

Carl R. Pratt of Traverse City produced records to show that the meander line was surveyed in this section of the state about 1839, at the rate of 35 miles a day.

Neahawanta Point and Old Mission Point, extensive areas on the Grand Traverse bay peninsula that have been resorts for 40 years, are cut off by the meander line, Pratt explained, while in Traverse City it cuts through Front street in the mercantile district several hundred yards from the bay, causing numerous business blocks to be held without ability of the owners to give a legal title.

Another "Pup" Game Refuge Is Announced

A third small game refuge near the Ogemaw game refuge, north of West Branch in the Ogemaw state forest, was authorized by the conservation commission recently.

The new unit contains two square miles or 1,280 acres. The experimental unit is for the protection of all wild life as were the other two, containing 2,650 acres, authorized by the commission in September.

These "pup" refuges are located from one to five miles away from the big "standard" refuge, and are being tried out in the hope that they will help increase the deer in heavily hunted territory faster than would be possible with a single large refuge unit.

If the new scheme seems to work the system of "pup" refuges will no doubt be extended to other "standard" refuges.

Must Obtain Permit To Import Animals

The importation into Michigan of game birds, game and fur bearing animals now requires a permit from the department of conservation. There is no charge for the permits.

Under the new law birds or animals imported without permit are subject to confiscation and the individual responsible for the introductions are subject to fines.

The department of conservation emphasizes there is no intention to interfere with reasonable importations, but it hopes to avoid the introduction of serious pests and to prevent the spread of new wild animal diseases into Michigan.

Asks Radio Levy For Grand Rapids

An installation fee of $2 would be exacted by the city for every radio set up in Grand Rapids if a proposed ordinance drafted by City Attorney Ganson Taggart to eliminate radio interference is adopted. It is estimated there will be about 4,000 installations annually. One hundred firms here will be compelled to pay an annual fee of $10. The income, it is estimated, would be sufficient to locate and remedy interference and to make necessary inspections of aerials, grounds, lightning arresters and power socket installation.

Beet Factories Start

Mt. Clemens Sugar Company commenced work on Oct. 21 on its 1929 sugar beet season with 275 men on the payroll. More than 110,000,000 pounds of beets will be handled. The season is expected to continue until Jan. 5. Beets are being shipped at the rate of 40 carloads a day from the southern part of Michigan, although 15,000 tons are expected from Canada.

Operations were started on Oct. 19 at the Caro plant of the Michigan Sugar Company, as the plant entered its thirty-first successive season. About 5,500 acres will be harvested from the adjoining territory in addition to those which will be received from territories in which sugar beet factories are idle this season.

STATE SELECTS HOSPITAL SITE NEAR ANN ARBOR

Construction of a new state hospital for insane, six miles southeast of Ann Arbor, will be started within a few weeks, Gov. Fred W. Green announced after the administrative board had approved the site selected by a special committee. The tract consists of 1,200 acres and will cost $179,400.

The chief executive said ground will be broken for the institution as soon as plans and specifications have been completed. He declared work will continue throughout the winter, if weather permits.

In Washtenaw County More than a third of the $24,000,000 appropriation made by the last legislature for new buildings and rehabilitation of old is to be used for the new hospital if present plans are unchanged. The lawmakers made $1,500,000 available for use on the institution this year and $2,000,000 additional next year. Another $5,000,000 has been appropriated for the following two years but this sum may be cut or increased by the next legislature.

As previously announced, the site is in York and Pittsfield townships of Washtenaw county. It comprises a number of farms close to US-23 and two of the several farm houses as well as a number of barns can be utilized.

"Through our efforts and those of the budget director," the committee reported, "the original quoted price of $189 an acre has been whittled to $149.50, which in our judgment is reasonable and far below figures at which most land in that section is held."

In search for a site the committee members said they visited more than 20 recommended locations, ranging in price from $91 an acre to $1,000. The decision to select the Washtenaw county tract finally was reached unanimously, although for a while the two members of the special body could not agree.

The new hospital is to be erected because of the inability of the Pontiac institution to serve properly the metropolitan district. This hospital has been congested for years and at least 600 persons who have been held insane by the courts are now at liberty in that section.

Harry W. Musselwhite and W. F. Gallagher, members of the state hospital commission, made up the special committee.

Lansing Freight Increases

Lansing's freight volume for the first nine months of the year greatly exceeds that for the same period in 1928, according to figures disclosed by Charles T. Sherman, traffic commissioner of the chamber of commerce. A total of 1,534,010 tons was recorded for the three-quarter period of 1929, while the comparable period of 1928 recorded 1,296,960 tons. Both incoming and outgoing shipments are included. The number of cars used in 1929 was also larger than in 1928, the figures being 77,802 and 62,837.

State Motorists Pay $41,000,000 for Roads

Michigan's greatest highway year, both in point of finance and amount of construction completed, has come to a close. Frank D. Fitzgerald, business manager for the highway department, estimates that all records for mileage completed, revenue collected, and amounts paid to counties have been shattered. He fixes collections from motor vehicle owners, in gasoline, weight and other taxes, in excess of $41,000,000. This would compare with net receipts in 1928 of approximately $38,000,000. Completed mileage of paved highways will reach close to the 400 mark as compared with 348 miles last year, he said.

Counties have already been paid the largest amount prior to final settlement after the first of the year over released by the state. They have received $6,500,000. It is estimated the weight tax will reach $21,000,000, perhaps more, which would entitle the counties to about $4,000,000 more. Final payments cannot be made until after the first of the year, as the apportionment is upon a basis of revenues from counties.

In 1928 net receipts from the weight tax, license transfers and so forth, was $20,056,647, and from the gasoline tax $17,547,104. Thus far this year the gasoline levy has yielded $17,202,351, and there are three months to go, indicating a total of over $20,000,000 for the year. The weight tax revenues have reached a point where $21,000,000 or more seems certain.

Resort Body Offers to Aid Traverse Festival

An offer of the Michigan Tourist & Resort Association to aid the Michigan cherry festival, Traverse City's great summer event, next year by making more money available, was conveyed to the county board of supervisors by Frank Blakely, field secretary of the association.

The tourist association, he said, desires its appropriation from the supervisors increased from $1,000 to $1,500. If this is done, the association will be given $500 more from the state advertising funds, under the act of the 1929 legislature providing that the advertising expenditures of the tourist association will be matched dollar for dollar by the state. This $500, Blakely said, would be turned back to Grand Traverse county to aid in advertising the cherry festival.

Community Chest Plan Likely to Be Adopted in Holland

Holland may follow the lead of other Michigan cities in the adoption of a community chest for financing its charities. The movement has been placed in the hands of a committee and is said to meet with its approval after a careful study of the field.

The committee will advocate its viewpoint that considerable time and expense will be saved by conducting one campaign in place of numerous annual drives.

Emery Is Selected For Officers' Board

Lieut. Col. John G. Emery, former national commander of the American Legion, has received appointment from Major General Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area, which comprises Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan, to serve upon a board of reserve officers to advise the corps area commander regarding the administration of reserve officers and to recommend the separation from the service of any officers no longer in a position to be effective. The board probably will hold its sessions in Chicago.

OLIVET BUYS LAND FOR PUBLIC PARK

An eight-acre tract of land adjacent to Brook Kedron in Olivet's downtown section, has been purchased by the village for a public park. This land formerly was covered by the mill pond, but since the laying of the Indian creek drain and dredging of the stream the land on either side has grown into an unsightly waste.

Some weeks ago the village council caused a petition to be circulated to learn the sentiment of the taxpayers. A majority of the residents were in favor of the project and the purchase was made.

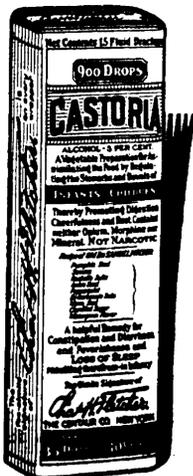

Work has been started to clear up the land in preparation for a skating rink.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

A Cold Weather Warning

Your starter warns "Beware of cold-stiffened oil."

This is the time of the year when cold-stiffened oil can quickly steal the first year feel in your engine. After your engine has been standing in the cold garage all night, much of the oil on the pistons and cylinder walls has drained down into the crankcase. How quickly the oil can reach them again depends on whether or not you use the correct grade of oil for this time of the year.

When your engine feels stiff on starting, remember that the load you so definitely notice on the starter is transferred to the engine as soon as it begins to turn over. With incorrect oil in the crankcase, the first few moments of starting and running give your engine more destructive wear than many miles of ordinary driving.

Have your crankcase drained and refilled with the correct grade of the New Mobiloil for cold weather use. Mobiloil engineers have studied every make and model of automobile engine in special cold weather laboratories and in northern countries. They were the first to point out the need for a special winter grade of oil, and the first to make it. Now these years of study and experience have resulted in the perfection of the New Mobiloil for cold weather use—better than ever before. The new Mobiloil Arctic flows easily in the coldest weather. It also maintains full lubricating value at the higher running temperatures, and lasts for a longer time.

PINCKNEY AND ANN ARBOR RESERVES PLAY TIE GAME

Pinckney High School and Ann Arbor High School Reserve teams battled to a 6-6 tie in a game played at Ann Arbor on Wednesday last Friday. Pinckney was the better of their opponents in the beginning and had the ball at Ann Arbor's ten yard line in the first quarter, getting possession of it when Ann Arbor fumbled. However they were unable to penetrate the Ann Arbor line and lost the ball on downs. In the next period they got possession of it on the 12 yard line but again failed to score. The game then developed into a punting duel between Reason of Pinckney and Staeb of Ann Arbor with the former having the advantage. As a consequence the ball remained in Ann Arbor territory continually. Both teams avoided most of their time to setting the line and no forward passes were attempted to speak of until the second half. Pinckney completed three and Ann Arbor seven but neither team was able to score by this means. Murray Kennedy was hurt and did not play the last half. Roy Reason went to the backfield and made two first downs on line plunges and threw the first successful portunities offered neither team seemed to have punch enough to their offense to carry the ball across the goal line. Pinckney also gained the most yardage making six first downs to Ann Arbor's five.

NOTES OF THE GAME

Pinckney played a much better offensive game than in the St. Thomas game. Roy Reason and Gerald Kennedy were the principal ground gainers and Har Hall made three nice gains after catching forward passes.

Probably the punting in this game will not be equal for some time in high school circles at least. Both Reason and Staeb who did the punting for the respective teams averaged 50 to 60 yards and as a consequent there were few scoring chances.

There were few penalties handed out. Pinckney drew two for offside and Ann Arbor one for clipping and one for two consecutive incomplete forward passes.

This Ann Arbor bunch had two stars in Snyder and Vogel. Both are freshmen and will be heard from later. The former besides making a 60 yard run twisted his way through the Pinckney line for many gains. Vogel played a fine defensive game and broke through the Pinckney line repeatedly and spilled the ball carrier. Pinckney linemen agree that he is the best lineman they have played against this year.

Jack Hall recovered a fumble from Ann Arbor which gave Pinckney the ball on the ten yard line. This was their best scoring opportunity. Murray Kennedy was forced out with an injured hip in the first half. Roy Reason replaced him and proceeded to go through the Ann Arbor line for two first downs.

Pinckney will play Dexter here on Friday, November 18 and Byron there

Capt. Kennedy Stops Snyder at 10 yard line saving the game for his team. Full passes which were caught by Har Hall. Ronald Tupper started at left half for Ann Arbor but went out in the second quarter because of strained back. Snyder was Ann Arbor's leading ground gainer and was responsible for all of their first downs. With only four and a half minutes left to play in the last quarter he broke through the entire Pinckney team and ran sixty yards being downed on the ten yard line by Captain Gerald Kennedy. Ann Arbor failed to gain on four trials and Pinckney got the ball pointed out of danger. In the final quarter each team tried many forward passes in a vain attempt to score. Pinckney outplayed their opponents having two scoring chances to their opponents one. But when scoring op-on the 22. Not much difficulty is anticipated in the Dexter game but they will be forced to extend themselves in order to beat Byron which has a good team.

The Byron game will end the season for the team and will be the last game that Gerald Kennedy, James Hall, Har Hall, Rollie Shehan, Peter Gerycz, Pete Stackable, Roy Reason and Clyde Soper. These men are all seniors and Coach Doyle will have his hands full replacing them next year.

USUAL MEETING IS HELD AT LAKELAND

The Lakeland circle of King's Daughters was entertained by Mrs. Eva Moon Wednesday afternoon. There were 42 in attendance, guests being Mrs. Mary Birch of Ann Arbor and Mrs. Charles Bennett Sr. of Hamburg village.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Myron W. Hendrick. The treasurer, Miss Viola Pettys, reported a balance in the checking account of $14.16, with $200 drawing interest. Mrs. Clayton Carpenter reported for the social committee, and Mrs. Lelesphore Bourbonnais for the work committee.

The question of sending a delegate to the international convention at New Orleans was discussed, but no action taken. Miss Jule Adele Ball read the words of the memorial song and prayer she composed for use for deceased members. It was voted to accept them, and a rising vote of thanks was extended to Miss Ball for writing. An invitation from Mrs. E. Wray Hinckley to hold the next meeting Nov. 26 was accepted. Mrs. Clifford C. VanHorn will act as associate hostess. Mrs. Harry Whitlock read a poem, "When Mother's Sick." The meeting closed with singing the song of the cross. Dainty refreshments were served.

New Lamps for Old

Large Sizes for Small, or Small Sizes for Large

NOT all lamp bulbs have a renewal value, nor are all lamps of the same efficiency. Do not be deceived by so-called "low-priced" imported lamp bulbs: In the long run, they are costly. They consume much more current for the amount of light given. They cannot be renewed, and for purposes of exchange are worthless.

Only Mazda lamps are handled by The Detroit Edison Company. They are available in fourteen types, and have high illuminating power for low current consumption. Mazda lamps are modern, high-efficiency bulbs, constantly improved by the Mazda research staff. They are renewable without charge in all the ordinary residence and commercial sizes. The Detroit Edison Company exchanges, without charge, new lamps for burnt-out or blackened lamps, and larger size lamps for small ones, or vice versa.
