Toyland Is Open

Kiddies! Toyland is open for you! Hundreds of games, toys and building sets. Here you may find dolls of all sizes.—some that go to sleep in your arms with a contented sigh. Others cry as if their little hearts would break, or call gently to "Mama" when you take them in your arms.

And the little Rabbits, Kittens, and Dogs are just waiting to be cuddled. Fuzzy Teddy Bears frisk with a hearty welcome as you come in. And don't forget to look at the doll carriages and Kiddie Kars before you step inside.

The grown-ups are not slighted in the least—with new and old games that will make the long winter evenings seem shorter.

Come and bring the kiddies. Let them feast their eyes upon these wondrous treasures.

Shop early and avoid the rush.

REPORT OIL FOUND AT LOCKE

Drillers Keep on Drilling and Refuse to Give Information. Sample Dipped from Waste Pronounced Crude Oil

The state press carried headlines Thursday that oil had been struck in Locke township, Ingham County. The well is located near the Ingham-Livingston county line and is about three miles west of Bell Oak. Drilling started there about three weeks ago and the drilling has progressed considerably over 1000 feet down. A news paper reporter filled a bottle with an oily looking substance found at the end of the waste ditch. This ditch runs from the well and is used to carry away the water, mud and other waste materials pumped from the well. The sample dipped up from the pool into which this ditch empties proved to be crude oil with a paraffin base. Further investigation led to the report that this oil deposit did not come from the well borer at all but had escaped from the force where the drills are sharpened. This force burns crude oil which is shipped in. This explanation of course is supposition as the drillers refuse to give out any information.

The editor in company with Foster Miller, Earl Paughn and Calvin Hooker visited the scene of the drilling Friday. A stop was first made at the George Dryer farm in Conway, near the Dillingham school. Here J. L. Hoover, veteran oil man, is making preparations to drill a well. The machinery is all on the grounds and the derricks are being erected. Work has already been started on the shanty which houses the drillers and steam engine which furnishes the power to drive the drill. This shanty is not very imposing and has a hole in the top from which the derrick, which is about forty feet high, projects. The sides of the building are of corrugated steel and both it and the drilling apparatus according to appearances have seen much service in different oil fields. Operations here which have been held up while lawyers were clearing the title to the land will probably start in a short time.

The Locke field presented a similar appearance except that the machinery was all under cover and operations have been in progress for about three weeks. The waste ditch where the oil was found extends about 500 feet from the drill and empties into a swamp. This ditch is heavily encrusted with marl which has been thrown out by the borer. The land at Locke is under lease to the Puroil Co., but the well is being put down by the Hillmur Oil Co. Signs are posted signed by the company warning spectators not to talk or ask questions of the workmen. The drill was drawn out while the Pinckney delegation was there and was streaked with oil. The well will probably be sunk to a depth of 3500 feet. A sample of the shale or rock formation through which the drill was raising was also brought up and the Pinckneyites brought home some with them. Both wells are being put down in swampy land and the scene of operations is not much to look at in either case. However if a gusher or oil in paying quantities is struck then the music will start.

BIG THREE ACT COMEDY

Second Number on Pinckney Lecture Course to be Put on at Pinckney Community Hall Wednesday Evening, November 27.

The three act comedy "Pigs" will be put on at the Pinckney Community Hall on Wednesday evening, November 27. This is the big number of the Pinckney Lecture Course and will undoubtedly draw a good house. Season tickets are now on sale at $1.50 and reserved seats can be obtained at Barry's Drug Store. The press sheet has the following comment to make on this number:

Pigs, the recent comedy hit of the season in New York and Chicago, is the story of the Junior member of a typical American family who wanted to become a veterinarian and would not be thwarted. Seizing upon the chance to buy a litter of dying pigs for a small sum he takes his sweetheart into partnership and his confidence and together they nurse the animals back to health. The epidemic which was widespread caused pork prices to soar, and Junior's pigs bring an amazing sum.

When he walks blithely in with the money to pay off the mortgage on the old homestead and announces his intentions of marrying Mildred he is accorded with every consideration of the full grown man, which has been his ideal and desire, yet so long denied to him.

Pigs is the perfect type of play which combines the perfect romantic love theme, the exactly right amount of suspense and thrills, and more than enough laughs to keep the audience in an uproar. That a play can be clean and be an outstanding success is conclusively demonstrated by the wonderful reception accorded "Pigs" wherever it has appeared.

The cast is headed by Madame Mabelle Wagner-Shank, celebrated dramatic artist, coach, and producer. Madame Shank is also a prima-donna soprano at one time prominent in light and grand opera and concert, has made a number of song records for Edison, and more recently conducted tone tests for Edison over the country. The other members of the cast possess exceptional talent as singers and entertainers, which will be employed in the play itself and between acts.

FEATHER PARTY FRIDAY NIGHT

Friday evening, Nov. 22 is the date of the big feather party to be given at the Pinckney Community Hall. The proceeds will be used to apply on the payments of the Pinckney Community Hall. The one given last year was a big success and there is every reason to believe that this one will be even better. A plentitude of turkeys, geese, ducks, and chickens have been secured and the affair will undoubtedly be a long one.

A subscription list has been prepared and all those wishing to donate will be given ample opportunity. The cash donations will be used to help pay for the poultry. Many people have expressed a desire to contribute poultry. All those who wish to do so may leave the same at the Community Hall or Dispatch office either Thursday night or Friday morning.

Splendid progress has been made in paying for the hall in the past two years and the payments now total considerably over half of the purchase price.

SCHOOL NOTES

In the first preliminary debate of the year Pinckney defeated South Lyon by a unanimous decision of the judges. The question was: Resolved: That a Judge or Board of Judges be substituted for the Jury System in all Cases in the State and Municipal Courts of Michigan. The South Lyon team was composed of Robert Goff, Robert Tuttle, and Elise Kluck upheld the negative.

Pinckney upheld the affirmative side of the question and was represented by Celia Gearhart, Marie Shehan, and Harlan Hall.

The judges were Supt. Van Alen of Dexter, Mr. Droze of Hartland and Mr. Burke of Battle Creek.

Several teams have been negotiating with Pinckney to play a game on Thanksgiving Day. As yet, an opponent has not been selected. The Dexter boys, who have asked for the game and are confident that they can trim Pinckney if given another chance, must be given some consideration after their fine showing last week, however there are other worthy teams to be given consideration before making a selection for this feature game. Pinckney's opponent will be announced the last of this week.

This game should prove a real classic. Pinckney's team is in first class condition and when a real opponent is selected the game should be a real one. Pinckney has eight men who will be playing their last game. The following boys graduate in June: Peter Gorycz, Gerald Kennedy, Roland Shehan, Harlan Hall, Roy Reason, Clyde Soper, James Hall, and Aloysius Stackable.

Last Friday afternoon the Dexter High School football team came to Pinckney and sprang the big surprise.

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 24

The mean temperature in most parts of Michigan at the very beginning of the week of November 24th will range close to 36 degrees above zero.

We are of the opinion there will be a combination of rain and snow storms during the first part of this week and in some sections this may amount to sleet storms.

By Monday or Tuesday we look for a rather extensive and high barometric pressure to come out of the Northwest and engulf the state of Michigan.

Close to Thursday there will be a slight moderation in temperature with a resultant clouding up. While there may be some precipitation during the last three days of this week, we believe the principle feature of this storm area will be the strong winds.

Weather Causes Thanksgiving The modern Thanksgiving day is associated with turkeys, cranberries, pumpkin pie, grandmothers and football games but it has not always been so.

CHATTY GODDESS OF GAB

BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "MONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDER," "MONEY LOU," "LOVE BOUND," etc.

Copyright 1929, Central Press Assn. Inc., Cleveland, Ohio.

CHAPTER IX

"I must stop him!" Chatty was thinking, wildly, desperately, as she watched Jim Bowen make his way across the crowded room to Billie.

How would she ever hold her head up among them all again, after they knew that her brother worked for a bootlegger?

"If they phony for that alcohol, it'll be Pud who will bring it!" she told herself, sick now, with shame and fear.

Of course she could get up and leave. Say she had a sudden headache, and go back across the hall to her own apartment.

And like a flash she was across the room and out into the hall. She knocked on the thin panels of her own door.

No sound of Mrs. Chatterton's light, quick footsteps from within. Chatty tried the door. It was locked.

Chatty tried the door. It was locked. Locked! And Mrs. Chatterton had gone to St. Martin's church, of course, just as she did every Sunday night of her life.

But maybe she's left the back door unlocked, she thought. Or the kitchen window.

She flew down the front stairs and around to the back of the building. It was dark and "spooky" in the small back yard, but Chatty was too worried to be frightened by anything as harmless as darkness that night.

She raced up the back stairs to the little second floor porch that opened out from their own kitchen.

The back door was locked, and so was the window. No hope there!

"I'm just wasting time—I should have gone straight down to Tomlinson's in the first place!" And Chatty flew around to the front of the building once more, and set off down the street at a dead run.

She had almost reached the corner when she heard someone loudly whistling "Drizzle, Drizzle, the Party's a Fizzle." That was Pud's favorite song!

And, sure enough, there he was—coming along on the opposite side of the street, with his hands in his pockets and his cap pulled over one ear at a very doggy angle.

Chatty never had been so glad to see anyone in her life.

"Pud," she called softly, and rushed across the road to him. "Pud—you're taking something up to Billie's, aren't you? Well, give it to me! I'll take it!"

"Nix." Pud did not take his hands from his pockets, and he shook his head. "Not without the money for it, darling sister! Since you've found out about Ben you may as well know that all his business is strictly cash."

There's a quart of the 'stuff' under each of my arms, and it's a dollar a quart.

Chatty did not have a penny with her. And her purse was locked up in the flat.

"Pud, have you your key to the house?" she asked, and he nodded.

"Well, let you and me and your self get out of my purse," she told him. "It's in my bottom dresser drawer, under a pile of stockings; but please don't go near the flat until I'm back at Billie's, will you?"

I wouldn't have any of those people from the office know that I have a brother who sells stuff like this, for anything in the world.

"Where do you get that bunch of baloney?" asked Pud, using the slang that he seemed to think marked him a man of the world.

"That Miss Talcott has been buying gin and things from Ben all the time I've been working for him. She's as tough as shoe leather, and I don't mean perhaps."

"Did she call up just now?" "Sure," Pud nodded sulkily.

"Does she know you're my brother?" Chatty's voice shook. She was on the verge of tears.

Out of breath, and starry-eyed from her run in the wind, she flung open the door of the vestibule and rushed straight into the arms of Dave Jordan!

"Where have you been? Billie just sent me out to look after you! And what's this?" He looked down at the two bottles in her arms.

"That's the alcohol," answered Chatty, without a quiver. "I saw the man bringing it up the street and I thought maybe I'd better run down and get it from him. I was afraid the neighbors might see him come in with it."

He took the bottles from her, and they started up the stairs. The door of the Langenau's apartment stood open, and the sound of music and laughter and high voices came down to them.

Chatty laughed. "Doesn't it sound lovely?" she asked, turning her face up to Jordan's face.

"—and, do you know, I haven't been to one since I was six years old . . . and that was a kid's party. Not a bit like this one of Billie's tonight!"

Happiness and excitement were in her voice, and her whole face was alight—eyes wide and sparkling, parted lips smiling dreamily. In two minutes she had completely forgotten Pud and all her fears.

"What do you mean? That you've never really been out on a party like this one before? You can't mean that!" Dave Jordan was standing dead still looking down at her with a puzzled look in his deep, dark eyes.

"Why, sure, you must have gone to plenty of parties!" "But I haven't!" Chatty cut him short. "Believe me or not, I've never been to a dance—or anything like a party—since I've been grown up!"

And then, before he could say a word, she was telling him all about herself!

"I've never gone to a movie, even, with a man!" She laughed at the surprised look on his face as she went on. "I've never had a 'date' with a man in my whole life! The only men I know are you boys in the office—and Mr. Van Nuy's, and our minister, and our grocery boy!"

She saw that he only half believed what she was saying.

"This isn't just your 'line,' is it?" he asked, uncertainly. "It's the truth, isn't it?"

"Why, of course, it's the truth!" Chatty said breathlessly. "You don't think I could make a thing like I ought to do, do you? And why would I? I ought to be ashamed of never having had a 'date'! Don't you think I ought to be? Oh, but I shouldn't be telling you all this! It sounds so silly."

All at once shame swept over her. Shame that she should be telling anyone—and this man, above everybody else—how empty and lonely and starved her life had been, compared to the lives of other pretty twenty-year-old girls, who knew plenty of good times that girls and men do have together.

"I ought to be ashamed," she said again. "And I am." She turned away from him and started up the steps.

But Dave Jordan stopped her. He caught her by one hand and turned her around so that she faced him. She was a step above him, and her eyes were on a level with his eyes.

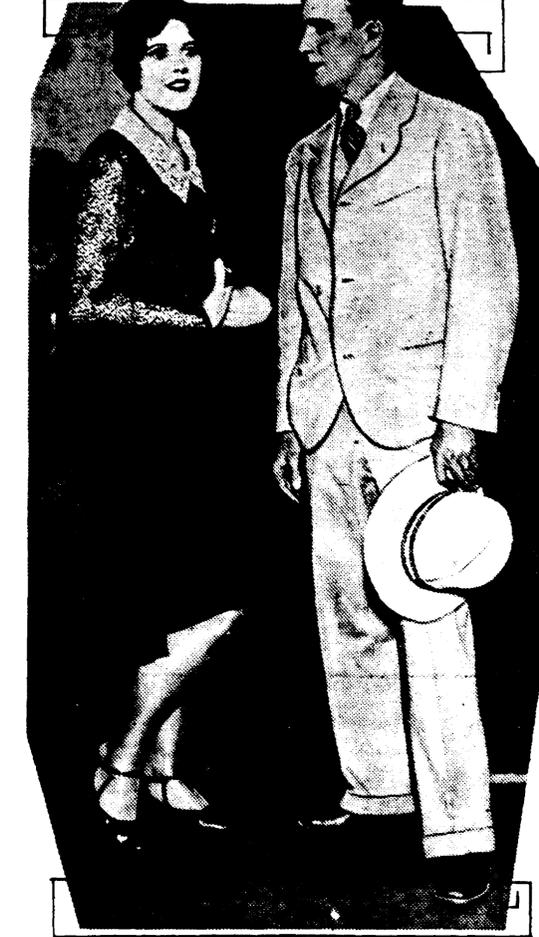

He looked straight at her, and he was very serious.

"You needn't be ashamed," she heard him say, and his voice seemed to come from a long way off. There was a humming in Chatty's ears, and she was trembling. She never had been close to a man before, like this.

"You needn't be ashamed at all," he said. "I suppose it's none of my business, but I'm glad you haven't had a lot of 'dates' and run around with a lot of men."

He had her other hand now, and his face was very close to hers. "I'm going to kiss you," he said huskily, and suddenly she was crushed against him. His arms were like bands of steel around her. She lifted her face to him, and felt his mouth close down over her own mouth.

"This is the most wonderful thing

There was Mr. Jordan and Agnes Jordan and Agnes Herford. They were deep in talk.

"Lost to the world," thought Chatty, and bitterness rolled over her like a flood of icy water.

Difficult Phase of Dahlia Culture Is in Successful Storage

The one difficult phase of dahlia culture is successful storage of the dormant roots. As soon as the tops are killed, lift the plants and cut the tops off 8 to 12 inches above the crown.

Let the tubers dry in the air for a few hours and store them in a frost-free cellar that is not too dry.

If the cellar is too warm or too dry, as is apt to be the case, store the roots in barrels filled with dry sand or sawdust. Great care should be used to injure the roots in digging as decay that starts in a wound will soon spread to healthy roots.

"Enter the Hero" and "The Little Widow"

Mme. Mabelle Wagner-Shank Heads Exceptionally Talented Company in Plays to Be Presented Here.

MME. MABELLE WAGNER-SHANK AND SUPPORTING ARTISTS

"Enter the Hero" and "The Little Widow," two recent outstanding Little Theater plays, will be presented here soon on the Interstate Entertainment Course by Mme. Mabelle Wagner-Shank and her company of players.

"Enter the Hero" is the story of a plain girl who longs for a sweetheart, but cannot seem to attract one. She writes love letters and mails them to herself and reads them to her girl friends. The young man who is supposed to have written the letters and whom the girls know to be a "catch" suddenly and unexpectedly arrives on the scene and great is the scramble and mixup therefrom.

The story of "The Little Widow" is of a newly-wed wife jealous of her husband. She rushes off to Reno upon finding a letter in her husband's handbag from "The Little Widow," and secures a divorce. She later finds out that "The Little Widow" is the name of a mine in which the husband has invested as a surprise to her. They make up, and all is well.

Both plays abound in screamingly funny situations, with Mme. Shank in the leading comedy roles.

The cast includes some well-known concert and entertainment artists whose quite exceptional talents along these lines are worked into the evening's entertainment.

If you like a good laugh, and don't mind a little tug at your heart strings and want to forget care and worry, a prescription is, go to see these plays.

HAS JAW BROKEN

Donald Lubahn, 21, junior of the University of Michigan from Ashtabula, O., who resides at 708 South State street, was released from the county jail yesterday on $10,000 bail on charge of felonious assault as a result of beating Jack Dunn, Detroit former Michigan football player. Dunn suffered a fractured jaw. Lubahn was arraigned before Justice Jay H. Payne and demanded an examination which was set for December 5. He is represented by Attorney Carl Lehman, Washtenaw Tribune.

Jack Dunn is well known here, having played base ball here with the Pratt and Dunn base ball team of which he was manager at several of St. Mary's picnics.

JOHN WILLIAM MARKEY
John W. Markey, former alderman and park commissioner of Ann Arbor died at his home there Monday morning, aged 70 years. He was the son of Bernard and Ann Markey, old time residents of Pinckney, was a pioneer railroad builder in the western states and came to Ann Arbor in 1900 where he became a grading contractor. He had charge of the grading construction at Ferry Field, Wines Field and West Park in Ann Arbor. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Frank Dettling, and Margaret at home, three sons, Frank and Leo of Ann Arbor and Jerome of Port Huron and a brother, Frank, of Ann Arbor.

The funeral was held this morning at St. Thomas Catholic church, Ann Arbor, and burial was in St. Thomas cemetery.

of the season. Dexter was counted as an easy team for Pinckney's hard charging line and elusive backs, but no sooner had the game started than Dexter proved a strong aggressive opponent. During the first half neither team could get within the thirty yard line, however, in the second half, Pinckney by means of brilliant blocking and interference, got Smaka out in the open and beyond the line of scrimmage. Here his speed told and he made two long runs which finally resulted in touchdowns. Late in the game Pinckney made a safety due to Dexter's fumble. The final count was Pinckney 14, Dexter 0.

Dexter presented the biggest and best line that Pinckney has met this year. Time and again her forwards broke through to smear a Pinckney runner. The boys from Dexter are now receiving some real coaching and are fast developing into a first class team.

Camels are made for the knowing ones who seek the pleasures of a good smoke, and these smokers may be assured that the true Camel quality will always be maintained.

Camels were originated and made to promote the pleasure of smoking. The most perfect blend that the greatest experts know how to make is the secret of this really wonderful cigarette! The most modern and skilful processes are employed in bringing this great cigarette to perfection! The pick of all Domestic tobaccos for satisfying taste, the rarest Turkish for added fragrance! Camels are vastly preferred by knowing smokers because they appreciate the soothing goodness of choice tobaccos perfectly blended.

Good Going And Going Good

There's a difference. Sometimes when the weather's fine and the roads the best—when it is good going, our car is not going good; Why? "Oh!" you say, "something's wrong with the thing—it just doesn't work right." What's wrong? Well, the chances are your valves need correction; 85% of motor troubles come from faulty valve action. Bring your car over to our garage—let us look it over—let's test your valves. Let us show you the KWIK-WAY of scientific valve correction. We can set your car to going good and that's what you want. Drive in.

And He Lived Happy

The proposition looked good to him. It appeared to be an opportunity to turn a quick and interesting profit. Then he paused to ask himself this question, "Would my bank handle this paper?"

Many a success has been built up on the ability to cash in on another's knowledge. The man who relies solely upon his own judgement, failing to take advantage of available expert's opinions—sooner or later rides to a fall. Your banker is schooled in the fundamentals of sound investments and only the test of a few simple questions are necessary to put the mark of approval or disapproval on any proposition. When you bank here you can avail yourself of this service, without any extra charge whatsoever. In every department, savings, investments or business, we can serve you. Make this bank your bank.

BY

Our Complete Service

If your car seems dead, knocks and has no pickup, it may be full of carbon, bad spark plugs or poor gasoline. Our pep gasoline, takes that carbon out and gives real pep to your motor, starts easy and better, will not burn the valves and costs only 2c more than regular gasoline.

If your car steers and rides hard on rough roads and has no spring, have us grease it and spray the springs and notice the comfort it will give you in riding. Having to add oil every 100 or 200 miles is a waste of money. Have the crankcase drained and fill with Tioleone 100 or Pure Penn. Oil, the 1000 mile oil. We also have a complete line of tires, batteries, heaters, alcohol and accessories.

THE HISTORY OF THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving day is the oldest of American national festivities. Independence day, though coeval with and commemorative of our national natal day, boasts only a respectable antiquity of a century and a half, but another century and a half must be added to carry us backward to the historical origin of the day that we have nationally dedicated to prayer and thanksgiving—to the days of bluff Governor Bradford and to the first struggling colony of three pilgrims. It was in this cradle of our commonwealth that the observance of a day of thanks was first nurtured on our soil, though its inspiration was brought from lands across the seas and probably threaded human history back to the plains of Palestine when the psalmists of Israel praised the Lord in song for the bounties of earth.

Benjamin Franklin tells us that, in a time of great despondency among the first settlers of New England, it was proposed in one of their public meetings to proclaim a fast. An aged farmer arose and spoke of their provoking Heaven with their compliments and of the many morales they had already received and of the many causes they had for thanksgiving. He then made motion that instead of appointing a day of fasting, they should appoint a day of thanksgiving. To this the assembly agreed.

The first Thanksgiving day was kept amid circumstances most unpropitious and with gaunt famine hovering over the rude and cheerless dwellings of that little colony. The summer of 1621, following the landing at Plymouth, yielded but a scanty harvest and unless supplies came from Europe the sturdy Colonists foresaw that they would be reduced to the point of starvation. Yet, amid such surroundings as these, we learn from the old chronicles that Governor Bradford, "the harvest being gotten in, sent four men out on fowling, so that we might, after a more special manner rejoice together after we had gathered the fruits of our labors." And thus, while sickness lurked and death assailed and foes beset on every hand, the first governor of New England instituted the American Harvest Home and celebrated the first New England Thanksgiving day.

The old Colonial records also tell of the appointment of Thanksgiving days for various causes, in the Massachusetts Bay colony, in the years 1633, 1634, 1637, 1638 and 1639. In Plymouth colony similar publicly declared observances took place in 1651, 1658, and 1680, when the tenor of the proclamation seems to indicate that it had then become a settled yearly custom.

The Massachusetts Bay colony was the first to appoint an annual Thanksgiving day by the proclamation of the English governor. During the Revolution, Thanksgiving day became a national American institution, being annually recommended by Congress, but after the general thanksgiving for peace, in 1784, there was no national appointment until 1789, when Washington, by request of Congress, recommended a day of thanksgiving for the adoption of the Constitution. Washington issued a second proclamation of thanksgiving in 1795, on account of the suppression of insurrection. President Madison, by request of Congress, recommended a thanksgiving for peace in 1815, at the conclusion of the War of 1812. But the official recommendation of a day for the giving of thanks was mainly confined to New England, until 1817, after which date it was regularly appointed also by the governor of New York. The Dutch governors of the New Netherlands had proclaimed thanksgiving days in 1644, 1645, 1655 and 1664 and in 1755 and 1760 a day was similarly designated by the English governor of New York.

During the Civil war, in 1863 and 1864, President Lincoln issued proclamations recommending a national thanksgiving and since then a proclamation has been issued annually by the President of the United States as well as by the governors of the several states and the mayors of American cities.

Custom has fixed the time for Thanksgiving day as the last Thursday in November, but up to 1864 there was no uniformity as to the date of the observance and Presidents and governors followed no fixed rules in setting a day apart, each state deciding its own Thanksgiving day. Thanksgiving day was long in settling down to its present fixity of day and season. It is on record that one prudent municipality of the old time once postponed the celebration of the day for a week, "in order to get molasses with which to sweeten the pumpkin pies."

Proud Gobbler Is King of Thanksgiving Feast

Mr. Turkey Gobbler rules over the Thanksgiving feast. Above he is pictured both as a decoration for the table and as the piece de resistance of the feast. The corn husk centerpiece is made from a cone of cardboard and strips of light amber crepe paper pasted to it to make the stalks. The shock is placed on a circular base of cardboard which is covered with light brown crushed crepe paper. A pumpkin vine and cotton stuffed pumpkins are cut from orange and green paper and turkey cutouts held upright by wire are placed on either side of the shock. Upper left is the real turkey trussed and ready for the roaster. Right shows the correct way to start to carve the bird.

U. OF M. GIFTS EXCEED $3,000,000

The value of gifts accepted by the University of Michigan last year totaled between $3,000,000, including the legal research library and addition to the lawyers' club, it was announced by Dr. Frank E. Robbins, assistant to the president.

Work on the legal research library and addition to the lawyers' club, both announced last year, is now well under way. In addition, the university has the benefits of other gifts, including the following:

Bequests in the estates of Avery Hopwood and his mother, Julie Hopwood, totaling $350,000; allotment of $100,000 by the Carnegie Foundation for work in fine arts; $250,000 by the general education board of humanistic research for writing the early modern dictionary. A number of smaller and informal gifts also were included.

Vegetable Salad
Steamed Molasses Fruit Pudding with Orange Sauce
Coffee

This menu was prepared for four persons. The chocolate malted milk may be taken by the person who has difficulty drinking the pint which all adults should have in their daily menu.

Today's Recipes
Vegetable Salad—One package lemon gelatin dissolved in two cups hot water, one bunch celery, diced, one head lettuce, one small tomato, cut fine, two carrots, diced. When gelatin starts to congeal, add vegetables and pinch of salt. Mold and serve in slices on bed of shredded lettuce. Top with mayonnaise and sprinkle with paprika.

Chocolate Malted Milk—Two teaspoons chocolate malted powder, few drops vanilla, one-half teaspoon sugar, two cups milk. Shake all ingredients in a shaker for five minutes. Serve cold.

Steamed Molasses Fruit Pudding—Four tablespoons butter, one-third cup sugar, two eggs beaten whole, one-half cup dark molasses, one-half cup milk, one-fourth cup candied pineapple and cherries, cut fine, one and one-half cups pastry flour, one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup nut meats, chopped. Dates or raisins may be substituted for the fruit and nuts. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly. Add beaten eggs and molasses. Sift dry materials and add alternately with milk. Beat well, add nuts and fruit, floured, and pour into oiled molds. Steam an hour and a quarter and serve with orange sauce. This makes two puddings of four servings each.

Orange Sauce—One cup sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, juice and rind of one medium orange, one and one-half cups boiling water, pinch of salt, two tablespoons butter. Mix dry materials and add boiling water gradually, stirring all the time. Cook until mixture looks transparent, then remove from fire and add grated rind of orange and butter, then the juice of the orange. Serve on steamed pudding.

Suggestions

Inexpensive Hat Box
Two yards of cretonne, a tube of library paste and an oval pasteboard box are all that is necessary to make an attractive hat box. Almost any men's hat shop will give you a box—their hats come packed about a dozen to the box and after unpacking the hats they usually throw the boxes away. The paste should be applied to the box and then immediately covered by the cretonne. To cover the lid an oval piece of cretonne slightly larger than the lid, is used. The edges are folded over and covered by a strip of cretonne.

Hints for Mothers

When giving a small baby cod liver oil from a spoon, try holding a quarter of a paper napkin under her chin. This will prevent the ugly yellow stains from soiling her clothing. The napkins may be purchased very cheaply and are well worth the cost.

Two New Planes for State Air Mail Lines

The Thompson Aeronautical corporation has ordered two new Pitcairn super mailings for use on air mail lines in Michigan, it has been announced by Richard T. "Tex" Marshall, vice president and general manager.

One of the planes will be flown on the night run between Chicago and Kalamazoo by pilot C. P. Oleson, Mr. Marshall stated, and the other will be flown by Pilot Patterson and stationed at Pontiac at TAC's new hangar.

Delivery was accepted on Oleson's ship late last month and Patterson will take delivery of his plane at the Pitcairn factory early in November.

Poems That Live

LOVE IN THE WINDS

When I am standing on a mountain crest,
Or hold the tiller in the dashing spray,
My love of you leaps foaming in my breast,
Shouts with the winds and sweeps to their foray;
My heart bounds with the horses of the sea,
And plunges in the wild ride of the night,
Flaunts in the teeth of tempest the large glee
That rides out Fate and welcomes gods to fight.
Ho, love, I laugh aloud for love of you,
Glad that our love is fellow to rough weather,
No fretful orchid hothoused from the dew,
But hale and hearty as the highland heather,
Rejoicing in the wind that sings and thrills,
Comrade of the ocean, playmate of the hills.
—Richard Hovey (1864-1900)

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

ACTIVITIES PLUS DUTIES HARM CHILD

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.
"Orchestra practice Monday after school, music lesson Tuesday evening, dramatic club on Wednesday, a party up at Peggy's house on Friday night, and I haven't seen a movie for a week," said Cynthia at the breakfast table. Besides, she was supposed to practice at her music one whole hour a day.

A good many school children, particularly in the junior and senior high school, are loaded up too heavily outside their studies. Right in the school many a child is engaged in far too many things. There are the student council, pupil-monitors and helpers who spend extra hours and hours each week. Such training may be very valuable but it often comes in addition to a load already all too heavy for the average pupil to carry comfortably. Here and there is a good school principal who sees to it that no child is weighted down with numerous responsibilities, and that no child is allowed to become identified with an unreasonable number of activities outside his regular school week. Nevertheless, relatively new principals and teachers have been so concerned about the health and general welfare of the over-energetic pupil.

Often, too, the student, barely able to get along with his school work, is burdened with such extra duties. There are more tragedies than most of us have ever dreamed of growing out of foolish eagerness of parents who expect their children to do the impossible.

Occasionally children who measure up very well to responsibility are slow in studies. Some such students are ever ready to engage in club activities and other things not immediately related to their school subjects. So many a child is hindered by heavy duties and extra work like instrumental music, dancing lessons, or elocution lessons. The same pupil who takes in extra responsibilities at school may readily add them to his home program. The first thing I want to know when a parent brings a child to me who is not keeping up in school is, "What does this child do besides his regular school studies?" How frequent such children have all sorts of extra work and supervised diversions! Many a behavior problem also has like sources.

Of course, the native intelligence of the child and his habits of study should be ascertained. But no matter how bright or dull he may be, how effective or how regular his study habits, if he is weighted down by too many things his chances for success in school and for reasonable happiness are very slight.

We ought to be concerned about our children's program at home and at school, and to do our utmost to protect their health and allow them to grow up free from nervous strain.

The World and All

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

One of my very good friends who was wiped out early in the stock market crash took his third successive beating stoically, and with a smile.

He has a small business, which he operates on borrowed money. Early this year he was caught with all his spare cash invested in good stocks that slunk and squeezed his margin account out. He nearly went crazy.

On the advice of a customer who had the inside, he borrowed money from a relative and bought again, on a margin. Another drop, and he was wiped out. He went three days without shaving, grew pale and thin, and tried drink as a palliative.

Finally, his banker named a stock that was sure. My friend consulted a good customer, who was heavily loaded with this same stock. The friend said, "I have it from the vice president of the company that this stock is cheap. It will make back all your losses before Christmas if you buy now."

He borrowed more money, and bought the stock at 53. Last I heard of it, the stock was down to 26, and my friend was once more wiped out. This time he smiled.

"I can't take it seriously," he said. "Somebody is kidding me. If I believed it to be a real game, I'd jump into the river, but I'm sure my senses deceive me. The relative I borrowed the money of was speculating on this own account, and he had lost two hundred thousand, including his last nickel."

Every victim of the crash whom I've seen refuse to strike a tragic attitude, and I know several who have lost all their savings. One friend said to me: "I was reciting my troubles to a friend of mine. He is a man of 75 and in bad health. I told him how I had my stock on a margin, and had lost $1,500; enough to ruin me. He said nothing consolatory. Later I learned that he had lost more than a million dollars in one day during the scramble for margin money, and I was ashamed for having bothered him with my troubles."

Most of the little speculators whom I know bought their stocks outright with their savings. While many of them count paper losses into the hundreds of thousands, they all believe that stock in a good American industry is still one of the best investments anybody can have, and they aren't worried.

As a matter of fact, American industry was never so good an investment as it is today. This is the country that supplies the world with the things the world has to have, and a small investment in any sound American manufacturing concern is one of the most valuable investments any one of us can leave to our children.

With the Women of Today

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

At a recent convention in New York Mrs. Thomas G. Winter of Pasadena, Cal., was made emissary of the club women of the United States, represented by the National Federation of Women's Clubs, to the film angles to achieve mutual picture industry.

Mrs. Winter is a former president of the National Federation. She is the author of several books, and a contributing editor of Ladies' Home Journal. She was for many years a prominent resident of Minneapolis.

Visiting in U. S.

Lady Egerton, director of a Paris couture house, recently arrived in the United States for her first visit in her professional capacity. She expects to remain until the first of the new year visiting Boston, Washington and Buffalo, in addition to spending considerable time in New York.

Lady Egerton is the Princess Olga Lohanoff de Rostoff, and the widow of the Right Honorable Sir Edwin Egerton, late British ambassador to Rome. She has been prominent in the organization of lace and embroidery centers, as well as in relief work among women in Greece, Italy and England.

During the World war she worked under the auspices of the American Relief for Belgium, during which time, she explains, she "had the privilege of

MICHIGAN MAY BE MARBLE PRODUCER

It is quite possible Michigan will enter the ranks of marble producing states in the near future, according to the department of conservation.

A deposit of serpentine or verde antique marble is being developed six miles northwest of Ishpeming, Marquette county. This deposit has been known for a long time, but only recently work has been done here to determine the extent and quantity of this marble.

Comparative specimens show this marble is equal or superior to much of this type of stone now on the market. The marble takes an excellent polish and shows a color that is rich and distinctive. The quarry near Ishpeming has stone in it that shows all the various shades of green and portions of the deposit contain the gray to black varieties. The stone is shot through with veins of calcite, which contrast beautifully with the darker serpentine and gives a distinctive quality to the stone when polished.

Verde antique marble is used for the interior decorating and in other places where ornamental stone is placed. Some varieties are used for outside trimming.

The smaller pieces of marble that are made in the process of quarrying are ground up and used for terrazzo and stucco. The very fine particles are used as roofing granules in the manufacture of colored shingles.

Want Union Depot

Co-operation of the Van Sweringen interests, owners of the Pere Marquette, in establishment of a new Union station in Lansing, will be sought by a committee of the Lansing Chamber of Commerce Civic Bureau, it was decided recently. The committee is made up of J. W. Knapp, capitalist; Smith G. Young, capitalist; Col. Fred Shubel, A. W. Handy and C. E. Bement, vice-president of the Novo Engine company.

Maybe Stocks Did Crash, But---

THE STOCK MARKET DROP HAS CRAMPED THE BROADWAY PLAYBOY'S STYLE

Arist Bob Day sees and hears some sad things in New York after the smoke of stock crash clears away.

Those sad, sad tales concerning the aftermath of the stock market crash merely are sad, sad tales to one lone observer, going around to get bottom prices.

Stock market prices might have hit bottom, but—
Try to get a cheap apartment;
Try to find good materials in shops reduced;
Try to buy a cheaper meal;
Try to purchase real estate at less.

You'll be smiled at! Even stock prices didn't stay down.

Santa Claus is weeping, sure thing, because "sugar daaddies" were hard hit—but that applies only to Fifth avenue. Then, again, the higher priced Broadway "laddies" were hard hit—but that applies only to Fifth Street.

If any necessity is cheaper in New York, a week of search has failed to disclose it.

STATE TO BUILD NEW HOSPITALS FOR CONVICTS

Establishment of a central tuberculosis hospital for all prisons in the state of Michigan and construction of several other buildings at the new Michigan state prison, north of Jackson, were authorized by the state prison commission recently at a meeting held in the new prison.

Dr. Guy L. Kiefer, state health commissioner, gave his unqualified approval to the building of a tuberculosis hospital inside the enclosure of the prison, and the board decided on a 250-bed sanatorium. This was on the basis that 2.6 per cent of the prison's population is tubercular. The director of construction, Charles D. Frazier, was ordered to prepare plans immediately and to submit them to Warden Harry H. Jackson and Dr. Kiefer for their approval.

Sees New Demand for Convertible Auto Bodies

L. Clayton Hill, vice-president of Dietrich, Inc., custom auto body builders, in a recent address before the Detroit section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, declared that the prevalent popularity of the convertible type of body is due to the newly awakened appreciation of the public to the physical benefit of sunshine on the human body.

Mr. Hill declared the movement is so pronounced that he believes the day will come when the convertible car, designed for open or closed riding, might be produced as a leading unit on a mass production basis in the low priced car field.

The craze for out of doors, the passion for the last full measure of ultraviolet rays, said Mr. Hill, are reflected in the demands of motorists for vehicles which removed them from the shut-in class and thus gain more of the benefits of exposure to air and the invisible health-giving rays of the sun.

"Recognition must be given to the fact that there are heavily populated areas in our own country where weather permits the folding of tops for a large part of the time throughout the year," said Mr. Hill.

Thompson Building New $70,000 Pontiac Hangar

Thompson Aeronautical corporation, operating airmail lines in Michigan and Ohio, is constructing here a most improved modern type brick and steel hangar, valued at $70,000, which, when completed, will be the most modern in the state. Facilities are provided for building an entire airplane, a space of 14,000 square feet for housing planes, class rooms for training pilots, a motor overhauling and rebuilding department, an engine test stand, a fuselage covering department, a dope room and sales-display room, locker room for pilots and offices for the manager and accounting department.

Use Stainless Steel

Stainless steel will be used more extensively by automobile manufacturers on new models soon to come out, according to reports in the steel market. Ford, Cadillac, Pierce-Arrow and other auto makers are using this new type of steel.

There are reports in the Chicago steel market that Central Alloy Steel Corporation, which recently took over the Interstate Iron and Steel Company of Chicago will make this new grade of steel. It is also reported that the Illinois Steel company is looking into it and that the International Rustless Iron Corporation will produce it.

Urge Game Refuge in Greenville Park

Preliminary steps were taken by the Greenville council recently to establish a city park and game preserve. Don Irish, conservation officer, said the state department would furnish without cost, three deer to the city if the city would establish a park and provide for their care. The members of the council were in favor of the plan, but left arrangements to the park committee.

BUSSES TAKE 8,000,000 PASSENGERS DAILY

Buses traveling over American highways carry 8,000,000 passengers a day and these passengers pay $300,000,000 a year for transportation. Common carrier bus lines now operate regularly over 290,000 miles of bus routes, as compared with 250,000 miles of steam railroads and 45,000 miles of electric railways.

These highlights were brought out by William C. Blake, United States Rubber company executive, in addressing a recent convention at Detroit. Mr. Blake pointed out that the bus industry still is less than eight years old and that it is the country's fastest growing transportation system.

"As near as we can estimate there are now approximately 90,000 buses operating in the United States," Mr. Blake said. "These are divided into two classifications: Common carriers, which operate over a regular route on schedule at a regular rate of fare, and private carriers, such as buses in school, sight-seeing and hotel service."

"Early this year there were approximately 6,600 bus companies operating 46,500 common carrier buses in the United States. Of this number 73 per cent were operated by independent companies, 24 per cent by electric railways and 3 per cent by steam railroads."

Lake Michigan Damages Pentwater State Park

Lake Michigan has caused considerable damage at the State park at Pentwater. The water washed away over the circle drive, filling the pavement with sand and logs and also has undermined the bath house at the west end. The road was washed out up to the pavement, making a very desolate, looking frontage.

Pentwater lake is very high, having washed over the pavement at two points. The Long Bridge road, across the lake was washed out early in the season, but was repaired, but high water has again made it necessary to close it to the public. The flats east of the Long Bridge are one large body of water.

May Revive Discontinued Montcalm Co. Free Fair

A decision to discontinue the Montcalm county free fair, announced by the officers and directors recently, may be reversed.

Since it was announced that the fair was $600 in arrears and would be discontinued, numerous persons have asked the directors to reconsider, and they have called for a meeting of all interested persons.

Aids Jackson Hospital

Another gift of $50,000 to make a $95,000 40-room addition to the Foote hospital, Jackson, has been announced by Captain William Sparks, head of the Sparks-Withington company, Jackson manufacturers of radios and signal horns. The additional $50,000 makes a total of $100,000 given by Captain Sparks for the hospital expansion.

Saginaw-Bay City Joined
Two Saginaw valley cities, Saginaw and Bay City, were brought into closer union on October 27, when the new river road between the two communities was opened officially before 10,000 spectators. Eight miles of automobiles, two abreast and reaching from the Bay City limits to the Saginaw limits, formed a two-way procession which met at the midway point. When the program was concluded, the Saginaw cars proceeded to Bay City, and the Bay City cars to Saginaw. The river road cuts four miles from the previous distance between the two cities, making it 12 instead of 16 miles from business center to business center.

Needless Pain!

The man who wouldn't drive his motorcar half a mile when it's out of order, will often drive his brain all day with a head that's throbbing.

Such punishment isn't very good for one's nerves! It's unwise, and it's unnecessary. A tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin will relieve a headache every time. So, remember this accepted antidote for pain, and spare yourself a lot of needless suffering. Read the proven directions and you'll discover many valuable uses for these tablets. For headaches; to check colds. To ease a sore throat and reduce the infection. For relieving neuralgic, neuritic, rheumatic pain.

People used to wonder if Bayer Aspirin was harmful. The doctors

PINCKNEY DEFEATS DEXTER

Pinckney high school won from Dexter her last Friday by a score of 14 to 0. Dexter played a much improved game, having enjoyed the coaching of Don Cushing of Oliver for a week. No points were made in the first half as the Dexter linemen were continually breaking through the Pinckney line and spilling the ball carries. Dexter made a number of downs on line plunges and an occasional forward pass but neither team threatened to score. In the final half Pinckney got going. Frank Smaka made a forty yard run around right end placing the ball on the eight yard line. On the next attempt he went across for a touchdown. They failed to make the extra point. Smaka was the only Pinckney man who was able to gain consistently. Again he was given the ball and this time he carried it to the eight yard line from where Gerald Kennedy took it across for the second touchdown. The try for the extra point again failed. Pinckney scored a safety in the last period when a pass to Dutch Smith, Dexter back, went over the Dexter goal line. Dexter never seriously threatened to score although they reached the 20 yard line once by means of a forward pass. Pinckney did not play as good a game as in the week previous against Ann Arbor but uncovered an openfield runner in Frank Smaka, who showed the best ability in this line of any Pinckney player this year. It's extremely doubtful if Pinckney would have scored at all if he had not made the two long end runs. In this he was afforded excellent interference by Peter Gerycz. Pinckney plays her last scheduled game Friday with Byron at Byron. The latter has enjoyed a very successful season this year and the local team will have their hands full.

CURRENT COMMENT

The state press has been featuring the story of the pilfering of the Flint Union Bank of about $3,352,000 by trusted employees. Six men were arrested and warrants will be issued for still more. The thefts started in 1926 when one of the bank officials used bank funds to dabble in the stock market with. Others in the bank organization became cognizant of it and did likewise. By switching of securities and other methods, they were able to pull the wool over the eyes of the bank examiners and get a clear bill of health each time. All went smoothly until the recent panic hit Wall St. when the embezzlers who had been buying on a margin were wiped out. Discovery was inevitable. Failure of the bank was prevented by John Mott, a former Flint mayor, who advanced sufficient funds to the bank to make good the shortages. This does not lessen the offense against the men accused who have it all over the bandits who obtain a few thousands by holding up banks at the point of a gun. Already there is a demand for stricter banking laws. This is another illustration of the saying that there is no such thing as a perfect law.

State high school interscholastic circles are split and a permanent disruption is threatened. University of Detroit high school went through the season without any defeats winning the Detroit City championship and being in line to claim the class 'A' championship of the state. Highland Park which tied with Northwestern for second place protested U. of D.'s victory over them on the grounds that Frank Morsey, star U. of D. backfield man was over twenty years old. Investigation failed to establish this as there was no authentic record of his birth. It was found that he had not been in school a semester as the rules prescribe. The Detroit school league declared him ineligible on account of this but allowed the games in which he had played to stand. The state interscholastic body met later and declared Morsey ineligible on account of being over age and threw out all games in which he had played and blacklisted the U. of D. for using him. The Detroit schools are sticking by the U. of D. and a split is likely unless some compromise is reached. This looks like a piece of hypocrisy as it is extremely doubtful if there is a single member of the state body which lives strictly up to the eligibility rules. We have always noticed that it is the winning teams and not the losing ones that are protested.

The last issue of the County Press carried a good account of the Hartland School Foundation. This is made possible by the generosity of Robert Crouse, living in Cleveland, a former Hartland boy. He became wealthy by the invention of an electrical device. $25,000 has been placed by him in the hands of the Cleveland Trust Co. to be used for the benefit of the Hartland school. Eighty per cent of this is available for use each year, the other twenty per cent being added to the principal to which other sums will be added. Hartland at the present time has a fine library building presented by H. A. Tremaine of New York City, an uncle of Mr. Crouse. The old Congregational church was given to the school recently. Next year a building campaign will be started. The church will be remodelled into an auditorium and a new modern gymnasium will be built. These funds will be administered by a board of five people consisting of Supt. White, Frank Dodds, Meta Lawrence, Wm. Cullen and M. H. Lemon. When Mr. White ceases to be superintendent, his successor will succeed him. Meta Lawrence successor will be chosen by the Hartland Parent-Teacher Assoc., Mr. Dodds by the Protestant pastors of the district, Mr. Cullen's by the Catholic bishop, Mr. Lemon's by the Cleveland Trust Co. Another fund of $200,000 is also made available for rural school work. When the Hartland program is completed other schools will receive the benefits of it. Hartland is indeed fortunate that Mr. Crouse happened to be born there.

New Lamps for Old
It is Easy to Renew Lamps

The modern, high-efficiency electric lamp has a useful life of approximately 1,000 hours of illumination. After this period, the glass bulb rapidly becomes blackened, and the lamp should be replaced by a new one. The Detroit Edison Company maintains free renewal service for its customers using service under lighting contracts. Blackened and burnt-out lamps in all ordinary sizes—both for store and household—are exchanged without charge at any Detroit Edison office.

Dust, soot, and blackening due to age may diminish the light furnished by an electric lamp to one-half of its original illuminating power. This means that as much as half the electric current you buy may be wasted. Lamp bulbs, shades, and reflectors should be cleaned once a month with an ordinary damp cloth.
