The Store's Ablaze with Christmas

There is no complete transformation of the store—for we do not pretend to have completely changed our building, our service, our personnel. All these things go on, as always, functioning smoothly, easily so that you aren't conscious of it. But you are conscious, as we are, of a prevailing excitement, intensity, quicker tempo—an alertness an eagerness, a willingness and cordiality among clerks and customers alike. It is just a bit of a miracle because nothing that we do is the cause of it, and nothing that we might do could stop it. If you have not yet been here this year to observe this really remarkable scene, see the people and the richness of the world's wares, need we urge you to do so very soon? We think that urging is hardly necessary in a case like this. The mere fact of Christmas at Macks is all we need to remind you of.

PRIEST NOT YET FOUND

The whereabouts of the Rev. Francis Forster who disappeared in Montreal on November 11 last is still a mystery. Rev. Forster is a brother of Rev. Daniel Forster of Pinckney is Superior General of the Order of St. Basil and also a former head of Assumption college. He has been stationed at Toronto for seven years. He went to Montreal to meet Rev. Player who was returning from England on the 11th of Nov. Rev. Forster failed to show up at the dock when Rev. Player landed and his luggage was later found at his hotel. A train crew claimed to have seen a man answering his description on a train at Port Gore Ontario. Another priest claims to have seen him on another train in northern Ontario on November 13. Whether these clues are authentic or not remains to be seen.

MUTUAL TELEPHONE CO. DEAL CLOSED

The sale of the Livingston Telephone Co. to the Mutual Telephone Co. of South Bend, Ind., is now complete. Each share of stock which was purchased for $25.00 was purchased for $25.00. Checks for the balance of the purchase price are being made out. There are 409 shares of stock. The sale price was about $10,225. We understand that the Mutual has been at work for some time in the quiet end-averting of the stock. The price they offered was below $25.00. The Mutual was organized some time ago and operated chiefly by the business men of the town. Backus was the president. Norman Williams was the secretary. It filled a large gap in the telephone service in the established companies to serve.

BEEBE BARN BURN

The barn on the Nancy street west of town burned last night. The farm is owned by the Kellenberg family. The barn contained clover seed, which Kellenberg was about to sell. The farm is owned by the Kellenberg family. The barn was moved away a few days ago. The barn was insured for $10,000. The contents were not saved. It is thought that the fire was caused by the state fire marshal making an investigation.

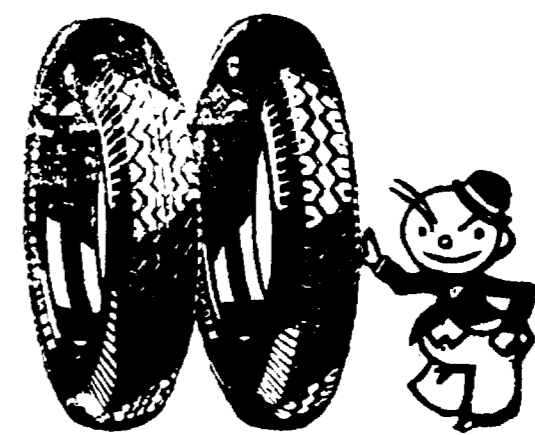

The Sprout school bus, Elizabeth Driver, was also broken into last night. The bus was stolen. The bus was owned by Miss Justine Ladd. The bus was broken into, considerably damaged, but nothing of value was taken. Lansing officers arrested a man Monday who had the bus in his possession. The man's name is Russ B. O'Keefe and James O'Keefe. They thought the man was from Livingston county and Lansing Tuesday to Howell.

MICHIGAN OIL PRODUCTION

During the first three quarters of the year 1929 Michigan's oil wells produced 3,084,000 barrels, valued at approximately $4,500,000. During the same period in 1928 the production was 363,000 barrels.

There are approximately 400 producing wells in the Muskegon district with 65 producing wells near Mt. Pleasant, where the higher individual well production prevails, according to figures obtained by the Geological Survey Division of the Department of Conservation.

Since it became necessary to secure a permit to drill an oil well in Michigan, September 1927, the Department of Conservation has issued 850 such permits. No figures are available to indicate how many of the wells drilled produced oil.

March, 1929, saw the record for activity in the oil fields. During that month the Department issued 66 permits to drill wells. Since July, however, there has been a gradual decline in the number of requests for permits.

The enormous increase in oil production in 1929 over 1928 was due to the opening and high production of the Muskegon oil fields, which succeeded the Saginaw district as the oil center of Michigan. However, during the summer large production began in the vicinity of Mt. Pleasant.

JOHN WEBB

Funeral services for John Webb, nonagenarian of Howell, who died in the University hospital at Ann Arbor Saturday, were held from the Unadilla Collins Memorial church in Unadilla, this county, Monday afternoon, the Rev. A. T. Camburn, pastor, officiating. Interment was made in the Base Line cemetery just over the county line into Washtenaw county, and near the former home of Mr. Webb.

Mr. Webb was born in London, England, November 27, 1839, his father being one of the soldier body guards at the coronation of Queen Victoria. Mr. Webb also remembered the Queen although he came to America when nine years of age, and often related incidents of his boyhood relative to the court of Queen Victoria. His parents settled in North Lake, Washtenaw county, Michigan, when first coming to America and there Mr. Webb lived for a period of many years. He married Miss Martha Louise Watts, of Lyndon, Washtenaw county and they had the unusual privilege of celebrating their 64th wedding anniversary together. Mrs. Webb died in 1927 since which time Mr. Webb had been making his home with his children and had spent the past summer with a son, Otis W. Webb, who lives just west of Howell on U. S. 16 pavement.

Several weeks ago Mr. Webb, while walking along this much traveled highway was hit by a passing motorist and it became necessary to take him to the University hospital for treatment three weeks ago, where he died. He was the last of a family of six children and was a member of the Methodist church in his home town. Surviving are four children, Carmin of Gregory, LaVerne, of Lansing, Mrs. Gertrude Teachout, of Lansing and Otis W., of Howell.

In the same year Bright published a description of the system in his book "Character: An art of short, swift, and accurate writing by character." London Answers.

FAILURE CAUSE TOLD STUDENTS AT UNIVERSITY

Fewer than one-tenth of the students who have taken a prominent part in extracurricular activities, particularly dramatics, while in high school, make passing grades during their first semester at college, it was asserted recently by T. Luther Purdom, University of Michigan personnel director, in an address to the editors of Michigan high school publications, who make up the Michigan interscholastic press association.

Presenting figures based on investigation over several years of some thousands of cases, Professor Purdom showed that too great interest of high school students in outside activities is often fatal to success at college.

He asserted also that probably one-third of the group of 250 to whom he was speaking would, if they did enter college, leave because of failure to earn grades. Most deficiencies, he pointed out, are simple, and can be corrected by elimination of the faults found.

He stated further that the question of responsibility in early years is also a factor in success in college. Eighty per cent of those who have had responsibility in early years succeed, he said, and 70 per cent of those who in their early life "never turned their hand to a thing," failed.

In addition to outside interests as a cause of failure, he also named several other factors, prominent among which was fear, fear, based usually on obsessions of the individual.

Education is Goal
Dean John R. Effinger, of the University of Michigan literary college, urged the high school editors to make a college education their objective and those who are planning to make journalism a profession to acquire the broadest education possible. Speaking particularly to the latter, he urged them to gain a knowledge of a wide variety of subjects first, and to consider the technical phase of the profession afterward.

Church Celebrates Burning of Notes

The burning of $2,200 in notes at the Church of Christ, of Ionia, marked the end of the church indebtedness. The Ladies' Aid society and several individual donors subscribed the amount. A banquet was given by the men for the women. The Bible school orchestra of 14 pieces furnished the music. Speakers were Rev. Paul L. Stewart, Mrs. S. A. Rochester, Luther Hall, T. B. Preston and Rev. A. T. Halstead.

M. S. C. Will Consider New Scholarships

A plan providing for a number of scholarships to high school students who are leaders in their groups and show "an interest in athletics" will be presented to the Michigan State College faculty in its November meeting. President Robert S. Shaw, of the college, points out, however, that the scholarships, if granted, would expressly demand that the applicant be proficient in his studies. "The scholarships would not favor athletes any more than any other class of student. Scholarship and leadership are the prime requisites," the president said.

Poems That Live

COUNSEL

If thou shouldst bid thy friend farewell,
But for one night though that farewell may be,
Press thou his hand in thine; thou canst not tell
How far from thee

Fate or caprice may lead his feet
Ere that tomorrow comes. Men have been known
Lightly to turn the corner of a street,
And days have grown

To months, and months to lagging years,
Before they look on loving eyes again.
Parting, at best, is underlaid with tears,
With tears and pain.

Therefore, lest sudden death should come between,
Or time, or distance, clasp with pressure true
The palm of him who goeth forth; unseen,
Fate goeth, too!

Yes, find thou always time to say
Some earnest word betwixt the idle talk,
Lest with thee henceforth ever, night and day,
Regret should walk.

Mary E. M. Davis (1852-1909)

Turban Becomes a Leading Style

By LUCY CLAIRE

The turban that fits the head closely has become one of the leading styles for fall and winter. There are many things to be said in favor of the turban. Of course it succumbs to the off-the-face effect so important in millinery at present. But it is more important as a head covering that does not have to be removed at lectures, the matinee or theater performance in the evening. Maline to match the hair is seen in some of the newer versions of the evening cap or turban, fashioned of laced bands of velvet, with a ruffled effect of maline at the back of the neck, bringing hat and dress into close relationship.

The tweed turban has unquestionably become a leader for daytime wear. We see it on smartly dressed women everywhere—at exclusive restaurants, adopted by the college girl, the suburbanite and the business woman. It does not necessarily have to match the tweed costume, but it should harmonize, and its predominant-ing color should be repeated in the footwear. Browns, tans, indefinite greens and blues seem to be the preferred colors, in keeping with the colors of the kid shoe, which is the thing for town wear with the tweed ensemble.

Evening Turban

For evening wear the turban is developing along new lines. Some of the more exclusive dressmaking houses are producing turban caps of velvet to match the frock that is worn to the theater. The advantage of this is that the woman is properly attired for the pre-theater restaurant dinner, and may then attend the theater without removing her hat. These turbans fit the head as snugly as the hair itself, and are devoid of outstanding trim, except for the grim or ruffled effect at the back, or a long drape at the side.

tailed bow. Opposite is shown an Agnes model with the off-the-face drape outlined with a narrow contrasting banding. At the lower left is one of the new velvet turbans for evening wear, with the ruffled effect at the back, while at the lower right is a metal and velvet effect, with a long drape of the velvet at the side.

MAGAZINE DIRECTORY NEAR PUBLICATION

Completion of a project which was started in the spring term of 1929 is in sight for the library staff of Central State Teachers college with the publication of the magazine directory. It will supersede the one of October, 1927.

Copies of the directory will be issued to faculty members first and later on all students will have access to them. The directory includes all of the library magazines, indicating issues of incomplete volumes as well as the complete volumes.

Mother—If you get a job in the chorus, I hope you won't wear tight.
Daughter—Oh, but they don't wear them any more.

Mother—Well, I'm very much relieved to hear that.—Selected.

Agreement Reached On "M" Dormitory

Final agreement between Malcolm-Higgenbotham Co., architects, and the Guardian Trust Co., of Detroit, which is backing the construction of a $950,000 women's dormitory for the University of Michigan, has been made. It was announced recently by Shirley W. Smith, secretary of the university. The building, which is to be located on Observatory street, will be completed by July 31, 1930.

Inability of contractors to bid within the sum set by the university caused delay of the project. A complete revision of plans was made and bids were advertised a second time. An excavating contractor started work 10 days ago, anticipating the agreement which was announced today.

The new dormitory will house four groups of women of 113 each and will have a commodious dining room and living rooms. It will be six stories high and will be fire-proof.

Prepared tomato cocktail is available in the stores, nowadays. If you prefer to make your own, however, canned tomato may be cooked awhile, put through a strainer and seasoned to taste.

Recipes

Vegetable Loaf—Soak one-half cup bread crumbs in one cup milk. Mix with one cup cooked rice and one cup nut meats, ground. Add one cup raw carrots, put through the food chopper. Season well with salt, pepper and celery salt. Bake in a slow oven in a well greased baking dish, just as you would a meat loaf. Serve with cream sauce or browned gravy.

Gingerbread—One-half cup sugar, one-half cup butter and lard mixed, one egg, one cup New Orleans molasses, two and one-half cups sifted flour, one cup hot water, one and one-half teaspoons soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon salt. Cream shortening and sugar. Add beaten egg, molasses, then dry ingredients which have been sifted together. Add hot water last, and beat until smooth. Bake in a greased, shallow pan 35 minutes in a moderate oven (325 to 350 F.).

SUGGESTIONS

Soap and Water for Spots
Materials that have been spotted with grease should always be washed with soap and water unless there is some good reason for not wetting them. If the spot is caused by the wheels of a sewing machine—in which case iron from the bearings, or carbon or some other insoluble substance may have mixed with the grease—it should first be rubbed thoroughly in oil or an oily substance such as lard, butter, olive oil or linseed oil. A mixture of kerosene and milk may be substituted for the oily ingredient. Have ready a thick solution of soap and water that has been boiled and allowed to cool, and work it into the spot until it mixes with the oil. The material should then be laundered. Oily substances are also effective in helping to remove paint spots. If the spot is old, let it stand in oil for several days. Then rub in a little turpentine and wash it thoroughly.

Four tablespoons flour—one ounce.
Two cups granulated sugar—one pound.
Two tablespoons liquid—one ounce.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Suppose the baby has developed strong dislikes. What should you do if he refuses to eat certain solid foods, or if he flies into a rage when they are placed before him?

In the first place consult your physician and follow his advice. If his advice does not conflict with what I say proceed as follows:

Assume that the child will eat when he is hungry and that your task is to cultivate in him an appetite and to avoid creating a dislike for food. Do not, therefore, coax the child to eat. Do not put food into his mouth when he shows signs of disliking it. Let him feed himself with a spoon or his bare hands at the earliest possible date.

Put only one food before the child at a time and only a very small portion of it—not bigger than a lima bean. If the child plays with it or objects to its presence, remove the food at once and consider the meal ended. Let there be no ceremony, no remarks, no expression of emotion by you or by any other adult. Be as nearly like a machine as possible. In extreme cases it may be best for the mother or nurse (never both) to deal with the child apart from the family. Let the child get down whenever he wishes to do so.

If the child can walk don't put him in a chair. Put the one food (a very small portion of it) which you consider most important on a low table or a chair where he can easily see it. Call his attention to it in a matter-of-fact way, but do not coax him to eat it. Say nothing. Go away, preferably out of the room. After about five minutes, by the clock, return. If the child is not eating the food or has not eaten it, go like a machine, carry the food to the kitchen and empty it into the garbage. Say nothing about food and do nothing about it until the next feeding time, no matter what the child says or does. In all other respects treat the baby as if nothing had happened. At the next regular feeding time choose another food considered very important but which he does not like, and proceed exactly as before.

If, as he has finished eating the offered food, he begs for more of it, make the second helping even smaller than the first. Don't give a third. This food must be hard to get. Offer next at this meal a very small portion of the food next in importance but be sure that the meal ends without his having quite as much of any food as he wants.

As you succeed you will be tempted by your victory to do wrong. You may become over-confident; you may offer the child too much of the same food, offer it too often, or proceed to coax him to eat more of any food than he wants. A clean plate and an empty glass should be your goals. To this end offer only one food at a time. Give very small helpings and make the repeated helping smaller still. Never present a second food until all of the first one has been eaten. Be wholly indifferent as to whether the child eats or not.

At succeeding meals don't increase the size of helpings much. Be satisfied if the prescribed amount of any particular food is reached at the end of two or three weeks. Keep your eyes on the future. Be patient. Work for permanent success.

YOUTH'S PASSING FANCY SOON BECOMES SERIOUS IN FACE OF OBJECTIONS

Young people are proverbially intolerant. But in this they seldom have very good examples set them by their parents. Parents are often-times unbearably rude and intolerant to their children's friends.

If Bill has a girl whom mamma and dad regard as a lightweight, intellectually, morally or socially, is he allowed to find it out for himself? Oh, my no. He is told in no uncertain terms that his choice is anathema to his family, and the sooner he cuts her from his list the better.

Which, like as not, rouses him to defend his friend, and makes what would have been a passing fancy, into a serious love affair.

And, likewise, when Jane is attracted to a romantic looking Lothario who is not at all suitable as a permanent alliance, according to family standards, is he invited to the house and treated courteously as a guest, and the differences between him and her more suitable friends allowed to percolate through her consciousness gradually?

By no means. Each and every member of the family circle has his or her word to say about the unsuitableness of a friendship with such as he, and he is forbidden the house.

In consequence of which treatment she meets him around the corner, lying to deceive her folks, and if an elopement does not result it is lucky.

Even when our children marry the wrong people, we should not cast them off. In that case they need us more than ever.

An Oddity: Interesting chap, your friend. I think I'd just "stay," as a friend of mine used to say when he didn't want to take sides in an argument. You are both young. His circumstances are peculiar. One would think it would help and relieve him to correspond with you, but evidently his mental processes do not work that way. He is masterful and evidently knows—or thinks he does—what he wants and is going after it. Whether you can be happy married to such a character is for you to say.

Let matters stand as they are. Go out and meet as many people as possible and compare them with him. Then, in the spring, when he comes to school, you will have a chance to see him a little differently and to decide what you think of him and whether you really love him. You were very wise to refuse to marry him secretly.

Blue Francis: Is a girl of 16, in her second year of high school, old enough to go with boys and to go to parties twice a week? It seems Francis' mother thinks she is not and Francis disagrees with her.

I've been thinking about a girl I know who visited at my house a year ago last New Year. She was 16 and very much wrought up and rebellious because her mother did not think her old enough to go to night clubs and cabarets occasionally with perfectly respectable young people. Her mother should trust her, she thought. I wonder what she thinks about it now, when she is starting her second year of college?

Sixteen is young, Francis, and, as your mother says, you have plenty of time for boy friends. I can't see how you can go to dances twice a week and maintain your health and keep up your school studies.

You are not very far advanced in school—16 and only in your second year of high, are you? Is it because you don't study or because you have had some set-back that couldn't be helped? I do, however, think girls of 16 should be allowed to have boy friends come to the house and take them out once a week, say on Friday or Saturday night, to a supervised dance or the show.

The trouble is that a girl of 16 looks upon herself as a young lady and her parents invariably think of her as a little girl, not much more than a baby.

Bubbles: If you are sure the boy you like would like to take you out, why not drop a hint to brother if they correspond? He should be able to give a tactful hint that his sister would welcome a little attention—if brothers can ever be trusted to drop a hint that is discreet.

Million-Dollar Football

Fielding H. Yost, head of the athletic department of the University of Michigan, is a friendly individual, and full of good conversation. I talked to him about William Toward Taft's remarks on "Million Dollar Football," recently published in Cosmopolitan magazine. Frazier Hunt interviewed Taft on the subject, and Taft criticized the college for over-emphasis of athletics, especially football. Yost smiled good naturedly when I mentioned the Taft interview.

"Yes, I read it," he said.

He looked down at his feet, as if thinking of some mild language with which to express his opinion. I expected him to wear. But he continued to smile.

"I'll tell you," he said. I don't think we need to worry about the college boy's getting too much exercise. The trouble is rather that so many of them don't get exercise enough.

"I don't have much sympathy with the people who are always worrying about the morals of the athletes. I can find a big college crowd for the improvers to work on, and it won't be the crowd that takes part in athletics."

"Why," he continued, warming up to his subject, "suppose it were possible to remove football and other competitive athletics from the colleges. What would happen? These exuberant college boys would soon be tearing up the buildings with crow-bars and cant hooks, and anything else they could grab. Interest in athletics turns the energy and enthusiasm of the college boy into healthy and normal channels. It is essential that the boys have some activity into which they may throw themselves with all the enthusiasm of healthy youth.

"Whether we like it or not, the parents and the public have turned over to the schools and colleges the responsibility of providing play activity and proper exercise for the children and youths. We have got to do our best to provide more and more play fields, stadiums, field houses and gymnasiums."

I have lots of opinions of my own about college athletics, but today I present Yost's opinion, because he probably knows something about the subject.

Victims of Spectacular Holdup

MILLION INCOME FOR 290 IN U. S.

The records of the U. S. treasury department reveal that 290 individuals had, in 1927, an income of more than one million dollars each.

Of this number, 62 more than in the year previous, 11 paid an income tax in excess of five million dollars, and 10 incomes of between four and five millions. Twenty-three women, of them unmarried, were included in the million dollar income list, and one of these reported a net income of more than $1,500,000. The total income tax paid by the 290 was $98,657,237.

The treasury statistics showed also an increase of 35,545 in the number of persons who paid an income tax as compared with the preceding year, with a corresponding increase of $686,594,904 in the total income of persons paying the federal levy, an increase from $5,306 to $5,496 in the average net income of those filing returns.

The returns showed a total of $10,218,449,780 received from wages and salaries; $3,287,421,294 from individually conducted businesses; $1,755,145,035 from businesses conducted in partnership; $1,813,395,955 from profits derived from the sale of bonds, real estate and stocks; $1,981,186,108 from capital net gain from sales of assets held more than two years; $1,302,275,981 from rents and royalties; $2,026,897,032 from investments; $47,479,483 from interest on government obligations not entirely exempt from taxation; $4,254,828,886 from dividends on stock of domestic corporations and $6,394,981 from fiduciaries.

Taxpayers of the state of New York as usual showed the largest total of individual net incomes, with $5,398,451,005 and a total number of 776,974 returns; Illinois was second, with $2,093,908,478 and 378,859 and Pennsylvania third with $2,091,825,217 and 388,1374.

BEAVER SEASON CLOSED IN '30

The conservation commission at a recent meeting ordered the beaver season closed after Jan. 1. If this action had not been taken the season would have automatically opened with the new year, as the last closing order dated 1925 would have terminated on that date. There has been no open season on beaver in Michigan since 1920.

The possibility of a short open season in the upper peninsula only, during the spring of 1930 was discussed at this meeting. The upper peninsula members of the commission seemed in favor of this action, subject to the necessary rules and regulations. Two weeks of March were mentioned as a possible open season period. It was pointed out, however, that at that time the beaver would be well into their breeding season.

The question of opening the season in 1930 is now being considered by the commission and the game authorities of the department, and further action is probable at a later meeting of the commission.

Money Orders Sent Abroad Show Gains

International money orders have steadily increased since the World War, and transfers handled during fiscal year of 1929 are expected to total $75,000,000, or only $25,000,000 below the pre-war peak, it was stated orally at the Postoffice department recently.

Great Britain will again show an increase, as compared with 1928, it was stated, and all other principal European countries are showing increased activity in purchasing money orders. Canada and Germany follow Great Britain in the order named, the department announced.

Indications are that the international money order business will continue to increase, it was stated.

The provinces making up French Levant, which recently entered into postal convention with the United States for the exchange of money orders, have sent in their first financial statement to the department, which calls for an initial outlay of slightly more than $100, it was said.

Russia, which had formerly been a good customer, has been eliminated by reason of the fact that her present government is not recognized by the United States.

Cherry Growers Would Buy Plant

Revelation that cherry growers have pledged approximately $60,000 in hopes of buying out the Grand Traverse Packing Co.'s few non-grower stockholders is made in a letter over the signature of David R. Murray, secretary of a growers' committee of stockholders. Mr. Murray is secretary also of the Michigan Cherry Growers.

With him on the committee distributing the letter are understood to be A. J. Rogers, president of the Michigan Cherry Growers, and several other members of the large co-operative who are stockholders in the packing company. The letter signals an open break between at least many of the company growers and business men who are its officers.

Frame Building Ban Is Ordered

Following the fire which destroyed two Main street rookeries recently, the Hartford village council has adopted a resolution prohibiting the erection of any more frame buildings in the business districts.

An ordinance creating a fire district and prescribing building regulations will be adopted to back up the resolution.

-Will Make Oil Burners

Manufacture of oil burners is soon to be a new Lansing industry. A new corporation is in process of organization, backed by Lansing and Detroit capital, which will produce oil heating systems under the Equator patents formerly held in Muskegon, where the heaters were produced on a relatively small scale. A building in the north and industrial district, formerly occupied by the old Auto Body Company, has been acquired for the new concern. The company is capitalized at $75,000.

CORMORANT SHOT ON SAGINAW BAY

A cormorant shot by a duck hunter on Saginaw bay in November was confiscated by V. D. Winey, conservation officer, and sent to Norman A. Wood, curator of birds at the University of Michigan.

Although the bird was believed to be a black or common cormorant when first killed it probably was a double-crested cormorant instead.

The former bird has never been recorded on the great lakes, being a split water species nesting along the north Atlantic coast and seldom found away from the ocean. The double-crested cormorant, on the other hand, nests on fresh water and at least one nesting colony is known to exist on the great lakes on an island in Lake Superior.

The two cormorants resemble each other very closely and are readily confused. Even the double-crested species is found only very rarely in this district of Michigan, passing through occasionally on the spring and fall flight.

The cormorants are fish eaters but are protected by federal migratory bird law because of their rarity. Their numbers are too few to result in much damage to fish and the birds doubtless would soon be exterminated if the protection were removed.

Swimming and diving with the agility of a loon, the cormorant has little difficulty in overtaking its prey under water. The bird is black in color and somewhat larger than a duck. It is frequently mistaken for a duck but the long neck easily serves to distinguish it from any species of wildfowl. It also has many habits unlike those of a duck including its custom of perching on high rocky points, dead trees and the ridge of boathouses.

The nests are built on low bushes, trees or rocky ledges. Dead trees are selected in preference to live ones. The nests are built of twigs, roots and sticks. From its size and shape the cormorant is sometimes called the water turkey.

Salvation Army Heads Sent to Grand Rapids

Adjutant A. C. Ainsworth and his wife of St. Louis, Mo., recently appointed to supervise the young people's department of the Salvation Army of western Michigan and northern Indiana, will have their headquarters in Grand Rapids. Staff Captain Herbert Pugmire of Milwaukee has been named general secretary to succeed Major George Free, recently killed in an automobile accident.

Croswell Resident Is 100 Years Old

Orrin Avery of Croswell celebrated his one hundredth birthday recently and was the guest of honor at noon at a banquet with a birthday cake with 100 candles for the centerpiece, and a reception given him by the Croswell Rotary and Commercial clubs. More than 300 attended the banquet and stores were closed at noon and the streets decorated in his honor. David E. Hubbell, editor of the Jeffersonian, was toastmaster.

State Will Dispose of Ores for Royalty

A policy of disposing of all mineral and non-metallic minerals on a royalty basis was adopted by the conservation commission at its November meeting.

In the future instead of selling its mineral and non-metallic mineral rights on its own land and on land which it has disposed of but has reserved these rights, the state will sell on a royalty basis, receiving compensation in proportion to the amount of raw materials taken from the ground.

Recently the commission adopted a plan for the disposal of oil and gas on a royalty basis.

While the commission adopted a general policy of disposal by royalties, no definite royalty rates have been fixed and before the system is placed in effect it will be necessary to draft rates and regulations covering all of the metals and non-metallic minerals found in Michigan.

The state now owns approximately a million and a half acres of land outright, and holds all mineral and oil rights on these acres. In addition, it controls the mineral rights on large areas which it has sold in the past.

The most generally found minerals to be disposed of on a royalty basis are iron and copper. The most generally found non-metallic mineral to be disposed of in the same way is stone.

M-78 Paving in Bellevue Held Up Until Spring

Because of the lateness of the season and the freezing weather, engineers of the state highway department have decided to defer until next spring the completion of this season's allotment of paving on M-78 in Bellevue and have ordered all work suspended.

The work remaining to be done consists of about a half a block of paving on the west approach to the new bridge over Battle creek at the east edge of the village.

Motorists, however, will not be compelled to use the long detour to the north of Bellevue as it is understood the highway department will gravel the unpaved approach to the bridge in order to allow traffic to use the new short cut pavement from the Hall schoolhouse corner into Bellevue until ready to complete the work of paving in the spring.

Bands 13,000 Birds at One Station In Yard

M. J. Magee, widely known bird man of Sault Ste. Marie, reports that between 1921 and July of this year he trapped and banded more than 13,000 birds at the banding station in his yard. These birds were trapped in a space 40x60 feet in size. During the same period more than 1,100 returns were taken in this same small space.

Purple finches far outnumbered all other species, Mr. Magee states. More than 9,300 of these birds have been banded by him. During the first half of the present year he also banded 507 evening grosbeaks.

Dr. Armstrong Again Heads County Fair

At the annual meeting of the Jackson County Agricultural society, Dr. W. N. Armstrong of Concord, was re-elected president. Other officers re-elected are: First vice-president, Bruce Crum, Horton; second vice-president, Ray Reed, Horton; secretary, J. C. Muck, Jackson; treasurer, Lacerne Patch, Jackson. The organization is sponsor of the county fair.

Plans Commercial Airship

Detroit Aircraft Corporation is designing a 100-ton metalclad airship, which will have a speed of 100 miles per hour, for commercial use. The ship will be 520 feet long, 115 feet in diameter, equipped with 4,800 horsepower and will have sleeping accommodations for 50 passengers. In addition to carrying capacity for 50 passengers it will carry a substantial load of mail and express over any range up to 2,000 miles.

AMBASSADOR BRIDGE TOLLS LISTED

Toll rates for the Ambassador Bridge, from Detroit to Canada, which opened recently, call for the payment of 50 cents per passenger automobile including driver, and 5 cents for each passenger in addition to the driver. The pedestrian rates also are 5 cents. Motor busses, carrying up to 16 passengers, must pay $1.75 in addition to the 5 cents for each passenger. Busses carrying up to 21 passengers must pay $2, up to 30 passengers $2.25, and more than 30 passengers, $3.

The rate on trucks up to 10 tons will be 2 cents for each 100 pounds. From this point the truck rates are graduated as follows: Three cents per 100 pounds for the first five tons in excess of 10 tons, 4 cents for the first five tons in excess of 15, and 5 cents for the first five tons in excess of 20. Trucks weighing in excess of 25 tons must have a special permit and will be permitted to use the bridge only at certain hours.

To Make $350 Car

The Littlemac coupe, to be manufactured by the Thompson Motor Corporation of Muscatine, Ia., has an 80-inch wheelbase and a 40-inch tread. It stands five and one-half feet high, weighs 1,100 pounds, is powered by a Continental Red Seal 18-horsepower motor and is capable of a speed of 75 miles per hour. It is expected to sell for about $350. Other bodies will be built, including a delivery model having a right-hand drive to facilitate unloading at the curb. Clayton E. Fredrickson is designer of the diminutive automobile. Production will begin as soon as the factory is completed early in the spring.

Is the Time to Change to Mobiloil Arctic

32 Degrees Tomorrow will Endanger Your Engine

When your cold engine is slow to start, when your battery must strain its utmost to turn it over, a dangerous condition exists. It calls for your prompt action.

Change to many of the so-called "winter oils" is not always enough. Although they may give easy starting, they often thin out too much on hot engine surfaces.

There's only one simple rule which is safe to follow: When you are apt to encounter 32 degrees F., give your engine and your battery the double range protection of Mobiloil Arctic.

Down to zero Mobiloil Arctic gives summer ease in starting. And at the higher running temperatures of your engine, Mobiloil Arctic keeps its body, and gives rich lubrication.

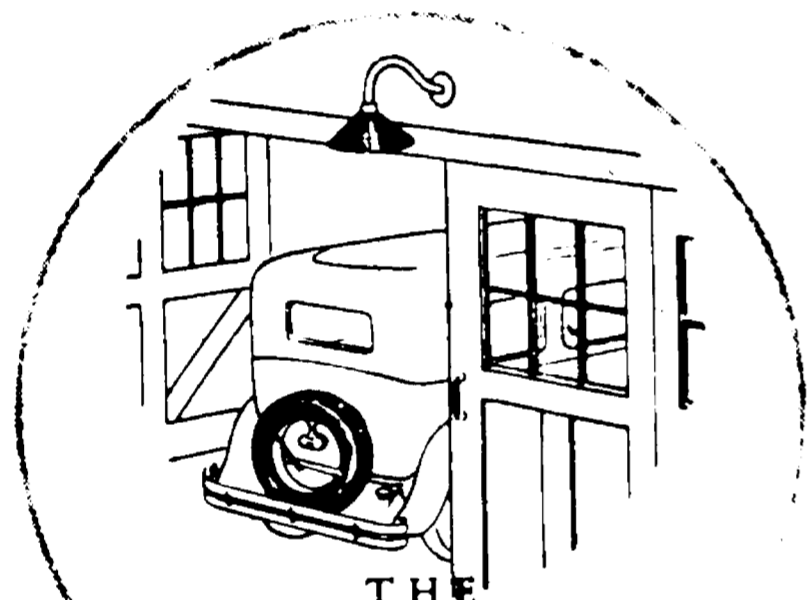

NEW EASE IN GEAR SHIFTING

Until this winter the motorist has had to choose between a heavy lubricant which stiffened in cold weather, and a light grease which might give easy gear shifting but which might also break up in service and fail to cling to the gears. The new Mobiloil "CW" gives a full rich body of high lubricating efficiency, that always remains fluid. Regardless of cold, it clings tenaciously to each gear tooth. Easy starting, easier shifting and smoother winter performance result when Mobiloil "CW" is used.

THE RIGHT SIZED BULB FOR THE GARAGE

Adequate lighting for a one or two-car garage includes provision for exterior as well as interior illumination. Three sources of light are desirable—a 60-watt ceiling fixture for general lighting, a 40-watt portable lamp for use locally, and a reflector for alley or driveway lighting. Used with the reflector, a 100-watt lamp bulb illuminates a considerable area around the garage.

PINCKNEY WINS FINAL GAME

Pinckney High School won the last game of their schedule Thanksgiving morning by a score of 21 to 0. Dexter failed to put up much opposition and were only in scoring position once. This happened when Donaldson caught a Pinckney forward pass thrown by Reason to Har Hall and carried it to the 15 yard line. On the next play the Dexter center made a bad pass over Toth's head and they lost twenty yards. After this literally speaking, Dexter got nowhere. Pinckney was also slow getting started and it was not until the last minutes of the first quarter that they scored. Pete Gerycz playing his last game for the high school made two 30 yard end runs which placed the ball on the five yard line. Here Capt. Kennedy took it over for a touchdown and also made the extra point. Pinckney failed to score in the second period. In the third period Gerycz again broke away and ran 40 yards placing the ball on the three yard line. Here he was hurt when tackled and time was taken out. Murray Kennedy took the ball over for a touchdown on the second attempt. The last one resulted when Capt. Kennedy caught the whole Dexter team asleep and went through center for a touchdown. The weather was very cold and only a small crowd turned out.

CORRECT TAGS MUST BE USED BY MUSKRAT TRAPPERS

Numbered tags furnished by the Department of Conservation last year to trappers to be placed on all traps cannot be used this year, and traps found in the woods identified by nothing but these tags will be picked up by the officers, according to the Department of Conservation.

A 1929 statute provides that all traps must be marked with metal tags, furnished by the owners and containing the name of the owner and his address legibly written or stamped in English. Owners of traps found in the woods with the old tags have pleaded ignorance of the new regulations.

CURRENT COMMENT

Fowlerville High School is considering dropping football as a high school sport in 1930. Lack of interest in the game and poor attendance at games as given as a reason. Basketball is the leading sport there and the revenue derived from it pay the expenses of both base ball and football. Fowlerville has been fortunate in having a basket ball team which placed high in the tournament each year. At that other schools are having difficulty in financing football. It is the most costly of all sports as it requires extensive equipment, in the neighborhood of 20 players and outside officials. The fact that the schools encountering much bad weather while playing out their schedule is another drawback. Basket ball on the other hand only requires half the number of men, hardly any equipment and is played inside so the weather does not matter. Pinckney was also able to break even in athletics this year due to the revenue derived from basket ball last winter. The lack of interest in high school football is general and hard to explain. Some schools like Howell and Ann Arbor are able to break even by an extensive sale of season tickets. We understand that even then the attendance is not great. In 1926 when Pinckney won the class "D" football title, the attendance was large at every game. That year the team played at New Hudson and there were twice as many people from Pinckney who accompanied the team there as have attended any game played here this year, notwithstanding the fact that it was a 45 mile drive. The next year saw a slight falling off of interest and for the past two years only a handful have witnessed the games. The majority of people seem to get more kick out of watching Michigan play through a pair of field glasses than to stand on the side lines and see the high school games.
