DISTRICT MASONIC MEETING

Big Masonic Event, Lansing, May 3

One of the most important Masonic events of the season is to be staged at Lansing Masonic Temple on May 3rd, when the 45 lodges in District No. 10, comprising the counties of Ingham, Eaton, Livingston, Clinton, and Shiawassee, will put on a Banquet for the entire district. Many distinguished Masons will be present from various parts of Michigan, including Robert A. Campbell, Treasurer.

ROBERT A. CAMPBELL

of the University of Michigan, and member of the Grand Lodge finance committee. He is in charge of the Craftsmen's team of 30 U. of M. boys who will put on the third degree following the banquet.

Mr. Robert A. Campbell will address all lodge officers at four P. M. at Lansing Temple, and will again speak on "Youth in the Lodges."

At Kalamazoo and Battle Creek, where a similar program was recently put on, every seat was sold out weeks in advance. It is confidently expected that the 900 seats at the Lansing Temple will be sold well in advance of the meeting.

All Master Masons welcome.

O. E. S. INSTALLATION POSTPONED INDEFINITELY

The installation of the newly elected officers of Eastern Star Chapter No. 145 Pinckney which was scheduled for Friday evening, April 18 has been indefinitely postponed on account of illness.

Winifred Graves, Sec'y.

SCHOOL NOTES

Last Thursday afternoon Pinckney sent two contestants to the district Public Speaking contest at Ypsilanti. The district comprises all the high schools in Livingston and Washtenaw counties. Only two schools outside of Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti were given honorable mention for their work. These schools being Howell and Pinckney. Evelyn Graves and Arloa Esic represented Pinckney and were given dictionaries for their efforts. These prize dictionaries are made possible by the Detroit News who spends several thousand dollars each year creating an interest in Public Speaking throughout the schools of the state.

Pinckney meets Howell in baseball Tuesday, April 22.

The annual high school play will be staged Friday May 2. The play this year promises to be one of the best in recent years.

THE BASE BALL SEASON

The base ball season is almost here and soon the cry of "Play Ball" will be heard. The high school will open their season next Tuesday meeting Howell at Pinckney. The local team is made up of new men and not much is known of their ability.

The local independent team expects to swing into action about May 11 if the weather permits. The team that won 20 victories out of 25 starts last year is pretty much depleted. However Lee, Brown, Cox, Kennedy, Doyle, Swarthout, and Reason will be available and several new players have asked for chances to play. Jimmie Moran Pinckney's star pitcher of last year joined the Kellogg team at Battle Creek and his place will be hard to fill. However Pinckney is hoping to discover a pitching star of his caliber.

A bee will be held this Thursday night at 6:00 p. m. to grade the diamond and a practise session will be held next Sunday afternoon.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS MET

The newly elected board of Livingston county supervisors met at the court house last week. It consists of six republicans and eight democrats. Claude Taylor, republican supervisor of Green Oak township, was elected chairman of the board. The different committees will not be appointed until the next session.

PLANE CRASH KILLS THREE

Levi Keppler, 24, teller of the Farmers and Mechanics bank of Ann Arbor, Willard Clawson, 60, Ypsilanti farmer and Harry Walter, 28, Ypsilanti airport manager were electrocuted Sunday afternoon when Leon Hanselman, pilot, became entangled in a high tension wire while making a landing at the airport. Hanselman escaped with slight injuries. Keppler, his passenger, was not killed by the fall but died when he came in contact with a highly charged wire when he arose to jump. Walters and Clawson were both killed when they tried to remove Keppler's body and came in contact with high tension wires.

AIRPLANE LANDS HERE

An airplane attracted considerable attention here Wednesday afternoon by circling over the town very low. Finally it landed on the Sam Lapham farm about a mile from town on the Dexter road. A number of Pinckneyites drove out there. The plane proved to be the property of Fred Babcock of Ann Arbor who was out for a pleasure trip. The man riding with him was none other than Dean Reason, son of Norman Reason of Pinckney. He is a student at Ann Arbor. It is believed he intended to astonish his old friends here by making a parachute drop but was unable to do so because he left his parachute in Ann Arbor. The same plane paid another visit here Friday.

FINAL HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE TO BE HELD APRIL 25

Northwestern High School of Detroit and Clawson High School of Oakland county won the right to compete in the final debate to be held at Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, April 25 by defeating their opponents in the final debates held last week.

Northwestern upholding the affirmative side of the question "Should Trial by Jury Be Abolished" won the unanimous decision of the judges before a mammoth crowd in Hill Auditorium, Detroit last Friday night. For several years past Cheboygan who opposed them has been a leading contender and they had high hopes of winning this year.

Clawson invaded Paw Paw with seven bus loads of rooters and defeated that high school by a two to one decision of the judges. Clawson upheld the negative side. The debate was extremely close and it was not until the rebuttals that Clawson forged ahead. A large crowd listened to the debate.

WEEK OF APRIL 20

The first half of the week of April 20th will be generally cool for the season in most parts of Michigan...

Sunday of this week will likely be partly cloudy to generally fair with temperatures normal to somewhat below...

During the middle part of the week we are expecting there will be more sunshine and mostly fair weather...

Probably the two strongest characteristics of the particular storm period coming at end of week will be the strong winds and moderate rains...

Easter and the Weather

Not only does Easter mean much to the religious world but there are still many who believe that this movable calendar day has much or at least something to do with the weather...

Another saying has it that a warm Christmas foretells a cold Easter...

Should it rain on Easter, it will rain seven consecutive Sundays...

We will be glad to get weather experiences in this line from any of our readers.

Views and Reviews

Cadillac Evening News finds something that ought to be stopped.

Of all life's many irritations, we can think of none that is more exasperating nor that makes us see red faster than that delight of idle brains—the chain letter.

Just now there is a new letter in circulation. It bears the traditional instructions and warning, and then gives a page-long list of the world's great men...

It is a silly business, based altogether upon the most absurd sort of superstition and simple credulity.

CHATTY GODDESS OF GAB BY BEATRICE BURTON, Author of 'HER MAN', 'HONEY LOU', 'MONEY LOVE', 'LOVE BOUND'

COPYRIGHT 1934, CENTRAL PUBLISHING CO., CLEVELAND, OHIO

But David! Why not? She would sit with him in his private office and talk about herself—Chatty's most interesting subject...

"How do you think that would sit with Mr. Jordan if he were here?" "But I just went to Mr. Jordan. And he said he wanted me to have my job back..."

"Yes, what did he really say?" "He really said that you were a man in a thousand, and just as real and honorable..."

"Have you an appointment?" asked the girl. "No, I want to see him on business, though," answered Chatty.

"No, Miss Chatterton, what can I do for you?" he asked. His voice was coldly impersonal, but not hard or angry.

"I want some advice," began Chatty. "Oh! Well, I am afraid I am not very good at advice. I thought you said it was business."

"It is! Oh, Dave, please listen, and help me. Don't bankers give financial advice to their depositors?"

"I beg your pardon?" David sounded rather apologetic. "I did not know it was financial advice you wanted. A matter of investment?"

"No, listen, David, it's financial, because it means money to me. I can't really business—I mean, I don't want to buy anything or borrow anything—but please, please help me!"

"If I can—" David's eyes fell. He did not look pleased. "Chatty told him what Billie had said of her struggle to get a position, and her failures. She even pointed to her shoes, showing wear from much walking the streets looking for work."

"And I don't know what to do!" she cried. "So I came to you. I will do what you tell me! Will you please advise me?"

David sat silent a moment. Then: "Why did you come to me?" "Chatty shook her head. She couldn't tell him the real reason, and now, at last she would not tell him a lie."

"Don't you know David?" she asked, very gently. "No. And I don't want to know. You have come to me as an officer of the bank in which you deposit, and so are entitled to ask for advice. It is true that a bank is not concerned with personal problems, but I will waive that."

"My advice to you is to go to Mr. Van Nuys. Tell him the absolute truth. If the things of which he accuses you are true, say so. If you have done wrong, say so. If you have made mistakes, say so. Mr. Van Nuys is a man in a thousand. He is human, real and reliable. You can depend on him to meet truth with truth, honesty with honesty, genuineness with genuineness."

David rose. The interview was over. "I—I thank you," Chatty murmured. "And I will do what you say. Will you—will you—" she stopped. "Yes?" asked David. "Will you—shake hands with me?" "Of course!" But there was nothing warm in David's tone. He was still but the banker, advising a client. He shook hands with her as impersonally as if she was a total stranger.

Chatty's eyes were dim as she left the bank. But at least he had advised her, had counseled her in trouble. Hard advice to take; it is never easy to admit one is wrong, mean, dishonest! But a promise to David was—a promise to David! Before she lost her courage, or argued herself out of keeping it, Chatty was in the Van Nuys office, knocking on Mr. Van Nuys's door!

Pushing that door open and entering the office was one of the hardest tasks of Chatty's life! When Mr. Van Nuys smiled a little, as he saw who it was, Chatty gained courage.

"Oh, Mr. Van Nuys!" she began. "I've come to tell you I'm a sorry and ashamed girl. I was all wrong! And I want to know—oh, please, can't I have my job back again?"

Chatty got it all out in one breath. "This is rather strange, isn't it?" answered Mr. Van Nuys. "Seems to me I remember that I gave you a chance, and you made your choice!"

"I know I did. But, Mr. Van Nuys, I did apologize to Mr. Jordan! I didn't tell you, because I—because I—" She stopped. "Yes?" "Because I didn't do it because you told me to, but because I felt I must!" answered Chatty, desperately. "And that didn't seem to me to be obeying you—and so I—and so I left. And I've tried and tried, and I can't get a job, and I need it. And, oh, Mr. Van Nuys! I've learned my lesson! If you'll take me back I'll never talk any more, or listen in on the phone, or gossip. Please give me a trial!"

"Well, now, I don't know about that!" Mr. Van Nuys knit his brows.

"How do you think that would sit with Mr. Jordan if he were here?" "But I just went to Mr. Jordan. And he said he wanted me to have my job back. No! No, he didn't! I don't mean that! He said I should come and ask you. I asked his advice—and he said—"

"Yes, what did he really say?" "He really said that you were a man in a thousand, and just as real and honorable..."

"He said if I was honest with you, you would meet me in the same spirit, and I am honest with you—truly I am! Oh, Mr. Van Nuys, give me my job back and you'll have the best telephone operator you ever had!"

"Whose idea was it that you come to ask for your job back?" asked Mr. Van Nuys. "Chatty opened her mouth, then closed it. Was he testing her?"

"Mr. Van Nuys, if I tell you, you won't be displeased with that person?" "Certainly not!" Mr. Van Nuys laughed. "It was Billie Langenau!" answered Chatty. "She's a fine girl, Mr. Van Nuys, and my very best friend. And she said the phone girls hadn't been satisfactory, and told me to—to talk to you!"

"Well, with Miss Langenau and Mr. Jordan both on your side—it's a promise, is it, Miss Chatterton, that there will be no gossip, no scandal talked, no listening in to matters not your business?" "My word of honor!" breathed Chatty.

"Then hang up your coat and go to work!"

CHAPTER XLV

Billie staged a party that night to celebrate. At Chatty's earnest solicitation, she invited Winnie and Bryant and Jim Bowen. Chatty could see that Billie was rather dubious; Winnie and Bryant and Jim were not really just happy to notice much, and perhaps Billie was too contented for her friend's good fortune to mind for the once.

The party was a great success from Billie's point of view; perhaps Bryant and Jim Bowen thought it slow. Winnie did not ask for a drink or even suggest thirst, and they all ate Billie's sandwiches with hearty gathering broke up, Bryant whispered to Chatty: "Very soon we'll have a real party—the old 'Famous Four'!"

And Chatty nodded, pleased. "Everything looked so different; The sun was brighter, the sky so blue, the streets so interesting; even Pud seemed to become attractive and good. Having a job made everything so much happier! And—David had advised her!"

"F" even sake, Chatty, bite your tongue off!" advised Winnie, after they left pausing before Chatty's apartment door. "Keep it, now you got it back!"

"I'm going to!" promised Chatty. "I'm just dying to hear all the office scandal!" "So you can spill it and lose out again?"

"No, so I can keep it!" retorted Chatty. "It's a scandal we haven't had a drink," whispered Winnie. "Can't you come on over to my dump now?"

But Chatty, filled with good resolutions, refused. "If I'm going to be at work bright and early and make a good impression, I got to sleep!" she answered.

But it was not to sleep that she refused the wilder party after Billie's modest one. She wanted to slip back to Billie's after Winnie, Jim and Bryant clattered noisily down the stairs. She did not knock, thinking that, as she had just come out it would not be necessary.

But she wished she had! She heard a sound suspiciously like a kiss just beyond the door curtain, and when Chatty coughed there was a sudden movement.

Chatty grinned, as delighted as a child with a new toy. "I thought so!" she nodded her head wisely. "Platonic? The cat's off-hind whiskers?"

Then, in a loud tone: "Billie! Can I come back a moment?" She walked into the living room with her face straight, apparently not noticing Billie's mussed hair or George's tie under one ear. "I just came back to say thank you again, old dear!" She put her arms around Billie. "I owe my job—a lot of it—to you!"

"I never admired you more!" answered Billie. "I know it took courage to go to Mr. Van Nuys. Then Chatty really did go home—to wonder how late George stayed, and how long Billie had been in the habit of kissing him, and why she tried to hide it; wondering, wondering—but firmly making up her mind never, never, never to tell any one she saw her best friend kissing George Mayhew."

"As a matter of fact, I didn't see her! I heard her!" Chatty told herself virtuously. "I must guard my tongue. I've promised. I must not talk, must not repeat, must not exaggerate, must not—mustn't—lie!"

But it is one thing to promise and resolve, and another to perform. Chatty had never heard: "When the devil was sick, The devil, a saint was he; When the devil got well, Devil of a saint was he!"

talk that goes on in all big establishments. It was particularly hard when she heard things that concerned her particular friends.

She had been back but three days when she overheard two girls talking behind a file case. "Yes, Billie Langenau. And I don't think it's a bit nice of her!"

"You don't tell me, is she? Trying to vamp him, is she? Why, I can hardly believe it!"

Only a few words! But Chatty wanted the worst way to go to Billie and tell her that Sophie Tucker and Irene Alder were "talking about her behind her back." And who was Billie trying to "vamp"? Chatty couldn't imagine!

But she held her sharp little tongue between her teeth, and didn't even hint to Billie that she was being talked about.

It was the same way with Winnie. The whole office talked about Winnie, and always had. The way she dressed, her too short skirts, her fearless and wonderful make-up, her carelessness of opinion, her late hours, her "crush" on Jimmy, her outspoken talk of gin and bootlegger her "wild parties."

Winnie never paid any attention to talk, even when it was told to her. But mere gossip was one thing. Open scandal was another.

In the dressing room one day, Lola drew half a dozen girls, including Billie Langenau and Chatty, into a little group.

"Have you heard the latest? The boss is after Winnie to go out with him! Remember Agnes? Winnie's next! And—AND HE LOCKS THE DOOR WHEN HE DICTATES TO HER!"

It was more the suggestion behind than the words themselves which made Chatty almost determine to go to Winnie with the absurd remark. It was an outrage to talk about Winnie so! Winnie was loud and boisterous, and did like a wild time but she was a mighty efficient girl, Chatty knew. If the boss locked his room door when he dictated to her, it was to keep out interrupters, not to make love to Winnie! Yes, Winnie ought to know it! She'd tear Lola limb from limb!

She'd go to Winnie tonight, and tell her that Lola was ruining her reputation.

But—would she? Was what Lola said "ruin" to Winnie's reputation? She, Chatty, didn't believe it. Billie Langenau had just laughed—she didn't believe it. And she had promised—

Chatty kept her lips tight closed. The temptation was perfectly awful when Winnie said to her, going home: "Lola is a decent sort, isn't she? I must do something nice for Lola!"

Lola, who talked against her, decent! But Chatty kept still, and was most inordinately proud of her discretion for having done so!

But the greatest temptation came after two weeks of most circumspect keeping her tongue between her lips and not saying a word to anyone which should not have been said. By this time Chatty's mind was so bottled up with bursting gossip that soon, she thought, she would explode. And then, Irene had to add to her load!

She had gone to lunch with Irene. She wasn't particularly keen about her, but Billie was busy and Winnie had a later hour.

Seated in a secluded nook in the little cafeteria, Irene spilled what was on her mind. "I'm telling you this, because you are a particular friend of Billie Langenau's," she began. "She runs around with that George Mayhew. I've seen them several times. Billie's a nice girl. But he's—no good!"

"What do you mean, no good?" demanded Chatty, eagerly. "I was out to a party the other night," she went on, Irene, delighted with Chatty's enthusiasm. "Roadhouse—maybe you know it—the old Lollypop? I thought so! Well, I saw him there—with a girl!"

"Who was it?" asked Chatty. "Couldn't see her face. Parked away over to one side. But I know it wasn't Billie, because next day I asked Billie where she was that night, and she said she had gone auto riding with her sister!"

"Hm!" said Chatty. "Now don't you tell—that I said it!" cautioned Irene. "But someone ought to tell her—"

Yes, Chatty agreed in her heart, someone ought to tell her. It wasn't fair loving and kissing George Mayhew, and he running around with another girl—

"But I won't tell her!" Chatty assured herself. "It would just hurt her, and not do anyone any good, and it's not—oh, it's not my business!"

to talk elsewhere. And I said I wouldn't—" "Well, that's fine! I didn't know that was at the bottom of it!" Her mother sighed in relief. "I always told you you talked too much—"

Chatty was up in arms on the instant. Its one thing to tell yourself that you must keep a promise, and quite another to be blamed for talking too much by your mother!

"I never did!" Chatty assured her. "That was just your imagination. But things happened in the office which made it seem as if I did. I am back on a promise that I won't even give anyone reason to think I talk—even if I never really did!"

It was a pretty lame defense, but the best Chatty could think of at the moment.

Her mother smiled wisely and said nothing, being a wise mother. Billie and Winnie both noted that Chatty was not living up to her nickname. Billie said little about it. But a pat on the arm, a wise smile, a friendly gesture, meant much from Billie. Chatty still felt uncomfortable when she remembered that she knew things about George which Billie didn't know; that girls talked about Billie, and Billie didn't know it.

She felt uncomfortable, always, when keeping anything to herself. But she stuck to her plan to be silent, even if it was hard.

Winnie laughed at her. "I declare, you are getting so oyster mouthed it's hard to get a 'yes' or a 'no' out of you. But maybe you'll answer this: if I ask you to come tonight to meet Bryant and Jim, will you come?"

Chatty smiled, in spite of herself. The dull ache in her heart needed easing. Bryant—well, Bryant was sweet, even if he was dangerous. And long repression of talk had made Chatty dull.

"Yes, I'll come!" she answered. "It was a happy party. Pud wasn't called on to bring alcohol. Bryant brought it with him. The apartment was provided with plenty of oranges, lemons, ginger ale, seltzer, that the raw taste of the 'cooked' spirits be disguised in as many ways as possible. As usual, there was nothing to eat."

And as usual, there was a lot of very frank necking. Jim and Winnie kissed as if unconsciously of observation as if alone. Bryant was a hovering bee, with Chatty's lips or cheek or neck as the flower.

It was late in the evening before Bryant made the suggestion for which Chatty had been hoping. "Let's all take a ride and cool off!" "Let's?" suggested Winnie.

"Eats?" suggested Winnie. "Why eat? You drink to kill care, then you eat to kill the booze, and then you go to sleep to forget the eats!" "Silly!" answered Bryant, and they all laughed as if he had said something really funny!

Jim had his own car—which Chatty knew in advance, other wise she wouldn't have wanted to ride—so she was alone with Bryant. It was some time since she had ridden with him, and to her amazement, and a little to her consternation, she found herself hardly able to wait until he got to a lark road, and stopped the car. For Chatty knew that inside she was hoping for a recurrence of the miracle, in which Bryant, kissing her, became David—David, who had not kissed for months. They had to wait a moment for a battered car to pass. It went swiftly by, its headlights blinding on her face.

The miracle refused to happen. When Bryant hugged her to him and pressed his lips hotly to hers, it was only Bryant—Bryant, too well made up, too carefully groomed, too odorous of perfume to seem like David!

Chatty sighed, after half an hour. It wouldn't work. She couldn't kiss vicariously by planning it, evidently. "I—I guess we better go home!" she said at last, wearily.

"Well, if you say so—but before we do, tell me the latest scandal!" suggested Bryant. "I haven't heard any dirt about any one for days!" "I don't know any!" answered Chatty.

"You said it! You sure have changed sweetness! And while you haven't so much to say, I don't know but what that's nice!"

Chatty smiled, then frowned, as he added, "Leaves your mouth freer for kisses!"

But in spite of that last remark, Chatty was pleased with her evening. She had been careful what she drank, she had not talked, and Bryant had praised her for failure to gossip.

That night, almost asleep, a great thought flashed across her mind. "If I've really stopped gossiping, why—why—why the things about me that made David give me up—are gone! Oh, if he knew it, would he take me back?"

She laid awake for a delicious hour, pondering it, hoping for it planning to make it come true.

At ten minutes of three the next day, Chatty got excused from the office for an hour. It was the least busy part of the day, and Lola was willing to relieve her at the switchboard. She had stayed in, and gone without lunch, in order to get the hour, just before the bank closed for the day.

At five minutes of three she knocked on David's door in the Midas bank. At four minutes of three she sat in a chair before his desk, her heart beating madly, her face smiling, but a little wistful, as she looked at the man who occupied her thoughts. "This is an unexpected pleasure," began David. "More advice, Miss Chatterton?"

Chatty sat silent for a moment, gathering her courage. Then she asked: "Would it hurt you very much to call me Chatty, like you did—once?" David reddened. He did not expect anything so direct. But he recovered himself immediately. "Why, no, Chatty, it wouldn't hurt me. But this is a business office. In it I transact business. I don't call clients by their first names—" "But it's three o'clock, and the bank is closed!" declared Chatty, triumphantly. "Please, Dave."

30 Bids Received On Lenawee Roads

Members of the Lenawee county road commission considered 30 bids which they received for construction of five roads in 1930. Nine bids were presented on a road running two and one-half miles north and east of Jasper, seven bid on a stretch from Clayton, north to the Manitow Beach road, and 14 bids were received for three sections of road in the vicinity of Blissfield.

How the Germans Changed Style in Steamer Bows

How the Germans have revolutionized steamer construction is shown by these contrasting photos. At the right is the Leviathan, built by the Germans prior to the war, and taken over by the United States during the war, representing the finest type of straight bow construction. At the left is the very latest, the bulbous bow of the record-breaking Europa. The speedy Bremen also has a bulbous bow.

First Photos of Prison Riot

First photo from Jefferson City, Mo., where 700 Missouri state penitentiary convicts staged a three-day mutiny as a result of dissatisfaction over their meals. Several prisoners were injured when attacked and clubbed by guards, many of whom were National Guardsmen, hastened to the scene without taking time to don their uniforms. Top, part of the mutineers marching from the main dining room; below, some of the guards who led the assault; inset, Warden Leslie Rudolph, whose handling of the situation won him the commendation of Governor Henry Caulfield.

M. S. C. TO INCREASE FARM RADIO SERVICE

Expansion of farm radio service from station WKAR, Michigan State college, will follow more favorable assignments granted the station by federal radio authorities, according to an announcement made here this week by R. J. Baldwin, director of the M. S. C. extension division.

A noon broadcast, featuring market reports, weather forecasts, and short, timely farm talks, will be continued, it is said. This program has been carried regularly on week days for several years, and is followed closely by thousands of Michigan farmers.

An early evening farm radio school will be staged early in the fall, if plans of the college authorities are carried out. This "school of the air," started originally in the winter of 1924-25, was the leading feature of WKAR programs until the last two years, during which time the station has been limited to daylight hours. A new allocation, affecting a number of stations, is expected to give the college more time on the air next year.

Other special broadcasts under discussion include a co-operative program for high school agricultural classes, and a special afternoon home-maker's hour.

When the proposed changes go into effect, WKAR expects to broadcast on a wave length of about 361 meters, with a thousand watts of power. The station is at present operating on 288 meters.

Prize Money Goes To Best Shepherd

The Michigan shepherd who places his ewe flock in the Wolverine Lamb Production Contest and then feeds and develops the winning lambs will receive $75 as first prize, according to an announcement made by the animal husbandry department at Michigan State college.

To qualify for the contest, the owner must have a flock of 20 ewes and a purebred sire must be used. The ewes may be grades of purebreds. The contest will be determined by the average weight of the lambs when 135 days old.

Entries for the contest should be made to the animal husbandry department, to county agricultural agents, or to club agents before the first ewe in the flock has lambed. The final entry date is May 1.

Inspection of the flocks entered will be made by county agricultural agents or by committees appointed by him within seven days after the last ewe has lambed. A report of the dates of birth, number and sex of the lambs must be filed in the office of the county agent.

The awards of prizes will be made by a committee representing the Michigan Purebred Sheep Breeders' association, Michigan State college, county agricultural agents, and animal husbandry specialists.

Give True Farm Value

Over-valuation of farm lands and buildings, when reporting to the census takers, may mean over-taxation of farmers, warning was issued by R. Wayne Newton, director of Taxation for the Michigan Farm Bureau.

"Census reports are confidential, and tax officials are not permitted to look at the individual returns," Mr. Newton said, adding, "however, farm value figures published by the Bureau of the Census are frequently used by federal and state officials and by many others interested in the subject of taxation, as a guide to checking assessed valuations for taxation purposes."

"Many farmers over-state the value of their farms because they have no desire to sell and would not sell unless paid a price that is considerably above the present market level. The amount such men would take for their farms has little to do with the true value. It has frequently been said that the money value of a piece of real estate is the price it would bring at a sale between a willing buyer and a willing seller. Farmers who are unwilling to sell are advised to consider what their farm would bring on the market if they did want to sell, when preparing their answers to the census question No. 26 which asks: 'Total value of this farm (land and buildings, including farm land and buildings rented from others).'"

"Copies of the farm census schedule have been sent to many farmers in all parts of the state."
 "Farmers are advised that a report is required by law from every operator of a farm and are urged to cooperate with census officials so that the census will give a true picture of present day farm conditions."

State Will Share Exhibition Cost

Fairs and exhibitions in Michigan in 1930, having department of conservation exhibits, will bear half of the expense of the department.

The conservation commission, has limited expenditures for fair exhibits for 1930 to $5,000 to meet half of the cost. The entire expense of the department's exhibits at the state fair at Detroit and the upper peninsula state fair at Escanaba will be paid by the state.

Last year the department had exhibits at 28 fairs and exhibitions. The exhibits included animals native to the state predatory animals and furs, fish, and exhibits by the various divisions of the department, designed for educational purposes. Such an exhibit has been a feature of the Marquette county fair for three years.

Requests are now being received from the various fair associations for exhibits. These applications will be considered early in the summer, and if proper schedules can be arranged, and half of the expense is paid by the fair associations, exhibits will be arranged for to the limit of the $5,000 appropriation.

Poor Dairy Cow Has Little Profit Left

The owner of a dairy cow which produces 200 pounds of butterfat a year gets only 8 per cent of the value of her product and the rest has to go to pay her feed bill, but a cow which produces 34 per cent of the sale value of her butterfat, according to figures given out by dairy specialists at Michigan State college.

These and other facts about the dairy industry will be told at a series of dairy-alfalfa meetings which will be held in Michigan counties during April and May. Alfalfa is one of the crops of which the acreage may be safely increased in Michigan at the present time.

The meetings are held at farms where the conditions are such that the audience can be shown how the better methods which are advocated by the speakers can be applied to increase farm profits. Members from the crops and the dairy departments of the college will be present at each meeting.

The counties to be visited and the dates are Gladwin, April 8, 9, 10, 11; Arenac, 15, 16, 17, 18; Benzie, 22, 23, Manistee, 24, 25; Lake, 28, 29, 30, and May 1; Montmorency, May 5, 6, 7, 8; Emmet, 13, 14, 15, and 16.

Good type dairy sire will be exhibited at the meetings in Wexford county.

State Removes Noxious Fish

The department of conservation through its officers and contracts with individuals removed 27,610 noxious fish from rivers and lakes in Michigan during the year 1929, according to a report compiled by the fish division.

A large percentage of the noxious fish were removed either by nets used by department employees or under the supervision of conservation officers.

The report shows that 11,751 carp were taken; 3,727 garfish; 495 dogfish and 10,637 miscellaneous other noxious fish.

Sparring under the supervision of the conservation officers brought a total of 1,285 noxious fish, the report indicated while use of gill nets operated by the department removed 5,682 noxious fish from the water.

More than 5,700 noxious fish were removed from the Kalamazoo river.

Black lake in Ottawa county yielded more than 12,500 fish.

In pounds the yield of carp has been estimated at approximately 115,000.

Charlotte Pupils Lease Big Orchard

A novel experiment has been undertaken by the horticultural class of the high school. The class has leased a 75-acre apple orchard from Henry Maier, Grand Ledge farmer, for one year.

Maier is to furnish the spraying equipment and the team for hauling it, according to the terms of the contract. The class must pay $1 per tree for the rental, and in addition must prune and spray the trees. All of the fruit the orchard produces this year will become the property of the students.

In order to amass sufficient funds to make the experiment possible, members of the class have been booking orders for hauling ashes from local cellars.

Mulch Paper Brings Surprising Results

Last year Alex Rasey, proprietor of the Rasey Glad Gardens used 10 rolls of mulch paper in his gardens with such surprising results that this spring he plans to cover two acres of ground with the paper and install electric lights so that motorists passing on US27 at night may be able to see the curious looking garden. The mulch paper, it is said, prevents all but the hardest weeds from getting a start. Besides that, it keeps the ground moist and prevents loss of heat at night, resulting in larger, better and earlier crops.

POULTRY

FIGHT MITES AND LICE EARLY

It seems early to talk about lice and mites. In fact, most of us have it rather thoroughly established in our thinking that these are hot weather pests—something like flies. But we really have them with us all the year, though they multiply more rapidly during the summer season.

If we wait till they become numerous enough to be noticeable each time we visit the hen house or handle a fowl, we greatly increase the labor of keeping them under control as well as allowing them to reduce the weight, vitality and production of the laying flock. Of course, if we let them attack the baby chicks for a short time it is just too bad for the chicks and our hopes for profit.

Early spring is the best time to seriously attack the mite menace. Mites are primarily a hot weather problem, though some are present at practically all times in warm poultry houses. Mites are blood sucking insects that live in cracks, crevices, manure, nests, litter and other available hiding places about the laying houses and brooders. The mite, which is by far the most common, does not live continuously on the body of the hens or chicks, but rather makes one or two visits daily to the body of the hen or chicks for the purpose of getting a meal of blood. When they become numerous enough they kill and stunt baby chicks and young stuff and even kill mature fowls through robbing their bodies of so much blood and the food the blood carries that death results. Hens that are used for hatching eggs, that leave the nests before the end of the incubation period, nearly always do it because mites have made staying longer dangerous to life itself.

An early campaign against mites, if thorough, will keep most of them in control through all or most of the summer. Thorough control in regard to young chick quarters means a real cleaning of the brooder house or coops (if reared with hens) before the chicks are put in. Scrapping them out with a hoe isn't enough. They should be thoroughly cleaned with boiling lye water. Then treatment with a creosote or coal tar product spray should be used. Both scrubbing and treatment will need repeating during the summer in addition to frequent, regular removal of the manure and litter.

Cleaning and spraying the laying house is neither a simple or easy job, but will return a high rate of pay in increased egg production and increased weight and lower death loss among the hens during the summer and fall. The house should be cleaned of all litter and manure. The manure removal should be thorough. Removing it from dropping boards and most of it from the floor isn't enough. Roosts, sills, corners, nests and the floor should be thoroughly cleaned. Scrubbing pays, but if time will not permit both scrubbing and spraying, do the spraying. Every part of the house, nests and roosts should be sprayed with a good mite killer. Sprays of commercial crude oil, coal tar sprays such as varolinum and creosote oil, do an effective job that should last all summer.

Poultry lice are more an all-the-year-around pest, though they, too, thrive best in warm weather. Unlike the mite, lice make their home on the chicks or mature fowl, and treatment to reach them while on the bird is necessary. Out of this has developed the mid-summer treatment of dipping in a sodium fluoride solution which is highly effective in ridding mature fowls of the lice and their eggs, which are deposited on the base of the feathers. But the dipping method is only satisfactory in very warm weather. Dusting with sodium fluoride powder is also effective, but the hen should be thoroughly treated, a small amount being worked in feathers beneath vent, under wings, on breast and in neck. Care should be used in dusting as this compound is irritating to human nose, throat and eyes. It should also be remembered that this product which is similar to common salt in appearance is a deadly poison when taken internally and should be handled as such.

Recently the nicotine sulphate or "Black-leaf 40" treatment, has come into use. It has been found that this compound when painted on the roosts just shortly before the fowls occupy them for the night, gives off fumes that kill the lice without injuring the fowls. This is an extremely easy way to rid the mature flock of lice. Treatment must be repeated twice to get those in the egg stage at first treatment.

The earlier method of treatment was the use of blue ointment mixed with lard or vaseline. This is still probably the most satisfactory method of treating young chicks that have become infested. A small amount on head and beneath the vent will usually end the pest. For the smallest of chicks vaseline alone is safe and quite effective.

MIXED STATIONS

A subscriber recently purchased a radio from a local salesman. He tuned in getting three stations on the same wave length. One was a minister, one a man telling the conditions of the road, and the third a lecturer on poultry. Here is what he got:

"The Old Testament tells us that baby chicks should detour one mile south of Pinckney and listen to the words of the prophet. Be careful in the selection of your eggs, and you will find good roads in Brighton City. We find in Genesis that the roads are muddy, just west of the hen house and clean straw is essential if you will save your soul. After passing through Gregory turn south to Jericho. Three wise men bought a large incubator on account of a bad detour. The baby chicks were troubled with the pip, and a large bond issue is being talked of in the Holy City. Keep the feet clean and dry, live a life of righteousness, and turn south one mile west of the schoolhouse. Much care should be used in commanding the gun to stand still, as there is a wash-out in the bridge near Hudson and the road to salvation is under repair, making it necessary for 70 degrees in the brooder house at all times. After you leave Plainfield unless you do these things, the wrath of the Lord will cause the pin feathers to fall out and detour one mile due south. Many are cuffed but few have any luck unless the gravelled road between Howell and Pinckney is mixed with the green feed. Out of 500 eggs Noah built the ark just one mile west of Pinckney. It rained 40 days and 40 nights and caused a three mile detour. Just west of the hen house many tourists from the house of David are trying the Plymouth Rocks mixed with concrete and a desire to do right."

DAIRYMEN WILL BENEFIT FROM RURAL CENSUS

The dairy industry has been given a prominent place in the farm census which is to be taken by the bureau of the census beginning April 2 and ending May 1 this year. The various questions to be asked dairymen are expected to yield basic and current data which will enable Federal and state agricultural economists to help dairymen formulate a program of future development for the industry. The phase of the census is regarded of special importance by specialists of the U. S. department of agriculture, in view of current conditions in the dairy industry.

The dairy section of the census will give information on the number of milk cows on farms and the quantity of milk produced in 1929. It will get the number of cows milked which are of beef or dual-purpose breeding; the quantity and value of milk sold; cream sold; butterfat sold; butter sold; and number of cows being milked at that time.

Among the dairy questions to be asked, will be questions as to the number yearling heifers; the number of heifers born in 1928 being kept mainly for milk cows; the number of born in 1928 being kept mainly for beef cows or beef production; number of cows and heifers born before 1928 being kept mainly for beef production; total number of cows and heifers milked during all of any part of 1929; number of cows and heifers milked, the number which is mainly beef or dual-purpose breeding; the gallons of milk produced in 1929; and pounds of butter churned in 1929. The census will collect figures also on the number and breed of registered cows, heifers and heifer calves.

THE WOOL MARKET

News of supreme importance to every farmer who figures on his wool shearings as part of his income is contained in an announcement just made by the Michigan Co-Operative Wool Marketing association, who have offices at 1048 Beaubien St. Detroit.

The Federal Farm Board has just appointed this association as its official Michigan representatives to receive fleece wool and to market same for the farmers. Through the government financial assistance offered it is possible for the association to advance from 16 to 22 cents per pound for all fleece wool delivered to designated United States government warehouse.

In these warehouses the wool will be graded after delivery and the grower will receive his money with very little delay over red tape facilities. The association also will provide wool sacks for those wool growers who request same.

The cash advance of from 16 to 22 cents per pound are arranged as follows:

Michigan Three-eighths Combing 22 cents per pound.

Michigan Halfblood Combing 22 cents per pound.

Michigan Quarter Combing 20 cents per pound.

Michigan Delaine Combing 19 cents per pound.

Threeights Clothing 21 cents per pound.

Halfblood Clothing 20 cents per pound.

Quarter Clothing 19 cents per pound.

Fine Clothing 16 cents per pound.

It is understood that the various pools throughout the country will obtain 100 million pounds of fleece this year. Of this some 64 million pounds already are under contract. Stabilizing this market is of supreme importance to every buck owner. Officers of the association say it is of advantage to Michigan sheep men to ship to the Michigan wool pool as they can see their wool graded and

ALPHEUS SMITH

Alpheus Smith, an old resident of Livingston county, died at his home at 609 N. Barnard Street in Howell, Monday morning, April 14. He had been in failing health for the last two or three years but since last summer had failed rapidly. Had he lived until May 16 he would have been seventy-four years of age.

Mr. Smith was born in Hacketts-town, New Jersey, May 16, 1856. When a small boy he moved with his parents to Michigan, where they settled on a small farm at Chilson. On March 19, 1879, he was married to Emelia Pangborn of Unadilla. They purchased what is now known as the John Rickett farm north of Chilson where they reared their family of 3 children, Clyde M. Smith of Ann Arbor, Hiram R. Smith of Howell, and Glen Smith of Lapeer, all of whom survive to mourn the loss of a kind and devoted father.

In 1903 Mr. Smith sold the Chilson farm and purchased the William McQuillan farm in Hamburg township where they lived until 1901. On April 28 of that year Mrs. Smith passed away and was laid to rest in North Hamburg cemetery. With the loss of his faithful wife and being broken down by a life of hard labor Mr. Smith purchased a house in the village of Hamburg where, after living there a few years, he was married to Mrs. Alwilda Osborne, of Green Oak. They later moved to Howell where he has since lived. Mrs. Smith died last December.

Mr. Smith was an exemplary type of citizen, always honest and of the highest integrity; he was never known to wrong any man. He lived a good life, a life of devotion to his family, kind to his neighbors, accommodating, law-abiding. In his death his children lose a dear friend and the community loses a good citizen.

The funeral services were conducted from the Schnackenberg funeral parlors on Tuesday, April 15 at two p. m. Rev. H. M. Noble officiating. The remains were laid to rest in North Hamburg cemetery.

AS EASILY CLEANED AS A PIECE OF CHINA

How often have you dismantled your kitchen stove, soaked the parts in lye, cut away grease from burners, then applied a coat of lamp black to hide rust on bare metal parts?

ELECTROCHEF changes all this. It is as easily cleaned as a china dish. Finished in gleaming white porcelain enamel and mirror-like Chromeplate, it is instantly restored to its original spotlessness by wiping with a damp cloth. And electric heat, itself, is as clean as sunlight—all of the smoke and soot are removed in the power house instead of being permitted to deposit and accumulate on your kitchen walls and curtains. ELECTROCHEF'S immaculacy is a joy to hundreds of women.

Once you have enjoyed electric cooking with its sheer cleanliness and superior flavor you will never again agree to cook with fuels. ELECTROCHEF'S principle of radiant focused heat makes cooking speed a revelation and economy a cardinal feature. Electric cooking with ELECTROCHEF costs but little—about one dollar per month per person—often less, seldom more. With ordinary care in the control of heat you may greatly lower this cost. See this remarkable stove today.

"QUEEN" MARY WILL SPEED UP CULT BUILDING

Evacuation of the flower shop, candy shop and restaurant, which have been operated in the downtown House of David hotel, the only property ever built in the business section of the city outside the colony grounds, marked the final step in the separation of the colony occasioned by the recent division of the House of David property.

The three stores in the hotel building were operated by Attorney H. T. Dewhurst. "Queen" Mary Purnell, who was allotted the hotel in her property division, posted the removal sign.

"Queen Mary said she intended to complete the hotel building operations, which were ordered to cease when state receivership proceedings were brought and prior to that were halted by the World war.

A decree, signed by Circuit Judge C. E. White wipes out all legal tangles hanging fire in colony affairs. The decree provides for the division of colony assets between the two groups headed by Mary Purnell, who has moved from the colony to her new abode on Eastland avenue, and Dewhurst. It also provides for the payment of $3,600 to Mrs. Eliza Bamford, former cult member, who sued the colony last fall for $25,000 claimed for work performed and money turned in when she was a colony member with her late husband and daughters.

The $5,000 damage suit of Paul Perrenoud, a "Queen Mary" follower, charging false arrest, was dismissed by stipulation as was the suit allowing Mary use of House of David literature, denied her some time ago.

Adrian Firm Doubles Capacity of Factory

Work has been started on an addition to the Morenci branch plant of the Parker Rustproof company, which will more than double the capacity of the factory. The new building, 42x47 feet, will be of steel and concrete and 11.5 stories high with basement. The present building, 30x29.5 feet, contains the offices, laboratory and manufacturing plant, and was erected in 1927. It is expected the new plant will be in operation in May.

STATE BANS ALL VENDING IN PARKS

All vending and peddling in Michigan's state parks will be prohibited this year. The conservation commission at its March meeting included in the state park rules and regulations a provision against peddling within any state park boundaries under any conditions.

"We have received an increasing number of complaints from park visitors and campers concerning vending and peddling in the parks," P. H. Hoffmaster, superintendent of state parks, said in commenting on the new regulations. "At every park there is at least one store where visitors and campers may obtain groceries and other necessities. These people who are trying to get away from normal city life are entitled to protection from peddlers of hot dogs, balloons and many other things. We decidedly do not want to convert the state parks into amusement parks."

To Build Detroit-Pontiac Toll Road This Spring

Early spring is scheduled to see the start of actual construction of a toll speedway 26 miles long above the rails of the Grand Trunk railroad, as part of an announced Grand Trunk $100,000,000 improvement program. A vote of the people in April will be a necessary preliminary, but little opposition to the project has been evidenced. Also a special ordinance having to do with the legal status of the road must be completed to the satisfaction of parties concerned.

The toll highway, which will extend north as far as Pontiac, is said to be the first venture of its kind ever attempted. Its unique feature, from a financing standpoint, is that no purchase of property is involved, as the entire structure will stand above the right-of-way of the railroad.

Electrification of the rail line also is called for, and for this purpose it is planned to make an initial outlay of $25,000,000, according to C. G. Bowker, general manager of the Western Grand Trunk lines.

The motor speedway will be constructed on the columns carrying the overhead wires of the electrified system. It will be 40 feet above the rails and will be equipped with ramps at strategic points. The speedway, designed particularly for commuters, will enable motorists to cover the entire distance to or from Pontiac in 30 minutes. The roadway will be surfaced with asphalt and provide for four lanes of traffic, the outer two for slow-moving vehicles.

The electrified train system will provide 40-minute service over a four-traffic line. Completion of the first unit of the speedway, which will be from Detroit river to Royal Oak, is planned for the latter part of this year, and the realization of the whole building of the electrification project will follow quickly, Mr. Bowker said.

Another item in the $100,000,000 involves a new main terminal in Detroit, a 12-story building to be located in the downtown district. Joseph A. Bower, who last year completed the building of the Ambassador bridge, which connects Detroit and Windsor, Ont., is promoting the speedway.

Land Bank Increases Loan Appraisal Fees

Announcement of a change in the appraisal fee charged by the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul on new farm loans has been received by all secretaries and treasurers of farm loan associations in Michigan.

Minimum and maximum loan fees have been established, it is explained, to wipe out the annual deficit incurred by the bank in the operations of its appraisal department. The fee to be charged by the bank will be 1/2 of 1 per cent, as in the past, but the minimum charge will be $10 and the maximum charge $50. The only difference is in the minimum and maximum fees. The change only affects loans under $2,000 and over $5,000.

$14,000 Is Willed to Kalamazoo Hospital

Bronson hospital receives $14,000 under the will of Henry S. Tolhurst, which was admitted to probate recently by Judge John L. Hollander. Tolhurst died Feb. 21, leaving an estate valued at $17,000. He left $2,000 to the First Methodist church of Kalamazoo and $500 each to his two brothers.

BLOSSOM WEEK PLANS MOVE ALONG NICELY

Plans for the eighth annual observance of Blossom Week in southwestern Michigan are rapidly being formulated. General Manager Elwyn Simons announced at a meeting of the several communities at a meeting of the several communities a few days ago that nearly 100 floats will be found in the parade this year, with twelve to fifteen bands, including the famous University of Michigan band. The International Harvester Co. has offered the use of twenty-five or thirty trucks that may be used for decorating purposes for the floats, and it is possible that provisions will be made for housing the trucks near the twin cities while they are being decorated, thus alleviating the necessity of driving them some distance before the parade and as a precaution in case of bad weather.

New features that will be incorporated in the program of the week's festivities will be a water regatta on the St. Joseph river, a big air circus, pageants and a musical festival, and a grand carnival on the night following the parade.

More interest is centered in the selection of the Blossom Queen this year than ever and it is believed that the number of candidates will be greater than ever, as assurances have been given that there will be entries from Hartford, South Haven, Dowagiac, Three Rivers, Flint, Kalamazoo, Pontiac, Grand Rapids, Oshtemo, Allegan, Ludington, Jackson, Saginaw and Battle Creek, with possibly other towns yet to be heard from, and all of the cities and towns of Berrien county, some of which have already selected their candidates. The selection of the queen will be made at the Liberty Theater in Benton Harbor on the evening of April 17th, after which the queen and her royal party will be entertained in regal style in a large number of different places.

The program as outlined at present includes the following features:

Monday and Tuesday, May 5 and 6—Air circus.
Wednesday, May 7—Queen's ball.
Thursday, May 8—Water regatta and children's parade.
Friday, May 9—Pageant at Filstrip Field.

Saturday, May 10—Blossom parade in the afternoon, to be followed by some interesting sport event later in the afternoon, and a big carnival frolic at night in the twin cities.

Sunday, May 11—Blossom Sunday, with the reading of the Blossom Ritual in all the churches of Berrien county and drives through the blossom-laden orchards.

Jackson Employers To Hire Home Labor

At a meeting of representatives of the Jackson Chamber of Commerce and the local Federation of Labor, a plan suggested by D. J. O'Connor, manager of the chamber, to relieve the unemployment situation was adopted. The plan proposes that only Jackson labor be employed by local building projects contemplated for 1930 be started as soon as possible, and that married men and home owners be given preference on work. A committee will be named to make a survey of employment to work with the proposed program.

Sink Another Well in Covert Oil Exploration

P. G. Fennell, of Covert, formerly of Butler, Pa., will drive another well in Covert township in a continued quest for oil. He has been awarded a contract by the Kirby Oil company for the drilling of a well on the company's land holdings south of the village of Covert and is moving his well drilling outfit from the Emmanuel Home camp grounds to the new location.

Equipment has been purchased for the test and the work of drilling is to be started as soon as the rig can be set up, it is stated.

Recently the Kirby company obtained a special election held in Covert, a franchise for the distribution of oil, gas, water and electricity in Covert township, an initial step to their oil exploration. The company has subdivided its extensive land holdings, and offers to lot purchasers the retention of their oil and mineral rights.

Mr. Fennell, who has had a wide experience in oil well drilling operations, is interested in the T. & R. Oil company of Watervliet. This company holds oil leases on several thousand acres of land in Berrien and Van Buren counties between this city and Covert, and last year they drilled a well on the Emmanuel Home grounds in exploration for oil. While the test was unsuccessful, there was a showing of gas that encourages the promoters to believe that oil may yet be struck in this field.

The Kirby land holdings, where this new oil exploration is to be made, is only a few miles north of where the T. & R. company well was drilled. The Blatchford company also drilled a test well last year just north of Paw Paw lake in Watervliet township, with an experience similar to that of the T. & R. company.

Hastings Hardware Merchant in Same Business 61 Years

Among the oldest active hardware merchants in Michigan is Charles G. Weissert of Hastings, who celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday anniversary recently. For 61 years he has been in the hardware business in Hastings. He started with his father, John Weissert, who settled in Hastings in 1856, and upon the latter's death, in 1882, continued with his brother, John, with whom he has been associated ever since.

In addition to his business duties Mr. Weissert has found time to serve the city in various public offices. He has been city recorder, treasurer, mayor for two terms and council member. For a number of years he also was a member of the poor commission.

Mr. Weissert has one son, Charles A. Weissert, state editor of the Kalamazoo Gazette and former state representative.

225,000 File Tax Returns

About 225,000 income tax returns representing approximately $115,000,000 in taxes were filed this year in Detroit, according to W. A. Stancil, assistant collector of internal revenue. The quarterly payments of tax, due on March 15, were expected to reach approximately $30,000,000. Recent payments of income taxes ranged from 1 cent to $6,000,000.

PLUMBING CODE IS ATTACKED AT STATE MEETING

William C. Groeniger of Columbus, O., who drafted the proposed Michigan plumbing code, defended its tenets in an address to delegates attending the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Michigan State Association of Plumbing and Heating Dealers held at Jackson.

Groeniger claimed that the code is written entirely in the interest of the people; that it will insure health and prevent insanitary conditions; that it is scientifically practical, eliminates inconsistencies, local pride and prejudice and insures the same protection to rural and suburban districts as to cities.

"The public has sometimes branded plumbing codes as unfair means to create work for plumbers and profits for master plumbers," Groeniger explained. "There are plumbers who believe that trade protection is for the benefit of plumbers only. They do not seem to realize or appreciate that plumbing legislation is for the protection of life and health and does not give special privileges."

Ionia's Welfare League Aids Many Children

Headquarters of the Ionia Welfare League has found plenty of work to do since Christmas and until further notice will be kept open daily. Mrs. Otto Taylor is in charge, and with the financial backing provided by Warden Charles Shean's Lucky Boy Minstrels many children and some adults have been provided with needed comforts.

Extends Gogebic Line

Chicago & Northwestern railroad has been authorized by the interstate commerce commission to build a short extension to its line in Gogebic county, so as to provide rail transportation for some 20,000 acres of timber land, most of which is owned by the Bonifas Lumber company.

Would you like to try this doctor's laxative free of charge?

Every family has occasional need of a laxative, but it should be a family laxative. One that can't form a habit, but can be taken as often as needed. When the breath is bad or tongue is coated. Or appetite fails. A doctor knows the right ingredients. Dr. Caldwell discovered the right mixture years ago. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin combines harmless herbs and pure senna. It starts muscular action and soon corrects constipation. Gently, but surely, it relieves a bilious, headachy, or sluggish condition. It is mild. Delicious. Effective. All druggists keep this famous prescription ready, in big bottles. Or write Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, Monticello, Ill., for a free trial bottle postpaid.

POLITICAL GOSSIP

The political pot is already beginning to simmer and activities will soon be underway. It seems to be apparent that Gov. Green will not seek a third term as governor. Neither is he inclined to enter the lists against Senator Coombs for the senatorial nomination. This leaves no outstanding candidate for these two offices. Lt. Gov. Dickinson of Charlotte, Ex Sec. of State DeLard of Detroit and Att. Gen. Brucker of Bay City are all avowed candidates for governor but are not regarded as organization men being more on the free lance order. According to the Detroit News a meeting will be held at Detroit soon to select candidates for senator and governor suitable to the organization. It is said that Ex Gov. Sleeper will be their choice for senator and Jim Davidson of Bay City may draw their endorsement for governor.

In the congressional race, Hon. Grant Hudson will encounter stiff opposition from Senator Seymour Person. This is the only contest around here where the wet and dry issue will hold first place.

Hon. Lynn Gardner up to date is unopposed for the state senatorial nomination. There have been rumors of other candidates but none other than Gardner has as yet declared himself.

In this county it is unlikely that any of the office holders seeking reelection will have opposition. This includes County Clerk, John Hagman, Prosecuting Attorney, Jay Sweeney, Treasurer, Clare Burden, Register of Deeds, Frank Bush and others. In the race for sheriff the candidates are numerous. At the present time two candidates, Walter Mowers of Putnam and Loren Bassett of Howell, seem to lead in the field. The former is said to have been gaining ground steadily and appears certain to finish among the highest in the primaries. Bassett on account of his wide acquaintance gained as county manager for the Detroit Creamery and his activities as a sports official throughout the county is certain to pull a big vote. Cronnennett, Barker, Krause, Faucett and others are said to be considering withdrawing. It is rumored that ex-sheriff Chas. Hoff is also considering entering the race.

All is quiet on the Democrat side of the fence and it is claimed they will have no county ticket this fall. Don VanWinkle, Ed Drewery and other disciples of Thomas Jefferson emphatically state they are through but there will probably be some kind of a ticket even if candidates have to be drafted.

VIKING EIGHT

Spectators at the speed trials being made by Kaye Don, English racing champion, and his Silver Bullet racer at Daytona Beach have been given an added thrill by the appearance of a coupe of standard American make speeding down the beach race course in the wake of the Silver Bullet at each speed run.

The coupe is a Viking Eight selected by Don as his personal car during his stay in this country. Each time Don starts the Silver Bullet over the needle course his chief mechanics jump into the Viking and speed after the racer so that they will be at the other end of the course shortly after Don and his racing car arrive.

The engines of the Viking and the Silver Bullet are both of the same fundamental design. The Viking is a V-type eight while the Silver Bullet is powered by two V-type 12 cylinder engines set in tandem. This V-type principle of design permits a concentration of power in a comparatively small area and, therefore, a high rate of horse power per pound of weight.

YOUR responsibilities become ours when we take charge of the service. Our knowledge and equipment are used to make all of the arrangements worthy of your approval.

Now Try ALL 'ROUND PERFORMANCE

So many owners say that one of the greatest things about Oldsmobile is its superb all 'round performance.

And these owners know. They know from long experience in driving Oldsmobile over all roads, under all conditions.

But why not check this important quality for yourself—to substantiate what owners have told you?

Get behind the wheel, and put Oldsmobile through the hardest tests. Try it on the hills. See how smoothly, eagerly, and capably it takes every grade.

Try it on the straightaway—and note the remarkable smoothness with which Oldsmobile gains and maintains its speed.

Then try Oldsmobile in congested traffic. See how comfortable it is to drive under the least comfortable of conditions.

Having tested Oldsmobile in every phase of performance, you will know why Oldsmobile owners speak of their cars with such real appreciation. And you will know that here is a car you can depend on to serve you capably and faithfully—always.
