STUDENT GAIN

An increase of 20 per cent in the total enrollment of graduate students over 1930, and graduate increases in individual departments.

It is possible that those planning to enter at the beginning of the second semester will bring the year's total up to that of 1930, states Registrar Ira M. Smith.

Although the number of students in the largest increase occurred in post-graduate studies, which registered 105 per cent more than in 1930, the majority of these men being practicing physicians who return to learn of the newer progress in the medical world. Forestry and Conservation reported a 20 per cent increase in graduate students, and 12 per cent growth to the undergraduate body as well. The Chemical Engineering graduate body increased 60 per cent, and Dentistry 25 per cent, while in the School of Business Administration, whose students are not included in Graduate School figures, there were 61 per cent more students enrolled who held a bachelor's degree than was the case in 1930.

The Pullover With Separate Blouse

Speaking of Style

By IRENE VAIL

As well as little girls are penning their annual letter to Santa Claus—please, no gadgets or dust catchers. The general tone of the letters runs: Bring me something forever, to put and ever. Do not be discouraged over the thought that she has an umbrella, or that she has a bag, or whatever it is, for in this day of grace one is supposed to have a sufficient variety of this and that to correspond with each and every costume. Not that everything is matched up—quite the contrary. But even contrasts must not conflict, and while we take our colors wild this season and are accustomed to mix company, we are careful to preserve the spirit of the ensemble and not to mix the formal and the casual.

Cookies and Small Cakes for Christmas

Christmas does not come single day but a whole week! Until after New Year there is an atmosphere of gaiety and excitement about the house. At almost any moment friends drop in. No matter at what time they come, they must be offered some of the Christmas goodies—a nibble of tender, delicious cake or cookies and a cup of tea. Then for dinner there are nearly always guests.

For a long time our favorite Christmas goodies have been crisp, sweet cookies or rich, fruity ones. No matter how many you make they will all be gone by New Year. They are so delicious on cold afternoons or long evenings when the family is gathered about the fireplace. You should fill up every available cupboard. Here are the recipes for old favorites.

To make fourths cup of butter, one-third cup of sugar, one-half cup of milk, well beaten. Add two cups of flour, three spoonfuls of baking powder, two teaspoonfuls of vanilla, one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg, then one-half cup of butter and sugar and one-half cup of citron or orange juice. Drop by the spoonful on baking sheets and bake for fifteen minutes. Substitute for flour if you wish.

This recipe is for a attractive Christmas treat. Together one cup of sugar and two-thirds cup of shortening. Add two eggs well beaten and mix well. Add one teaspoon of vanilla and three cups of flour sifted with one-fourth teaspoon salt. Mix thoroughly and chill. Roll out thin on a floured board and cut in the shapes of Christmas trees. Brush with milk and sprinkle with chopped candied cherries and chopped pistachio nuts. Bake in a moderate oven ten minutes.

Here is a similar recipe but the cookies have a distinct flavor. Cream together one cup shortening and two cups sugar. Add three beaten eggs and mix thoroughly, then add the juice and rind of one lemon. Measure and sift three cups of flour or enough to make a dough that will roll thin. Cut into fancy shapes and sprinkle with chopped nuts or colored sugar.

For a rich filled cookie cream together one-half cup butter and one-half cup brown sugar, then add one-half cup molasses, one well beaten egg and four tablespoons sour milk. Add three cups of flour sifted with one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon cloves and one-half teaspoon salt. Roll the dough thin and cut with a small round cutter. Spread half of the cookies with the following mixture: One-half cup honey, one-half cup chopped nuts, one-fourth cup shredded coconut and one teaspoon flour. Put the other cookies on top of the filled ones and crimp the edges together with a fork. Bake in a hot oven for fifteen minutes. Remember to use a small cutter for these cookies as the dough spreads a good deal in baking.

You and Your Child

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

Overdoing This Freedom There are many parents who still believe that education begins at school. Until a child is five or so, he is allowed to grow more or less wild, having his way in many things which will be denied him later on when he comes of school age.

The rigorous discipline of the schoolroom, however, does not always take effect, as many parents have discovered to their disappointment. This strong-willed child of mine has been trained for what she should do, but in the meantime, passed on. From her mother, deciding that it was better to teach Beth to be more social.

She hit upon the idea of cultivating her friendship and taking her to the park. She was, and is to this day, a very generous, selfless, bored, lonely. A mixture of paradoxes, now she expects her mother and father to expect deference from their daughter. The child of being Beth's mother would be perfectly being just parents to a dignified state is denied the same forceful personality was, never hesitating to mind freely and frankly, to cajole or to deride. Your Handwriting— and What It Tells

By JANET WINTON

Personality Duels With Dual Pens. "Dear Janet Winton: Is this a Jekyll and Hyde combination? I am one of those that can never write two lines alike, let alone two pages.—M. D."

Jekyll and Hyde Combination has been never write two lines

Lest other readers be confused. For the sake of example, let us assume then, that you are nineteen or so, and that after a life of careful upbringing which induced shyness and studious habits, you are beginning to find yourself. More and more you notice yourself affecting the freer style of writing, especially when writing to your new friends. And the style of script reflects the jolly, entertaining vein of your letters to them.

The fact that you have two handwritings, however, puzzles you. "Why the two styles?" you wonder. "Why can't I just drop one and stick to the other?"

Here's why: Change is normally a gradual, evolutionary process. Throughout the transitory period it is hard to say where the old self breaks off and the new begins. Both personalities intermingle. The action of change which goes on is a sort of process of elimination, the nature of the individual and the circumstances surrounding her life determining a final analysis, which traits and characteristics remain and which are relegated to the limbo of the subconscious, the filing cabinet for detail connected with personality development.

An interesting trait of such dual personalities is that they are rarely dual in nature to any one person of their acquaintance. To their family and old friends they continue to show the well-known, to them, side. To friends who share cultural interests or to business associates, they show that other side, independent, more creative.

Be Sure and Do Not Neglect the Forehead When Making Up Your Face

Foreheads require as careful an application of make-up as any other part of the face. Many women rouge and powder with care, and use their eye make-up and lipstick artfully, then spoil the entire effect by neglecting their foreheads. An unpowdered forehead is quite as unattractive as a shiny nose—and it is much bigger.

Among the newer cosmetics are powders especially prepared for making up foreheads and chins, which require the same treatment. The color tone is the same as the powder you use on your face, but just

Birds Are Well This Year

The past season has matured the buds of most of the plants into plump kernels. A bit of scratching about old rotted stumps or logs will unearth large and juicy grubs and other worms. The buds of the maple and poplar are swollen to a springtime plumpness.

The low price of grain induced many a farmer to leave generous "corners" standing in his fields and ground in out-of-the-way places. Quail, pheasants and other field-feeding birds are plump and in good condition, while partridge and wilder feathered folk are finding the "depression" about over.

Success in Failure

By H. M. TILLITI

LEONIDAS It was in the year 480 B. C. In the Pass of Thermopylae, Leonidas, the Spartan commander, had marshaled the few hundred Greeks who made up the force under him for defensive fighting against the Persian army of invasion that was then advancing.

In the struggle that followed, he himself was slain and the force under him had for a space succumbed to the advance of the Persian host that arrayed against him, a million strong. And he had held the pass after hope for success had died, and he and those with him had met the end that patriotism called for with a high courage that mocked defeat.

The story of the patriotism that was exhibited by Leonidas at Thermopylae spread throughout Greece, and everywhere it helped to inspire effort against the invading enemy, and the effect was usually to carry the Greek forces to victory.

So in 1914, the heroic efforts of Leonidas were claimed to have ended in failure at Thermopylae, were carried forward to glorious success. And, to this day, after more than 24 centuries, the heroic defender of the pass at Thermopylae carries forward. For the story of his splendid valor and sacrifice in his country's cause has spread to all civilized lands, and, wherever read, it is an inspiration to patriotism.

Leonidas, King of Sparta, lived in the fifth century, B. C.

Sometimes The medical student said to the well-known doctor: "And is it true, sir, that fish stimulates the brain?" "Possibly," replied the doctor. "But one thing is certain. Going fishing stimulates the imagination."

STUDENT ROOM RENT AT ANN ARBOR DROPS

Approximately 75 per cent of the men in the institution live in approved houses or in fraternities, Joseph L. Bursley, dean of students, announces.

Freshmen are required to live in approved houses, others are not. The student pays less for roomrent this year than last. A student occupying a single room may save $38 or more over last year.

A total of 791 rooming houses, were inspected by the dean's office, of which 682 were approved and 109 not approved. Last year single rooms, of which there were 1,108 averaged $4.79 per week rent, doubles $3.58 for each student. This year all rents have dropped, single Joyous Christmas Tide!

By Frank K. Glew

Ring out sweet bells of Christmas, Herald wide the newborn King! Pat weep your glorious anthem, With joyous hearts we'll sing!

Peace is chimed from every hilltop; "Peace on earth, Good Will toward men;" E'en the happy, carefree snowflakes Fall serene on home and glen.

Thank God He sent the Christ Child, Whose birthday every year We reverence so deeply, As we feel His Presence near!

God bless the weary-hearted, The lowly and the meek, And may the Christly spirit Enter lives forlorn and bleak.

Fling far your tender message, Christmas love in every bell, For the melodies you broadcast All the great glad things tell!

Dining Room Chairs

Dining room chairs with arms are more adaptable for occasional use than straight back ones. They are less formal and more comfortable for lounging, too. This is an advantage worth considering when buying dining room furniture, as all homes, even the largest, at times have more persons present than the living room's seating capacity warrants. It's nice to be able to bring in a couple of extra "livable" chairs from the dining room.

Tear Wallpaper Patches

Do you know that a patch for wallpaper should be torn, not cut? That after shape, size and the pattern to cover the spot have been considered, the paste applied, and the paper smoothed down, the sparse fibers of the frayed edge merge with the rounding wall paper and a neater job results.

LAKELAND JUNIOR

KING'S DAUGHTERS

The meeting of the Junior King's Daughter of Lakeland was held at the home of Miss Florine Parkinson of Hamburg, Saturday afternoon.

Each member brought a toy for the children in the University Hospital and also ten books which are to be put in the children's library at the hospital.

Betty Kuchar was initiated into the order. Election of officers resulted as follows:

President..... Mildred Jack Vice President..... Alice Ferguson Secretary..... Ruth Nash Treasurer..... Madge Jack

We also elected Isabelle Nash and Florine Parkinson as sick committee reporters.

Mrs. Harry Lee, our leader, is going to have a Christmas party for us at her home Saturday Dec. 26.

Betty Kuchar, Ruth Nash, and Doris Navarree had birthdays. Dainty refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held January 9, at Kathleen Dilloway's home in Hamburg.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffreys at the Pinckney Sanitarium, Tuesday, December 29, a 6 1/2 lb. son. Claude Reason and son, Kenneth, were in Detroit Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Detwyler, Mrs. Laughlin, Nyra Graves and Dorothy Dorrell of Jackson ate Christmas turkey at the home of M. T. Graves.

TAX REDUCTION AND ROAD BUILDING

Tax reduction and stimulated road building are not necessarily antipathetic.

Only a small fraction of money spent by government goes to the cause of good roads. In all cases, when that money is wisely and equitably spent, each dollar is returned to the community over and over again, in increased tourist travel and commerce, better transportation and communication for rural dwellers, easier access to markets, schools, fire departments, and social activity.

We must beware, of course, of so-called "political roads"—those arteries which are built with public funds in areas where there is no need or excuse for them. We must beware, also, of building extremely high-cost pavements where low-cost surfaced roads will give good service.

Rural communities are being provided with weatherproof, year-round roads with bituminous wearing surfaces, at a cost of less than five thousand dollars a mile.

These are being built without unduly burdening the taxpayers and without plunging communities into debt. Their construction is a testimonial to the fact that good roads need not cause excessive taxation and unreasonable cost of government.

PUBLIC INJURED BY BANK GOSSIP

National Association Declares Community Interests Demand Protection Against Idle Rumors

BOTH in their advertising and in their direct contacts with customers and others, bankers should "consciously and persistently devote more time" and thought to keeping people mindful of the fact that while the bank has many obligations toward its customers, equally it is true that the depositor also has certain obligations to the bank to enable it to properly maintain its position in the community," a recent statement of the American Bankers' Association declares.

"A bank admittedly is a semi-public institution and there is a mutuality of obligation resting upon both the banker and his customers to maintain the effective functioning of that institution that is superior to the personal interests of either," it says.

Bankers might well, consciously devote greater effort to building up the public viewpoint in their communities that due to their public obligations and burden of public interest, the banks are entitled to protection against ill-informed or malicious gossip and rumors, the statement says.

"As to banks in some states, bank slander laws afford this protection," it points out. "We recommend that this protection be availed of by definite action wherever practical both as a matter of immediate expediency and also to awaken public opinion as to the dangers of idle gossip about a community's banking institutions."

What Can Be Done

Farmers should rid themselves of any false hope of outside aid from legislation. The only recourse left for the producer on a reduced price level is to produce his goods at reduced costs, and nearly every farmer can likely put into force a few economies in production. Farmers must produce as largely as possible the materials they use, and get away from cash purchases until prices come down proportionately on the things they buy. The cheapest way in the farming business is to raise your own feed and not let the other man get your dollars.

Wise Spending

Careful and wise spending will help solve our economic problems and will be of untold benefit to the farmer. Our troubles are not caused by the spending of money, but because it was spent unwisely.
