

Home Coming Plans Are Formulated

Different Committees Are Appointed and Plans Made for a Big Celebration Here This Summer. 100 Per Cent Co-Operation Asked of All.

After a lapse of twenty-one years Pinckney is again to have an old time home coming this year which will also celebrate the 100th anniversary of Pinckney's existence. Although the town plat was not recorded until 1837, Prof. Kirtland was here on the job in 1835, so accordingly, we celebrate this year.

The last of a series of home coming was held in Pinckney in 1914. We may say the first was in 1903 and they were held from then on every two or three years until 1914. The same committee handled practically all of them except a new president was chosen each year. Those who served as presidents were George Sykes, Ed Kearney, Eugene Markey and others. The committee members were Dr. H. F. Sigler, George Teeple, W. H. Crofoot, W. W. Barnard, F. G. Jackson, J. J. Teeple. Most of these have passed on. However, they left a record behind them of a successful series of home coming. What was possible in their time is possible today and the local board of commerce is confident of staging an equally successful event this year.

A great deal depends on the ability and enthusiasm of those in charge of the celebration. Not a great deal of time remains to work out all the details and every person chosen on a committee should give 100 per cent co-operation. The work of some of the committees is not as rushing as that of others but all should be in readiness. The finance committee is the first to get busy. They will call on the businessmen and others and raise enough money to get things started. The publicity committee will also start at once. It is up to them to draw a large enough crowd to put over the home coming. Invitations will be sent to every old time resident of Pinckney and anyone having addresses of these are asked to hand them in. A lot of work is connected with this but the committees are willing to guarantee a crowd if the finance committee is successful and the weather man is kind.

Of course, some of the business places will benefit greatly but this is lost sight of in the more important idea of bringing old friends together after a long period of separation.

Numbering and Road Signs About Completed

All Streets in This Village and the Country Roads in This Vicinity Are Now Named and Signs Put Up Designating Them.

The numbering of houses and the installing of signboards on all the roads in the territory served by the Detroit Edison Company is about completed, according to reports from Herbert Silvester, District Agent of that company.

In the territory adjacent to Pinckney the numbering system will be a continuation of that in the Village. Howell Street is taken as the north-south line. The numbering system of the village being continued into the country. One thousand numbers have been assigned to each mile of road, thereby providing for any building of houses in the future. This comprehensive plan is similar to that used in the larger cities. Each farm home will have a number and the road names will be designated by signs at the crossroads.

The work was done entirely at the expense of the Detroit Edison Company. Although the designation of houses by means of number and road name will primarily be a convenience to the electric company, the individual resident will greatly benefit.

The naming of the roads and any changes in the names will be submitted to the County Road Commission for approval.

SURPRISE PARTY

Mrs. Eugene Campbell was very pleasantly surprised when she returned from church Sunday, to find about 23 relatives ready to help her celebrate her birthday. The table was very prettily set, and a large birthday cake, very elaborately decorated, formed the center piece. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Campbell and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Eisele and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Campbell and family, all of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Campbell and daughter, of Dexter; Mr. and Mrs. Ona Campbell and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Merwyn Campbell of Pinckney, Mr. Gene Campbell and the guest of honor.

LEAGUE OF CATHOLIC WOMEN SPONSOR "LITTLE MINISTER"

With Katharine Hepburn as the fiery gypsy girl, Bobbie, central figure of Sir James M. Barrie's most famous romance, "The Little Minister," comes to the screens of America as the star's proudest contribution toward her record of success.

Miss Hepburn has never had a finer role than Bobbie, nor taken part in a lovelier screen romance than that with Gavin, the shy little dominie of the tiny Scotch town of Thrum's immortalized by Barrie.

RKO-Radio has poured out its richest artistic and technical talents to make "The Little Minister" a high spot in film history. The able and popular John Beal is seen as the little minister himself, and others in the carefully chosen cast are Alan Dicks, Frank Conway, Donald Crisp, Donald Denny, Basil Morrison, Dorothy Stickney and Andy Clyde.

"The Little Minister" not only is one of the most absorbing love stories ever filmed, but is filled with the action, color and humor of the hamlet of Thrum, where the tale is laid. Katharine Hepburn, "The Little Minister," Sir James M. Barrie. These three, with all the outstanding talents around them, spell one of the most beautiful and thrilling romances the talkies have yet created.

Democrat State Convention Held

Democrats At State Convention Name Ticket For Spring Election. Only Dispute Coming Up Is Over State Chairman

The Democratic state convention was held at Detroit, Cass Tech, high school auditorium last week. The following from Livingston County were present as delegates: Alfred E. Robb, chairman, Martin Lavan, V. L. Robb, Don VanWinkle, Albert J. Mrs. Mae Barron, Mrs. Walter Francis Barron, Wm. Dillworth, Lee Lavey and P. W. Curlett. Every county in the state was represented. Not much difficulty was experienced in nominating the state ticket. Eugene McDonald and Wm. N. Abbott for supreme court, Ed Shields and Charles Nowack for regents of the University of Michigan, Paul Vocher for board of public instruction, Wm. Porter for state board of education, all being nominated by acclamation. For member of the state board of education which looks after the Michigan State College, there were four candidates, George Holling, Henry Grier of Traverse City, Wm. Cabell, chicken hatchery man of Zeeland, Charles Smith, dairyman of Mt. Pleasant and Burr Lincoln, former pure food commissioner of Harbor Beach. Holling was nominated by his daughter-in-law, cherry queen of 1931, won on the first ballot when Wayne county's 230 votes were thrown to him. Wayne county also assured Clarence Smith of the other nomination when their vote went to him.

A fight was looked for in the contest for state chairman with Elmer O'Hara of Detroit, Burnett Abbott of Saginaw and Thomas McAllister, all candidates. A compromise was offered with the other two withdrawing in favor of McAllister. Wayne county refused to accept this and O'Hara was nominated by acclamation. Abbott was nominated against him but refused to run.

Optimists Address Farmers Week Crowd

Leaders in Agriculture Point to Definite Evidence of National Recovery.

A definite note of optimism pervaded the meetings at Farmer's Week, where great agricultural leaders talked to the largest group of rural people which assembles in America each year.

Chester C. Davis, administrator, AAA, proved to the audience that better days in agriculture are immediately followed by a speeding up of factory wheels and by an increase in the contents of pay envelopes.

Mr. Davis said, "I base this statement on definite statistical information. Figures taken from waybills on four of the most important railroad systems in the Southeast show that actual shipment of industrial and manufactured commodities from Michigan to 10 agricultural states of the Southeast have been increased by a fraction over 45 percent since the nation's recovery program got underway. These pertain only to carlot shipments, which are more than 95 percent of the total shipments by weight."

"I believe you will be interested to know what effect these improved conditions in the Southeast have on some of the cities of Michigan. Shipments of automobiles from Lansing, in the period from July 1, 1933 to June 30, 1934, increased 301 per cent over the shipments for the preceding year. Furniture shipments from Grand Rapids increased 25 per cent. Detroit shipment of automobiles increased 138 per cent in the same period."

Administrator Davis also pointed out the direct benefits of the AAA program to Michigan farmers. Payments on wheat contracts brought $720,485 to Michigan contract signers for 1933. Benefit payments on the 1934 corn-hog contracts in Michigan will be $3,500,000. Mr. Davis explained the benefits which the Michigan best producers will obtain from the adjustment program, and told of the efforts of the AAA to aid Michigan milk producers and the growers of sour cherries.

A CORRECTED STATEMENT

Last week in our statement relating to the seventh and final dividend of the Pinckney State Bank we stated that at the time of the closing of the bank in April, 1932, the institution had liabilities of $173,000 and assets of $120,000. According to the last financial statement when the bank closed, the assets were $214,000.

Our figures were taken from a circular sent out by Charles Monroe, receiver of the bank, to each depositor and published in the Dispatch on May 18, 1932 on the date of the depositor's meeting. In this statement the value of the bonds were cut from $126,236 to $41,605. This is about the difference in the two asset totals.

The following is the complete financial statement sent out to the depositors by Mr. Monroe shortly after he was appointed receiver:

Assets
Cash on hand	$ 949.88
Due from banks	6347.32

Current Comment

For many years prominent and worthy people have urged that state and national government positions be removed from politics and persons to fill them be selected by civil service. Notwithstanding years of agitation, this system of filling public appointments is as far off as ever. When one party goes out of office, the party succeeding proceeds to clean house. That is apparently what is happening in Michigan if one judges by the statements of two recent appointees of Governor Fitzgerald. John O'Hara, named auditor general, stated that he was a great believer in the spoils system and believed that the victors belonged the spoils. This is taken to indicate that he would turn out all of John Stack's employees. Warden Shean, when he took over the Jackson prison job, announced that he would replace 150 employees of the prison. This is the spoils system in its worst. Apparently no effort at all is given to finding out whether the new appointees did their work satisfactorily. We understand that not only Democrats are being turned aside but also Republicans who have done during the Democratic administration.

We are beginning to wonder at the great number of liquor advertisements appearing in the papers. Each day sees some three or four new brands of whisky are launched on the market. According to these advertisements, all have been manufactured for 70 years or more. This is a great contrast to the old days when the old time saloon keeper sold down different brands of whisky, all drawn from the same barrel.

The defeat of the prohibition proposal is included as a definite defeat for President Roosevelt, but is not a defeat for President of the United States, Mr. Taft down to road with him. He favored the cause of the United States in the world court. Also the greatest defeat of a thousand of years ago; Charles E. Hughes, John D. Moore and Elihu Root. Nevertheless, all attempts to make this country a member of it have failed. One such Hiram Johnson of California, a leader of the movement against us, do not believe in efforts along such the proposal. Deep down in the heart of many citizens is a definite aversion to European intrigue and unwillingness to be connected with it. Hence the failure of six successive presidents to gain approval for the entry of this country into the league.

Governor Fitzgerald's hope for adjournment of the legislature in 90 days is apparently doomed to disappointment. With 30 days of the present session passed by, only a single bill has been enacted, one making six months' auto license permanent for that length of time each year. There are a number of extremely controversial subjects to come up, namely the abolishing of the one mill property tax for the University of Michigan and Michigan State colleges, cutting the size of the membership of the house of representatives and senate in half and closing two state normal colleges. These issues will be bitterly fought as will a number of others and the prospect is that the session will be prolonged and drawn out.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Lanny visits her and Nance persuades her to smuggle out a letter, which is confided to Nance's attorney, Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment. From one of the men in the boat on which the girl escaped McNamara learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin.

Flynn and Angellotti needed no second invitation. They searched the house thoroughly and returned to the little drawing room to finish their drinks.

"You've taken her away," Flynn charged. "Where did you take her?"

"If you're such good detectives, go find her," Lanny was getting her courage back again. "She did come here, but I wasn't fool enough to receive her. She came in a car with two men and she did faint in my hallway and lie there for a little while. Of course she expected—why, I can't imagine—that I'd hide her and nurse her. But she's neither a friend nor a relative of mine; she met me once in Doctor Burt's office where I am employed and took a liking to me—in her funny way. She's a psycho-neurotic personality. She wrote me, asking me to call upon her, and I did—like a fool—because I felt sorry for her. She should be in a sanitarium, not a jail."

"Who brought her to Doctor Burt's office?"

"Chief McNamara." "Messrs. Flynn and Angellotti sat up. They glanced slowly at each other. "The old man's been up to his old tricks again," said Flynn. "What became of Nance Belden after you refused to receive her?"

"She left in the automobile," Lanny was careful not to state which automobile or whose.

"You're an accessory to her escape. It was your duty, as a citizen, to hold her here, telephone police headquarters and have her taken down to the emergency hospital for treatment. You can go to the pen for this."

"Get out of my house," Lanny commanded fiercely.

"Sure, but you come with us," Thus Angellotti.

"You can't arrest me without a warrant." "I said before, you ain't such a good lawyer. We can always pick up anybody that carries a gun without a permit. Into your hat and coat, Miss Lanning, and come with us."

"I'll telephone my lawyer and then go with you," said Lanny with dignity.

"Nothing doing," Flynn declared firmly.

"You two dare lay hands on me and I'll have you both broke, understand. Be careful. Call up Chief McNamara before you get fresh with me. The telephone is in the kitchen."

Flynn went into the kitchen and called up Dan McNamara. He was much subdued upon his return, and Lanny smiled. "We'll get you yet," he growled. "You must have a drag with the chief. He's pulled us off the case. Good night."

When they had gone, Lanny put out the hall light and watched them from behind the door curtain. They crossed the street to their car, climbed in and settled down for an all-night vigil—at least so Lanny decided.

So she dragged the hall runner into the kitchen, scrubbed the bloody spot thoroughly and dried it over the gas stove, reviling herself the while.

To the surprise of the machine gunner, Chief Dan McNamara did not ask him a single personal question—not even his name. Nor did he question him regarding his wounded friend. He and the chief partook of a breakfast which the Tommy man prepared, and discussed marksmanship, wounds, battles and sudden death. As the chief was leaving, he gave the machine gunner a list of tradesmen who supplied his house, and told him to telephone his orders; when delivery was made, they were to be left on a table in the basement.

"And don't you answer the telephone and don't show yourself outside or near the front windows," he warned. The fellow nodded. "By the way, Chief, what's going to become of that speed boat? It belongs to Nance. She bought it for forty-five hundred dollars."

McNamara sat down and looked his amazement. "She paid forty-five hundred dollars for that boat—and yet she was doing time for pinching silk stockings? I don't like to ask you any questions you might be embarrassed to answer, boy, but today will be a total loss to me unless I find out where she keeps her bank roll."

"That's Nance's business and I'll not discuss it. She sent the check out in the letter outlining her plan of escape."

"Who received the letter?"

"A friend who showed it to us—and we decided to help Nance out. We both owed her a debt we couldn't see no other way of payin'."

"But didn't you figure out the risks?"

"Sure—an' discounted 'em. Machine-gun fire ain't no new thing to us. We figured them guards wasn't top-notch machine gunners anyhow—that is, at long ranges. They never expect to have to do anything but close-range work; they know how to handle their guns, but they don't have their regular periods of target practice on the range, like a soldier does. In our boat, headed straight away from the fire at forty-five miles an hour, it would take an expert to get on us. An' they wouldn't know for sure whether we were accomplices or not until Nance reached the boat and we started pullin' her in; then, of course, they'd let us have it. But their first bursts on the boat were just as liable to be overs and shorts and we'd have the girl aboard before they could correct."

"There were eight other boats in the cove. Six of 'em was in our pay an' they was strung along in a line, so close together that as we run down the line o' them the guards would hold their fire for fear o' riddlin' innocent parties."

"An' we had another advantage. That speed boat throws a wide white bow wave, an' the water for fifty feet behind her and twenty feet on each side is a smother of foam when she's doing her stuff—bullets couldn't throw up any water that could be seen from a distance in the blz spray. When you're machine gunnin' a fast movin' target, you got to see where your shots are droppin' if you're goin' to correct your range fast an' accurately. Then we had another advantage. The guards are in a watch tower on a hill or a high wall an' the early ranges they'd be firin' down hill. Even the work of an expert gunner, firin' at a down angle, goes off considerable. The cockpit was lined with steel, so after the boy-friend got Nance aboard, they flopped and were safe. The only trouble was that the edge of one burst got Gates before he could flop. The front cockpit was steel lined, too."

The man grinned sheepishly. "I wouldn't take that chance again, Chief. Those gunners were better than we figured them."

"You're both men after my own heart. Well, take good care of your friends. I've got to be on the job till midnight tonight."

"How long you goin' to keep us here?"

"You can bet your sweet life it won't be very long. You're too dangerous to me."

In his official car, driven by a policeman chauffeur, McNamara motored down to central station, where he immediately sent upstairs for Nance Belden's record and photographs and proceeded to San Quentin.

"Did that Belden girl who escaped yesterday leave anything in her cell? Letters, photographs?" he asked the warden.

"I've been in such a stew over her escape I haven't thought of investigating that angle," the warden confessed.

Ten minutes later he was in the cell, carefully looking over the clothing Nance Belden had left behind her. On a slip he found a small, cloth-covered metal bag, such as dry cleaners clamp on garments to identify them. This tag bore the initials "N. B." Inside and just below the collar of a worn tailored suit he found the silk tag which tailors sew into the garments they manufacture. This tag carried the name of "I. Abrahams, Ladies' Tailor, 314 San Fernando avenue, San Jose."

He snipped this tag out of the coat and rummaged through a suitcase under the bed. It contained a deck of playing cards, some clothing which yielded no clues and a blank check of the Security Trust company, of San Jose.

"Nothing of interest in the girl's abandoned effects," he reported to the warden. "By the way, I want to have a chin-chin with one of your prisoners—Benny Beetle, Number 41,322."

"Will you do me a favor, Benny?" the chief asked him when he came in.

"Only one, Dan? I owe you three."

"We'll forget the other two and collect on one. Do you know the good conduct prisoner who works in the identification bureau?"

The Beetle nodded.

"Know anybody whose time is up shortly?"

"My cell-mate."

"If he could bring me word that the photographs, fingerprints and Bertillon measurements of Nance Belden—remember that name?—have mysteriously disappeared, I'd be inclined to be his friend if he got into a jam later on and it wasn't too serious."

"I'll do what I can for you, Chief. I'll ask Bender. He's assistant to the file clerk."

"See him in the mess-hall at noon. And see somebody in the prison print shop. They're probably running off placards to send to all the postmasters in the state. That's where they advertise for escaped prisoners—in post office lobbies. Can't let those placards with the half-tone photos and Bertillon measurements get out, you know. Good-by, Benny and thanks a lot."

From San Quentin Dan McNamara motored down to San Jose and called upon I. Abrahams, ladies' tailor.

"Mr. Abrahams, have you ever made a tailored suit for a girl with a nose that something has smashed flat in the middle?"

"Sure I have," Abrahams replied.

"You mean Miss—Penelope Gatlin, don't you?"

Abrahams looked in his card index cabinet, then opened a large book in which he kept his customers' measurements recorded, together with a sample of the cloth from which each order has been cut. Dan McNamara unhesitatingly placed his finger on one of these samples. "That was the cloth."

"Sure, that was the suit I made for Miss Gatlin two years ago."

"Did Miss Gatlin live in this city? If so, I'd like to have her address."

Ten minutes later, McNamara was pressing the bell at the door of the house in South Mariposa street.

"Does Miss Gatlin live here?" he queried.

"Not any more. She used to live here with her mother, but she disappeared about two years ago, and her mother sold this house to the lady I work for."

"Where is Mrs. Gatlin now?"

"We don't know."

"Thank you," and McNamara directed his driver to go to the Security Trust company, where he sent his card in to the president. He was received promptly.

CHAPTER VI

"Do you happen to have an account in the name of Penelope Gatlin?" Chief McNamara asked the banker.

"Both a trust account and a checking account, Chief. We had her father's account for years before he was unfortunately killed in an automobile accident some eight years ago. We had the account of his divorced wife for quite a while, too, but she has closed that."

"Do you know where she lives at present?"

"I do not." He was interested. "But I remember her quite well—a very beautiful woman. Her first husband was a splendid chap—retail shoe dealer in this city, and very prosperous. He and his wife had a row and she divorced him and got the child. Gatlin was permitted by the court to have the child on two Sunday afternoons a month, and one day he took her to a ball game and they sat in the bleachers. A long hard ball flew into the bleachers and flattened the little girl's nose; Gatlin rushed the unconscious child to a hospital and his ex-wife came and took her home before anything but emergency treatment could be given. Gatlin suspected she was going to try to cure that ruined nose by prayer—so he kidnapped the child, was caught, arrested, and did sixty days in the county jail."

"While he was in jail Mrs. Gatlin fled to Europe with the little girl, and Gatlin was desolated. Subsequently Gatlin sold out his business, made most of his estate liquid and established a trust with us in favor of himself and his daughter. He had made a settlement with Mrs. Gatlin."

"When his wife fled to Europe with the child, Gatlin ceased to deposit the monthly check to her credit, in the belief that she'd write to know why. She didn't, but in some other manner he located her, and started for Europe with the intention of stealing the little girl from her. On the way to the station, an automobile hit the taxi he was in and Gatlin was killed."

"Did he leave a will?"

"He did. His daughter was his sole beneficiary. We were the executors and probated it. There was the ten thousand dollar letter of credit he had purchased just before starting on his fatal trip, and half a dozen pieces of city realty, which has since increased enormously in value. We advertised for the heir but received no answer, so the estate was closed and we handle it now as trustee."

"How do you know Mrs. Gatlin has become Mrs. Merton?"

The Left-Handed Child

Many scientists feel that forcing a left-handed child to use its right hand for writing and other purposes will cause him to be slow-minded and irritated and may cause such nervous disorders as stuttering.

Give Thought to Abnormal Child

Neglecting and Spoiling Are Both Extremes to Be Avoided.

Depending on what kind of parents they have, handicapped children are classified into three groups by Dr. John Kruhah, author of "The Parent and the Handicapped Child," in Hygeia Magazine. The crippled child may be neglected, or he may be spoiled, or he may be treated sensibly and correctly.

The parents of the neglected child will feel outraged that such a thing as a handicapped child has been wished on them. They are liable to worry a bit and then they shut the child out of their lives and emotions as far as possible and feel no responsibility for his preparation for life.

The second set of parents make pity, of themselves and of the child, the biggest stumbling block in the way of educating the child. If the parent pities the child, the child will pity himself instead of making the best of his condition. The child is allowed to become spoiled, irritable, exacting, wanting everything his own way and doing nothing for himself.

There is the third set of parents who are quick to realize that they have a problem on their hands, and they set about learning how best to solve it. The child must be taught first that he is to behave as other children do as far as he is able, taking into consideration his handicap.

The child can be taught independence if the parent finds out what the child can do for himself and what he cannot do, and then does only what is necessary. Children like to do things for themselves and it is one way they learn not only to do things, but to be independent. This also applies to teaching the child to make decisions for himself. Children who are never allowed to decide things for themselves grow up into men and women who have a hard time, and no one needs self-confidence and independence more than the handicapped person.

Idleness is bad, and makes children unhappy. The handicapped child should be kept occupied with games and hobbies in which he is interested, but there should be a careful steering between overexertion and underexertion. All physically handicapped children need extra rest, which should be a part of the daily routine. Too much exercise is worse than none.

Do Not Cook Cheese

"Cheese should not be cooked," Doris W. McCray says in Hygeia Magazine. In discussing the acceptance of cheese by the American Medical association's committee on foods, "It may be melted in a sauce or may be added grated, after the food is removed from the fire. Too high temperature or too long cooking causes the fat to melt and drop out of cheese, leaving the toughened mass of protein, which is stringy and rubbery."

Doctors Know!

...and they use liquid laxatives

You'd use a liquid, too, if you knew how much better it makes you feel. A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Just ask your own doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help—and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without aid.

People who have experienced this comfort, never return to any form of help that can't be regulated! The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit. It relieves a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset.

To relieve your occasional upsets safely and comfortably, try Syrup Pepsin. The druggist has it.

TRY THIS prescription FOR GOOD LIGHTING IN YOUR HOME

There are no substitutes for the services of an eyesight specialist, but proper lighting helps to protect eyes, good and bad, young and old. It is not always easy to tell good lighting. You may think your lighting is adequate when it is really far from satisfactory. Your eyes will not always tell you . . . they will strain to read newspaper or a printed page even under poor light, trying to adjust themselves to conditions. And very often, a dark shade on a floor or table lamp may absorb much of the light and render the lamp ineffective. Q. However, there is an aid to better lighting that will help you. The Lighting Tape Measure (shown above) is a simple, sure device for telling what size bulbs to use in your reading, writing, sewing and studying lamps. The Lighting Recipe Chart also makes it easy to prescribe good lighting. This evening, go through every room of your home and make sure that the lighting is adequate for comfortable, easy seeing. It will pay you to attend to this important matter now.

STATE COMMITTEE ON ADULT EDUCATION FORMED

At the request of the Michigan Council on Adult Education and the State Emergency Relief Administration, Dr. Paul F. Vothker, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has appointed a State Advisory Committee on Adult Education. The committee members are: Dr. J. Heathcote, High School Principal, Kalamazoo; Orin Kays, Educational Director, State Emergency Relief Administration; Jessie McLean, Central State Teachers College; Try Narveson, Director People's University, Lansing; Roxana Steele, Western State Teachers College; Dr. Elmer White, Merrill-Palmer School, Detroit; Mrs. Emma Wilson, State Board of Education; and Dr. David D. Henry, Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction.

It will be the function of the State Committee to contribute to a permanent state program for adult education by making suggestions for correlation and coordination of present unrelated activities, by crystallizing standards and principles involved in a proper evaluation of effective programs, by stimulating research and surveys in the field of adult education, and by offering counsel, guidance, and cooperation to individual groups that may desire help.

At its first meeting in Lansing on January 25, plans were outlined for the immediate preparation of materials which may be of assistance to workers in adult education.

SCHOOL BOARD ASSOCIATION APPROVE ACT CHANGES

At a meeting of representatives of Boards of Education, the proposed changes in the Thatcher-Sias Act adopted by the Michigan Educational Planning Commission, the Michigan Education Association, and other groups, were approved.

The contemplated changes raise the total amount to be distributed from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000. To provide an adequate distribution of this sum, it is proposed that the amount going to each pupil be increased from $40 to $48 in the elementary school and the high school amount remain at $65 for each pupil.

The proposed modifications allow larger amounts to rural districts in excess of the former allowances from $900 for a school of 12 pupils, to a total of 10 moose captured.

$750, and providing for $60 allowance for tuition. In township school districts additional allowances are provided for sub-district schools and transportation. The new proposal would require that the local districts levy two mills in place of three mills as now provided in the Act.

Authorities working on the bill promise that it will be ready for presentation to the Legislature next week.

11 MOOSE CAUGHT

BY TRAPPERS

The moose trapping experiments of the state conservation department on Isle Royale have prospered the last two weeks, according to radio messages from the island station received by O. B. Slouma, radio engineer of the department here.

Paul Hickie, in charge of the trapping operations, reports a total of 11 moose captured, of which 7 are now being held in the corral at the headquarters on Chippewa harbor. Hickie's report on the trapping operations is as follows: "The first bull was captured died after being held captive 18 days. Death was due to gastroenteritis of some sort. No other pathogenic conditions were found. More complete autopsy later. He was of a very nervous disposition which may have had something to do with his death. He was quite active Sunday, Jan. 13; down Monday morning and dead at noon.

Build New Corral

"We found it necessary to construct another corral. One end of this was equipped with a drop gate so it can be used as a trap. This device is simple, but believe it will prove satisfactory."

"We now have more moose than before. A cow and a calf were caught on the eighteenth, a cow and calf on the twentieth, a cow on the twenty-first, and a calf on the twenty-second. The first calf escaped the same day it was captured when we tried to capture its mother which stayed around the corral in which the calf was held, and another cow walked out of our new corral when the trigger of the drop gate caught accidentally and the gate failed to drop, so we have in captivity a bull, two calves and three cows. Two cows and one calf have escaped and one bull has died, making a total of 10 moose captured."

and P. S. We trapped another moose and built yesterday."

There also reports increasingly cold weather, with minimum temperatures of 21 degrees below zero and heavy falls of snow. Conditions are becoming hard for the moose, he says, and it is evident from his terse report that the animals are rapidly approaching the most critical period of the winter, with a marked shortage of food and grave likelihood of heavy losses by starvation.

Michigan State College

A varied program of instruction and entertainment was afforded women visitors to the homemaker section meetings during Farmer's Week, January 25 to February 1, at Michigan State College.

The government of the United States was defended by Miss Grace Fingersh, a labor home economist for the federal department of agriculture, at the annual homemaker's banquet held Tuesday evening, January 29. She believes that the "present generation has forgotten the fine ideals upon which the United States was founded and has become too materialistic and too 'dollar-minded', but with all its faults, there is no other form of government in the world which would satisfy the American people, because they demand freedom of choice as far as possible."

Mr. Ruth O'Brien, chief of the division of textiles and clothing, federal bureau of home economics, discussed good shopping practices at the capacity meetings of women on Wednesday and Thursday mornings. Other speakers on the program included Dr. Abby Marlett, chairman of courses in home economics, University of Wisconsin, and Miss Lella McGuire, director of nutrition service, state emergency relief commission.

A series of demonstrations in child care and training, clothing, home management, food preparation, and posture were given by instructors of the home economics department. The visitors were also conducted through the home economics home practice houses, in which the students of the department are given the opportunity to put the principles of good home management into practice.

YOU "GO PLACES" . . . WITH A TELEPHONE

The convenient way to arrange parties and other good times today is by telephone. It's easier . . . quicker . . . and more satisfactory, because answers can be had and plans completed without delay. Those who can be called easily are included in such good times more often than those who have no telephones.

A telephone offers more than social advantages, however. It enables one to order supplies and "run" errands without leaving the house. Business associates can call "after hours." And, when emergencies occur, aid can be summoned instantly by telephone.

The cost of having a telephone in your home . . . only a few cents a day . . . probably is but little more than the amount the average family spends in using public pay telephones. For complete information about telephone service, call, write or visit the Telephone Business Office.

COMMUNICATION

Dexter, Mich., Feb. 1, 1935

Editor, Dispatch:

The death notice in the Detroit Free Press of January 29 should arouse in the minds of your readers many memories of one of Pinckney's noted characters, Delos Chappel, uncle of Henry Chappel, whose widow's death appeared in the above mentioned paper.

I am quite sure that some of your present residents, say Michael Lavey or George Sigler, could furnish the Dispatch with stories, especially about the old time noted figure, a real fixture in the life of his community.

His brother, Fred, with a large family of girls and boys was my father's neighbors, joining farms. According to me saw a great deal of Delos and called him "Uncle Los" with our neighbors children. Besides he did a great deal of carpenter work for my father.

A "real fellow" in his own right he was certainly with a kind gift of natural wit, often exhibited at his own expense, with no learning whatever, from books, yet he had a flair for high words and no use for a 10c word where he could work in a 20 shilling word.

And could he tell us about Hank and Holly, his niece, as he called them? And when he showed up stepping high under a silk stove pipe hat, we would be apt to suppose he had been lately making them a visit.

Delos was from the east so he spoke his Uncle Harley's name, sounding as above.

Pennsylvania is mentioned as Henry Chappel's early home but Fred Chappel was said to be from Cherry Valley. At any rate the place that bore them should remember them for they had a distinction all their own.

Individual Gold Mining Offers Poor Prospects

The rush to the abandoned gold mines and placer workings of the West has been one of the tragedies of the present unemployment situation and thousands of inexperienced individuals, lured on by rumored and exaggerated reports of wealth attained in gold mining, have gone into the hills seeking gold and finding only disappointment.

Experienced miners, thrown out of work in the non-precious metal mines, have in some instances gone to work on their own, but these individuals have sought abandoned mines or have gone into the hills with pick and shovel to prospect. These men know what they are about and have some chance of success. They work in abandoned mines with the consent of the owners on a royalty or share and share basis.

The bureau of mines, wishing to remove as much of the false hope of the prospective miner as possible, has issued bulletins giving information on the subject of placer mining and pointing out the difficulties to be encountered. Ways of making a living by a combination of skill and hard work are outlined but the hopes of an Eldorado are painted in their true colors.

Lace, an Ideal Choice for the Matron

By CHERRIE NICHOLAS

YES, the fashions paraded in style shows and pictured in newspapers and magazines are attractive enough, but they are only for slim and svelte young creatures, why don't they ever consider the needs of women who have reached forty and plus? It's a complaint, and only too often a just one, which those older are continually voicing.

Just to prove to mothers and matrons that they are not left out in the scheme of things, look what's here in the picture—two of the loveliest flatteringly lace gowns imaginable, for women of stately grace be they young or not so young. In spite of all the frenzied excitement over sumptuous gowns for the budding debutante, when it comes to beautiful appearance, smoothly groomed self-confident and slim-of-silhouette, daughters better look to their laurels when it comes to competing with mothers and matrons in the art of dress these days.

The fact that lace is scheduled to play so important a part in fashions coming and here, is a good omen for matrons who appreciate the magic which flattering apparel yields in erasing the years, and as every woman knows, there is nothing more flattering, more exquisitely feminizing than beautiful lace. The stately matron to the left in the picture is wearing a lace gown of high distinction. It is particularly ideal for the woman who has a limited wardrobe, for it is a rich black lace, which will give grand service the year round, winter and summer. With an eye to being practical, the designer has created a short matching jacket, making the gown as happily apropos for informal dining as for formal dancing.

The other gracious lace gown which is here pictured is charmingly tuned to a very youthful matron's dress-up needs. Bands of green moire at the back enliven it. This lovely dress is a Lucille Paray model.

Lace is also being worked into chignon dresses very cleverly, the lace and the chignon going fifty-fifty. A very winsome gown has a deep flounce of the lace with the same lace intricately set into the bodice and sleeves.

There are legions of novelty laces being shown in the advance displays. Most interesting are the laces which have cellophane and metal accents. Beaded laces and embroidered laces of every imaginable type are also among the showings.

Interesting news about laces includes the shirtwaist dresses which are being fashioned for resort wear and which will be good for summer wear later on. Midseason afternoon frocks in dark or bright crepes or light woolsens are also trimmed with lace dyed a perfect match.

Tailored lace is also being smartly featured for afternoon wear. The laces are of a somewhat sturdy character and the ensemble idea is carried out in that there is always an accompanying jacket.

SMART SPORTWEAR

By CHERRIE NICHOLAS

For fun and right smart jauntiness, look to the leather hip-length jacket. It is easy to slip into, comfy, free with action back, and inside it has a Johnny collar to keep out wintry blasts. The Scotch plaid skirt has as its predominant color, the same color of the jacket, as do the calfskin kiltie tongues that are excellent for walking. The beret adds yet another note of jauntiness.

A New Velvet

A new velvet with a pile of shiny cellophane on a silk back is recommended for making accessories, such as hats, bags, capes and evening jackets.

FASHIONS INSPIRED BY PEASANT THEMES

Peasant themes, with their lovely colorfulness and freshness, are inspiring the season's fashions. In virtually every branch of apparel there are innumerable details that bear the unmistakable imprint of peasant inspiration.

Materials, with the new fringed edges in rustic fabrics, the peasant print cottons in sports frocks, and the combinations of gay colors, like red and green, purple and pink, are distinct changes from the modern trends.

Bloused bodices and gathered skirts, belts embroidered in peasant colors and motifs, raffia, cord-tied details and heavy linen and cotton laces in accessories further establish the pre-eminence of this influence.

Trains Are Short for the Evening, Gowns Are Slit

Most likely your new evening frock will have a slit skirt to show an alluring few inches of silk-clad leg, but if it has a train, the train will be short. And it is quite likely that it may have a tunic and it may be trimmed with fur. All these points mark a lovely gown which is of dull rose taffeta with slanting shoulder straps of brown kolinsky that continue down the back to the waist. Delightful for the more mature woman is a tunic dress of plum-colored Chantilly type lace with a long slim tunic and a trained skirt. There is a sash of plum-colored satin. Another tunic dress has a tunic that is pointed at the back to form an overtrim. It is of red sequins over a dull red crepe skirt.

Patou Uses Moderate Slit

in His New Dress Designs
Patou has surpassed himself with the simplicity and elegance of his "little season" collection. He probably never before has designed such completely lovely things.

The lines which were felt to be a bit over-severe in his August collection have been modified into the most graceful of curves and angles, and the slits have become shorter for daytime and smartly moderate for evening.

DOLLAR OUT OF PLACE IN HOME

Unwise to Put Cash Value on Natural Acts.

At home in the market place, the dollar sign is out of place in the home. With the editorial aid of The Parents' Magazine, Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg warns parents against this intrusion of market-place calculations and stresses the importance of the home maintaining its own integrity.

In the opinion of this director of the Child Study Association of America, money will interfere with family relationships if we don't watch out.

"The home is a living unit in which all members must participate in terms of regard for persons, of sharing responsibilities, of contributing thought and effort," says Mrs. Gruenberg, adding, "Money has come to be necessary in the relations between the family and the outside world, but not between one individual and another inside the home."

"Gradually many families have introduced businesslike arrangements in their home dealings. So they have displaced, with buying and selling, the older relationships of giving according to one's ability and taking according to one's needs."

In other words, when you tip Bobby for going to the store for a dozen eggs and give Betty a dime for playing with the baby, you pay in cash for what should normally be incidental acts of kindly consideration or affectionate helpfulness. By the same sort of dealing you put a cash value on disobedience by docking Bill for going to the ball game instead of coming straight home from school. Bill is nobody's fool. He figures out that he can afford this price for pleasure.

One of these days you will awake to the realization that your children are not willing to do something for nothing; you will have the uncomfortable feeling that the situation is wrong as a whole. The trouble will be that your youngsters are taking the dollar mark as a unit on the yardstick with which they measure all values. When that day comes, it is to be hoped it will not be too late to undo the damage.

"Money is neither the root of all evil nor the source of all good," emphatically declares Mrs. Gruenberg. "Everywhere the symbol of power and security though it is, at best it furnishes but a very insecure foundation for the mutual dealings between members of the family."

IT'S TRUE! THERE IS A NEW WAY IN WASHING. READ THESE FACTS.

MADE by a patented process, New and Improved OXYDOL dissolves instantly and completely in hard or soft water, and does these things:
Gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt, and stains—in any water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps. Sets up a unique "soak and flush" washing action. 15 minutes' soaking loosens dirt out so it flushes away—without scrubbing or boiling.
You save long hours of washboard drudgery. You get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter without washboard wear and tear. And yet, due to its special formula—Oxydol is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, fabrics!
Get new, improved Oxydol from your grocer today. Money back if you don't have the whitest, sweetest wash ever. The Procter & Gamble Company.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

"Malice to All—Charity to None" We certainly appreciated the front page publicity we received last week, but we weren't crazy about the frigid reception we received elsewhere. How about it, right valiantly on.

those things which are worthwhile, and add to the store of worthwhile things. Agricultural leadership should be sane, progressive, sensible, and practical."

C. H. Bramble, Master, Michigan Grange, advocated a legislative program to lower state and national taxes to stop the exemption of securities from taxation, to obtain a workable old age pension, and to prevent radio advertising of liquor.

J. W. Lentz, president, Michigan Farmer's Union, made a plea for the cooperation of all agricultural groups because they all have the same primary object, the betterment of the farmer and of his family.

R. V. Gunn, economist, Michigan State College, said, "Statistics prove definitely that farmer is in a much improved economic position. The income of Michigan farmers has increased from $119,000,000 in 1932 to $160,000,000 in 1934."

R. F. Beach, secretary-manager, Michigan Milk Producers, said everyone should help to obtain increased consumption of milk and told his audience that, if all people were drinking the amount of milk needed to provide their bodies with a correct diet, there would be no surplus of milk and its products would be high enough to permit the dairyman to make a profit.

E. A. Beamer, president, Michigan Livestock Producers, believes that a fuller utilization by farmers of co-operative marketing organizations would help them materially in keeping agriculture on a permanently profitable basis. He said, "Industry jumped at the chance to form a closely knit organization during the past two years. It is up to the farmers to do likewise."

Dean Chris L. Christensen, University of Wisconsin, stressed the importance of the dairy industry in Michigan agriculture. He believes that an increase in employment in cities will be immediately followed by a great increase in the consumption of fluid milk and of products manufactured from milk. The Dean believes that the de-

SCIENCE AND SENTIMENT

The work of the funeral director presents an unusual blending of science and sentiment. In his technical capacity he must be skillful and efficient; in his ministry to the bereaved he is called upon to show rare qualities of tact and sympathy. We have always endeavored to keep fully abreast of technical advancement, without sacrificing the personal characteristics which are equally important.

Philathea Notes

Peter received the "loyalty test" in the verses assigned for our last Sunday's lesson. Mrs. Zuse began the class period with a "directed prayer" and then drew out many points for discussion. We were led to see that the test of our loyalty too, is the feeding of Christ's sheep and loving help and watch over the weaker members of His flock. For next Sunday consider Ac. 2:22-28 and 36-41. Subject, "Peter Preaches at Pentecost." Problems especially suggestive for this lesson.

The "Cent a Mail" boxes for benevolences are being collected and emptied for the first month's offering, and re-distributed. If the collector doesn't call, please bring your boxes which were given you in January, to church next Sunday, and if you have none, ask the pastor or Clella Fish for your box.

Next Wednesday, February 13, is the date for our monthly class party and business meeting. We will be entertained at this time by Mrs. F. E. Weeks.
