

Bloody Trail Starts Near Pinckney

Archibald Hofhansian Shoots Two of His Children Here. Kills Baker and Wounds His Wife at Dearborn Before Being Shot Down by Detroit Police Saturday Morning

A bloody fifty-mile trail which started at the Frank Hall farm, three miles west of Pinckney at 2:00 A. M. Saturday morning, ended in Detroit two hours later when Archibald Hofhansian fell before the gun fire of two Detroit policemen at 5257 Hecla Avenue, when he was endeavoring to gain entrance to a house occupied by two of his older daughters. On the trail behind him he left his daughter, Sophie, 14, shot through the head; his son, John, 9, with a shattered left arm; Abraham Arakelian, shot dead through the heart in his bakery at 1902 Mulkey Ave., Dearborn, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Arakelian, shot through the head. From there he went to the Hecla Ave. address where his career ended when he fell from police bullets.

Hofhansian is a native of Armenia, and as near as can be determined, came here about 25 years ago. He was married in New York state the first year he came, and has nine children. He came from there to Detroit where he was employed by the Motor Co. in Highland Park where he built a house himself. He was engaged for a farm. Not making a profit of farming he traded his equity for a house equity in Dearborn. In 1927 he came to Pinckney when he traded his Detroit home for an equity in the Frank Gibson farm at Anderson. Here he manifested a disinclination to work and absented himself from home for long periods of time. He was an inveterate gambler and when he came home at times plentifully supplied with money, his family assumed he had been lucky gambling.

He was always quarrelsome and was arrested five times in Wayne county before coming here. In Highland Park he was arrested for stealing coal and bootlegging. Sentence was suspended each time. In Detroit he was arrested for frequenting a gambling hall, car-

Hone Coming Plans Getting Underway

At a Meeting of the Different Committees Held Monday Night, Plans Are Discussed and Program Is Shaped for Centennial Celebration July 4, 5, and 6.

At a meeting at the Pinckney Board of Commerce Hall Monday night attended by some fifty committee members, the list of committees was read and duties assigned to each. A meeting of the finance committee, publicity committee and parade committee will be held some night next week. Much enthusiasm was manifested and a successful celebration is looked for. The celebration will consist of a street parade, a Miss Pinckney contest, a base ball game each day and a dance each night, pet animal contest, tug of war, bicycle, roller skating, express wagon and foot races and a greased pig race. There will be two speaking programs, one for old timers and another for prominent men. Several thousand invitations will be mailed out and all who have the addresses of former residents are asked to hand them in to the Dispatch office. We want every former Pinckneyite to get one. It is up to you to see that they do.

At this time a little history of Pinckney would be appropriate. The following is taken from Gene Mann's writings published about a year ago: The first settler here was Solomon Peterson, who took up what is known as the Nagy farm in 1828. James Pullen took up what is called the Stickie farm in 1831. Jacob Sigler took up land here in 1833 and Henry Harris in 1834. The following people took up land here in 1835: Benjamin Welles, Claudius Britton, Sanford Marbe, James Canfield, F. G. Ross, Alvin Burgess, James Jacoby, Hugh Clark.

Prof. William Kirkland and his wife Caroline Stansbury Kirkland, came to Detroit in 1834 where Mrs. Kirk established a girls' seminary. They were from New York City. Mr. Kirk and came here in 1835 but did not take up land until 1836. He planted the village of Pinckney on Aug. 7, 1837. He built a mill here in 1837. Seth Pettys being the millwright and builder. F. A. Ross and Joseph Abel cut the timbers for it. Reeves and Minot opened the first store in that year. Arvin Mann of Genesee county, N. Y., a tailor shop. The first school was built on the Sigler farm at that time. James Stansbury was appointed postmaster in that year. Dr. Robert Stansbury was the first physician here from 1838 to 1842. The village, all other things to the contrary, was named in honor of Prof. Kirkland's brother, Charles Pinckney Kirkland, a leading lawyer of New York City. The Kirk and family returned to New York City in 1843, so it is said, on account of the death of certain Pinckney residents who were killed in a book burning by Mrs. Kirkland, who was a Quaker. There were four children: John, William, Elizabeth and C. Della. Three were noted writers. Maria won the Detroit Free Press prize of $1000 for the best written story. C. Della telegraphed the first story of the Chicago fire to the New York Tribune and it also appeared all over Europe. Elizabeth was principal of a girl's school and William a coal mine operator at Danville.

PINCKNEY SCHOOL PROJECTS SUBMITTED

Members of the Pinckney school board attended the meeting of the state planning commission at Lansing last Wednesday and submitted two projects. One calls for a new school building to cost $110,000, the other for improvements on the athletic field amounting to $5,000. Neither project calls for a bond issue. These two were submitted on advice of the commission who stated in the event that it would be necessary to reduce the amounts a greater sum would be obtained on a larger project.

MICHAEL DUNNE

Michael Dunne, son of the late John and Jane Dunne, died at his home near Hudson, Mich., Feb. 18, of heart trouble. Surviving are a son, Patrick, in Ireland, a brother, John, and a sister, Mrs. William Murphy, having preceded him in death. Also he leaves three children, Frank, with whom he lived, John, and Mrs. Helen Carter of Jackson.

The deceased worked on farms in this section and was united in marriage to Miss Della Worden of Unadilla in early life. He was tenant on the Haze farm, the Peter Kelly farm and the Sigler farm. Mrs. Dunne died 38 years ago, leaving an infant daughter. Later a farm was purchased near Hudson where he spent the balance of his life. The funeral was held at Hudson Friday and the burial was in St. Mary's cemetery at Pinckney.

DEXTER WINS ANOTHER GAME

Washington Lodge, No. 1 of the latter again took Livingston Lodge, Inc. camp here last Thursday night by score of 35 to 15. Pinckney had 25 eucharists out but although they did well in the latter stages of the contest, Dexter ran up too big a lead in the first few games. Pinckney will play a return contest at Dexter on February 28.

HOWELL MAN GETS CONTRACT

Merrill Garlock or Howell has been awarded the contract to carry the mail from Jackson to Howell via Munith, Stockbridge, Gregory, and Pinckney and return and then from Jackson to Pinckney and return, making a total of 164 miles per day, six days a week except legal holidays. This would be about 50,000 miles a year. The carrier has to put up bonds for carrying the mail and furnish his own trucks. Forrest Pearson of Jackson has had the contract for several years. For about $2,900. This year he raised his bid to about $3,000 but the Howell man's bid was $400 lower.

IS FETTERED BY THE GANG

The greater part of the winter Mr. H. H. Swarthout has contributed to the amusement of the juvenile population of Pinckney by leaving them around town on a boy which tied to his automobile. To show his appreciation 39 of them gave him a surprise party Friday night at the home of H. C. Vedder. A wonderful time was had by all and refreshments served. We understand the big feature of the evening was when his honor, the mayor, was taken down and panked by the gang.

Prexy was presented with a handsome Bible by them. The guests, on their departure, sang "Jingle Bells".

The speakers for this occasion will be the Honorable Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War, and Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald.

Opera House Is Full Of Memories

Pinckney Community Hall Dressing Rooms Carry Casts of About Every Play for the Past Forty Years.

The auditorium of the Pinckney Community Hall has been plastered and decorated and the wood work painted. A cove ceiling has been put in and both ceiling and side walls finished in dark buff. The wood work is light green with a black trim. A new exit door has been put on the east side and a full basement under the rear of the building. It will be ready for opening about March 1.

The Community Hall or Opera House, as it was then called, was built by a company consisting of John Cadwell, John J. Teeple, Dr. H. F. Sigler and Mrs. Sarah Sigler in 1895-96. The Pinckney High School graduating class of 1896 was the first class to hold their commencement exercises in it. This class consisted of Lucius Wilson, Bertha Baird, Nora Sigler, Nellie Lake, Nellie Webb and Edward Bowers.

The cast for about every home talent play produced there in the last forty years is written on the walls of the dressing rooms. Many organizations have put on plays there. The oldest one we could find was a high school play put on in 1899. The title was "The Ticket of Leave Man". The cast was Bill Monks, Roger Carl, Larry Reason, Larry Dunne, Charles Grimes, S. T. Grimes, S. Gardner, Blanche Graham, Emma Reason and Stella Clinton. This play was a big success and was taken to Brighton, Dexter and Stockbridge where it also drew well. Charles Grimes was director.

We understand that an earlier one was put on by St. Mary's church before that with Richard Clinton as director. The title was "The Shamrock and the Rose". The cast was David Kelly, Matt Brady, James Harris, Misses Mame and Julia Brady and others. The late Dan Murta also directed several plays. When Rev. F. C. Comerford came to Pinckney he organized the Columbian Dramatic Club and put on several plays each year during the time he was here. The casts for nearly all of them appear on the walls. The Pinckney high school has put on a play a year for the past forty years and these casts also can be seen. We often wonder just how much money has been taken in there on home talent plays. Can anyone estimate it?

COMMUNICATION

My Dear Mr. Curlett:

February 11th, 1935
I read, with great satisfaction, the plans for the Centennial, and "Old Home Week" and will try to be there even if I have to "thumb a ride".

Those I attended in the olden days, were the happiest events of my life although had to miss the last one or two on account of just starting my bank, too busy.

I hope there will be good publicity so most of the "Old Boys and Girls", "this side of the river" may be there for like "Old Wine and Old Books", are BEST and one can relieve the happy days of "Lang Zyne", mingling with BEST friends ever enjoyed, those of Youth.

Will appreciate, if prepared and easy to do, a list of those away that I may write, a few of whom I especially wish to meet.

Am inclosing a small $5.00 check for the Treasury and know considerable money and much more HARD WORK will be necessary.

Those in charge in the by gone years, Dr. Sigler and his co-workers, sure did a fine job, WELL—MAY THIS CENTENNIAL MEETING SURPASS ALL THE OTHERS AND YOU CAN COUNT ON ME, FOR ANYTHING POSSIBLE TO DO.

With kindest regards and best wishes for your Mother—
Ed. T. Kearney.

BAND CONCERT AND DANCE

The Pinckney Community Hall, which has been remodeled and redecorated, will be opened with a band concert and dance on Friday, March 1. Joe Guinan's full military band of Detroit will be the attraction. This is put on under the auspices of St. Mary's church and tickets are now on sale.

Current Comment

In a report made public today by Rudolph E. Reichert, state banking commissioner, it is shown that state bank deposits have almost reached the level of two years ago.

When banks were closed by the order of Governor Comstock on Feb. 14, 1933, state bank deposits totaled $418,072,000. Today the total is $402,835,000. In 1933 there were 422 state banks in Michigan, now there are 360.

Banks not in receivership have paid depositors $357,577,000 out of $440,608,000 and of the balance in trust or liquidation, at least 50 per cent will be paid off eventually.

With all the other cities, villages and townships submitting FERA projects we do not see the name of Pinckney in the list. We think this is shortsightedness as Pinckney will have to pay her share of the cost when she submits any project. For this reason the other municipalities are submitting numerous projects in hope that some of them will be approved. The City of Lansing leads the state with over $2,000,000 in projects. The village of Dexter will submit the following projects: school $125,000, sewers $60,000, community hall $85,000, paving Baker and Fifth Street $7,000. Of course the projects submitted amount to considerably more than the state's share of the four billion appropriation, but the idea in submitting several projects is that in the apportionment some will be accepted. We understand that Putnam township will submit a project for remodeling the town hall. It would seem that there are many projects which could be undertaken here. A water main from the business section to the pond for fire protection has been suggested. Also the improvement of the athletic park, west of town. It needs a new fence, grading and seeding. Also the part of it which borders on the pond could be graded to form a beach, picnic ground and bathing beach. Since this was purchased six years ago no improvements at all have been made upon it. The village, as we said before, will pay its share whether it submits any projects or not.

Well, did the Hauptmann murder in the first degree verdict surprise you? They evidently take their job more seriously in the east than in Michigan. Here, with eye witnesses to a crime it is impossible to secure a conviction in all cases. To get a first degree murder verdict on circumstantial evidence would be beyond the dreams of the best prosecutor in the state. New Jersey will receive great credit for solving this crime and for Attorney General Wilentz. It will probably mean the governorship of the state. However, we think the best party given the jurors following the verdict was just a trifle bad taste.

Once again the Red bugaboo has cropped up in the schools and a bill has been introduced in the legislature by Senator Baldwin of Albion requiring all teachers of junior colleges or universities to take the oath of allegiance to the Constitution of the United States and Michigan. Any situation which refused to have it, teachers do this would forfeit its right to state funds or if it were a charitable or denominational institution, to its right to tax exemption. Employment, decent wages and sufficient food will do more to eradicate this Red movement than all the laws that can be passed.

We see that Kid McCoy, the old prize fighter, has received a valor medal from the Michigan Veterans of the Rainbow Division, for saving eleven people from drowning last summer at Bass Lake, near the Livingston-Washkewau county line, southeast of here. It will be remembered that their launch capsized and Mr. and Mrs. Green of Detroit were drowned. Prompt work by McCoy saved the lives of six children and three grown people. Years in the prize ring taught McCoy to think quick and his courage has never been questioned. He is now employed by Henry Ford. Henry, by the way, seems to fancy old time fighters. For years he had Kid Lavigne, old time lightweight champion, as a guard at the Manchester gate of his Highland Park plant.

GIANT SERPENTS

The Smithsonian institution in Washington is in possession of evidence that sea serpents as large as the biggest of living land snakes once swam in the offshore waters near the present site of the National Capital. This is in the form of a single fossil vertebra of backbone joint, picked up on Belvidere beach, Va. By comparing this one bone with those of living serpents, the United States National museum has estimated that the Virginia sea serpent must have been about 25 feet long and thick in proportion, which would be a very good size even for a python today. Remnants of contemporary sea dwelling serpents almost as large as the Virginia specimen have been unearthed in New Jersey and Alabama.

The "liquid test"

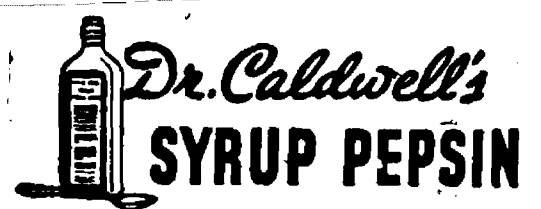

...it ENDS bowel worries for many people

This is a test that tells you whether the system needs a cathartic change. If you have constant sluggish spells or bilious attacks, and laxatives seem to make things worse, it would be wise to try this:

Stop all use of any laxative that does not encourage variation from a "fixed dose" (which may be entirely too large a dose for your individual need). Use instead, a liquid laxative that you can measure and regulate as to dose. As necessary to repeat, take smaller doses, less and less often, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

Doctors use liquid laxatives, and a properly prepared liquid laxative, containing natural laxative agents like senna and cascara is a joy and a comfort; a real help in establishing regularity. Ask your doctor about this! (Doctors use liquid laxatives.)

Y. I. can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is the most dependable liquid laxative, at any drug store.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. A baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment, from which, by McNamara's orders, she is removed to the chief's home. From one of the men in the boat on which the girl escaped McNamara learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin. He also discovers that she is heiress to $750,000.

Angellotti was a resourceful fellow. "Let's call on that Lanning woman, apologize for our rough work last night, and maybe she'll slip us some of that pre-war Bourbon again."

Flynn nodded, and they drove to Lanny's house. Lanny received them coldly. "Have you come to search my house again?" she demanded irritably. No mule's face could possibly have been longer and sadder than P. Flynn's. "We didn't come to annoy you, Miss Lanning. The chief's give us the inside story. We just called to apologize for even suspecting you."

"An officer," Angellotti explained, "has got to do a lot of things he don't like to do in the discharge of his duty. The apology goes double, Miss Lanning."

"It's accepted." Then they shook hands. "How about a shot in the arm?" Lanny, the worldling, suggested, much mollified.

Angellotti shrugged expressively. "Well, seel'n' as how," P. Flynn murmured. So they had three drinks and spent a very pleasant evening with Lanny and she was loath to see them depart.

Now, Lanny was aware that Stephen had planned to visit his queer patients after dinner that night. So she telephoned—and Dan McNamara answered.

"I shouldn't ring you up this late and get you out of bed—"

"Not at all. Just got in this minute."

"I'm glad. How's everything, Dan?"

"I haven't seen the patients, but my chief of staff was up waiting for me, and reports everything jake."

"That's all I wanted to know. Thanks, Dan. Oh, by the way, Flynn and Angellotti called on me again, tonight."

"What's that?" The chief's voice was a roar. "What are those two eggs up to? I told them to lay off you."

"They're doing that, Dan. They just called to apologize. They spent the evening with me. They only left a moment ago."

"The liquor must have run out."

"Oh, Dan!"

"I know those two. It would never occur to them to apologize to anybody if they didn't have a reason. It's just as I suspected, Lanny. They're going to hang on to this case on the quiet and trail you around."

An anguished thought popped into Lanny's agile brain. "Oh, Dan, suppose they took a notion to trail Stevie!"

"Hush! You don't have to paint me any picture, Lanny. When did these two busybodies call at your house?"

"At nine-fifteen."

"Wait a minute," Lanny waited a minute and then McNamara said: "Stephen left here just about that time, so I guess we're safe tonight. And tomorrow I'll cover that loophole. I'm an ass not to have thought of it before. Good night."

In the morning Dan McNamara sent for Flynn and informed him he was to depart that night for Los Angeles to bring back a prisoner. Flynn begged Angellotti to keep his eyes on the job. But that night McNamara found other work for Angellotti. By the time Flynn returned, Angellotti was gone, and the same night, without a moment's notice, McNamara shot him up to Seattle on a similar job.

He left himself into the house that night with his latchkey, turned on the hall light and whistled. "Hello, everybody," he shouted. Nobody answered, so he hurried down to Nance's room. The door was open. He switched on the light and found a disordered bed with nobody in it. He searched the house thoroughly, only to discover he was alone in it; finally, on the living room table he found a note:

"Dear Chief: We think you mean well and we thank you for what you have done, but the dicks are watching this house. They trailed the doctor last night, but a friend of ours trailed them. Forgive us if we just can't trust any cop. Anyway, if you can't trust any cop, anyhow, if you men found us here. Good-by and good luck."

McNamara sat down. He was suddenly weak. So he hadn't fooled Flynn and Angellotti after all. The smart devils! Well, they might suspect all they pleased, but unless they had seen his guests and recognized Nance they could never prove anything.

He realized now that his act in sending them out of the state would clinch their suspicions; they would be sure to have somebody in their confidence keep the house under constant surveillance until they got back. Evidently they had sent a bungler and the soldier had spotted the fellow—he wondered if Nance and her loyal friends had made a clean getaway. The front doorbell rang and he went to answer it. A thin, bent man stood in the entrance, and even in the dim light from the hall McNamara knew him for an ex-convict in his prison suit of civilian clothes.

"Chief McNamara?" he queried huskily.

"Yes, I'm the chief."

"I got out of San Quentin this morning. I had a message for you, but I didn't want to come to headquarters to deliver it. Lanny the Beetle told me to tell you to rest easy."

"Thanks, friend. Come in and rest easy yourself. Let's get acquainted. McNamara invited hospitably. In the clearer light of the living room he saw his visitor was far from being a well man. "What is it, kid?" he demanded. "Hop—or T. B.?"

"The old coughin' sickness, Chief. The prison directors shortened my term to let me out for treatment. As if I can get treatment anywhere," he added bitterly.

"Oh, yes, you can. I'm living alone here for the next thirty days, so I'll get a nurse in to take care of you, and you stay here."

The man looked at him suspiciously. "You mean it, Chief?"

"What did Benny tell you about me?" McNamara asked.

"He told me to trust you. He said you was one human being, even if you was a chief of police."

He changed the linen on Nance's bed, put the room in order, laid out a suit of pajamas and ordered his guest to bed.

"And now, me bold buckos," he reflected, "keep on trailing Doctor Burt to my house, if you feel like it."

He waited up until Stephen Burt arrived, and explained the situation to him. Stephen considered it a tremendous joke but commended his line of attack on Flynn and Angellotti.

"Hello, Stevie, Old Darling."

"The man does need treatment very badly," he told the chief. "I'll send around a practical nurse early tomorrow morning to look after him, and I'll continue to call upon the poor devil nightly until further orders. We're both involved in a tricky game now and must play the hand—"

Doctor Burt was suddenly serious. "I do hope we haven't lost Nance, Dan. She's the most interesting psychological case I ever seen."

"She ain't lost, but I'll bet a cookie she's well hid. But I'll locate her within twelve hours," Chief McNamara added, thinking of Ella Cates.

"I've run Nance's early history down since I saw her last, Doc," he announced suddenly. "I got busy the other day and luck was with me. She's an heiress and her name is Penelope Gatlin. She got it in the nose by a baseball—a long fly into the bleachers. But I also discovered something else. It's a question whether she ain't just a natural nut. Her mother is. She led Gatlin a—of a life."

"No, I don't think it's congenital, Dan. There's something about that girl that's healthy—mentally and physically. Did you meet her mother?"

"No, but I'm going to run her down easy enough."

Stephen sighed. "Oh, poor Nance! I'm afraid she's beyond my skill, after all. A bad family history, Mac—very bad. There's a structural weakness in some families that never gets bred out, and I suspect poor Nance has an inheritance of mental instability from her mother."

"Well, with that busted nose, her inheritance and her hellcat mother, she certainly had a fine start on the road to the foolish farm, didn't she, Doc? Excuse me, there's the telephone."

Lanny was calling. "Dan," she quavered, "my house has been burglarized. They jimmied the back door, and for all I know the burglars are upstairs still. I'm watching the staircase—got my pistol covering it. Come over quick, Dan—please."

"Coming right away, Lanny." He hung up and faced Stephen. "Lanny has burglars. Into your car, boy, and we'll beat it over."

CHAPTER VII

Lanny, very white and shaken, was in her living room, pistol in hand, watching the stairs, when McNamara and Stephen came noiselessly in the back door. The chief whipped out his pistol and went unhesitatingly up the stairs. Presently he called them to come up.

They found him standing in the doorway leading into Lanny's guest chamber. "Take a look at that," he ordered.

They looked. Lying in the bed, sound asleep, was Nance Belden!

McNamara switched off the light and softly closed the door. With his great head clasped in both huge hands he went down the stairs to the living room. "Doc," he pleaded, "whose loony now? I think I am because I'm seeing things that ain't in the book. Ochone, ochone, and wirra, wirra, the fairies have me in tow!"

"Got to get her out of here," Dan McNamara decided. "Flynn and Angellotti finally got on her trail, no doubt about that—and it's a mighty cold trail those two dicks can't follow. I suspected this, and the note she left at my house confirms it. It's just the mercy of God that Flynn and Angellotti didn't happen to slip into my domicile and find the note. If they had I'd be sunk. They can suspect all they want to, but hanging it on to me is another pair of boots, as the French say."

"Why, they wouldn't dare invade their own chief's house," Lanny protested.

"They wouldn't? You don't know those two bozos like I do. They'd dare anything if they figured they could get away with it."

"Can't you give the miserable snoopers an office job?" Lanny demanded. She was faintly provoked at Daniel for his lack of initiative.

"Would you herd cows with a couple of horses that had won the derby?"

"Oh!"

"Wake that psychopathic nuisance up, Lanny, and get her down here. I've got to find out things or go crazy. Besides, she hasn't had any dinner."

"Let the poor lamb sleep, Dan," pleaded Lanny.

"I need a lot of sleep myself and I can't get it until I know how, when and where Nance and her gang made the getaway. Suppose Flynn and Angellotti let them make the getaway; suppose Flynn followed the men and Angellotti followed Nance? They'd do that; they wouldn't risk getting in Dutch with me by making the pinch as the gang came out of my house. They have some loyalty and a lot of common sense, and they know which side their bread is buttered on. When they take the girl they'll not turn her in to me. They'll wait for their straight back to San Quentin to the warden and let his men get the credit for recapturing her. All they want is the reward. Suppose they know she's here now and suppose they've seen me come here? Ouch! Murderation!"

"Have her down, Lanny," Stephen commanded in his operating room voice, and Lanny had no alternative save to obey. So presently Nance came down the stairs with her. The girl was arrayed in an old faded dressing gown of Lanny's, her hair was tousled, and she yawned sleepily.

"Hello, Stevie, old darling; hello, Dan, you great big beautiful thing. Here I am."

"Sit down," McNamara invited in honeyed accents.

So Nance sat down promptly on his tremendous knees—put her arm around his burly neck and kissed him. "Now, don't get excited," she cooed. "I know exactly what's burning you up, but you needn't worry. One of the boys recognized Flynn and I recognized Angellotti, because he's the dick that pinched me the first time I got in Dutch. They kept circling the block in their car all the afternoon, and when it was almost dark we saw Flynn go into an alley alongside a vacant house across the street. We decided Angellotti had gone home for dinner. So we telephoned Angellotti's house and his wife said that he was eating his dinner, and unless it was important to call up in fifteen minutes. So we said it wasn't important, hung up and held a conference."

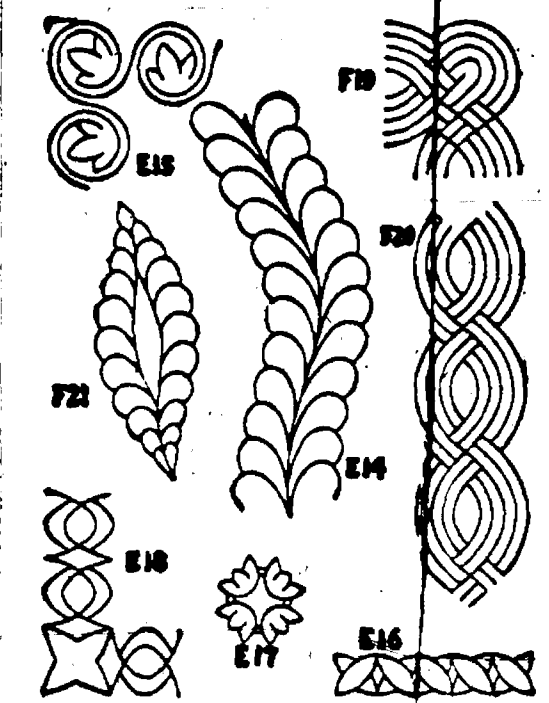

"We decided the back of the house wasn't guarded, so we telephoned the boy friend that met us at the yacht harbor that night, and he came and parked in the next street. We went out your back door, leaving the light in the front room burning and shinnied over the back fence. Some job for two members of the party, I'll say. Once over the fence we had to prowl through the back yard of the house that abuts against the rear of your house—and a dog bit me, but not very hard. We got out in front and into the next street before anybody could come out and see what luck the dog had had; our car was there and we beat it. We're pretty sure nobody followed us, but we drove out to the park first with our lights downed, and when we were sure nobody was trailing us, the boys brought me here. We jimmied your back door, Lanny dear; then the boys said good-by to me for keeps. It seems you don't want me associating with them any more and they think you're right about that, Dan."

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people "round 40 think they're 'growing old.' They feel tired a lot. 'Weak.' Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

FRECHETTE TO STAND TRIAL

Prosecutor Stanley Berriman

Sheriff Claude Fawcett and Deputy Loren Bassett are expected back from Nevada City, California, today with Clarence Frechette, who is charged with the murder of Robert Brown. The return trip was made in the death car in which Frechette carried the body of Brown to California.

It is announced that Frechette will stand trial, claiming self defense and that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Frechette of Oxbow Lake, Oakland county, have hired an outside lawyer to defend him. Prosecutor Berriman will handle the case for the people, assisted by Assistant Attorney General Tappan. The trial will take place in March unless there are adjournments.

The body of Brown arrived at Howell last Friday and the post mortem was held at the McDonald funeral parlors, being conducted by Dr. Carl Weller of the University of Michigan and Dr. H. C. Hill of Howell. Their findings were that Brown came to his death by being shot twice through the head at very close range and the wounds had powder burns. One bullet entered the left side of the nose and came out above the right ear. The second entered the left side of the head and came out on the right side of the head, near the temple. No bullets were found. Also that Brown lived for some time after his body was placed in the trunk on the back of the car. Following the inquest at which Coroner Grieve presided, the body was turned over to Brown's parents and taken to Kalamazoo where the funeral was held. The burial was at Howell.

PACKER-STAPISH WEDDING

The nuptial mass was read by Rev. Henry VanDyke, and music was rendered by Burg's choir. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Coyle of Pinckney, uncle and aunt of the groom.

The bride was gowned in navy blue mullin cloth, with white hat and accessories, and she carried an arm bouquet of premier roses, pink and white carnations. Mrs. Coyle wore a dress of navy blue crepe with hat to match and a corsage of premier roses.

trying concealed weapons and disorderly conduct. Each time he got off with a small fine. In 1928 he was arrested by Sheriff Wimbles and let go with a warning when his family refused to make a complaint. This happened a couple of times. In 1931 Deputy Ir-

John Hofhansian

Kennedy arrested him for mistreating his family and he was given a 60 day jail sentence by Justice Farrell at Howell. In 1933 Justice Glenn Yelland bound him over to circuit court for trial on a charge of felonious assault. However, the case was sent back to justice court and he received a 90 day sentence. This past summer he was arrested on a complaint by Frank Plummer, a neighbor, and drew a 90 day sentence. He was released last October and ordered out of the county and left presumably for California.

Besides these arrests the sheriff's force made numerous other trips to his home here but did not always take him to jail as his family was afraid to sign a complaint.

Nothing was seen of him since last October until Monday, February 11, when, all decked out in new clothes and with a large roll of money he called at the jail in Howell and after giving Deputy George Fawcett and Tom Finlan cigars, inquired for Deputy Kennedy, saying he wanted to ride to Pinckney with him to see his family. Kennedy, however, was out on a case and after waiting some time during which he visited the cell block and gave the prisoners cigars and cigarettes.

Mrs. Sophie Hofhansian, who left for Pinckney, he explained the sum of money in his possession by saying he had been injured in Chicago and had settled with an insurance company there.

Arriving in Pinckney about 4:00 P. M. he got a ride out to the farm with Miss Dede Hinchey, a school teacher who lives on an adjoining farm. On the way Miss Hinchey picked up his three girls, Archelus, and Lucy, 18, and Sophie, 14, who were on their way home from Pinckney high school where they were students. He gave them a bag of candy and 3 fountain pens and presents for the three younger children at home who attend the Sprout school. He refused to go to his home but went to the Szymanski farm next to it. Here his wife and children visited him and asked him to return home. He declined, saying he had plenty of money and was going back to Armenia. He got Victor Szymanski to take him to Howell and from there went to Detroit. How he occupied himself there the rest of the week is not known. According to Y. Hamperian, a friend of the family who operates a chicken farm three miles south of town on the Leland farm, and knew the Hofhansian family in Detroit before they moved here, the latter entered a coffee shop on Salina Ave., near the Ford factory, and tried to buy a pistol, offering as high as $200 for one. He failed to get one there. This was the last heard of him until 11:00 P. M. Friday night when he stopped Charles Belseltis in front of the Book-Cadillac hotel in Detroit and asked him to drive him to Dearborn. Belseltis operates a taxicab. Here he made a short search for some one but failed to find them and then asked to be driven to Pinckney. At Ann Arbor Belseltis demanded his money and was given $10 from a large roll of bills.

Arriving at the Hofhansian home at about 2:00 A. M. Saturday morning, Hofhansian left the taxicab in the road and went up to the house. He was admitted by Archelus, one of the 18 year old twins. He was told that Mrs. Hofhansian, her son, Andrew, 21 and Henzontant, 8, were in Detroit where Andrew was trying to get a job with the Ford Motor Co. on the grounds he was the sole support of the family. Previously he had shown he was in a rage by kicking the family dog, a small poodle, out doors.

The absence of his wife seemed to still further enrage him and he announced that this would be their last night on earth. This happened in the front room of the house where Lucy and Archelus, the twins, Sophie, 14, Mary, 12, and John, 9, were sleeping in two beds. The two twins went out through a window, smashing the glass and ran barefooted to the Szymanski farm, a block or so away.

Hofhansian drew a revolver and started firing. A bullet shattered John's left arm as he lay in bed. Sophie struggled with her father and fell with a bullet in her brain. Mary ran into the pantry and pulled the door against her. Hofhansian, thinking she was under a table there, fired three times and then ran from the house. He stopped in the yard to eject the empty shells from his gun and reload. They were found next morning by Deputy Kennedy under a rose bush. There were four empty discharged ones and one not fired. He was a 28, pistol with soft nose bullets. In the meantime the taxi driver heard the breaking of the window and saw the two girls run past him toward the next farm, but says he heard no shots.

Hofhansian got in the taxi and told the driver to go to Dearborn. Questioned concerning what had happened, he said it was just a family row. Arriving at the bakery at 1902 Melkay Ave. he shot down the baker and his wife and fled, making no attempt to find his own wife and two sons, who were sleeping upstairs. The taxicab driver, hearing the shots, also fled. Hofhansian, getting another cab, started for the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Klustian at 5257 Hecla Ave.

In the meantime the twins, Archelus and Lucy, had been joined at the Szymanski farm by Mary and John and went to the farm of Miss Dede Hinchey where they called the sheriff. Deputies Kennedy and George Fawcett came over, arriving at about 3:00 A. M. On reaching the Hofhansian farm Fawcett stayed in the car and Kennedy went up to the house. Not being able to get in he was about to force entrance when he saw the lights of a car coming down the road. Thinking it might be the man sought, he returned to the highway. However, it proved to be Miss Hinchey with the Hofhansian children. Going back to the house Sophie was carried out to the Hinchey car and with her brother, John, was taken to the Pinckney Sanitarium where first aid was rendered. Later they were removed to the University Hospital, Ann Arbor, where Sophie was given a blood transfusion. Little hope is held for her but John will recover.

The children told Deputy Kennedy their father had gotten away in a taxi and would probably go to the Hecla Avenue address. He called the Detroit police and was informed that they were already looking for him for the Arkland shooting. Kennedy gave them the Hecla Ave. address and a scout car filled with police went there from the Grand River station. They had just got there when Hofhansian was seen looking in a basement window. He was ordered to halt but started to run. Patrolmen Glen Frankel and William Chagwizen both fired their shots striking him in the back. As he fell his own gun was discharged the bullet going through his head. Death was instantaneous. Search of the body revealed a dynamite bomb and but $17.50 in money according to the police.

We understand that the family does not intend to claim the body. They have been on the welfare here for some years back and the county authorities will not provide burial unless forced to. Mrs. Hofhansian returned home Saturday and stated she was glad her husband was dead. No members of the family expressed any regret.

their duty to tamperize with this man and continually turn him loose with nothing more than a jail sentence, is hard to see. His record of some nine arrests should have been evidence enough for a prison sentence. Several times he assaulted his family with weapons. Just why he was not tried in circuit court in 1933 at the time he was bound over by Justice Yelland does appear clear. The light sentences given him were ridiculous. We are not criticizing Justices Yelland and Farrell at all. They gave him the limit. However, a man with his record does not belong in a justice court.

Philathea Notes

A pleasant meeting of the class was held last Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dede Weeks. The Devotionals were conducted by our chaplain, following the opening song, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." The report of the January meeting was read by the secretary, Mrs. Pauline Vedder. The roll call was called and verses beginning with "L" were given. Different items of business were discussed and Mrs. Vedder invited the class for the May meeting, at which time the roll call letter will be "M". Mrs. Zuse had charge of the entertainment features, consisting of two interesting contests, the first with a picture basis, was won by the hostess, and in the second, an automobile "pie", Mrs. Rose Hinde scored first. The usual dainty pot-luck supper was served at the close of the afternoon.

Mrs. R. K. Elliott substituted for Mrs. Zuse for the Sunday lesson, and the discussion brought out several good points on the responsibility of a good citizen. This was one of our quarterly temperance lessons and for next Sunday's theme we will hear of "gifts that are better than gold." Read acts 3 and 4, and find how Peter applied the modern charity slogan, "Not alms, but a friend."

Miss Gertrude Zielman, P. H. S. class of 1933, lost three fingers while employed at the King-Seely plant, in Ann Arbor, one day last week.

Michigan Presents Solid Front for Relief Money

State Planning Body Is Correlating All Programs to Get Adequate Fund

In a co-operative effort to obtain every possible dollar for local and county-wide public improvements, from the four billion eight hundred million dollar federal relief funds soon to be allocated by President Roosevelt, officials of our community, townships, and county, today are engaged in working with the Michigan State Planning Commission.

Questionnaires, requesting our officials to list projects of every type that may come under the federal limitations, are being filled out here, and must be in the hands of the Commission in Detroit in time for presentation in Washington March 1. The time limit for the return of questionnaires to the Detroit office is February 11.

Projects of two kinds are to be listed. First, those of a self-liquidating nature, a portion of which cost must be borne locally; second, projects of a conservation or recreational nature, funds for which will undoubtedly come under the head of "welfare relief," and are scheduled to be outright grants.

Many projects, some of them greatly needed in this area, seem closer to realization because of the great sum of money now available in Washington, and our officials are joining with Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald and his State Planning Commission in the urgent task of compiling project statistics for immediate consideration.

Officers were reelected as follows: Chairman board of directors, Burt Foraker; president, G. M. Welch; vice president and general manager, T. N. Lucy; secretary and treasurer, W. I. Mizner; general auditor, George J. Brett.

We are fixed for turning out work of this kind in double-quick time.

Only through close co-operation of every unit of government, Governor Fitzgerald believes, will Michigan obtain its proper share of this gigantic federal appropriation.

A. R. Glauco, Chairman of the Commission, has this to say: "Michigan, in the past, has benefited meagerly, for one reason or other, in the distribution of Federal funds for public works.

"The reasons given are several. Whatever they may be, let us treat past criticism as water over the dam. Michigan merely asks now its just share.

"To this end, we have launched an inventory of potential projects in the state so that by March 1, we may present to Washington a well-rounded program.

"Questionnaires have been sent to 3,500 political units in the state. The signing of them does not commit your community to proceed with the projects cited, but merely furnishes the commission with a list of all possibilities in the public works field.

"The Commission is non-political. The movement is neither Republican nor Democratic. It represents only an intelligent effort, we believe, to get Michigan as a unit thinking on more constructive lines, burying group differences, and enabling us as a state to speak with the undivided strength of a state, instead of the weakness of small groups whose pleas are easily turned aside."

AS THERE IS IN "PIGS IS PIGS"

There are more varieties of lubricants than there are pigs. In fact, when we "grease" your car, we use from 6 to 10 different types of lubricants, depending on the year the car was made. Lubrication of today's fast, powerful car, for instance, is radically different from that of a 1931 model.

If you want to play safe, see that every working part on your car gets a fresh supply of the right lubricant regularly. You can guard against the costly friction that makes driving dangerous and causes unnecessary repair bills by having us lubricate your car as the manufacturer intended it to be lubricated.

Your eyes won't tell you!

MOST of us choose lamps because they are attractive and ornamental, or because they fit in with the decorative scheme of a room. We take it for granted that our lamps are furnishing good lighting when frequently our eyes are being strained by poor lighting and do not complain until it is too late. There are four essentials of good lighting that you may quickly and easily follow in your own home: (1) Use correct size lamp bulbs—"WATTS." In table and floor lamps with three sockets, use 40 watts in each socket; with two sockets, 60 watts; with one socket, 100 watts. (2) Have at least one-tenth as much light in the rest of the room as you have on your book, newspaper, sewing, etc. (3) Use SHADES on all lamp bulbs to prevent GLARE. (4) Use shades with light-colored linings to get the most light.

THE SWEET FLAVORED GUM

Style-Alert Will Wear Smart Linen

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHETHER you are a faithful stay-at-home by inclination or necessity, or whether you are counted among those present in the spectacular style parade which fashionable resorters are now staging in climes where summer spends the winter, the message of linen is all-important.

There is so much real news in regard to linen as now is, one scarcely knows where to begin to tell of the amazing things taking place in the way of new colorings, new weaves and artistic patternings. From the daintiest sheers embroidered handkerchief linen to the very rough textures in daring peasant colorings and design, linen is writing a most fascinating chapter in the history of fabric fashion.

What's more, you do not have to trek to a tropical clime or wait until spring and summer in order to don linen—wear it instantly! And here's how—speaking to women who are wintering where winter is winter. Top that favorite velvet or wool suit, which is proving so smartly wearable for mid-season, with a blouse of one of the new tweedy coarse linens which are the rage in leading style centers. The trick is to choose one of the strikingly new colors, tangerine, for example, or better still, linen in a rich fuchsia shade. You will adore these wonderful new tailored blouses. So timely, too, not too light in wintry tones, and not too dark for tropical climes.

Maybe it is a one-piece dress of crepe or wool or velvet which is your mainstay for midseason wear. Give it "class" by collaring and cuffing it with linen in natural, pastel or bright color. The Puritan sets with wide collars and deep cuffs are youthful and flattering. Quilted or stitched they are smartest of all.

Just to give some idea of the stunning trends of the new linens we cite the striking outfit, so handsomely tailored, as shown to the left in the illustration. Linen in the new beetroot red is chosen for the blouse. It has widely spaced tiny tucks running horizontally across its front, is fashioned to fit snugly and fastens high up the front with square buttons. The plaid for the slim skirt and the three-quarter jacket carries beetroot red for its predominating color. The relationship of suit and blouse is further established in that the identical beetroot linen which fashions the blouse lines the coat. This ensemble offers a perfect costume for sightseeing in a warm climate or for spectator sports or it is ready to jump into at the very first signs of budding spring in the North.

Nothing could be swankier or more appropriate for a sunny morning on deck than the mannish suit of white linen pictured to the right. The coat is as tailored as a man's and the back is belted, giving freedom for tennis or shuffleboard. The blouse is made of old-fashioned figured percale. Better jot that down in your note book, for this quaint percale is an ultra style note.

Many remarkable effects are achieved in the new linens. There are rustic peasant weaves which look as if hand-loomed. Some of these are of Tyrolean inspiration, in the colorfulness of their stripes. Many are nubbled to add to their rough texture. Among linen novelties are towel and tablecloth motifs, also openwork lines with colored threads, plaid lines, too, are good style, while plain linens either in pastels or dark vivid blues, or reds, or browns, have a vogue coming which will make them foremost in fashion.

STARCHED LACE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

An outstanding message which the advance dresses convey is that starched lace accessories are the "big idea" for spring. A word to the wise is sufficient. The shopping itinerary of the woman who would be smartly attired should include an immediate pilgrimage to the neckwear counters where the latest fantasies in the now-so-fashionable crisp laces are set forth in all their freshness. For midseason wear nothing more charming and seasonal can be pictured than the charming black velvet suit here illustrated. The deep ruffie lace cuffs and collar with frilled jabot of stiffened white lace interprets the latest. The jabot, how sketched and the collar of lace with the Medici flare are new this season.

Shirt Fullness

Skirts wide at the hem are still very much in fashion, but the fullness usually does not start till the skirt is well on its way. Snug fitted hip lines are best at the moment. Bustle effects are out.

MUFFS ARE REVIVED FOR EVENING WEAR

Muffs, in the dear dead days, were neat little bundles into which elegant ladies placed their hands when they went into the cold, wintry out-of-doors. Then, a few years ago some bright person conceived the idea of giving bridesmaids muffs to carry instead of shepherd's crooks or bunches of flowers or baskets filled with rose petals. Thus, muffs were separated from strictly out-of-door costumes.

Now, as the latest development in this evolution, there are muffs to accompany evening gowns. Some of these frivolous affairs are made of shirred chiffon or velvet. Others are covered with small artificial flowers, such as violets, pansies, or narcissi. Debutantes are gaily carrying them as they dance. They're plenty large enough to hold a lipstick, cigarettes, powder, hankie, and all the other ballroom necessities.

High Hat and Plain Pumps

With "Little Suit" Chic

When standing before your wardrobe in doubt as to what to put on, better reach for a suit. The "little suit" is the "long suit" of our smartest women over here.

With it goes a high hat and plain kidskin pumps. If the day and the occasion present that "special moment," we suggest a glamorous lame blouse as a surprise to come forth when the trim little jacket is removed.

Patou has made some of the most perfect blouses for this purpose you can find anywhere. Lots of them are of the sheerest chiffon with shirring near the shoulders to give fullness to the billowy sleeves. There is usually a touch of lame in gold or silver or a satin collar and cuffs and demure little bow tie.

For Baked Apples in Sirup

Dainty That Never Seems to Lose Popularity Will Be Found to Be Vastly Improved by the Addition of the Flavor of Maple.

Maple sirup and maple sugar have always been favorite edibles and ingredients of cooking. With cool days our appetites demand richer foods. The most popular use of maple sirup, of course, is with hot griddle cakes for breakfast. Maple sugar is used in many home-made candy recipes. But there are many other interesting dishes which include maple flavoring.

A delicious variation from the usual style of baked apples is to use maple sirup instead of white sugar for the sweetening. Try this and see if it isn't delicious.

Pare and core as many apples as will stand in an ordinary baking dish.

- 1 cup maple sugar
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 thin slice of butter for each apple

Mix the water with the maple sirup and pour over the apples. Place one of the bits of butter over the top hole of each apple. While the slice is thin, the surface should be large enough to cover the opening. Then as the butter melts under the oven heat the rich liquid will drip down over the outside and the inside of the apple. Baste the apples frequently with the sirup and water and bake until the apples are soft when pierced with a fork, but not so tender that they become shapeless. Serve hot or cold in the same dish. Or if preferred transfer the apples to individual glass sauce dishes and pour over each apple some of the amber liquid.

Apples baked in maple sirup have a peculiarly delicate quality. There is no decided taste of the maple sirup, but the blending of the apple juice and sweet sap supplies an unusually delicious and different flavor. The buttery surface of the apples will make them have a suggestion of brownness if the oven is hot after the apples are left uncovered in the oven.

Tub and Telephone

If you have just started washing your clothes when the telephone rings, you may be tempted to leave the machine running while you answer the call. It is wise to stop the machine before you leave it, however, as sometimes you chat fifteen minutes! Five to seven minutes is long enough to wash most garments. Fifteen minutes is needed only for very soiled pieces. Washing clothes too long may tend to tangle and even wear them unduly.—Good House-keeping Institute.
