Pinckney Village

A Review of Its Business Places
Written by J. L. Newkirk, Editor
In 1885.

Entering our pleasant village from the east upon the right hand you are first attracted by the neat little store of C. E. Richards & Co., in which is found a neat stock of gent's furnishings, notions and groceries. The next door also is occupied by the same parties, as a storeroom for agricultural implements, buggies, etc., for which they are agents.

Mrs. Hicks' millinery shop is the next thing on the program, but the ladies can tell you all about this establishment.

So passing on to the red, white and blue sign and stepping within you will be greeted by the frisky barber, Wm. Yancy, who (unless he has a game of checkers on hand) will shave you in short order.

James Markey, notary public, insurance and machine agent, has an office in the next building.

Hugh Clark, a good harness-maker, comes next on the list.

The next building we enter to get our mail and are waited upon by the genial and ever obliging postmistress, Mrs. S. P. Young. By glancing over the counter on the east side of the room you will also discover a small man with sandy "burnsides" and a twinkle in his blue eyes, who dishes out groceries and notions, cigars, tobacco, etc., to many customers. He is a good runner—especially for office.

Edward Mann claims our attention next. He keeps a first class stock of dry goods, groceries, etc.

You would not stop to inquire what the next place of business was, for at a glance you would see displayed on the platform fence wire, corn-shellers and all the supernumeraries that will cling around a first class hardware store. Teeple & Cadwell are the gentlemen and obliging landlords of this institution. If, however, you should be kicked out of their domicile for cheating in a game of dominoes you can seek redress by climbing the first flight of stairs and knocking at the office of James T. Eaman, attorney and Justice of the Peace. You may find the door locked. If so and your anger is not appeased you will find Justice Teeple in his bank in the back part of the store below or you can find Mr. Eaman by running up to Anderson station.

Mama Bros', mammoth dry goods, grocery and boot and shoe store occupies the first floor of this brick block. The boys will sell you goods cheap and wait upon you with courtesy.

Walking west across the corner of the A. Bros' drug and grocery store the first business place you see is a good line of goods is kept in stock and you are always sure of being treated well here. H. F. is a very efficient and well known physician and is kept very busy at his practice. W. A. Wilcox, veterinary surgeon, is also found here. The front rooms above are occupied by W. P. VanWinkle, attorney, Circuit Court Commissioner and insurance agent, who is making a great success of his profession. In the back rooms is found Mrs. Geo. Wagner's millinery department.

Celebrate 80th Anniversary

Livingston Lodge No. 76 F. & A. M., of Pinckney Will Observe the 80th Anniversary of Their Founding on the Night of March 29th, With the Past Masters in Charge.

On Friday evening, March 29th, Livingston Lodge No. 76 of Pinckney, will observe the 80th anniversary of its founding. This will also be their annual past master's night.

This lodge is one of the older lodges in the state and was given a dispensation in 1855. The charter members were Dr. Charles Haze, Master; Dr. John Goddard, Senior Warden; Furman G. Rose, Junior Warden; John Broughton, Sec'y; Freeman Webb, Treas.; J. W. Hinckley, Senior Deacon; Henry Stiles, Junior Deacon; and James Rice, Tyler.

The lodge got away to a flying start and raised 21 candidates during the year of dispensation. The first two candidates raised were on August 27, 1855, when Millard F. Darrow, lawyer and Marcus Wilcox, merchant, were received into the lodge. The others raised the same year were Jacob Sigler, Charles Young, W. M. Younglove, Gov. Edwin Winans, Samuel Luddick, Alvin Mann, James LaRue, William Bertwistle, Charles B. Rose, John Sigler, Charles Coleman, Thomas Webb, George Crofoot, William D. Crofoot, W. E. Thompson, Abner Wood, George Younglove, Morris Topping and Rowley Sprout.

Twelve of these were taken in on October 15 of that year which must have been a big day. On January 10, 1856, a charter was granted to the lodge by George Monroe, grand master of the Masons of Michigan.

There will be no initiation work this year as no candidate is ready. There will be a banquet served at 6:30 P. M. Following this will be a program on which prominent Masonic speakers of the state will appear. The address will be delivered by Dr. Francis B. Lambie of Midland, one of the state's best known Masonic orators. Several musical numbers will be included on the program.

At this time life memberships will be presented. The four receiving them are William H. Clark, Eugene Campbell, Dr. C. L. Sigler, Charles J. Teeple and John R. Martin. All of them have been members 40 years. Dr. Sigler has the distinction of being the grandson of Dr. Charles W. Haze, first master of the lodge. The complete program will be published later.

HOME COMING AND CENTENNIAL MEETING

At a meeting of the Pinckney Board of Commerce held Monday night the time was chiefly spent in listening to the reports of the various committees.

Fred Read, chairman of the finance committee, said that he had talked with various merchants and others and thought that $250 could be raised for preliminary expenses. In regard to concessions it was decided to get in touch with the chairman of last year's Brighton concession committee.

Percy Swarthout, parade committee chairman, reported that the parade would be held on the first day at 1:30 P. M. That Wayne AtLee and Archie Gorton would be marshals. He also said that every lake resort and village and township in the county would be asked to place floats in the parade.

P. W. Carlett stated that the sports committee expected to have a baseball game each day. That the parade would include a number of events for children, such as bicycle, roller skating and express wagon races. That it was planned to hold tug of war contests between the nearby townships, such as Unadilla, Dexter, Hamburg, Marion, Iosco etc. C. H. Kennedy suggested that water events and soft ball games be added.

Wm. Jeffreys, dance and music chairman said that it was contemplated to hold a dance each night.

Lucius Wilson, chairman of the program committee thought a short speaking program would be given each day right after dinner before the other events started.

It was also decided to ask the merchants to donate the use of one store window to display relics in on those days.

Once again we ask that all those who have the names of former residents to hand them in at the Dispatch office so that they may receive invitations. Also if enough old time pictures could be obtained a historical booklet will be gotten out.

In regard to the Miss Pinckney contest, this will be put on by the merchants and the votes counted so that she may be given a place of honor in the parade. The details of this have not all been worked out.

Frechette Held For Trial Without Bail

Justice Yelland Binds Clarence Frechette Over to the Circuit Court For First Degree Murder. Trial Set for March 11.

As was generally expected Justice Yelland at Howell Thursday bound Clarence Frechette over to the circuit court for trial for the murder of Robert Brown in the famous trunk murder case. He will be arraigned in the circuit court on March 11 and is held without bail.

No sensational testimony was submitted at the hearing. Sid Ballett, caretaker of the Oak Grove Country Club on the north side of Howell Lake testified he heard two shots fired in the club grounds on the night of the slaying on February 29, and heard an auto drive away shortly afterwards at about 10:00 P. M. Dr. Harold Hill, who performed the autopsy testified that Brown died of two bullet wounds in the head. He thought death occurred immediately but that it was possible Brown lived for some hours after being shot. Mrs. Mable Brown, mother of the slain boy, testified that she knew nothing of Frechette's reputation but became suspicious when he came to Kalamazoo without her son and asked her for money.

Miss Mildred Cooper Kreh, waitress in the Rush Restaurant, testified to serving Brown and Frechette about 9:00 P. M. on the night of the murder. She said Brown paid the bill.

Lawrence Yax Jr., radio shop employee, testified that Brown and Frechette came in his shop at 9:45 P. M. and stayed about 25 minutes on that night.

No evidence was offered by the defense. Former Prosecutor Jay Sweeney, defense attorney, objected to the admission of Frechette's confession, but was overruled. His motion that the charge be dismissed as the state had failed to prove the murder, was also denied.

Frechette's father sat beside his son during the hearing and said he was convinced of his innocence and was going to help him.

Considerable publicity was given to a lie detector which was brought to Howell by the state police and tried out on Frechette. This is an apparatus similar to the one used for taking blood pressure. A band is placed around the person's chest and he is asked a series of questions. His heart actions are taken and also the length of time taken to answer questions. We understand that this machine will not be used at the trial unless the defendant consents. It has never yet to our knowledge been allowed as evidence in a trial.

A large crowd attended the hearing, not all of them being able to get in the court room.

We understand that the Western Union asked permission to run a telegraph line to the court room during the trial for news service. This request was referred to the board of supervisors committee on grounds of which Harry Gartrell is chairman and has not yet been granted.

Frechette's father sat beside his son during the hearing and said he was convinced of his innocence and was going to help him.

Current Comment

By an unholy combination the Federation of Labor and the old guard Republicans have temporarily throttled the four billion dollar relief bill by writing in a prevailing wage amendment instead of a subsistence wage rate. This is a relief measure pure and simple and there is absolutely no necessity for paying the prevailing wage for relief work. If this is adopted the workers would make no effort to find other jobs and the emergency public works program would become a permanent organization instead of a temporary one as now intended. The people should remember that if this public works program is not adopted, nothing else can be done but the direct dole. We can find no grounds for the stand taken by the Federation of Labor. They want their organization recognized and this is the means taken to force it. The stand-pat Republicans and Conservatives are voting against their convictions just to make trouble and hinder the relief work. Therefore they are forgetting their pledges to rise above party and provide as far as possible a national government. The brightest ray is that the two factions, the stand-patters and Federation of Labor, have nothing in common and can not hold together long.

Parole Commissioner Joseph Armstrong, great exponent of capital punishment, took office with fanfare of publicity and announced that after a prison sentence would mean a prison sentence and the abuse of the parole power would end. Several judges evidently took his utterance in earnest and accordingly we find Judge Gillespie of Pontiac handing out sentences in which both minimum and maximum sentence was five years. Judge Doty of Pontiac followed suit and so did Judge White of Berrien county. Was Mr. Armstrong pleased at such support of his views by the judiciary? Not at all. He broke forth with severe criticism and even urged the families of the sentenced men to appeal the sentences. He contended that such sentences violated the immediate law and kept him in jail. Consequently, if all judges followed suit there would be no need of a parole commissioner which may be would be just as well.

There is a strong stream of propaganda appearing in the public press to get the law providing publicity on the names of income tax payers repealed. The law may be wrong, but we have seen no reasons yet given that are sufficient for its repeal. The two main ones are that kidnappers and ransom lists eagerly and hold for ransom those who pay incomes. The second reason is that when it is found that firms, apparently making money, pay no income tax, they will lose their credit ratings. Neither of these reasons will hold water. The kidnappers don't need to scan any income tax reports to find out who is capable of paying ransom. Neither does Dunne, Bradstreet or any other credit rating company to find out whether a person's credit is good. Maybe this would show who the big money men who entered the millionaire class of 1914.

Lapeer is trying out a new livestock marketing scheme. For many years the marketing had a monopoly on the marketing of livestock and ran a weekly train to Detroit for shipment of stock. The trucks cut into this business and began to absorb it until at the present time they have practically all of it. E. O. Prince, a Lapeer stock buyer has leased ground of the Grand Trunk R. R. at Lapeer and will build modern stock yards costing $12,000. Here he will pay terminal prices for all stock brought in, saving the farmer the cost of hauling the stock to Detroit. This new experiment will be watched with interest and if successful, may be adopted elsewhere.

According to the weekly letter written by Vern Brown appearing in certain papers the patronage question is making a wreck of Gov. Fitzgerald and threatens to be a rock on which the party may split. Night and day the governor is bombarded with requests for jobs and even his wife is not immune from these self-seekers. In one letter she was asked to use her influence on the governor at meeting time in behalf of a job hunter.

We can't say that we are overly enthusiastic over Senator Harry Hitt's bill for a two-year moratorium on wage garnishments. The garnishment was one of the best methods of collection open to the merchant, although it was often used only as a threat.

ANCIENT RABBIT HAIR

Hairs from clothing worn by people inhabiting the Southwest more than fifteen centuries ago were recently identified as those of rabbits by a biologist of the bureau of biological survey, co-operating with the Museum of Northern Arizona at Flagstaff. The hairs, for the most part in a good state of preservation, were obtained from a "Basket Marker II" burial cave in northeastern Arizona by the 1934 Rainbow Bridge-Monument Valley expedition. The biologist reports that they differ little from those of the present-day cottontail.—Literary Digest.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outwits Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment, from which, by McNamara's orders, she is removed to the chief's home. From one of the men in the boat on which the girl escaped McNamara learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin. He also discovers that she is heiress to $25,000. Fearful of McNamara in his official capacity, Nance flees Lanny and her in her apartment, sound asleep. Several days later her partially restored memory leads her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her girlhood in France.

"Quit that," Lanny commanded in her most ferocious manner. "If I hadn't found you lovely I wouldn't have you in my house this minute. I'd turn you over to Flynn and Angellotti. By the way," she continued, "how did you get that sock on the beeper?"

"Father took me to a baseball game and a long drive flew into the bleachers and struck me on the nose, Lanny, you mustn't use slang. It isn't polite."

"I wrap myself around a highball when I'm tired or want to be sociable, and I smoke cigarettes," Lanny protested. "I suppose a perfect lady wouldn't do those things, either?"

"A perfect lady may without marring her perfection, old fuss-budget. That's a matter of personal liberty, and only becomes distressing when carried to excess. But there's no excuse for a highly intelligent and cultured woman to employ the language of the streets."

"I have my human moments," Lanny excused herself meekly.

"I'll set the table in the dining room. Won't you order some flowers? And Lanny—I'll do something for you some day."

"For instance?"

"Well, have you ever been to Europe?"

"Certainly not."

"Then I'll take you."

"I accept the nomination. In return I'll do something else for you. I'll have that nose of yours split open, the shattered bone of the bridge scraped out and a cute little piece of pliable cartilage whittled off one of your spare ribs, and grafted into your funny nose to form a new bridge. Then the doctor will sew your nose together again over it."

"What's the difference between having a nose like a Pekinese and a makeshift with a big scar on it, I'd like to know?"

"Oh, there won't be any scar, dearie. The surgeon will cut a strip of epidermis off your forehead and without detaching it from your forehead, bring the flap down, drape it over your new scarred nose and graft it there. It will grow and cover the scar, and when everything's lovely, that skin connection with your forehead will be severed and the ragged edges trimmed and presently nature will do the rest. Six months after the operation I'll defy anybody but an expert to discover you've got a custom-made nose."

"The girl's eyes shone. 'Is it true, Lanny, is it true? It's so hard to believe in miracles.'"

"Science pulls 'em off daily, my dear."

Nance changed the subject. "Here, here, we're gabbling like a pair of geese. The linen, woman, where's the linen? Off with your hat and coat. While you're getting it I'll run upstairs and get your mules."

"After dinner I must do some more pumping," thought Lanny. "The information will be invaluable to Stephen. Strange case! Total amnesia sometimes, only partial amnesia at others. Dreadful mixture."

When Dan McNamara came home about midnight from the regular weekly meeting of the police commission, he found his ex-convict guest up and waiting for him. "I had two burglars here tonight, about ten o'clock, Chief," he announced.

The chief sat down and loaded his pipe. "I was expecting them, my boy. Did they ask you any questions?"

"Did they take the lipstick?" Dan asked.

"They didn't take it, they looked at it," McNamara sighed. "The case was getting a little thick for him when it became complicated with lipsticks. He went to the telephone and got Stephen Burt out of bed."

"Did a certain party, while a guest at my house, ask you to bring out a lipstick when you called in the course of your professional duties, Doctor?"

"Oh, yes."

"Thanks. Goodnight," McNamara hung up and went to the room lately occupied by Nance Belden. On the bureau he found a lipstick. "Vanity is always the undoing of a crook," he sighed and went to bed, greatly troubled in his mind at what was, to him, indubitable knowledge that Flynn and Angellotti, even though they had failed to find their quarry, must be convinced, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that he had harbored an escaped convict in his home.

He passed a sleepless night, but he did some solid thinking, so there was no lost time. He had hoped, by providing this sick convict as an excuse for Doctor Burt's nightly visits, to throw Flynn and Angellotti off the scent—and now the scent was hotter than ever.

"Now, what will they do? They're morally certain she went to Lanny's house the night she escaped and that Lanny got her out of there in the nick of time and took her here. Now that she's escaped them here they may suspect she's doubled back to Lanny's house. Murderation! However, those two dicks will never bother her without fortifying themselves with a search warrant. They'd be too afraid of me. But with a search warrant and the girl to show for their pains they'll have me foul. I couldn't open my mouth—if they bring the girl into headquarters I'll have to give them a cheer and congratulate them."

He decided Flynn and Angellotti would sleep on their evidence and the suspicions it had aroused, compare notes in the morning and decide upon a course of action. They would have to adduce some nominal evidence to support their suspicion before the district attorney would consent to issue the search warrant, for a search warrant is not issued lightly. In the morning they would induce some stoolpigeon to tell the district attorney that he had seen Nance Belden's face at the window of Lanny's home. Possibly they might induce the patrolman on that beat to stretch the truth a little.

"Science Pulls 'Em Off Daily, My Dear."

"I can't get Nance out of Lanny's house tonight and I can't get her out in daylight tomorrow, but I must get her out, tomorrow night," he decided. "But how?"

He was at his office at eight next morning. At eight-thirty he looked into the detectives' room and saw Flynn and Angellotti in profound conference. Half an hour later he stepped out of a taxi two blocks from Lanny's house, and when the cab had disappeared, he made his way to the house and was admitted by Lanny.

"Nance has got to make a clean getaway," he assured her earnestly. "Because tonight Flynn and his pal may come with a search warrant. The district attorney will probably call me up before he issues it and I'll have to tell him to go ahead and issue it, in order to allay suspicion. Now, here are half a dozen harmless hand grenades that burst on impact. Three of them are tear gas bombs and three are stink bombs."

"Now, I'll tell you exactly how they'll make the pinch. They'll not come during the day, because they'll know you aren't at home and that Nance wouldn't answer that bell anyhow. But tonight, one of them will ring the front doorbell and shove the search warrant under your nose and step inside. The other will, in the meantime, have gone around to your back door to prevent the girl's escape in that direction. There's a cement floor around your kitchen door, is there not?"

"Yes, well, when the doorbell rings, you answer it. That will be Nance's tip to peek out the second story window and lob three bombs down on the chemist beside whoever she sees standing there. They explode with a sound like a gunshot and diffuse their gas almost instantly over a considerable area. Now, whichever one goes to the back door will never be expecting a citizen to shower this sort of bomb down on him, because they are not accessible to citizens; so he will think they're electric light bulbs tossed down to scare him away. By the way, have Nance toss one electric light bulb down first and then follow with two tear bombs—here, I'll make a mark with my pencil on the tear bombs. Before he realizes what has happened he'll be weeping like Niobe and unable to see anything in the darkness."

"But bear this in mind, Lanny. He'll not desert his post. He'll hug the back door and be ready to grab her when she comes. He'll stick it out. That's the time Nance must drop a stink bomb beside him."

"Meanwhile the man in front will hear the explosions. If the one in back cries out, the one in front will figure he has been shot and will run to the back door to help him. As he opens the back door his pal will grab him. You must follow at his heels and shut and bolt the door instantly, or you'll get yours, too. There will be a momentary struggle between Flynn and Angellotti in the dark because the front door man will think he has the scoundrel that hurried the bombs; and by the time they discover each other's identity, the front door man will be as sightless and ill as the back door man."

"Nance, a word to you now."

"My name is Penelope Gatlin, Dan."

"My error, Penelope, the instant you drop those first two bombs shut down the window. And, remember, all the lights in the rear of the house and particularly in the kitchen must be turned off. When the front door man is struggling with his pal and Lanny has closed the door, his scream will be your cue to open the window again, just long enough to pay the rest of your eggs on the scrimmage. You must be dressed for the street and have some money in your pocket. Got any?"

"No."

"Here's two hundred."

"I'll send you my check. Thanks." And she took the money.

"Immediately after tossing the last of the bombs, close the window and beat it downstairs and out the front door. I'll leave a coupe, with the motor running, parked at the curb across the street. Can you drive?"

"I can drive, Dan."

"Very well, then. Climb into the car and beat it."

"Beat it where?"

"Los Angeles, San Diego, anywhere. Keep on going, and when you get there, send me a wire to the central station merely giving your address. Then lay low until somebody comes after you. Keep off the street. Lanny, you must disguise her nose. Clamp a wadding of cotton and a neat dressing over it to hide the dish in it. Any lady is liable to have an injury to her nose and wear a dressing on it. Now, is everything understood?"

Nance nodded, and Lanny's silence gave consent. "You'll probably get a whiff of what's good for Flynn and Angellotti," McNamara advised Lanny, "but you'll get over it. When you lob over the last of your rotten eggs, Penelope, do not breathe, and close your eyes tightly until you have closed the window again. Then—out of the house like a shot. This plan of mine is fool-proof if followed absolutely, but it's you for San Quentin again if it isn't, my brave lassie, and all the chiefs of police in town cannot help you then."

CHAPTER VIII

"Thank you, sir," said Nance politely and with quiet dignity. "You are most kind to take this trouble for a stranger, and I shall never forget it." And she held out her hand.

McNamara looked in puzzlement at Lanny. "What's happened to her?" he demanded.

"I'll explain to you some time. You're a brilliant chief of police and you've figured everything out to a gnat's eyelash for Penelope, but what's going to happen to me?"

"The concoction of the plan I've just outlined has given me brain fag, Lanny. It's cost me a night's sleep. I don't know what's going to happen to you and I don't care much. You're a smart woman, and if you can't figure a way out of your end of the mess don't call on me for help."

"I wish I could relish that compliment," Lanny retorted dryly. "However, if you think I'm not going to laugh myself sick over this you're a poor judge of women. Good-by, you old crook, and God bless you. Kiss him, Penelope."

A becoming modesty caused the girl to hesitate just a little, then she came to the chief and implanted a most ladylike kiss on his blue jaw. "You're very kind, Mr. McNamara," she assured him again.

"Cripes," he muttered and went off. Dan McNamara's estimate of the ability of Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angellotti did them no injustice; indeed, they proved even smarter than their chief credited them with being. Angellotti's adventure with Dan McNamara they passed over as an unavoidable accident; Angellotti was certain McNamara had not recognized him. He felt certain McNamara had no suspicion that his house was under surveillance, although Flynn had mental reservations on that point, for the Irish are a psychic race.

After watching Doctor Burt enter and leave the chief's house on Thursday night, when they knew the chief would not be home until midnight, they decided to investigate. The unlocked cellar door gave them pause; Flynn whispered that he was always suspicious of things that came too easy. They crept upstairs and found Dan McNamara's ex-convict guest reading in bed. Both detectives recognized him, so while Angellotti guarded him Flynn made a hurried but thorough search of the premises. They were not in the house more than five minutes.

TRUE GHOST STORIES

By IRVING BERLIN
Famous Composer

ONLY the person who suffers from insomnia knows the ravages and terrors of the still night hours before the dawn of day.

Through the night lulling tunes and haunting melodies come to Irving Berlin, the famous composer; but sleep eludes him.

"Once during a hot summer night," Mr. Berlin related, "I was staying at a small Broadway hotel during the production of one of my first musical comedies.

"Tired out from the work of rehearsals, I could have fallen into a light sleep, but I was disturbed by the snoring of the man in the next room. I paced the floor. The snoring grew louder and weirder. It was uncanny. At four o'clock it stopped, and I fell asleep for a few minutes, only to be awakened again by the regularity of the harsh notes. I slept by fits and starts.

"At six o'clock I remember I was awake.

"Frantically, I walked into the hall. The snoring man's door was open. I pushed aside the ventilating screen. An empty white-rock bottle caught my eye. I picked it up and, with one blow, brought it down with revenge upon the man's head. It shattered into hundreds of pieces. Blood trickled down the man's face. This was horrible.

"The next thing I knew a hand was grasping my arm. I could feel it, but could not see it. Was it the dead man's ghost? I tried hard to visualize it—was it the hand of a spirit detective?—reached up to push the hand away.

"Wake up," roared a bellboy, who was tugging at my arm. 'You left a call for seven o'clock. Hope you had a nice night's sleep,' he added, jauntily. 'The man in the next room has complained that he dreamed he heard the noise of some one walking back and forth, back and forth, all night. Hope you didn't hear anything queer!'

By JOAN CRAWFORD
Motion Picture Actress

SINCE childhood, I have been afraid of darkness. It is a fear which embodies nothing definite; but complete darkness terrifies me. Consequently, I always leave a dim light burning in the dressing room which opens from my bedroom," said Joan Crawford.

"A short time ago I had an amazing experience. One night at eleven o'clock this lamp flickered fitfully, almost going out completely and then burning again. I paid little attention to it, thinking something was wrong with the current. When the same thing happened the next night, at the same hours, eleven and twelve, I called in an electrician to test the wiring at the house, and of the lamp. Nothing wrong was found.

"On the third night we stayed home just to watch the lights. We turned them on all over the house, at eleven o'clock, but that in the dressing room behaved in the same peculiar fashion. I did not want to go out to dance or sing. On the fourth night, I moved from my room to one of the guest rooms, but because of my silly fear of the dark, which I know psychologists would say I should have overcome in my childhood, I left a light burning in the hall outside my room. At eleven o'clock that light began to flicker and a few minutes before twelve, it went out entirely. We were completely mystified.

"The next morning I received a wire from New York telling me that one of my oldest friends, a woman who had been very kind to me in the early days of my career, had died at midnight the night before.

"The telegram stated that four nights before my friend had been taken to the hospital for an emergency operation, that she had been operated on approximately at eleven o'clock, and that she had hovered between life and death during the period when I had trouble with my dressing room lamp.

"My lights went back to their usual steady behavior after that fourth night. I can't explain it. Perhaps there was something defective in the current—perhaps not."

The Mason and Dixie Line

The Mason and Dixie Line was the name given to the boundary between two American states, Maryland and Pennsylvania; the name was derived from the two English astronomers, Mason and Dixon, who surveyed the boundary in 1763.

This line formed part of the boundary between the states which continued to keep slaves and those which didn't. The result is that the phrase, "Mason and Dixie Line" is now widely used as meaning the whole of that boundary.—Answers Magazine.

Piano Invented in 1720

In its present form the piano was invented in 1720, but before it came the clavichord, the spinet, and the harpsichord. In all these the music was produced by quills which plucked the strings. It was not until the piano was designed that hammers were used to strike the strings.

THIS FROCK "JUST RIGHT" FOR PLAY

For a tiny girl's play or school frock nothing could be very much nicer than this adorable little bloomer frock with its quaint over-the-shoulder yoke and prettily puffed sleeves. The frock is simple to slip into, too, buttoning up the front, with only three buttons to be fastened. And it allows plenty of room for romping—the skirt is gathered to the yoke at the back and box-pleated in front. A smart checked or plaid wool or cotton would be pretty for this frock—little girls always seem to love gay colors—and be sure to make up four or five of these crisp white collars in linen or pique. The bloomers, by the way, are included in this pattern.

Pattern 9086 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 2½ yards 36 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included. Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighth Street, New York.

"Of course," answered Cactus Joe. "We was havin' one quarrel after another, and we jes' decided to let political leaders take the full responsibility for carryin' on the argument."

Not Particular

"May I call on you?" Jinks asked the girl he met at the dance.

"Certainly not! I wouldn't think of it!" she snapped.

"Oh, I didn't mean tonight," he countered. "I meant one wet and miserable night, when I have nothing better to do."

No Wonder

"Is somebody sick at your house, Johnny?" asked the neighbor. "I saw the doctor going in there last night."

"Yep, pop is," replied the kid. "The stork brought mom triplets."

HOMEMAKER'S CORNER

by

Home Economics Specialists

Michigan State College

Source and variety have an important bearing on the price of oranges, home economics institution management directors at Michigan State College say.

Florida oranges, which are primarily the juice stock, are priced lower than California fruit on the markets in this section of the country. Of the two varieties produced in California, the Washington Navel and the Valencia, the latter is the more expensive, not because it is a better orange, but because it is the only orange offered on the market in the summer.

Oranges are an all-year-round product. However, there is a seasonal aspect in the price of oranges.

During the winter months, oranges are plentiful and the prices moderately low. In the summer, the supply is limited to one variety and the prices are somewhat higher than during the remainder of the year.

The two peaks should not be overlooked by the consumer. One is at the end of the Washington Navel season in the spring, and the other at the end of the Valencia season in the autumn.

Since orange sizes are influenced by cyclical production, it is economical to buy small sized fruit for juice during a year of heavy crop. During a year of light crop, when the larger sizes are more abundant, the juice from small sizes actually costs more per quart than an equivalent yield from larger sizes.

The difference in price between grade one and grade two oranges is sufficient to warrant the consideration of the second quality for use where appearance is not an important factor.

Officials of the Secretary of State's office refute the belief of many that only financial stringency dictates the purchase of stickers. Two common reasons which often explain stickers: some car owners intend to buy new cars prior to August 1, final date for use of stickers; some firms with fleets of cars, prefer holding 50 percent of their license money until it is actually necessary to spend it, as a matter of business principle. With most commercial firms, though, desire to prevent a false impression dictates purchase of full plates, regardless.

While all states have been advised of Michigan's sticker system, in states requiring only rear plates, police officers are attracted only to the rear of passing cars. The sight of a 1934 plate there, has already resulted in some Michigan drivers being stopped until the stickers on the front windshield may be inspected. In any state delay, loss of time and inconvenience may result from the use of a 1934 plate. Atwood had previously advised drivers against taking their cars out of the state, with neither new plates or stickers, during the current extension until mid-eight March 14, 1935 old plates.

The first financial return to the state, as the result of the recent upholding of the constitutionality of the state's corporation privilege tax law, by the United States supreme court, was received recently. It was a check for $7,526.50 from the Detroit International Bridge company for 1933 and 1934 corporation privilege fees. This is the firm which appealed the ruling of the state supreme court, contending that it was exempt from the law on the ground it was engaged in foreign commerce. The firm operates Ambassador bridge at Detroit. Many corporations owning property used in carrying on commerce, including bridge, tunnel and dock firms, would have been exempt had the high court not acted in the way it did.

In the fast moving stream of applications for 1935 car licenses, one for a 1912 White Steamer roadster, was noted. Its owner Francis N. Wickham, 591 Lakeview Avenue, Birmingham, reports the car as running well. The applicant received license F-1912, appropriately enough.

OUTSTATE DRIVERS SHOULD GET PLATES

Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State, has advised car owners expecting to drive outside the state, to equip their cars with full year 1935 plates, if possible, rather than merely with stickers.

While all states have been advised of Michigan's sticker system, in states requiring only rear plates, police officers are attracted only to the rear of passing cars. The sight of a 1934 plate there, has already resulted in some Michigan drivers being stopped until the stickers on the front windshield may be inspected. We are all BLIND in the dark!

Eyes need light. You can't see anything without light. And there is a proper amount of light for every seeing task. Of course, you could read by the light of an open fireplace but it strains vision and does much more damage than our eyes tell us. The low simple rules which follow form a good guide to adequate home lighting. In the table or floor lamp, look to your eyes, chair, you should have correct size lamp bulbs. "WATTS." If it is a three-socket lamp, there should be 10 watts in each socket; if a two-socket lamp, 20 watts in each socket; if a one-socket lamp, 40 watts. All lamps in your house should have SHADERS to prevent GLARES. Whenever possible, use shades with light-colored linings to get the most light. With shades open at the top, are best. Finally, have at least one tenth as much light in the rest of the room as you have on your desk, newspaper, sewing, etc.

CHINESE DINNER PARTY

An English woman living in Siam, writes about a Chinese dinner. "Before the meal hot scented cloths were handed round on which the guests wiped their hands. No plates, knives, or forks were provided. The food was placed in a big dish in the middle of the table, and the guests helped themselves. For soup a china spoon and individual bowl were provided. Meat was taken out of the dish with chopsticks. The following was the menu: (1) Crab meat and potato fritters; (2) shark's fin soup; (3) pigeon soup; (4) duck skin (the skin alone is roasted and eaten with a red sauce between bread); (5) pigeon's eggs stewed with mushrooms; (6) turtle soup with lotus seeds; (7) mushrooms stuffed with fish; (8) baked fish with ginger sauce; (9) rice with dried fish eggs, ginger, etc.; (10) rich custard, with fresh fruit and jelly; (11) China tea in bowls without milk or sugar.

"Hot scented cloths were again handed round, and this time they were much needed."

Chic Worsteds for Suit and Ensemble

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN it comes to topnotch swank, audacious color schemes and versatile weaves the new worsteds which go to make up the spring suits and ensembles have arrived at a dramatic moment in their career.

It is nothing uncommon in the advance spring styles parade for an ensemble to be fashioned of a skirt of one woolen, a blouse of another with the jacket, coat or long coat still another type and color. Yet in the final analysis the entire outfit will have correlated into a perfect unit of highest artistry.

The call of the immediate mode is for the suave and slim fitted tailored suit which has a related, topcoat of heavier wool to go with it. The ensemble to the left in the picture is typical of the new suit-with-topcoat movement. The skirt and jacket is of light oxford gray wool, with a long top raglan of two-tone stripe novelty woolen. Later this topcoat can be worn as a separate wrap with other dresses.

Centered in the group is a two-piece tailleur with button trim from neck to hem with a brown oxford topcoat held in readiness, its color being complementary to the brown and white check of the suit. As to checks and stripes and plaids they are all the rage in every conceivable mood of color and weave.

To the right is an early spring arrival—a coat made of a "nifty" new woolen of intriguing novelty. The check is achieved via a shaggy sur-facted cord on a navy blue background. Navy, by the way, is at the top of the list of important colors for spring. Buttons above the waistline as employed in the fastening of this coat and the unusually wide belt are also featured details in the incoming fashions. The wide collar is of navy woolen which is quilted in wide welts. Volumes could be written about the new quilted, stitched and shirred effects which embellish dresses, coats, hats and everything in sight which is quiltable, stitchable or shirtable.

The new "companion woollens" brought out this season provide endless opportunity to designers to work out striking and original fashions. A laceweave tweed for the suit with a lighter weight wool for the blouse done in overchecks of white, the ground color matching the color of the suit material gives some faint idea of the handsome combinations in store for fashion's followers this season.

Another model consists of a fitted suit in cinnamon brown wool with a loose topcoat in the same woolen which is striped in white. Then again a light and soft texture suiting in diagonal weave is apt to have a companion woolen in interesting plaid patterning which introduces bright colors and it is even possible to detect an interweaving of gold or silver metal threads.

Rustic weaves in coatings are high style for sportswear, such as a basket weave check in soft spongy texture, one color running one way and a contrasting shade running the other, also handknit and carpet-weave effects which are colorful and sturdy in appearance.

MUST HAVE VELVET TOUCH TO ENSEMBLE

Even if you don't want to wear a velvet frock or suit this year, there should be a touch of velvet about you if you are to be truly smart and luxurious looking.

A turban of velvet ribbon done with intricate twists and drapings is always good when worn by the picturesque or exotic type. The tall Russian hats of sleek velvet also are good, as are the pill-box hats with rhinestone ornaments and flirtatious veil. These are nice to nestle in huge, upstanding fur coat collars.

Then, too, there are afternoon bags of velvet, many of them shirred and trimmed with rhinestone or mirror ornaments.

Though Clothes Are Very Chic, They Are Practical

Clothes are ever so smart this season, but at no time have the designers lost sight of the practical. Thus we have tunics that are strikingly elaborate, yet they will give new life to an old evening frock, or a long, slim skirt. These tunics come in beautiful fabric, sometimes they are rhinestone studded or else they have bands of spangles. One beautiful model that we saw was of heaviest lame in silver and green. The very draped neck was caught in front with a jeweled ornament, and braelets caught the loose sleeves into tight cuffs. This could go over an evening dress to make a lovely outfit.

Frothiness

Net dresses, sometimes complemented by capes, all are marked by extreme frothiness about the neck, shoulders and hem lines. Black, turquoise, pink, brown and peach are the favorite colors in order of their popularity.

Sport Sweaters

The smartest of sports sweaters show a decided English influence in their conformation to more or less simple and classic styles, softest yarns and unusual pastel off-tones.

Co-Operation in Problem of Curbing Insects Advocated as Only Effective Method

The control of many insect pests is essentially a problem of the North American continent, not of Canada, or of Mexico, or of the United States alone, according to Lee A. Strong, chief of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, United States Department of Agriculture. National boundary lines mean nothing to these insects, Mr. Strong says. So why, he asks, should each nation undertake to deal individually with pests that attack the forests, fields, orchards and gardens of more than one of the North American countries?

Through internationally co-ordinated programs, Mr. Strong points out, definite results have already been obtained in the face of apparently insuperable difficulties. Co-operative grasshopper surveys and control operations in the northwestern states and in the southwestern provinces of Canada, for example, proved effective in suppressing recent grasshopper outbreaks on both sides of the border. Moreover, Canada and the United States have profited alike from joint action on European corn borer control and on gypsy moth eradication in adjacent areas.

Notable also, Mr. Strong continues, have been the results of entomological co-operation with countries to the south. With the aid of the Mexican authorities, the United States Department of Agriculture has succeeded in keeping the Mexican fruit fly from becoming generally established in the Rio Grande valley of Texas. By this co-operative effort, Mexican fruit growers were also helped in the control of the fruit fly in its native home below the Rio Grande.

Co-operative work on the citrus black fly in Cuba has reduced the numbers of that fly until it is no longer a serious pest in Cuban orchards and the likelihood of spread into Florida is materially lessened. The black fly was controlled within a few years by a parasite from Asia. Entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture found that this parasite checked the black fly in Malaya and, with the aid of the Cuban government, introduced it into the island's citrus groves.

International co-operation, Mr. Strong believes, is just as essential for research as for insect pest eradication and control. All control and eradication programs, he points out, must be based on the results of entomological studies. "I can conceive of no finer, more necessary type of conservation," he says, "than the control or elimination, whenever and wherever possible, of those forms of animal life which destroy the good things for society and contribute nothing good to society. To that end, I am for more and, if necessary, larger pest control and extermination programs based on more and better co-ordinated programs of research."

NURSERY BLOCKS CROCHETED RUG

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

This crocheted rug called "Nursery Blocks" is made up of small blocks in different color combinations, assembled and then a border crocheted all around. Each block measures about 8 inches and outer border 4 inches, making a finished size 33 by 50 inches, and requires about 5 lbs. of rag strip material.

A rug made of blocks and then assembled enables you to make a rug in any size or color desired. Make the blocks in any size. Arrange color scheme to suit particular room in which it is to be used, or make it of bit and miss colors and use it anywhere. Either way it remains a practical rug, and easily made up in spare time.

Full instructions for this rug and 25 others can be found in rug book No. 25, containing crocheted and braided rugs, also instructions for crocheted stitches used and how to prepare your rag materials for use. This book will be sent to you post-paid upon receipt of 15c.

Old Ideas Reversed?

The common belief is that the terms "elching vine" and "sturdy oak" are no longer applicable to the male and female species of the human race. It has occurred to us that perhaps they are still applicable but in reverse order to the old custom.

All the women employees of this office were on the job before eight o'clock when the mercury was below zero Monday morning, but several of the men couldn't get here until later because they couldn't find a way to ride down.—Chanute Tribune.

Scientific Wonder

Heat into sound is an amazing transformation accomplished by scientists. The warmth of a hand held near the device makes it emit a low growl; lighting a match a few feet away draws a snarl for an answer. The invention can be adjusted so that it is sensitive to a burning match 40 or 50 feet away.

According to any doctor you ask, the only safe way is never to give your child a remedy you don't know all about, without asking him first.

So—always say Phillips' when you buy. And, for your own peace of mind, see that your child gets this; the finest men know.

Constipated?

The doctors say... Use liquid treatment

Here is the soundest advice anyone can give on the subject of laxatives. It is based on medical opinion. We want you to have the benefit of this information no matter what laxative you may buy:

The secret of real relief from constipation is reduced dosage. You can't regulate the bowels unless you can regulate the help you give them. That is why doctors use a liquid laxative; the dose can be measured to a drop.

Avoid laxatives that you can't cut down in dosage; especially those that seem to require larger doses than when you began their use.

Under the doctor's care, you usually get a liquid laxative. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. Smaller and smaller doses—until you don't need any.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—natural laxatives that form no habit.

BEAUTY AND DIGNITY MARK QUIET CEREMONY

This morning at nine o'clock Mrs. Frances O. Bucy, daughter of Mr. Emanuel Bucy of Bellair, and Mr. Leo G. Hocy, son of Mrs. Daniel H. Hocy of Dexter, spoke their vows before the Reverend Allan J. Babcock, Mrs. George F. Walsh Jr. of Dexter attended the bride while Dr. Edward M. Hocy of Lansing acted as best man.

The bride chose as her gown a navy crepe suit with navy accessories and a shoulder corsage of Tullahoma roses. Mrs. Walsh wore a liberty blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast for the immediate families was served at Motor Inn, VanBlaricum Lake.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Hocy will be at home in Dexter. Dexter Leader.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

"Malice to All—Charity to None" A the big dance Friday nite we failed to see handsome Howie—what the matter, didn't you give your popular girl friend six month's notice?

About the only other patronages missing were the "Sonny Streak" and the "Tantalizing Terry."

However, our own charming Cook was present to be the belle of the ball.

And didn't Bob and Doc blossom out with brand-new girl friends for the affair. We hear it was the first date for Bob's fair Miss.

Say, Parkie and Harry, since when has "Home, Sweet Home" been the up-tilt dance number? Or maybe you just wanted to be alone?

We finally caught a glimpse of the Ann Arbor ravishing red-head. Too bad she lives so far away.

While at the chop suey supper, we heard that D. Short liked brunettes (no kidding)—and what's that, he had one (kidding)?

—Taken from a longer poem: "I sit and gaze upon the floor, My mind drifts stray to the nite before."

The Oriental atmosphere went well with Mrs. Lavey's corsage, or should we say the corsage went well with the atmosphere? At any rate, they certainly went well together.

The Oriental atmosphere affected some of them to such an extent that they went "frazzled" after the performance and gave Brighton a break.

Didn't Algor and Willa make a smashing "Mr. and Mrs.?"

It is our opinion that Marjorie and Al should grace the N. B. C. with a vocal harmony plus——Shouldn't get a hand from the orchestra in performing performance.

—The printer's daughters but not the mother type!

—Mrs. Lavey, Brighton attorney, is moving the building on Grand River Ave. to an office building. He will have his offices on the first floor and the second will be occupied by Dr. Lavey, dentist, and Arthur Gibson, insurance broker.

Philathea Notes

Philathea and friends should keep in mind the next regular monthly meeting of the class to be held on March 13, with Mrs. Pauline Vedder, at which time the roll call letter will be "M".

Wanted! More minutes in our Philathea lesson hour for the many good points that Mrs. Zuse brings to us. On Sunday we found Peter unmasking falsehood and hypocrisy, and this coming Sunday he is overcoming racial and national prejudices. Come with us while we study about Christ's world-wide Gospel.

Our sympathy goes out to those who are sorrowing at this time, and who can derive comfort from the words, "For whom the Lord loveth, he chasteneth."

Such a splendid thought provoking sermon on Sunday. As "lovers of truth," the Philatheas should get much help from such messages from the pulpit.
