PATTERN 9226

You'll have no moment of dark despair if an old friend comes in to see you unexpectedly and you're dressed in this nicely tailored house frock! For it's especially designed to flatter larger figures, and fashioned along lines as chic as a street or sports frock. The sleeves, cut in one with that pretty, double-pointed yoke, have a little inverted pleat to make them jaunty and oh! so comfortable to work in! And the neat panel at the front sweeps all the way from hem to yoke to give you a long, slim line. If you'd be practical as well as attractive, choose a gaily printed cotton fabric, gingham, percale, lawn or seersucker, as they launder so beautifully and wear so well.

Pattern 9226 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Richberg's Job

Washington. — The President has placed Donald R. Richberg, his closest adviser, in the job as head of the National Recovery administration. Mr. Richberg will be chairman of the National Industrial Recovery board which has now been enlarged to the number of seven, and it is proposed that this group, divided between labor and capital representation, will guide the policies and programs as well as the enforcement of NRA.

It may be that Mr. Richberg's appointment should be given only passing notice. Political appointments in Washington are many and the addition of one more normally would not attract attention. It appears, however, that in this particular instance considerable significance should be attached to the appointment. It will have repercussions in more ways than one.

This brings us to the question of the future NRA. As we all know NRA legislation in the house and senate is encountering rough sailing. There are so many different ideas being put forward about the principle of NRA that thus far it has been exceedingly difficult to reconcile them. Since the present national industrial recovery act expires by limitation of law on June 16, congress faces the necessity of enactment of new legislation or allowing the present law to die and the codes under it to fall apart.

Selection of Mr. Richberg on the basis of these facts then would seem to indicate that Mr. Roosevelt had picked his best soldier to fight the battle; that Mr. Richberg, being eyes and ears for Mr. Roosevelt, would be the individual to guide the President in choice of policy and that his most trusted adviser would be the man to put forward details of the proposed NRA extension legislation. The undercurrent of gossip around Washington, however, indicates something else.

In the first instance, Mr. Richberg is in bad with organized labor, and he has shown no disposition lately to make peace despite the fact that he was for years the representative of railway labor unions. Mr. Richberg it was who clashed with General Johnson and who is regarded, therefore, as indirectly responsible for General Johnson's resignation as national recovery administrator. The new chairman thus goes into his job with threatening clouds on several sides.

It will not be forgotten, either, that such valiant campaigners as Senator Carter Glass and Senator Borah, not to mention the alleged progressive, Senator Nye, are waiting for the NRA legislation in the senate. Mr. Richberg's hide will look to them the same as any other hide. It is just possible, therefore, as some observers have suggested, that Mr. Richberg may have been put out as the lamb on the sacrificial altar.

Indeed, color is lent to this supposition by the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has taken little direct interest in promoting legislation extending the life of NRA. Thus far he has said that he desired to have the extension granted, but he has not turned on the steam as he is equipped to do, and as he has done for bills that were personal hobbies with him. It is made to appear, therefore, that perhaps there will be a disintegration of NRA as such and that the functions desired by the administration to be retained will be parceled out, some to the federal trade commission, some to the Labor department, and others of lesser consequence scattered elsewhere.

While we are discussing legislation, it may be well to consider what is being done about the program of extending credit to home owners in cities and towns through the machinery of the home loan board. The house has passed a bill which will increase by two billion, eight hundred million dollars the amount of funds available for loans of this type by the Home Owners' Loan corporation. This sum was approximately a billion dollars more than the home loan board thought was necessary, but the sight or thought of so much money started the members of the house on something like a riot, so they made ample funds available.

From reports filtering through to Washington, I think there can be no question but what the home loan system has been of help in thousands of cases. Undoubtedly availability of government money in this matter has saved unnumbered home owners from loss of their property where short-sighted mortgage holders have insisted upon undue curtailment or absolute repayment of the borrowed money. Extension of the system probably has resulted also in reduction of general interest rates by private lenders of capital. If they wanted their money to work at all, they had to meet the government competition. Whether the principle of government loans is sound in normal times is another horse. Time alone can tell. The activity of congress, especially in the house, indicates that there is a demand of some kind or other for these loans in preference to private capital and that necessarily must be considered as an influential factor.

As the legislation increasing the lending power of the Home Owners Loan corporation has progressed, however, I have taken occasion to inquire into operations of the corporation which is wholly government owned. From all I can learn it stands out as the finest illustration of what politicians can do in the way of building political machines that I have seen in a score of years in the National Capital.

It will be remembered that upon creation of the board former Representative "Seaboard Bill" Stephenson of South Carolina was named chairman. Mr. Stephenson, being more honest about politics than many others, announced unequivocally that appointments were going to be made on a political basis. He created quite a furor and finally found himself sidetracked.

For a time we here in Washington have heard little about politics in the home loan system. It has developed, however, that politics was not dead, but sleeping.

Peculiar Doings?

The loan corporation in carrying out the idea or policy of decentralization did some very peculiar things, according to well authenticated reports. Actually, I am told, some young men without previous practical experience or training were supplied with copies of the home loan act, given a ticket and ordered to the hinterland to open designated regional offices. Shortly thereafter out of the thousands of employees in the home office of the loan corporation individuals were called into the office of the directing heads and were ordered to go to one or the other of the newly opened establishments. They were told at the same time that their salaries would be reduced. In addition, I am reliably informed, hundreds of them have suffered further salary reductions since they have been on their new jobs.

While all of this has been going on, the corporation set up a board of four members in the headquarters before which remaining employees in the Washington office have been called for examination. This board was announced as for the purpose of determining which of the employees should be retained. They wanted to be fair about it and wanted to keep on the payroll such of the employees as were unable to get along without the jobs they were holding. It seems, however, that that board has become an inquisitorial body absolutely without precedent in the character of examination to which it subjects the employees. The result is that few, if any, of the employees of the loan corporation entertain any belief that they can stay on their jobs with any feeling of safety.

For example, one man's experience is quoted. He was asked whether he had money in the bank, and he had none. He was asked whether any of his people were on the relief rolls, and they were not. Numerous other questions, such as the rate he paid for his board and room and the cost of his laundry were put to him. He then was asked if he carried life insurance, and his answer that he did apparently was wrong. Although he was not told directly, the inference of questions put to him was that he could live two months if he cashed in his life insurance policy. At any rate he was dismissed.

But this is not all. Included in the bill which increases the amount of funds that may be loaned by the corporation is a line of legislation that will have the effect of expanding politics in the organization. Written into that bill are instructions that the corporation shall recall to Washington all of those employees who were dispatched to new jobs in the regional, state or district offices. Of course, no one can say yet authoritatively that when these workers are recalled they will be dismissed here. That, however, obviously is the result.

Courage Needed

Senator Gore of Oklahoma placed in the Congressional Record recently a telegram he had received and his reply to it that illustrates better than any recent incident how much courage is required by a national legislator to withstand the pressure from home. The occasion was consideration in the senate of the public works bill. The telegram received by the senator was signed by Joe A. Brown, the mayor of Hartshorne, Okla., and C. B. Lindsay, mayor of Halleyville, Okla. It follows:

"Several thousand Pittsburgh county unemployed people assembled in convention demand you support President Roosevelt's four billion dollar relief measure. If you vote against measure, sentiment is, you stay out of this county next senatorial race."

The following is the senator's reply: "This will acknowledge your exceedingly diplomatic and hospitable telegram. It shows how the dolt spoils the soul. Your telegram intimates that your votes are for sale. Much as I value votes I am not in the market. I cannot consent to buy votes with the people's money. I owe a debt to the taxpayer as well as the unemployed. I shall discharge both. None but the bully resorts to threats and none but the coward yields to them."

Millinery Stages Varied Program

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SUCH a bewildering variety of head-gear as fashion offers this season! There is positively no excuse for not being becomingly hatted this spring and summer, for it would seem that every known type with a few extras thrown in is answering "present" to the roll call in current millinery showings.

Bonnets! The millinery shops are full of 'em. Every sort of bonnet is represented in the new hat collections ranging from ingenue types to the sophisticated eye-impelling bonnets of Regency period inspiration.

A fine thing about a bonnet is that it shows up the new "bangs" to perfection. The taffeta trimmed bonnet to the upper right in the picture demonstrates this point to a nicety. The big bow at the throat is of self-same taffeta as the bow on the bonnet. Milliners are all enthusiasm over the taffeta (plain or plaided) neck-bow and hat "sets" which are selling at first sight. The bonnet to the left is quaint and youthful with flowers and ribbon which make it utterly feminine.

It may be that the voguish pill-box turban goes best with your features. This pert little style of headgear sure gives an up-and-going look to any spring outfit. Atop the curly-curly coiffures hairdressers are now advocating a pill-box hat declares convincing chic. The model centered below in the group is the perfect complement to a black crepe dress. It is of the modish black basket weave shiny straw, has two little black bows and flaunts an eyeline veil as most of these diminutive hats.

A fashion which is breathtaking in novelty and daring is the forward-move brim. Narrow at the sides is this type with a startling forward streamline sweep of the brim. To interpret the very quintessence of chic it must be tilted at a rakish angle down over the eyes. The smartness of these forward-brim hats is added unto with novel crown effects achieved via pleats and folds, eccentric peaks and spiral drapes often surmounted with amusing feather fancies or perky ribbon cocardes. Two models of this suggestion are illustrated below in the picture. The felt to the left is olive green with black and olive feather fancy. The finest of ballyhoo! straw in navy blue fashions the hat to the right. It has the new down-in-front and up-at-back movement.

The model centered above is a variation of the popular breton sailor. It is very youthful, made of navy taffeta, for you must know that millinery is yielding unreservedly to the taffeta craze which is now on. The pom-pom is of navy and white ostrich.

If you register in the sailor-conscious sorority it will be worth your while to tour the shops and see what's doing in the way of nifty exponents of this type. In Paris the low crowned sailor of shiny black straw is a big favorite. To wear the new sailors properly they must be saucily tilted over the eyes, with a veil to complete the picture.

Loyal to the beret are you? Well, fashion is willing, providing a very new look is achieved via a subtle drape or a topknot trim or a use of a novel fabric combination and always a little veil for the sake of chic. A matching scarf also adds a voguish note.

QUILTED VELVET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here is a lovely coat to wear to parties. When summer comes it will be just the thing to top your dainty lingerie frocks. It is smart and practical for resort year at any time of the year. Quilted crystalline velvet fashions it, and if you have the proper color urge you will select it in some one or other of the very new medium pastel tones. A big rhinestone pin adds chic worn on the waist.

Novelty Dress Clasp

Interlocking gold rings form an interesting type of clasp to fasten a wool tunic.

SHOW WIDE VARIETY IN SPRING PRINTS

To the woman who thinks of summer in terms of printed fabrics the new season will provide a perfect orgy. The dresses shown in downtown stores are typical of the new printed fabrics. Many motifs are much less widely spaced than in other springs.

The animal motifs, especially the Scottie print, are here. Break it gently that nutty prints are also in the shops. The designs are taken from photographic studies of nuts, and are very effective. Why not? There's a new porcelain clay process which produces the dearest white imaginable and in spite of a great furor over color, this clay-white print is greatly admired. A swing about the shops confirms the report that more prints have been shown this year than last. Certainly, there are more stripes, checks and plaids; and they are often printed. Stripes are just another of the regency touches that seem so desirable at the moment.

Irish Linen Expected to Be Favorite Next Summer

Irish linen has come to the fore as the leading fabric in the Paris fashion picture. Cables from the French capital promise that next spring and summer women will be wearing suits, dresses, hats, shoes, bags and even lingerie of fine Irish linen.

The fact that linen used to crush badly was responsible for its not having been more universally used before. It was always an ideal summer fabric, porous and cool, yet strong and long-wearing. Now Irish linen has been specifically processed, so that the linens which will be imported for next summer's fashions are as nearly uncrushable as any fabric.

Parasols Come Back

Tiny and colorful parasols made of synthetic straw silk with yard-long handles appear with spring sports and street afternoon clothes.

WORK RESUMED AT PATTERSON LAKE MESS HALL

The U. of M. Fresh Air Camp is located on the west shore of Patterson Lake, and was formerly known as the Hartshuff farm. It is heavily wooded, and has a good beach. Although this 200 acre tract is controlled by the University of Michigan, there is no tax levied for its support. The funds to finance all the building was raised by subscription, the bunk houses, kitchen and docks, all having been built by this method. Prof. Menefee of the University is at the head of it.

Although there are quite a few bunk houses the need of a place to assemble was felt, and accordingly the FERA project was submitted and approved. The place will have a full basement. The auditorium will be 40x50, stage at the end, 16x26, and the large porch 25x50.

The construction is rustic, all of the big timbers and beams being cut in the nearby woods. Much of the material used is salvage lumber. The roof was purchased from the site and was taken from the Four Mile Lake cement plant.

Work has been going on here nearly a year, on an average of 3 days per week, and a number from Pinckney have worked there. T. L. Boardman of Lakeland has had the handling of which it is expected to be finished in June or early July.

HOMEMAKER'S CORNER by Home Economics Specialists Michigan State College

A bargain is something which offers exceptional value for its price, and according to this definition some of the organs are among the best bargains in meat, suggest home economics institution management specialists at Michigan State College.

The various meat organs available on the market make up quite a list, including liver, kidney, heart, tongue, brains, sweetbreads, and tripe. Some of these are unusually good buys, giving a lot of minerals and vitamins.

Liver stands at the head of the list and should be included in the regular family menu. It is especially good for the growing youngsters who need to manufacture red blood cells. Liver contains a large amount of iron, copper, as well as an antiscorbutic and a growth-promoting principle.

Liver of different meat animals can be used as well as just calf liver, which at the present time is kept out of the bargain class by its high price. Beef or pork or lamb liver can be used, cost much less and are just as valuable for building red blood cells.

The chief point to remember about cooking liver is not to overdo it. Use a moderate temperature and cook only long enough to change the color. It is already tender and too long cooking will result in dark, lathery liver.

For the sake of flavor, lamb or pork liver should be seared in butter. The cooking in that case should be adapted to the age of the liver. Kidneys are almost as valuable as liver and are rich in iron and vitamins. They are good for cooking in a variety of ways. For example, they can be fried in a pan and served with a sauce, or they can be baked in a casserole with other ingredients. Another bargain in the meat market is the heart. It is a little more expensive than liver or kidney, but it is a good buy for a heart healthy diet. It can be cooked in a variety of ways, including boiling, frying, and baking. It is a good idea to cook it in fat and then cook it in a covered dish in a very moderate oven.

STATE CHIEFS STILL UNKNOWN TO MANY

It may not appear as news to point out that Orrville E. Atwood of Detroit is Secretary of State, but hundreds of citizens of the state, many of whom write letters to Lansing, in connection with current business of the Department of State, are addressing their letters personally to men who have not held this office for many years.

Those former Secretaries of State who continue to get mail on routine state matters at the capitol, include John S. Haggerty, and even Charles J. DeLand, who last served in 1926. Mail for Secretaries who served after Mr. Haggerty, is too common for even casual notice.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State in the national cabinet, gets letters at the state capitol, pertaining to Michigan automobile license numbers. The misapprehension of Michigan people as to who serves them in Lansing, extends to the sending of letters for United States senators, to the state legislature. Oddly enough, the evidence as to the identities of prominent state officials, is not peculiar to remote parts of the state; some of the letters came from Lansing.

Most mysterious of all, however, are the letters which come at times for people unlisted on state payrolls, and unknown in the memories of anyone in the capitol. The letters, bearing on matters handled at the capitol, designate the addressee simply and emphatically, as "Secretary of State."

Administration of the chain store tax law is disclosing evident examples of tax evasion, along strictly legal lines, through dividing up of organizations to form new "parent" units with smaller numbers of chain stores. Last year, up to March 29, a total of 267 companies with 942 stores, had paid $68,087.32; for 1935, up to March 29, a total of 448 firms with 1,523 stores, had paid but $43,469.99. Total and approximately $700,000 more in revenues in 1934 were $144,469.08, involved in the unpaid taxes of 28 chain store organizations whose properties the act was recently rejected by the state supreme court. An appeal to the United States supreme court is expected, as the tax is payable April 1.

The High School baseball team will play a practice game here with Gregory, Friday, April 5.

Pinckney will have almost an entirely new team this spring. The coaches hope to get a line on new material in this game Friday.

Last year Pinckney had a successful season in baseball, winning eight games and losing five. It is impossible to predict the success of this year's team. We know, however, that such players as Brown, Young, Adsch, Snowski and Battle are going to be hard to replace.

Mid-semester tests next week.

The date of the Junior-Senior play has been set for May 3, the first Friday in May. Work on the play started Tuesday, but the parts will not be definitely assigned until Friday. The name of the play is "Diamonds."

The cast of characters and story of the play will be printed next week.

The school janitor, Mr. Wm. Jeffries, had the school building in splendid shape to begin work Monday. Besides giving the building a thorough cleaning, windows, etc., he gave the floor a dust treatment, varnished the stairs, head rails, and all places receiving constant wear.

Report cards will be given out this week.

Julie Stackable is absent because of illness.

PROTECT your child's Eyes

WITH THESE 5 LIGHTING ESSENTIALS

Young eyes need the best of care in early years... because at this stage a child's inquisitive mind is leading him into the realm of books. More and more time is spent in reading—and because of this fact, there is danger of permanent injury to eyesight if proper lighting is not provided. Abuse of the eyes through poor lighting results in eye-strain and near-sightedness. Figures show that one out of every five school children has defective vision.

You can easily make sure that you have good home lighting by following these five simple rules. (1) Use correct size lamp bulbs—"WATTS." In table and floor lamps with three sockets, use 40 watts in each socket; with two sockets, 60 watts; with one socket, 100 watts. (2) Have at least one-tenth as much light in the rest of the room as you have on your book, newspaper, sewing, etc. (3) Use SHADES on all lamp bulbs to prevent GLARE. (4) Use shades with light-colored linings to get the most light. (5) Have enough lighting fixtures or portable lamps to insure the proper intensity of light throughout the room.

These 5 principles will assure reasonably good lighting and will provide proper seeing conditions for every member of your family.

HOUGHTON SCHOOL DISTRICT CLOSING ADVERT BY PROMISE OF STATE LOAN

Action by the Augmented State Administrative Board to provide loans to distressed school districts prevented the closing of the Houghton Public Schools scheduled for March 29. Every effort had been made by the Houghton Board of Education to borrow locally and from the R.F.C. Two-thirds of the district's share of Thatcher-Sias aid provided only sufficient funds to pay unpaid teachers' salaries to the closing date.

Anticipating that other districts would be similarly situated, the Augmented Board voted the sum of $200,000 to be loaned to school districts that have exhausted available suitable collateral. A committee with power to act, consisting of Harry Toy, Attorney General; Theodore Fry, State Treasurer; John O'Hara Auditor General; and Paul F. Voelker, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, were chosen by the Board to pass on proposed loans. This committee authorized the Superintendent of Public Instruction to secure the necessary papers preparatory to final approval of loans on delinquent taxes or other collateral.

YOUR REPRESENTATION IN THE LEGISLATURE

Senator Harry F. Hittle offered an amendment to the Prison Labor Bill to manufacture "agricultural implements," and in the fight to pass the amendment, he temporarily, at least, broke with several of the so-called "insurgents" as well as administration leaders.

During the debate, which was one of the most spirited so far this session, Senator Hittle said: "I am not interested in legislative groups, and I shall not hesitate to oppose either friend or foe on matters of legislation. The farm implement trust has for years been gouging the farmers of our state. The price of agricultural implements are beyond the reach of most farmers." Commenting further in the debate he said: "Prisoners must be kept busy at something, so let them do something that no one else in the state does. Every manufacturer of finished agricultural implements in this state has either been forced out or bought out by the harvester trust. The adoption of this amendment should break the price at least in this state."

Rep. Charles Adam's bill to allow the county boards of supervisors to set the amount of dog tax to be collected in their counties in proportion to the amount of sheep claims filed was passed last week by the aid of Democratic votes. The Republican representatives from Ingham and other counties turned it down. Livingston county should be grateful to the Democratic representatives from Wayne county who voted almost solidly for it. Without their support it could not have passed.

Another bill which Representative Adams is backing would re-assess all subdivision property on which the taxes have been delinquent for a certain number of years, at the price of farm acreage. These pieces of property affected were originally farms sold by their owners to real estate men who subdivided them. Then they were assessed at the price of city lots. The slump came, the sale of these lots ended and the farmers got the land back again when the real estate men defaulted on their payments. Most of the farmers were unable to take the back, on account of the back taxes against them. It is generally conceded that these will never be paid. This bill would reduce these taxes by assessing the land at the value of farm acreage. There are thousands of such farm lands in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw counties.

WHY WOMEN CRY BUT MEN SWEAR

Professor Donald A. Laird, noted psychologist, explains the reason, given by science for the deep-seated organic differences which make men behave so differently from women. Read the article in The American weekly, with Sunday's Detroit Times.

ELECTRICITY WASTE

Radio stations unavoidably "waste" an incredible amount of electricity because less than two one-thousandths of 1 per cent of the power leaving their antennas is ever used. The average station has to send out constantly more than 50,000 times as much energy as its listeners could possibly consume if all of them had their sets turned on during all the hours of its broadcasting.—Collier's Weekly.

Be Reasonable

Marriage is not a failure if too much is not expected of it.

The "liquid test"

...it ends bowel troubles

This is a test that tells you whether the system needs a cathartic change. If you have constant sluggishness or bilious attacks, and laxatives seem to make things worse, it would be wise to try this:

Stop all use of any laxative that does not encourage variation from a "fixed dose" (which may be entirely too large a dose for your individual needs). Use instead, a liquid laxative that you can measure and regulate as to dose. As necessary to repeat, take smaller doses, less and less often, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

Doctors use liquid laxatives, and a properly prepared liquid laxative, containing natural laxative agents like senna and cascara, brings joy and comfort, and helps in establishing regularity. Ask your doctor about this. (Doctors use liquid laxatives.) You can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a most dependable liquid laxative, at any drug store.

Suffered From Tetter on Hands

Relieved by Cuticura

"I suffered for two or three years with tetter on my hands. If I did any work they would bleed and become irritated, and I could not bear to put them on anything. They were dirty-looking all the time.

"I tried different remedies, but they failed, so I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased more and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, my hands were entirely relieved."

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin visits Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment. From one of the men in the boat on which the girl escaped McNamara learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin. He also discovers that she is heiress to $750,000. Fearful of McNamara, in his official capacity, Nance flees. Lanny finds her in her apartment, asleep. Then she disappears, and McNamara learns that she is living in Paris.

This was too much. Lanny put her arms around him and kissed him on each cheek.

"And that's a seal that'll get by, too," Dan was embarrassed. Lanny was, too—so she took a hasty departure.

The two men stared after her, admiration in their eyes. "A d—d fine woman, that. None finer," said McNamara.

"Why don't you marry her?" The suggestion popped out of Doctor Burt as suddenly as it had occurred to him.

"Now, there's an idea," McNamara mumbled dazedly. "How long have you been mulling it over?"

"Subconsciously, since you entered the office. I caught a gleam in Lanny's eyes—and when she kissed you, the subconscious crystallized into the conscious."

"I'll think it over."

"You'll not think it over, Mac. You'll make up your mind now. And I can rather be a bachelor than a disappointed lover."

"Tell you what to do, Mac," Stephen advised. "Send her a nice photograph of yourself. If she puts it in a silver frame you may proceed with confidence."

"How will I know, my boy?"

"If it's in a silver frame on the dressing table in her bedroom, it'll be a cinch."

"How'll I get into her bedroom, you blockhead?"

"I'll steal her latchkey and have a duplicate made. Then you can investigate."

McNamara rose and held out his hand. "It's a pity, Stephen, my boy, you aren't in my detective bureau. Good night."

The annual parade of the police force was but a week distant, and during that week Dan lived entirely on orange juice and spent his nights in a Turkish bath. As a result he dropped eight pounds off his northern elevation. Very erect and martial he sat on a milk-white charger, while a photographer took several exposures of him and his command.

When the prints were delivered to him, he sent them all to Lanny with a note saying:

"Now that we are both in the same crooked conspiracy, I thought you might be interested in having the latest photograph of the biggest crook of them all."

The following day Stephen Burt sent him a key, and the following afternoon McNamara let himself into Lanny's house and discovered one of the photos on her dressing table—and in a gold frame! Another print in a silver frame appeared in her drawing room.

"Holy Moses!" he goggled. "I'm in for it now! God help me, there's no escape!"

CHAPTER IX

Upon his return to his office McNamara found in his mail a photograph of Lanny, indorsed: "To dear old Dan—from his partner in crime—Lanny." While he was gazing upon it and telling himself how little justice the portrait did the beloved subject Stephen telephoned, demanding that he come to the office.

Lanny was in tears. "I've just had another visit from Mrs. Merton, Dan," Stephen began. "It seems that after two years of inactivity, during which time she had elected to believe Penelope Gatlin dead, she has developed a crazy notion to prove it. She wants to get Penelope's fortune."

"You questioned her about her daughter?"

"Yes, but she doesn't know it," said Stephen. "I hypnotized her first and spent an hour questioning her, and it appears that this morning she visited your captain of detectives and asked him to throw out a dragnet to locate Penelope Gatlin. She brought him some snapshots of the girl—told him her real name—all about her money—the girl's habits and peculiarities—everything. When I'd discovered that Penelope is an escaped convict. They will immediately deport her and Flynn will meet her at Hoboken."

"But can't you do anything about it, Dan?" Lanny pleaded.

"Nothing! Flynn and Angelotti are on the trail officially now," he stared at Lanny tragically. "I'm out of the picture now and can do nothing but advise you. Send two cables—one to Nance Belden in Paris and the other to Penelope Gatlin at the same address. Say: 'Come at once—Lanny dying—cable name vessel on which leaving,' and sign it 'Steve.'"

"I'll meet her at the dock," Stephen decided. "I'm due in New York next week."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," said Dan. "I'll send that convict in my house." He shuddered and grimaced in his distress. "I could handle the wop with money, but Flynn has sworn an oath! And because I've made a monkey out of him he'll keep it. He'd rather make a monkey out of me now than acquire great riches—and if I'm broke, most likely the captain of detectives will step into my shoes, and Flynn will stand a good chance of becoming captain of detectives. Oh, murderation, Lanny darling, have you a little whisky in the house? I'm faint, so I am."

"You're suffering from heart trouble, you egg," Lanny cried savagely. "Yes! A weak heart, a soft heart, a human heart."

"Send that cable," he roared. "Yes, get busy, Lanny," Stephen urged. "The bird of time has but a little way to flutter—and the wretched fowl is on the way."

After Dan McNamara had left his office, Doctor Stephen Burt gazed with mild disapproval upon Lanny.

"Unlike you and Dan McNamara," he said, "I dislike having the peaceful tenor of my life disturbed."

"This intrigue is myrrh and incense to me, Steve."

"I know it. You and Dan love a fight for its own sweet sake, but I do not. I have a particular aversion to grand jury indictments, and it is a possibility you and your boy friend have let me in for."

"Fiddlesticks!"

"Lanny, I'll be angry with you in a minute. Now, listen to me, and whatever you do, do not talk back. Dan McNamara has run out on us. I mean you. He's through. Dan's rattled. If he hadn't been he'd never have ordered the sending of such a fool cablegram."

"Dan McNamara knows his way about," Lanny defended. "He's more than nine years old."

"So do I, Lanny. It will be highly dangerous to send that cablegram. How is she to know it isn't a message to decoy her back to the penitentiary? If she receives it while she's Penelope Gatlin, she is extremely liable to cable for confirmation before acting on it. That would mean a delay of not less than twenty-four hours. On the other hand, if she is Nance Belden when she receives it, she will leave Paris openly and walk right into the hands of the New York police. I'm not much of a get along without her, although the going will be pretty skiddy. But of course she'll marry you if you ask her. Lanny never proffers her friendships or her loves on the half shell. And there's still time, my boy, still time."

"Not if she goes to Paris."

"I've heard of police chiefs securing a leave of absence for six months."

"I couldn't take a six months' honeymoon to Paris, lad. I've saved eight thousand dollars."

"What? You a chief of police and only worth eight thousand dollars?"

"God help me, boy, I'm honest."

Stephen roared his merriment. "Why, you great jackass, I know that. I wouldn't let every man have Lanny. But don't you worry about money. Lanny is a business woman. She's managed me since I was a boy, and that includes my finances. I'm loaded up with good dividend paying stocks. You know, I could be a mighty good friend to the man who would be good to Lanny."

"I'll consider the proposition," the cautious Celt replied. "Although I enough to put Lanny in tears. I awakened Mrs. Merton and sent her away happy. But with this command firmly planted in her subconscious mind—she must not think of the name Penelope Gatlin. When I awakened her I asked her if she had an adopted daughter. She replied, surprised, that she had. I then asked her the name of this adopted daughter—and a look of terror came over her face! For the life of her she couldn't think of the name and begged me not to mention it if I knew it."

"It's a pity you didn't think of doing that before she went to the detective bureau with her information," McNamara cried, and called up the Security Trust company.

"The captain of detectives has put Flynn and Angelotti on the case," he announced gleefully when he had hung up, and Flynn has already been to the bank making inquiries. When he presented his credentials the cashier showed him everything. They'll identify that girl as Nance Belden, trace her trail to Paris as I did, and the French government will be notified detective, but tonight I'm a better one than that McNamara idiot."

"He's not an idiot. He's one of the finest men I ever knew."

"Keep quiet," he ordered severely. "You ditch my train of thought."

He drew a sheet of paper toward him and commenced writing, while Lanny goggled at him. Presently he sat up and read:

"Grave danger stop beat it some other country traveling by motor stop upon arrival cable address stop if need funds will cable them stop leave Paris establishment going concern stop go out for walk and disappear stop unless these instructions followed you leave trail for persecutors to follow."

"Mac."

He looked up. "How do those instructions strike you?"

"Malice to All—Charity to None"

We spied Stanley's rarely sipping soda at the Sugar Bowl, Friday night. Who was the sugar with you Sam?

The "printer's devil" evidently isn't spending all his vacation down on the farm. We also saw him at the Sugar Bowl. (Who said this wouldn't get long.)

Well, Abner has gone back to his first love, but he still likes the theatre. Around here, it seems to be "in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of old loves," as we also saw Lefty with his old girl, Bob Dillaway and Virginia seemed to be enjoying "Clive of India," however we don't think Ronald Colman deserves all the credit.

Bob Read made good use of his vacation to get better acquainted with Stockbridge and its attractions.

Now as for Jim, he seems to prefer the attractions the open country has to offer.

In case anyone is looking for a couple a cute night watchmen, you might consult Emmett Clark and Bill Brown.

Speaking of Bill, he looked like a sultan with his provincial haircut at the show Sunday. He's no piker.

Hi, Bill Lamb is now going for blond tresses. We feel it our duty to inform you, Bill that red locks are the thing this spring.

Well, anyhow, there was no slack in the cigar sales election night. Only they should issue instructions on how to smoke 'em, eh, Howie?

to be conferred. These he said were priceless, for the reason that they must be earned by a membership of forty years in good standing. Lodges can bestow such honors as election to office etc., but only forty years membership can secure a life membership.

Rev. Jerome of Dexter, scheduled as the next speaker was prevented from coming by illness. Dewey Hesse of Saginaw, an aspirant for election to grand lodge this year spoke next. He is called the tallest Mason in Michigan. He said the support of Livingston Lodge was regarded as the rabbit's foot and hoped that he would be favored with it this year. He also paid his respects to the members of grand lodge and all blue lodge brothers, and made a very agreeable impression.

Hugh McPherson, past grand master of Michigan Masons, and present grand treasurer was next. Toastmaster Wilson remarked that it was the natural tendency of the Scotch to handle funds; that they were always as careful in handling other people's as their own, and that while their attempts to obtain the position of custodian of exchequer could be delayed, it was impossible to prevent it. Mr. McPherson talked on grand lodge affairs and stated that the Masonic home at Alma had paid all their total indebtedness of $120,000 this year through the fact that the brothers had paid their dues. Mr. McPherson is known to most every person in this country, and is always a favorite speaker.

The following masters and past masters of visiting lodges were introduced upon and introduced: Donald Dancer, Chelsea; Harold Carrow, Howell; Ellis Green, Dexter; Phares Winney, Ann Arbor; C. H. Whitely, Stockbridge; Robert Phillips, Brighton; A. Heppinstall, East Lansing; Clyde Holland, Fowlerville; Roy Harris, Chelsea; William Tiel, Mason, Chester; Miller, Chelsea; Clarence Maroney, Chelsea; A. C. Digby, South Lyon; Eugene McLachlan, Ann Arbor; I. O. Dexter; Bird Hight, Howell; Ross Hildebrand, Howell; Roy Hardy, Howell; W. E. Zimmer, Mason; Edward Dreyer, Howell; John Vorwerk, Saginaw; David Steppes, Dexter.

Supt. Moore sang two more songs: the last one of which was dedicated to the members of the Masonic fraternity. Then lodge was opened and life membership certificates and cards presented to Eugene Campbell by his son, Andrew, John Martin, by Percy Ellis, Dr. C. L. Sigler by John Martin, W. H. Clark by Paul Clark, and Chas. J. Teeple by Russell Livermore.

This ended the evening's program and another past master's night observance of Livingston Lodge No. 76 had become history.

NEGLIGENCE HOMICIDE TRIAL ON
The negligent homicide trial of the People vs. George Hays is now on at Howell in circuit court.

On January 6, last, a car driven by Hays and containing himself and Clyde Kimball collided with one of U. S. 18, driven by Edward Wepman of Grand Rapids. Mrs. Minnie Wepman, mother of Edward, received injuries which resulted in her death. Edward received a fractured leg and is still lame. His sister, Dorothy, received a spinal fracture and Clyde Kimball received a compound fracture of the leg and has been in the hospital at Howell ever since. The prosecution claims Hays was intoxicated at the time and has presented several witnesses to prove. Hays has several previous arrests for drunkenness and in 1933 served a jail sentence. In 1934 he was placed on probation. His attorneys are Don Van Winkle and Jay Sweeney. Prosecutor Barriman is representing the people.

The Availability of Good

MANY individuals, voyaging on the troubled sea of mortal existence, may be likened to boatmen rowing against the tide. With strenuous and ceaseless effort they work as though against a power which they believe will, if not opposed, sweep them in a direction the very opposite to that in which they have set their course.

To each individual the destined haven is his highest concept of good, that state of human experience which he believes will bring him satisfaction and freedom from further struggles. Some strive to gain possession of something which they believe has been denied them, and others to recover something which they appear to have lost, such as health, harmony, opportunity, success, home, companionship, and the like. The tide against which men row is belief in evil in all its forms, including lack, limitation, poverty, and disease, and the best in which they embark is the craft of human thought, which, when not stunted and borne along by the spiritual understanding of God, may be turned completely out of its course.

The teachings of Christ Jesus never indicate that man must struggle against evil as something real in order to gain good, since he said, "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. We may take this kingdom as denoting all that is good, satisfying, and useful, and the daily life of the Master was a testimony to the truth of his statement, for never at any time did he experience lack or limitation. Who that has studied the Gospel narratives can picture the gentle Nazarene struggling against evil as if it were real or powerful? He knew, without a shadow of doubt, the power, presence, and availability of good, and refused to acknowledge evil in any form as having power, presence, or reality. He accepted good and used it. Health, opportunity, supply, and dominion were to be available to all men; for he did not limit the availability of good to his own experience. On the contrary, he said that his followers should repeat his words. The great necessity of mankind is to awaken to these facts and to realize that Christ Jesus spoke no idle words. He meant what he said, and he meant that we should do the same."
