

History of Pinckney

First Baseball Team Organized. Other Famous Teams of Bygone Years.
Pinckney Once Played the Famous Cass Team of Detroit for the State Championship.

Now that the baseball season has started, a few words about some of the famous baseball teams of the past would not be amiss. Pinckney, as a rule, has always had good teams and some of them established excellent records.

Baseball did not develop until after the Civil War. During the war, the boys played a game called rounders, which was similar to the one-out game played now. Baseball, as it is now played, developed from that. In the early days the pitcher had to pitch underhand and the players all played barehanded. The catcher also stood back and got the ball on the ground. This resulted in many split hands and broken fingers. First, the catcher was allowed a thin glove, then the first baseman and eventually all of the team.

Pinckney was early in the field and the first team was organized here in 1868. Its lineup was as follows: Chas. Jenkins, pitcher; Ed. Mann, catcher; Frank Grimes, 1st; George Carr, 2nd; Arvid Gardner, 3rd; Cass Sykes, ss; Nelson McCullough, rf; S. Jenkins, cf; Chas. Henry, lf. This lineup was given us by Gene Mann, son of Ed. Mann. This team is said to have been practically unbeatable. The crowning glory came, however, in 1874, when Pinckney played the Cass team of Detroit at Pinckney on the square for the championship. The Cass team was national champion and on this occasion had the famous Joe Weiss in the box. According to Gene Markey, who witnessed the game, the Pinckney lineup was: George Carr, pitcher; Willis Grimes, catcher; Dan Markey, 1st; Matt Jeffries, 2nd; Lafayette Seelman, 3rd; Ned McCullough, ss; Freeman Wilcox, rf; Caspar Sykes, cf; S. Jenkins, lf. Pinckney lost 10-9. Norman Huger, of Howell, who umpired, is said to have favored the Detroit team and his decision in the 9th inning, calling Freeman Wilcox out at the plate when his run would have tied the score is said to have started a small riot. On the showing made in this game Pinckney was given a game at Detroit with the Cass team, but lost again.

Pinckney seems to have been generally represented by a good team in the nineties, another team, which included C. J. Teeple, pitcher; Gene Markey, catcher; Alvin Mann, Ben Shana, the Haines Bros., the Roche boys, etc., also made a good record. In the late nineties probably the hardest hitting team that ever appeared in this county arrived on the scene. Its lineup was: Michael Roche, pitcher; Malachi Roche, catcher; Wm. Connors, 1st; Wm. Bull, 2nd; Andy Roche, ss; M. E. Kuhn, 3rd; Wm. Roche, lf; Lawrence McClear, cf; John McClear, rf. This team was composed of nine Babe Ruths and struck terror into the heart of every pitcher they faced. Paul McClear and Dick Roche also played on this team.

About 1900 Pinckney entered a team at the Fowlerville Fair and won first money. The lineup was: Michael Roche, pitcher; John Paine, catcher; D. Pearson, 1st; Bert Pierce, 2nd; Ernie Carr, 3rd; Andy Roche, ss; Wm. Roche, lf; Carl Sykes, cf; John McClear, rf. Fowlerville was Pinckney's first big game in the final game and Carl Roche pitched a masterpiece, throwing five men out in the first inning and had much to do in the Pinckney victory.

About 1904 the old slugger's team was reorganized and found the pitcher easy going along through the season undefeated. They gave Chelsea a bad beating and were scheduled to meet this team again at the Dexter Labor Day picnic where Pinckney has been the attraction for the past 25 years or so. Chelsea hired the Fort Wayne team of the Central league which had broken up and in the game that followed Pinckney lost 10 to 7. In the Fort Wayne lineup were two old Pittsburgh National league players, Dogey Miller and Kalb, a left hand pitcher. In the Pinckney lineup were Tom Dolan, catcher; Bill Monks, pitcher; Cass Culhane, 1st; Malachi Roche, 2nd; Gene Berry, 3rd; Andy Roche, ss; Wm. Roche, lf; Michael Roche, cf; John McClear, rf.

About this time a team was organized in Pinckney which was rated by some as the best team ever developed here. The lineup was changed frequently but was usually: Pat Lavey, catcher; Floris Moran, 1st; Ladwidge, pitcher; Ruel Cadwell, lf; Adrian Lavey, 2nd; Harold Swarthout, Jack Monks, 3rd; Fred Swarthout, ss; Myron Dunning, lf; Arthur Swarthout, cf; Hugh Finley, rf. One of the contests played by this team was at Dexter on Labor Day about 1908. Chris Loeffler pitched for Dexter that year and in two previous contests the teams had each won a game. In the 9th inning with Dexter leading 3 to 2, Michael Roche, who was in the Pinckney lineup that day, hit one over the left field fence. The umpire called it a foul and the game broke up in a riot. The Pinckney team to this day insists that they were robbed of the game, while Dexter, including George Kratzmiller, who played left field and chased the ball, are sure it was a foul ball.

In 1927 Pinckney again played at the Dexter Labor Day picnic and won this time 2 to 1 in a game in which no

Centennial Plans Being Worked Out

Big Meeting Is Scheduled for Tonight at Which Manuscripts From Which the Pageant Will Be Written Will Be Submitted.

At a meeting tonight to be held in the Board of Commerce Hall, manuscripts from which the pageant will be written will be submitted. All the neighboring communities will be represented and refreshments will be served. The refreshment committee is Roy Clark, Irving Richardson and P. W. Curlett.

Considerable material has been found for the pageant. Mrs. Claude Rose of Canadilla has a complete history of that township and Miss Jule Adele Ball also has one of Hamburg township. A pageant presented in 1880 some time depicting the beginning of that township has also been found. Mrs. Riley Crittenden of Howell has also loaned the committee the history of the LaSalle encampment on the Huron River between Portage and Base Lakes in the early part of the 18th century. Mr. Crittenden's history was accepted by the state historical commission. Other material is also being assembled in Dexter and other places.

An effort is being made to borrow enough tarpaulin from the highway department to enclose the field where the pageant will be held. The Michigan State College has also been asked to loan the circus seats used at 1900, games. The time is passing fast and rehearsals for this pageant will start on June 10 and much preliminary work remains to be done.

A girl wished a married man away from his wife; wished a President at her wedding; wished a life of riches and got it—then lost everything, but died believing even her last wish came true. Read about the "wishing girl" in an article in The American Weekly with next Sunday's Detroit Times.

Opening Game Here Is Next Sunday

Pinckney Independents to Play Brighton at Pinckney Sunday, May 5. Local Team Expects to Get Strong Team Together.

The Pinckney Independents will open their 1935 season by meeting Brighton at Pinckney next Sunday, May 5th. The local team expects to get the management of Stanley Dineen this year and William Dillaway will act as treasurer and business manager. The first game will start promptly at 3:00 P. M. and a good crowd should turn out and encourage the boys. They need your support. This team has enough money pledged for suits and will not have them in time for the opening game.

The lineup has not yet been posted but will be taken from the following: pitcher, catcher, pitchers, Haines, W. E. Kenny; infielders, Dinkel, J. Lamb, D. Dillaway, Sheehan and Kenny; outfielders, C. Miller, Sheeks, J. Singer, A. Singer, Reason, W. Lamb, D. Dillaway, Radelirte.

The team expects to play a strong schedule this year and a good attendance is necessary to get good results to play here. So come out to the game and boost them Sunday as you did when Jimmie Moran, the Lavey boys and the Sheehan boys were in the Pinckney lineup.

WILL ROGERS SHOWING AT HOWELL THEATRE MAY 5-9

If you have been saving up laughter, prepare to shed them for Will Rogers' latest comedy, "Life Begins at 40", opening at the Howell theatre May 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, contains a bundle of hilarious situations that will draw magnets to the laughter of all within its walls.

This breezy comedy, suggested by the Walter B. Piken booklet, described as a hilarious fun fest, works into a pandemonium of merriment. The incomparable Will is cast as a country editor who proves that the way to get a kick out of life is to put a double kick into it.

Rogers' stampered excitement in his small town, tries his hand at match-making, leads an army of exterminators to battle, fights a frolicsome duel using various cracks for every pistol bulge of his adversary. Funnybones are in point from all counts. The comedy of "Life Begins at 40" is doubled with a tender romance. As the editor, Rogers' reputation of a youth "railroaded" to the penitentiary, and so stirs up a hornet's nest of hostility.

Witticism pungent as any Will can self conceals, leaves his lips in the picture. They deal with politics, women, rusticity, wealth, self-irony, love, youth and age. In the supporting cast are such screen personalities as Rochelle Hudson, Richard Cromwell, George Barbier, Jane Darwell, Slim Summerville, Sterling Holloway, John Bradford and Ruth Gillette.

Current Comment

There are all sorts of prophets in all kinds of lines of business. Some use tea leaves, cards, ouija boards while others depend on the stars or the bumps on your head. All seem to find enough believers to make a living at it. Then there are the gents who get out form sheets from which the names of the winning race horses can be picked. Roger Babson, the reputed financial authority, also gets out a bulletin in which the future financial affairs of the nation are depicted. Quite often his picture is shown in the news reels. Like the other forecasters, he hits the truth often enough to retain a certain following. However, he seems to have strayed from his field and now has issued a statement to the effect that the C.C.C. camps are hotbeds of Communism. These camps have been picked out by conservative and radical papers alike as the greatest achievement of the present administration. Babson is now being called upon to give proof of his charges. Can it be possible he has also been bitten by the Communistic hysteria bug?

Now it looks as if the World War Veterans bonus bill has been sidetracked and instead a compromise measure would be passed putting off payment of it for a term of years. Many would like to have the bonus bill passed providing for it to be paid in full by an issue of greenbacks. This would not have resulted in sufficient inflation to hurt anyone, any harm and would have shown whether inflation in small doses was beneficial or not. However, it would have established a precedent when big business is scared to death.

That Rev. Fr. Coughlin is a force to be reckoned with was shown by the 15,000 attendance at his National Security League meeting at Detroit last Wednesday night. Two United States Senators appeared on his platform and other notables. Fr. Coughlin undoubtedly has the greatest following of any one person in the state which is gained by his weekly radio talks. He stood for Franklin Roosevelt's viewpoint. He was one of the factors in placing Michigan in the Democrat column in 1932. However, they have since won on the priest's redistribution of wealth plank. It is Rev. Fr. Coughlin's action that the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few, approximately 75 persons control the greater part of the wealth of the country, and of the depression as it allowed them to remove the money from circulation. He favors an income tax rising linearly in the larger fortunes. Thus, Mr. Roosevelt is not in favor of the priest's theory is right but it may not be workable. For instance, Henry Ford keeps his money in circulation continuously by the manufacture of goods. We do not think it would be good policy to cripple him. On the other hand, money which does not produce good, and give employment, should be put to work to furnish employment.

We have often wondered why our state was not made of the much land in this section. There are undoubtedly many acres of such land, which could be used to raise celery or onions in the same manner as this industry is carried on at Kalamazoo, Maize, Munith and other places. This spring we are informed that some large families from Ohio purchased such land near Stockbridge and intend to raise onions. The much land in Ohio have given out. We would like to see a start made in this industry here.

Employment in the city continues to hold up with the result that in Detroit, Lansing and other places, there are said to be no empty houses. Rent is going up and prosperity seems to have arrived at last. The threatened April slump seems not to have materialized. We know by our own experience that money is much more plentiful. A local business man told us yesterday that he sent out some 25 statements. To his surprise he received a response and payment or prepayment on nearly every one of them.

When Frank Fitzgerald was nominated and elected governor, he drew up an ambitious program, which was to be put in effect by the legislature. Its principal object was to be economy. This to be effected by abolishing many commissions and offices. This, up to date, he has found impossible to carry out. He drew up a finance control plan in which he, himself, would have almost absolute power. The Democrat house amended this, leaving the governor out of the financial board entirely and putting the control in the hands of the lieutenant governor, state treasurer and auditor general. The Republican senate, strange to say, accepted this plan. 9 Republicans, including Senator Hittle from this district, deserting the governor and voting for the Democrat plan. This virtually kills his program. There is a nigger in the wood pile. Although Alex Groesbeck failed to win the gubernatorial nomination last fall, his followers were successful in many counties. In patronage matters they have been generally ignored. Hence their refusal to support the governor's program.

"You are so kind, Doctor Burt," she said.

He resumed his passive stroking of her forehead and cheeks; in a low, monotonous tone he commanded her to answer all his questions. Then suddenly:

"Have you thought of your daughter, Penelope, of late?"

Grinace of distress flitted across the beautiful face. "No distress or bad luck will attend the thinking while you are with me, understand? I command you to think about her—to remember her and to answer truthfully all my questions regarding her."

"Yes, Doctor."

"Why did you and Mr. Gatlin adopt her?"

"He wanted a baby and I couldn't give him one."

"Could you, if you had cared to?"

"Yes, Doctor." Her tone was very peevish.

"How old was she when you adopted her?"

"About a month."

"Where did you find her?"

"In the Infants' Shelter in San Francisco."

"Did you know who her parents were before you had decided to adopt her?"

"Yes, Doctor. A Captain and Mrs. Robert E. Elliott."

"Why did the Elliotts abandon their baby?"

"The captain was killed by the Moros and his wife died in this city in childbirth."

"Do you remember what branch of the service the captain was in?"

"He was a captain of cavalry."

"When you and Mr. Gatlin adopted Penelope, did you have any written record of her parentage?"

"We had a letter from the matron at the Infants' Shelter. And we had a letter from the doctor who attended Mrs. Elliott at St. Dunstan's hospital, and some letters from old neighbors of the Elliotts."

"Why did you get the letters from the old neighbors?"

"Theodore was concerned about the baby's ancestry."

"And was it the best?"

"I do not know. It satisfied Mr. Gatlin."

"What has become of all the records pertaining to Penelope?"

"I burned them."

"Why?"

"To keep Penelope from getting them."

"Then she wanted them, did she not?"

"Yes, Doctor. She demanded them."

"On her eighteenth birthday."

"How did it happen that she waited until her eighteenth birthday before demanding them?"

"Up until then she thought she was our own flesh and blood."

"Ah! Why did you burn these records rather than give them to Penelope?"

"I hate her."

"When you refused to give them to her, what happened?"

"She cried and laughed and screamed and attacked me. She said she hated me. Finally she faltered, and I had the maid put her to bed and lock her in her room."

"Did you give Penelope any information at all, at any time, regarding her parentage?"

"There was a slight hesitation. 'I lied to her. I wanted to hurt her because she wouldn't recognize my moral right to half of Theodore's estate. So I told her she had negro blood in her veins.'"

"What made you invent such a horrible tale?"

"Penelope is a decided brunette. I thought even if she did not believe me, my statement would create in her mind a doubt and a fear that would drive her crazy."

"What happened after that, Mrs. Merton?"

"In the morning she was gone."

"How did she go?"

"She made a rope of sheets and blankets."

"Have you seen her since?"

"No."

"Is she dead?"

"I do not know. I hope so."

Stephen turned to Dan. "Any questions?"

McNamara shook his head owlishly. "I can revive most of the record—perhaps all of it. The captain's record is in the army files; when he married, a notice of it appeared in the Army and Navy Journal; with that and what I can get out of the officers who soldiered with the captain, I'll get a pretty complete picture."

Stephen resumed his cross examination.

"Did you ever beat Penelope? Did you ever pinch her and slap her and lock her up?"

"Yes, Doctor."

"Wake the fiend up and send her home," McNamara roared.

"I will—as soon as I look up her memory of Penelope," Stephen replied. He impressed upon her the fact that she was not ill at all. He commanded her very earnestly to forget that she had ever heard of him.

Then he awakened her, as McNamara departed, gave her a long look, felt her pulse, told her she was much improved and handed her some sodamint tablets. She departed in a somewhat happier mood.

"Well," McNamara demanded, when he and Stephen found themselves alone again, "what do you think of that one for a hell-cat?"

"I do not think, Dan. We merely accept such people as we accept sunlight and rainfall."

"Do you think you'll see any more of this woman, Stephen?"

"I hope not. I hope the hypnotic suggestion I gave her is strong enough to overcome her acquired instinct for illness."

"Were the things she told you illuminating?"

"Very. I suspected most of them and she confirmed my suspicion. We know now that Penelope is of sound ancestry. Her father was not a neurotic. If he hadn't been a normal, gallant fellow and physically fit he would never have become a captain of cavalry. He was killed in action. But we have arrived at a starting point, Dan—the reason for the mental shock that gave Penelope a dissociated personality."

"I didn't get that—at least not quite, Stephen."

"For some reason best known to themselves, the Gatlins kept from Penelope the fact that she was not their own flesh and blood. However, while we have definitely established the date of the mental shock and the character of the shock, we have also established the causative factors leading up to the shock. Penelope had a most unhappy childhood. From earliest childhood she was the victim of bitter, rebellious thoughts. Then that baseball wrecked her nose. This was a mental and physical shock. The separation and divorce of the Gatlins was another terrible shock, because she lost Gatlin and there was nobody to protect her. And Gatlin's death was a severe shock. Then, as she emerged from childhood into maidenhood, the knowledge that her nose made her hideous naturally became an obsession with her."

"Now, Dan, by this time there was no further necessity for concealing the facts of the child's birth. Gatlin, dead, had left his entire estate in trust to Penelope, and on her eighteenth birthday she was free to do as she pleased. She could leave her hell-cat of an adopted mother now. She carried her own check book. The knowledge that she was not flesh and blood of the beloved Gatlin came as a terrible shock and with it, of course, came other terrifying speculations."

"More piling on of the inferiority complex," McNamara interrupted. "And she cracked under it. Then she made up her mind to forget Mrs. Gatlin—and she did."

"A clear case of auto-hypnosis, Dan. Now you've got to run down the record of our Penelope and that of her parents. She must have it and it must be proof of the most convincing character, because such proof is necessary if we are to restore to her her mental tranquility."

"Well," said Dan, "I'll be back presently with the girl's record, and then—"

"Out of the darkness into the sunlight, Mae."

"Well, the next one I find in the darkness will stay there," the chief growled.

The absence of the capable Lanny was a constant reminder to Dr. Stephen Burt of his sole experiment to date in a case of dual personality. He yearned with an alert scientific yearning to get to work on Penelope Gatlin, and when Dan McNamara appeared at the office one day he saw by the satisfied smirk on the McNamara countenance that all had gone well.

"Let me see the documents," Stephen demanded.

McNamara handed over the pile of papers.

"Well, you've done your full duty and have kept the police of various cities busy for a few days," said Stephen. "What do you hear from Lanny?"

"She'll be home next week. The skin graft on the girl's nose was a complete success."

"And how does the girl feel about the situation now?"

"She's crazy about her new nose and spends hours examining it in a hand mirror."

Stephen smiled. "Naturally, she would."

"Lanny says the girl's been her real self more than half the time since that first look."

"She would be. And now I'm going to add to her happiness by sending her this record, which I shall supplement with a report of my own on her case. She'll study it, and in this convincing proof that she is not what Mrs. Merton told her she was, she'll probably get well. These cases are simple, Dan. All you have to do is to discover the cause and remove it. Nature does the rest. She will have no more rebellious thoughts, because the despot can do her no further harm. Her black moods of depression will not come again; she is organically and mentally sound, the product of a sound ancestry on both sides of her family."

"But she knows she was an inmate of Saa-Quentin. She'll remember she was a thief."

"She will, of course, feel great shame when fully restored to her normal personality. In her other personality, with her acquired instincts of morality and convention smothered in her subconscious mind, she had, of course, no sense of remorse or shame. I think that when I have explained this to her she will understand just what her mental condition was. And her fear that the world will discover her sorry record will, I feel certain, be alleviated by her knowledge that it would be impossible for anybody who knew her as saddle-nosed Nance Belden to recognize her as good-looking Penelope Gatlin."

"All I've got to say, young fella m'lud," the admiring McNamara declared, "is that you're one hell of a smart man!"

Some two weeks later, Lanny walked in on Stephen. "Well," he declared acidly, "you've certainly taken your time about getting back on the job. You're looking mighty particular, Lanny. Happy?"

"Stevie, dear, I never knew there was such complete happiness in the world."

"Where's Penelope?"

"She's gone back to Paris—on a new passport."

"Well, well, well," Stephen chided her, "tell me things."

"Stevie, she's as lovely as a May morning."

"And the operation?"

"A phenomenal success. Of course," Lanny added, "she could never stand a sock on the nose."

"Just what is she going to do in Paris?"

"Close out her apartment and dismiss her servants."

"And coming back to San Francisco?"

Lanny nodded. "How do you stand Miss Ordway as your office nurse, Stephen?"

"Rather well, I'm sorry to say. She's very competent and much more tactful than you."

"And do you want me back, darling?" she queried.

"There you go, fishing for a compliment. Of course I do, but—it isn't necessary. You could come in once a week."

"Not for a great many weeks, Stevie."

He glanced up at her sharply. "How come, Lanny?"

Lanny's face was the color of an old rose. "I'm going to have a baby," she whispered.

And then Stephen Burt stood up and took dear old Lanny in his strong young arms and hugged her. At last she was going to have her little slice of life!

"Of course," Lanny said presently, "you'll be the baby's god-father?"

He nodded. "Of course."

Three months passed—to Stephen Burt remarkable by reason of the fact that Mrs. Rudolph Merton did not call upon him. At last, to satisfy his curiosity, he telephoned Rudolph Merton to ask him how his wife was.

"I don't know," Merton replied complacently. "She's gone."

"Dead?"

"No such luck. She's gone to Southern California to join a new religious sect. A colony on the fringe of the San Bernardino desert with a prophet in command."

"And what are you doing about it, Mr. Merton?" Stephen asked.

"I'm subsidizing the prophet so he'll stay in business ten months longer. Mrs. Merton has deserted me, thank you."

"Spends Hours Examining It in a Hand Mirror."

God, but she has to be away a year before I can secure a divorce on the grounds of desertion. The prophet comes high, but I can afford to pay for my fancies."

"I gather from your manner that you're not broken hearted."

"Such sorrow as I feel now would be delicious delight compared with what I'd feel if she decided to come back to me."

"Congratulate you, Mr. Merton. Good-by and good luck to you. You deserve it."

TO BE CONTINUED.

John Bunyan's Flute

While John Bunyan, who wrote Pilgrims Progress, was in prison his jailers heard music coming from his cell. They decided to take away his instrument, but the music ceased as they drew near the cell, and they could find nothing to show how the music was made. From time to time the music sounded, but only Bunyan and his book were found. What had happened was that Bunyan had made a flute from a loose rail of his stool, and on hearing the goaler's step he would slip it back into its place and pore over his book.

Knitted Apparel Goes Ultra Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

to the left one can almost fancy the knitting needles clicking a ditty, to wit: "If fashion sends diagonals then diagonals' my choice." Which is exactly what we have been trying to say in regard to knitting as now is. It is as facile and amenable as any woven-on-loom fabric and what's more, knitted fashions are not missing a "trick" when it comes to styling with fetching details, silhouettes and accessory notes.

IF YOU would keep in the very forefront of fashion you simply must wear something knitted this spring. Not only is the smart set taking to knitting with more enthusiasm than ever, but knitted things sold in the shops were never more fascinating. So whether you knit your own or buy, you are certain to be smartly clad if your suit, frock, coat, blouse likewise hat, gloves, belt and scarf, one or all are knitted.

Astonishing things are being done in knitted realms nowadays. Every fad, fable and intriguing move of fashion finds interpretation via knitted art on the new style program. Which accounts for the increasing enthusiasm expressed for knitted modes this season.

The stunning three-quarter coat to the right in the picture is one unmistakable "reason why" women are continuing so wholeheartedly knitted-minded this spring. It can be knitted rapidly because it is of heavy white cotton and made on large needles. Wide-at-the-wrist sleeves, a flattering collar and pouch-shaped patch pockets lend a casual air to this youthful model. The beauty of this coat is that it can be tubbed so easily. If you prefer, make it of the new linen yarn or string. In either event, cotton or linen, this coat is a swank fashion and its "endearing charms" will give you joy the entire spring and summer through.

In looking at the cunning jacket-suit comes to styling with fetching details, silhouettes and accessory notes.

Note, for instance, the shapeliness of the jacket to this suit. The skirt is straight and narrow and may be knitted with or without the new slit hemline. (Two would be ever so smart with a slit hem to left front in the skirt.) The original of the model pictured is done in old ivory of a delustered crepe floss, knitted in a tweedy diagonal effect. The dainty blouse of drop stitch pattern is cream color. Brown grosgrain ribbon trims the jacket and the crocheted hat.

Speaking of the crocheted hat reminds us to say to those who would rather crochet than knit that fashion is willing. Members of the smart set are having any amount of fun crocheting the new cape suits (cape and skirt) out of either mercerized cotton or the very popular carpet-warp string. The whole thing can be done in an open lacy stitch or the skirt may be in plain lacy for the cape. The crocheted or knit sweater looks best in contrasting color.

For your spring suit we suggest the accessory ensemble of hat, purse and belt shown below. Crochet it of mercerized crocheted cotton. The hat has the new off-the-face movement which is an accepted vogue in the advance showings. The "set" would be pretty in different color combinations. The one pictured is a rich brown with orange touches.

SPRING BRINGS NEW SHADES IN MAKE-UP

New spring shades are going to mean some new spring make-up for the woman of discernment.

Yellow, one of the favored spring colors, and beige, are calling for a coral tint in rouge and lipstick. Navy, however, requires a deeper tint, bordering on the red, rather than on the orange shades. With white or black, orange or the more brilliant shades of red will be advisable.

Local department stores have charts showing the shades of rouge and lipstick which should correspond to the shades of your clothes.

No longer is it adequate to have one shade of rouge and one shade of lipstick, the authorities divulge.

As for eye-shadow: blue goes with blue eyes, green with green, or brown eyes, and for evening, a new shadow with silver dust in it, that is dramatically effective.

Flapper Mode Revival Is Suggested by Short Skirt

The introduction of the short, full skirt in some Paris collections has set the fashion world to wondering whether the flapper is returning. Several designers showed daytime skirts that were an inch or two shorter than those of the previous season and most of them endorsed skirt fullness. Pleats and gathers shared attention.

Fluctuating skirt lengths also were a sensation of the evening modes. Ankles appeared again and again. The skirt which was sufficiently short to show footwear at the front frequently was lengthened to touch the floor at the back and sometimes to form a train.

Peasant Influence

The peasant influence has come to town, accenting slowness with its full lines. Fullness is used effectively, below shoulder yokes, back and front, with a suggestion of gathered flounce at the back of the skirt above the knee-line. Waist and hips and shoulders look twice as slim by comparison.

WEAR FLOWERS

'Tis said that fashions will be gay with flowers this season. The news of first importance in the realm of stylish fashions is the carnation. The favorite boutonniere of the moment is a big fluffy many-petaled carnation, white, pink, red or even navy blue. Garlands of flowers will be worn like a necklace. Add a flower bracelet if you will. A wreath in the hair, too, if it is evening. There is rumor in the air that hats will be trimmed in natural flowers—a special little contrivance to hold them and to permit moving to change for fresh flowers. The flower ensemble in the picture is interesting and very lovely. The turban and the cuffs of the gloves are made of shaded purple violets. The bows are of satin ribbon in a deeper shade.

Hats Go Bi-Colored

HOUSE FROCK ON TAILORED LINES

PATTERN 2089

Quite a "sweeping success," isn't it, this well-tailored house frock with its slenderizing lines and nicely detailed bodice? The skirt is fronted by a long slimming seam which breaks into a perky little kick pleat just below the knee; the bodice is gathered onto the yoke to provide ample fullness. And don't you like that vestee-like effect of the front yoke which does so much to break the width of the figure above the waistline? Buttons emphasize the trim belt, the pointed sleeve cuffs and the nice diagonal closing. Make it of any pretty cotton material, figured or plain, and you'll have a house frock to be proud of!

Pattern 2089 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

DIESEL OIL'S USAGE

MAKES TAX PROBLEM

With the passage, in the state senate, of Senate Bill No. 229, providing among other things, for a broader definition of the term "motor fuel" as applied to the gasoline tax collection law of the state, one of the department of State's most vexatious problems was half way toward solution.

Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State, has noted, with other department officials, that some users of fuel oil as a motor fuel, have made increasingly insistent representations that under the present gas tax law this type of fuel should be exempt from the state's three cents a gallon tax. The tax has been collected in such instances, Joseph Feneley, director of the gas-tax division, points out, after all legal differences of opinion will be cleared away if the bill passes the bill now before it for action.

The present act classifies gasoline as a distillate; kerosene is exempt from the tax, except when used as a fuel for motor vehicles and fuel oil is a lower grade of distillate than kerosene. In the background of the problem is the development of diesel motor oil. Oil was not visioned as a propulsive fuel for motor vehicles until recent times; today heavy motor trucks and being built to use it, for reasons of economy. Diesel motors have not reached the stage of perfection permitting their use in any but large freight moving motor trucks.

A look into the future, however, discloses the possibility that with the increased use of diesel oil, it may be necessary to seek a higher rate of motor fuel taxation, in the instance of diesel oil, if state revenues from this source are not to drop appreciably. The oil gives nearly double the mileage delivered by equal quantities of gasoline. A year and a half ago, the amount of diesel oil used on highways was insignificant; today the amount is becoming measurable and well worthy of attention, according to Feneley.

OFFER ONE-YEAR SCHOLARSHIP

The Lawrence Institute of Technology, Highland Park, Michigan, is offering a one year scholarship in engineering to some graduate of the Livingston County High School. The selection of the award and the final selection are in the hands of the School officers and Librarian.

The Institute was founded by late Dean Russell E. Lawrence, who was intent upon providing education within the economic reach of the middle class of people and at the same time furnishing an unequalled high quality of education. Five year degree courses in the following branches of engineering are offered: Aeronautical, Architectural, Chemical, Civil, Electrical, Industrial, Mechanical and Metallurgical. Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees are conferred. The courses are taught by a highly trained faculty, with complete laboratory practice combined with lecture work. Engineering specialists from Detroit's world-famous field are brought in for special lectures. All of these men are required to have outstanding practical experience in addition to their undergraduate and graduate work at recognized educational institutions.

Certain scholarships have been given in past years, and the Institute is very glad to offer to a young man of Livingston County this year one full year's scholarship. The method of selection is as follows: He must be able to produce a High School credit sheet showing average or above average grades in certain required subjects for entrance. The recipient must also submit a paper on the subject "Why I want to study engineering." Maximum length of the paper is twelve hundred words. Entries must be mailed on or before June 15, 1935, to Professor J. Calvin Callaghan, Chairman Scholarship Committee, Lawrence Institute of Technology, 13100 Woodward Avenue, Highland Park, Michigan. Decision of the Committee will be final. Those interested are asked to see their High School Officer or Librarian for complete details.

For the information of all contestants, a cooperative plan which enables students to earn a portion of their expenses is offered. This plan has proved extremely valuable to engineering students in that practical experience received heightens their conception of the theory. Over 500 studied in school profited by this plan last semester. The Institute is incorporated according to the general laws of the State of Michigan as a non-stock, non-profit corporation. All tuition and endowments are used to develop the courses with the purpose of creating the finest college of engineering in the Middle West. A catalogue will be sent to all students upon request.

NO FISHING UNTIL JUNE 25

Inland lake fishermen have little to look forward for 55 days from May 1. Every inland lake in the State, except approximately 200 designated public lakes, will remain closed to fishing of all kinds until June 25, when the bass and bluegill season opens. Even fishing in the so-called "pike lakes" will be restricted the catch being confined to pike, walleyes, yellow perch, lake trout, rock, strawberry and cisco bass, muskies and carp. Even in the pike lakes, such as suckers, carp, white perch, shiners, whitefish and alewives. But to attempt to fish in any lake that is not designated as a pike lake over that period would be a gross violation of the law.

The reason for this prohibition is to protect the spawning periods of the various species of fish and to prevent them from being taken away from their spawning grounds and to let natural reproduction take place without interruption. A violation of the law is one of our most serious offenses and can result in a fine of $100 or imprisonment for 60 days or both.

The Michigan Department of Conservation, very recently, has issued a bulletin to all inland lake fishermen and anglers in the State, advising them of the closing of the lakes and the reasons therefor. The bulletin is available in the Department of Conservation, Lansing, Michigan, and in the offices of the State Game Wardens.

Proper Study Light Needed for Child's Eye Safety

At left is shown the type of lighting under which many students strain their eyes and risk their health. At right is a lamp which has been scientifically approved for reading and study.

By Jean Prentice

FEW parents tolerate willful neglect of their children's home work. But how many parents take pains to provide the best study conditions for those same children? The answer is, comparatively few. Perhaps that is one reason why more than one-fourth of our young people suffer from defective vision.

Bad Conditions to Be Avoided
It is really asking too much of a child to expect satisfactory progress in school when the seeing conditions under which he or she studies are such as to cause eyestrain and nervous fatigue. Yet homes throughout the country afford nothing better than squat little table lamps, exposed lamp bulbs, or far less light than is absolutely necessary for good vision.

Shadows Make Vision Difficult

The illustration at upper left typifies the abuse to which the eyes of students are subjected in the vast majority of homes. The lamp is a common type. It fails to provide light sufficient in quantity for reading, writing, or studying. The shade is so designed that most of the light is directed beneath it, with very little falling on the copy book, where it is most needed. Sometimes this abuse is made worse by placing the lamp at the child's shadow, making vision even more difficult.

A lamp such as shown by the illustration at upper right provides from three to five times as much useful light as is given by an ordinary table desk lamp. Yet it uses only one 100-watt bulb.

Many Good Lamps Available

Designed by the Illuminating Engineering Society, and called the "I.E.S. Better Sight Lamp," its light is adequate for easy vision and eye comfort. A number of manufacturers make it, and stores everywhere offer it in a variety of styles and prices. The light given by this lamp is scientifically balanced and diffused, and there is no glare. Note that it is placed to the side opposite the writing hand, to prevent the casting of a shadow.

Most of our knowledge, and a good part of our success, comes to us through our eyes. By providing our children with the proper lighting for reading and study, we will be doing much to insure their welfare and happiness in later years.

This TRIAL PLAN

enables you to try an electric range in your own kitchen— WITHOUT ANY OBLIGATION!

WE WANT to give you an opportunity to TRY electric cooking in your own home before making an investment. We want you to learn for yourself just what electric cooking will do. To this end and for a limited period, we will install an electric range without initial charge, and let you use it for six months, removing it without charge if you do not like it.

During the trial period, you pay for the service as registered by your meter, plus a monthly charge of $1 for the range. If you decide to keep the range, your monthly payments will be applied toward the purchase price. If you decide that you do not want it, the range will be removed at our expense.

We want you to discover that electric cooking is not expensive and that it gives you better cooking, with more certainty, and less effort. Once you have enjoyed the delicious flavor electric cooking imparts to foods, its cleanliness, its coolness and its convenience, we believe that you will never again go back to any other method of cooking.

Applications for ranges on trial installations will be taken care of in the order they are received. Call any Detroit Edison office.

Enjoy These Advantages of Electric Cooking!

- CLEAN. Electric heat is as clean as sunlight. There is no smoke or soot to soil kitchen walls and curtains. Cooking utensils remain bright and shiny after long use.
- HEALTHFUL. Electric cooking seals in nourishing juices and natural elements in meats and vegetables. Important food values are retained.
- WATERLESS COOKING. With your electric range you use no water for roasts and only half-a-cup for vegetables.
- MODERN. In attractive and striking designs, these electric ranges do much to brighten and add a feeling of newness to your entire kitchen.
- FULL FLAVORED. Electric cooking has a deliciously different flavor—a natural flavor in foods. Meats and vegetables cook to melting tenderness in their own juices.
- INEXPENSIVE. Electric cooking costs less than a cent a meal per person.
- SAFE. An electric range supplies only pure heat from a glowing wire—there is no flame, no matches, no fumes.

ASK FARMERS TO VOTE ON WHEAT CONTROL

Michigan wheat growers and producers of that grain in the rest of the states will determine between now and May 25 whether the benefit payment plan for the control of wheat production shall be continued after this year, according to George E. Farrell, chief of the wheat section.

All wheat contracts between the farmers and the secretary of agriculture expire at the close of the 1935 crop year. New contracts will not be offered unless a majority of the wheat growers of the United States vote favorably in the referendum which will be conducted. Both contract and non-contract signers will be given the chance to express their opinion of the plan.

Local meetings will be held in Michigan at which farmers on the local control boards will discuss the results secured with the contracts in the past two years and what may be expected in the event the plan is continued or if it is abandoned. Notice will be sent to all contract holders of the time and place of the meetings and any wheat growers are invited to attend.

Total payments to Michigan farmers on wheat contracts under the plan in effect the past two years were $1,280,779 up to Jan 31, 1935. The second payment on the 1935 crop will be made when proof of compliance is possible. This money went to farmers in 73 counties the largest county payment being $116,637.91 to Eaton county growers and the smallest amount, $158.45 to farmers of Kalkaska county.

The election to be conducted will permit every wheat grower to register his opinion of the plan in such a way that no one will know how he votes. The farmer should listen to the arguments for and against the plan and vote his honest convictions. An unfavorable vote will end the benefit payment plan of wheat adjustment at the end of this crop year. A favorable vote will be accepted by Secretary Henry A. Wallace as the request of wheat growers for benefit payment contracts to cover the 1936 and later wheat crops.

SAFETY EDUCATION WEEK 1935
The increasing number of deaths and injuries resulting from automobile accidents gives cause for grave concern. Nine hundred forty-three persons met untimely deaths, ten thousand were injured, in a state-wide series of traffic mishaps during 1934. These accidents are man-made. They are the result of relaxed vigilance on the part of motorists or pedestrians, or both. All the engineering genius in the world cannot build a foolproof highway. The problem is one of dealing with human nature.
We must do everything in our power to stop this rising toll of deaths in the State of Michigan.
In the name of humanity, and as Governor of the State of Michigan, I do hereby proclaim the period from May 12th to 18th, inclusive, as Safety Education Week, to be devoted to a state-wide program of highway safety education, with efforts and resources to the end that greater vigilance on the streets and highways of this state will become a part of the lives of all good citizens.
I suggest that mayors, village presidents, chairmen of county boards of supervisors and other public officials likewise, call the attention of the people to this observance, so that it will be general throughout the State.
Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Michigan, this twenty-third day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and

The Do-as-You-Please Room

Corner in Home in Which All Members of the Family Can Find Solitude, When They Desire It, Will Be Found Valuable at Times.

By HILDA RICHMOND
National Kindergarten Association,
New York City.

"Mother, Helen won't play with us!" complained Mary Joyce to her mother. "She wants to sew all the time!"

"Don't be odd, Helen," reproved Mrs. Joyce, "go and play with the others." Helen gathered up her sewing and went to join a game in which she was not really needed and at the moment was not at all interested.

Many mothers make this effort to standardize their children's play, forgetting that the individuality, the tastes, the physical condition and the inclinations of each child should have consideration. If the quiet little girl wants to finish a doll's dress while the other children romp on the lawn with the pet dog, it is hardly fair to make her put down her fascinating task just because the majority prefer another occupation. If she is apt to take insufficient exercise she needs encouragement, not force. When driven into active games under protest a child is pretty sure to dislike them more than ever.

The do-as-you-please room is a saving institution which will be used on occasions, not only by the less active child, but by every member of the family. It is not being queer or contrary that prompts a boy to want to finish a kite rather than to go fishing at a particular moment, and the little girl who happily sews on a gay doll's garment is not bound to "grow up to be a maiden lady" on that account. Concentration on an interesting activity, indisposition, or some childish sorrow are good reasons for wanting to be alone. At any rate, having a spot where one can be secure from noise and confusion is a privilege with which grown-ups can sympathize.

The do-as-you-please room may be only a corner of the living room or the shady space beneath the apple tree, but wherever it is it should be considered sacred from invasion. When children know that they are recognized as individuals just as definitely as they are regarded as members of a group, they are much better tempered, more likely to do well in school and also more original in thought and purpose. Often the strong child dominates the weak, or the selfish one pouts until he gets his way, but in the quiet corner, the retreat, the child can live in the center of a little world all his own.

An elderly woman of my acquaintance often says that one of the happiest privileges of her childhood and also that of her brothers and sisters was the opportunity, always open, to slip into the old-fashioned parlor and there "think their thoughts" or sew or read or do whatever they wished to do, undisturbed. Not every day nor every week did the desire for solitude come, but when any child wanted to be apart from the group no comment was made, it being generally recognized that everybody at times prefers to be alone.

"Please excuse me," is the accepted reason in a happy household when one child does not want to go with the rest to take part in the same game. It is quietly and politely given and accepted, and that is the end of the matter.

Hard for Japanese to Master Own Language

The hardest job of the Japanese student is to learn his own language. Added to its own difficulties are the difficulties of Chinese; for modern Japanese contains a sprinkling of more than 50,000 Chinese characters. The primary student toils over his own language seven hours a week in class, seven hours a week at home, a total of fourteen hours a week for six years. At the end of that time he has mastered only about 3,000 of the Chinese ideographs (each having five or six different meanings). He can read a newspaper. But he is still baffled by a magazine or book, unless written in the most colloquial speech.

Even university students have a very uncertain knowledge of the literary language. It is supposed to be used in the composition of letters, articles, books. A young friend of mine in Tokio Imperial university, principal institution of learning in Japan, confesses that his uncle rarely hears from him—because any letter to him must be written in the old literary form, and its composition is a long and fatiguing task.

Even the greatest scholars cannot write without a good dictionary at hand. Educated men find it easier to read Japanese classics in an English translation than in the original.—Willard Prince, in Asia Magazine.

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Much ado is being made around Washington again over lobbyists. It is true that there are now perhaps more lobbyists in Washington than at any time in the last fifteen years. It is true they are influencing legislation, and I think it can be said without fear of contradiction that lobbyists are responsible for a portion of the balking tactics in congress.

Existence of this unusual condition in Washington carries more significance, however, than just the fact that special interests or individual interests are trying to protect themselves. From a good many sources I gather the opinion that the condition means the President's power has weakened.

It is to be remembered that when Mr. Roosevelt carried his New Deal into the White House and led the largest Democratic majority ever to control the national legislative body, that very fact thwarted lobbying. Very few of the so-called special interests had the courage to button hole individual representatives or senators to plead their cause. These representatives and senators were looking to White House leadership; their fate rested on the New Deal, and they were unable accurately to gauge what public sentiment would be if they openly disagreed with Presidential orders. In those days, the corridors of the Capitol and the house and senate office buildings were virtually deserted of petitioners—for that is what a lobbyist is.

To the extent that lobbyists operated in the early days of the Roosevelt administration, they sought to influence Presidential decision and the activities of the brain trust and underlings who drafted the Presidential programs. Once these programs had been submitted to congress, the opposition to them largely subsided and members jumped to the crack of the Presidential whip. As stated above, individual members were afraid to go against White House orders and lobbyists were afraid to combat the President's popularity.

But a year ago, various interests throughout the country began to sense a feeling that they could again talk with members of congress safely. They began organizing their representations here as they formerly had enjoyed, and little by little broadened the scope of their activities. A singular part about the present condition is the mushroom growth of the lobbyists. Supplementing their growth has been an unusual fearlessness. They are busy pushing all kinds of causes, good and bad.

Some forces estimate there are close to five hundred different groups and organizations actively petitioning congress to do this or that according to their lights. There are such gigantic lobbies as that of organized labor, agriculture and the American Legion. There are lobbies for religious and racial groups. The power interests at the moment bulk large with their lobbying activities. Individual lines of industry have their representatives here in numbers. The railroads, for example, have headquarters here for their Association of American Railroads and it is also the headquarters for the Short-line Railroad association. The bankers maintain a legislative committee of the American Bankers' association here, and even scientific groups have their people treading water in the halls of congress, watching and waiting to be sure that nothing detrimental to their interests is done by the legislators.

It will be recalled that several weeks ago Mr. Roosevelt let loose one of the bitterest messages he has ever sent to congress in denunciation of the activities of the power lobby. At that time, the vicious character of his accusations against the power interests was attributed by many observers to his intense feeling that public utility holding companies should be abolished. He felt that cliques of financiers were taking advantage of innocent investors and he wanted to tell the country about it.

Now, however, it develops that he was shooting not only at the power group but at all so-called special interests which were seeking to protect themselves from what they regarded as flagrant violations of property rights of the established business practices. It must be said that for a few days, the President's message did have the effect of slowing down lobbying activities but the lobbyists had tasted of their own power. They are not to be frightened by any Presidential attack nor by the threat of Senator Black of Alabama to force through legislation compelling lobbyists in Washington to register. As a matter of cold fact, it is my conviction that Senator Black will find himself thoroughly circumvented in any move he may make to press for action on what is generally regarded as a ridiculous piece of legislation. It is a thirty-year-old proposal, anyway.

It all goes to show that, at least among those with the courage of their convictions, President Roosevelt is not as powerful as he was in the first year of his reign. Balking tactics in congress over the public works relief bill was but the outward sign of courage underneath. I have reported to you heretofore that there were mutterings and expressions of discontent within the President's vast majority in the house and senate. While the malcontents are not openly criticizing the President, they are able to accomplish their purpose by delay and disagreement over what ordinarily would be very minor details.

I believe it is the consensus also that the activities of petitioners for their rights are responsible to a large extent for the creation of numerous blocs in congress. It has been observed by numerous publicists that if there is danger of Fascism in the United States, it lies in this rise of blocs in congress. The natural result is to replace and break up the two old established parties. Thus far in this session there has been evidence time after time of bloc activities, one against another. This condition results in legislative trades, not all of which result in good or even well-written legislation.

When the President came through the biennial election last fall with his majorities increased, there were those who insisted that he would have his will with congress and no questions asked. They did not reckon, however, with the potential strength of the various interests watching congressional activities. I do not believe that a careful analysis of the activities of most of these lobbyists will show improper relations between them and members of congress. They are simply asserting the right of every individual, namely, the privilege to tell his representative or senator what his opinion is. Certainly, there is a growing feeling that Mr. Roosevelt gained little or nothing when he attacked the power interests, and over their shoulder all other representation in Washington.

Now that President Roosevelt has little to $4,500,000,000 to spend pretty much as he pleases, the question is heard around Washington more and more frequently, what is he going to do with it? The truth is that administration plans for utilizing this vast sum of money are so nebulous that no one can tell, even the officials themselves, to what uses it will be put.

One hears about attacking the problem of soil erosion so that the destruction by dust storms will occur no more, and there is talk of many public works projects. When one tries to find out details of these, however, he is promptly confronted by a stone wall, either of silence or of a frank statement that only the outlines have thus far been considered.

Conversations over luncheon tables in Washington seem to indicate that actual spending of this money in any appreciable sum will not get under way for some months. In fact, there seems to be ground for belief that nothing of substantial character will take place in a spending way before next winter. And, if that is true the comment suggests, the great appropriation will be effective only in a political way next spring and summer.

It should be remembered that the amount voted the President in this one resolution which is to be spent practically at his discretion is greater than the total expenditure of the federal government for any year from 1922 to 1931.

With further references to lobbying activities, it is made to appear that two organizations have done an especially good job. I refer to the operations of the American Legion office in Washington and its fight for the veterans' bonus, and the activity of the various agricultural and farm organizations who have been fighting off certain phases of railroad legislation.

The farmers, according to the best information I can get, are opposed to federal regulation of interstate bus and truck business because they feel the proposed legislation will hamper farm-to-market hauling. I suspect that the bus and truck group have persuaded the farm representatives to oppose regulatory measures for busses and trucks on the basis of misunderstanding. I have made numerous inquiries of legislative drafting experts and of house and senate leaders respecting the point at issue and all have assured me that the proposed federal regulation will in no way apply to farm-to-market hauling.

While the point made here is not at all important and when farm operators of trucks understand it they will doubtless shy away from the position they have taken, it illustrates how one organization will attract many followers to its ranks who actually ought not to be there.

Now as to the bonus proposition, it ought to be said that the Roosevelt administration is in a hole. So well has the American Legion done its job that there is no doubt in my mind at the moment respecting the outcome. There will be bonus legislation passed by congress at this session. Whether it will be signed or vetoed by President Roosevelt depends entirely upon the nature of the bill as it finally is passed.

HIGHLY POPULAR "FAN" RAG RUG

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

This "Fan" rag rug has attracted a lot of attention and to our knowledge quite a few home rug makers have made one or more like it. It must be seen to be appreciated. Made up in brilliant colors, the panels in alternating light and dark shades and the center of dark green and red, this rug is bound to catch the attention of anyone upon entering the room. This model measures 58 inches across and 30 inches deep, and requires about four pounds of material to crochet. The ten panels are made first and then crocheted together. The center half circle is made to fit opening for it and in turn is slip stitched into space.

This beautiful rug is one of the twenty handmade rugs shown in colors in rug book No. 24.

If handmade rag rugs interest you send us 15c for this book of rugs with instructions, and you will receive it by mail postpaid.

GENERAL STORE RESUMES PLACE IN COMMUNITY

The general store is coming back, according to the reports of wholesale grocers from the Middle West, but it is a different institution from that which had a prominent place in the earlier days of merchandising and community life.

No longer is the cracker barrel open, the pot-bellied stove is conspicuous by its absence, and the box, half filled with sawdust, that was a combination cuspidor and waste-basket, is no more, says the Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch.

But in these newer general stores you can buy anything from a bottle of patent medicine to a postage stamp. To term them department stores is not correct, even though the atmosphere of the establishment in the old general store is gone.

The proprietors are in some cases men whose forebears were the storekeepers of the district in the days when houses and other buildings were made of the tough prairie sod. The idea for small town merchandising needs is thus proven sound again. Not alone did the store supply the wants of the customers in the early days, but it was the forum of discussion on politics, religion and the state of life, manners and morals in the community in which the store was located. And the proprietor was as like as not to be the leader in community politics and in some cases religion.

Nowadays there are many other places where people may meet to discuss things. The movies provided the entertainment and the automobile the means to move about for wider horizons.

Yet many of the older generation would give a great deal to have the chance to spend a few hours again in that old general store they remember from the days of their youth.

No Better Investment Than Well-Kept Garden

The ideal garden is planned and managed, as was the first of all gardens, by man and wife together. Man is useful for the forking and spading, and for some of the heavier work, but it is the housewife who knows the comparative value of vegetables, and the need of variety in the garden produce.

She knows what herbs must be grown for flavoring, what quantities of early roots, peas, beans and sweet corn ought to be planted.

Such weighty problems as the thick or thin sowing of lettuce seed, of radishes, of early onions; of the best way of guarding cauliflower and cabbages from detrital butterflies, are to be settled only by patient consultations together.

And the satisfaction of growing one's own "garden stuff" and enjoying it at meal time is simply immeasurable by purely practical standards. As a measure of economy, as a means of real relaxation, as adding to the pleasures of the dining table, as increasing the beauty and actual value of the farm and of the whole neighborhood, one of the best investments about the place is a neat, pretty, well-tended garden.—Montreal Herald.
