Tuesday, September 17th, is Constitution Day, and state and federal authorities are urging that the date be celebrated in appropriate occision. Not many people are familiar with the Constitution of the United States or know exactly what it is. There are many different kinds of constitutions. l Besides the federal government, each commerce, fraternal organizations, churches and other organizations have constitutions or sets of rules which correspond to them. In other words, the constitution is a set or bylaws by which an organization is governed. Webster's dictionary defines a constitution as the "fundamental organical law or principals of government of a nation, society or other organized bodies. If the governor has worked out a plan for handling the relief costs without federal help then he is safe in defying the national government. The welfare problem is liable to be with us for years to come. Improved manufacturing methods have eliminated large numbers of workers which other industry is not able to assimilate and unless we wish to have a large part of our population become beggars as is the case in India, and other countries, a suitable way must be provided to save for them, than most of us can remember, the U. S. senate has Obsolete been the object of Senate Rules caustic criticism, jibe and jest because of its rule permitting unlimited debates. Time after time long senate speeches have been the object of editorial attack in one segment of another of 'American metropolitan newspapers. Its slow, tortoise-like methods have been held up to ridicule in spoken and written word innumerable times, and its procedure remains unchanged.

It was no occasion for surprise, therefore, when a new outburst of criticism of senate rules of procedure was launched upon us immediately after the last session of congress adjourned. Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, the self-styled kingfish, broke loose as he has so many times broken loose and effectively tied senate plans in a knot. He did the very thing that has precipitated criticism of the senate through all of the years mentioned above and succeeded in a one-man filibuster in blocking passage of an appropriation bill. Indeed, he was so effective in his job that he brought down on his head the wrath of President Roosevelt and all of the New Dealers who were about to realize culmination of some of their most cherished dreams.

While the Long filibuster probably should be criticized because undoubtedly there was some unfairness about it, the reason it takes on more importance at this time is because it placed so many of the New Dealers in a state of high dudgeon mentally and because it again centered attention upon these same senate rules.

By way of preliminary explanation, I believe it ought to be said that no organized body can operate effectively or orderly without first binding itself to adhere to rules of procedure that will give each an opportunity. These rules, in the case of the senate, are very old. It may be said they are antiquated and obsolete; surely some will take that view of them. But nevertheless those are the rules and the senate has been able for a good many years to produce satisfactory legislative results under them.

I do not propose here to say that they should be revised or that the present rules should be retained. But I do believe that before changes are made and before those who propose changes spread too much ballyhoo, the country should understand some of the reasons which actuate the present urge.

The kingfish spoke for nearly six hours on the closing night of the session. He could not Long's be prevented from Filibuster speaking after he was once recognized by the presiding officer. He told the senate he was battling for a government loan rate on cotton of 12 cents | Bond Issue per pound whereas the administration | Failure was proposing to make the rate either nine or ten cents per pound. The senate had placed an amendment on an appropriation bill to carry out the idea of twelve cents a pound and had put up the proposition to the house of representatives which showed no signs of agreeing at all until Mr. Roosevelt took a hand and suggested the compromise of ten cents a pound. All that remained was a formal vote of the senate to put the administration plan into effect. Senator Long decided it should not be and he proceeded to lick the administration single-handedly by continuing his fillbuster until the midnight hour when the congress was to adjourn finally.

In blocking the administration compromise, Senator Long also defeated appropriation of something like $100,-000,000 which the administration was going to use in setting up machinery under its so-called security laws, the Guffey bill for regulation of the soft coal industry and the bond created theoretically to settle labor disputes. All of these bills were pressed hard by the administration, if one had not had its antagonists in congress. They were and are strictly New Deal measures. As a result of the Long filibuster none of them can be made fully operative until congress convenes again next January and appropriates the money. So, it can be seen how the pride of the New Deal professors was wounded. It can be seen likewise $35,000,000,000, the highest in all hiswhy they, along with the President, did so much squawking about the Long filibuster. Senator Long was an ideal goat for the situation.

It is not my privilege nor is it within my power to say whether the legislation which Sen-Unnecessary ator Long virtually nullified is so im-Barking portant that five months of delay is the difference between life and death in this country. Indeed, I cannot see any reason for all of the haste that is exemplified by the shouts and the criticisms suddenly brought forth because of that atthuster. The bills which were brought to final passage only a few days befere edicurnment had been languishing in congress since last January.

Washington.—Through more years | The President had repeatedly urged their enactment but the congress saw fit to delay. Consequently in various quarters in Washington I heard the inquiry as to why so much damage can be done by delays of five months when there had been delays of seven months preceding enactment of the measures. Some of the more vitriolic among the New Deal critics even went so far as to inquire why all of the hullabaloo over a delay of five months when Mr. Roosevelt made no effort to obtain enactment of the social security billthe keystone of the New Deal—in the first session of congress under his control. Without knowing all of the answers, it does appear to me that there is quite a bit of unnecessary barking going on about this one incident.

> So, without defending a filibuster in any wise, it occurs to me that we ought to look back into history and see the benefits accruing from unimited debate in the senate, a procedure which the New Dealers now want to change. Through all of the years that congress has existed the senate has moved in a deliberative way. It has been slow, to be sure; yet, records of the past make it appear that this slow procedure has resulted inevitably in better legislation. Many are the schemes that surged forward on the ballyhoo of a minority to passage in the house of properly examined in the senate. Many are the times as well when the deliberative character of senate debate gave time for expression of a majority sentiment in the country and saved it from being precipitated into policies believe that the privilege of unlimited debate in the senate has more good features than bad.

Time after time in years past, demands have been made for liberalization of rules in the house of representatives so that individual members might voice their views at length. The house never has yielded from the position it has taken that its numbers were too great to permit free-for-all discussion such as takes place in the senate. The house does its work in committees and those committees are generally under the guidance of the political party in control of the government, The house, therefore, invariably votes the will of the administration. In consequence of this, it is hard to believe that the senate ought to bind and gag its members and prevent their free expression. If there is a minority, that minority ought to be heard. The senate is the forum. As a personal expression, I do not see where any good at all can come from the proposed restrictions for senate debate and I do not believe it will eventually.

For the first time since the Civil war, a federal government bond issue failed the other day to attract enough subscribers to absorb the offering. It was a small offering at that. The amount was only $100,000,000. The bonds were not, strictly speaking, United States government bonds. They were being issued by the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation but they bore the guarantee of the United Stares treasury that they would be paid both as to interest and principal and to all intents and purposes may not be distinguished from government

When the treasury received offers of only $85,500,000, Secretary Morgenthau was both surprised and chagrined. He laid the failure of the issue to the fact that the bonds were to carry only 1% per cent interest, a very low rate. It was a part of the treasury policy to sell government securities at interest rates as low as possible to reduce the burden of the interest charge which the government must carry on its gigantic public debt. Nevertheless, "it ain't so good."

The national debt now outstanding is something like $30,000,000,000. It is approximately $9,000,000,000 higher than when Mr. Roosevelt took office. It is due to go still higher because additional money must be borrowed to carry out the works-relief plans of the New Deal. Some authorities predict that before Mr. Roosevelt's present term expires as President, the public debt will aggregate something like tory for our nation. Long experience as a student of financial affairs prompts my conclusion that finiture of the $100,000,000 issue to be fully subscribed does not mean that government bonds are a bad investment. I am inclined to the opinion that the treasury tried to drive down the interest rate too low and that most investors figured they could obtain a better return than that which Mr. Morgenthau offered them. But, after all, there is something of a warning in this circumstance. I believe the warning is that if the Roosevelt administration continues to spend and spend and borrow and borrow, it must pay higher and higher interest rates for the money it borrows. Again, that "ain't some fur into the 'nth degree of swank. Watch the excitement when once the college girl glimpses this sort of costume which is entirely new in the field.

It's this way, the woolens for fall of national legislation that would have | are absolutely irresistible. Yielding worked untold harm. I cannot but to the lure of the perfectly fascinating new wool weaves and sensing untold possibilities in their use manufacturers of fur coats are playing up the idea of lining their garments with gay plaids and checks or a novelty woolen of some sort or other.

To be explicit, the new costume scheme, which is taking the world of fashion by storm, lines a chic fur coat with the same stunning woolen as makes the dress or skirt, with matching gilet that completes the ensemble. As soon as the first chilly autumn winds blow you will see this type of costume crowding the landscape for daytime wear in town, in country, on campus, in the grandstand or for travel whether you go by train, boat, auto or airplane,

The coats may be hip length, fingertip length or three-quarter or seveneighth, just so it is always somewhat shorter than the accompanying woolen skirt, so that some fraction of the skirt shows below, thus co-ordinating the ensemble even when the coat is buttoned tight and only a scarf, the collar lining or the gilet top shows above the fur.

The coats of these costumes are versatile, although generally speaking they are fashioned on swagger lines. A dashing figure they cut, when left unfastened to fly out "accidentally on purpose" when in motion so as to artfully show off their smart gay linings.

> The illustration presents the new wool-and-fur ensemble idea in two versions selected from any number of equally as fascinating models, as worked by high-style designers. For football weather the costume, as pictured to the left, is sure to satisfy the style aspirations of any co-ed sophisticated as ever she may be. This swagger coat of sheared panther is lined with green plaid woolen which is firm of texture yet light in weight. 3 It is identical to that used for the two-piece sports tailleur that completes the ensemble. Blown back by the wind, the charm of the costume is enhanced when the coat lining flashes its note of color. The neckline of the tailored suit jacket of wool weave is mannish in line with its notched lapels. The sports hat of smart off-face type is of felt in a dark green to harmonize with the wool plaid of the suit.

The girl standing to the right is ready to step into her open car and drive to the football game, serene in the knowledge that she will be comfortable, plus modish, all day and all evening during the drive home, no matter how suddenly the temperature may drop. For this beautifully styled outfit of supple kid-skin is worked on dressmaker lines together with a checked rabbit woolen black and maize for the wrap-around skirt and also as it appears in the lining of the wide flaring collar on the Eton jacket top and as it is glimpsed at the wristline of the bell sleeves. SMART BLACK By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Among best-dressed women sentiment is increasing for smart, refined, "classy" black for daytime wear. Just now, for midseason days, quality-kind sheers that are exquisitely fashioned are first choice. The very newest models have belts of gilt leather with neckwear styled of matching gold kidskin. If not gilt leather collar and cuffs, then gold clips or other items of gold jewelry are worn. At any rate there should be a touch of color to relieve from somberness. In the picture, Jean Tennyson, beautiful blond grand opera songstress, expresses favor for black in that she is wearing a dress of handsome black wool crepe with jabot of colorful silk print to provide the desired color accent. The perky Breton sailor hat, slippers and envelope bag are of shiny black patent leather.

Gray Felt A smart new felt hat by Patou for sports wear is of soft gray felt, and shaned like a man's fedora.

AUTUMN BERETS IN UNFAMILIAR FORMS

It being customary to rush headlong into a new season, it will be the fall hats that make their first appearance, and among them are the familiar berets in unfamiliar forms and drapes. In current displays many French milliners are represented as designers of beret. Among the variations of this silhouette, Mlle. Marthe introduces a model with a close back and kettle edge lifted front section, of brown felt, supplemented by a shallow crown part of sectioned belting.

Other silhouettes include the small and the large, shallow Breton, and several versions of the brimmed sports hat of classic type. In addition, there is a pilibox with side bow and veil from Patou.

Other models not of the beret movement have a tendency to crowns that are deeper back than front, and to buckles and other metal ornaments.

Air-Conditioned Frock Is

Newest Note in Fashions The newest fashion contribution of this stream-lined age is the air-conditioned frock.

You've seen it in summer sports things—the porous mesh fabrics tested for air resistance. Now the same term is applied to a group of fall frocks presented in an advance showing, and designed for comfort.

The "air conditioning" consists of light weight, lacy woolen fabrics and openwork devices in waists and sleeves. A sheer woolen fabric like georgette is a favorite for fall sports clothes, tailoring beautifully and having the necessary warmth without bulk, for the first days of fall.

Bishop Sleeves Fullness introduced with shirring and smocking is being used on new dresses. Full bishop sleeves shirred in at the top and the cuff are most fiattering.

DIFFERENT AMOUNTS OF LIGHT NEEDED

▲ survey shows that 22 per cent of children finishing grade school have damaged eye sight. When they have finished college, 40 per cent are so affected. At age forty, 65 per cent suffer from visual defects. And at age sixty, 95 per cent have eye defects.

This regrettable increase in eye troubles is in many instances caused by eye strain resulting from readlng, studying, sewing at night with poor light and not enough light.

Science measures light in terms of foot-candles. A foot-candle is the amount of light one standard candle shines on a surface one foot away.

For seeing one's way around and performing ordinary tasks which do not require seeing very small objects, 5 foot-candles is sufficient. For reading coarse print and large stitch sewing, you can get along with 10 foot-candles. For continued reading of ordinary print, or doing ordinary sewing, you need at least 20 foot-candles. For reading fine print and fine sewing, you require 30 foot-candles, or more.

Your light may look bright, but it is the illumination you get on your work that saves your eyes from strain; and this diminishes rapidly the farther away you are from your lamp. Seated with your paper or work 8 feet away from your lamp, it will require a light of at least 275 candlepower to produce the 30 foot-candles needed to be certain your eyes have enough light to do their work without danger of strain and permanent

If you use electricity, your light company will recommend the right size bulbs to use. If your home is not wired, one of the new 300 candlepower kerosene or gasoline pressure mantle lamps will supply plenty of "live" natural light for every home need. It takes the pressure to give you all the light you should have.

of Patient in Sanatorium John Chapman Hilder, former magazine editor, breaking a two-years' silence, reveals in Good Housekeeping Magazine that he has been a patient in a Connecticut tuberculosis sanatorium during this period, and that he's still there trying to regain his health.

His article, "Stop! Rest!" is not just the story of his particular fight with tuberculosis, but a warning to potential victims of the disease to slow up before they have to, and give themselves a fighting chance.

"Had I known years ago what I have learned since entering this institution," he says, "I should perhaps never have needed to enter it. But how many normally healthy people do know anything about tuberculosis? I have learned that the bugs are no respecters of a man's size or his muscular equipment, nor are they impressed by his social or economic

"People have a vague notion that tuberculosis is under control and pretty well licked, but it is still the first cause of death in the fifteen-toforty-five age class.

"To develop an active case of tuberculosis, regardless of your size and muscle, all you need to do is become so run down that your resistance loses its potency against germs. In that condition you are fair game for any voracious virus in the vicinity. It is at just such a moment that the TB bug, already present in the lungs of most people, goes into

An insidious feature of the disease, he learned from his experience, is that one can have it for a long time without a doctor detecting it.

The Public Looks at its Telephone

(Excerpts from unsolicited letters from Michigan Bell Telephone subscribers)

"... did not know his address nor any particular leads we might use in running this fellow down, but we eventually did through the very courteous service of the long-distance operator. . . . I finally reached my party . . . was much impressed by the way in which the operator was anxious to help.,. . ."

"... this was anything but a simple case, and my reason for offering commendation to your operator is that she handled the whole thing with quick understanding, and quickly converted me from a rather abused sort of person to one who appreciates good service well enough to tell about it."

"Last night about 1 A.M. . . . a serious situation had arisen. . . . A truck had killed some one. A telephone call had been placed by the driver. . . . In his excitement the only information given was that the accident had occurred some six miles out of Fostoria, Ohio. . . . It was imperative that officials know who the driver was. Exactly where was the accident? Were there any others injured? If so, to what hospital were they taken? Would aid need to be sent? . . . All these details raust be cleared immediately. . . . A call was placed . . . the operator located the driver at a harbecue stand six miles south of Fostoria. The connection was completed . . . example of splendid personalization and helpfulness in times of emergency."

"... owing to a most unfortunate accident, it became very important phone operator. . . . Thanks to the efficiency of the operator and supervisor, within ten minutes the doctor had the patient out of danger. The patient joins melin expressing our sincere thanks."

" . . . I feel as chief of our fire department that a word of commendation to the operators for their co-operation is worthy of mention by us. When we are on the receiving end of an emergency telephone call, our experience has shown that the caller is nearly always in a highly excited state of mind and unable to trak distinctly enough to give us the proper location, and in these cases the operators have rendered very commendable assistance. . . . I write this merely to passion to you the thanks that we receive from many citizens . . . without the valuable assistance and attentionate duty of the telephone girls this very important service would be subject; to delay."

"... take this opportunity to extend our appreciation.... We have always received excellent and courtecus service from all your operators, but this one case in/particular warrants mark. This girl . . . about 12:30 A.M., could not possibly have done more if it had been her own house that was on fire."

"This morning about 8/o'clock i was faced with the necessity of reaching, on Leng Distance, the general manager of a New York company. . . . They had recently changed managers . . . and we did not have his address. The wall was very important, and also on Sunday. Your operator finally located my man in one of the suburban towns of New Jersey, and I could well understand the satisfied tone of the operator when she said, 'I think I have the right men for you.' ?

These comments describe the kind of service we wish always to give. In order that we e year better, we request a prompt report on any feature of the service unantisfactory to yeu.

Bake it in a TRIAL ELECTRIC RANGE and learn the difference electric cooking makes!

> TOR health's sake, meat I should be eaten once a day, even in summer, according to some dietitians. Ham Loaf makes an ideal, economical summer dish... and it is at its best when baked on an electric range. In an electric oven, the mild, penetrating moist heat retains all the delicious natural flavor of the ham, and seals-in all the beneficial juices that are lost through "drying out" in an ordinary oven. That is why there is such a deliciously different taste to meats cooked elcctrically. Goodness and health value are retained, together withsurpassing flavor. The Ham Loaf shown here will be enjoyed equally as much whether sliced cold for sandwiches or served as the principal dish for dinner. Why not prepare this treat in your own kitchen on a Trial Electric

Here are the details of the Trial Plan: We will install an electric range in your kitchen without initial charge, so that you may give it a thorough trial. During this trial period you simply pay for the service as registered by your meter, plus a monthly charge of $1 for the range. If you decide to keep the range, your monthly payments will be applied toward the purchase price. If you decide that

The future of the still youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe, recently released by death from her idling, selfish husband, is a conversational tit-bit among housewives of the little hamlet of Wilton. Eligible bachelors and widowers also are in-

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER II

In the meantime, Marcia Howe, the heroine of this escapade, comfortably ensconced in her island homestead. paid scant heed to the fact that she and her affairs were continually on the tongues of the outlying community.

She was not ignorant of it, for her intuitive sixth sense made her well aware her goings and comings were tions and illustrations will be mailed watched. This knowledge, however, far from nettling her, as it might have done had she been a woman blessed with less sense of humor, afforded her Nineteenth and St. Louis Ave., St. infinite amusement. She valued her kindly, if inquisitive, neighbors at their true worth; and met the world with a smile singularly free from hardness or cynicism.

Bitter though her experience had Indies, now wear solid gold must miraculously, had it dimmed her faith in her particular star. On the contrary there still glowed in her gray eyes that sparkle of anticipation one sees in the eyes of one who stands a-tiptoe on the threshold of adventure. Apparently she had in her nature an unquenchable spirit of hope that nothing could destroy. She was still young and the highway of life. alluring in rosy mists, beckoned her along its mysterious path with persuasive hand.

Her start, she confessed, had been an unpropitious one. But starts sometimes were like that: and did not the old adage affirm that a bad beginning made for a fair ending?

Furthermore, the error had been her own. She had been free to choose and she had chosen unwisely. Why whine about it? One must be a sport and play the game. She was older now and better fitted to look after herself than she had been at seventeen. Only a fool made the same blunder twice, and if experience had been a pitiless teacher, it had also been s helpful and convincing one.

The past with its griefs, its humiliations, its heartbreak, its failure lay behind—the future all before her. It was hers-hers! She would be wary what she did with it and never again would she squander it for dross.

If there lingered deep within her heart vague, unsatisfied yearnings. Marcia resolutely held over these filmy imaginings a tight reln. To be busythat was her gospel. She never allowed herself to remain idle for any great length of time. Like an athlete set to run a race, she gloried in her physical strength.

Today, as she moved swiftly about the house and her deft hands made tidy the rooms, she had that sense of being in step with the world. The morning, crisp with an easterly breeze, had stirred the sea into a swell that rose rhythmically in measureless, breathing immensity far away to its clear-cut, sapphire horizon. The sands had never glistened more white; the surf never curled at her doorway in a prettier, more feathery line. From the Point, where her snowy domains dipped into more turbulent waters, she could hear the grating roar of pebbles mingle with the crash of heavier breakers.

It all spoke to her of home—home as she had known it from childhood as her father and her father's father had known it. The salt of deep buried caverns was in her veins; the chant of the ocean echoed the beating of her own heart

Lonely? If she needed anything it was a companion to whom to cry: "Isn't it glorious to be alive?" and she already had such a one.

Never was there such a comrade as Prince Hal!

Human beings often proved themselves incapable of grasping one another's moods—but he? Never! She would never want for a welcome while he had strength to wag his white plume of tail; nor lack affection so long as he was able to race un the beach and race back again to hurl himself upon her with his sharp, staccato yelp of loy. Oh, she was worlds better off with Prince Hal than if she were linked up with someone of her own genus who could not understand.

Besides, she was not going to be alone. She had decided to try an experiment

Jason had had an orphaned niece out in the Middle West-his sister's child-a girl in her early twenties, and Marcia had invited her to the island for a visit.

In fact, Sylvia was expected today, That was why a bowl of pansies stood upon the table in the big bed she had practiced had demanded no room at the head of the stairs, and why its fireplace was heaped with driftwood ready for lighting. That was also the reason Marcia now stood critically surveying her preparations.

She was especially desirous the old home should look its best today, for the outside world had contributed a richness of setting that left her much to live up to. Sylvia had never seen the ocean. She must love it. But would she? That was to be the test.

There was room, money, affection enough for two beneath the Homestead roof and Sylvia was alone in the world. Moreover, Marcla felt an odd sense of obligation toward Jason. At the price of his life he had given her back her freedom. It was a royal gift and she owed him something in return.

She was too honest to pretend she had loved him or mourned his loss. Soon after the beginning of their life together, she had discovered he was not at all the person she had supposed him. The gay recklessness which had so completely bewitched her and which she had thought to be manliness had been mere bombast and bravado. At bottom he was a braggart-small, cowardly, purposeless—a ship without a rudder.

Endowed with good looks and a devil-may-care charm, he had called her his star and pleaded his need of her, and she had mistaken plty for love and believed that to help guide his foundering craft into port was a heaven-sent mission.

Alas, she had over-estimated both her own power and his sincerity. Jason had no real desire to alter his conduct. Instead, day by day he slipped lower and lower and, unable to aid him or prevent disaster, she had been forced to look on.

Her love for him was dead, and her self-conceit was dealt a humiliating blow.

Sometimes she reproached herself for the tragedy and, scrutinizing the past, wondered whether she might not have prevented it. Had she done her full part; been as patient, sympathetic, understanding as she ought to have been? Did his defeat lie at her door?

With the honesty characteristic of her, she could not see that it did. She might, no doubt, have played her role better. One always could if given a second chance. Nevertheless she had tried, tried with every ounce of strength in her-tried and failed! Well, it was too late for regrets now. Such reflections belonged to the past and she must put them behind her as useless, morbid abstractions. Her back was set against the twilight; she was facing the dawn—the dawn with its promise of happier things.

She had paid for her folly-if indeed folly it had been. Now with optimism and courage she looked fearlessly forward, That was why, as she caught up her hat, a smile curled her

The house did look pretty, the day was glorious. She was a-tingle with eagerness to see what it might bring. Calling Prince Hal, she stood before

Sawyer Falls, the nearest station, Marcia fidgeted. She had never seen any of Jason's family. At first a desultory correspondence had taken place between him and his sister. Margaret: then gradually it had died a natural death—the result, no doubt, of his indolence and neglect. When the letters ceased coming, Marcia had let matters take their course. She had written Margaret a short note after his death and had received a reply expressing such genuine grief it had more than ever convinced her that her course had been the wise and generous one. What troubled her most in the letter had been its outpouring of sympathy for herself. She detested subterfuge and as she read sentence after sentence, which should have meant so much and in reality meant so little, the knowledge that she had not been entirely frank had brought with it an uncomfortable sense of guilt. It was not what she had said but what she had withhold that accused her.

Marcia Howe was no masquerader. and until this moment the hypocrisy sustained acting. Little by little, moreover, the pricking of her conscience had been forgotten. Miles of distance, years of silence separated her from Jason's relatives and it had been easy to allow the deceit if deceit it had been, to stand.

But now those barriers were to be broken down and she suddenly realized that to keep up the fraud so artlessly begun was going to be exceedingly difficult. She was not a clever dissembler.

If she had followed her usual custom and been open with Jason's sister. the dilemma in which she now found herself would never have arisen. Granted that her motive had been a worthy one had it not been audacious to make of herself a god and withhold from Margaret Hayden facts she had had every right to know, facts that belonged to her? Such burdens were given human beings to bear, not to escape from. But if with mistaken kindness she had been gulded by a pygmy, short-sighted philosophy, it was too late, reflected Marcia, for her to remedy her error in judgment.

But Sylvia—Jason's niece? With her coming, all the arguments Marcia had worn threadbare for and against the exposure of Jason's true character presented themselves afresh. Should she deceive the girl as she had her mother? Oh should she tell her the truth?

She was still pondering the question when the train, with its single car. came to a stop beside the platform. Three passengers descended.

The first was a young Portuguese woman, dark of face, and carrying a bulging bag from which protruded gay bits of embroidery.

Behind her came a slender, blueeyed girl, burdened not only with her own suit-case but with a basket apparently belonging to a wee, wizened old lady who followed her.

"Now we must find Henry." the girl was saying in a clear but gentle voice. "Of course he'll be here. Look! Isn't that he—the man just driving up in a car? I guessed as much from your lescription. You need not have worried, you see. Good-by, Mrs. Doane. I hope you'll have a lovely visit with

The little old lady smiled up at her, "Good-by, my dear. You've taken care of me like as if you'd been my own daughter. I ain't much used to jauntin' about, and it frets me. Are your folks here? If not, I'm sure Henry wouldn't mind-"

"Oh, somebody'll turn up to meet me, Mrs. Doane. I'll be all right. Good-

In spite of herself, Marcia smiled. "Here's the car," she answered "What about your trunk?" "I didn't bring one."

found such a place. The Fisk expedition to the West came from Minnesota in the early '60's. Leading the wagon train were Captain J. L. Fisk and Dr. W. D. Dibb. Near Fort Rice, on a branch of the Yellowstone river, the train made camp, They were approaching dangerous country, and it was felt that a reconnoitre would be wise. So, while the lay ahead.

They went to the southwest. After some time on the way, they came to a deep and gloomy canyon, and in the rocks around them could be seen traces of gold. This was interesting, so they kept on. The farther they rode, the more gold appeared. At last the horses became tired, and since a small cave was near at hand they put the animals in this shelter to rest, out of sight of Indians who might be

After they had walked two miles, they saw so much gold in the rocks that they could hardly believe their eyes. To get a better idea of this golden country they climbed some 500 feet up a mountain side, and here the sunlight caught the gold until the whole place seemed bathed in an auriferous light. The pure metal could be pulled out of the rocks with their

Dark came while they were still staking off the glorious golden mountainside. Why go back now, only to return at daybreak? They decided to stay where they were, and to enjoy the unique experience of sleeping-if they could sleep-on almost solid gold.

But during the night an experience of another kind caused them to change their minds. Indians had seen them -Indians who perhaps felt a prior claim to the mountain of gold, and who did not propose to have that claim

But by some marvelous providence, they escaped and rode to the wagon encampment—only to find it, too, besieged, and by a larger band of Indians!

One can imagine Captain Fisk's depression. He had left the party for which he was responsible, and here he was, returning, perhaps, too late. He and Dr. Dibb entered the fight, and managed to rejoin the party, but most of the gold with which they had filled their pockets was lost.

Pinckney School Notes

Although school officially opened its doors last Tuesday, the remainder of the school week was given over mainly to classifications and the enrollment of new pupils. During this first week of school, pupils are taking i up their studies in earnest.

With the addition of a new member to the faculty and a slight shifting about of the grades, 11th and 12th classes, which heretofore were taught jointly, are now being taught separately. This is a great improvement in that the student receives the bonefits of more individual instruction, which is impossible in larger classes.

The football team is also being organized and gotten under way and we sincerely hope that this team will establish new records in the football annals of P. H. S.

The first game scheduled so far is with Brighton on September 28. Two games are later scheduled with Hartland, two with the Ann Arbor high school reserves and one with Manchester. However, it is expected that several more games will be secured later as the various schools complete their schedules. Chelsea, Milford and Fenton were on the local schedule last year but will probably not appear this year as all of these teams are in leagues or associations.

The football call was made last Wednesday and some 33 men turned out for the first practice. The practice period was devoted mostly to calisthenics. The first lineup was as follows: ends, Jask Reason and Harold Campbell; tackles, Nelson Shehan and Russel Glover; guards, Capt. Fritz Gardner and Tom roungs; centers, Emmett Clark and Chas. Clinton; quarter, Billie Meyer; haives, Bennie VanBlaricum, Stanley Smaka and Paul Singer.

With the exception of Glover, who attended Howell high school last year and Singer, who is a freshman, most of these played considerable last year.

At the next practice session the lineup was changed considerably. The total list of those who are out for the team except those named above, is: Everett Harrell, Andrew Kirkland, Alger Lee, Marcian Ledwidge, Lloyd VanBlaricum, Keith Ledwidge, Jack Hannett, Floyd Haines, Wm. Darrow, Wm. Dillon, Edsil Meyer, Cyrus At-Lee, Tel Bourbonnais, Junior Dinkel, Raymond Ellis, Lloyd Hendee, James Schultz, Winston Baughn, Gerald Dinkel, Robert Richardson, Howard

PUBLIC CONFIDENCE CONTINUES TO GAIN

Bankers Report Nation-Wide Improvement in Attitude Toward Banks-Educational Campaigns Play a Part

NEW YORK .- Ninety-six per cent of over 300 reporting clearinghouses throughout the United States find concrete evidence of favorable turns in public opinion regarding banks, it is shown in the results of a survey made by "Banking," the monthly publication of the American Bankers Association. City and country districts in every state are represented, it is pointed out.

"The outstanding conclusion is that there has been a genuine nation-wide improvement the last few months in the attitude of the public toward its banking institutions," the publication says. Statistical evidence on which the bankers base their conclusions which warrant this statement is as follows:

The Evidence

"How do bankers know there has been an improvement in the public attitude? They have certain statistical evidence. They have seen their deposits cases reported, and tremendously in some cases. Many letters tell of increases of 100 to 306 per cent from the low point of the panic.

"For another thing, they know that fewer people are using safe deposit boxes as a repository for their savings, and that, in many instances at least, postal savings are declining.

"However, many express the view that they could throw out the statistical evidence and still realize that the public is in a better mood where the banks are concerned than before. The best evidence offered on this point, numerous bankers say, is to be found in the acceptance by the public of the 1 newly instituted service charges and the reduced deposit interest rates."

A Summary of the Returns The statement presents the following summiary of the survey: "We find on breaking up the general classifications of replies to the poll that the 65 per cent of those answering with an unqualified 'yes' represent only a partial measure of the optimistic feeling. Adding the favorable replies included in other groups, (i. e. 'yes' with qualifications, 'no change,' and 'mixed') we find that the vote shows a definitely healthy situation in 84 per cent of the localities reporting; at least some signs of improvement in another 12 per cent; a continuance of unfavorable conditions in 2 per cent, and a change for the worse in another 2 per cent. It is not too much to say that this is substantially 96 per cent favorable."

Reasons for Changed Public Opinion As to reasons for the changes in public opinion-regarding bunlis reported by the clearinghouses "more than one organization has a word to say about the American Bankers Association advertising and educational material," the m'agazine says, It mentions in addition the benefits of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in the emeracucy, improvement in the general business situation, the weeding out of weak banks and the banking moratorium.

"The response to the survey can be put down as encouraging and informative," the magazine concludes. "It holds out the definite hope that with a continuance of a cooperative, educational attitude on the part of the bankers the rest of the journey back to normal may well be completed in the not too distant future."

BANKERS ACTIVE IN SOIL SAVING MOVE

Issue Book Describing Causes, Ravages and Means of Prevention of Erosion

MADISON, Wisc.—Under the title Protecting Investment Values in Land," the American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission has published a booklet dealing with the conservation of soil resources as a pressing national problem.

"Careful estimates indicate that 750, 600,000 tons of soil, suspended and dissolved, are carried off to the sea each year by running water," the commiscion's Look declares. "An equal amount removed from its source is left en route. This means a total of 1,500,000,000 tons. equal to approximately one ton for each acre of land in this country. The Soil Conservation Service estimates that 35,000,000 acres have been ruined. "There are 125,000,000 more acres that have lost the valuable topsoil, and it is estimated that still another 100 million acres are being converted into marginal or sub-marginal land, bringing disaster to those trying to eke out a living from erosion enfeebled soil. and threatening ruin to the next generation, since these destructive forces are going on at an increasing rate." In a chapter devoted to control and preventive measures for soil losses it describes terracing, strip cropping. wind erosion control, gully control and the control of losses from leaching.

Other chapters are devoted to soil resources, the toll exacted by soil erosion, methods for keeping soils productive, state and national uses for nonagricultural land, forestry in a soil conservation program and wild life in a land use program. The booklet describes in detail the marshalling of many forces which is being brought about under the leadership of the Soil Erosion Service to meet this national problem

THE WORK OF GREDIT

Bank Shows How It Gives Needed Aid to All Classes of Prudent Borrowers

How a bank loan portfolio presents a graphic cross section picture of the business of its community is disclosed by the description which a midwestern bank recently gave of its loans to cus tomers. It revealed also how closely in terwoven with its neighbors' varied lives are the threads of the bank's financial helpfulness.

This description showed that the bank had made a loan of $100,000 to a local shoe manufacturer to purchase materials, discount bills and meet current requirements.

To a wholesale grocer $05,000 had been advanced for the purchase of inventory, the loan to be repaid over a period in accordance with specified terms set forth in the loan agreement.

Assistance in Personal Matters

Another loan had been made to a home owner to the amount of $200 for painting and repairing. This was made in cooperation with the Federal Housing Administration and was being repaid in twenty-four monthly installments of $8.33 each.

A dentist had been loaned $300 to purchase new equipment. He was paying off the debt out of his professional earnings as they came in.

To a large domestic refrigerator distributor $30,000 had been granted on warehouse receipts to finance dealer shipments.

A home owner had been granted a $3.000 mortgage loan to be repaid in three years.

One thousand dollars had been advanced to an office worker on the cash surrender value of his insurance policy to aid him in meeting an emergency.

The National Total

If each of these various examples were multiplied many times the result would represent the total volume of credit cooperation which the bank was extending to its neighbors in its community, for aggregate loans to all its customers amounted to more than twelve million dollars.

If the typical examples here given were multiplied by many millions of times the result would 'present the total econemic cooperation which the banking system of the country as a whole is extending to aid the innumerable personal, professional, industrial and commercial activities which make up the whole business life of the nation. The nationwide total of such loans is in excess of 20 billion dollars.
