Options Taken On 700 Acre Tract

Options to Locate Hugh Park
Life Sanctuary in Washington and Jackson Counties. May Purchase 10,000 Acres.

The 700-acre tract as its desires, the government
how land unsuited
can be utilized for purposes.

The tract may be expanded to 10, 000 acres. It has been taken on the part of the tract.

Land along the Washtenaw-Jackson county line, approximately 20 miles northwest of Ann Arbor, and the distance between Jackson and the tract is hilly, wooded and settled with marshes and such well known bodies of water as Sugar Loaf, Crawford, Portage, Leeke and Cass lakes.

The government is prepared to pay between $150,000 and $200,000 for the semi-waste land into recreational reserve, including a game refuge, a public hunting area,
camp sites, forest trails, lake beaches,
and fishing grounds.

Approximately 135 persons now live on the tract, much of which consists of deserted farm lands. Co-operating in the purchase which was arranged by C. D. Platt, a project investigator, and approved in Washington Thursday are the national parks administration, the agricultural administration and the Michigan conservation department.

Because the tract surrounds the village of Waterloo, the tract is to be known as the Waterloo land and adjacent demonstration project.

The land optioned is located in Lyndon and Sylvan townships in Washtenaw and Waterloo and Leoni townships in Jackson county. Other land may be included in it, including the state owned tract at Four Mile Lake. This is in line with the government policy to retire unprofitable land from agriculture. According to a survey Michigan has 12,000,000-000 acres of unutilized land and 7, 000,000,000 of poor land. The former is the cut over pine stump land of the north and the light soil land which bore a few good crops and then gave out. The government plans to take them out of production, enabling the farmers to buy better lands.

While none of this land is located in Livingston county, it is located only a short distance south of Unadilla village which is eight miles from Pinckney.

COURT ADJOURNS

The circuit court adjourned last Friday and the balance of the cases were put over to the March term. Apparently no more cases were ready for trial this term.

In the case of John and Effie Mor-

M-36 Blacktop Meeting Held

Further Steps Are Taken to Get M-36 Improved. Supervisor Charles Hamilton of Novi Elected Chairman to Succeed John C. Nagel.

A good attendance was present at the M-36 Blacktop meeting held at the Pinckney Board of Commerce Hall on Monday evening. President Slayton of the Board of Commerce, called the meeting to order and stated that as the chairman of the delegation, John C. Nagel, had passed away, it would be necessary to elect another one.
Charles Hamilton of Novi township, Oakland County, was nominated by Floyd Weeks, the nomination being seconded by P. W. Curlett. Mr. Hamilton was elected unanimously and took charge of the meeting. He stated that the first step to be taken would be to get that section of M-36, lying east of U. S. 23, taken over by the state.
A resolution has already been passed by the Livingston county board of supervisors asking that that action be taken and one will be submitted to the Oakland county board this week.

William Slavin, Livingston county engineer, was called upon and stated that 10 miles of blacktop could be built for the cost of 4 miles of concrete. That the saving in upkeep in five years would pay for the road. In answer to a question by William Wilson about the cost of the road, he stated that in this vicinity, where they were being made by his department, by request of the state highway department, Mr. Hamilton stated similar tests were being made in Oakland county. Coye Allen and Tracy Crandall of the Livingston county road commission, also spoke in favor of M-36 improvement and promised their utmost co-operation.

A motion was made by Supervisor
Ray Duncan of Lyon township to have Mr. Hamilton contact Com. Von Wagner and see if another delegation to Lansing was advisable.

A motion was made by Dillway
and seconded by Slayton to have Floyd Weeks contact the representative, state senator and congressman from this district and secure their cooperation. Messrs. Hamilton and Ray Duncan to contact the Oakland county legislators and congressman. Motion carried.

Remarks were also made by William Duncan, supervisor of Green
Oak, Lawrence McClellan of Unadilla,
George Driver of Rushton, Hazen Smith of South Lyon, Wray Hickey of Hamburg, Floyd Weeks, Fred Slayton and others.

Asked in regard to the proposed Pontiac to Chelsea highway approved by the state, Ray Duncan said that although he had helped circulate petitions for it two years ago, he had not as yet been able to find out the proposed route to be taken.

There being no further business the meeting adjourned and Messrs. Slayton, Clark, Miller and Curlett served refreshments.

As an added attraction the Driver
boys of Rushton entertained with vocal selections.

C. H. DOWNING

C. H. Downing, 67, died at Mellus
Hospital in Brighton Thursday following a major operation. He formerly lived in Toledo, Ohio, but has resided at Strawberry Lake for a number of years where owned considerable lake frontage which he subdivided and sold as resort lots. Surviving are his wife, a son, Ray, in Toledo, a granddaughter, Helen, of Toledo, and a grandson, Robert. The funeral was held at his home at Strawberry Lake Saturday afternoon with Rev. Pickend of Whitmore Lake officiating. Burial was in Hamburg cemetery.

Moose Is Captured By Paul Hickie

Antlerless Bull Held in Corral Shows
No Love for Men.

Efforts of Paul Hickie and Ellsworth St. Germain of the state conservation department to live-trap moose on Isle Royale as part of the experimental work they are carrying on there this winter are meeting with success and an antlerless bull is now held captive in the corral at the headquarters of the two men on Chippewa harbor.

This is the second moose taken in the live-trap. The first, a small cow, escaped after capture when the top
wire of the corral gave way.

A short-wave radio message received this week by O. B. Shaw, a radio engineer of the conservation department from WSPCU, at the Royale station, tells of the capture of the second moose on Dec. 27.

"We released him in the corral the next day," Hickie says in the report which summarizes the first month's work of the two-man expedition, "and he is still residing there. He remains truculent however, and does not take kindly to his confinement or his cap-tors. He attempts in no unobtrusive manner to chase the latter away. He does not seem to frighten the other moose away from the trap and they come up to the corral freely."

Winter Food Scarce

Reporting on moose conditions in the Chippewa harbor district, Hickie says winter food is very scarce.
"Feeding conditions are very much as previously reported," his message says. "The moose apparently are taking almost anything they can find, including many plants they would not ordinarily browse. They come readily to trees that are felled. They usually find them the first or second night in this area, feed upon them and down near by. They will browse birch, sam, birch and poplar readily."

"The moose that have been seen seem to be in good condition. A moose killed on Dec. 23 was in good flesh but there was very little fat. We have found no dead moose and all we have seen appeared healthy. Autopsy of a moose killed showed only lungworms and ticks. There was a fairly heavy infestation of the latter."

Many Tracks Seen

"There were few moose around Chippewa harbor when we arrived on Nov. 24, and signs became more numerous Dec. 5 when moose tracks were found within 40 yards of our headquarters. On Dec. 15 a cow came to feed on birch tops in the area where the men were cutting fire wood."

"Since the construction of our drift fences, corral and trap with consequential baiting, moose have been seen more often. On Dec. 27 there were four moose seen near the trap and tracks of others."

MRS. BELLE KICE

Belle M. Rolison, the only daughter of Lewis and Charlotte Rolison, was born Dec. 13, 1859 on the Rolison homestead in Hamburg township. She is the last of a large family of children, six brothers having preceded her to the great beyond.

On Thanksgiving Day, in 1885, she was united in marriage to Henry F.
Kice. To this union one daughter was born, now Mrs. Florence Baughn.

Mrs. Kice was a faithful member of the Congregational Church, also Pinckney Chapter O. E. S.

About nine weeks ago she fell and broke her hip and was tenderly cared for at the Pinckney Sanitarium where she passed peacefully away Saturday, January 12, leaving to mourn their loss the loving husband and daughter;
also six grandchildren, several nieces
and nephews and a host of friends.

"Not now, but in the coming years
it may be in the better land, we'll read the meaning of our tears, and there sometime we'll understand."

Funeral services were held on Tuesday at 2:00 P. M. at the Kice home, burial in Pinckney cemetery with Rev.
C. H. Zuse officiating.

BARN BURNS FRIDAY

The small barn on the Rudolph Lazlo farm, just east of the Maple-school caught fire Friday morning and burned to the ground. The farm was occupied by Earl Gallup and was formerly known as the Sanford-Ra-son farm.

IS CHARGED WITH

NEGLIGENT HOMICIDE

George Hays, 40, of Howell, was arrested on a warrant charging negligent homicide last week as the result of the death of Mrs. Minnie Weyman of Grand Rapids at the McPherson Hospital in Howell on Jan. 7. Her death resulted from injuries received when the car in which she was riding
was struck by one driven by Hays, who is alleged to have been under the influence of liquor. Hays formerly travelled for a curtain and drapery firm and sold goods to C. H. Kennedy of this place and W. J. Dancer of Stockbridge. He has a wife and two small children. J. P. Sweeney, former prosecutor, is his attorney. Hays has not yet obtained bail.

uary 18, given by the ladies of St.
Mary's Parish. Bill 25c.

The Pinckney O. E. S. is sponsoring
"Aunt of Green Gables" at the Howell
Theatre next week.

Current Comment

There seems to be a definite movement underway to eliminate the district school as a unit and in its place form a county school. Gov. Fitzgerald's point in his message asking the closing of the county normals and two state-normal colleges was a move in that direction as this would tend to make a scarcity of teachers and raise their wages to a point where the country districts could not pay them.
Also, according to a new ruling, four years of college is now required for a life certificate instead of two as formerly. This action was brought to a head last week by the introduction of a bill by Senator Palmer of Flint.
This bill would consolidate 6000 small school districts in the state into county unit systems. Only districts situated in villages of more than 3,000 population would be exempt from the provisions of this law. It further provides that on receiving petitions signed by ten percent of the school census population, the clerk must call a special election to vote on the consolidation plan, majority vote would adopt the plan. Immediately the office of school commissioner would be abolished and a county superintendent and county board of education would function instead. However, the end is not yet in sight and we predict a hard, stubborn fight before the country
districts are forced to swallow it.

Are the people of Michigan enough interested in crime reform that they wish to build more prisons? If the present program is carried out that may be necessary. When Alex Groves-beck was governor, the new prison at Jackson was built with the understanding that the old one would be abandoned. The residential district of Jackson had extended out to it and there was considerable objection to
it. However, with the prohibition violators and other crimes this was found impossible and for some years but prisons were maintained. This past year the prison population was reduced so that the old prison was closed. This left the three prisons still operating filled to capacity and in order to accommodate new offenders a thorough parole policy was put into effect. Of course the deserving convicts were not always the ones paroled but they hardly ever are as those with influential friends have always had the call for years previously. Still, by this system need of another prison was prevented. Now all this is apparently changed. Joseph Armstrong of Detroit, the great champion of capital punishment has been named parole commissioner and has announced a stringent policy in regard to paroles even if more prisons have to be built in order to hold offenders. As a first step he is holding up paroles for 150 prisoners which had been approved by his predecessor, Com. DeLo.

At the crime conference held at Lansing last week the following proposals were advanced for the purpose of eliminating crime: 1. Abolish the election of judges and make their appointive, thus eliminating politics from the judiciary. 2. Reorganize the county police forces and make the sheriff merely a jail keeper. 3. Overhaul the parole system so that the man without influential friends may receive a parole as easily as the man with friends. These proposals are all well taken but it will take time.

A plan to put a vast Federal-state pension system into almost immediate operation to take care of persons taken off the Government's relief roll, was said authoritatively today to be contemplated by the Administration.

Huge, joint contributions by the Federal Government and the states would be necessary to start the pension systems on a basis large enough to take care of a good portion of the million and a half persons of officials have said will be returned to the states.

Old age and mother's aid pensions were described as the main path the Administration would follow in its joint aid plan. So what? To send Pension Plan may be adopted, it will undoubtedly be adopted, it augurating an old.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, which he names "Penelope," in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. Ten-year-old Penelope is given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin. At a baseball game a ball strikes Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin returns from business, wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient, Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record reveals Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Lanny visits her and Nance persuades her to smuggle out a letter which a confederate of Nance steals. Nance escapes, although shot, by swimming to a speed boat manned by friends, and goes to Lanny's apartment. Lanny tells Chief McNamara, who orders her to bring Nance to his apartment.

"Those cops at your house will stick around, Lanny, and when you return they'll want to know where you've been. What are you going to tell them?"

"Tell them nothing. But those two cops sit in their car in front of my house all night and watch it. What do I care? At least they'll keep burglars away. And when finally they do round me up and waltz me down to central station to be questioned, you'll do the questioning, will you not?"

"Lanny," said Dan McNamara, "if you were a man and on the force I'd make you a detective sergeant. You're a bear-cat, that's what you are. But you smuggled that letter out of San Quentin for Nance and turned it over to Sapphire Susie."

"Indeed! Well, let me tell you, Dan McNamara, that I'm a respectable woman and I never associate, if I know it, with ladies known to the police by such names."

"Maybe you didn't know it, but you gave Sapphire Susie a lift in your car from the main gate at San Quentin down to Greenbrae. The guard remembers seeing her hanging around the main gate, as if she was waiting for somebody; later she got into a coupe with a middle-aged lady, who looked so respectable he took another look at the pass she had just surrendered to him and remembers that the name on the pass was yours. The pass entitled you to visit Nance Belden. Guards may not remember such incidents until something happens. Then they're fast on their feet, Lanny."

"And who, if you please, is Sapphire Susie?"

"She's did a stretch at San Quentin for blackmail. She was discharged a week before you visited Nance, and before Susie left the Big House, Nance fixed it with her to lend a helping hand. Apparently Nance didn't want to confide the minute details of her plan of escape to Susie. Susie's a swell looker but a little bit dumb—she leveled blackmail through the mail, understand, and signed her name, instead of hiring a smart shyster lawyer. So Nance decided to send her written instructions out by you, and Susie agreed to pick you up, pinch the letter and deliver it."

"Dan, I assure you I wasn't in any plot to effect a prison delivery. If I'd thought for an instant I was doing anything wrong—why, Nance told me to read her letter and if I disapproved of its contents to destroy it. I didn't see any harm in that."

"You violated the rules of the prison and you could be punished for it by a term in that same prison."

"I'm a respectable woman—"

"That gets you nowhere. I was a respectable chief of police once—and now look at me. If your part in this leaks out you can only be punished—and you can't be convicted unless you talk in your sleep. If my part in this should leak out I'll be punished and disgraced and thrown out of the best job I've ever had. However—" he raised his glass to her—"mud in your eye, Lanny."

"Happy days, Dan, you gorgeous sooty."

The doorbell rang, Dan opened it and Doctor Burt stepped in. He paused in amazement at sight of Lanny, glass in hand; she motioned him with it down the hall. "First door at the end, Stevie. You'll find your patient there."

"That girl with the dissociated personality, Nance Belden, escaped from San Quentin late this afternoon. Chief," Stephen began, and handed the latter a newspaper. "Big story. First woman to escape from San Quentin." He gazed severely upon Lanny. "What are you doing here, Lanny?"

"All h— to pay, Stevie dear, and no pitch hot. That Belden girl is here with a bullet hole in her shoulder; she's suffering from shock and submersion and chill and loss of blood and she's cold as a penguin's tail. I've given her a stiff noggin of Dan's terrible booze and a forthright of a grain of strychnine and an alcohol rub. She's sleeping. Did you bring those hot-water bottles?"

"Yes," he said humbly, indicating a bag he carried. Lanny fell upon the bag, and retired to the kitchen to fill the hot-water bottles and tuck them in alongside her child patient. "Lucky if she doesn't develop pneumonia, Stevie."

Doctor Burt stood looking down at the sleeping Nance. "Out of the warden's arms and straight into yours. You guessed she'd cut on Lanny, eh. Dan, you're an old fox."

"No, Doc, I'm not. A fox has brains."

"He's a lamb, Stevie, just a big ram lamb."

While Lanny was assisting Doctor Burt in dressing Nance Belden's wound, Dan McNamara sat in his plain little living room and read the story of her escape from San Quentin. It appeared that throughout all of Sunday, after two men, in a motor boat, had been anchored in the cove off San Quentin apparently fishing for striped bass, which abound at this particular point in San Francisco Bay. There were other boats anchored there also—eight in all. The guard at the entrance to the women's quarters had observed them, until, about four-thirty p. m., just before looking-up time a guard in one of the lookout towers on the hill had telephoned him that a boat had approached close to the shore.

The guard had thereupon stepped out of his kiosk and around to the rear of it, which faced toward the beach, less than thirty feet distant. He had shouted at the men in the boat and warned them to be off, that they were not permitted to approach that close, that they were within the dead-line. To this the men replied that they couldn't help it; that their motor had gone dead and that the tide had set them in; that they were trying to make repairs and would be off as soon as they could.

While the guard was in the rear of his station, engaged in this conversation, Nance Belden had approached the gate, kicked off her shoes and, digging her toes into the quarter-inch wire mesh of the sixteen-foot gate, had scrambled to the top with incredible rapidity. She was just climbing down the outside of the gate when the guard in the tower on the hill saw her and immediately telephoned to the guard at the main gate; also to the guard arguing with the men in the motor-boat. Upon hearing the telephone bell ringing in his station, that guard had walked back into it; at the same time, keeping the kiosk between her and the approaching guard, Nance Belden had dashed down to the beach and commenced swimming rapidly toward the motor-boat, the motor of which instantly started, and the boat commenced edging in to pick her up.

When the guard in the kiosk, apprised of what was taking place, ran out with a rifle in his hand and shouted to Nance Belden to come back or he would shoot her, a machine-gun in the motor-boat promptly came into action against him. He had not been hit, but a shower of bullets had splattered the ground around and in front of him and another burst had gone over his head and through the sentry box. The guard had fired once at the Belden woman and hit her, but immediately thereafter, fearful of being killed, he had thrown himself flat on the ground.

The guard in the watch-tower on the hill had then brought his machine-gun into action. His first burst had been short, and drew answering fire from the machine gunner in the boat. Although the range was four hundred yards, the first burst from the motor-boat tore through the wooden watch-tower, which rather distracted the aim of the guard there; nevertheless, the latter stuck to his gun and continued to fire, splattering bullets around the swimming girl and into the boat.

The men in the boat did not hesitate, but came on through the hall of bullets; the escaping prisoner had in the meanwhile either sunk or dived; at any rate a widening tinge of red appeared on the water. She was down about thirty seconds, then her head emerged close to the boat, and she swam, with one arm to the side of it; a man reached over and grasped her under both arms and jerked her into the boat, which instantly turned, put on full speed and raced away close past two other boats. Fearful of killing innocent people, the guard in the watch-tower held his fire until the escaping boat was in the distance; then he and the guard in another tower came into action again. But a target moving at a speed of forty-five miles an hour is not easily hit; the fire was either over or short and the boat did not stop. When it was out of range, it turned, and in the rapidly fading light of the winter day, headed up into San Pablo bay, running close to the south shore to avoid the chop of the waves in this shallow expanse of water. They ran without lights.

While the course they had taken would seem to indicate a desire to run up Carquinez straits to the Sacramento or the San Joaquin rivers, land and escape in a waiting automobile into central California, the warden realized that his quarry was not lacking in intelligence; that, fast as they fled, they would realize that the telephone is faster; that the roar of their motor must betray them a mile away. He had, therefore, taken the precaution to notify the chiefs of police of Pittsburg, Martinez, Sausalito, Richmond, Berkeley, Oakland and San Francisco, leaving to these the task of notifying intermediate points. The warden had a suspicion the fugitives would double back to San Francisco—particularly since the girl was wounded and must be hidden in order to receive medical attention.

"And here she is," Dan McNamara muttered. "Cripes, what a woman! Lord, how I love a woman with brains and courage. Just a little simple matter of taking pains and taking risks. She didn't go in to the dining hall for dinner with the other prisoners. Smart! Knew she couldn't make a fast swim on a full stomach. Smart enough to notice the warden's oversight in failing to fill in with barbed wire topping that eighteen-inch space at the top of his gate. Of course they figured they needn't bother with that, because no woman could climb a sixteen-foot wire mesh fence anyhow, and if she did she'd only drop down into the waiting arms of the guard, who is never absent, night or day. But Nance Belden knew she could climb that fence barefoot; she knew she had thirty seconds to do it and a drop on the other side from the top of the gate. Her job was to induce the guard to turn his back—and her friends in the boat did that!"

"She knew she'd been seen from the watch-tower on the hill and the guard at the gates notified by telephone; as he returned from the edge of the beach, around the south side of his kiosk, Nance slipped by him on the north side and was in the water as the guard took up the 'phone. Smart! She knew no guard will stick under machine-gun fire at fifty yards, merely to stop a woman convict escaping from prison. Smart! Sank and swam under water—and then the zigzag course between the boats of the other fishermen, after they picked her up. Fine psychology—she engineered it all—and I know she's a nut! And then straight to Lanny for medical attention—straight to the one human being she knew she could trust—no, I'll not send her back. And I don't particularly want to catch her friends either. I'll say they're friends! Wish I had a couple of friends that'd come on through machine-gun fire for me! I had thought the world was selfish and cruel and thieving and lying—but there's nobility left in it after all."

Stephen Burt came out of the bedroom and sat down and stared at the chief of police with grave interest. "Well, my good Javert," he said presently.

"Your good what?"

"I called you Javert. Don't you know who Javert was?"

Dan McNamara shook his head. "I never picked him up, Doc."

"You wouldn't. He was a character in 'Les Misérables,' a novel by Victor Hugo. He was a fly-cop in Paris, and he pursued an ex-convict named Jean Valjean for twenty years, because he believed the man was a crook. Once a crook, always a crook, was Javert's philosophy. And when he discovered at last he had the goods on Jean Valjean and it was his duty to arrest him, he discovered simultaneously that Jean Valjean was also a good and noble man, which proved extremely embarrassing to Javert."

"I understand how that could be, all right, Doc. What did Javert do then?"

"He climbed up on the railing of a bridge over the Seine, unpinning his shield, threw it into the river and jumped in after it."

"He committed suicide in order to give his man the breaks."

"Exactly."

"Well," Dan McNamara decided after pondering this a half minute. "I wouldn't be boob enough to do that. He should have made a stool pigeon out of Jean Valjean and maybe he'd have gotten somewhere in his job."

Stephen smiled. He liked this heavy man, with the Celtic face as inscrutable as a Chinaman's. As a specialist in mental diseases he knew the part heredity plays in the formation of character, and one did not have to look at the chief twice to know that he came of courageous ancestry. No vague fears or anxieties in this fellow, Stephen thought. Courageous men are usually honest men; even when they are not honest they are sufficiently courageous to pay the price, no matter how high, for the things they do with their eyes open—to pay it cheerfully and refrain thereafter from whimpering.

"So you're going to protect this girl, are you, Chief?"

TRUE GHOST STORIES

By Famous People

Copyright by Public Ledger, Inc. WNU Service.

By RITA WEIMAN

Author.

"RITA WEIMAN is too strong-minded to have a ghost story," cautioned her husband.

"Beg your pardon," he added. "Come to think of it she does have a ghost story, a very real one. She has a knack of foreseeing things. Tell about your 'voltage story,' Rita."

Simultaneously, the author, her husband and I drew our chairs closer to the fireplace, above which burned dim lights from Chinese furniture, which she favors.

"Seven years ago," she began, "I read an obscure notice in the newspaper, about John Hulbert, of Auburn, N. Y., an electrician, resigning as executioner at Sing Sing, because he was being ostracized from society. At the same time he justified his job, saying he was only fulfilling his work as a servant of the state."

"I thought this was a grand idea for a story. I wrote a story about an electrician, who was ostracized by his family and friends, because they found out he was serving as an executioner and who eventually killed himself because of their actions, by seizing a high-voltage electric wire. I sold the story to a magazine."

"A few months later the editor called me to say that the owner of the magazine felt that my story was a plea against capital punishment and that he did not feel that his magazine should take issue on the subject. I should keep my cheek, but the story would not be published by them; I could resell it if I wished."

"I let the matter drift, although I felt that I wanted to see the story published."

"One morning, two years later, my secretary handed me a paper."

"Look," she cried, with amazement in her voice.

"Joins in death the 140 men he slew," said the headlines. "John Hulbert, by suicide, answers the question all who knew him asked."

"How I rejoiced that my story had not been published! I would always have been haunted by the thought that Hulbert had read my story and brooded over it, and had eventually committed suicide."

"In view of the strange finale of events, the magazine then published the story, and I rejoiced that I have been saved from that ghost."

By PERCY CROSBY

Cartoonist.

"I WAS born in a haunted house," related the comic artist, Percy Crosby.

"The first gleam of consciousness which I can remember in my life was seeing a colored mammy under the kitchen table, and hearing my mother say that the mammy was a ghost. All through my childhood I can remember my mother complaining to my father that our house was haunted, until, when I was three, we had to move from it."

"I can remember vividly that first experience—the only time I ever saw the ghost. It left an indelible impression on my mind."

"I had gone into the kitchen to get a cookie. Under the kitchen table I saw a negro mammy; a red bandanna was tied tightly around her head, her two hands were on the floor. She seemed to be backing away from me. I screamed in fright at the strange sight and ran to my mother."

"Mother grasped my hand, and took me back to the scene. The woman was still crouching there."

"I saw my mother slap at her, and her hand went right through her head and struck the wall; and the mammy disappeared."

"'Ghost, ghost!' screamed my mother. I screamed also, not knowing what the word meant."

"Mother called witnesses who agreed that there was no sign or hide or hair of the mammy in the room. I was with her to testify that she had been there, and that when mother struck her she disappeared."

"After that experience my mother grew more nervous and timid; but, like all small boys, the experience only gave me more courage, and more ideas for adventure. But I have never found a ghost since that time. No doubt since I was born in a haunted house, I'll probably die in one."

Farmers War on Lark

Even if Shelley wrote an ode about it and Schubert was inspired by it to compose a beautiful melody, the lark is just a bird that damages wheat and other crops. So declare the farmers in the vicinity of Norfolk, England, and they have started a war on the songster. The Norfolk Agricultural committee has decided the bird from the new order under the wild birds protection act.

Collapsing Reveals Secret Tunnel

Not known previously to exist, a brick-lined tunnel six feet high, ten feet wide and about the feet below the surface of the road and believed to be over one hundred years old, collapsed at Southold, England, while workmen were preparing foundations for a garage.

PRETTY FOR SMALL DAUGHTER

9826

Mothers who like to dress their small daughters after the simple smart English manner will love this design. At first glance, nice as it looks, there seems to be very little to it. But look again— isn't that double yoke attractive, ending in two delicate little scallops that button down in the front? And the side pleats, which make it such a pleasant frock in which to romp are also decorative in a charmingly discreet manner. The sleeves may be long or short, and a hidden charm is a pair of more than ordinarily well-cut bloomers. Make it of cotton or sheer wool.

Pattern 9826 may be ordered only in sizes 1, 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 2½ yards 36 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighth Street, New York, N. Y.

The first ballot was 9 for acquittal and 3 for conviction. Only four ballots were taken. Note by editor—This case is still unsolved and no one was ever convicted of any of these murders.

PHEASANT OF 1929

RELEASE IS SHOT

The patriarch of the ringneck pheasants in Michigan was shot last fall, it has been learned by the Department of Conservation.

Having successfully eluded hundreds of hunters in one of the most popular pheasant shooting areas in southern Michigan for five years, the old-timer fell to the gun of G. W. Goodacre of Battle Creek on Oct. 15.

Goodacre bagged the bird a mile and a half west of Parma, Jackson county. He was first impressed with the exceedingly long spurs and beautiful plumage the pheasant wore. He was equally well impressed with its fine flavor when served. He kept the numbered band found on one of the bird's legs and notified the Department of Conservation of his find.

Members of the Game Division delved into old records and learned that the pheasant had been a member of the first batch of banded, game-farm ringnecks released by the state. It had been freed Nov. 21, 1929, in northern Hillsdale county, the records show.

In the five years, it had travelled to a point 24 miles from where released, which is a greater average yearly travel distance than ordinarily attributed to pheasants in Michigan, according to the Game Division.

The state began releasing pheasants in 1918. Whether any members of the original release are alive afield today is doubtful, in the belief of the Game Division. The first open hunting season on ringnecks came in 1925 and legal hunting has been held successively each year since that time. Goodacre's bird is the oldest Michigan return of which the Department has a record.

The tax bill of America's railroads runs above $1,000,000 every day of the year.

Neighboring Notes

Don P. Barrett of Howell has been appointed chief of apilary or bee inspection by the state department of agriculture.

According to a report by the Calhoun county relief administrator 31 persons who had found employment elsewhere, were dropped from relief rolls by that county last week.

Two Jackson prison inmates from woodlot near Grass Lake, where a gang of convicts were cutting wood escaped last Wednesday. One, Fred Natcon, 26, of Grand Rapids, was found hiding in the basement of the Waterloo Church and returned to prison. The other, Earl Reno, 22, of Bay City, stole an auto which was abandoned at Ann Arbor away.

Howell expects to start school under the FERA. The school taught will be German, mathematics, General Science, Civics, Bookkeeping, Typewriting, Shorthand, Biology, English etc.

$763.00 was raised by the Livingston County Red Cross in their recent drive.

The Democrat county convention to elect delegates to the spring convention will be held at Howell Saturday, Jan. 19, at 8:00 P. M. The same delegates elected last fall are eligible. Those from Putnam are M. J. Hoisel, M. E. Darrow, N. O. Frye, Leo Lavey and Paul Curlett.

A 6 1/2 pound daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Panek, Jr., Monday morning at the U. of M. Hospital, at Ann Arbor. Mother and daughter are doing fine. Mrs. Panek was formerly Miss Julia Aaron, of Pinckney, Co. Press.

Jack Harris, Howell restaurateur, was sentenced to the Detroit House of Correction for 90 days on an assault charge preferred by his coach, justice court last Tuesday. His attorney, Martin Lavan, filed notice of an appeal. Following this Harris was arrested for evading the sales tax law.

E. E. Searl of Ingham county, who is a candidate to succeed himself as school commissioner, announces that he is for uniform text books and the continuance of the county normal.

Vincent Berry, of Stockbridge and Miss Marcella Black of Jackson were married at Jackson Jan. 4 by Rev. Fr. Berry.

Miss Zula Clark, daughter of Rev. H. V. Clark, formerly of Plainfield, was married to Harvey Tice on January 1.

U. S. 12 is to be relocated so as to avoid hills and curves. Work will start this year in Jackson county and on three miles in Washtenaw county.

George Seitz, accompanied by three friends, enjoyed a fishing trip on Blind and Half Moon lakes last Thursday. Mr. Seitz had the good fortune to catch an 11 pound pike on Half Moon lake. Chelsea Standard.

March 4 is the date when the primaries for circuit court judge and school commissioner will be held. Nomination for vacancies in the state senate and house also at this time.

Frank Bay, for 46 years employed by the Grand Trunk railroad as agent at South Lyon, Pontiac and New Hudson, died at Grand Rapids Jan. 6. The funeral and burial was at South Lyon Wednesday.

THE WAR ON CRIME

Michigan is shortly to become the nation's leading battleground in the war against crime, with Attorney General Harry S. Toy leading the militant forces of law, order and decency. We trust that Mr. Toy's present enthusiasm is sincere, and not for the purpose of drawing favorable newspaper publicity in his direction. It seems a strange thing, but whenever the battle lines against crime begin forming some bright boy in the audience arises and suggests the appointment of a commission to study the conditions, when everybody knows they've been rotten for years. It's just a lazy man's way of passing the buck. We don't need any new agencies or any new laws to fight crime in this state. What we do need is a wholesale of HE-man action. Mr. Toy happens to be a leading law enforcement officer in Michigan. He has the police at his command. If he means business he'll call in Oscar Olander and tell him to get busy pronto. Those boys know where the slot machines and gambling dens have their places of abode. Just a few days of old-fashioned scrub work and the picture will look a whole lot cleaner. After that they can perform some major operations. Don't start in trying to kid the yokels, Mr. Toy. Just get down to brass tacks and show us some results.

America's Class 1 Railroad own 46,500 passenger cars. This is 100 fewer than at the peak in 1929.

Paris Acclaims the Beauty of Lace

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FOR sheer loveliness whenever, wherever, it ever has eye beheld a more entrancing array of lace evening gowns than those which are now gracing the midwinter social scene! When we say sheer loveliness we mean just that—sheer and lovely as the smart new laces and nets, chiffons and marquisettes can make the party frocks and evening formals now so voguish.

The importance of lace and net and various beautiful sheers of similar character cannot be over emphasized. Reports pour in from Paris in regard to the enthusiasm shown for gowns that are that thin and fluttery and diaphanous they needs must be made over foundational slips of silk, or satin, crepe or lame.

In describing the group of distinguished lace fashions pictured, we are so enthusiastic about the superbly lovely lace frock to the right in the trio we are going to tell about it first. It is a wedding gown which is real style news, gives it an added touch of glamor and romance, too. More and more brides are intrigued with the idea of lace for the all-important nuptial event. One of the reasons, perhaps, is that lace is so luxurious and beautiful in itself, it needs no further embellishment to enhance it. Silver lace is particularly sumptuous and it makes a really thrilling wedding gown. Ardane of Paris, whose creations are ever strikingly original, creates this exquisite bridal costume of this silver lace. It has a square court train which may be draped as a wrap, as here shown, which makes it practical for the bride to wear as an evening gown later. A white satin bodice is inserted at the side-front. The same satin borders the train, also the long sleeves.

In the charming black lace dress centered in the picture, Patou has very ingeniously contrived to coax a youthful little peplum to circle the hips and go ruffling down the back. From the picture one might easily fancy that net of large open mesh fashioned this dress instead of lace. However, it is really a rather heavy lace, smartly patterned in a conventional design which is younger looking than the more formal and ornate orals. There is just enough sophistication about this dainty frock to appeal to the bud "just out" in society who aspires to poise and dignity.

Speaking of the new net frocks, likewise the now-so-voguish marquisettes, they are going in for color for all they are worth, unusual tones such as raspberry, violet (said to be the coming big color), Marina blue, rust and dark red.

In regard to the gown illustrated to the left in the group, color adds to the enchantment of the lace which fashions it. For this gown of classic simplicity Callot uses a gorgeous copper-colored lame lace, posing it over a white crepe silk slip. The collar of white coq feathers is a grand climax.

A word should be spoken in regard to the tendency this season to employ laces of a filmy texture both in colors and black. The newer black lace dresses hold one almost spellbound in their fragile beauty. Then, too, among recent showings are stunning lace modes which display a riot of fine knife pleatings which form wide ounces and bertha off-shoulder décolletés and shoulder capes and other captivating details.

CONTRAST SLEEVES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The idea of sleeves contrasting the rest of the dress is holding good in midseason styling. Advance spring fashions and resort modes also emphasize this feature. Not only are sleeves in direct contrast but the matter of cutting sleeves and yoke in one is important, according to reports in regard to advance fashions. The dinner dress pictured is of dull black velvet with cut-in-one sleeves and yoke of sheer ribbed velvet which makes this dress practical for late-into-the-spring wear. A delicate rhinestone necklace, just the right length for the neckline, adds formality. The wide rhinestone bracelet also sounds the glittering note which fashion demands for evening. In reality this dress is part of a suit, having a simple, fitted hip-length jacket fastened at the small turnover collar with two handsome silver fox tails.

Feathers on Gowns—Evening gowns trimmed with pheasant feathers are seen in London.

NEW WRINKLES IN SPRING SHOWINGS

Peplums and pleats are the new wrinkles in advance style showings for spring, and in last-word touches for mid-winter costumes.

Pleats are cropping out all over the place—in evening gowns and daytime frocks, used to give skirt fullness in back or front, or to add character to a peplum flare.

They are showing up even in hats, brims and in scarfs, in bustle effects on evening gowns and in whole skirts for formal costumes of the naughty nineties school.

The tiered cape in starched net gains distinction if the net is pleated.

Sheer evening gowns are knockouts with voluminous skirts knife-pleated from waist to floor, with an additional pleated peplum flare on the fitted waist-length jacket.

Wide Belts and Princess Lines Are Now Emphasized

Two fashion specifications—wide belts and princess-lines—are emphasized to a degree that makes it seem certain that there's to be no fooling about women keeping their waistslines well corseted and smooth.

In either case, it must be carefully and thoroughly digested that it is not a pulled-in or nipped waistline. Wide belts are now shaped so that they have a curved profile to coincide with the natural waistline, and thus putting a stop once and for all to the abrupt cut at top and bottom that has been the big drawback in wide belts in the past.

Turtleneck Collar

The turtleneck collar is a feature of many sweaters and a novelty is the posing of this collar in a dark color on a light sweater, such as wine red on a creamy off-white.

Tucked Gloves

This season's gloves entirely streaked with parallel lines of pin tucking will be worn by the Parisienne with her pin-tucked, kidskin shoes.

More About Origin of "O.K."

Ohio Writer Admits That His Great State Has Been Wrongly Credited With Giving Birth to This Most Popular Americanism.

Sad but true, out tumbles the bottom from one of the most romantic stories in our whole Ohioana.

For contrary to state-wide belief, the Whig rally in Urbana in the campaign of 1840 was not the occasion for the origin of O. K., probably our most popular Americanism. And as a result of evidence disproving this version, its origin is as definitely unknown and as open to speculation as ever, H. J. Carr writes, in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A unique expression, employed by every one from college presidents to illiterates (President Wilson used it on official documents) and understood the world over as denoting agreement or approval of something, O. K. has been traced back by authorities to various sources.

While the New Standard dictionary says it is the result of the misreading of O. R., "ordered recorded," Webster's New International tells us it probably comes from the Choctaw okeh. "It is so and not otherwise."

According to another version, it is a hangover from Gen. Andrew Jackson's use of these letters to endorse official papers as correct (Ori Korrek)—which, as a stab at his illiteracy, was employed as a party cry in the campaign of 1832.

Moreover, while some attribute it to Josh Billings and fellow humorists, others contend that Jacob Astor voiced it to indicate the standing of traders about whom he was questioned. Another speculation attributes its origin to Old Keokuk, an Indian chief who is said to have signed treaties with the initials O. K.

In Colonial days the best tobacco and rum were imported from Aux Cayes, (pronounced O. K.), became a popular expression for excellence. Etcetera, etcetera—in fact, this expression that you say every day has been traced back to almost everything except as an incident in the fall of the Roman empire.

But the most popularly accepted version, because of its probability, has been the Urbana Whig rally of September 15, 1840, in which Ohio's Gen. W. H. Harrison was making a bid for the Presidency. The success of a political meeting in those days was judged by the attendance, the number of wagons drawn by the most horses, the number and bigness of banners and the catchy slogans painted on them.

For this tumultuous gathering, at which General Harrison spoke for two hours, twelve tables were set, each 200 feet long, from which the thousands and thousands of persons were stuffed with barbecued oxen, sheep, deer and other mammalia, and of course honest-to-goodness hard cider, which was as necessary then as nickel cigars are now.

One enthusiastic Whig farmer, to make an ostentatious impression in the parade, rigged up a large wagon drawn by many horses with a platform to accommodate his neighbors. On a banner suspended over the platform was crudely painted the inscription: The People Is Oll Korrek.

Seizing upon the misspelling, Democratic papers exhibited it as evidence of the ignorance of the supporters of Harrison. Orators carried around handbills bearing the slogan and threw them out to the shouting hearers. Samuel Medary, famous for his zeal in attacking the Whigs in his paper, the Statesman, enjoyed himself devoting his columns to the farmer's illiteracy, which was supposed to be typical of everyone favoring Harrison.

This mounting ridicule, getting under their skin, continued to baffle all faithful Whigs—that is, all except one. He was Daniel Leffel, a typical tavern proprietor of the time, who thought it best to ward off the derision by making the most of the mistake. So he painted O. K. in large capital letters over the front door of his tavern in Springfield to convey the impression that his tavern was "Oll Korrek."

The "O. K." Inn, as it was on the national highway, which led to the great West, was visited by numerous travelers; and this strange combination of letters lingered in their memory, especially since the hospitality, food and spirits were as "Oll Korrek" as advertised. And so these travelers began to joyfully recommend things as O. K.

Leffel's tavern was spared until 1901, when it was torn down to make room for the Ohio State Masonic home, into whose ownership the property had passed. The originally inscribed O. K. remained above the door for about 60 years until the bricks upon which it was painted were removed and scattered by the wrecking crew.

That the farmer of Champaign county displayed a banner bearing Oll Korrek and that these letters were painted on this wayside inn in Springfield are unquestionable facts. But that the expression had its origin in this meeting is untrue, for the reason that Samuel Medary, who was supposed to have started the ball rolling in print, had used the expression in his paper several days before the rally took place.

Gentle Correction

Whistler, the famous artist, was noted for his bluntness of speech. At an exhibition a critic once said to him: "Your picture is not up to the mark; it is not good this time."

"You should not say it isn't good," quietly replied Whistler; "you should say you don't like it, and then, you know, you're perfectly safe."

Almost No Limit to Entre Dishes

Many Substantial Enough to Be Served as Chief on Menu Bill.

The French word entre has become almost Americanized from its constant use on formal menus, and on hotel bills of fare. It signifies side dishes that belong to a hearty group. They are not main dishes, such as roasts, joints, etc., but comprise such dishes as chicken à la king, broiled mushrooms, croquettes, escalloped sweetbreads and other escalloped dishes of meat, fish, fowl, vegetables, etc. In fact, many entrees are substantial enough for main dishes, although they would not be listed as such on menus. However, at hotels, clubs, etc., they are served on a la carte orders at patrons' wishes, instead of the heavier meats, fish, fowl, and bird orders. In the United States entrees include an amazing assortment of foods, even broiled lamb chops, and veal cutlets.

However, it is the preparation of the foods which relegates them to the entre class, almost as much as the foods themselves. Sauces are of great importance, and fancy preparations of dishes. An unusual and yet a simple entre is sautéed filets of fish with cabbage tartare.

Sole, flounder, or any filets, or even slices of fish such as halibut, salmon or cod, are lightly fried in a little butter or bacon fat. These are arranged around the outside of the platter or serving dish, which has in the center the cabbage tartare.

This is made by scooping out the heart of a young cabbage, chopping the heart fine, mixing it with tartare sauce and returning the cabbage preparation to the cabbage shell. This container is cut even around the top, making it closely resemble a delicate green bowl.

The foundation for tartare sauce is mayonnaise. To 1 cupful is added 2 tablespoonfuls each of chopped olives and gherkins, 1 tablespoonful chopped sweet pepper, 1/2 teaspoonful chopped onion, 1 tablespoonful capers and 1 tablespoonful minced parsley.

A more delicate cabbage tartare is made by using 1/4 chopped celery to 3/4 chopped cabbage, and the other ingredients as given. Should the homemaker not have all the other ingredients, some may be omitted. For instance, olives, sweet pepper, or gherkins, any one of which can be left out, but there must be diversity enough to change the mayonnaise into a tartare. Zest is necessary. Lemon slices should dress the fish about the platter, and it is attractive to have radishes interspersed.

Spare the Spinach!

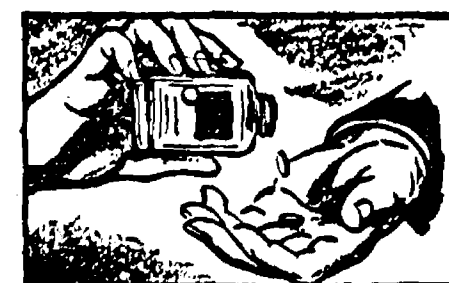

The main value of spinach lies in its good content of iron, its alkali-forming mineral, and its vitamin A, B, and C content. All these elements, however, are present in other vegetables. Naturally no two green vegetables are exactly alike in composition, but there is an advantage in this fact in that it provides release from monotony. Try serving some of the other green vegetables to your children and find out what they like; then you can gauge the amounts of these to provide exactly the same things for which you are using spinach.—Dr. Walter H. Eddy in Good Housekeeping.

"Wise" and "Smart"

Wise is defined as discerning and judging soundly concerning which is true or false, proper or improper; discreet; opposed to foolish. The word smart is more or less colloquially used to indicate cleverness or mental alertness, quickness in learning, shrewdness.

WHITMORE LAKE MAN AMONG BEST RIFLE SHOTS IN COUNTRY

E. Roche McClure has won for himself the coveted distinction of being one of the hundred most expert rifle shot in America, according to an announcement made by the National Rifle Association.

McClure fired in the tournament at Grand Rapids which was one of 16 state and regional matches held this year to determine the annual winners of the national trophies and championships. He earned his ranking by scoring 119 out of a possible 150 points to place in the "President's Hundred," a group selected on the basis of scores fired in the 1934 national match, the most popular event in the tournament. Copied from a Wash. Post paper.

Mr. McClure is well known here. He formerly lived near here.

NO INQUEST TO BE HELD

Coroner Guy Rounville has decided that an inquest will be necessary in the death of Gordon Shaw of Detroit who was killed near Detroit on Sunday when his truck ran off the pavement. The coroner, Wallace Shaw, was a brother-in-law of the deceased. Both men are from Detroit.

Mr. Lee Lavey and son, Robert, visited Mr. and Mrs. Steve O'Brien at Steadbridge Saturday.

COMMUNICATION

Mr. Paul W. Curlett, Publisher, Pinckney, Michigan.

Dear Mr. Curlett:

I am pleased to enclose my check for $2.00 in payment of my subscription to the Pinckney Dispatch, in accordance with your bill.

I believe your records will show that I have been a subscriber for over forty-four years. I want you to know that I look forward each week with a great deal of interest to receiving the paper, and am getting a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction out of reading particularly your notes of "Fifty Years Ago Today", for it refreshes one's memory and causes an old timer to reflect and think, because it recalls to his mind many incidents and names that transpired so long ago.

I note with satisfaction that a committee of your Chamber of Commerce is considering holding an old boy's and girl's reunion, which I hope will be done, because it will be a pleasure to go to the old home town and meet some old friends I haven't had seen for upwards of thirty-five or forty years.

Wishing you success, and with best regards, I am

Yours truly,

P. G. Teeple.

Philathea Notes

The Philathea Class accepted the hospitality of Mrs. Lydia Cabb on Wednesday, the ninth, the occasion being the January business and social meeting and the missionary service of the class. The new president, Mrs. Millie Bowman, presided and the meeting was opened by singing "Let the Lower Lights be Burning." Rev. C. H. Zuse offered prayer after the scripture reading by the chaplain. A very gratifying offering was given for missions, which allowed the balance on the first year's apportionment for our church to be met in full. Many families of our parish are starting "A Cent a Meal" plan which will assist us in raising our benevolences for the current year. The following committees were appointed: Missionary, Mrs. P. H. Swarthout, Mrs. W. C. Hendee; Sick and Flower, Katherine Hoff and Mrs. Herman Vender, calling. Mrs. Villa Richards and Mrs. D. E. Swarthout.

The program committee for the afternoon was Mrs. Wealtha Vail and Miss Katharine Hoff, who presented several enjoyment numbers. Mrs. Vail and Mrs. Zuse gave fine talks on missionary work. Mrs. Zuse telling of conditions in India and Mrs. Vail in home missions. Rev. Zuse delighted with a solo and Rev. and Mrs. Zuse with three duets. Those present were asked to suggest some work that the members might do in Pinckney.

Mrs. Rose, of Mohine, was a pleasant visitor in our class on Sunday. She, with Mr. Rose and daughter, were week end guests at the parsonage.

Next Sunday the theme will be "Peter's Lesson in Humble Service". For this study John 13:1-17 and Peter 5:5. Also read Luke 14:7-11.

We were shocked and saddened by the sudden passing on Saturday of Mrs. H. F. Kice. Our sincere sympathy goes out to her family in this trying hour.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS MEET

The Livingston county board of supervisors were in session at Howell last week. The meeting was uneventful, not many matters of importance coming up.

The McPherson State Bank, the First National Bank and the First State Bank of Howell with the First National Bank of Brighton were named as depositories of county funds.

On account of the great number of claims filed the past year for sheep killed by dogs it was voted to cut the bounty paid on sheep killing dogs from $6 to $2.50.

A resolution was also approved to be sent to the senator and representative from this district asking that the dog tax be put back to $2.00 a year, its former value. Sheep claims totaling over $2,000 were filed this year and the total dog tax collected did not amount to half that amount.

Several repair bills were approved including one on the county jail. The session closed Friday.

The resolution received from the State Association of Superintendents of the Poor asking that the board go on record in favor of returning all the welfare work to the counties, townships and cities was tabled and did not come to a vote at all.

IN USING

this organization, he knows that his own wishes decide what the cost of the service will be.

This is an assurance that means much to the family of moderate means and it enables anyone calling us to satisfy himself that he will not be called upon here, to pay one dollar more than he feels our service should cost.
