Youth—You haven't said a single word for 20 minutes.

Girl Friend—Well, I didn't have anything to say.

Youth—Don't you ever say anything when you have nothing to say?

Girl Friend—No.

Youth—Well, then, will you be my wife?

Coverage

"Don't you wish you were a happy barefoot boy again?"

"No," said Senator Sorghum. "Covering doesn't make the difference. A barefoot boy isn't necessarily any happier than a bald-headed man."

Costume of Suede Is Top o' the Mode

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

STOP, look and listen for it's most important news we are telling you—all about the latest sensation in fashion—namely the costume done entirely of handsome, colorful suede. In the perfectly stunning dresses, jackets, swagger coats and many-piece ensembles of all-leather which are stepping out into the limelight this season, an epoch-making chapter is being written into the annals of fashion history.

A significant thing about this intriguing all-leather movement is that designers have discovered that suede adapts itself with equal facility to formal as well as casual sporty styling. Which is a line of thought to which our minds must adjust would we fully appreciate the broad scope covered in the new leather fashions, since hitherto the mention of leather in a style sense meant its use for sturdy sportswear only. In the new order of affairs suede qualifies as aptly and happily as a medium for the loveliest and daintiest of formal evening apparel as it does for the sturdiest of outdoor garments.

To prove to your satisfaction the truth of the above assertion, we invite you to glimpse the "love of a gown" as pictured to the left in the illustration. The lady of the evening as here portrayed is Bette Davis of cinema fame. She is wearing an exquisite gown of white chevreau suede. Which goes to show that Hollywood agrees with Paris in this all-leather vogue now sweeping throughout the style centers of the world. An adorable gown, you will admit, is this beguiling suede formal. It has the slink, suave lines to which so many of fashion followers aspire. A high neckline in front with low neckline outlined with braided suede adds further distinction to this charming gown.

Suede evening wraps are also in high fashion, either of the short jacket styling or in loose swagger lines. Capes, too, if you please, some of which are elegantly collared with white fox.

To the right in the picture, Kathleen Burke, another favorite, is wearing a five-piece ensemble done entirely of handsome suede, in a fascinating tone of rich hunter's green. It is one of the hand-laced types (the skirt is sewn together with leather thongs) such as is foremost in fashion this year. In fact, laced leather is the password to high style in the thrilling suede outfits that are being turned out for fall and winter. For the seams to be laced together as here shown dates your costume as being unmistakably a "last word" creation.

In the instance of the five-piece "set" here shown, lacing is carried out along the edge of the side-front fastening of the form-fitting skirt, also on the collar and revers of the swagger coat and two-buttoned vest. A saucy youthful suede beret together with a miser's drawing bag completes this perfectly stunning street outfit.

As to the cunning outfit below in the group, it tells at a glance that it has gone decidedly "football." It is Maureen O'Sullivan, of film prestige, who in fying leathers is scoring her touchdowns in this hand-lace suede suit of devastating chic. Even the buttons are laced as is also the pigskin leather football hat. Her bag is of the same leather ingeniously shaped like a football. The suit's standup collar is news.

CREPE AND VELVET By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Velvet enters into every phase of the mode this season. The afternoon dress which combines velvet with wool or silk is a highlighted number on the present style program. In the model pictured the designer has introduced velvet very effectively. The flowers at the shoulder are also of velvet. A high military-type neckline accents the chic of this costume.

COLOR PERVADES WHOLE ENSEMBLE

Color is not content this season to be a splash or a dab—it pervades the entire ensemble from tip to toe and has finally invaded the field of woman's most conservative color accessory—silk stockings.

The traditional beige and gray tones have made way for red and green stockings. Wine red stockings are smart with all of the wine tones. Suede green silk stockings are worn with greens and browns, with green suede or antelope gloves, shoes, and bags to match. Very sheer, two and three thread hose, in green or red make their debut for dressier wear.

Navy blue hose are high style with a blue town suit collared with raspberry red velvet and worn with a matching hat. With a Venetian green dress accented in brown green silk stockings and brown shoes are news.

Some New Shades Added to Hosiery for Autumn Wear

Hosiery, this fall is here in a variety of new shades. In keeping with a growing feeling of luxury in the evening mode, smart complements will be provided for the gold, silver, and bronze slippers worn with gowns of Eastern influence. For daytime a series of browns will be best liked—golden brown, wine brown, brownish taupe with a rose cast, natural beige and coppery brown—to go with autumn colors.

Smoother Hair Styles

Smoother hair styles are being seen for early fall. Advance styles would indicate that the elaborate rows of curls, popular for many months, are to be laid aside—until we all change our minds again.

Handbag Made of Wood

A smart handbag is large and flat, designed to look like an enormous compact, and it is made of wood in a dark brown natural finish.

Housewife's Idea Box

Always Hem Dish Cloths

Some housewives use unhemmed cloths as dish cloths. This is not advisable because the lint which comes off these cloths is likely to go down the sink drain and result in stoppage. The time and trouble to correct the stoppage will be far greater than the time and trouble it takes to hem the cloths.

The Man Who Knows

Whether the Remedy You are taking for Headaches, Neuralgia or Rheumatism Pains is SAFE is Your Doctor. Ask Him

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

A CONSTIPATED child is so easily frightened out, it's a pity more mothers don't know the remedy.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult. Doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. And today, there are fully a million families that will have no other kind in the house.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a doctor's prescription, now so widely known that you can get it all ready for use at any drugstore.

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

By Edith L. Watson

PILLARS OF GOLD

WHEN the Spanish conquerors were following the northward windings of the Rio Grande, they went as far as the northern part of what is now New Mexico. Here, Spanish legend relates, some of the padres, with soldiers at their command, turned to the westward. In the midst of some extremely rough mountains they came across a small valley, and here they saw two great pillars made of large stones.

What these pillars were they did not know, but with the curiosity to which we owe so much of our information about the early southwest, the padres halted to examine these monuments. To their surprise and delight, they found that some of the stones were pieces of rich gold ore, which argued that their source must be somewhere in the vicinity.

So it proved; the lode was rich beyond all dreams, and the party immediately set to work, the soldiers laying down their arms to become miners. They remained in the hidden valley long enough to take out all the gold they could carry with them.

After this time, others who passed that way hunting wealth saw the lonely pillars in the center of the valley, but for a long time no one thought to examine them, and consequently passed on without knowing that their opportunity lay near by, and that a few hours searching might disclose that mine that the padres saw.

At last an old miner by the name of Mike O'Leary, rambling about through this region on a prospecting trip, found the ancient workings, and appeared in Parrot City some time later with enough ore to finance an expensive spree for several weeks. After sobering up he disappeared, only to come into Animas City several months later with more ore.

The old prospector of the western mountains was a wily creature. He preferred hunting alone or with one partner, and if he did strike gold he could be "as mum as a clam" about its location, even though he loved to boast about his good fortune. Knowing the hills as he did the streets of his home town, he usually eluded all those who tried to follow him. He knew only too well that the discovery of his mine would mean a lot of unpleasant neighbors, the theft of his ore, and possibly death to himself. The silence of the old prospector on the subject of their finds is one of the large factors in the losing of mines.

O'Leary was just such a man. He might show up every now and then with enough gold to pay for a celebration, but he always drifted out of sight before anyone could see where he went. Finally he disappeared for good—nothing more was seen of him, and it is supposed that either he went to some distant city to spend his money, or else the mountains claimed him for the final sacrifice.

With O'Leary's passing, however, the secret of his mine did not remain a secret. Once in a while some miner comes to the front with ore which he claims came from that little valley in the mountains, and there are even said to be maps, made by others who came into sight of the two rock pillars. However, as far as anyone knows, the location of the mine has never been filed as a claim.

SECRET OF THE PRAIRIE

COUNCIL of war! A party of freighters camped under an old lightning-killed cottonwood, talking earnestly. The year was 1856; the place was Kearney county, Kansas, on the Santa Fe trail. There was $70,000 in Spanish gold in that wagon train, being carried from Mexico to Fort Leavenworth. Would it ever reach its destination?

Indians had begun to follow the wagons in New Mexico. They hung on, making no move to attack, but drawing a little closer day by day. Now, as the freighters consulted with each other around the campfire, the Indians lurked out yonder in the darkness, waiting—waiting—

It was decided to bury the gold. Here, where the great dead tree formed a landmark on the trail, was as good a place as any, and there was no time to lose. There was no telling when the Indians might make up their minds to attack.

It was midnight. The full moon shone brightly on the camp and on the cottonwood, and cast a shadow along the ground. Here, where the shadow fell, they buried the Spanish gold.

Next day they moved on. The Indians followed as usual, drawing a little closer. Three days later they attacked, when the train had reached Pawnee Rock. Only one man survived; he reached Fort Leavenworth, told his story, and died.

There was no chance, just then, to send out after the gold. It was safe; it must wait until the opportunity presented. And so a year passed before a party set out on the Santa Fe trail to recover the hidden coin.

But during that year lightning had struck the old cottonwood again, and this time had destroyed it completely. There was nothing left to show where it stood. Only the tall buffalo grass rippled in the wind—grass which had grown closely over all the countryside.

Blind Heroes Guided by

A two-hour journey from Belgrade reveals one of the strangest villages in the world, where all the husbands are blind and the work of the colony is directed by the wives who see.

The town of Vetrnik is the first blind war veterans' colony in Yugoslavia, the first in a program of land settlements for the blind undertaken by the government.

The government institute for the blind arranged many marriages for unmarried blind veterans and aids the couples in the settlement at Vetrnik. The men are employed in useful crafts and the household work and operation of the colony are managed by the wives.

Reunion in Michigan

ON THE last Thursday of this month the people of Michigan, like millions of their countrymen, will observe Thanksgiving Day. In doing so they will be following a thoroughly American custom, a custom which originated more than three centuries ago when the Pilgrim Fathers, immediately after their first harvest in the New World, set aside a day of Thanksgiving for the year's blessings.

The custom, antedating our Republic, survives as our oldest native holiday. Despite the interval of three centuries, despite the momentous changes they brought into American life, the annual festival continues to draw countless American families into yearly reunion at Thanksgiving; and among the modern forces that foster this ancient custom, the telephone occupies an important place.

The telephone helps to combat the distance created by the extension of our frontiers. It fills a modern need. It contributes its share in making the arrangements for any celebration—ordering supplies, extending and accepting invitations, arranging meetings, changing plans at the last minute, sending regards, regrets or congratulations.

Efficient, unobtrusive, often taken as a matter of course, the modern telephone thus plays its part in our daily lives, serving us all as readily and faithfully on holidays as during the working week.

FACE THE GORY FACTS

Few journalistic achievements of recent years have caused such a furor as the publication, by Readers' Digest, of J. C. Furnas' article, "—And Sudden Death."

This article, which describes the horror of automobile accidents in the most realistic and even nauseous terms, has been reprinted, in whole or part, in a long list of newspapers and magazines throughout the country. It has become the basis for speeches by safety and law enforcement authorities. One Canadian province distributes copies of it to drivers, and a New York judge has started the practice of reading it to traffic violators appearing in his court.

Most important of all, perhaps, the article may have established a journalistic precedent. One of the country's large dailies recently announced that henceforth it would apply the "—And Sudden Death" method in reporting major traffic accidents. The descriptions will no longer be confined to medical terms and softened phrases. They will include factual word pictures of smashed skulls, of compound fracture, of spurting arteries, of crushed chests—of all the accidents which claim 35,000 lives a year in this country.

Newspapers large and small could well follow that example. The driver who reads simply that John Smith was killed when trying to make a corner at high speed often passes the news by with a minimum of thought. If he read, in fact, that it was necessary to remove John Smith's body from his smashed car, and that recognition was made possible only by examination of his dental work, he'd remember it.

It's time we faced the gory facts—time we all realized that the scene of an automobile accident can be as horrible as a battlefield. And it's time we remembered that automobiles have killed many more Americans than have all the wars of our history.

"DIED—BUT RETURNED WITH SOUL OF ANOTHER PERSON"

An article in The American Weekly with Sunday's Detroit Times reveals how science explains the curious case of a young girl who suddenly woke up from an illness, could not recognize her own family, declared she was a Spanish woman, and spoke and wrote Spanish—a language she had never had an opportunity to learn.

THE CLOCK ON THE BANK

The clock on the bank was expensively made. And it stood many years o'er the door. It marked all the hours the loans should come due. And it marked not a single day more. It was there on the moon Monument was born. And 'twas whispered that Hoover had lied. But it stopped short, never to go again. When the Big Boom died. "Tis a wonderful clock," the bank manager said. It warns us how fleeting are hours of grace. And of contracts the essence is time. But it's many a day since our funds blew away. And the contracts were not worth a dime. "And I think that its tick is sublime. It stopped short, never to go again. And collects only cobwebs and grime."

NEW COLLAR MAKES OLD DRESS SMARTER

Choice of Neckline Has Decided Influence on Attractiveness of Garment

Wise choice of detachable collars for dresses will add smartness to a wardrobe, change the lines of some garments so that they appear new, and will enhance or improve the appearance of the person's face who wears the dress, according to clothing specialists at Michigan State College.

The selection of pattern for a neckline depends upon the shape of the face. An oval neckline harmonizes better with most face types than any one other shape. A V-neck tends to emphasize thinness of face but this may be counteracted by using the suggestion of a curve in cutting the V.

Round necklines make the face appear rounder but this may be subordinated by wearing a tie which draws attention from the neckline to the tie itself. Square necklines are not a wise choice for most women but they sometimes can be used, when impossible otherwise, if the sides of the square are curved slightly and the right angles left in the corners.

In making collars, it is wise to make a trial collar from muslin first. When fitted, if this muslin collar does not hug the body line on its outer line or if it tends to ripple, darts should be pinned in it where it appears loose. Run the darts to nothing as they approach the neckline. The fitted muslin collar may then be used as the pattern.

A full discussion of collar is given by the College clothing specialists to women enrolled in the county study groups. The mimeographed outline used for the collar lesson will be sent to those who request it from the home economics department at East Lansing.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Unemployment insurance will be guaranteed Michigan workers through the federal Social Security law if the state passes the required legislation to take advantage of the funds which will be collected in Michigan after January 1, 1936, according to Major Howard Starret, State Director of the National Reemployment Service.

"If the state fails to enact legislation to provide unemployment compensation for Michigan workers the state will lose the money collected through the payroll tax which will be collected starting next January," Major Starret said. "The federal law calls for a one per cent tax during 1936, a two per cent tax in 1937, and a three per cent tax thereafter. If Michigan passes an unemployment insurance act, the federal government will return 90 per cent of the monies collected for the state fund."

"A tax on payrolls is the fairest way to collect money for this form of Social Security," Major Starret said. "It has been tried in such states as New York and Wisconsin. Michigan should study the plans adopted by these states and enact similar legislation as soon as possible to obtain the full benefit of the federal law which goes into effect next year."

The National Reemployment Service is providing a free employment service for both employers and employees. It is a branch of the Department of Labor.

CHICAGO STAGING PEAK OF STOCK SHOW SEASON

Climaxing one of the greatest live stock show years in history, the 1935 International Live Stock Exposition and Horse Show will open here on November 20th, the first Saturday after Thanksgiving holiday, and will be in progress until the following Saturday, December 7th.

Manager B. H. Ikede reports that with the closing of entries on November 1st for stock that will compete in the individual classes, the total is equal to the largest number of animals exhibited here in the history of this show which for three and half decades has been the premier event of the live stock show season.

MEAT SHOW PLANNED

The National Live Stock and Meat Board will stage its biggest exhibit of the year here in giant coolers containing information for the visitor on the progress being made in meat merchandising and cookery, as well as on the research that is revealing new facts upon the nutritive values of this food product.

The management announces that the railroads have agreed to reduce fares to Chicago for International week as rates varying from a cent a mile to a fare and a third for a round trip ticket.

HUGE TURN-OUT ASSURED

Additional listings for saddle and driving horses and also for the car lot contests of prime market grade stock that are exhibited in open pens in the nearby Stock Yards, and for which entries do not close until later in the month, are expected to bring the sum total to a figure exceeding any past year, he says.

Leading stables of both Canada and the United States will exhibit their finest three and five gaited saddle horses, harness horses and ponies, and hunters and jumpers in the International Horse Shows. They will be held nightly and on four afternoons in the new two million dollar Amphitheatre, built last year as a permanent home for the Exposition.

Scores of special exhibits, depicting the latest advances in the agricultural sciences, will be installed by many of the state colleges, and leading farmers from all agriculturally important regions of this country and Canada will send thousands of crop samples to the competitions of the International Grain and Hay Show which will be held for the 17th time in connection with the Exposition.

AUTO TITLES SOON TO TAKE NEW YORK

Within a relatively short time, the familiar long yellow sheet on which titles to the more than a million motor vehicles in the state are registered will disappear, to be replaced by a new form about half the size of the present one. The new form will be on paper watermarked with the seal of the state, with printed matter on a faint gray background carrying an intricate design which would instantly betray any attempt to alter original writing. The new form will be virtually white. Sample copies were sent this week by Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State, to sheriffs and police officials to familiarize them with the new form.

Another important change in the form is reservation of space in which "sticker" license numbers for successive years will be written. Heretofore, license numbers for successive years have been endorsed on any available space on the face of the title. The new form contains space for recording of "sticker" and license numbers for 1935 to 1940 inclusive.

The primary reason for changing the size of the title, so that copies for filing in the Department of State can be made easily by photostatic process from original titles, a device for saving time and positively eliminating possibility of error in copying detailed information to forms now used for filing.

The present yellow forms have been in use for five years; prior to then, titles were printed on green bond.

True Armament and Disarmament

MUCH is said and written these days about armament and disarmament. Right-thinking individuals the world over favor peace and conclude that war is not the best way to accomplish a constructive settlement. In spite of the yearning for peace and righteousness there seems to be a constant clamor, by lawmaking bodies, for larger armies and navies. The argument is that nations must continue to protect their rights through a means that is itself wrong—a paradoxical presentment often promulgated through false propaganda.

What then can peace-loving individuals do to correct this faulty? Every Christian knows that the solution to all problems can be obtained through an understanding of the Bible, particularly of the teachings of Christ Jesus.

In the Scriptures is the command (Matthew 22:39), "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Could one love his neighbor as himself and hate or wish to harm him? Could one love his neighbor as himself and continually fear and distrust him? Could one love his neighbor as himself, could there possibly be a desire to attack or harm one another? Of course the answer to these questions is forever, No! The solution, then, is to arm ourselves with love and to disarm every phase of error that would oppose love.

In Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures Mary Baker Eddy writes (p. 29): "Christians must take up arms against error at home and abroad. They must grapple with sin in themselves and in others, and continue this warfare until they have finished their course." The only battle possible, then, is in individual human consciousness, where suggestions of hate and distrust of our fellow men are to be replaced with love and confidence. Paul says, "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds" (II Cor. 10:4).

We "must grapple with sin" in ourselves and in others—must know that sin belongs not to any child of God. Each one needs to know that hatred, envy, greed, and malice are not from God; hence are not expressed by God's man. We must know that there is no law to govern these false suggestions, and that they lose their seeming power when denied entrance into our thought. We must know that sin cannot govern or control our fellow men or ourselves. To separate the lying claims of sin from our thought of our neighbor will enable us to love him as God's child, and will thus help him also to destroy hatred and distrust in his own consciousness.

Nations are comprised of individuals; therefore the thinking of individuals constitutes the thinking of the nations. Since many individuals desire peace with their neighbors, whence does the argument for war arise? Through a false sense of patriotism, a wave of propaganda may go forth leading some to believe that they have been unjustly treated, and that they must shoulder arms and kill their fellow men in order to settle the difficulty and protect their government and their personal property.

At the base of this misinformation will often be found a sense of greed claiming to influence group, who think they may gain something by stirring up strife between nations. Certainly this life and its effects can be neutralized by the consecrated effort of Christians to eliminate from individual consciousness the belief in hatred and to replace it with love.

At our present stage of thinking it may not be feasible to dispense with navies; but there should be no rivalry between nations as to this method of armament. Good will does not exploit fighting equipment or ability. If we are to exemplify the Scriptural teaching, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," competition, rivalry, hate must cease, and love must be established in individual human consciousness in order that disarmament may be accomplished on a sound basis. —The Christian Science Monitor

THE CORN BORER

The corn borer, though always present, is more destructive some years than others. During the years of destruction, people usually become quite concerned about its control.
When in reality it would be easier to practice the methods of control year after year thus decreasing the danger of recurrence. In order to successfully combat any future trouble, it is essential to know its life cycle or habits.

The corn borer at the present time is in a larval state. This larval state looks similar to a cut worm. These worms are found at this time of the year in corn stalks, stubble and residue. They spend the entire winter in this form. When the weather in the spring becomes favorable, these worms have changed into a miller that work their way out of the stalks, fly to a suitable place and lay eggs
for that year's brood of corn borer.

Now as to the method of control.
Corn fields upon which residue is now standing can be left in this form during the winter. However, before the first of May this corn stubble or manure in which corn stalks are a composite part should be moved to a field and then the field plowed so that there will be at least two inches of cover covering the corn stalks. By taking this precaution you have controlled the flight of the moth as it is impossible for this insect to work its way up through the ground. If people would practice clean, cultural methods from year to year the infestation of corn borer would not be a serious proposition.

POULTRY

Many poultry growers are confused by the like terms cold and roup.
Roup may be an advanced stage of common cold. Either cold or roup may be accompanied by a swelling of the nasal sinuses. When the sinuses swell up, there may be partial or complete closing of one or both eyes.
In uncomplicated colds there is no canker in the eyes. A very disagreeable odor is always associated with colds. This seems to be contagious and is generally considered to be caused by a filtrable virus although some investigators do not agree with this point of view. It is true that other microorganisms may have something to do with the productions of colds.

Infestation with worms, malnutrition, exposure, coccidiosis, tuberculosis, and perhaps other diseases may be predisposing causes.
Prevention and Control. Feed and house the chickens well and keep them free from internal and external parasites. Keep H-T-H-15 in the drinking water during the outbreak.
It is possible that roup may be prevented and that recovery may be hastened by the proper use of roup bacterins. Such bacterins with directions as to methods of application may be obtained through local veterinarians.

V-8 LEADERSHIP

ON OCTOBER 31 of last year, Henry Ford announced his intention to build a million Ford V-8s in 1935. We are pleased to report that this goal was reached in exactly ten months instead of a full year.

One million cars and trucks is an impressive total. But figures by themselves mean nothing. It is what they represent that counts. Selling a V-8 at a low price has brought a new kind of automobile within reach of the people. Producing it has provided steady work for hundreds of thousands of men in the Ford plants, in associated industries and on the farm.

These million Ford V-8 cars and trucks have helped to make things better all around. In the first ten months of 1935 the Ford Motor Company paid out in the United States alone, $140,119,326.00 in wages and $523,111,389.00 for materials.

Life teems in the soil with inconceivable numbers and activity. Dr. Charles Thom of the United States Department of Agriculture, in a recent talk to world soil scientists at Oxford, England, said counts of soil bacteria have shown as many as forty-six billions of active organisms in a gram of decomposing plant material. There are 28 grams in an ounce, 16 ounces in a pound. SYNOPSIS

The youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe has as her guest her late husband's niece, Sylvia Winslow. A stranger, on the verge of exhaustion, finds his way to Marcia's home. Secretly, he asks her to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery nearby. The stranger gives his name as Stanley Heath. Sylvia discovers the jewels, and naturally believes Heath is a robber. She realizes that Marcia must have hidden them, and decides to say nothing. Marcia feels she has altogether too deep an interest in her guest, but is powerless to overcome it. Heath wires "Mrs. S. C. Heath," New York, saying he is safe. He also orders a man named Currier to come at once. Sylvia, in her room, bedecked herself with the jewels. At Marcia's approach she hides them there. Heath asks Marcia to bring them to him. They are gone! He kindly makes light of the loss. Sylvia restores the jewels to their original hiding place. Elisha Winslow, visiting Marcia, discovers the gems and has no doubt they are the stolen gems, and that Heath is the thief. Leaving the jewels, he makes plans for arresting Heath. Currier arrives. Marcia overhears Heath describe how he acquired the gems, and is forced to believe him guilty of theft. At Heath's suggestion, Currier investigates the hiding place—and finds the gems! He returns to New York with them, but his many references to "Mrs. Heath" have convinced Marcia her tender dream has been a foolish one.

CHAPTER VIII

In spite of Elisha's indignation toward Stanley Heath, and his resolve to go to the Homestead with the break of dawn, it was noon before he and Eleazer got under way.

In the first place, the two men disagreed as to the proper method of arresting the alleged criminal.

"You can't take him on no warrant, 'Lish," Eleazer objected, "cause you ain't actually got proof he's guilty."

"Proof? Ain't I got a clear case? Ain't I roundin' him up with the loot on him?" blustered Elisha.

"P'raps—p'raps you didn't really see the jewels," Eleazer quavered. "Are you plumb certain you saw them things?"

"Certain?"

"Come, come! Don't go up in the air, 'Lish. I ain't doubtin' your word. I just want to make sure we don't take no mis-steps an' make jackasses of ourselves," Eleazer explained. "Have you got everything?"

"I—I—guess so," Elisha said weakly. "Pete fixed up your badge in great shape, didn't he?" was Eleazer's cheerful comment. "It's bright as a new dollar. Anybody could see it a mile away. An' the handcuffs, too—they look grand. Wal, what do you say to our settin' out?"

The stroll to Crocker's Cove was not a hilarious one. With each successive step Elisha's spirits dropped lower and lower.

At last they came within sight of the bay.

"Where'd you leave the boat?" Eleazer questioned.

"I pulled her up opposite the fish-shanty."

"She ain't here."

"My soul an' body! What's to be done now?"

"I reckon we'll just have to give it all up," the sheriff responded with a sickly grin. "Call it off."

"An' let the thief escape? No sir—ee! We've got to go through with this thing now we've started if it takes a leg! We'll walk round by the shore."

In high dudgeon the two men plodded through the sand, its grit seeping into their shoes with every step.

It was not until they came within sight of the Homestead that the silence between them was broken.

"Wal, here we are!" Eleazer announced more genially.

"Yes—here—here we are!" his comrade panted. "My soul an' body—what a tramp! I'm near dead! Wait a minute, Eleazer. Let's take 'count of stock an' decide how we're goin' to proceed. We've got to make a plan."

"But we've made a plan already. After you've knocked at the door an' gone in—"

"I knocked an' gone in?"

"Yes, yes," Elisha repeated. "After that, you'll sorter state the case to Marcia, 'xplainin' why we've come an' everything."

"An' what'll you be doin' meantime?" Eleazer inquired, wheeling sharply.

"Me? Why, I'll be waitin' outside, kinder loiterin' 'till it's time for me to go in—don't you see?"

"I don't. I think 't would be better was you to go ahead an' pave the way for me. That's how it's done in plays. Some kinder unimportant person goes first an' afterward the hero comes in."

"So you consider your elf the hero of this show, do you?" commented Eleazer sarcastically.

"Ain't I?"

"Wal, you don't 'pear to me to be. Who egged you on an' marched you here—answer me that? If you ain't the most ungrateful cuss alive! I've a big half mind to go back home an' leave you to do your arrestin' alone."

"Don't do that, Eleazer, don't do that!" Elisha begged. "Don't go home an' leave me—now—at the last minute."

"Very well," Eleazer agreed magnificently. "Then I'll remain an' give you my moral support."

Elisha got up and, dragging one foot after the other, moved toward the house.

"Now knock," commanded the dictator.

Tremulously Elisha tapped on the door.

No answer came.

"Knock, I tell you! That ain't knockin'. Give the door a good smart thump so'st folks'll hear it an' be made aware somethin' important's goin' on. I'll show you."

Eleazer gave the door a spirited bang. "Law, Eleazer! A rap like that would wake the dead," Elisha protested. "I hear somebody. Stand by me, Eleazer. Where are you goin'?"

"Come back here, can't you? You promised—"

"I didn't promise to go in first. You was to do that," Eleazer called from his vantage ground round the corner.

"But—but," Elisha whimpered. The door swung open and Marcia stood upon the sill.

"Why, Elisha!" she exclaimed. "How you startled me. Come in. You're all dressed up, aren't you? Have you been to a funeral?"

"No. I—"

The sheriff cleared his throat. "Me an' Eleazer," he began.

"Eleazer? Did he come with you?" Elisha nodded.

"Isn't he coming in?"

"Yes—yes. He's comin' presently."

"Well, sit down and tell me the news."

His dignity, his pomposity put to rout, Elisha, feeling very small indeed, backed into the nearest chair.

"You won't mind if I go on with my bakin', will you?" Marcia said, bustling toward the stove. "I'm makin' dried apple turnovers. They'll be done in a second and you shall have one. I guess a nice hot apple turnover won't go amiss."

With deftness she whisked a triangle of flaky pastry onto a plate and extended it toward her guest.

He sat down with the plate in his lap.

He had taken only an introductory mouthful, however, when the door parted a crack and Eleazer crept cautiously through the opening.

For a moment he stood transfixed.

Then he burst out in a torrent of reproach.

"'Lish Winslow, what on earth are you doin'?" Here he'd been waitin' outside in the wind, ketchin' my death of cold, an' you settin' here by the stove rockin' an' eatin' pie!"

"I know, Eleazer, I know," Elisha stammered. "It may, mebbe, seem queer to you. I just hadn't got round to the business in hand, that's all. I'm comin' to it in time. I've made a start. I was just leadin' up to it in a sorter tactful way."

"There ain't no way of bein' tactful when you're arrestin' folks. You've got the thing to do an' you have to go straight to it."

"Arresting folks?" Marcia repeated, looking from one man to the other.

"Yes. Since 'Lish is so spineless at his job, I may as well tell you what we come for. Pretty kind of a sheriff he is."

"You better look out, Eleazer Crocker, how you insult an officer of the law," Elisha bawled angrily. "Say a word more an' I'll hail you into court."

"If you don't land me there faster'n you do Heath I shan't worry," jeered Eleazer.

"Heath? Mr. Heath?" Marcia repeated.

"Yes. We come over here this mornin' to place Mr. Stanley Heath under arrest," Eleazer announced.

The woman caught at the edge of the table. Her mind worked rapidly. She must gain time—worm out of them how much they knew.

"Of what are you accusing Mr. Heath?" she demanded.

"Of the Long Island robbery," Eleazer answered.

"You mean to say you think him a thief?"

"We know he's one—leastways Elisha does."

"I—yes! I'm to'able sure. I have evidence," Elisha replied. "At least I s'gger I have."

"S'ggers, 'Lish!" Eleazer cried. "Where's your backbone? You s'gger you have. Don't you know it? Ain't you beheld the loot with your own eyes?"

Elisha nodded.

"Then why on earth don't you stand up in your boots an' say so?"

The door opened and Sylvia entered, then stopped, arrested on the threshold by the sound of angry voices.

Inquiringly she looked from Marcia to the men, and back again.

Marcia, with whitened lips but with face grave and determined, remained with her back to the stairway door, her eyes never leaving Elisha Winslow's. There was something in her face Sylvia had never seen there—a light of battle; a fierceness as of a mother fighting for her child; a puzzling quality to which no name could be given.

Suddenly, as the girl studied her, recognition of this new characteristic flashed upon her understanding. It was love!

Anger, perhaps terror, had forced Marcia into betraying a secret no other power could have dragged from her.

"What proof have you?" Marcia demanded.

Elisha shifted from one foot to the other.

"I've seen the jewels," he whispered. "They're here—in this room, under that brick. I've seen 'em."

With finger pointing dramatically toward the hearth, Elisha strode forward.

Sylvia, however, sprang before him, standing 'twixt him and his goal.

"What a ridiculous story, Mr. Winslow!" she cried. "What a fantastic yarn! Do you imagine for one moment there could be anything hidden under those bricks and Marcia and I not know it? Why, one or the other of us has been in this room every instant since Mr. Heath arrived. When could he get the chance to hide anything? There is nothing here, Mr. Winslow, truly there is nothing. I swear it."

"Nevertheless, let him look, Sylvia. Let them both look."

"Please—please, Marcia—!"

Sylvia was upon her knees now on the hearth, and the men, hesitating to remove her by force, halted awkwardly.

Marcia regarded her first with startled incredulity—then with coldness.

So Sylvia loved Heath, too! She was fighting for him—fighting with all her feeble strength.

A pang wrenched the older woman's heart.

What if Heath had played a double game—made love to Sylvia as he had made love to her? If so—if the man were a mountebank the sooner they both found it out—the sooner the world knew it, the better.

If, on the other hand, he was innocent, he should have his chance.

The older woman went to the side of the pleading figure.

"Get up, Sylvia," she said. "The sheriff must search. He must do his duty. We have no right to prevent it."

Her face was pale, her lips tightly set.

The brick was lifted out.

A smothered cry escaped Sylvia and was echoed.

"Why—land alive—there's nothin' here!" gasped the sheriff.

"I told you there was nothin'!" Sylvia taunted, beginning to laugh hysterically.

"Wal, 'Lish, all I can say is you must either 'a' been wool gatherin' or dreamin' when you conceived this yarn," Eleazer jeered.

"I warn't," blazed Elisha, stung to the quick. "I warn't dreamin'. Them jewels was there. I saw 'em with my own eyes. I swear to heaven I did."

He confronted Sylvia. "They was there, young lady, warn't they? You know they was. That's why you was so scared for me to look. You've seen 'em. Deny it if you dare."

"Of course I deny it."

"Humph! But Marcia won't. You can lie if you want to save the skin of that good-for-nothin' critter upstairs—though what purpose is served by your doin' it I can't see. But Marcia won't. If she says them jewels warn't here I'll believe it. Come now, Marcia. Was there ever diamonds an' things under this brick or warn't there?"

"Yes."

"You saw 'em?"

As if the admission was dragged from her, Marcia formed, but did not utter, the word:

"Yes."

"There! Then I ain't gone daffy! What I said was true," Elisha exclaimed, rising in triumph and snapping his finger at Eleazer.

"The jewels were Mr. Heath's. He hid them for safe keepin'."

"A likely story! He stole 'em—that's what he did."

"Prove it," challenged Marcia, with sudden spirit, a spot of crimson burning on either cheek.

"Prove it?" Elisha was taken aback.

"Wal, I can't at the moment do that. I can't prove it. But even if I can't, I can make out a good enough case against him to arrest him on suspicion. That's what I mean to do—that's what I come for an' what I'll do 'fore I leave this house."

"Mr. Heath is sick."

"I guess he ain't so sick but what I can go up an' cross-examine him."

"I ask you not to go. I forbid it."

"Law, Marcia!"

"I forbid it," repeated the woman. "Drop this matter for a day or two, Elisha. Mr. Heath shall not leave the house. I promise you that. Leave him here in peace until he is well again. When he is able to—to go with you I will telephone. You can trust me. When have I ever been false to my word?"

"I don't see why the mischief you're so crazy to stand 'twixt this Heath chap an' justice, Marcia. The feller's a scoundrel. That's what he is—an out an' out scoundrel. Not only is he a thief but he's a married man who's plottin' behind your back to betray you—boastin' openly in telegrams he is."

"What do you mean?"

"I wouldn't like to tell you. In fact I couldn't. 'T would be repeatin' what was told me in confidence," hedged Elisha, frightened by the expression on the woman's face.

"I have a right to know about gas telegrams you mention. Will you tell me or shall I call up the Sawyer Falls operator?"

Buffet Suppers Popular Custom

Fashion That Fills a Need; How They May Be Served.

Buffet entertaining is becoming increasingly popular in the United States. For generations it has been a custom in England both for breakfast and luncheons. In houses where servants are many there can be a freedom about meal hours—except dinner—that is impossible in the homes without them. The family and guests come to breakfast when their business or pleasure dictates. On the buffet are foods, kept hot over spirit lamps and hot water compartments, and each person helps himself (or herself) to these things.

Luncheons.

Luncheons may be as intermittently enjoyed, and when guests come from distances, and may not arrive simultaneously, buffet service is most satisfactory.

In this country buffet serving of refreshments is frequently followed, and buffet suppers are in vogue. They may be in spacious houses for reasons similar to those abroad, or it may be because of the smallness of living quarters that the buffet idea is welcomed. When a fashion fills a need, and is pleasing to those of wealth and of moderate means alike, it is doubly popular.

Self-Service.

If a hostess wishes to be in the living room and yet have her guests well served, she can manage excellently either with or without servants provided the meal is in buffet style.

If she has no maid whatsoever, all foods must be ready and in abundance, on the dining table and the buffet or serving table. She will have to see, either herself or with the aid of assistants among her friends, that enough plates, dishes, and silver, are kept clean and ready to use whenever needed. It is necessary to have replenishing plates at hand ready with foods to be exchanged for the empty serving dishes, such as sandwiches, cakes, etc.

At a buffet supper, host and hostess may, and should, be ready to see that guests are supplied, not that they are required to serve them, but by saying such things as they pass among guests, as:

"I hope you will enjoy the rarebit. It's in the chafing dish."

"Or, if oysters are to be enjoyed:

"Now, as there's an R in the month I hastened to have some escalloped oysters. I trust you like them. It's a favorite dish of mine. Please help yourself."

When Hostess Serves.

Often the hostess or the host serves one dish from the buffet, at least for a few servings, and asks the others to help themselves to whatever they find on the table. This may be needed to get guests started. If either host or hostess notice some one without coffee, or minus sandwiches or biscuits, it is graceful to pass them things—whatever they are.

Buffet refreshments are apt to be very simple. It is sufficient to have a punch bowl with ice in it and the beverage with a tray of fresh glasses, and one for used ones; a indie by it, and plates of cakes, and perhaps sandwiches also. Plates, silver, napkins, and candles, salted nuts, etc., are on buffet dining table.

United States Consumes Half of World's Lumber

According to "The Year Book" of the New York Society of Architects, "the United States produces and consumes, roundly, half of all the lumber of the world. About 80 per cent of all residences in the United States are wood-built; and on the farms, 98 per cent of all structures. On account of its abundance, prevalence and comparative cheapness, lumber has been crucially associated with the economic history of the country.

"Even today, after the advent of many different competing materials, the lumber industry ranks near the top with some 20,000 mills, $7,000,000,000 of capital investment, employing directly and indirectly more than a million men in good times and a larger producing capacity than it had when the mills were twice as numerous. With the disappearance of the frontier, the industry is changing from a purely extractive to a reproducing industry. The private forests are beginning to be systematically regrown and perpetuated; already about 40 per cent of all lumber comes from renewed forests. Back of this adaptation are the vast public forests containing about one-half the total standing timber, which are on a sustained yield basis."

In the death of Frank Navin, Detroit loses a unique figure. He took tremendous chances and made good on them. His career is paralleled by no other person in the state unless it is Senator James Couzens. Both started on a shoe string and played a hunch way across the board until they became millionaires.

Both were identified with the dynamic growth of Detroit and saw it go from a hick town to one of the metropolises of the world. Detroit's growth made them but on the other hand they helped make Detroit.

Swann's Store will take your potatoes, walnuts and hickory nuts in exchange for shoes, rubber footwear, clothing, paint and wall paper. Why pay cash?

Every man who turns away from contention and strife in the human field and holds his thought unreservedly to God, will find peace from all the strife which seems to rage about him. He will find his feet on the rock which cannot be moved, for he will be supported and sustained by the infinite God. This assuredly is the meaning of Christ Jesus' statement: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid" (John 14:27). The issues of the nations can be resolved only as this peace is understood; and each man who seeks, finds, and holds fast to the presence of the infinite is doing much to promote world peace.

The question arises, if the other man does not cease to oppose, is he to have the advantage of his contention? The wrong qualities which lead to strife are the opposites of the attributes of God, and they fall powerless before the demonstration of God's presence as Love. Seeing through the mist of evil and beholding only God, good, in his neighbor, one will find indeed that only God is there, and that man is undisturbed by any evil force. This is the demonstration of Christian Science, the realization of God as ever present and all-powerful. It is the demonstration of peace in the individual heart; and because nations are composed of individuals it is by right thinking about God and about peace that peace will come to a troubled world.—The Christian Science Monitor.

GOVERNMENT BANK UNSUITED TO U.S.

Would Serve Politics Rather Than Business Needs, Says R. S. Hecht, Citing Previous Experiences.

QUOTES, PRESIDENT JACKSON

Extent and Diversity of This Country Presents Different Situation From Europe and Makes Regional Banking Necessary.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A refutation of arguments in favor of a government-owned central bank system for the United States is presented in a statement by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, based on exhaustive studies of European central banks. He also points out the disastrous consequences of previous central bank experiments in the United States.

"Our present regional Federal Reserve System under private ownership is infinitely better for this country than would be a government-owned and controlled central bank," Mr. Hecht says. "If history teaches us anything, it is that it is almost certain that a central bank so owned would be run to meet the varying exigencies of the government in power rather than to serve the commercial needs of the country."

Central banking has been tried twice in the United States, but was finally abolished because the credit control which the central banks exercised became objectionable and unpopular, he goes on to say.

What Andrew Jackson Said

"The continued existence of the Second Bank finally became a bitter political issue and President Jackson succeeded in abolishing it," Mr. Hecht says. "Permit me to quote from his farewell address: 'The immense capital and peculiar privileges bestowed upon it enabled it to exercise despotic sway over the other banks in every part of the country. From its superior strength it could seriously injure, if not destroy, the business of any of them which might incur its resentment. . . . If you had not conquered, the government would have passed from the hands of the many to the hands of the few; and this organized money power, from its secret conclave, would have dictated the choice of your highest officers. . . . The forms of your government might, for a time, have remained, but its living spirit would have departed from it.'"

When the Wilson Administration considered banking reform it carefully kept away from vesting central banking powers in a single institution and instead introduced the regional idea by creating twelve reserve banks located in different economic and geographical sections of the country. Mr. Hecht says a plan that has worked exceedingly well because the separate banks are under the guidance of men chosen on account of their intimate acquaintance with the problems and needs of their respective territories. He continues:

"The great size and diversity of America tends to make a central bank undesirable. The central banks of Europe such as the Banks of England, France and Germany, cover areas not as large as some of our states. A central bank in the United States on the other hand would be called upon to administer the financial policies of an area larger than all of Europe, in which there are quite a number of central banks."

Subservient to Popular Demands

"Moreover, history has proven that any banking system entirely owned and dominated by the government usually demonstrates much greater ability in aiding expansion of credit than in putting on the brakes at the right time to prevent undue inflation by restraining and contracting credit. This is easy to understand because in times of depression everyone is urging the government to make money and credit easy and to encourage expansion."

"On the other hand, it always has been and always will be a difficult task for any government to call a halt in time of apparent prosperity because in the very nature of things the government would be very sensitive to public criticism and would hesitate to take any action which would tend to curtail business activity. It is such undue susceptibility to popular demands which makes government banking inherently weak."

"Our studies show that of all the central banks at present existing there are only four whose stock is owned by the government. The newest central bank is that of Canada, which opened its doors only a few months ago after a most exhaustive study had been made of the experience of all nations with the result that the stock of the Bank of Canada is privately owned."

The American Bankers Association, Mr. Hecht says, is convinced that a central bank would not be in the interest of the public or the banks. This position, he added, is well understood by the President and the leaders in his Administration for we have been absolutely frank with them in all of our discussions and have missed no opportunity for emphasizing that in our opinion no banking system will, in the long run, be sound if it is dominated entirely by the ever-changing political administrations. We should do all we can to keep our banking mechanism as far removed from partisan politics as possible."

Philathea Notes

The class gathering at the parsonage on Wednesday last was one of the most pleasant and instructive meetings we've had in a long time. Nearly twenty-five members and guests were present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Fred Bowman, and after the singing of "Wonderful Words of Salvation," Mrs. Zuse read a Bible passage and Rev. Zuse offered prayer. The roll call letter was "R" for this time. The secretary's report for October was given, and Miss Fish read a letter from Miss Elly Iseler. Our "White Cross and Box Work" was presented by our hostess, and tabled until after the bazaar. The special bazaar committee reported the purchase of material, which was given out to the members. This is to assist the Ladies Aid, who are sponsoring this church fair on the first Saturday in December.

Mrs. Herman Vedder was instructed to purchase trays for pot-luck use, each member to pay for her own. Those desiring them should hand a dime to Mrs. Vedder as soon as possible. Mrs. Clella Fish was appointed chairman of a committee to plan for a Missionary playlet after the holidays. Mrs. R. K. Elliott asked for a few minutes at this time to present some special "Aid" business. After the class benediction, the afternoon was given over to the program group, Mrs. Jesse Henry and Mrs. Hattie Swarthout. A most interesting account of the Santee Training School at Nebraska, was given by Mrs. Inez Zuse, who told us of the founding of this school at Elbow Woods on the Missouri river in 1870, by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Riggs, and their splendid work and that of their son, Frederick D. Riggs. All branches are taught. They have practical domestic science courses, cabinet making, carpenter work etc. Their fine chorus of voices was heard at a meeting of the National Council of Cong'l. and Christian churches.

Miss Bessie Swarthout gave an amusing reading, and Mrs. Decker gave the impressions of Dr. VanKirk as to the future for religion in Russia. Mrs. Lola Rogers rendered the beautiful solo she is often requested to sing, "If all our Hearts Were good and True," being accompanied by Mrs. Zuse.

Rev. C. H. Zuse said, "To be informed is to be interested," and proved this by a description of the splendid work of our Missionary people in India, which is our project country for this year.

The next meeting, at Mrs. Millie Bowman's will be yearly election of officers.

The next S. S. topic, for Thanksgiving and Harvest Home Sunday, will be "The Message of Haggai and Zachariah." Last Sunday we missed our teacher, Mrs. Zuse, and trust her recovery may be rapid.

This Wednesday evening is Church Night. Everybody invited for the 6:30 Pot-luck and special program following. A returned missionary will be the interesting speaker. The Young Folk's class are sponsoring this service, and will furnish special music.

Our Missionary offering and Box receipts on Wednesday amounted to $6.34, for which we are glad.
