

State Old Age
Law Is Approved

State Called Eligible by Security Board

A report of the Social Security Board to Rep. Prentiss M. Brown, of St. Ignace, Mich., indicated today that Michigan may share in benefits of the Social Security Act under its existing statutes.

Merrill G. Murray, representing the board, advised Brown that in his opinion no special session of the Michigan State Legislature would be required to enable the State to participate in the social security program. Brown had asked whether State and Federal laws conformed Murray said.

"While the State of Michigan has not, as yet, officially requested the Social Security Board to approve this act, we have just completed a preliminary examination of the Michigan State act, as amended in 1935."

"Appears To Conform"

"The present Michigan legislation appears to conform with the mandatory requirements of the Social Security Act, so that no further action seems necessary on the part of the Legislature, in order to make the State eligible for Federal grants."

"It will, of course, be necessary for the State to submit to the Social Security Board an acceptable plan of operation along with formal submission of the Michigan act, and a request for approval."

Murray's explanation of the relationship between the Federal and the Michigan State acts is the first to be made since passage of the social security bill by Congress. A. J. Alamy, a member of the board, has given the following explanation of the Federal law itself, however.

"There are two titles in the Social Security Act which deal with old-age security."

Outlines Law

"In Title One the Federal Government makes grants to the states to assist them in meeting the financial obligations incurred in giving old-age pensions to needy individuals under the terms of the state laws. As soon as Congress appropriates the necessary funds, states with plans approved by the Social Security Board will receive their money."

"Title Two of the Social Security Act provides a system of old-age benefits which will be paid, beginning in 1942, to those individuals who have qualified under the terms of the title. This is entirely a Federal proposition, and not be confused with gratuitous old-age benefits."

"What has commonly been known as old-age pensions have been granted by the states for a number of years now, and are continuing to be so granted. Under the terms of the Social Security Act, the Federal Government would have made financial contributions to the states for this purpose, beginning July 1, 1935, but because of the failure of the third deficiency bill, it has been impossible to grant the states this money."

W. L. S. NATIONAL BARN DANCE

Twelve years ago, when the studios of radio Station W. L. S. were located in the Sherman Hotel, there was conceived the idea of a radio program, which to-day has in excess of twenty-million listeners, who tune in for the first ring of the Cowbell, and tune out on the last chord of "Good Night, Ladies."

This program is the W. L. S. Barn Dance, heard every Saturday night over the National Broadcasting Network and sponsored by Alka-Seltzer.

Founded on the theory that most folks like pleasant music, old-fashioned ballads, are refined.

The W. L. S. National Barn Dance with its galaxy of stars, songs, and old-fashion humor will appear at the Howell Theatre on Tuesday, Dec. 3rd. Show opens at 2:00 P. M.

Bids for the construction of the building are advertised for elsewhere in this issue.

Traffic Accidents Due
To Bad Lights

Michigan Safety & Traffic Director's Association Gives Lighting Rules for Auto Driving

From the study of traffic accident reports it has long been known that nearly one-half of all accidents resulting in death and injury, both in city and country, occur after dark. And, a very great portion of these are directly attributable to faulty lights, one head light, no tail light or lights too bright or too dim, or no lights at all.

Much cooperation is needed from the general public in this respect, and for the benefit of those who do not have a complete knowledge of legal light requirements, the Michigan Safety and Traffic Directors' Association, through the office of its Secretary, offers the following digest.

Equipment—Lights

Must be turned on one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, and at such other times as is necessary to show a person on highway 200 feet ahead of car.

Must have two head lamps on opposite sides and in front of vehicle except motorcycle, road roller, road machinery or farm tractor. Motorcycles shall have at least one.

Shall not project glaring rays higher than 42 inches 75 feet ahead of the automobile on level road.

When meeting may depress beam or substitute one or more driving lights at distance deemed reasonable and proper. Must show two lights at all times one on each side of car (except as above).

A rear red light must be visible 500 feet and illuminate license plate with white light.

All trucks weighing over 2 tons and all tractors, trailers and busses (except in municipalities) shall have 3 green lights mounted over windshield in front and 3 at extreme rear, both front and rear to be mounted parallel to the axle and 6 inches apart.

Bicycles, white light in front and reflex red mirror behind.

All other vehicles must carry a light or lantern showing white light in front and red light in rear visible 500 feet.

Spot lights, not more than two and no part of the beam shall be directed to the left of the center of the street or more than 100 feet ahead.

Auxiliary driving lights not more than 2 and not to be attached less than 20 inches from ground.

Signal lamps must be plainly visible 100 feet in sunlight.

Acetylene headlights permitted. Parked Vehicles—Shall have at night a lamp showing white light at front and red at rear, visible distance of 200 feet.

LILLIAN BOYLE

Lillian Boyle, 57, died at her home in Leslie after a long illness. The funeral and burial were held there Sunday afternoon.

The deceased was well known in Pinckney where she resided for a number of years. In partnership with Mrs. Iva Halstead Reason she established a millinery store here which was successfully operated for many years. Following the marriage of Mrs. Reason she conducted the business alone for several years. The telephone exchange was also located in their store and Miss Boyle acted as local manager for some time.

On leaving Pinckney she worked as a milliner in several places. At Thompsonville while on her way to work in a millinery shop she was struck by railroad engine and had one of her limbs cut off. She bore her affliction bravely and visited her friends in Pinckney at frequent intervals until ill health prevented. Recently she underwent an appendicitis operation. Since then she has not enjoyed good health. During her residence in Pinckney the deceased was prominently identified in the social life of this village and made many friends by whom her death will be deeply mourned.

Many Fishing Licenses
Are Being Sold

Popularity of Michigan's Low-Priced Licenses Is Attested by Increased License Sales

The popularity of Michigan's low-priced resident and non-resident sportfishing licenses is again attested by a record-smashing sale.

Up to November 13 more Michigan fishing licenses of various kinds have been sold by license dealers than in any previous year in the state's history.

"We already have 552,706 sportfishing licenses sold and receipts returned by license dealers," said Stanley B. Fontanna, Division and Finance of the Department of Conservation. "This is well in excess of the total sale of all kinds of sportfishing licenses for 1934 and it is conservatively estimated that at least 50,000 additional sales will be reported during the month and a half of the current year remaining."

"This would bring our total sales for 1935 well over the 600,000 mark, a substantial increase over the record for 1934 which was a little in excess of 540,000 sales."

"Receipts for licenses sold this year up to Nov. 13 total of nearly $350,000. This money, of course, is placed in the game-protection fund to finance the operations of state hatcheries, rearing ponds, general fisheries operations and partially to cover the cost of law-enforcement and other Departmental expenses."

Sales of Michigan fishing licenses for the current year to date are divided as follows:

Resident	$449,420
Non-resident annual	25,698
Non-resident, 10-day	53,147
Non-resident wife	25,441

TOTAL $553,706

"We have every reason to expect that sales in 1936 will surpass or at least equal our 1935 record," Mr. Fontanna said. "It anticipation of another record sale we are distributing in excess of 700,000 fishing licenses for next year."

"These licenses, together with the new 1936 revision of the digest of fishing laws, are now in the hands of printers and will be ready for distribution to license dealers and sportsmen during the first part of December."

The 1935 fishing licenses expire Tuesday December 31, the 1936 becoming effective Jan. 1.

Current Comment

The big news item of the past week was the nomination of Verner W. Main of Battle Creek for the Republican candidate for congress in the third district by a wide margin. He is an ardent advocate of the Dr. Townsend Old Age Pension Plan and Dr. To his credit has been visiting Michigan accompanied him in his campaigning and made speeches for him.

As he is now the Republican nominee the members of that organization who opposed him in the primaries have been led to pledge him their support. This they have done with a cheerfulness in their cheeks, qualifying their endorsement by adding that they did not endorse his platform. Main's nomination is also arousing great interest in the eastern states. It is conceded that the Townsend Pension Clubs have eight states, California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Nevada, Utah and Colorado sewed up but this Michigan victory has shown that the doctrine has spread across the Mississippi. Now that Main has proved the popularity of the issue there will be other candidates running on a Townsend platform and the Eastern Republicans great fear is that they will be strong enough in the convention to write a Townsend plank in the Republican platform. There is not much doubt of Main's election. He will of course lose some conservative Republican votes but will gain many more Democrat radical votes.

Lucius Wilson for the past few years has made many lectures in this and other states in favor of a managed currency. He maintained that the loss of their buying power by the great mass of people was the cause of the depression and for this reason a flexible currency that would expand in times of depression and contract in boom times was a necessity. Delegates to the National Grange convention at Sacramento, California, last week in which 35 states were represented declared in favor of a managed currency.

"Editorial Research Reports" a research agency dedicated to giving both sides of all questions produced a set of figures capable of demonstrating that the New Deal to date has cost practically nothing. This it does by subtracting from the gross increase in public debt, the face value of repayable recovery loans, the current treasury working balance and the stabilization fund derived as a profit from the dollar devaluation of January, 1934, a total of $7,750,000. If this is subtracted from the gross increase of $8,000,000,000, the net result is a public debt which is less than one billion dollars. The increase under the Hoover administration was $3,500,000,000 which would make the increase under the Roosevelt administration $2,750,000,000, less.

The liquor control commission has again issued another order giving those communities in Oakland and Macomb counties a license to liquor or bear the privilege of staying open until 2:00 A. M. This applies to those bordering on Wayne county who protested against the discrimination shown to Wayne. This persistent tinkering with the liquor laws is leading nowhere. About every day there are changes and alterations. Drawing up one set of liquor laws which will work effectively in all sections of the state is impossible. The only way to get effective enforcement is to let each county draw up their own rules.

Mrs. Fred M. Alger of Detroit, the leading woman advocate for prohibition in this state, in a speech before the German-American Press Club in Detroit last week stated that if liquor control does not become more rigid in this state, prohibition will be back inside of five years. She is not making any new statement. We have been told the same thing many times by persons who are and always have been opposed to prohibition. They can see the handwriting on the wall. The general impression is that considerable liquor revenue is leaking into the hands of the politicians.

Some years ago an adv. was inserted in papers of this section asking for the heirs of John Roche who died in Ireland leaving an estate. There are a number of Roche heirs in this section but none of them took the bait enough to send any money for lawyers fees. In Chicago 41 people are on trial for fleeing people who are supposed to be heirs to the mythical millions of Sir Francis Drake.

According to the Detroit Free Press of Tuesday, George Moon, Hamburg township farmer has started suit against Thomas Featherly, Hamburg merchant, for $50,000 for alienating the affections of Mrs. Moon. The suit is scheduled to come up in the circuit court at Howell on the December docket.

TOADS WERE NOT BEARS

An Arizona ranger naturalist, whose ingenuity led him to employ sirup to attract ants as food for horned toads in an exhibit at Petrified Forest National monument, was obliged to give individual baths to his specimens, for his pains. The horned toads' appetites were restored by the tempting delicacy, as the ranger had planned, but he figured without the Arizona sun and its effects on the sirup. In a short time he found his exhibit held fast in the blue-like solution. A warm water bath, and a well-sanded receptacle where they might remove the sirup by burrowing into the dirt, restored the toads to normal condition.

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

By Editha L. Watson

THE LOST CITY

IN 1879, near where the town of Aspen, Colo., now stands, a stranger staggered into a ranch house, ill, tired, and crazed from privation.

When he had recovered sufficiently to tell his story, he spoke of the ruins of an old city in Utah, near which were an old fort and a rich mine of gold and silver. The mine, he said, appeared to have been worked centuries before his discovery of the place. He had 20 pounds of ore to back up his story, which he had managed to keep throughout his journey over the broken country.

As soon as he had regained enough health to allow him to travel, the stranger set out again with his load of ore, saying that he intended taking it to Leadville to sell. He expected to devote the proceeds to furnishing a modest outfit, when he would return to his find and work it. But he disappeared from all knowledge when he left the ranch, and was never seen again.

A party was gathered at Meeker to go into the Ute reservation where this mine was supposed to be, and it started out on the trail of the golden phantom. The party was headed by an old prospector who "new something of the country, and this man, as they neared the place where the mine was said to be, decided to go on ahead to scout out the lay of the land. He was gone for some time, and when he returned he had with him two sacks of ore which were from 70 per cent to 80 per cent pure silver and also contained some gold. He came with bad news, however, for the Utes were not feeling hospitable, and the prospector would not lead the party any farther lest they should all be killed.

Later on, this same prospector met a cowboy who claimed to have considerable influence over the Utes. He was persuaded to join this man in a hunt for the lost city treasure, but first he made a map of the country and left it with friends, as he felt uncertain whether he would live to return.

Time went on, and no word came from the prospector or the cowboy. They seemed to have disappeared as completely as had the stranger who started for Leadville with his ore. At last the prospector's friends, who had been keeping his map, decided to go in search for him.

They followed the trail into a desolate country where no human seemed ever to have lived. At last they met an old Ute who appeared to be friendly, and told him that they were hunting for the two men. The Indian understood them, and led them on to the foot of a cliff. Here they found the body of the prospector, who had been shot and thrown off of the height, but no horse nor pack was to be seen. Several miles farther on the old Ute showed them the body of the cowboy, who had also been shot to death, and his outfit stolen.

The two men were buried where they fell. In 1904 the location of those graves was still known, but the site of the mine had never been found. Whether it was an old Spanish working or whether the Indians had taken out the ore was never known. In fact, outside of the knowledge that the place is somewhere near the head of the Grand Canyon, there are no further data to be found regarding this lost mine.

BEHIND THE WALL

IN 1908 two men named Murphy and Thomas came into a little town in Sonora, Mexico. They had some ore which they took to the local assayer, an American, for a report. It assayed $80,000 to the ton.

The newcomers said that they had been prospecting up in the mountains to the west, and one day their burros got away. It was while they were hunting the animals that they found a wall of masonry which aroused their curiosity. It seemed very old, and yet was well preserved. Its discoverers thought that there might be something valuable behind such a wall, and accordingly they broke through to investigate.

Crawling into the hole they had made, they found themselves in the mouth of a tunnel. There were peculiar jadeite statuettes and other evidence of ancient tribes in the long-hidden place, but what these men wanted was gold, and it was with a vast thrill of joy that they found, at the end of some 150 feet, a two foot vein of the yellow metal in the breast of the tunnel.

The assayer heard their story with great interest. Then he proposed that the partners let him in on their mine. It was Yaqui country, and three men would be stronger than two. Then, his greater knowledge of ores and minerals would also serve them well. He was able to convince Murphy and Thomas that they needed him as a third partner, and they agreed to take him back with them.

Two days later they started for the mine. On the way, the Yaquis ambushed the trio, and the two prospectors were killed. The assayer escaped, but he had not found out where to search for the ancient wall, and its location remains a secret down to this day.

Fur Coats Atop Bright Wool Frocks

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FURS play an increasingly important role in the American woman's wardrobe. It is highly significant that the world of fashion is in this day and age thinking in terms of fur as would not have been considered possible in the past. We have come to sense that whatever can be done with fabric can be as readily achieved via fur as a medium, and so with this thought in mind artists in fur craft are designing and creating fashions as unrestrictedly as if they were manipulating velvets, or silks, cottons, linens or any other known fabric.

There is no end to a recital of the perfectly astonishing things being done in the realm of furs this season. In this brief message only a few highlights can be touched upon. For instance, entire suits are now being fashioned of furs which are as supple and as comfortably wearable as cloth. Enthusiasm for the new costume suit is notable also, the ensemble including a stunning fur coat or cape or jacket (short or hip-length or longer) the same becoming an integral part of the whole in that it is lined and detailed with the gay plaid or novelty fabric of which the dress is made. The fact that fur is playing a big part in the millinery realm should also be taken into account.

Just now the outstanding trend is in the direction of the fur coat, that speaks high style in its every detail, to be worn over bright-colored woolen frocks such as are at this moment at the height of fashion. The coat foremost in the line of action is the jaunty swaggar type styled of the fur you like best. These fur swaggars are given added swank in that they flaunt the newest fastenings in the way of miltary frogs done of braid or if not these then metal gadgets that sound a gay note of chic.

For the fashioning of these voguish coats every conceivable type of fur seems to have been called into play—precious mink, sable or hudson seal, persian lamb, caracul, fine kidskin, moire pony, mole-skin, summer ermine, raccoon, muskrat—to complete the list go to your favorite furrier and see what you will find there to see and covet.

Raccoon, tried and true and ever dear to the heart of the college girl, featured this year in a full-length, double-breasted model as shown left in the picture. The John with a wide lapel can be but close to the neck. A double collar and the right shading to the fur.

A black Russian pony skin shaded and matched like character figure), has a semi-prince the new raglan sleeve, a two-lar and away belt.

You won't have to worry a cold if you snuggle into the hudson seal swaggar to the illustration. It has the point collar that is so flat to your face. The tapered balloon is also an important style feature. Pockets also add that very chic. This is the sort of fur instantly ranks its wearer as a dress.

The fur theme is endless. If to see more and more of furs fairly dazzle with their sumptuous furs that are detailed with style maneuvers that will make almost gasp in admiration at derment that such things can be an eye open for national fur. During this nation-wide carnival every fashion emporium, be it street or in New York, Chicago, New York or other metropolitan will dramatize furs in spectacular play.

OSTRICH BOA

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Reports come from Paris that Lucien Lelong and other leading couturiers are sponsoring the feather boa, not only in renaissance colors but also in white and black. In the picture a long boa of dyed ostrich is flung nonchalantly across the shoulders. A large ostrich fan is carried to complete this very formal costume. The white, heavy satin gown with its extremely deep front and back décolletage is beautifully complemented with the rich renaissance-red feathers of the boa and the fan.

BUSTLE IS TRYING TO STAGE COME

We've seen timid attempts at last few years, to revive the grandmother's day. But this time there is no doubt about it—it has arrived.

It's all in line with the new tendency to back fullness in the evening gowns.

Sometimes the bustle takes the form of a looped back drape, with a trailing panel.

Sometimes it is a peplum-like bit of shirring.

Sometimes it's part of a sash that ties in back, or a flange stitched from the center seam.

But a bustle it is, and there's no argument about it.

The new idea of back fullness has given the designers a lot of new ideas in silhouette.

Usually the front of the evening gown is slim, straight and fitted, with the fullness concentrated at the back, where the gown flares forth in surprising fashion.

Shops in Paris Display Expertly Tailored Undies

Paris shops are showing expertly tailored underwear in a wide range of styles. Crepe de chine and satin creations are trimmed with delicate embroidery, which is considered much smarter and more practical than lace. Taffeta skirts with a design of ruching around the hem are worn as petticoats under evening gowns. The skirt of the evening gown hangs far more gracefully over the stiff taffeta, which is not at all unattractive if it happens to swirl out during a dance.

No Sleeves

Something new in fur wraps is a sleeveless one of seal. Two large fur buttons anchor it down on one shoulder. Worn over a brilliant color dress, it makes an elegant costume.

Ethiopians Use Salt Bar Money

No Newspapers in Interior Country; Isolated for Centuries.

Ethiopia's terrain is described vividly by Leo B. Roberts in an article in a recent issue of National Geographic Magazine. He also tells of the people and their customs.

"West of Eritrea and French Somaliland there is an Ethiopian desert belt 100 miles wide; its lava formations resemble Arizona malpais country at its worst," writes Mr. Roberts. "The dry season strikes here with terrific force; water holes are far apart.

"In north and central Ethiopia are five Christian provinces: Tigre, Amhara, Gollam, Wallo, and Shoa; to the southwest is Kafa, the home of coffee which took its name therefrom; farther south and east are smaller provinces conquered by Emperor Menelik II.

Isolated for Centuries.

"West of the desert is one of the world's most striking topographical features—an escarpment rising a mile or more above the arid lowlands. This massive barrier has isolated Ethiopian mountain dwellers from the outside world for centuries.

"These highlands extend west from the eastern escarpment some 200 miles, to an equally steep slope on the west. Much of the area between the western escarpment and the Sudan border is unmapped, but it is known that this lowland is densely forested and the soil is the black, greasy, gumbo type. In the east and west lowlands, heat is terrific; on the highlands, which vary from 8,000 to nearly 15,000 feet above the Red sea, it is generally cold.

"Highland Ethiopians are essentially an agricultural people. Teff, one of the dwarf varieties of millet, is the principal crop. Some maize is cultivated, as well as barley and chick peas. Pepper is grown extensively and used daily on meat and in soups.

"In the lowlands, the people are nomadic. They herd their cattle and sheep, and live in small huts made of mud and straw. They are very primitive and have no written language.

"The people of the highlands are more advanced. They have a written language and a system of weights and measures. They are very proud of their culture and their religion.

"The people of the lowlands are very different from the people of the highlands. They are more primitive and have no written language. They are very proud of their culture and their religion.

In the course of an argument, a Canadian informed an Englishman that the inhabitants of the Old Country were too reserved. "Oh, nonsense," replied the Englishman. Gov. Fitzgerald Endorses Christmas Seal Sale

No scourge that has laid its devastating hand upon mankind has exceeded the "white plague", tuberculosis, in destructiveness and desolation.

Countless homes have experienced the very depths of bereavement as one after another of its members have been swept away through the ravages of this destroyer. The financial loss to the nation, reflected in interrupted cultural and economic development, has been infinitely greater than the cost of all its wars.

For centuries considered unconquerable, modern science, made effective through the generous support of the people, has demonstrated this scourge can practically be eradicated. In our own state, in the last century, the death rate from tuberculosis has been lowered by fifty per cent.

The splendid results that have thus far been attained in this vitally important field, have been largely owing to the aggressive and intelligently directed efforts of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, whose activities have been financed in an important degree through the sale of Christmas Seals. All that has been gained must be lost unless this work is carried steadily forward.

Therefore, in conformity to properly established custom, I, Frank D. Fitzgerald, Governor, hereby direct the attention of the people of the Commonwealth to the Annual Sale of Christmas Seals, and urge that each one patronize the same as generously as personal circumstances may permit.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this twenty-ninth day of October, in the fifth year of the said one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, and of the Commonwealth, at Lansing, Michigan.

Frank D. Fitzgerald
Governor

ABOVE is a facsimile of the proclamation issued by Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, endorsing the sale of tuberculosis Christmas Seals in the State of Michigan. The sale is opened officially on Thanksgiving Day and continues through to Christmas. Fifty-eight million tuberculosis Christmas seals are being distributed in the state this year by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. The money raised in this way supports all activities of the Association.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

A Code for Child Health

While the industrial codes we read about may come and go, be popular or unpopular, a code for child health will always be a requisite of successful parenthood. Let us review the elements out of which such a code should be made.

I believe most parents would list first: the quart of milk daily, taken in different forms; two or more vegetables, with at least one green leafy variety daily; some fresh fruit, meat, fish and eggs; and bread and butter.

The amount of sleep is important; restful, quiet sleep. The young child should have an afternoon rest in addition. Fresh air and sunshine must be in the health budget in liberal allotments. And the diminished sunshine of winter calls for one of the fish liver oils as a regular item in the code.

Be sure that the child's right to playtime is honored. Let nothing interfere with this natural heritage. Permit some time every day when the child may do as he pleases. Consider seriously the annual health examination by your family physician and dentist. Insure against smallpox and diphtheria. There are the routine daily health habits such as cleanliness and elimination to be added to the code. Finally do everything possible to bring happiness to the child and to make him feel secure and safe. Give him companionship; laugh with him; encourage his confidences.

Next week Dr. Ireland will write about Health Protection.

Sowing and Reaping

WHEN a garden lover plants his garden, he confidently expects a reward of beauty from the seeds which he sows. Where he plants larkspur, he does not look for thistles, but expects to see, in due time, tall spikes of shining blue. As he carefully cultivates the seedlings, enriching the soil and keeping it free from weeds, he is expecting to reap a bountiful reward. But how differently we are apt to regard our sowing and reaping in the mental realm! Both the law and the gospel proclaim that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap; but the world, generally speaking, interprets this law as applying to wrongdoing, forgetting that it also applies to the sure and certain reward for right doing.

We read in the book of Job (4:8), "They that sow iniquity, and sow wickedness, shall reap the same;" and we also read in Proverbs (11:18), "To him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward." Why does mankind in general believe in the justice which exacts penalty for wrongdoing, and fail to understand the justice which rewards righteousness? Fear of the penalty attached to wrongdoing does not make a man good; but the joyous recognition of God as infinite good, and the glad acceptance of the fact that obedience to God brings a sure reward, help one to obey God, not because of the reward, but because such obedience brings one nearer to God, the source of all good, and results in an improved sense of health, happiness, and harmony.

The Apostle Paul tells us that "the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance;" and he adds, "Against such there is no law" (Gal. 5:22, 23). We may sometimes seem to toil laboriously to cultivate "the fruit of the Spirit," but we need to remember that nothing can hinder its growth, and that nothing can withstand its power, for it destroys hate and envy, intolerance, hurry, haste, and waste.

Sometimes a wrong mental attitude of self-depreciation or self-condemnation would hinder us from claiming the divine law of reaping where we have sown. Self-condemnation would tempt us to think of our mistakes and failures, and to forget the efforts we have made to advance towards good. A false sense of self would blight "the fruit of the Spirit," so that we droop with discouragement, instead of shining with confidence and courage, peace and serenity, which are the sure fruitage of trust in infinite good. If the Apostle Paul had spent his time in condemning himself for his misdirected efforts in persecuting the Christians, he would never have accomplished what he did. He knew that his ministry, in Christ, was far bigger and greater than any personal sense of triumph or failure; and he said (Phil. 3:13, 14), "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

There is a sure reward for right thinking and acting, but only through a misunderstanding of the nature of God as divine Principle, the reward is not claimed. We are apt to think of law and justice as relating to penalty, forgetting that divine law is both wise and loving, relating only to good. The teachings of Christian Science reveal God as Principle, Love, and as this idea dawns upon our thought we begin to understand the law which governs right thinking and

SUNDAY HORSE SHOW PLANNED

First of matinee Horse Shows will be held on Sunday afternoon, with other afternoon Horse Shows scheduled for the following Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday, as well as every evening from the opening to the closing days.

The last three days of the week will be devoted to auction sales of the prizes winners. Chief interest evidenced in the sale of the grand champion steer, which this year will take place on Thursday morning, December 5th. Last year's champion sold for $3.00 a pound on the hoof, and the record price was brought in 1929 when the grand champion was bid up to $3.25 a pound.

MANY EVENTS AT CHICAGO STOCK SHOW

Scores of contests, demonstrations, and exhibits assure an extensive and many-sided program of entertainment and education for the visiting public at the 1935 International Live Stock Exposition which will be held here this first week of December.

This year will mark the 36th anniversary of the Chicago live stock show. As in past years, it again opens on the first Saturday after Thanksgiving and will be in progress until the following Saturday, December 7th.

YOUNGSTERS TO JUDGE

Officials inform that although the Exposition will not open to the public until Saturday, November 30th, a pre-opening event, the Junior Live Stock Judging Contest, has been planned for November 29th. State champion teams of farm boys and girls, one from a state, will judge rings of horses, cattle, sheep, and swine, their scores determined according to the closeness of their decisions, individually and in teams, with the placing of the same animals by adult authorities.

College students will compete in a similar contest on the opening Saturday. At the same time, the foreign judge, Walter Dugan, of Baltimore, England, will begin judging live stock. His work will conclude with the selection of the grand champion steer on Thursday afternoon, December 6th.

Sunday will see the thousands of animals groomed in readiness for the contests of the week to follow in which they will compete for the trophies, which at the International show determine the continental honors of the year among 30 different breeds of purebred live stock.

HUGE AMOUNT OF ROAD MATERIAL USED IN STATE

A train 3,000 miles long with 37,141 standard freight cars would be required to haul all the raw materials used in Michigan's $20,600,000 highway relief program, a compilation by the state highway department showed this week.

More than $10,000,000 of the program has reached the construction stage. The program was launched by State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner in August.

Materials used in actual construction are as follows:

Three and one-half million bricks; 324,700 cubic yards of sand; 593,000 cubic yards of gravel or stone for concrete aggregate; 10,400 tons of reinforced steel; and 10,000 tons of structural steel; 1,260,000 gallons of asphaltic oil; 3,000 tons of asphaltic cement; 990,000 barrels of cement; 132,000 lineal feet pipe for drainage; and 172,000 cubic yards of gravel for road surfacing.

Mileage Provided

The current program, financed from federal funds, except for the state's contribution of $3,800,000, will provide the following mileage of various types of roads; grading primary roads, 253 miles; asphalt or bituminous concrete surfacing, 30 miles; concrete surfacing, 226 miles; reinforced concrete, 226 miles; oil aggregate surfacing, 70 miles. In addition, the program includes 19 bridges and 47 grade separations.

The division of each dollar going into the program shows 39 cents for direct wages and salaries; 35 cents for immediate indirect wages and salaries and 17 cents for latent indirect wages and salaries; or a total of 91 cents of each dollar going into direct and indirect wages and salaries. Wages and salaries will absorb 18,750,000 of the total expenditure under the program.

The program has stimulated Michigan's road equipment business. Before completion of the program, 1,610 trucks will be used; 6,440 tire; 35 paving machines; 120 concrete mixers; 13 cranes and power shovels; graders; eight asphalt plants; and nine oil aggregate mixers. Approximately 10 per cent of the equipment is new, most of which is purchased by contractors.

PLAIN PAPER MAKES ROOM MORE PLEASANT

Wallpaper, which is supposed to be a background, for the furnishings in a room, sometimes is so conspicuous that it is impossible to arrange furniture so that it shows to best advantage, according to home furnishing specialists at Michigan State College.

Wallpaper with realistic pattern of flowers, knots of ribbons, or of vines should be avoided. The more natural the pattern, the more difficult to arrange the room so that it will be a pleasant place to rest or work. Extremely dark colors make a room gloomy.

Paper with inconspicuous stripes can be used. Stripes which run vertically rather than across the room or diagonally will be more pleasing. The stripes make a low room appear to have higher walls. Plain or nearly plain paper with grayed colors are usually the most suitable. Such wall coverings make splendid backgrounds for the furnishings.

In hall or corridors, where there are few pieces of furniture, it is possible to use papers with gayer designs than in rooms where more furnishings are used. The colors of the paper should be bolder than those of the furnishings, even hallways.

Borders for the paper are not needed in most rooms. If the ceilings are high, the ceiling paper may be brought down on the side walls, and a picture molding placed where the papers meet. When borders are used, the design and colors should not attract attention from other things in the room.

CAR OWNERS TRIP ON NEW U. S. ROUTE

Many automobile owners and drivers of the route are finding out that the United States postal route is changing an additional fee to cash the money orders sent to Lansing for automobile license plates or operators' licenses, if the orders are drawn on any post office but Lansing.

Under a federal postal act, enacted by Congress June 15, 1934, a graduated system of fees for cashing money orders other than those of payment, was set up. The fees are virtually double the cost of cashing money orders on the applicant for license plates or driver's license, denying the application until the added postal fee is sent. This involves letter writing, more postage, and, in some cases, insured feeing.

The regulations have become particularly noticeable in recent weeks because of two factors: the postal agitation for "traveler's party" which has impelled thousands to new travel operators; license, and improved business, which has spurred the sale of automobile license plates. Many scores of car owners are seeking to have their license plates applied on direct to Ottawa, E. J. Wood, secretary of State, with approval of local examining boards, necessary of course, in a case of out-of-state license holders.

The out-of-state license holders, if the fee of the money order is paid, can have their license plates applied on direct to Ottawa, E. J. Wood, secretary of State, with approval of local examining boards, necessary of course, in a case of out-of-state license holders.

Paper with inconspicuous stripes can be used. Stripes which run vertically rather than across the room or diagonally will be more pleasing. The stripes make a low room appear to have higher walls. Plain or nearly plain paper with grayed colors are usually the most suitable. Such wall coverings make splendid backgrounds for the furnishings.

In hall or corridors, where there are few pieces of furniture, it is possible to use papers with gayer designs than in rooms where more furnishings are used. The colors of the paper should be bolder than those of the furnishings, even hallways.

BANKERS HELP

"Save the Land and You Save the Man" is the essence of a suggested agricultural program recommended by the Arkansas Bankers Agricultural Committee. "Beware of impoverished soil. It leads to impoverished homes," says a statement sent to the banks to be distributed to their farmer customers. "To help nature save the land, build up the soil, by:

- a. Stopping soil erosion.
 - b. Planting legumes.
 - c. Raising livestock.
 - d. Developing pastures.
- "Look ahead with confidence—know what you are doing, therefore:
1. Draw up a farm inventory.
 2. Keep a record, daily or weekly.
 3. Budget expense, and keep within it."

Inflation a Slow Process

If inflation does come it will be a slow process, he said, pointing out that in Germany, France, Belgium and Italy it took about five years to develop from the time when the governments entered upon policies of financing large peace-time deficits by bank credit up to the time when the public generally began to spend money rapidly because of fear that it would still further depreciate in purchasing power.

"If we are to go through such a period here it would seem likely that it might last rather longer than the corresponding periods abroad," he said. "Its beginning would date from the spring of 1933 when we left the old gold basis for our money and entered upon the policy of financing large governmental deficits by the sale of Federal securities mainly to banks rather than to private investors."

"The method that we are following is the one that proved disastrous in Europe for in all those countries, including Germany, the increasing issues of money that caused the inflations were not mere printing press issues of fiat currency, but were secured by government bonds and notes discounted at the banks. Nevertheless, the process is inherently a slow one."

Among the clearest lessons taught by the European experience, Colonel Ayres asserted, is that there are "no good hedges against inflation." He added:

Did Not Lighten Debt Burdens

"One of the strange facts about these inflations is that while they destroyed the values of most existing debts, they did not succeed in lightening the debt burdens of either the people as a whole, or of the corporations."

"Inflation destroys the value of bonds and mortgages and so confiscates the property of these holders of obligations and hands it over to the shareholders and the equity owners. However, it introduces so many new economic difficulties that these share and equity holders are at once forced to incur new indebtedness so that when stabilization comes the problems of debt are about as troublesome as they were before, or even more so."

The five requisites of inflation were listed by Colonel Ayres as first, a period of sustained active business; second, a rising stock market; third, real credit expansion; fourth, greater outflow of gold "than we can tolerate" which would force us to cut our currency entirely free from gold; and fifth, continued large budget deficits in government operation.

Eavesdropping on the "Monticello Party Line"

The "Monticello Party Line" is a radio program recently begun on a series of middle-western and southern radio stations. The radio listener is asked to imagine that he is eavesdropping on the party line of Monticello—and in this way he daily hears all the activity, the gossip, the fun, and the occasional trouble, that marks life in Monticello.

All the people in this program are thoroughly natural, everyday folks. The setting is that of a real town—Monticello, Illinois—the home-town of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the product that sponsors this new and different radio show. "The Monticello Party Line" is broadcast every week-day except Saturday—Adv.

Move 90-Year-Old Trees

In the old days trees used to stay put—at least until they felt the sting of an ax. With the aid of modern tree-moving machinery, however, trees now move and transplant 60 and 70-foot trees like so many pots of flowers. In other words, if you want a ninety-year-old tree in your front yard, you don't need to wait for a sapling to grow up. You can have a veteran elm moved in tomorrow. The mover is used to maneuver specimens weighing up to 30 tons or more. It's all steel and it's all electric welded. The smaller mover carries loads up to around ten tons—Scientific American.

SYNOPSIS

The youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe has as her guest her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden. A stranger, exhausted, finds his way to Marcia's home. Secretly, he asks her to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery nearby. The stranger gives his name as Stanley Heath. Sylvia discovers the jewels, and naturally believes Heath is a robber, but, for Marcia's sake, decides to say nothing. Marcia feels she has altogether too deep an interest in her guest, but is powerless to overcome it. Heath wires "Mrs. S. C. Heath," New York, saying he is safe. He also orders a man named Currier to come at once. Sylvia, in her room, bedecked herself with the jewels. At Marcia's approach she hides them there. Heath asks Marcia to bring them to him. They are gone! He makes light of the loss. Sylvia restores the jewels to their original hiding place. Elisha Winslow discovers them and has no doubt they are the stolen gems, and Heath is a thief. Leaving the jewels, he makes plans for arresting Heath. Currier arrives. Marcia overhears Heath describe how he acquired the gems, and is forced to believe him guilty of theft. At Heath's suggestion, Currier investigates the hiding place, and finds the gems! He returns to New York with them, but his references to "Mrs. Heath" have convinced Marcia her tender dream has been a foolish one. Elisha and Eleazar come to arrest Heath. Marcia is indignant, and unwittingly reveals to Sylvia the secret of her love. The jewels, of course, are not to be found.

"Oh, for heaven's sake don't do that," Elisha pleaded. "Artie Nickerson would be ragin' mad did he find I'd told you. If you must know what the message was, I can repeat it near 'nough, I reckon. It ran somethin' like this: "Safe on Cape with my lady. Shall return with her later." "And that was all?" inquired Marcia calmly. "All! Ain't that enough?" Elisha demanded. As she vouchsafed no reply he presently continued: "I don't want you should think I told you this, Marcia, with any unfriendly motive. It's only that those of us who've seen you marry one worthless villain don't want you should marry another. Jason was a low down cuss. You know that well's I."

The woman raised her hand to check him. "I'm aware 'tain't pleasant to hear me say so out loud, but it's God's truth."

"Marcia!" Sylvia burst out. "Hush, dear. We'll talk of this later. Elisha, I think I must ask you and Eleazar to go now."

"You ain't goin' to tell me where the jewels are?"

"I don't know where they are."

"Nor nothin' 'bout 'bout the telegram."

"Nothing except to thank you for your kind intentions and say you quoted it quite correctly. I sent it for Mr. Heath myself. 'My Lady,' as you have apparently forgotten, is the name of Mr. Heath's boat."

"My land! So 'tis," faltered Elisha. "I'm almighty sorry, Marcia—I ask your pardon."

"It's all right. Just leave us now, please."

The door banged behind the discomfited officials.

CHAPTER IX

The torrent of words Sylvia had until now held in check broke from her: "Was it true, Marcia—what they said about Uncle Jason I mean? Was it true?"

"I'm afraid so, dear."

"But you never told me; and you never told Mother, either. Of course I see why. You didn't want her to know because it would have broken her heart. I hate him! I hate him for making you unhappy and spoiling your life!"

"Hush child. Jason has not spoiled my life," contradicted Marcia with a grave, sad smile.

"But he has scarred it—dashed to pieces all the dreams you started out with—those beautiful dreams a girl has when she is young. I know you had such fancies once, for you are the sort who would. And Jason came and trampled on them—"

"He made me see life as it was. Perhaps it was better I should."

"Was Jason as bad as they said, Marcia? Ah, you don't have to answer. There is no need for you to try to reconcile your desire to spare me—spare him—with the truth. He was as bad—probably much worse. Dear, dear Marcia," impulsively Sylvia bent her lips to the hands so tightly clasped in hers. "I cannot imagine," she rushed on, "why, when one of my family had made you as wretched as he did, you should have wanted another in the house. Had I suffered as I should never have wished to lay eyes on any more Howes as long as I lived."

"I have tried not only to forgive but to forget. I have closed the door on the past and begun a new life."

"And now into it has come this Stanley Heath," the girl said.

For the fraction of a second Marcia did not reply; then almost inaudibly she murmured: "Yes."

Sylvia slipped one of her strong young arms about the bowed shoulders.

"It just seems as if I could not bear it," she burst out passionately. "Sylvia, look at me. Tell me the truth. Do you, too, love Stanley Heath? Was that the reason you fought against Elisha's finding the jewels? Tell me. I must know."

"No," she answered without hesitation. "At first he did fascinate me. I changed my mind, though, later on. Not because on acquaintance he became less charming. It wasn't that. If anything, he became more so. I just—changed my mind. As for the jewels, I could not bear to let that little runt of a sheriff win out. You see, I thought the gems were there under the brick and that when you urged him to search, you did not know it."

"I had known all along they were in the house, for I stumbled upon them by accident one day when I was here alone; but I had no idea you had. I truly believed Mr. Heath had hidden them beneath the hearth, and I was determined Elisha should not find them."

"You think Mr. Heath took the jewels?" asked Marcia, slowly.

"Certainly I do. Don't you?"

"No."

"But, Marcia, can't you see how plain it all is? I know it is terrible for you, dear. It almost breaks my heart. It is an awful thing to believe of anybody—harder still of a person one loves. Nevertheless, we must face the facts. People do not carry such things about with them—especially men. He came by them in no honest way, you may be sure of that. He is guilty, Marcia—guilty."

"I do not believe it," was the stubborn protest.

"I realize, dear, it is hard for you to own it," soothed Sylvia. "We hate to admit the faults of those we—care for. Still, nothing is to be gained by remaining blind to them. Perhaps Mr. Heath was horribly tempted to commit this sin. We do not know. We are not his judges. The thing for us to do is to help him out of the mess he is in. Aid him to escape."

"Believing him guilty—you would do that?"

"Surely I would."

"You mean you would help him to evade the law? The punishment such wrongdoing merits?"

"Yes. To give him a sporting chance, the start of those who are after him. You love Stanley Heath. Don't you want to see him go free?"

"Not if he is guilty."

"Well, nobody is going to round up Mr. Heath if I can prevent it," asserted Sylvia, throwing back her head. "If you won't help him get away, I will. He must go in the boat—now—to-day."

"The boat has gone. Mr. Currier arrived this morning after you had gone and took the boat back to New York with him."

"And the jewels?"

"Yes, the jewels, too."

"Humph! So that's where they are!"

"Yes."

"Pretty cute of him to make so neat a get-away! What sort of man was he? A gentleman, like Mr. Heath?"

The older woman colored.

"Well, no. At least he—Oh, he was polite and had a nice manner—a quiet voice—"

"But he was different from Mr. Heath—an inferior—one who took orders," interrupted Sylvia. "In other words, he is the hands and Mr. Heath the brains of the team."

"How can you, Sylvia?"

"Because I must, Marcia—because we must both look this affair in the face. Confess the circumstances are suspicious."

"They seem to be," she owned with reluctance.

"Have you considered them?" Sylvia inquired.

Marcia drew her hand across her forehead.

"I—I—yes. I have thought them over. I don't understand them at all. Nevertheless, I do not believe Stanley Heath is guilty," was the proud retort.

"You are making a great mistake, if you will pardon me for saying so," Sylvia responded gently. "You are deliberately closing your eyes and mind to facts that later are bound to cause you bitter unhappiness. Let alone the man's guilt. He has a wife. You seem to forget that. As Elisha Winslow remarked, you have already been miserable once. Why be so a second time? Help Stanley Heath to get out of Wilton and forget him."

"I cannot do either of those things. In the first place, I have given my word to hand Mr. Heath over to the authorities. As for forgetting him—why ask the impossible?"

Sylvia's patience gave way.

"Go your own way then," she snapped. "Go your own way and if by and by you regret it—as you surely will—do not blame me. Don't blame me, either, if I do not agree with you. Stanley Heath shall never remain here and be betrayed to the law. Stick to your grim old puritanism if you must. I'll help him get away."

She started toward the stairway.

"Sylvia, come back here!" Marcia cried.

"I shall not come back."

Marcia rushed after her, but it was too late.

Sylvia was gone.

Stanley Heath was lying with expectant face toward the door when Sylvia entered.

"What's the rumpus?" he demanded.

"I guess you know. There is no use mincing matters or beating about the bush. The jewels have gone and you must go, too."

The man looked dumfounded.

"Don't misunderstand me, please," Sylvia rushed on. "I'm not blaming you—nor judging you. I don't know why you took them. You may have been tempted beyond your strength. That is none of my business."

"You believe I stole them?"

"Certainly I do."

"Suppose I didn't?"

"I expected you'd say that," was the calm retort. "Let it go that way if you prefer. I don't mind. What I want to do is to help you to get away."

"Even if I am guilty?"

"Yes. I just can't bear to have that mean little sheriff who's after you catch you."

"What's that?"

"That wretched Elisha Winslow who came here this morning with Eleazar Crocker tagging at his heels. In some way they had found out about the jewels and where you had hidden them. They wanted to come upstairs and arrest you post haste; but Marcia wouldn't allow it."

"Marcia heard the story, too?"

"Of course."

"Poor Marcia!"

"You may well say poor Marcia," Sylvia echoed sarcastically. "You have made her most unhappy. Oh, Mr. Heath, Marcia has not had the sort of life that I told you she had. She has been wretched—miserable. Go away before you hear more suffering upon her. I'll help you get out of town. I am sure we can devise a plan."

"Wait just a moment. What does Marcia say? I think I'd better talk with her first."

"Don't! It will only be a waste of time. Marcia is hard, merciless. Her conscience drives her to extremes. Even should you get her opinion, you would not follow it. But I'll send her to you—if I must. But remember, I warned you."

"The Jewels Have Gone and You Must Go, Too."

"I shall not soon forget that, Sylvia, nor the splendid loyalty you've shown today. I shall always remember it. Whatever happens, please realize that I am grateful," Heath said earnestly. "Run along now, and fetch Marcia."

It was some moments before Marcia answered the summons and when at last she came, it was with downcast eyes and evident reluctance.

"Tell me, please, exactly what happened down stairs," Heath smiled.

She related the incident tersely, without comment.

Stanley Heath, scrutinizing her with keen, appraising eyes, could not but note the pallor of her cheeks, the unsteadiness of her lips, the nervous clapping and unclapping of her hands.

"And that is all?" he inquired when convinced she had no intention of speaking further.

"That is all."

"Thank you. Now what do you think it best for me to do? I should like your opinion."

"But how can I give a just opinion? I cannot judge," she burst out as if goaded beyond her patience. "I know none of the facts."

A radiance, swift as the passage of a meteor, flashed across Stanley Heath's face and was gone.

"Suppose you yourself had taken these jewels and were placed in this dilemma?" pressed he.

"The case would not be similar at all."

"Why not?"

"Because—because I should be guilty."

"You mean—you think—"

"I do not believe you took the jewels," was the quiet answer.

"Marcia! Marcia! Why don't you believe I took them? Have I ever told you I did not take them? Ever led you to suppose me innocent?"

"You have never told me anything about it."

The man restrained an impulse to imprison her hands in his.

"Suppose I did take them?" he went on in an even, coolly modulated voice. "Suppose the case stands exactly as this shrewd-eyed Wilton sheriff suspects it does? What am I to do?"

He saw the color drain from her face.

"I only know what I should do, were I in your place. I should go through with it—clear my soul of guilt."

"And afterward?"

"Start over again."

"That would be very difficult. The stigma of crime clings to a man. My life would be ruined were I to pursue such a course."

Murder Is Done by Tick of Clock

One Dies Every 42 Minutes As Blade of Death Sweeps Nation.

America's murders are on a 24-hour schedule. The minute hand of the nation's crime clock is a blade of death, slicing off another human life every 42 minutes, adding the figure 35 each day to our ever mounting homicide rate.

For despite G-men, radio scout cars and lie detectors, the quaint American custom of large scale killing has become deep rooted, especially in the South.

As against the 13 northern American cities having no deaths from homicide last year, 12 of the 13 with the highest homicide rate were south of the Mason-Dixon line. The one exception, East St. Louis, is northern only geographically. Its people being predominantly southern.

Murder will out, statistically, each July as experts complete a survey over the preceding year's homicide records. The current report shows that approximately 35 people are killed each day by their fellow men. It shows Lansing to be one of the 13 cities without homicide in 1934, and Grand Rapids to be one of the 10 cities with the lowest homicide records.

Center of all-around plain and fancy killing, however, is Macon, Ga., which received the all-American rating of 66.7 on a 1934 rating of 38 homicides among 54,150 people, or an average of three killings a month. Proportionately, nearly seven times as many persons in Macon are done to death by shooting, stabbing, choking or poisoning than the average for the country at large.

It's not much safer in Memphis, either, where a rate of 56.5 per 100,000 leads Atlanta with 52.3; Birmingham with 50.2; Jacksonville, 49.8; Montgomery, 49.2; Nashville, 48.0; Petersburg, Va., 47.3; Augusta, Ga., 45.7; Lexington, Ky., 42.1; Savannah, 40.8; Mobile, 37.9; Little Rock, 37.0; East St. Louis, 33.5, and Charleston, 31.7.

But by way of outstanding contrast, consider Brockton, Cambridge, Gloucester, Haverhill, Holyoke and Quincy, Mass., as well as East Orange and Lakewood and Hoboken, N. J.; Newport, R. I.; Lincoln, Neb., and Lansing, which had no killings at all.

Statistics based on 100 representative cities show that Grand Rapids follows with the low rate of 0.6 on its homicides, tying Jersey City and preceding Providence with 0.8; New Bedford, 0.9; Somerville, 0.9; Lowell, 1.0; Lynn, 1.0; Waterbury, 1.0; Altona, 1.1, and Berkeley, 1.1.

For the five largest American cities, Chicago retains its preeminence in homicides, producing a rate of 14.2 per 100,000 in 1933 and 13.3 in 1934.

Philadelphia follows with 1.8, Detroit with 1.8, Los Angeles with 1.4, and New York with 1.3.—Detroit Free Press.

Man Slays Wife by Gun; Court Imposes $10 Fine

Called upon to pronounce on the case of a man who killed his wife because he had discovered that she was unfaithful, an Assize court jury sitting at Lille has returned a thoroughly French verdict. It found him not guilty of murder, but guilty of carrying arms illegally.

Charles Simmoneau, an accountant, was the accused man. Suspecting his conjugal misfortune, he had engaged a detective to follow his wife's movements. Informed one day that she was in a certain hotel, he waited near until she left and then followed and shot her. She died in three months. In court Simmoneau said that he deeply regretted his act, and also expressed his grief at not having been allowed to go to his wife's bedside to beg her forgiveness. Acquitted of the murder charge, he was fined $10.

Housewife's Idea Box

To Bake a Meringue Properly

Meringues are usually spoiled in the baking even when they are properly prepared. The meringue should bake slowly. Too hot an oven scours the outside and leaves the rest uncooked. The entire meringue should dry out first and then brown. Bake it in an oven of 300 degrees Fahrenheit for from 15 to 30 minutes.

WINNIE'S ADDED ATTRACTION

Michigan lost the football game to Ohio last Saturday by a one sided score, but won the free-for-all fight which followed the game. When the contest ended a mob of Ohio State fans rushed onto the gridiron and made for the north goal posts in order to carry them off as souvenirs. Another mob of Michigan fans met them and the Ohioans were driven off without getting the posts. Then they made for the south goal and succeeded in tearing down the goal posts.

Then the free-for-all followed which lasted half an hour. The Ohio fans were beaten off but not before one of them had been knocked senseless by being hit over the head by a beer bottle. Others had black eyes, split lips and torn clothing. It was a great fight and gave Michigan one victory for the day at least.

SUNDAY HUNTING BAN

With Sunday hunting already under ban in 13 counties of lower Michigan, conditionally or unconditionally, members of Midland County Sportsmen's club have gone on record against any move to close Midland county to hunting on Sundays.

The consensus was the closing the county to Sunday hunting would remove hunting to more distant counties and merely make it more difficult for local farmers and workmen to get outdoors on Sunday for a few hours' sport.

Sunday hunting is forbidden unconditionally, in Sanilac, Monroe, Lenawee and Hillsdale counties. In Tuscola, Shiawassee and Washtenaw all are forbidden to hunt on Sundays except property owners on their own land.

In Livingston, Oakland, Macomb, Huron and St. Clair counties, hunters must obtain consent of the property owner, tenant or lessee to hunt on their land on Sundays.

In Lapeer county, residents are to vote at a general election on whether to close their county to Sunday hunting to all save property owners on their own land.

The bans on Sunday hunting, however, exempts the state mafshes in Huron, St. Clair, Tuscola, Monroe, and Sanilac counties.

Every man who turns away from contention and strife in the human field and holds his thought unserviced to God, will find peace from all the strife which seems to rage about him. He will find his feet on the rock which cannot be moved, for he will be supported and sustained by the infinite God. This assuredly is the meaning of Christ Jesus' statement: "Peace I leave with you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." (John 14:27). The issues of the nations can be resolved only as this peace is understood; and each man who seeks, finds, and holds fast to the presence of the infinite is doing much to promote world peace.

The question arises, if the other man does not cease to oppose, is he to have the advantage of his contention? The wrong qualities which lead to strife are the opposites of the attributes of God, and they fail powerless before the demonstration of God's presence as Love. Seeing through the mist of evil and beholding only God, good, in his neighbor, one will find indeed that only God is there, and that man is undisturbed by any evil force. This is the demonstration of Christian Science, the realization of God as ever present and all-powerful. It is the demonstration of peace in the individual heart; and because nations are composed of individuals it is by right thinking about God and about peace that peace will come to a troubled world.—The Christian Science Monitor.
