There are only three non-jury issues of fact cases, 16 chancery cases and 12 divorce cases.

PINCKNEY POSTOFFICE EXAMINATION IS CALLED

The examination for the position of postmaster at Pinckney has been called for December 7th, and will be held at Howell. We understand that ten people will write the examination. They are Mrs. Lulu Darrow, Miss Nellie Gardner, Mrs. Ella Lavey, Harry Murphy, L. G. Devereaux, Louis Wagoner, Robert Plasko, Harry Murphy, Michael Roche, Hubert Ledwidge.

ROMANCE, THRILLS FEATURES LAST WILL ROGERS FILM

Will Rogers last and greatest picture, "In Old Kentucky," comes to the Howell Theatre Dec. 8, 9, 10 and 11.

Adapted from the play whose humor, sunny romance and tingling horse race drama have made it a favorite of three generations of Americans, "In Old Kentucky" stars Rogers in a role that presents his rich down-to-earth character in its most lovable light.

Sam Hellman, famous humorist, and Gladys Lehman adapted the play to the screen in a modernized form, but preserved all of its drama and its rich comedy of character and incident.

In the picture, Rogers enacts a shrewd and genial trainer of horses, whose honest philosophy and keen wit sets right all the troubles of the impulsive people about him.

Russell Hardie and Dorothy Wilson play the romantic youngsters of "In Old Kentucky." She is the daughter of old Charles Richman. Although his daughter fights to win Hardie for herself, it is Rogers' shrewd aid that finally brings the boy to Miss Wilson.

Rogers' able assistant in the picture is Bill Robinson, the tap dancing genius, who teaches the comedian enough of his foot artistry to win a handsome widow, and thus provides one of the comedy punches of the picture.

Although "In Old Kentucky," is full of humor and drama in the feud situations and the wrangle with the crazy rain-maker, it reserves its great thrill for the pounding climax in which racing thoroughbreds pound down the stretch carrying romance and drama in their saddle.

Local Henry, Alan Dinehart, Esther Dade and Etienne Girardot are the principal supporting players in "In Old Kentucky," which was directed by George Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell West and children of Ann Arbor celebrated his birthday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Roche, Sunday.

Insurance Man In Business 4 Decades

Celebrate Anniversary at Meeting of Northwestern Agents.

Last Saturday 17 agents of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company met here with their general agent, P. G. Teeple, in his office, to study plans for increased production and also to commemorate Mr. Teeple's fortieth year with the company. The meeting closed with a banquet at the Hotel Northland.

The Teeple agency is unique in that it was established 1876, over 59 years ago, and has been continuously operated in this city as a life insurance underwriting and premium collecting office; and also that for over 40 years it has been under the management of Mr. Teeple. No other agency has such a record in the upper peninsula and it is doubtful if there is one in Michigan. Marquette, Mining Journal.

Started in 1895.

The first contract with the Northwestern Mutual was made in 1876 with Peter White and that with Mr. Teeple was dated in 1895, they being in partnership for five years. Mr. Teeple then took the entire interest and in 1907 was made general agent. The territory now covered under his contract is the upper peninsula and four counties in the lower peninsula. The agency has always been progressive, its policy being to work conservatively and its business has been built upon service to the policyholder.

"This year promises to be one of our peak years, both in applications written and in volume of business," Mr. Teeple said.

GEORGE A. BROOKS

George A. Brooks, 32, died Thursday in St. Joseph's Hospital, Ann Arbor, after a three months illness. The funeral was held in St. Andrews Episcopal Church in Ann Arbor, Sunday with burial in Brookline, Mich.

The deceased was born in Brooklyn on April 3, 1903, being the son of A. W. and Margaret Brooks. He attended Brooklyn high school and graduated from the University of Michigan, receiving an A. B. degree in 1931. He was employed as a barber in Ann Arbor. On December 29, 1923 he was united in marriage to Miss Lucile Tupper of Pinckney who survives him, together with his father of Tioga Center, N. Y. and a sister, Mrs. Nanette Weir of Jackson.

MRS. ANNA BLAIR

Mrs. Anna Pratt Blair, 76, a former resident of Pinckney, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Buckley on Thursday, Nov. 27. The funeral was held from the Buckley home Saturday with Rev. Stone of Fowlerville officiating.

Burial was in the Plainfield cemetery. Mrs. Blair was the widow of the late William Blair who died several years ago. Surviving are a son, Guy, of Fowlerville, and two daughters, Mrs. Grace Buckley of Iosco and Mrs. George Roche of Pinckney. A daughter, Mrs. Rebekah Brown, died a number of years ago.

LOAN ASSOCIATION

On Tuesday of last week J. D. Stackable, Vice-President of the Livingston County National Farm Loan association, along with the other members of the board of directors, attended a joint meeting of boards of directors of the Wayne, Washtenaw and Jackson county loan associations at Ann Arbor, for the purpose of combining all four associations, into one.

At this meeting arguments were produced for and against the consolidation, but on a final vote, the result was that the four associations consolidate, and the main office will be located either at Dexter or Chelsea, either of these places being as near the territory covered by the four associations, as it was possible to locate a central office.

Each association retains its own board of directors, and one Secretary-Treasurer serving all four.

A call of candidates for the office of Sec-Treas, two names were presented, as follows: Charles F. Hanson, Sec-Treas of the Livingston County Association and Ralph Pence of Ann Arbor, who has been in the employ of the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul, as field man, working in this and other counties in the Southern part of Michigan.

On the second ballot for the office, Mr. Pence was elected.

In the past each association had its own Sec-Treas, and the income was not sufficient, to pay a living wage and maintain an office in each association, and hence resulted in the consolidation of the four associations and after January first there will be no office in Howell, Wayne, Ann Arbor nor Jackson but will be located as herebefore stated, either in Dexter or Chelsea.

Mr. Pence is well qualified for the position, and has had real experience in the work during his service with the Federal Land Bank, and being a man of good judgement, honest and of amicable disposition, we predict for him a very successful career as Secretary-Treasurer of the four associations, and we hope that each board of directors will cooperate with him in every way possible to make the combination a success, financially and sociably.

A Month of Miracles

Celebrate Their 25th Wedding Anniversary The Weekly Church Program Catholic Church Service

Friends and Relatives Help Mr. and Mrs. Ora Haines Celebrate Wedding Anniversary Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Ora Haines of this village celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at their home Sunday with the help of some 50 friends and relatives. The guests brought their gifts with them and a bountiful potluck dinner was served to the assembled party. Mr. and Mrs. Haines were presented with many hand-made presents and remembrances of the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Haines were married by Rev. Riley in Marion 25 years ago. Previous to coming to Pinckney, several years ago they lived on a farm near Pingree.

Those present at the anniversary were Mr. and Mrs. Max Clark, son and daughter of Pontiac; Mrs. Earl Star and son of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Haines and son of Cohasset; Mr. and Mrs. Matt Brady and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Teeple, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Larue, and Mrs. Bailey Johnson and two daughters of Howell; Frank Haines, Mrs. Eliza Wilkinson and two daughters of Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Swarthout, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Swarthout, Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Fye, Mrs. Mame Sheehan, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Swarthout and children, of Pinckney and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Waters of Plainfield.

TOGETHER

Pals, just think, for twenty-five years, Together they've faced life's romance. United as one, they've conquered their fears, Together they've had a fair chance. May God in his mercy and kindness bestow, Years, full of life and bright weather. That side by side, when youth's lost its glow, One and Ted may come through, TOGETHER.

DEXTER APPROVES SCHOOL BOND AGAIN

Dexter school electors by a vote of 118 to 10 approved Friday for a second time the bond issue in connection with the federal WPA project for an addition to the school building. Technicalities in the federal agreement caused the second vote, complying with request of the government. The first vote favored the issue 181 to 21.

CATCHES FIRE FROM CHIMNEY

The Pinckney fire engine made a run to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kennedy on Putnam St. about 5:00 P. M. Friday. The house caught fire from a burning out chimney but was extinguished before much damage had been done.

ONION FARMING IN MICHIGAN

H. C. Patterson, Stockbridge R. F. D. 1, an expert on onion farming, states that Michigan muckland is especially adapted to the raising of onions. The land to yield the best crop must test 4.5 to 6 for acid in the form of phosphoric. Mr. Patterson has a 90-acre tract of land which yielded 400 crates per acre. The planting is done by drills, planting rows, 14 inches apart and mile long. The drills are horse drawn. Three miles of ditch, for draining have been dug. To prevent the soil from being blown away, 3 miles of willow whips have been planted around the edge. The willows are three feet in length and are showed down into the ground 30 inches leaving about 6 inches above ground and 18 inches apart. Michigan State college reports that their tests show that Ingham county is better adapted to onions than other Michigan counties. Mr. Patterson states that the cost of clearing the land, plowing and planting the crop is approximately $100 an acre.

SALES TAX RECEIPTS FAR AHEAD OF 1934.

State sales tax payments this month have far exceeded those for November, 1934, Joseph S. Penceley, sales tax director, said today.

"Collections this month to Nov. 27 were $3,63,089, or $768,815 more than in all of last November," he said. "Collections last month were $3,508,777."

Penceley attributed the increase to better business conditions and "more and better collections." He believes his larger staff of employees has been partly responsible for higher collections.

LAKE COTTAGE BURNS

The cottage at Base Lake, north side, owned and occupied by Roy Graham caught fire and burned to the ground on the afternoon of Thanksgiving day. Mr. Graham and Ralph Harris had been to Dexter, and on their return found the building in flames. Harris succeeded in saving a radio which was near the door but nothing else was salvaged. The cause of the fire is not known. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert VanBlaricum, Alfred and Louise Pashkon, and Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Cummings of Ypsilanti, were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Wylie of Howell.

Mrs. Mae White was in Howell Monday.

Livingston Lodge Elects Officers

Local Masonic Lodge Elects Officers for Ensuing Year. Congressman William Blackney Is Speaker At the Banquet.

Livingston Lodge No. 76 F. & A. M. held their annual meeting and election of officers on Tuesday evening, Nov. 26. The lodge was opened by the Master, Wm. Blackney, who acted as emcee. The meeting was attended by about 50 people. Following the banquet, Congressman Blackney acted as emcee and called on several for addresses. Those who spoke were Lynn Gardner of Iosco, Ben. Grove of Brighton, and Ellis Green, master of Dexter lodge. Then Congressman Blackney gave a short address, calling upon the lodge for an excellent record in the coming year. He also touched on the points of interest in Washington. D. C. places touched on by him, were the congressional library, Arlington cemetery, Lincoln statue, Washington Masonic memorial in Alexandria, Va., supreme court building etc. He also gave a brief history of his acquaintance with the late Senator Huey Long of Louisiana to whom he paid tribute as a man with the courage of his convictions, and a man of culture and education, notwithstanding the unfavorable stories circulated about him.

Mr. Blackney's address was very interesting and he was loudly applauded.

Then the election of officers followed in the lodge room. It resulted as follows:

W. M. W. C. Miller, Percy Ellis, S. W. C. Miller, Ford Lamb, J. W. C. Miller, Paul Carlett, S. D. C. Miller, George Clark, J. D. C. Miller, William Kennedy, C. E. Lane, John R. Martin, Marshall, Azil Carpenter.

Current Comment

We read in an exchange that Clinton LeForge, an Ypsilanti attorney has been cleared by a lie detector machine of the charge of embezzling $3,635.53 in funds of the Judge Curtis estate of which he was administrator. Unfortunately counts do not accept the findings of the lie detector and LeForge will have to stand trial. Maybe in the years to come the lie detector will be perfected and accepted in all courts. His will be a sad day for the lawyers, jurymen, judges etc. Then the sheriff will take his prisoner to court, connect him up with the lie detector and at once his guilt or innocence will be established. No costly or drawn out trial, witnesses or jury will be needed. Just a short session with the lie detector. With all trials abolished by this, the number of judges can be reduced and expenses cut materially. However, this will not come to pass today or tomorrow.

Former President Hoover's speech last week came pretty close to announcing his candidacy for the presidency. He who was so reticent during his term as president is getting to be a hound for publicity and gets the front page several times a week now. No one concedes him a chance to win the nomination but his persistence in keeping in the spotlight is enigmatic. The only substantial reason advanced so far is that he is being used to rally the conservatives into a compact group so that they will wield enough power in the convention to prevent the nomination of a liberal like Senator Borah. This could not be done if their strength was divided among several candidates.

Pres. Roosevelt recently discussed his ups and downs with a close friend the upshot of their conversation was that the President's enemies were doing him more good than his political friends.

"I have had two lucky breaks," said the President. "The first was Orval Adams' proposal at the bankers' convention in New Orleans that the banks 'boycott' purchase of government bonds. The second was El Hutton's call for industry to 'gang up' against the administration."

In other words, the President thinks he is sure to be re-elected because of the enemies he has made. He hopes to make some more.

Vernor Main, running for congress in the third district as a Republican, has a platform which outdoes anything that the Democrats have dreamed of. Main promises immediate payment of the soldiers bonus, support of the Townsend Old Age Pension, is against inflation and in favor of a balanced budget. Just how he would carry out his program without inflation or increasing taxes is a problem. And he is running as a Republican and is being supported by members of that party, including Senator Vandenberg and Gov. Fitzgerald who are lambasting President Roosevelt for spending billions. The political situation in this state is certainly cockeyed.

Traffic accident again showed a big increase over the Thanksgiving holidays. Newspaper publicity and safety first drives and pledges are all well in their way but the only sure way which will insure safety on our highways is to take the reckless drivers out of circulation by revoking their driving licenses.

Edward Scott, an assistant cashier in the Lenson State Bank, confessed stealing $14,000 from the bank in small amounts, the first theft occurring in 1930 and continuing on. Announcement of this caused the bank to close. Scott's story that he spent it all is doubted as he was only married a year ago and his wife teaches school. His home is only partially paid for. He is held in the Shiawassee jail at Owosso and will come up for trial before Judge Collins. His short-shortage was discovered by the state examiner.

NO UPSETS

The proper treatment for a bilious child

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

ANY mother knows the reason why her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage, constipated. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxative, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

Washington
Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—Through some months past, Cordell Hull, secretary of state, has been proceeding cautiously and quietly in the negotiation of trade agreements with foreign nations.

Canadian Trade Pact

His work has attracted comparatively little public attention although throughout the negotiations individual economic interests who stood to gain or lose depending upon their lines of business have made known their feelings quite emphatically. Six of these trade agreements, now called trade treaties, had been consummated in this manner. When the seventh agreement came along, however, the story was different. That was the treaty with our northern neighbor, Canada.

It is impossible here to set forth the list of commercial products encompassed in the new trade agreement with Canada. I doubt if most of the people of this country ever will know details of that treaty. By the nature of things, few persons can be interested in all of the items. But, I do not believe that it is the question of individual interest in the entire list that ought to concern us. Aside from the policy involved in the negotiation and agreement on tariff concessions, the importance of the Canadian treaty to the average individual lies in the one or two, or half a dozen at most, items that affect each one personally.

I do not mean to say that the policy involved is unimportant. The contrary is decidedly true. From a political standpoint, of course, it is general policy that will be debated; from an individual standpoint it will be the direct effect that execution of that policy has on each of us that will determine our ultimate views and to that extent determine whether we will be for or against the general policy of reducing tariffs enacted against certain kinds of imports.

The new agreement with Canada takes effect January 1—provided the Canadian parliament ratifies it. No such ratification is necessary in this country.

Had Free Hand

The treaty was negotiated by Mr. Hull and President Roosevelt under the authority granted by congress in legislation passed a year ago which gave to the President the privilege of working out trade treaties without further congressional sanction. That law restricted the President in only one way, namely, the requirement that an increase or reduction of tariff rates included in those trade treaties may not exceed 50 per cent of the rate fixed in the present tariff laws. So it is seen that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull had virtually complete authority. It will operate for three years and, as far as I have been able to discover, it will be effective after Canadian ratification and there will be nothing anybody can do about it, be it good or bad.

In making public the agreement negotiated by Mr. Hull with Prime Minister MacKenzie King, the President asserted his belief that the agreement will initiate or revive a flow of commerce back and forth across our northern frontier in a manner that will be most helpful. He considered that the agreement would mean additional markets for some of our products and therefore additional work for some of our unemployed. The Canadian prime minister was of the opinion that in this agreement a long step had been taken toward healing a breach that has existed between the two countries for 60 years. He was hopeful, like President Roosevelt, that the channels of trade again will be filled, perhaps not to the levels of the boom days of 1928 and 1929, but would again carry satisfactory volume.

It will be recalled that our shipments to Canada in 1930 amounted to about $900,000,000. The depression cut those shipments to approximately $300,000,000 last year. So, if the predictions of the President and Mr. MacKenzie King are in any way fulfilled, a considerable traffic is due to begin upon the operation of this new treaty.

Any discussion of the treaty, however, that failed to call attention to basic conditions, in my opinion, would be short of its goal. So, it seems to me that while the President and the Canadian prime minister hold such high hope for trade revival, one ought not forget that trade will not flow if no market, no demand, exists for the goods. It may well be that by reducing the tariff duties that must be paid at the frontier on goods enumerated in the treaty that a reduction in prices will follow. It may then follow that the consequent reduction in prices will stir up a demand for the products. But that is not certain.

Now from the political standpoint, examination of the treaty must take into consideration individual items. And how those individual items affect communities and economic interests in this country. Already, we here in Washington have been deluged with the complaints of certain communities against provisions of the treaty. Likewise, we have heard those provisions praised from other sections. Thus, from the political standpoint we see developing a fine old fight over the tariff.

Tariff questions are and always have been sectional questions. Industrial communities want to be protected against inroads of foreign competition where labor is cheaper. Agriculture wants to be protected against imports from bountiful producing lands in those countries where vast open spaces and high productivity exist at the minimum of cost. Importers and consumers of imported products always have fought and always will fight to have low tariff rates so that the things they buy may enter this country at the lowest possible price. With reference to the Canadian treaty, these same conditions exist.

Early outbursts indicate that cattle raising communities and dairy producing sections are up in arms because the treaty reduced a tariff protection accorded against imports of cattle and cattle products and the products of the dairy.

Lumber interests are upset. It is true that the lumber market in the United States has been in the doldrums for several years and naturally the lumber people do not want to have Canadian shipments absorb what little market they have.

These are just a few of the complaints. They are offset partially at least by the praise and the hopes of some other phases of agriculture such as fruit and vegetable growers who feel that they can now market their products in Canada. Without even a careful analysis of the more than seven hundred items involved in the treaty, it is to be seen that there will be possible markets available after January 1 to a number of agricultural lines and to some industrial interests. Yet it remains, as I said earlier, for the passage of time to disclose exactly whether the net result will be favorable to us commercially or whether the Canadians have put over a fine bargain from their standpoint.

All of the discussion about the Canadian treaty, however, brings back memory. As a result of these recollections, I dug back the other day into the congressional debates of 1911 when a Canadian reciprocity agreement was under consideration, backed by the late William Howard Taft. After reading those debates, particularly the observations of the late and distinguished Champ Clark of Missouri and Representative George Norris, now a senator from Nebraska, I could not fail to realize the political dynamite embodied in the new course of international trade relations adopted by President Roosevelt. It was the Canadian reciprocity proposal that defeated Mr. Taft for re-election to the Presidency. It was, indeed, that controversy that caused the organization of the Bull Moose party and that sent Mr. Taft into political oblivion.

Political Dynamite

I am not predicting here that the same consequences are in store for President Roosevelt but it is fair to recall, it seems to me, that the reciprocity proposal of 1911 burned the fingers of every political leader who touched it. The cases are not exactly comparable nor analogous. Mr. Roosevelt has retained a number of tariff duties which were swept aside in the proposed Taft reciprocity arrangement. He is therefore fortified to that extent. But you may be sure that those who sponsor the present Canadian agreement are going to meet the same sort of fight that was made against the Taft proposal.

Then there is in the current treaty circumstance another factor to be considered. It links back to the Champ Clark observations which were made on February 14, 1911. At that time, Mr. Clark was expressing the view that the reciprocity agreement constituted a step at least in the direction of universal peace. In the debate just mentioned, Mr. Norris asked Mr. Clark to elaborate on his view concerning the value of the agreement as an instrument of peace.

"I wanted to ask the gentleman a question along the line of universal peace," said Mr. Norris. "As I understand it, the gentleman favors the bill for at least one reason—that it will have a tendency to bring Canada into the Union."

"Yes," Mr. Clark replied. "I have no doubt about that. I do not have any doubt whatever that day is not far distant when Great Britain will joyfully see all of her North American possessions become a part of this republic. That is the way things are now tending."

So, if the controversy over the present Canadian tariff agreement becomes violent, I think it is fair to expect that again we will hear the question discussed whether the United States is seeking to annex Canada—to make Canada part and parcel of the United States. Of course, as far as anyone can see today, annexation of Canada is inconceivable but the incident is related here simply to show how far-reaching such controversies may become.

Designers in a Mood for Pleating

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

PLEATS, pleats and nothing but pleats, is the message of many of the smartest fashions this season. Turn where one will in the realm of costume design, there's an orgy of intriguing pleated effects "carrying on." So let's keep up with the mode while we talk about pleats, pleated and being pleated.

French designers, especially, are not leaving anything unpleated that could, should and must be pleated according to their idea of things. Their pleated mood pertains to daytime fashions as well as those of highest evening formality. The all-over pleated gown reflecting Grecian inspiration is a highlight in evening modes. Evening capes to go with these lovely creations are also completely pleated in waistline or longer lengths. In daytime fashions the all-over pleated dress, has also been received with acclaim.

However, all-over pleating is only one phase of the subject, for the use of pleats is embracing every sort from the tiniest of sprightly pleated edgings which run hither and thither about hemlines and up and down, flanking each side of neat buttoned closings which sometimes extend from head to foot. Some designers there are who make a feature of pleated tiers and apron fronts and pleated sleeves.

The new fabrics are entering into the pleated conspiracy with a noble gesture. Most of them seem made just to be pleated—fairly invite one to pleat them. Take the all-silk black crepe which is so ultra smart for daytime dresses. It pleats to perfection. A statement that does not need a second telling after one glimpses the stunning gown in the center of the illustration. Pleated every inch of the way is this black silk crepe afternoon dress. The pleats are stitched down at the neck, shoulders and waist, giving a fitted well-groomed appearance to the frock. A green clasp at the throat and a suede belt in the same color provide bright contrast. This dress is the much talked-of Molyneux which is meeting with such outstanding success this season.

An effective treatment of wider pleats in a black silk crepe dress for the young girl, is pictured to the left. The pleats are stitched with tailored precision about the neckline and released half way down the skirt so as to slenderize at the same time that it provides a flared hemline. The bodice is a modified shirtwaist with tiny metal buttons in front.

Speaking of the new materials adapting themselves so readily to the pleated mode, the new silk lame weaves, many of which are sheer and tissue-like in texture, enter into the scheme of things with infinite grace. If you are wanting a lovely gown for prom gayety, here it is at the right in the group pictured. Shirrings and pleats go fifty-fifty in the instance of this ultra chic and adorable evening dress made of silver silk lame. The shirred top is held by narrow double straps, and the décolletage is outlined by a tiny band of pleats. The pleated theme continues in the skirt, held well in place by the crispness of the silk lame. The only trimming is the metal and jeweler buckle of the belt.

Among the pleated triumphs in evening fashions are the perfectly charming airy-fairy floating visions of silk chiffon, most lovely, perhaps, in white but which set your heart throbbing at faster pace in any of the new jewel colors or pastel shades. Sometimes only the skirt is pleated, but when it is, it's done so artfully it flutters out like a floating cloud or a mist enveloping the figure.

WEAR TO SCHOOL

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Is the "what to give for Christmas" problem beginning to disturb your peace of mind? If it's Junior or little sister you have in mind, the answer will be found in the picture. To become the happy possessor of a big-grain three-quarter length coat just like big brother's is enough to bring a big smile to any little boy. Little girls have a liking for leather coats, too, for no doubt they have heard their elders declare that leather's the thing for smart sports wear.

FUR CAPES RICHER;
OF MANY VARIETIES

Fur capes are richer than they have been in years. Full-length evening models are made of strips of silver fox running from shoulder to hem—one very elegant one boasting twenty full-sized animal skins. Knee-length day capes are fashioned of mink, silver fox, dyed red fox or moleskin, while any number of shorter capes appear in astrakhan, nutria or broadtail.

Occasionally the fur capes for day wear are cut with broad shoulders and little fullness below so that they hang straight, though more often they have some flare.

New Soft Wool Weaves Are

Proving Popular Just Now

With wool increasing in fashion importance, and women's insistence on being comfortable indoors as well as out, something pretty definite has been done in this year's weaves for the interests of all concerned.

This year's domestic weaves are as soft as chiffon, warm enough for all normal purposes, and have taken on an additional silky finish, adding to wearing enjoyment.

Colors have never been more flattering. That day has gone when winter means somber tones, and the "little wool frock" to wear underneath the tweed coat or the fur sport coat may be as gay and colorful as one's temperament demands.

Whiter Blouses

White silk blouses should never be hung out to dry as it will yellow them. Wrap them in towels until ironing. If they become yellowed in spite of your precaution, use a little whitening in the rinse water.

Sharp Contrast

Paris is wearing black afternoon frocks with billowy white sleeves—a style becoming to many women.

OUR FOREIGN POLICY

By CORDELL HULL
Secretary of State.

OUR policy as a member of the community of nations should be twofold—first, to avoid being brought into a war and, second, to promote as far as possible the interests of international peace and good-will.

A virtue policy tempered with prudent caution is necessary if we are to retain the respect of other nations and at the same time hold our position of influence for peace and international stability in the family of nations.

In summary, while our primary aim should be to avoid involvement in other people's difficulties and to lessen our chances of being drawn into a war, we should, on appropriate occasions and within reasonable bounds, use our influence toward the prevention of war and the miseries that attend and follow in its wake. For, after all, if peace obtains, problems regarding neutrality will not arise.

QUALIFIED NEUTRALITY

By BERNARD M. BARUCH
Former Chairman of War Industries Board.

I AM sufficiently crass to say that if cotton is to be sold to a country from which it may find its way into the hands of a belligerent, then America should have the right to sell that cotton unless and until every other country agrees to withhold its supply.

Look at other countries who are selling or who have sold munitions and other supplies to both Italy and Ethiopia. Why should we continue to be the great international Fat Boy, at whose stick of candy other nations take an unwelcome bite?

TO: WILLIAM MCINTYRE, Disappeared, his unknown heirs, next of kin, legatees and devisees
TAKE NOTICE: That, on the 26th day of January, A. D. 1936, I shall petition and ask the Probate Court for the County of Livingston, state of Michigan, sitting at the city of Howell, said county and state, for an order for the assignment and distribution of the estate of said William McIntyre, Disappeared, unless cause to the contrary be shown. I shall ask that said assignment and distribution be made among the following persons and in the proportion herein set forth, viz:
Corra J. McIntyre, as widow of John J. McIntyre, deceased, and

The first definite step towards replacing street car service in Jackson, with busses was taken last week when the city commission authorized a special committee to accept proposals for a bus system. Jackson is about the last city in Michigan to give up street car service. About 50 men are now employed on the street railroad there.

Living Larimer, recently pardoned from Jackson prison after serving 45 years of a life sentence, has had his pharmacist license restored to him by the state board of pharmacy.

The Chelsea village council has purchased 60 Christmas trees with which to decorate the village streets.

The PWA is erecting a garage at Brighton, on the old U. S. 23 for the county road commission. It is 50x70.

The WPA have started work on the playground at Fowlerville. It is located just across from the school.

W. R. McIntyre, director of music in Lansing Eastern high school and Donald Carr, will put on the opera "The Messiah," by Handel, at Fowlerville on Dec. 19, with a Lansing and Fowlerville cast.

The Lansing State Journal of last Wednesday printed the picture of 8 Fowlerville hunters who returned from deer hunting at Grand Marais, with 5 deer and the head of another one they ate in camp. The hunters were Clarence Miller, Merrill Buckley, Glenn VanGorder, Clyde VanGorder, Fred Wainwright, Ralph Wainwright, Gay Rollins Frank Keeney.

Work has started in demolishing the old school building at Manchester, where a $60,000 school unit will be built under the WPA. Excavating has also started for the walls and boiler room of the new building.

Dan P. Reason, progressive publisher of the Stockbridge Brief-Sun, is jubilant over the results of a bumper crop of onions raised on muck land which was useless until cleared and put into crops. He states that about 900 carloads of onions were raised this year on about 850 acres near Stockbridge and 650 acres near Muncie. The best part of it all is, according to Mr. Reason, that the welfare problem for the community will be greatly lessened this winter by the added prosperity.

The Linden Leader states that a day and night shift are at work drilling in Argentine township at the oil well on the George Gillispie farm. It will be drilled to a depth of from 2500 to 3500 feet.

First buyer of tuberculosis seals in Pinckney is Mr. S. H. Carr, officials of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association announce. Mr. Carr's purchase, besides being Pinckney's first, added a new member to the Association's Order of First Seal Buyers and a new name to the Christmas seal honor roll.

Helping to continue the fight against the White Plague during 1936, the sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals will be continued throughout the nation until Christmas Day. In Michigan 82,000,000 seals were distributed this year. Funds raised will support the activities of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and affiliated units during the coming year.

Dr. Bruce H. Douglas, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, commended the generous spirit which is bringing early returns from communities all over Michigan.

"It is fine to know that people throughout the state are supporting the cause so enthusiastically," said Dr. Douglas. "It would be difficult to estimate the good their contributions will accomplish. Their generosity means new hope for hundreds of tuberculosis sick in Michigan."

Air Service to China Will Force New Travel Concept

You can now buy an air ticket to carry you to the Orient. It will put you on board the "China Clipper" in San Francisco Bay late in the afternoon. You will be settled in a comfortable compartment in time for dinner—dinner beneath a star-studded sky far above the highest clouds of the eastern Pacific. You will roll out of a larger-than pullman berth to thrill at the early morning sun splashing gold over Honolulu harbor.

Then on again, by daylight now, over a necklace of surging coral reefs to the little Midway Islands, where a well-appointed inn awaits your overnight stop. A short flight next day to Wake Island, a tiny dot in the vast Pacific. There, too, you pass a night. Another daylight flight. A night on Guam. The next night finds you in exotic yet modern Manila. Then the following morning you step ashore for luncheon, in China itself—W. L. Van Dusen and Daniel Sayre in Cosmopolitan.

Spelling Habits

A Columbia university professor has been keeping score and finds that "regrettable" is our most misspelled word. This is easily explained by the times. In the good old days when there weren't so many things that were regrettable we misspelled other words, notably gorgeous, delectable and irresistible.—Kansas City Star.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

Quick, Complete Pleasant ELIMINATION

Let's be frank. There's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste matter that causes acid, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts—your intestines must function. To make them move quickly, pleasantly, completely, without griping, thousands of physicians recommend Milnesia Wafers. (Dentists recommend Milnesia wafers as an efficient remedy for mouth acidity.)

These mint flavored candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly in accordance with the directions on the bottle or tin, then swallowed, they correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source and at the same time enable quick, complete, pleasant elimination.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48 wafers, at 35c and 60c respectively, or in convenient tins containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately an adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores carry them. Start using these delicious, effective wafers today.

Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letter head.

SYNOPSIS

The youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe has as her guest her late husband's niece, Sylvia Haydon, a stranger, exhausted, finds his way to Marcia's home. He asks her to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery nearby. The stranger gives his name as Stanley Heath. Sylvia discovers the jewelry and naturally believes Heath is a robber, but decides to say nothing. Marcia feels she has too deep an interest in her guest, but is powerless to overcome it. Heath wires "Mrs. S. C. Heath," New York, saying he is safe. He also orders a man named Currier to come at once. Sylvia, in her room, bedsacks herself with the jewels. At Marcia's approach she hides them there. Heath asks Marcia to bring them to him. They are gone! Sylvia restores the jewels to their original hiding place. Elisha Winslow discovers them and has no doubt they are the stolen gems, and Heath is a thief. Leaving the jewels, he makes plans for arresting Heath. Currier arrives. Marcia overhears Heath describe how he acquired the gems, and is forced to believe him guilty of theft. Currier investigates the hiding place and finds the gems! He returns to New York with them, but his references to "Mrs. Heath" have convinced Marcia her tender dream has been a foolish one. Elisha and Eleaser come to arrest Heath. The jewels, of course, are not to be found. To Sylvia Marcia admits she loves Heath and has faith in his innocence. She tells him she believes him innocent, but urges him, if he is guilty, to confess. He admits nothing, but compels her to confess she loves him, also telling her he is giving himself up to the sheriff. She insists this must be the end of their association, and he, thinking she will not face the "disgrace," reproaches and leaves her.

CHAPTER X—Continued

Then she swayed, caught at a chair and shrank into it, her body shaking and her breath coming in gasping, hysterical sobs.

The clock ticked on, the surf broke in muffled undertone, the light faded; the candles burned lower, flickered and overflew the old pewter candle sticks; and still she sat there, her tearless, dilated eyes fixed straight before her.

Having no inkling of a change in the delightful relations that had for the past week prevailed in the Home-stand, the atmosphere that greeted Sylvia when she came down the next morning was a shock.

Stanley Heath stood at the telephone talking to Elisha Winslow and on the porch outside were grouped his suitcase, overcoat and traveling rug. He was plainly ill at ease and had little except the most commonplace remarks to offer in way of conversation.

Marcia had not slept, as her pallor and the violet shadows beneath her eyes attested.

Although the girl did not understand, she sensed Marcia's need of her and rushed valiantly into the breach—filling every awkward pause with her customary sparkling chatter.

When at length the meal was cut short by the arrival of Elisha Winslow, all three of the group rose with unconcealed relief.

"Well, Mr. Heath, I see you're expecting me," grinned the sheriff, pointing toward the luggage beside the door.

"I am, Mr. Winslow."

"I've got my boat. Are you ready to come right along?"

"Quite ready."

Heath went to Sylvia and took her hand.

"Thank you very much," murmured he formally, "for all you've done for me. I appreciate it more than I can say. And you, too, Mrs. Howe."

"I wish you luck, Mr. Heath," called Sylvia.

"Thanks."

"And I, too," Marcia rejoined in a voice scarcely audible.

To this the man offered no reply. They followed him to the door.

It was then that Marcia sprang forward and caught Elisha's arm.

"Where are you taking him, Elisha?" she demanded, a catch in her voice.

"Remember, Mr. Heath has been ill. You must not risk his getting cold or suffering any discomfort."

"You need have no worries on that score, Marcia," replied the sheriff kindly, noticing the distress in her face. "I'll look out for him."

"Where is he going?"

"To my house for the present," Elisha answered. "I've a comfortable spare room an' I agger to put him in it 'til I've questioned him an' verified his story."

"Meantime, nobody in town will be the wiser. I ain't even tellin' May Ellen why Mr. Heath's at the house. If I choose to harbor comp'ny, that's my business. Not a soul 'cept Eleaser's in on this affair an' he's keepin' mum. When him an' me decide we've got the truth, we'll act—not before."

"That relieves my mind very much. Mr. Heath is—you see he—"

"He's a frie' of yours—I ain't forgettin' that. I'll treat him 'ordin'ly, Marcia."

"Thank you, Elisha—thank you a hundred times."

There was nothing more to be said. Heath bowed once again and the two men walked down to the float where they clambered with the luggage into Elisha's dory and put out into the channel.

Sylvia loitered to wave her hand and watch them row away, but Marcia, as if unable to bear the sight, waited for no further farewell.

But by noon she was, to outward appearances, entirely herself. She had not been able, to be sure, to banish her pallor or the traces of sleeplessness; but she had her emotions sufficiently under control to talk pleasantly, if not gaily.

That day and the next passed in much the same strained fashion.

It was not until the third morning that the barriers between the two collapsed.

Marcia had gone into the living room to write a letter. She sat down before the desk and started to take up her pen when Sylvia heard her utter a cry.

"What's the matter, dear?" called the girl, hurrying into the other room.

As Sylvia came nearer, Marcia bowed her head upon the desk and began to sob as if her heart would break.

"Oh, how could he!" moaned the woman. "How could he be so cruel!"

"What has happened, Marcia?"

"Stanley—he has left a check—money—thrown it in my face! And I did it so gladly—because I loved him. He knew that. Yet he could leave this—pay me—as if I were a common servant. I had rather he struck me—a hundred times rather."

The girl took the check.

It was filled out in Stanley Heath's clear, strong hand and was for the sum of a hundred dollars.

"How detestable of him!" she exclaimed. "Tell me, Marcia—what happened between you and Mr. Heath? You quarreled—of course I know that. But why—why? I have not wanted to ask, but now—"

"I'll tell you everything, Sylvia. I'd rather you knew. I thought at first I could keep it to myself, but I cannot. I need you to help me, dear."

Marcia unfolded the story of her blind faith in Stanley Heath; her love for him—a love she could neither resist nor control—a love she had known from the first to be hopeless. She confessed how she had struggled to conceal her feelings; how he himself had resisted a similar attraction in her; how at last he had discovered her secret and forced her to betray it.

"Of course I realized we could not go on," she explained bravely. "That we loved one another was calamity enough. All that remained was for him to go away and forget me—return to his wife, his home, and his former life. Soon, if he honestly tries, this infatuation will pass and everything will be as before. Men forget more easily than women. Absence, too, will help."

"And you, Marcia?"

"I cannot give up my love. It is all I have now. Oh, I do not mean to mourn over it, pity myself, make life unhappy. Instead, I shall be glad, thankful. You will see. This experience will make every day of living richer. You need have no fears for me, Sylvia. You warned me, you know," concluded she with a pathetic little smile.

"I was a brute! I ought to have shielded you more," the girl cried. "I could have, had I realized. Well, I can yet do something, thank heaven. Give me that check."

"What do you mean to do?"

"Return it, of course—return it before Stanley Heath leaves town. I'll take it over to Elisha Winslow's now, this minute."

"I wonder—yes, probably that will be best. You won't, I suppose, be allowed to see Stanley," speculated she timidly. "If you should—"

"Well?"

"Don't say anything harsh, Sylvia. Please do not blame him, or—"

"I'll wring his neck!" was the emphatic retort.

"Oh, please—please dear—for my sake! I can't let you go if you go in that spirit!" pleaded Marcia in alarm.

"There, there—you need not worry for fear I shall maltreat your Romeo, richly as he deserves it," was the response. "I could kill him—but I won't—because of you. Nevertheless, I warn you that if I get the chance I shall tell him what I think of him. He is terribly to blame and ought to realize it. No married man has any business playing round with another woman."

"I am half afraid to let you go, Sylvia."

"You don't trust me? Don't you believe I love you?"

"I am afraid you love me too much, dear."

"I do love you, Marcia. I never dreamed I could care so intensely for anyone I have known for so short a time. What you did for my mother alone would make me love you. But aside from gratitude there are other reasons. I love you for your own splendid self, dear. Please do not fear to trust me. I promise you I will neither be unjust nor bitter."

"Take the check then and go. I wish I were to see him."

"Well, you're not! Let him do the explaining and apologizing. Let him grovel at your feet. That's what he ought to do!"

"You won't tell him that?"

"I don't know what I shall tell him."

"Please Sylvia! You promised, remember."

"Don't fret. Some of the mad will be taken out of me before I see Mr. Heath. Kiss me and wish me luck. Marcia. You do believe I will try to be wise, don't you?"

"Yes, dear. Yes!"

"That's right. You really can trust me, you know. I'm not so bad as I sound."

Tucking the check into the wee pocket of her sweater, Sylvia caught up her pert beret and perched it upon her curls.

"So long!" she called, looking back over her shoulder as she opened the door. "So long, Marcia! I'll be back as soon as ever I can."

The haste with which she disappeared, suddenly precipitated her into the arms of a young man who stood upon the steps preparing to knock.

"Hortie Fuller," cried Sylvia breathlessly. "Hortie! Where on earth did you come from?"

Her arms closed about his neck and he had kissed her twice before she swiftly withdrew, rearranging her curls and saying coldly:

"I cannot imagine what brought you here, Horatio."

CHAPTER XI

"I can't imagine," repeated Sylvia, still very rosy and flustered, but with her most magnificent air, "what brought you to Wilton—I really cannot."

"Can't you?" grinned Horatio cheerfully.

"No, I cannot."

From his superior height of six-feet-two, he looked down at her meager five feet, amusement twinkling in his eyes.

Sylvia, however, was too intent on patting her curls into place to heed his glance.

"You wrote me to come, didn't you?" he presently inquired.

"I wrote you to come!"

"Well, at least you led me to suppose you'd like it if I were here," persisted Horatio. "Toward the bottom of page two you said: 'I am positively homesick'; and in the middle of the back of page three you wrote: 'It seems years since I've seen you.'"

"What if I did?" answered the girl with a disdainful shrug.

Nevertheless the dimples showed in her cheeks.

"And that isn't all," Horatio went on. "At the end of page five you wrote: 'Would that you were here!'"

Sylvia bit her lip.

"That was only a figure of speech—what is called poetic license."

"Then you didn't mean it when you said you wished I was here?"

Horatio was obviously disappointed. "Why, of course I am pleased to see you, Horatio. It is very nice of you to come to the Cape to meet my aunt and—"

"Darn your aunt!" he scowled. "I didn't come to see her. I am not interested in aunts."

"Take care! I happen to be very keen on this aunt of mine. If she didn't like you, you might get sent home. Don't be horrid, Hortie. I truly am glad you've come. You must make allowance for my being surprised. I haven't got over it yet. How in the world did you contrive to get away at this season? And what sort of a trip did you have?"

"Well! I stopped overnight in New York at the Gardners. Mother wanted me to deliver a birthday cake to Estelle, who, you may remember, is the mater's god-daughter. She's a pipkin, too. I hadn't seen her since she graduated from Vassar."

Sylvia listened.

She did not need to be told about the Gardners.

They had visited Horatio's family more than once and rumor had it the elders of both families would be delighted were the young people to make a match of it.

"I'm surprised you did not stay longer in New York," Sylvia observed, gazing reflectively at her white shoe.

"New York wasn't my objective. I came on business, you see. Dad gave me two months off so I could get married."

Sylvia jumped.

"I was not aware you were engaged," murmured she in a formal, far-away tone.

"I'm not," came frankly from Horatio Junior. "But I'm going to be. In fact I chance to have the ring with me this minute. Want to see it?"

"I always enjoy looking at jewels," was her cautious retort.

Horatio felt of his pockets.

"Where on earth did I put that thing?" he muttered. "Hope I haven't lost it. Oh, here it is."

He took out a tiny velvet case and sprang the catch.

"Oh, Hortie! Isn't it beautiful!" Sylvia cried. "It fairly takes away my breath."

"Try it on."

She shook her head.

"It wouldn't fit me. My hands are too small."

"It's a small ring. Here. Put it on," he urged, holding it toward her.

"Well, I suppose I might try it to please you. But I know it will be too large."

She slipped it on her finger.

"Why, it does fit. How odd!"

"Very odd indeed," he answered drily, as she reached her hand out into the sun and turned the diamonds so that they caught the light.

"Looks rather well on, doesn't it?" was his comment.

"It is a beautiful ring."

Horatio, standing behind her, twice extended his arms as if to gather her into them and twice withdrew them, deciding the action to be premature.

At length with a determined squaring of his shoulders, he locked his hands behind him and stood looking on while she continued to twist the ring this way and that.

"Well," yawned he after an interval, "I suppose I may as well put it back in the box."

HAVE UTILITY APRON FOR WORK—BERUFFLED ONE FOR HOSTESSING

PATTERN 2370

Those utility aprons (of which EVERY Good Housekeeper needs half a dozen!) are best made of a sturdy printed percale like the lower one pictured. The buttons on bib and beltline are a bright accent and those big roomy pockets are just the handiest catch-alls! But those dainty, dressier aprons—which are quite another story—are best fashioned of sheer dotted swiss, cross bar dimity and the like, and you've no idea how a ruffle round the edge dresses it up until your tea-guest pays her compliments! See how the shape of the big pockets conforms with the deep scallop feature. Both aprons in one pattern!

Pattern 2370 is available in sizes small, medium and large. Trimmed aprons take 2½ yards 36 inch fabric; 1½ yards 36 inch are required for untrimmed apron. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

More Humble About Our Opinions in New Kinship

At the moment, many people are deploring "a lack of leadership" in religion, says Lloyd C. Douglas in Cosmopolitan. "In my opinion, the confessed bewilderment of the churches is a sign of health and progress. The recent use of the soft pedal has made the prophet of more value to the people. They sense an intellectual kinship with the honest man who admits he is a bit at a loss to know exactly where we are."

Editors who were used to saying the last word necessary for the adequate instruction of their constituents are writing in phrases tempered by a new shyness. Statesmen, teachers, parents, even half-grown children are no longer laying down their beliefs with a bang. We are all becoming humble about our opinions. This is the type of kinship we have needed more seriously than any other. It is somewhere along this road that we may find our peace."

GREAT CONCERN OVER NEWCOMER IN A COMMUNITY

The newcomer is a person who appears to make his home in the community and who thereby raises the questions:

Where will he send his children to school? Where will he keep his bank account? Where will he buy his groceries? Will he purchase a house? Does he need an automobile? How is he off for insurance?

Would he be interested in an oil burner? What church will he attend? Is he a prospect for a contribution to charity? Does he require legal advice? Has he an electric refrigerator? Is he, or members of his family, in need of medical attention?

Would he be good material for a ducking club or a golf club or a luncheon club? Or is he a person of intellectual interests who might be drafted for a discussion group or an association for or against war or in the study of foreign affairs?

Is he a good speaker? If so, what is his subject? Could he be persuaded to make a talk? Will his house need weatherstripping? How does he vote? Could he use an electric washer or a vacuum cleaner?

Where does he buy his clothes? Could he be persuaded to open a few accounts? Has he settled on a dentist? Has he engaged a handy man to look after his place? Would his children be interested in instruction in French or the piano or rhythmic dancing? Would he be interested in supporting the art museum?

In fact, if a newcomer were able to hear all the questions his arrival raised and realized the number of endeavors in which he was regarded as a prospect, he would probably pack up and go back as quickly as he could to the place from which he came.—Christopher Blilopp in the Baltimore Evening Sun.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains—and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "Aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

STATE WELFARE LOAD REACHES YEAR'S LOW

The welfare case load has dropped to the lowest level in the year, according to a report Tuesday by Dr. William Haber, state administrator. The number families and individuals on direct relief at the end of November was 116,373. This represented a decrease from a peak of approximately 200,000. Much of the improvement was attributed by Haber to the transfer of 93,275 workers to WPA or other relief projects. The number of administrative employees has been reduced to 3,457 from a top of more than 5,000.

A HUGE BANKING SYSTEM

The latest official figures covering all banks in the United States show that there are 12,642 licensed banking institutions of every kind and that over 63,000 persons have entrusted them with their deposits to the amount of $48,000,000,000.

NEW RELIEF SET-UP EFFECTIVE MONDAY

Effective Sunday, December 1st, the status of direct relief clients in Washtenaw county, as well as in other counties of the state, will be materially changed. After that date all relief work will be carried on through the cooperation of the state, county and township or city governments.

Administration work will continue under the supervision of the County Welfare Relief Commission, aid going to people in the county who will not be able to qualify as employable under the Works Progress Administration with the understanding that the supervisor or authorized agent approve the investigation and the amount of relief to be furnished.

The County Relief Commission will furnish the county clerk each month a statement of expenses incurred during the month, and such list will show the amount chargeable to each township and city in the county. The township and cities pay 45 percent of the cost, the remaining 55 percent to be paid by the state, to counties entering into the agreement for carrying on the relief work in this way.

Although it is expected that majority of the townships and cities will adopt this plan for direct relief, it is reported that some will assume the full amount of the burden.

At a meeting of the Manchester township board Saturday, Nov. 16th, the plan was adopted, which means that after Sunday, Charles E. Waltz, supervisor, will control the situation in this township insofar as unemployables are concerned, and 45 percent of cost will be paid by the township.

The County case worker will, as formerly investigate all cases of those who apply for relief, and will then turn her case records over to Mr. Waltz, who will pass final judgment on the amount of direct relief to be granted, and whether the client is qualified to be listed employable or unemployable on a WPA project.

Mr. Waltz and the case worker conferred last Friday and made out a list of work slips which were distributed Sunday to those now employed on the Manchester school project.

Supervisor George Alber, of Sharon will have charge of welfare distribution in that township, but as yet no projects have been initiated but workers are being placed on the nearby projects. Manchester Enterprise.

"Help Wanted"

HOW eagerly the "Help Wanted" advertisements appearing in the daily newspapers are watched for and read by those seeking employment! They scan these columns hoping to find someone needing what they have to offer in the way of service. Let us consider briefly a few helpful facts regarding this situation. Work, regardless of its character, to be carried on successfully must be done in an orderly and faithful manner. It is of first importance, to us, to take care of our equipment. What do we possess, and what have we to offer that will enable us to fill a position satisfactorily and thereby to hold it? One definition of the word "fit" given in a dictionary is "to furnish an abundant supply to." Then, in order to fill the requirements of a position and meet the needs of an employer, the qualities of true value one has to give, those promotive of good achievements, must be of first importance. Such qualifications are mental and are present here and now as the divine inheritance of one and all.

The loving, tender, and faithful, the all-knowing, all-wise Father-Mother God created man in His own image. Therefore man possesses by reflection and expresses by divine decree unlimited goodness and usefulness. Let the seeker for employment ask himself the question, "What would be the necessary qualifications of an individual whom you would hire, were you the employer, whether in relation to industrial, commercial, professional, or domestic service?" Would not intelligence, efficiency, truthfulness, honesty, loyalty, patience, kindness, and trustworthiness be essential and indispensable? Such is the equipment of every child of God. In the Scriptural command (Phil. 2:5), "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus," the word "let" is pregnant with meaning. As the child of God, man possesses by reflection all the qualities necessary to ensure right and therefore successful activity. Letting this mind be in you, in your present state of consciousness, gives you the assurance of knowing what

ONE LEARNS as the years go by that it pays to know something about the merchants one does business with, and the professional men called upon to serve.

One learns therefore that it is wise to know something about the funeral directors of his community—particularly about their charges. We tell our readers frankly that the cost of our services is never more than wishes to pay.

MICHIGAN POTATOES BRING PREMIUM

For the first time in many years Michigan grown potatoes are bringing a premium on the Chicago market. Commissioner of Agriculture, James F. Thomson, announced today. Strict enforcement of grading laws by the department of agriculture, coupled with the Michigan Bonded Farm Product Label plan were given as the reasons for the premium price by Commissioner Thomson.

While Minnesota and Wisconsin potatoes are bringing from $1.00 to $1.15 per 100 pound sack, Michigan potatoes are bringing shippers as high as $1.70 per 100 pound. Commissioner Thomson said. He pointed out that under the bonded label program shippers are bonded with the state that their products are up-to-grade. The Michigan potato crop this year is expected to reach approximately 24,000,000 bushels compared to 34,000,000 bushels in 1934. The average production in the state for the past ten years has been 23,715,000 bushels. Beginning Nov. 1, Commissioner Thomson established inspection stations on principal highways leading out of the potato belt, and as a result the quality of potatoes placed on the market has been vastly improved according to department records.
