FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

OWNED BY Edith L. Watson

THE LOST FIND

THE Funeral range of mountains, east of Death Valley, conceals a lost mine known as the Find. A man named Smith was its discoverer, and he went to New York with the first of his new wealth, spent it lavishly, and at the end of two months died of apoplexy.

He left a map, a fairly accurate one, showing the eastern part of Death Valley, and in the northernmost range of mountains a canyon had been drawn in detail. Near the head of this canyon a red cross marked the Find.

Basing their itineraries on this map, many people tried to reach the mine, but with no success. Then a "location notice," written peculiarly and apparently designed to give clues only to those who knew which were real and which false directions, was unearthed from beneath a location monument where the copper camp of Greenwater stands. The notice read as follows:

"Notice is hereby given that we, the men that wrote this notice, are citizens of the United States, Cuba, and the Philippines; we do this day locate one gold mine. Known as the Bryfogle, and more particularly described as follows:

"Commencing at this big monument of stone on a cold rainy night and running 35 hours with Indians after him, come to a big canyon that leads up to the north with two big rocks on one side of the mouth of the canyon, the one on the right round and smooth, and the one on the left rough and rugged. These rocks stand 20 feet high. Follow up this canyon about five hours on burros or one and one-half hours on horseback you will come to the fork of the canyon. Take the left hand one and ride hard for two hours and you will come to an old stone corral. Go to the right of this about 9,000 feet and you will come to a small gulch leading up to the right. Go up this about one-fourth of a mile you will come to a small water hole. Sometimes it's a dry hole. If it's a water hole when you get there, water your animals, fill your canteen and then go on until the gulch forks again, then take the right hand one until it forks, then lead up the left one just a little ways and you will discover the find we have been unable to locate. The canyon is yet, and we take this means of locating the big find. The map of the above described property will be furnished to anyone on application to the undersigned. Located this first day of January, 1902.

"Locater,

"J. W. Trotter."

"P. S.—Don't look for this mine in the summer time, as it is dangerous. Doc."

That the monument where the notice was found formed the starting place, is apparent. But so far no one has managed to run as it chased by Indians until he finds the canyon with the two big rocks. Plenty of men have tried it, though.

SWIFT SILVER MINE

THERE seem to be three distinct eras in America during which mining was most important. The first was during the Spanish occupation, the second after the Civil war, and the last the present time. But the Swift silver mine belongs to none of them; it produced its silver shortly before the Revolution.

Swift was the captain of a sailing vessel of those times. He met a man who had been adopted into an Indian tribe, and this man revealed that the Indians had discovered a fabulously rich deposit of silver in Kentucky.

The mine was in a cave, well hidden from the casual searcher. It was all that had been promised, and Swift set to work mining and smelting the ore, running it into molds and stamping it with a dollar die which he had brought with him. When they had made as much of this money as they could carry, they concealed the place as the Indians had done and started eastward—none too soon, for the tribesmen discovered that their mine had been plundered and started on their trail. In fact, pursuit grew so hot that the white men were forced to bury a large proportion of their spoils, escaping with enough, however, to be put into circulation. This money was known as "Swift's dollars."

Then came the Revolutionary war, and Swift was busy with many matters. We next meet up with him when he came into Kentucky with Boone, and told the story of the Indian mine at Boonesborough.

He said that he could find the place again, although his sight was failing, and a company was formed to go with him. He led them truly, and at last toward evening one day he recognized the location. The night was spent in dreams of great fortune, and at daybreak everyone was eager to uncover the hidden shaft—but alas! during the night Swift's eyesight had left him completely, and he could not see even the sun as it poured its rays against his face.

He tried to tell the men where to go, but it was useless. They were forced at last to abandon their search and return home empty handed.

The mine has been hunted over those days, but it remains hidden.

Modes for Mother Versus Daughter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

BETTER look to your laurels, daughter, for mother is about to outmode you in the matter of chic and swank in dress. At least it can be truly said that fashion is seeing to it that older women keep in perfect step with those younger in the style parade.

The current modes all go to show that the same fashion influences are important for both mother and daughter, their difference being only in their interpretation which tunes to a nicety to type and to years or less years.

With all the world wearing metallics this season, mother follows suit in afternoon or dinner gowns which have discreet touches of metal for trimming. Sometimes insets of metallic silks are set down the middle of full sleeves. Then again bands of gold or silver silk lame border necklines and accent deep graceful armholes or are draped to soften the bustline. Notice this treatment in the handsome gown worn by the smart and attractive matron centered in the illustration. Here is a restrained, at the same time most effective, use of gold silk lame on a gown of black velvety silk sheer, with a group of tucks molding the gown at the hipline.

As a rule mother does well to avoid entire gowns of metallic silk, leaving the joy to gleam from head to toes in glamorous silver or gold to the young girl. The debutant age wears dinner gowns of scintillating silver silk lames, with shirtwaist bodices softened by bishop sleeves slit underneath, as you see in the model pictured to the right in the group. Crinkled silver silk lame is used for this dinner gown, the bishop sleeves of which are split from shoulder to wrist.

Youthful, too, are the cocktail suits fashioned of heavy silk lames. These have contrasting blouses of silk satin or silk velvet. Lame jackets are also worn over harmonizing silk crepe frocks. Formal evening gowns, are made of soft silk lames which seem like liquid gold, silver or bronze—often with finely pleated skirts in the Grecian manner. Stiff silk metallized brocades or moires are also quite the "last word" for gowns with slim lines that gradually flare into billowy skirts.

The draped mode interpreted in soft, supple silks in a variety of interesting weaves, is a favorite theme for both mother and daughter. The more mature woman usually prefers modified draped treatments.

Soft fullness in the bodice is also favored for the older woman, and is much in vogue, achieved through shirring, soft folds and unpressed pleats. Cowl treatments, shoulders with softly draped armholes, inverted tucks at the waistline which release their fullness gracefully in the bodice section, as illustrated in the model to the left in the picture, are all modern treatments which are flattering to older women. In the softly draped gown referred to, which, by the way, is of a handsome American beauty silk sheer, unpressed pleats give the new front fullness to her skirt, also developing into a flattering soft neckline that achieves a conservative décolletage for the older woman.

The silks which are especially favored by the more mature woman for dresses draped and shirred are heavy silk sheers and soft velvety silk sheers. Larger women particularly appreciate the advantage of pure silk fabrics because they need the dependability of silk's natural elasticity at points of strain such as across the back of the shoulders, around the armholes and through the bust and hips.

STURDY SUEDE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

By all means if you are interested in voguish leather fashions you must have a sturdy suede jacket. These jackets, in rich stunning colors, are leading the field for winter sports. The model at the top has gridiron checks patterned via embossing, on the mosaic rust suede leather. Virginia Reid wears this new vogue which originated in Hollywood. The jacket below, also checked in gridiron fashion, has triangular shaped pocket flaps which button with an all-around belt and a trick collar that can be worn up or down.

BEAUTY IS HELPED BY STYLE OF HAIR

The girl what wants to make the most of her best features and to draw attention away from not-so-good ones should study her face carefully and experiment with hair styles and cosmetics.

The right coiffure can make a too-long nose seem shorter, or an extremely thin face appear plumper.

If your nose is long, and pointed, never part your hair in the middle. If it is short, by all means do wear your hair with the part in the center.

If you have a long thin face, a coiffure that fluffs out slightly at the sides will be most flattering. Girls with short plump faces can very well go in for sleeked-back hair styles, perhaps even the types that show both ears.

Pert curls that fly across the forehead and in front of ears generally are best for youthful, rather small, pliant faces.

Treat Furs Roughly

If you are lucky enough to get a silver fox wrap, for goodness sake learn to care for it correctly. The fur never should be stroked with the hands or touched with a brush. Instead, when you want to fluff it up and remove dust, shake it vigorously. Don't treat furs gently. On fox ranches where the little creatures are bred and reared to enhance feminine beauty and in large fur houses, fox pelts are beaten with a stick to make them fluffier and more luxurious looking. Strong men shake them as hard as they can.

Ingenious Scarf

"Personality" scarfs that can be tied seven different ways are a challenge to your ingenuity. Perhaps you can find another way to drape them. They're made of splashing prints in the form of a V. The point of the V forms a triangle and the long ends may be tied in a bow, knotted or draped in many ways.

You can wear the V in front with a cowl necktie, tying the ends in a bow in back, or bringing them around to the front in a smaller bow.

12 FROM MINUTE TO MINUTE

By MARTHA B. THOMAS

"ONE minute," said Corinne, "it's today. And the next—it's tomorrow!"

"And one minute," replied Bruce, "it's this year—and the next it's tomorrow-year."

She smiled at him, a little dark thing in filmy clouds of white. They circled the ballroom once more.

"And one minute," said Bruce with a deep rumble he tried to keep from sounding tender, lest someone overhear, "you're Miss Corinne Mumford, and the next," he whirled her off into a quieter corner, "you're Mrs. Bruce MacQueen!"

"Indeed . . . as quickly as that?" She smiled again but her cool voice trembled.

"Do I gather," her lashes fell on her cheeks, "that this is in the way of a proposal of marriage?"

"Bright girl! On New Year's eve I demand a new wife . . . a new life . . . and happiness ever afterward."

" . . . and We're Old. Minute After Minute . . . Promise!"

"How modest," she murmured, "you are."

"Speak . . . I promise me before the bells ring out! Minutes fly . . . into hours, days . . . months and years! Promise me!" Now he held her closer, his breath fanned her hair. "They pile up and pile up . . . and then life goes on . . . and we're old. Minute after minute . . . promise!"

The violins seemed to beseech her; they cried out at her in lovely golden voices. One minute is today . . . the next is tomorrow! They danced and danced. One minute Miss Corinne Mumford . . . the next Mrs. Bruce MacQueen.

In her clouds of filmy white, whirling and whirling in her partner's arms, she tried to think. Was it the ball . . . the glitter and life and beauty of a big party? The joy of dancing as if her feet were shod with wings? The delight of hearing Bruce's voice begging her . . . talking to her, holding her more and more closely in his strong, gentle grasp? Did she love him? Did he love her? He had not said so. He had never said so. Yet she had seen him day after day. She had taken for granted their friendship, as one loves the sun, yet forgets the sun is shining.

Around and around—whirl, whirl! Perhaps one did not have to decide. Perhaps, as one minute slid silently into the next . . . one knew!

"I'm going away tomorrow," said Bruce, "to South America. A big chance."

"Oh," she gasped, "you did not tell me!"

"I only heard today."

He was going away . . . when today was tomorrow, he would be gone. A little pain climbed from her heart to her throat. She lifted her chin and looked up.

His glance, sober and dark and shining, plunged into her eyes. She quivered.

He began to sing with the music, but words of his own. "The boat sails on . . . and the wind blows south . . . I'll never come home again."

The music stopped. A hush fell on the huge ball room. The first slow peal of a bell sounded high in the air.

"Tell me . . . speak with the bells . . . on New Year's eve, Corinne!"

She turned her face away. She knew.

So, joining her small human voice with the clangor overhead, she said—"One minute Corinne Mumford . . . the next, Mrs. Bruce MacQueen."

And midnight passed into the New Year.

Some Rules and Suggestions for Serving the Formal Dinner

Though Well to Know, Good Hostess May Ignore Some of Them.

Dinner parties, except in most elaborate households, must be limited in the number of guests. Six used to be considered the ideal number for the small dinner. Nowadays, with bridge addicts, we are likely to stretch the number to eight. Of course the menu must be planned carefully so that there will not be long interludes between courses. And be sure that you do not overcrowd your table—if you can help it. If your dining room table won't seat eight, plan a buffet supper instead of a dinner party.

A large array of silver is no longer used on the table. The necessary knives, forks and spoons to be used for the first three courses may be arranged on the table, always in the order in which they are to be used, beginning from the outside. Knives and spoons are on the right; forks are on the left. If oysters are served instead of, or in addition to the soup, the oyster fork is placed with the food. If salad is served at a formal dinner the fork arrives with it as do always the dessert forks and spoons.

A formal dinner may begin with soup or oysters. Then comes a fish course, meat and vegetables, sometimes a salad, and then a dessert. Coffee is generally served in the living room after dinner. Up to the dessert course there must always be a plate in front of each person. After the courses the plates containing food are removed from the left by the waitress with her left hand.

During the meal all dishes are passed to the left. Water glasses and wine glasses are filled from the right. The wine glasses are in place when the guests sit down at the table. At a formal meal bread and butter plates are not used. Melba toast, hot rolls and crackers are passed with the various courses. While custom used to omit butter entirely with dinner, the hot rolls may now be split and buttered if you like.

Just one more thing about the formal dinner which can be applied to any meal entertainment. Have your flower decorations very low so that they do not interfere with the guests seeing each other across the table. Tall candles may be used. Do not attempt to serve a formal dinner without enough help for food preparation and service. Any dinner to be successful must run so smoothly that neither the guests nor the hostess are over-conscious of the table.

Rules Are Sometimes Ignored.

While all of us like to know the accepted rules for formal dinner service, we all find that the good hostess dares ignore some of them. If she asks her guests to "come to dinner" instead of to a dinner party, she can be as original as she likes. With the present custom of serving a large variety of appetizers before dinner in the living room, appetites are already whetted. The guests will be delighted to find when they go into the dining room, that the roast is already on the table, partially carved, ready for serving quickly. A variety of vegetables, cranberry sauce, hot rolls, celery, relishes, then a green salad and dessert will cause all the guests to compliment the hostess on her menu.

The success of a dinner party depends on a number of things. Good choice of a menu, arrangements for efficient service, the use of attractive silver and linen and, it goes without saying, the selection of congenial guests.

ATWOOD GIVES MORE TIME FOR 1935 TAGS

Extension of one month of the deadline for the purchase of 1935 automobile license plates has been granted by Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State. The order specifies that new plates must be purchased by midnight, Friday, January 31, if cars are to be driven. Other states will be notified of Atwood's decision, and will be requested to be guided by it, so far as Michigan plates are concerned. Motorists contemplating driving out of Michigan any time after January 1, however, are cautioned that inconvenience may result if they carry 1935 plates; in many states, January 1 is the absolute deadline each year.

Atwood warned that further extension after January 31 is not contemplated, calling attention to the fact that 1936 plates were placed on sale this year far earlier than previous years, as a device for aiding the motor industry which placed its 1936 models on the market considerably in advance of the date in previous years.

Because of the advanced date for placing 1936 plates on sale, it is a natural consequence that the final date for purchase of the plates will also be advanced this year. The law provides extension of 60 days after January 1, in the discretion of the Secretary of State. At the time the law was enacted, however, new plates were being placed on sale in December of the preceding year; this year, sale of plates was started much in advance of that date.

TAXES HAVEN'T HURT MORGAN

It is somewhat interesting to observe that J. P. Morgan, the banker, who seldom permits himself to be interviewed, recently found the front page of the newspapers by the complaint that taxes are too high. The banker had just returned from a trip to Europe and his song was essentially that they are working "for the Government."

Mr. Morgan, as everyone knows, is the head of a great banking firm. His Morgan himself in 1933, admitting unless something is done, all private fortunes will disappear in thirty years. Mr. Morgan and the public should not forget that those who possess large fortunes seem to be able to pass taxes along or else avoid them altogether.

As an example of this, we call your attention to a statement made by Mr. Morgan himself in 1933, admitting that for the years 1930, '31, and '32 his firm, composed of a number of partners, deducted capital losses and had "nothing taxable" left. Apparently, the tax burden on the members of the Morgan firm was not excessive in the three years mentioned.

MOOSE TO BE MOVED THIS MONTH

Plans to move a cargo of moose from Isle Royale to the upper peninsula this month have been definitely abandoned by the Department of Conservation.

"We had hoped to get a shipment of moose from the island to the Michigan mainland before the freeze-up this winter," said Paul Hickie, manager of the Game Division. "Weather and ice conditions, however, made this unsafe and the moose are apparently wilder and harder to handle than they will be in the spring."

The moose now in the Department of Conservation corral near Senter point on Siskiyou will remain in the corral until the break-up of ice conditions next spring, at which time all of the moose taken during the fall and winter will be transported to the mainland for release.

THE STORY OF MILK IN DETROIT

By Charles C. Lockwood

Chapter No. 1

In February of this year I was appointed legal advisor of the Wayne County Consumers' Council and asked to make an investigation of the milk industry in the Metropolitan Detroit area. I found that in many respects conditions in this industry were more alarming and more intolerable in the Detroit area than in any other area in the United States. For instance, we are paying more for the distribution of milk in Detroit than is paid in any other city in the country.

Originally in Detroit our creamery companies were owned and managed by local citizens. During those years we had a few complaints of unfair prices or illegal practices. On January 1, 1929, however, two Eastern dairy companies largely owned and controlled by New York banking interests invaded the Detroit territory and took over the following creamery companies in Wayne County: The Belle Isle Creamery, The Gable Creamery, The Risdon Creamery, The Dearborn Creamery, The Famous Jersey Company, The Absopure Ice Cream Company, The Detroit Creamery Company, The Ebling Creamery Company, The John Schiell Creamery Company, The Highland Park Creamery Company, and the Arctic Creamery Company, and these were about all the large creameries we had in this territory at that time.

Now who are these two Eastern dairy companies? The first is The Borden Milk Company, which is a Delaware corporation. The company has four main subsidiaries. These in turn have eighty-two subsidiaries and affiliated companies. One of these is the Borden Farm Products Company of Michigan, which, by the way, is a Delaware corporation. The Chairman of the Board and most of the chief officers and directors of this corporation are connected with various Wall Street financial groups. There is not an officer or director of the Borden Company who lives in the State of Michigan.

In addition to these companies, we have in Detroit the W. J. Kennedy Dairy Company, which is owned and controlled by the United States Dairy Products Company of Philadelphia, of which Mr. Andrew Mellon is one of the main stockholders.

An investigation soon discloses that we have permitted Eastern banking interests to take over the dairy industry in the Detroit area. This industry is now being run solely with the idea of squeezing the last penny out of both the farmers and consumers.

WOMEN SHOULD KNOW RELATION OF PRICES

Farm Women Who Benefit From Larger Incomes Spend More Money In Stores.

Farm women and urban housewives of little importance to people-makers have a mutual interest in other costs of living, according to the home economics department at Michigan State College.

The fact that bacon costs now are much higher than they were one year ago causes many buyers to direct that present bacon prices are lower than they were in 1920 or in 1926. The fact is often forgotten that more people can now buy bacon at the higher price than could buy it last year at the low price. The price of food is of little importance to people who have no money to buy anything.

Farmers and the working people of the cities have common interests and neither can have prosperity without the other enjoying a share of it. The farmer's wife who shares in the receipts of higher prices for hogs, also shares in the increased buying of things which the city woman's husband manufactures.

Retail sales in towns of less than 2,500 population and from mail order houses dropped from $9,200,000,000 in 1929 to $3,900,000,000 in 1932. Economic levels were at low ebb on the farm and in the towns in 1932 and the fact that farm prices were at ruinous levels did not help the urban dweller. The sales show that townspeople as well as farmers quit buying manufactured goods.

Housekeepers in the city should remember that the farmers' wives who obtain more spending money from better prices for farm produce also buy many kinds of manufactured articles which are higher in price than they were in 1932. Buyers' strikes against meat are no more logical than similar strikes against manufactured goods.

The party, a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Keedle, was sponsored by the Ladies Guild of St. Stephen's Episcopal church. As they were escorted to the hall by lay reader, Arlain Taylor, who had first given them a honeymoon ride, they were greeted by over one hundred relatives and friends, who, upon their entrance, sang "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet," followed by "Hail! Hail! The Gang's All Here." After greetings and congratulations, a short program was given as follows: vocal solo, "O Promise Me" by Dan J. Noekey; an original toast in rhyme, Miss Jule Adele Ball, who also presented the honor guests with a purse from the guests' song "Silver Thread Among the Gold," by the choir of the church; vocal solo, "I Love You Truly," Mrs. Clyde Higgins; the most unique feature of the program was the next number, a mock wedding ceremony by Mrs. Keedle's Sunday school class: Betty Ann Kuchar, Floyd McMichael, Edwin Shannon, III, Arlene Lear, Edna DeWolf, Elsie DeWolf, Jeanne Bennett and Donald Shannon, all in gorgeous bridal attire and little Barbara DellWay as flower girl.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

IT'S FOOTBALL TIME

Enlargements of long distance shots will often bring out the "action" detail of a football play (left). A shot from the side lines (right).

HOLD that line! Hold that line!
Yes, football season is with us again with its excited, yelling crowds, raucous shouts and joyous celebrations by supporters of the winning team.

What a paradise for the snapshotter! He who goes to the game without his camera is missing a golden opportunity. Pictures of the game, the crowds in the grandstands and informal shots of his classmates and friends will furnish him many hours of pleasure year after year as he looks back through his snapshot album.

There are countless opportunities for interesting, story-telling pictures at football games. All you have to do is use a little imagination. When you are blocked in the traffic and remark to the girl friend, "Gee, look at that line-up of cars and the crowd at the gate," don't stop with that—take a snapshot. Don't be satisfied with stepping out of the car and just snapping a straight line of cars. Stand on the bumper and shoot down on the traffic and crowds. The results will be much more pleasing than the ordinary, conventional view.

The period before the start of the game offers further opportunities for unusual snapshots. For instance, take a picture from the top of the grandstand steps showing the crowds coming up the steps to their seats. A shutter speed of 1/50 of a second will stop the motion of the people as they walk directly toward your camera.

Stand on your seat and take a full view picture of the crowds in the grandstand and as you do this you may see some of your friends seated nearby. Attract their attention and as they wave with a cheery, "Hey, Bill," you can snap another interesting, story-telling picture. Even a chance, "blind" shot over your shoulder may bring unusual and pleasing results.

See today that your camera is ready for action, load it with film and leave for the game determined to get the kind of pictures you will be proud to show your friends.

'STORM MUSIC' IS NEW SERIAL GEM

Yates' Tale Excites Reviewers as Much as Readers.

"Storm Music," by Dornford Yates, this newspaper's new serial story, has been called one of the most thrilling novels in years. It is by a writer who has been famed for half-raising adventure and romance, and is one of the favorites of popular literature.

"Dornford Yates has the exceedingly rare ability of being able successfully to blend humor, adventure and mystery," says the Birmingham News-Age-Herald. "In 'Storm Music' he outdoes even himself for in the thing he jumbles together—adventure, a murder mystery and the inevitable humor which is always present in his stories. The result is a novel that cannot fail to entertain the most jaded reader of the day."

As there is what some of the other critics have to say:

"Dornford Yates' 'Storm Music' by Dornford Yates. As a thriller it has all the ingredients of a novel—adventure, love, mystery, humor, a haunted castle, a beautiful heroine and heroic fighting and ends with victory to the hero and a happy triumph. You can't ask more of a novel than 'Storm Music' has in it. A thriller and then some."—Allan Dods and Authors.

"If you crave death, detection and a thriller, you do not care to mix with the usual mystery novels, this should suit. Dornford Yates, John got in touch with Lady Helena, and the story of their romance and eventual happiness makes a really good yarn in a sort of story-telling prose."—N. Y. Herald-Tribune.

"A combination of mystery-adventure-romance with sufficient emphasis on love to make it as appealing to women as to adventure-loving men."—Dornford (Herald) Journal.

"The story starts with snap, gradually rises in complication and speed, and is equally and satisfactorily unraveled in its final chapters."—New Haven Journal and Courier.

"This is a romance, mystery and adventure in one of those hidden gray tones which make Dornford Yates' books so appealing. In the manner of the best of his earlier books, it's a winner."—N. Y. Sunday News.

You will find "Storm Music," by Dornford Yates, one of the real reading pleasures of your life. Follow it every week as it appears serially in this newspaper.

BANKERS SUPPORT ACTIVE AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION

The Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association is promoting widely among bankers the practice of aiding their farm customers in instituting on their farms better financial, accounting and operating methods. It also cooperates in the endeavors of the state bankers' associations along similar lines.

The commission has published a book on "Making Farm Investments Safe," presenting a compendium of helpful material published over a period of years as a reference guide in the daily routine of banking and farming relationships. It has also published "Factors Affecting Farm Credit," discussing in an illustrative way how farm credit can be obtained on a sound basis.

Another publication is the monthly Bulletin of the commission which circulates to about 10,000 persons, among them the county agents throughout the United States, who make frequent use of the material and suggestions prepared by the commission. Likewise, the commission has appointed 2,300 key bankers covering every county in the United States, who act as focal points in their districts in fostering better understanding between bankers and farmers.

EVEN Joe Buzolits, center on Michigan State College's great football team, has to Christmas seal his mail, declares Miss Peggy Sharpe, Michigan State coed, as she bars his way to the mail box until he has purchased 1935 tuberculosis Christmas seals. Joe's pennies will help to finance the Michigan Tuberculosis Association's fight against the disease during the coming year.

For young adults in Michigan between the ages of 20 and 40, tuberculosis is still the principal cause of death. This condition exists in spite of the fact that medical science has now advanced to a point where tuberculosis could be wiped out, if a widespread knowledge of the modern weapons that are being used to combat the disease could be brought to the general public. The modern weapons are the tuberculin test and the chest X-ray.

The Michigan Tuberculosis Association conducts a constant health education campaign in the state. Adult health education is accomplished through a number of channels. An abundance of informative material originating in the office of the Association is published each year by the newspapers of Michigan. Other mediums are: personal talks, radio programs, motion pictures, billboard posters, window displays, and free exhibits.

Children throughout the state are reached in their schools, a most effective way. Healthful living habits are taught and health literature is distributed to both the children and the teacher.

Your pennies will help the Michigan Tuberculosis Association in this work in the fight against tuberculosis.

We wish our friends and patrons a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

WILLIAMSTON BANK PAYS DIVIDEND

The Williamston State Bank has announced a ten percent dividend of segregated assets to holders of participation certificates. The depositors accepted these as payment of their deposits when the bank reorganized and reopened in March, 1934.

N. O. Frye was in Howell, Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Dorothy Wilson is home from Royal Oak for the holidays.

Miss Mary Jane AtLee was home from Ann Arbor over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Doolittle are spending Christmas with his sister at Clawson.

Mrs. Louis Clinton and daughter, Betty were in Ann Arbor, Monday. Gordon Lamb is working at the Chrysler factory in Detroit.

Mrs. Walter Glover and daughter, Edith of Fowlerville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. Pacey.

An enthusiastic Townsend Old Age Pension club meeting was held at the Patterson Lake Casino one day last week with Col. Met Chalker presiding. Convincing arguments in favor of the club were made by Paris Whetzel and Jack Ketchum, while it was opposed by George Hauck and O. E. Mitchell. Col. Chalker, after considering the arguments offered by the pros and antis, decided in favor of the pros and announced his conversion to the ranks of the Townsenders. He is said to be considering running for Congress on a Townsend plank similar to Vernon Main of Battle Creek.

The Duty of Every Banker

It is clearly the duty of every banker in the country to perform certain services. The most important are:

1. To afford perfect safety for deposits.

2. To grant credit to those who deserve it.

In the matter of credits the public must in fairness remember that commercial banks are not lending their own money, but the money of their depositors, represented very largely by the earnings and savings of the people. The people who own these deposits have accumulated them through years of labor and sacrifice, and in many cases the deposit represents their all. These depositors have the right to call for their money at any time, or at most on short notice. Deposits constitute a sacred trust.

There are certain basic principles in sound banking that must be held onto even in this period of change, but the progressive banker must be responsive to changing conditions and he must be active in seeking proper opportunities to meet the sound needs of his customers.

In a recent message to Congress, the President said—"I am greatly hoping that repeated promises that private investment and private initiative to relieve the government in the immediate future of much of the burden which it has assumed will be realized."

Invisible Highway Peril Fought By New Gas Test

Every year the deadly traffic toll reaches new figures for highway deaths. This is the first of a series of articles to combat a new common enemy, carbon monoxide gas, more deadly and insidious than any "poison gas" employed in warfare.

By L. T. WHITE
Highway Safety Expert

YOU are driving along in your automobile—travelling at a reasonable rate of speed. Your brakes are good; your motor is functioning smoothly; your tires are in fine condition. But a new public enemy is riding with you! A public enemy few motorists suspect; a vicious enemy that may strike you dead by suddenly throwing your judgement out of focus, by dangerously diminishing your natural alertness.

That enemy is carbon monoxide, and the fact that 80 percent of automobile accidents are caused by "unaccountable" loss of control shows the vital importance of constant tests to make sure that your automobile is not expelling dangerous quantities of carbon monoxide—the poison that dulls the alertness of drivers.

Recent examinations by highway authorities indicate that 66 percent of cars examined showed this gas present in excessive amounts. They not only seeped through front floor boards, but air currents frequently propelled them into the interior of the car.

To fight this ever-present enemy, which brings on headaches, dizziness, nausea and often complete heart collapse, engineers have devised the Power Prover, a scientific means of ascertaining if a motor needs adjustment to eliminate the dangers of carbon monoxide. Thousands of drivers have availed themselves of this test, and discovered that they had been driving with the menace of carbon monoxide constantly in their cars.

With many insurance companies and safety committees urging that every motorist make a power prover test of his car at regular intervals, it will not be long until the danger of carbon monoxide can be cut to a minimum degree.

To all our friends and patrons we extend best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.
