Yet where else, save in Essex, can you discover three locals, all within a short distance of each other, so quaintly christened as the "Goat and Compasses," the "Bag of Nails," and the "Sa and Whalebone"? The first two are said to be ingenious corruptions of "God encompasseth us" and the "Bacchanals," while the other probably refers to a primitive sundial, obtained by fixing a whale's laws at a certain angle.

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.-It was in the sultry days of the summer of 1914, it will be remembered, that Waiting Archduke Ferdinand for a Spark was laid low by an assassin's bullet in a remote province of Austria. At the time, the assassination was front page news for most of the newspapers but its real import was not generally recognized. Nevertheless, from that incident sprang the greatest war the world has ever known.

Within a few months of 22 years after the assassination at Sarajevo the world sees a situation in Europe where another such incident would have consequences just as violent. At the present time, ammunition dumps all over Europe are waiting for a spark to set them off. It may be an accidental spark of it may be a spark deliberately cast into that powder keg. I do not mean to say that it will happen but I do wish to emphasize that at no time since the Archduke's assassination has there been a field so fertile for the promotion of a gigantic war as the present.

It may seem, and it undoubtedly does seem to many, that the dangers inherent in the European situation at present are afar off. But, it can be recalled that there were those in this country who, as late as 1916, said the European war was 3,000 miles away. Before it ended, however, 5,000,000 American boys and young men had been drafted to be thrown into that European cauldron. It may happen

While there is no immediate possibility of the United States getting tangled up in the European political problems which spring from hostilities between Ethiopia and Italy, those who know history cannot fail to agree with the statement that it is never too early to plan for preventing war. For that reason, then, I believe almost every family in the United States has a stake, either directly or indirectly, in one of the problems with which congress must deal. This legislation is known by the short and rather indescriptive title of the neutrality policy. It is, indeed, just that, but the point I seek to make is that the title does not convey by any manner or means its full importance or its full effect upon the lives of each of us. If a policy can be worked out, a policy that is effective, obviously our chances for remaining out of any hostilities in Europe or in Asia for that matter-are certainly much better. I do not know and I do not believe anyhody can say accurately that it is possible to develop a neutrality policy that will be fool-proof; or that will guarantee to us the removal of possible entanglements, or that will prevent us from stubbing our toes and falling into the midst of the mess. It seems to me, however, that we ought to try.

A year ago about this time, congress enacted a bill which was designed to prevent the shipment Keep Us of war materials to Out of War any belligerent na-

was mandatory. The President was directed by congress to lay an embargo against the shipment of arms, ammunition of war to any countries engaged in hostilities regardless of whether their claims were right or wrong. We have had some experience with the force of that legislation already and It has not been without its embarrassing and difficult phases. Now, however, it is proposed to revamp that legislation which was admittedly-of a temporary character and is due to expire by limitation of law on February 29. Congress has been told rather def-Initely, I think, that this country wants to remain out of someone else's war, The President has the same idea, So, instead of allowing our citizens to run wild, ship anything and everything. make contracts with the countries now engaged in war or those that may be engaged later, it is proposed that we have a permanent policy embodying whatever principles may be found wisest to protect us from ourselves and prevent us from throwing ourselves again into such a volcano of molten lava as any present-day war would be.

The problem is not as simple as it appears on the surface. When congress enacted the present temporary neutrality legislation, it provided that the embargoes, when and if laid, must apply to all. It gave the President no discretionary power to determine whether we wanted to use these embargoes as a weapon against one nation while aiding another. Mr. Roosevelt, in accepting the original legislation, said publicly that he believed of the current year. he should have such discretionary power. This was in line with the conclusions of the Department of State which necessarily must be the President's adviser on matters of this kind.

Congress was criticized in many quarters when it made the embargoes applicable to all belligerents. Now, however, if we may judge from the word that comes to Washington, sentiment seems to be swinging in the other direction and there certainly is a considerable, if not a majority, sentiment for use of the mandatory provision as distinguished from the extension of discretionary authority to the President. To say it another way, the sentiment appears to be in favor of making the embargoes applicable to all belligerent powers and not just to one | 8 inches square.

nation whose claims our government may believe to be unjust.

It is safe to say that before congress determines definitely what the permanent policy shall be, there will be bitter Hot Debate debate. In examining the problem, it is to be remembered that when the government lays an embargo against all nations at war it takes away possibilities of tremendous profit. This profit accrues to those industries by which sustaining war materials are produced. Neutrality legislation, therefore, may prove costly, not as costly as war, perhaps, but nevertheless a costly action. Hence, there is no question that many lines of commerce and industry are going to be drawn into the preliminaries of this decision.

To explain how disturbing to certain lines of industry this thing can be, it is only necessary to recall events of the last month or so in connection with the sanctions proposed by the League of Nations. The League has tried to force the dictator, Musselini, to withdraw from Africa by the use of embargoes, which is what sanctions are. The League proceeded with considerable vigor until it reached the question of oil. Immediately, shoes began to pinch and the feet that were pinched were in every country where oil is found, even our own.

As a result, they have led the oil horse up to the watering trough from a half dozen different approaches but they have not yet been able to make him drink. Our own oil interests have not been quiescent. If the league bans ... oil shipments to Italy, the United States, which is not a member of the league, obviously will do likewise. Profits of the oil companies and the hundreds upon hundreds of thousands of shareholders would be cut.

Further, Mussolini has announced publicly that imposition of the embargo upon oil would mean war. He did not say with whom he would go to war but the British and the French know and they are getting ready. The British has its entire home fleet in the Mediterranean at this time and the Blue Jackets aboard the British men of war have been drilled thoroughly anew in the science of manning their

So it is seen how delicate this whole circumstance is. It is plain that when congress deals with the neutrality legislation, it is moulding a pattern over which there will be undoubtedly an alignment among our citizens as sharply drawn as though it were a purely domestic question. There will be those, of course, who favor a permanent policy which will make it mandatory upon the President to apply embargoes against shipments of anything usable in war and treat all nations engaged in war alike. There will be set off against this semiment those who think the Chief Executive should have discretionary power and that the government should not be placed in a strait-jacket from which it cannot extricate itself without congressional action. Whatever the conclusions may be and whatever form the new legislation takes, it remains as one of the most important policies to come before congress in many moons. Whatever is done necessarily will be a precedent toward which future generations will look as time goes on whether civilization becomes more enlightened or not.

The Treasury, operating on a fiscal year that runs from July 1 to June 30, has just passed the Must Cut half-way point in the current 12-month pe riod. The figures show that its receipts are lagging far behind the expenditures and demonstrates the necessity for cutting down the federal outgo unless the nation desires to see its public debt go far beyond any total hitherto conceived.

The official Treasury statement as of December 30 shows that the government has spent approximately $1,-850,000,000 more in the first six months of this fiscal year than it received in taxes and other revenue.

In consequence of this deficit, the public debt is now approximately $30,-600,000,000, the highest point it ever has reached and that total is roughly two billion dollars higher than the public debt as it stood last July 1 when the present fiscal year began.

Since the expenditures were so much larger than the receipts, the Treasury has been operating on a basis that, reduced to the minimum, shows an outgo of about $1.96 for every $1.00 collected in revenue during the first half

Suede Topcoats in Style Parade

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Leathercraft in the realm of costume design is almost too amazing to believe. Yet here they are—the very latest fashions created of supple suede, pigskin and other leathers going along in the style parade.

Comes in the procession any number of stunning sports jackets of plaided or checked leathers, if not in solid rich colorings. Laced together are their seams with leather thongs or else hand-stitched in a tailored way. All the latest improvements have they, such as zipper, fastenings, wrists that strap to fit, adjustable collars that can be worn up or down and a whole list of other intriguing features to add to their lure as well as their practicality.

And what's this we see?—adorable slim, svelte, sweetly feminine evening gowns of exquisitely supple and daintily pastel-dyed suede, and little capes and evening wraps of the same. A few seasons ago we would not have belleved that such miracles could be, now would we? But that was then. As to the immediate present, style-alert women are simply clamoring for the new apparel done in leather and suede. Indeed, it is not too much to say that the present adaptation of leather in a fabric way will go down in the history of fashion as an epoch-making event.

Just now, being winter, when comfort and protection are prime issues, interest centers about topcoats made of handsome suede that shields from cruel winds. When a vogue starts out in Hollywood, it does not take long before it spreads throughout the country. Which is what has happened in regard to the stunning coats of suede which a resident designer has been creating for enthusiastic members of the film colony,

The accompanying illustration tells of the type of suede topcoats favored by leading screen artists. Buckle, buckle, who's got the buckle? The swanky hand-stitched model done in a very light chestnut brown, as worn by Mary Carlisle to the left in the picture, answers the question. The three buckle fastenings, center-pleat action back, huge patch pockets and raglan sleeves are fashion firsts. This coat, designed for aviation, is also ideal for town and country on cold days in that suede so successfully keeps out winds. The matching suede bat is also hand-

The center coat is stunning in dark green, handsome, too, in any of the deep new reds. It is of a heavy suede that holdly defies wintry blasts. It has such outstanding features as wide lapels, contrasting stitching, broad belt and trim fitted lines. The brim of the matching suede hat-turns down or up according to the whim of its wearer.

See in the foreground Kathleen Burke who joins the leather movement with a new suede swagger coat that is delightfully young in its lines. It is all hand laced, even to the unusual shoulder effect, the roomy slash pocket and the jaunty suede beret. Voris of Hollywood, artful leather designer, has decreed that even the wood buttons be laced on with leather thongs.

And have you heard about the tailored pigskin accessory trio comprised of belt, bag and hat? Stunning with tweeds and novelty wool coats! Pigskin accessories are meeting with great favor for sophisticated town

CAPTIVATES YOUTH The vogue of velvet is not confined to dresses and millinery for grown-ups, but is also quite the rage in the realm of juveniles and young children's clothes. Little boys and girls from two years old have their velvet suits and dresses and the medieval inspiration which characterized the haute couture this season is just as noticeable in children's clothes. These little velvet dresses in transparent bright rayon velvet, as well as in dull short-piled qualities, show high waistlines after the old-fashioned Italian styles, with honeycomb work and large stiff collarettes in Venetian lace or in heavy rayon guipure, inspired by the Florentine school. .

White Velvet Is Used to Take Place of Lingerie

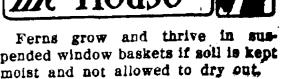

White velvet, silk, cotton or ribbed, often takes the place of white lingerie, pique or linen, for white touches on dark frocks, particularly black. At Mouna Katorza's there is a charming collar to wear with a round-necked black frock. It is made of three rows of white velvet petals, narrow and pointed, mounted on chiffon, and worn flat around the neck at the base of the throat. At Judith Barbier's (famous for her artificial flowers and neckwear) there are several new ideas in white velvet. One is a round collar with a mass of white petals, rose-petals, in front; another is made of white ribbed velvet, a round collar with a turnover triangle in front stitched in arabesques of silver thread.

New Stocking Colors and

Fads Appear in Offina A much more colorful array of legal clad in hose that match bright daytime suits or gowns, will be promenading the avenues soon. Dark reds, jungle green, jug brown, wine, blueberry and burgundy tones match or else complement the frocks with which they are shown. For evening, pastels are rampant—shell quite the newest. They are of gold pink, pale blue, ice green and ever lavender.

Opportunity

NE of the narrowing and testricting material beliefs which would rob us of our heritage of good is the belief in limited opportunity. In fact many people believe that opportunity comes but once in a lifetime, and that if it is not grasped, life for them is a failure....

To those whose sphere of usefulness seems cramped and circumscribed, or whose environment appears restricted, dull, colorless, the study of the life of Joseph should prove and Irs. Floyd E. Weeks at the State interesting. He had some very sanitarium at Howell. However, he did not entertain resentment, but in every experience made use of his opportunity to prove the power of God. Thus, his spiritual thinking lifted him to become a very great statesman. The spiritual quarities he reflected, even when in the pit and in the prison, prepared him for that position of great usefulness and service to which he attained in Egypt, and through which he had a wider opportunity to use his God--given qualities of courage, wisdom, resourcefulness, mercy, and forgive-

Opportunity is ever present. The opportunity for useful service and happy, joyous living is never absent. What we need is to pray for vision, circumstances as steppingstones to a of Ann Arbor higher sense of true living and service. If, instead of beating vainly against restricting circumstances or environment, we open our thought to the unfolding of spiritual ideas and the facts of real being, which alone cast out the false beliefs of restricting environment and lack of opportunity-if we put off limited modes of thought and let that Mind which is infinite divine Love govern our thinking, then we shall find imprisoning beliefs of cramped environment giving place to wider, fuller opportunities.

Jesus said, "I can of mine own self do nothing," and, "The Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works." He understood the spiritually scientific relationship which exists between God and man. As the understanding of God as Life is in some measure gained through Christian Science, opportunities for a fuller life will be seen to be our inherent inalienable right,

A series of Regional Conferences on Banking Service will be held in strategic sections of the country, embracing all types of banking. The new banking laws and the regulations issued thereunder will be carefully analyzed so that our bankers will have a thorough understanding of the broadened services now made possible.

The question of public relations and how we can best serve the people of our communities will be another topic of discussion. Clinics or forums on specific questions of interest to bankers and the problems confronting them in their particular localities will also be included in these conferences.

It will be acknowledged by any Bible student that Jesus understood obeyed, and demonstrated the will or law of God. He said, as we are told in John (5:30), "I can of mine own self do nothing: as I hear, I judge: and my judgment is just; because I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which bath sent me." And, in showing that the will or law of God is beneficent in its effect, the Master healed the sick. gave sight to the blind, and hearing to the deaf; he liberated the sin bound, and overcame death. Those who have entertained a concept of God as manlike, as fiable to changeableness and wroth his have thought of the operation of divinlaw—sanctions, if you pleat - as implying suffering, and perhaps everlasting punishment. It may be that they have been told by theologians. who evidently were not acquainted with God as Jesus knew Him. that cickness and suffering, disaster and distress, were inflicted or permitted by God for some inscrutable purpose. Such, indeed, was the generally accepted opinion of religious teachers when Mary Baker Eddy learned through prayer and study of the Bible that God, the creator of all that is true, is Love, impartial and universal good, and that divine law, therefore, is always harmonizing and 2 beneficent in its effect.

On page 209 of the Christian Schence tempook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mrs. Lidy makes this appealing and Ilberathau since nuntri. "If God causes men to be sick, sickness must be good, and its opposite, health, must be evil for all that He makes is good and will stand forever. If the transgression of God's law produces sickness, it is right to be sick; and we cannot if we would, and should not at we could, annul the decrees of wisdom. It is the transgression of a bolief of mortal mind, not of a law & of matter nor of divine Mind, which causes the belief of sickness. The remedy is Truth, not matter,-the truth that disease is unreal." . The recognition and realization of these truths has brought healing of sickness to many who had been given un by physicians, even as was promised by Christ Jesus. Christian sanctions, then, are cor rective rather than coercive; they in: ply pardon and peace, instead of pair and punishment, to all who acknowledge and obey the law of God, good In other words, we have Scriptura; authority for believing that as we yield to the urge of spiritual law, as we acknowledge and obey the law of divine Principle, we shall realize and manifest the purifying, harmonizing. and liberating effects which bespeak God as the loving Father-Mother of man and the universe. To be sure. those who willfully disobey the moral law are punished by their disobedi ence, because "whatsoever a mai soweth, that shall he also reap," as Paul wrote to the Galatians. . . .

Christian Science exposes selfish. ness, greed, injustice, passion, and human will as manifestations of the mortal or carnal mind, which is enmity against God, Truth. These evil beliefs, therefore, may be recognized as falsities to be denied and not feared.

As we thus apply the Christianly scientific remedy—corrective sanctions—in our own thinking and living, it is inevitable that we shall consciously come under the protecting and pacifying influence of the law of divine Love. . . . - The Christian Science Monitor.

SYNOPSIS

John Spencer and his cousin, Geoffrey Bohun, are vacationing in Austria. Geoffrey is a gifted portrait painter but prefers to paint landscapes. While strolling in the forest, John hears English voices, and decides to investigate. From safe cover he finds four men burying a man in green livery who, evidently, had been murdered. Pharach is the leader of the gang; the others are Dewdrop, Rush and Bugle. Unfortunately, John makes himself known to the assassins by dropping a letter with his name and address on it. He tells Geoffrey and his chauffeur, Barley, of his adventure.

"No, they won't," said Geoffrey. "I'll tell you why. Those four didn't come out here to do in somebody's servant -for that's who their victim was. What he had on was a tunic, and some of the old houses here still dress their people like that. Boots to the knee?" "Undressed, brown leather," said L.

Geoffrey nodded. "He was wearing livery. Very well. Those four are here on some job, and the murdered man got in their way. He may have surprised them—as you did: and so they just bumped him off. But, unless I'm much mistaken, the job remains to be done. Otherwise, they wouldn't have buried him." And here for the first time, I think, the thought came into my head that we stood all three on the edge of some grave adventure.

"And now," said Geoffrey, rising, "I'll lay before you the card that I've up my sleeve. It's not a very nice card, but it's going to count quite a lot in this little game.

"I was staying with the Lyvedens was a Goodwood party, and the jewels in the house were worth a lot. Well, they were stolen all right. Barley wasn't with me, but he'll remember the case."

"The Bell Hammer murders, sir?" "Exactly. Three servants and a policeman were murdered by the fellows who took those jewels. They could have laid them out or tied them up: but they preferred to kill them, because then they knew where they

"They never got the thieves, but Anthony Lyveden told me as much as he knew: and amongst other things he told me that, the moment they heard of the matter the police knew who'd done the job. Only one man, they said, was ruthless and daring enough to go such lengths. And the man was known as 'Pharaoh.'-

"Now that's all I know. This may or may not be the man. But if it iswell, from what I've just told you, you'll gather that he doesn't like wit-

To my great dismay my cousin then announced that we must be gone from the ain as soon as we could.

"We're out to fight these men. Well, the first thing to do is to vanish, for until we are out of their ken, we cannot attack, but must waste our time taking precautions against an attempt on your life. More. At the moment not one of those wallahs knows you by sight, and that's a card which must not be thrown away. And now you go out and lose yourself in the town. Barley and I will pack, and I'll pick you up at nine in front of St. Jacques'. I shall give out we're going to Salzburg, and Barley can go to the station and point the lie." "Where are we going?" said L

"To Annabel," said my cousin. "I liked the look of the village and I'm sure they'll do us proud at The Reaping Hook. And now you pop off, my son. Every minute is precious, as you

I made my way out of the inn, and when some servant or other ran after me, letter in hand. I took the missive from him as a man in a dream. I did not open the letter—I had no need: for one thing, it was already open, and, for another, I knew what the envelope held. And that was a shoemaker's bill.

That I now felt far from easy, I frankly confess. I could not get away from the fact that the enemies that I had made were no ordinary men.

First, they had frustrated the watch we had kept: then, they had gained their end, which was, of course, to get to know me by sight—for someone, no doubt, was in waiting, to see me come out of the inn and, lastly, they had informed me in unmistakable terms that they were fully aware that I had seen them at work. All this, I may say, in a little more than an hour.

As I entered the bustling market, I wondered what Geoffrey would say. . . . It suddenly came to my mind that as like as not I now was being followed by whoever it was that bad watched me come out of the inn. At once I determined to see if this was the case and if it was, to endeavor to turn the tables on the man who was I made my way out of the market and into an alley too narrow for carts

For more than an hour I wandered the curious streets, crossing and stopping and idling and turning back, but I never set eyes upon any one of the four or on anyone else that I could fairly suspect: and at last I decided to rest and drink before making my way to St. Jacques

I was sitting in a cafe, drinking my liquor when I saw a car going by on the opposite side of the square. For a moment I sat spell-bound. Then I was up and was running as hard as I could. The car was a cabriolet, very long and handsome and painted green. Its hood was raised, so that whoeler was in it was not to be seen, but in front were sitting two chauffeurs-in curious livery. In a word, they were wearing green tunics, exactly like that of the man whom I had seen lying that morning, awaiting his grave.

The car was gathering speed when I flung myself on to the step. As someone within exclaimed. I thrust my head over the door. "Forgive me," I said, using German, "but I have most urgent news. Of the very gravest import. I don't know who you are, but you're deeply con-

A girl was regarding me as though I were less than the dust, and as the car came to rest, a hand was laid on

"How can your news concern me, if you don't know who I am?" The words were spoken in English, with the faintest American touch, and the tone was less cold than imperious. "I recognized your livery," Lsaid. "Hasn't one of your men disap peared?"

The girl never moved, but her eyes looked straight into mine. "What do you know," she added, "of one of my men?"

"I know that he's dead," said I. I saw her start at the word, and a hand went up to her mouth.

"And I know who killed him," I said, "and I'll help you to rope them in. But we'll have to go carefully, because they're a gang of four, and they're pretty hot stuff. Besides, they didn't kill him for nothing. I mean. I rather think there's a good deal behind the crime."

The girl looked at me curiously. Then she sat back on the cushions and glanced at her watch.

"I expect the police." she said coldly, "will be glad to hear any facts. The station is in the next street." My speech was impetuous, I know, and never would have been spoken if

The man withdrew, and, more enraged than ever, I sat myself down at my table and mopped my face. I had been used with contumely, as though I had been some peasant, the worse for driftk. This by a girl whom I was seeking to serve. At last I looked up, there was the car before me with my lady's face framed in its window and the chauffeur standing beside the door.

"Are you sure you weren't followed?" she said. "I mean, if you were, they now know you're in touch with me,"

"I'm sure I wasn't." said L With my words the car stopped at the church.

"Well, you can't get out here," said the girl. "We must find a much quieter place. Besides, you must hear my story. Sit back in the car and don't move. It's only a quarter of nine."

She gave some direction to the chauffeur and then sat back in her

"My father died last November, leaving my brother and me. We're Austrian, you know: but my mother taught me English—she was American. My brother is younger than I am, and he's away just now: so I rather run the castle, although, of course, he's the Count. This duty takes me' to Salzburg once a month. I made the journey by car four days ago. On the way an attempt was made to waylay e, and when I got through-I was driving - they chased me for thirty miles. I had a man with me called Florin. Three generations of Florins have served our house. His father's my warden - has charge of all the keys. Well, six men act as nightwatchmen, taking the duty by turns. Old Florin chooses the men, and his son was one of the six. He was on duty last night, and this morning he couldn't be found." Her voice began to quaver, and I heard her smoth-

To see her so near to weeping must have wrung anyone's heart.

"I'm most dreadfully sorry," I said. "And if you'll let me help you, we'll bring the blackguards to book. But you see my cousin was right. Florin was nothing to them, but he got in him exciting radio programs, etc.

"Yes," said the girl, "that's clear. The night-watchman got in their way." With a sudden movement she turned. "But you must keep out of this. Can't you go home?"

"I'm not going home," said I, "till I've seen this through."

"Don't be foolish," she said. "This quarrel is mine-not yours. Young Florin was not your man. Besides, you can do no good because they've got your number; lift a finger against them, and they won't do another thing till they've put you out."

"The point is this," said I. "That you don't want to fight them with me is natural enough. I've given you information which it was right you should have, and that, I frankly admit, is the end of my duty to you: but I owe that dead man a duty, and I'm going to do it."

I broke off to mop my face, "My cousin's with me," I added, "and so is his man."

"I wish," said the girl, "I could have a word with your cousin. Do you think he could meet me this evening at-at a farm that I know?" "I'll bring him with me," said I, 'wherevêr you please."

Lady Helena looked away. "You can come if you like," she said. But I want to see him."

Then she took up a large-scale map and showed me the farm. This went by the name of Plumage and lay some four miles from Annabel, quite by it-

"At five o'clock, then?" says she.

I nodded. "We shall be there."

"And mow," she said, "I must drop you. Please don't stand still when you're out; start walking at once, And thank you very much for doing your duty to me. And-and don't forget that that's ended."

As I took her slim hand, her steady

gray eyes met mine. "True," said I. "But my duty to Florin remains: and I'm not so sure as I was that he called upon me for vengeance.'' 🔔

"What else?" said the girl. "He loved his mistress," I said, "As he died, he may have been thinking that she would be short of a man." And then I went out of the car and was sauntering down the pavement. Except for a crone with a bucket, there seemed to be no one in sight.

As the Rolls swept over a crossing and on to the Salzburg road-"I'm almost sure," said Geoffrey, "that we've stolen a march on our friends. Of course they may stick to Barley, but that I doubt. And in any event he'll give them the slip at Salz-"At Salzburg?" I cried.

"That's right;" said my cousin, "He'll be in that city tonight. Tomorrow he'll come back to Villach, and there we shall pick him up as soon as it's dusk." "You're taking no chances," said I.

"D'you blame me, John? I mean, the return of your letter was pretty good work. Talk about a riposte. . . . And you may have been seen with my lady; in which case, as she observed, the job, whatever it is, will go by the board, and Pharaoh and Co.'s one idea will be to do you in. She's no fool, this gray-eyed goddess of yours. That's probably her American blood. And her Austrian made her stand-offish. These old Austrian fam-Bles are terribly strict."

"She made amends," said I. "No one could have been more more gra-My cousin laughed.

"Goddesses are gracious," he said, "And now please look behind you and keep your eyes on the road." It was long past noon when we stole
