Have Been Tossed Anchor
He is what, for lack of a better name, is sometimes called a young man about town. On the morning after he is clinging for support to a lamp post.

An individual connected with the street cleaning department walks up to a hydrant, dragging a length of hose behind him, and, fitting a wrench to the cap, proceeds to unscrew it.

"Don't—please don't!" cries the youth anchored to the lamp post.

"Don't do what?" asked the functionary, halting in astonishment.
"Don't wind up this street any tighter. She's spinning round too fast as it is!"—Bystander.

Bashful Irishman Offers

Lady Friend a Rare Treat
Some time ago a young Irish farmer in the County Kilkenny was very much in love. He wanted to marry the girl, but being a shy lad he couldn't for the life of him ask her outright to marry him. He felt he would choke if he tried to mention the words marry or marriage to her. So, after taking much earnest, shrewd thought on the problem, he asked her in a whisper one evening:

"Julia, how would you like to be buried with my people?"—Chicago Tribune.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches, or the pains of rheumatism, neuralgia or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Expect Long Session
Washington.—President Roosevelt has told congress that he wants it to finish its labors and adjourn in short order. He has figured that about three months ought to give the members sufficient time to mull over the problems that confront them and that they then should return to their several homes. But the President is doomed to disappointment if he sincerely believes that he can get congress out of the Capitol by the end of March. The best guess right now is that the congress will be in session at least four months and, it is well within the range of possibilities that it will remain in session almost to the time of the national conventions.

There are a number of factors that make realization of the President's early adjournment wish impossible of realization. Probably the most influential of these is the fact that this is a campaign year. Every member of the house and one-third of the senate, along with Mr. Roosevelt himself, are affected by the election date and politics must have its turn. Every four years this same condition obtains and every four years politicians do about the same things in furtherance of their own political interests. The bulk of the legislation to be considered has its political tinge. Politics even creep into the annual appropriation bills—and usually the result is a swelling of the totals in order that some years of individual political machines may be oiled just a bit for smooth running in the campaign.

While the appropriation bills are important from a political standpoint, their weight in this session of congress sinks rather below par because there are such things as the bonus for the World War veterans, the Townsend old age pension plan, various New Deal reform measures and such replacement legislation as may be necessary since the Supreme court kicked over New Deal propositions like the Agricultural Adjustment act with its processing taxes and sundry other schemes. However the Roosevelt leaders in congress may desire to act, the machinery of legislation can be run only so fast in an election year.

Seek Publicity
One of the chief reasons why a congressional session in an election year drags on longer than usual is because of the publicity value the sessions have for individual representatives and senators. Members of congress discovered a hundred years ago that the chambers of the house and senate constituted splendid sounding boards for the dissemination of political views. There has been increasing use of this potentiality as the years have gone by until now the older members of the house and senate have become very adept in capitalizing on this factor. It takes no stretch of the imagination to discover that a senator or representative, speaking from the floor of his respective chamber, gets much more publicity than his opponent back home who talks only as a private citizen. It is perfectly natural, therefore, that those members seeking re-election want to take full advantage of the publicity vehicle available to them in Washington.

The use of this publicity weapon is available to opponents of the New Deal as well as to its supporters. While the approaching election may be expected to knit the house Democrats more closely into a unified front for the November election, the same condition is not true in the senate. In that body, there are a number of old-line Democrats who do not like the New Deal and who are going to utilize every available opportunity to make their record as Democrats as complete as it is possible to do before they must speak to the home folks in person. It is obvious that such men as Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, cannot desert the Democratic ticket and run for re-election independently. So it is to be expected that men of this type will establish for themselves a comprehensive outline of their political beliefs as Democrats while distinguishing their position from that known as the New Deal. They must look to the future when, according to all indications, they feel the party machinery will again be controlled by the Jeffersonian type of Democrat instead of by the reform type of Democrat headed by men and women with the New Deal outlook.

Two More Factors
An additional factor operating in the senate is the presence of two Republican Presidential possibilities in the persons of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan. Senator Borah is actively seeking pledged delegates to the Republican national convention. Senator Vandenberg says he is not a candidate, but the well-known bee is buzzing around there are many observers who think that Senator Vandenberg is hoping that, in case of a convention stalemate, the assembled delegates may riot and turn to him as the nominee.

Such a condition means, as it has meant before, that these two men will desire to see all of the political issues aired in congressional debates. It is only natural and logical as well that the Republican minority in the house and senate will seek to foment as much debate as possible in order to obtain a record of what the majority party thinks or proposes to do if returned to power.

In all respects, the session will be the most political, therefore, since Mr. Roosevelt took office. His Presidential message on the state of the Union already is being kicked back and forth and picked to pieces in the pre-campaign gunfire. There is simply no way by which this situation can be avoided. The opening of congress was the opening of the 1936 campaign.

Congress May Stall
In an earlier letter, I reported to you concerning the question of a neutrality policy and declared at that time that it was the most important item to come before the current session. It remains so. I believe the situation is even more delicate than in my earlier analysis of this problem and it may well be that congress will stall along in reaching a decision on this policy in order to give foreign developments an opportunity to manifest themselves further.

The administration apparently is willing to let congress work out the legislation without much interference but the leaders realize that a decision will be difficult as long as foreign maneuvers continue to present an almost daily change in the scenery.

Reference is made to the neutrality question here because it is one of the things entering into the combination that will cause a longer session than the President wishes.

There seems to be no doubt that passage of a bill to pay the soldiers' bonus at an early date will be accomplished in this session. Likewise, there is hardly the shadow of a doubt that if congress passes such legislation and Mr. Roosevelt vetoes it, the bill will be passed over the veto. It is a campaign year and it is not a good time for politicians to antagonize an organization with the vast membership of the American Legion or the other groups of ex-service men. This legislation will not contribute much to the length of the session but in all such cases representatives and senators must make their speeches and be on record as to why they voted for or against a bill.

The Townsend plan cannot get anywhere in the current session. I do not mean that it will be dogged as a subject of discussion. This is impossible. There will be plenty of debate on it. In the end, however, it will be sidetracked.

Then, there was a flock of inflationary schemes due to horn in on the parade as the session moves forward. Farm mortgage refinancing is one of them. It is unfortunate that the inflationists—those who are willing to prostitute the currency in any manner—are leading in this fight.

Waiting Decisions
In all probability, also, the current session of congress will be called upon to meet some problems resulting from adverse decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States. The court has before it any number of cases involving New Deal policies, including such as the AAA, the TVA with its Tennessee Valley power yardstick, the attempt to regulate wages and hours of labor under the Guffey coal bill known as the Little NIRA, and a half dozen other policy propositions. It seems unlikely, although no one can guess, that all of these measures will be held constitutional. If any are held invalid, naturally the President will ask congress to draft new legislation.

As a sample of the political aspect of the current session, one can sight the furor that was stirred up when President Roosevelt delivered his message on the state of the Union to a night session of congress. Except for one instance, Presidents always have delivered or sent their message to congress at noon of a day after the session has had two or three meetings. Mr. Roosevelt chose to get his message to congress on the very first day of the current session but in order to do it and allow for consummation of the usual routine of the opening day, it was necessary to hold a joint session at night.

The White House announcement of this decision immediately precipitated a biting demand from Henry P. Fletcher, Republican national chairman. Mr. Fletcher charged that since the President's speech was being delivered "out of hours" and was being broadcast to potentially the greatest radio audience ever to listen to a Presidential message of this kind, the broadcasting companies must agree to allocate time for the Republicans to answer it. The Republican chairman asserted that the message was reduced to the "common level of a political speech" and so he demanded for the opposition the right to analyze it from the opposition standpoint through the same number of radio stations and to potentially the same radio audience.

Formal Velvets in High Color Mood

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHIONABLE velvet, and fashionable indeed it is, has gone high-color. Not that the style prestige of black velvet is challenged, not at all. To defend the supremacy of handsome black velvet in the mode never a need will there be. Its claim to sovereignty among formal weaves in the fabric realm will go unchallenged through the ages.

However, many of the new velvets are gorgeously colorful. They abound in rich reds, purples, greens, sapphire and golden hues.

The message of color is eloquently told in the trio of formal velvet modes pictured. Each is a Paris creation, for French couturiers are most enthusiastic in regard to the importance of velvet in the mid-winter style picture. For the striking evening ensemble as worn by the smartly costumed lady of fashion seated, Bruyere employs a magnificent stiff velvet in deep blue. The jacket is decorated with motifs cut from the wide gold galon such as bands the sleeves. The blouse is of gold lame, likewise the chic and youthful off-face hat.

Dramatically colorful is the gown to the right in the picture. Dark green cellophane-shot silk velvet fashions this molded-to-the-figure evening dress. The shoulder straps and large bow on the corsage are of red velvet. Clashed in the hands of this dark-haired beauty is a floor-length cape which Molyneux styles of velvet striped in green and red shades to complete the ensemble color scheme.

In the mode to the left, also by Molyneux, the new formal evening cape with its long graceful and stately trailing lines interprets the very latest silhouette at its best. This voluminous wrap is of sapphire blue double-faced velvet. Its color tones beautifully to the gown which is done in penvache blue and silver lame.

SILK MILITAIRE
By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The military trend in fashions is increasingly apparent. The afternoon gown pictured interprets the theme in a novel and attractive way. It is fashioned of high-grade black silk crepe as is also the latticed cardigan. The blouse is likewise in matching crepe, overlaid, however, with silver threads to simulate a coat of mail in keeping with the military movement. The off-face black felt hat is up to the moment in "lines."

Lastex Materials Popular

Lastex materials are being used for everything from sports suits, ski suits and underwear to upholstery.

Speaking of the color glory of the new velvets calls to mind a superb evening ensemble (not illustrated) which Lelong creates of cerise red velvet, a fabric woven like a semi-transparent bagheera. Its lack-luster surface and the fact that it is so sheer one can see through it almost as if it were chiffon, add infinitely to its charm. The dress is fashioned with utmost simplicity—sophisticated simplicity according to modern interpretation. It has one of the new inch-high band collars and buttons demurely down the front to below the waistline. Decidedly form-revealing is this dress so suavely it is fitted to the figure. The piece de resistance is its cape of the same dull-surfaced velvet, the majestic floor-trailing lines of which are that imposing they quite overawe one. Capes of generous flowing lines such as this stand for all that is smartest and newest in way of the formal evening wrap. We almost forgot to tell you about the collar of precious brown fur that completes this costume. It is ingeniously attached to the dress although it appears to be part of the cape.

Now that we are talking about smart evening wraps, here is something worth stretching your budget to acquire. Every woman who loves to dress will be wanting one. It's the enchanting little velvet jackets with revers embroidered in colored stones which have only just recently made their debut. They are fascinating.

ITALIAN INFLUENCE IN SLEEVE STYLES

The style of sleeve has been noticeably affected by the exhibition of Italian art in Paris. Very full sleeves have the preference, with a few close-fitted ones, often detachable and shaped like those in Italian portraits, which resemble a long mitten reaching above the elbow. These mitten sleeves are often in velvet that contrasts in material and color with the rest of the dress.

Some of the models are made entirely of vivid colored transparent plastic materials, such as sequin on a dull black rayon velvet dress with matching band at the round neckline. The art exhibition has also inspired Bouffant sleeves, slashed over contrasting colored fabric, as well as very long medieval sleeves that fall to the hem of the skirt in panel style.

Dead White Most Popular

Color for Evening Clothes
Top hats, gleaming white shirt fronts, glittering gold and silver lame, that's the fashion picture by night, according to Carmel Snow, editor of Harper's Bazaar.

"People are dressing up as they haven't in years," she says. "It has been suggested that the jubilee in London last June is responsible for all this dressing and this splendor. Certainly it has taught us all to dress in the grand style."

"To get back to what we are wearing in America, in the evening, after lame, the most important color is dead white—as pure as marble. The draped dresses that Vionnet made her great success with this autumn are many of them marble white."

Snow Suits

For fun in the snow, two-piece suits for youngsters from four to eight will be smart this winter. Plaid double-breasted jackets have attached scarf collars for warm protection and knitted cuffs. Plain color jackets with tricolor round yokes close with zippers up to snug little collars. The plain trousers in brown, green or navy for both jackets have reinforced knees and knitted cuffs. A little matching hat with cuff brim goes with each suit.

Knitting Fad in Prehistoric

Arctic Circle Settlement

Prehistoric knitting needles, five-teeth combs and spoons of mammoth bone have been found in an ancient settlement near Obdorsk, northern Siberia, by an expedition sent out by the Institute of Anthropology and Ethnography of the Academy of Science of the U. S. S. R. It has excavated 12,000 articles of pottery and bone, some of which are unique.

Besides knitting needles, combs and spoons, they include miniature hoes for tilling fields, pieces of melting pots for metal, and bones of animals and birds which no longer inhabit the Yamal peninsula on which Obdorsk stands. The numerous remains found shows that the peninsula, which is within the Arctic circle, was one densely populated.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—much pleasanter to take than liquid. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system, and insure regular, complete elimination without pain or effort.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 40, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them. Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today.

The Enduring Ingredient

EVEN the stoutest cedar pole must at length succumb to weather and wear. New methods surpass—and replace—the old. Equipment disappears as progress renders it obsolete.

There is, however, one factor in your telephone service that never alters; one important ingredient that survives all the effects of the passing years—and this is the factor of policy.

The policy of this Company is to supply Michigan with the best and most economical telephone service that human effort and sincerity can provide. To accomplish this purpose, there has been a long series of changes—unending changes—that grew out of American inventive genius as applied to the art of telephonic communication.

A noteworthy example of this is seen in the evolution of the cable. Year by year a greater number of wires—each an avenue of speech—has been successfully packed into a smaller circumference. This, with many other improvements, has steadily widened the use of cable. Utilized at first only to link subscribers' telephones with central offices, storm-resistant cable is now used in toll circuits connecting cities, and in a large percentage of all present-day circuits.

This progressive change was not haphazard. It grew out of a policy which itself does not change. That is why telephone service in the State of Michigan is better today than it was yesterday. And that is why it will improve for tomorrow.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

MICHIGAN STATE POLICE EXPAND FACILITIES

Construction work on six new posts for the Michigan State Police is under way and a total of 23 new structures have been authorized in the unfolding of the activities of the Works Progress Administration in Michigan.

It is a building campaign exceeding the wildest hopes of the Michigan trooper organization of a year ago. It is to mean the state police soon will become one of the best equipped police organizations in the country.

Posts already under construction are at Bay City, Pawlaw, Rockford, Alpena, Mt. Pleasant and Manistee. The first three named are district headquarters. Each will cost approximately $22,000.

The 23 proposed police buildings are being erected at strategic points throughout the state. Besides the six under way as this is written, Harry L. Pierson, state WPA administrator, has authorized immediate construction of 17 more. The entire program is scheduled for completion early next summer.

District headquarters and police posts made possible by the building program under Commissioner Oscar G. Olson will save the department $8,000 a year in rentals alone. It will greatly increase the efficiency of the organization by providing facilities for a uniform administrative system.

Five posts are being located in the upper peninsula. They are to be at St. Ignace, Newberry, Iron Mountain, L'Anse and Wakefield.

In the lower peninsula, sites chosen are at the following points: Detroit, St. Clair, East Tawas, Blissfield, Jewett, White Pigeon, Cheboygan, Brighton, Romeo, Erie, New Buffalo and Reed City.

The Detroit post will be the largest and will be located at Grand River avenue and the Seven Mile Road. It will provide sleeping quarters for the regular force of 10 men and also accommodations for other members of the state police who happen to be working in that area.

Posts, each staffed with eight men, will be at St. Clair, East Tawas, Blissfield, Jewett, White Pigeon, Mt. Pleasant, Alpena, Manistee, Cheboygan, Iron Mountain and St. Ignace. The average cost of these will be $10,000 per unit.

There will be no stations at Brighton, Romeo, Erie, New Buffalo, Reed City, L'Anse, Wakefield, and St. Ignace. These will cost approximately $12,000 each and four men will be on duty at each.

Admiral N. Langens, of the state building department, has prepared plans for a standard type of building. They will be a block exterior with stone trim, steel sash and ment floors. A garage and workshop will form part of each building. Posts have been established in many of the points mentioned, but are now in rented quarters.

CONSERVATION DEPT. NOTES

Deer with stomachs full of food have been known to starve to death in Michigan. When suitable food is not available, deer will eat other browse, such as balsam poplar, which may be poisonous and result in death.

Nearly 1,200 vessels of various descriptions are engaged in commercial fishing operations on Great Lakes waters under Michigan's jurisdiction. Total estimated value of these boats is $1,000,000.

Tadoussac river drain, a total area of 505 square miles, 100 square miles in Lake Huron, 200 in Georgian Bay and 100 in Lake Huron.

Michigan has 14 national parks, 5 of them being in the upper peninsula. Because the requirements of wild-eyed pike for live bait make them cannibals soon after catching, the fry of the species are planted from Michigan hatcheries as soon as they have reached the minimum size.

The three most destructive species of hawks in Michigan are the Cooper's hawk, sharp-shinned hawk and Goshawk. These are the only called blue-eyes, because of the gray-blue color of the adult hawk.

Michigan has a total area of approximately 37,000,000 acres, or approximately 57,000 square miles.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY SCOUT TROOPS PREPARING FOR FEBRUARY 3 COUNTY

Commissioners Meet January 17

All Boy Scout troops in Livingston County are at work in preparation for the Singing Contest of the National Week. The contest is scheduled to be held at Brighton on Monday, February 3. This is a part of the celebration for National Scout Week, and is a special feature which will present a song which they have practiced in addition. This may be a popular song, a song of a patriotic nature, or any song which they may choose.

Each troop committee will hold a Board of Review during the latter part of January, and the report of the committee will appear before the troop board of review. It is expected that a large number of troops will be represented at the Board of Review, and that a complete record will be advanced to the end of the class mark.

Field Commissioners To Meet
Field Commissioners and Scouters of Livingston County will meet at the home of Mrs. Vanderwall.

County will hold a luncheon meeting at Eager's restaurant at Howell, on Friday noon, January 17. Dr. Homer M. Noble, District commissioner will preside. Commissioners who are planning to attend include: John Vogt, Fowlerville; Rev. H. A. Smith, Brighton; J. R. MacDonald, Howell; Stanley Berriman, Howell; Winfield Line, Howell; Dr. E. A. Ross, Howell; and S. B. Thomas of Howell.

WOMEN WILL BE INTERESTED IN VARIED FARM PROGRAMS

Although the program for Farmers' Week at Michigan State College, February 3 to 7, is set up under a number of divisions, with one expected to be especially interesting to home makers, those in charge of the meetings expect nearly as many women in certain of the agricultural sections as in those sponsored by home makers.

Among the discussions expected to be especially interesting to farm women are those on bees and honey production, poultry and its care, meat cutting, curing, and canning, various phases of dairy production, fruit and vegetable canning, flower culture, and horticulture.

In addition the programs of music, those of the Country Life Association and the Master Farm Home Makers' Association will, no doubt, attract many of the farm women. The Home Economics division is expecting a full attendance at the meetings devoted to lighting, nutrition, home crafts, table decorations and table service.

The discussions of the present situation and conditions in Europe are expected to hold the attention of the feminine visitors. Miss Dea M. Rowe of the Farmers' Wife will be a welcome speaker, as well as, also, as Dr. Mary S. Rose, Columbia University.

Lakeland

Ernest Harrell, Ann Arbor Depot agent, has been sent to Toledo, Ohio, and L. H. Metzger of Toledo has this job. Mr. Harrell's family will move to Toledo the first of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Burdick of Riverside, and Mrs. Harry Lee called on Mrs. Frank Buckalew and Mrs. William Gilbert at the Pinckney Sanatorium, Thursday.

Miss Mildred Jack spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Von Gorder at Howell.

Mrs. Nelson Imus of Strawberry Lake underwent an operation at a Detroit hospital Monday.

Miss Viola Petters spent Wednesday with Mrs. Bert Hooker.

Miss Madge Jack was a Sunday dinner guest of Miss Evelyn Hendee. Mrs. Jack Vanderwall and Mrs. Everett Harrell entertained the Lakeland King's Daughters at a potluck dinner Tuesday noon at the home of Mrs. Vanderwall.

HORTICULTURAL SPECIALIST EXAMINATIONS

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations for a number of horticultural specialist positions in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture.

The positions are: Senior geneticist (horticulture), $4,000 a year; cytologist (horticulture), $3,800 a year; morphologist (horticulture), $3,800 a year; physiologist (horticulture), $3,800 a year; associate pathologist (horticulture), $3,200 a year; and assistant physiologist (horticulture), $2,600 a year.

Applicants will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on their education and experience, and on publications. They must have been already graduated with a bachelor's degree from a college or university of recognized standing upon the completion of at least 118 semester hours, with major work in certain specified subjects related to the positions. In addition, they must have had responsible research experience in the field of horticulture corresponding to the position for which they apply. A certain amount of postgraduate study may be substituted for experience.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office or customhouse in any city which has a post office of the first or second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

A NEW INDUSTRY FOR MICH.

The Federal Asphalt Products will open its new plant, in which all new up-to-date machinery is being installed, to manufacture asphalt roofing and waterproofing cements.

It is estimated that approximately 200 men will be employed. The plant is located at 5620 Federal Ave., Detroit.

FEWER DRIVERS MISLAY LICENSES

There are two ways to lose operators' licenses in Michigan, just as there are in all other states having operators' license laws. One is to have your license revoked or suspended by order of a court or other competent authority, but the commonest method is merely to mislay it.

With the current public attention on safety, revocation and suspension of licenses are on the increase in Michigan, but it is worthy of noting that the percentage of licensed drivers who lose their licenses by pure absent-mindedness or accident, is getting smaller all the time.

During the first ten months of 1934 when a total of 443,228 applications for operators' licenses were granted, 13,426 persons who had lost their licenses, applied for duplicates to replace their losses. It meant that for every 1,000 new applications, 30 applications for duplicates were received. In the first 10 months of 1935, when successful applications for licenses jumped to 606,747 an increase of nearly 37 percent, the number of duplicates issued was only 15,006, which meant that for every 1,000 new licenses, applications for only 24 duplicates were being received.

License applications jumped nearly 37 percent; applications for duplicate licenses increased only about 20 percent.

The percentage of chauffeurs (including all drivers of commercial motor vehicles) who mislay their licenses, is negligible.

TRAPPING SEASON ENDS JANUARY 31

The last of the open trapping seasons in Michigan comes to a close Friday, January 31, when legal trapping for opossum, skunk and badger ends for this winter.

Legal hunting of mink also comes to an end January 31 throughout the state. Mink trapping is permitted only during muskrat trapping seasons in the respective areas, which are now closed.

SCHOOL POSTER CONTEST

In the hope of being one of four winners who will receive a free trip to Isle Royale this summer, hundreds of high school pupils in various parts of the state have entered the Conservation law observance poster-slogan contest which opens today.

The contest is being conducted by the Federated Garden clubs of Michigan in co-operation with the Department of Conservation. The best slogans will be considered by the Department for use as highway signs calling attention to the need for better Conservation law observance throughout the state.

All high school pupils of the state are eligible to enter the contest, which closes Feb. 15. It is not necessary for a pupil to hold membership in a Garden Club to enter. In localities where there is no Garden Club, any women's organization may handle the arrangements and provide special local prizes if they desire, sending the winning posters to Lansing to be entered in the state contest. Where no local contest is being held, high school pupils may enter the contest by writing to the Department of Conservation for instructions.

SCOUT JOURNAL APPEARS IN PRINTED FORM

Will Attempt To Keep Parents and Scouts Better Informed

The first issue of the "Scout Journal" to appear in printed form appeared this week to be circulated in 1460 homes in Washtenaw and Livingston counties. Three issues have appeared previously, but the printed paper tells more news in more condensed form.

The editor is Donald Martin of Troop 104 of Ann Arbor and a staff of Scout reporters is being developed to include one scout from each troop.

The Scout Journal will be published several times a year.

PUBLIC ENEMIES

THE CROSSWALK SOMNAMBULIST

As we do, the Crosswalk Somnambulist has no one to blame but himself. Sleep-walking pedestrians gamble with death.

While it is true that pedestrians have the right-of-way over autos making turns at intersections and that traffic should slow down for persons using crosswalks, neither of these truths can afford much comfort after an accident has occurred.
For your own safety—be alert—look both ways before crossing the street!

Highway Deaths Most New Foe In Tests for Deadliest of Gases

Every year the deadly traffic toll reaches new figures for highway deaths. This is the fifth of a series of articles to combat a new common enemy, carbon monoxide gas, more deadly and insidious than any "poison gas" employed in warfare.

By L. T. WHITE
Highway Safety Expert

Do you drive a closed car? Do you keep your windows closed during the chilly days of fall and the cold weather months? If you do, you are probably driving with an extra passenger, a passenger who is colorless—odorless—tasteless—who may strike you dead or let you off with an attack of drowsiness or headache that may result in a fatal or costly accident. A passenger who rides unknown with more than a million drivers every day of the year! His name is Carbon Monoxide; his presence can be detected only by periodical tests of your motor, since maladjustment of a dozen different parts of your motor allows the formation and seepage of this deadly gas.

A typical case of the effect of this friend of death is that of the driver who headed his car off a perfectly straight road into the ditch. While endeavoring to regain the highway, he collapsed at the wheel and was later found dead. A test showed that when traveling on the highway there was sufficient carbon monoxide within the car to account for the driver going to sleep; and when the car was stationary, the mixture was heavy enough to produce death.

The cause? Not unusual—a "hay-wire" repair of a leaky gasket, poorly fitted floor boards, and excessive monoxide in the engine's exhaust.

In a one-month safety campaign conducted recently, more than 37,000 wise motorists had their cars tested by the Power Prover, a device's contribution to the fight against monoxide. This set of instruments analyzes the exhaust gases and reveals whether or not poisonous fumes are present in dangerous quantities. Proper motor adjustment then eliminates this menace, to which can be traced thousands of "unexplained" accidents when drivers have suddenly become dizzy or nauseous.

NEW PAROLE SYSTEM

According to Parole Commissioner Armstrong, hereafter no convicts will be paroled except those who have the recommendation of the sentencing judge.

Exceptions will be made in instances where evidence of innocence is found. This is as it should be and is supposed to be. Until a few years ago it was a custom to get the views of not only the sentencing judge, but also the prosecuting attorney. Then this was suddenly discontinued and a flood of convicts turned loose among them the Hamtramck banker, Kolkovich, who embezzled $82,000. It was never disclosed who recommended his parole. Now Gov. Fitzgerald states that Kolkovich's pardon was a mistake and a return to the old system of getting the judges OK is announced.

MAKE IT A HAPPY NEW YEAR

Among the things which distinguished the year 1935 was the tremendous and unprecedented interest manifested in the traffic safety problem.

This awakening to the gravity of the accident evil seized the nation with considerable force during the second half of the year. It has yet scarcely gone beyond the point of "rubbing salt in the eyes," but the country seems to be ready for a cold shower of facing the facts, and then to grid for concerted action. As has been consistently maintained, the real hope for achieving automobile safety resides in aroused public opinion.

One way to help end the automobile accident carnage is for each individual to make a sincere New Year's resolution concerning his conduct as a motorist or pedestrian. The resolution might be based on six principles offered by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters:

1. Courtesy: to drive and to walk with consideration for others in mind.
2. Care: to drive and walk with the care that means safety for all.

Skeletons in Armor Suits

Are Found on Battle Site
Skeletons fully arrayed in medieval armor have been found in excavations in the vicinity of Venice, all in a perfect state of preservation. Workers engaged on excavations for the new great canal which is under construction in the picturesque district surrounding Stra, came across what undoubtedly must have been the scene of a great battle in the days of the ancient Venetian republic.

One of the many skeletons in armor was found to have a sword still between the ribs. Presumably the man fell in battle and has lain undisturbed all these centuries. Quantities of ancient weapons and armor also were found, together with beautifully modeled vases which, when the centuries old dirt had been washed away, were found to be painted by hand with designs and figures, the colors being perfectly preserved.

Poverty

Poverty is dishonorable, not in itself, but when it is a proof of laziness, intemperance, luxury, and carelessness; whereas in a person that is temperate, industrious, just and valiant, and who uses all his virtues for the public good, it shows a great and lofty mind.—Plutarch.

It always works

Just do what hospitals do, and the doctors insist on. Use a good liquid laxative, and aid Nature to restore clocklike regularity without strain or ill effect.

A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the real secret of relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has become. It gives the right kind of help, and right amount of help. Taking a little less each time, gives the bowels a chance to act of their own accord, until they are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit. The action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve any sluggishness or bilious condition due to constipation without upset.

SYNOPSIS

John Spencer and his cousin, Geoffrey Bohun, are vacationing in Austria. Geoffrey is a gifted portrait painter but prefers to paint landscapes. While strolling in the forest, John hears English voices, and decides to investigate. From safe cover he finds four men burying a man in green livery who, evidently, had been murdered. Pharaoh is the leader of the gang; the others are Dewdrop, Rush and Bugle. Unfortunately, John makes himself known to the assassins by dropping a letter with his name and address on it. He tells Geoffrey and his chauffeur, Barley, of his adventure, realizing that John's life is in danger, declares he must vanish. Spencer discovers that the livery of the murdered man corresponds to the livery of the servants of Yorick castle, and tells Countess Helena, mistress of the castle, what he had seen. With Geoffrey and Barley, John starts for Annabel, a nearby village.

"You go in," he said, "and have a look at the rooms. I imagine they're quite all right, but you never can tell." I left him filling a pipe and walked to The Reaping Hook.

This was a pleasant inn, standing back from the road.

As I entered the great, stone taproom, it was clear that all was not well.

It now seemed clear that some brawl or other had lately disordered the house and I began to wonder whether the host was absent because he had suffered some hurt. The poor woman's state, however, forbade my questioning her, and indeed as soon as she saw me, she threw her apron over her head and abandoned herself to her grief. I, therefore, turned to the scullion and asked him where his master might be, but the man seemed dull of comprehension.

Asked Him Where His Master Might Be.

hension and I had to shake him by the shoulder before at last he muttered that the host was upstairs.

I made my way to the staircase which rose from the hall, and a moment later had gained a fine, broad passage which ran the length of the house. Since the stairs rose again, I was about to go higher, when the door of a room was opened, and the maid who had passed me came out, wide-eyed and breathless.

"What's the matter?" I cried. "Where's your master?"

She pointed to the room she had left and fled downstairs.

I now began to think that the man must be dead, for he was a mild old fellow and not at all the sort that drinks himself into a fury and puts his household in fear. I walked to the door and stood listening before I knocked.

For a quarter of a minute I listened, but heard no sound, and my hand was raised, ready to knock, when somebody spoke—and before he had spoken three words, I knew the answers to the riddles which I had been trying to solve.

I knew why the house was disordered and why I had not been received: I knew why the maid was trembling and why the housewife was in tears; and I knew that, be they never so plesing, the rooms at The Reaping Hook were not for Geoffrey and me... for the voice was the voice of Pharaoh, who was speaking pretty fair German and was recommending the landlord to do as he said.

CHAPTER II

Plumage.

As I stole away from that door, I know that my knees were loose. So often as I remember that my hand was raised, ready to knock, the sweat will start upon my forehead.

I passed down the passage a-tiptoe, as well I might, wondering if ever before two men had been at such pains to avoid the foe, only to choose for their harbor the enemy's camp, for that, of course, was the use to which he was putting the inn.

I was halfway down the stairs, which rose in two flights, and the doorway of the inn was before me, when there came to my ears the slam of the door of a car. I believe that I stopped instinctively, but almost before I could think, a figure was in the doorway—a little wiry figure—and was heading straight for the stairs.

It was my old friend, Dewdrop.

Now I saw in a flash that unless of the four it was he that had been lying in wait to identify me at Lass, I stood a very fair chance of being no more than suspected as I went by.

I, therefore, held on my way, and since he was looking down, Dewdrop did not perceive me until he was three steps off. And then our eyes met—for an instant.

His surprise was his undoing.

As plain as though he had said so, I knew that he knew who I was and the second he spent in staring served my turn. As his fingers flew to his mouth, I hit him under the jaw and leaped for the door.

Now all would have been very well if I had not made one mistake.

I had had the advantage of Dewdrop, for he had been standing before me and I was the heavier man. But the hall below us was flagged and I was afraid to hit hard lest he should topple backwards and split his skull on the stone. And so, though the blow was heavy, it was not heavy enough. Lay hold of me he could not, for his balance was gone, but as I gained the forecourt his piercing whistle rang out.

My cousin heard it—I saw him. He had his back to the inn, and the bonnet of the Rolls was open and he was making some adjustment, spanner in hand. For an instant he stared. And then the bonnet was shut, and the spanner was in his pocket and a pistol was in his hand.

Before I could speak—

"Take the wheel," said Geoffrey, "and back her the way we came. There's a corner a hundred yards back. Turn her around there and wait. Is that their car?"

"Yes, but—"

"Quick," cried my cousin, and started to stroll to the inn.

As I flung myself into the Rolls, I saw Dewdrop, running towards us, stop in his tracks. As Geoffrey fired, the fellow turned and doubled, dodging from side to side; to my amazement my cousin began to give chase.

The engine of the Rolls was running and I let in the clutch. Then I lifted the car towards Geoffrey across the road.

A closed car was standing in the forecourt beside the door of the inn. As Dewdrop whipped behind it, my cousin fired again. Then he turned to see me waiting six paces away.

Pharaoh was standing in the doorway, with a hand to his hip; as he drew arms, Rush thrust out from behind him and sent him against the jamb. I shall always believe that this blunder saved Geoffrey's life.

I had never stopped the Rolls and as Geoffrey leaped for the step I let her go. In that instant two shots were fired, and a bullet went by my face to splinter the driving mirror. And then we were flashing through the village.

Geoffrey was speaking.

"I'm much obliged, my son. But another time you simply must do as I say. It's you they're after, not me. And now please put her along. I've holed their petrol-tank, so I hardly think they'll start; all the same I believe in distance."

Twenty minutes later we glided out of a by-road on to a grass-grown track; where this curled into a thicket, I threw out the clutch.

"My God," said Geoffrey, and wiped the sweat from his face. "And after all that trouble to cover our tracks. Fate beats the band sometimes. And now tell me exactly what happened."

I told him the truth.

"Colossal," says he. "Colossal. There's no other word. However, there's no harm done." He pulled out a map. "And now let's see where we are. We ran through a village called Wagen some four miles back."

We were twenty-two miles from Plumage, and the hour was just one o'clock.

"Tea with the goddess," he said, "at five o'clock. What could be better? But I don't want to wait till then. Besides, we must find a lodging."

Plumage lay more than two miles from the high road. The farm was set on the floor of a fair-sized valley that ran due west. The dwelling itself was handsome, white and gray and low, with shutters of olive green.

"I must try and paint that," said Geoffrey. "The world will say it's unnatural, but never mind."

We stole down the lane in silence and as I brought the car to rest, Lady Helena Yorick came out of the house, and behind her, a great Alsatian, a very beautiful hound.

Here for the first time I saw how truly lovely she was.

I introduced my cousin and the lady gave him her hand.

"I know your work," she said. "You painted my mother's brother six years ago."

"In Philadelphia," Geoffrey said. "He carried his head as you do and he had the same blue-black hair."

For a moment they spoke of her mother's American home.

"Plumage," said Geoffrey, "deserves its beautiful name. Will you let me paint it one day, when the battle is done?"

Lady Helena laughed.

"I see," she said, "that you have been reading the map."

For a moment I stared. Then—

"This isn't Yorick?" I cried.

"No," said Geoffrey. "But" the Yorick estate. Yorick itself is three miles beyond these woods."

"And six miles from Annabel," said Lady Helena. "Remembering that, Mr. Bohun, do you still propose to stay there?"

"No," said Geoffrey. "We don't. We've—changed our minds."

"I'm glad to hear it," said the girl. "Mr. Spencer is rather headstrong, and he doesn't seem to consider that he's rather too young to die."

Lady Helena then turned to the bench on the left of the door.

"Let's thrash this out," she said. She took her seat in the middle and we sat one on each side.

"You may take it from me," she said, "that this is no ordinary case. I know what these men are out for, and they're not going to stand any rot. If it was my jewels, they could have them—young Florin was above rubies."

"But they are not after my jewels; they're after something which isn't mine to give them and which they will never get."

"Now, how do you think they feel about Mr. Spencer? They know that he has the power not only to ruin their game but to send them to prison and death. Of course I can't answer for them, but if I were in their position, I'll tell you how I should feel. I should not rest until Mr. Spencer was dead."

"I'm inclined to agree," said Geoffrey. "If you'd said as much this morning, I should have said you were wrong, for I think the return of his letter was an order to him to clear out. But now the case is altered. Through no fault of his own he's given them reason to think that he means to treat this order with all the contempt it deserves. Now, mark you, it wasn't his fault. We bumped into them at Annabel. They'd made the inn their headquarters, and John walked into their arms."

"My God," said the girl.

"But, as you see," said Geoffrey, "he also walked out. To tell you the truth, we had the best of the brush. But, speaking perfectly frankly, I fear that the damage is done. They believe that he's out to get them, and if he leaves the country I give you my word I think they'll follow him out."

"You say," Lady Helena said, "that you had the best of the brush?"

"We put their car out of action. They won't be able to move for twenty-four hours."

"That's a start worth having. He could be in London tomorrow if you left Salzburg tonight."

My cousin sighed.

"My lady," he said, "for one thing, he wouldn't go; and, for another, it wouldn't be any use. Their finding that letter was deadly: it bore his London address."

"Then what's to be done?"

"He must have his wish," said Geoffrey. "Fate has played into his hands, and the only thing he can do is to stand and fight."

Lady Helena rose.

As Geoffrey and I stood up—

"I'm sorry," she said coldly. "From what Mr. Spencer told me, I fully believed I could count upon your support. He's very young and downright, and he can see nothing but red. But I fully believed you would see that my consent must be given before you took on these men. The man who is dead was my servant, and the men are after my goods. If you stand and fight you will therefore be fighting my battle, and that gives me the clear right to decline your help. And I do decline it. Mr. Bohun, you cannot enter this quarrel without helping me; and I do not desire your assistance. If London's not safe, then leave for Paris tonight."

"I'm damned if I'm going," said I.

Lady Helena turned upon me with blazing eyes.

"I beg your pardon."

My blood was up and I gave her back look for look.

"I said I'm damned if I'm going."

And I'll tell you another thing. I'm damned if I'm going to be treated as though I were seven years old."

Lady Helena did not reply. I suddenly felt ashamed. Unusually I turned to my cousin, but he had strolled down the apron and was regarding his barn. For a moment I hesitated. Then I made my way to the farther side of the Rolls.

And there I was sitting, on the running-board, staring on the beauty before me and cursing my unruly tongue when I heard a step on the pavement and before I could move my lady sat down by my side.

"Where are you staying?" she said

IS WAR MADNESS, OR ADVENTURE. AS YOUTH SEES IT?

The hovering threat of World war is protested in a document signed by more than 340 psychiatrists who warn that the world is drifting toward a war madness.

War means all destructive forces are set loose by mankind against itself, they assert. On the shoulders of the statesmen to whom the document is addressed, they place the responsibility for the developing war psychosis.

"The suggestive force of speeches made by leading statesmen is enormous and may be dangerous," they say. Whole peoples, awayed by the influence of the hypnotic words of their leaders—the cries of danger and of "atrocities"—may be carried away by hallucinations and delusions and become neurotic. Nations unbalanced emotionally and mentally!

The other side of the picture is also pointed out by psychiatrists. War provides an outlet for the destructive aggressive forces in man, ordinarily repressed by modern civilized society. For this reason many find release and a fierce joy in the cruelties and bloodshed of battle. These do not become neurotic. They have a glorious time. Laughter may be seen on the faces of the youths setting forth gaily for the "great adventure."

It has taken generations of stern discipline to teach man to master the impulses that lead him to anti-social conduct; to make him learn to work in peace with his fellow man toward a common good. If a World war takes the confining lid from the boiling cauldron of man's aggressive instincts, what will be the price to the future?—Science Service.

EUROPEAN HARE FOUND IN MICHIGAN

Proof that the European hare is now present in southeastern Michigan, has been received by State Conservation authorities from Ted Goulait, conservation officer in St. Clair county. Goulait sent to Lansing a specimen shot in his county that weighed 11 pounds and one ounce.

This is the first European hare received by the Department of Conservation which has been shot within the boundaries of the state. It is believed that the hare may have crossed over from Canada on the ice this winter. It is possible, however, that it might be the descendant of others of the species which previously had entered the state either by crossing the ice or by secret introduction by persons interested in the species.

Normally, the European hare is much larger than either the cottontail rabbit or varying hare of Michigan and is a prolific breeder. In parts of Canada and the Eastern United States it has become so numerous as to become a nuisance and a menace to shrubs and horticultural crops.

For the past several years nurserymen and farmers have feared that the European hare might enter Michigan and become established with possible serious consequences to orchards and shrubbery.

Once it becomes well established in any part of the state, its spread to favorable areas will be only a matter of time, game men believe.

Sowing and Reaping

WHEN a garden lover plants his garden, he confidently expects a reward of beauty from the seeds which he sows. Where he plants larkspur, he does not look for thistles, but expects to see, in due time, tall spikes of shining blue. As he carefully cultivates the seedlings, enriching the soil and keeping it free from weeds, he is expecting to reap a bountiful reward. But how differently we are apt to regard our sowing and reaping in the mental realm! Both the law and the gospel proclaim that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap; but the world, generally speaking, interprets this law as applying to wrongdoing, forgetting that it also applies to the good and certain reward for right doing.

We read in the book of Job (4:8): "They that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness, reap the same;" and we also read in Proverbs (11:18): "To him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward." Why does mankind in general believe in the justice which exacts penalty for wrongdoing, and fail to understand the justice which rewards righteousness? Fear of the penalty attached to wrongdoing does not make a man good; but the joyous recognition of God as infinite good, and the glad acceptance of the fact that obedience to God brings a sure reward, help one to obey God, not because of the reward, but because such obedience brings one nearer to God, the source of all good, and results in an improved sense of health, happiness, and harmony.

The Apostle Paul tells us that "the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance;" and he adds, "Against such there is no law" (Gal. 5:22, 23). We may sometimes seem to toil laboriously to cultivate "the fruit of the Spirit," but we need to remember that nothing can hinder its growth, and that nothing can withstand its power, for it destroys hate and envy, intolerance, hurry, haste, and waste.

Sometimes a wrong mental attitude of self-depreciation or self-condemnation would hinder us from claiming the divine law of reaping.

In "Sethes and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy has written (p. 199): "The devotion of thought to an honest achievement makes the achievement possible. Exceptions only confirm this rule, proving that failure is occasioned by a too feeble faith." Any business, to be truly successful, must be built on an ideal of honest and loving service to mankind, and not carried on for personal exaltation or selfish ambition. Thus established, it is indeed the "Father's business," and under the protection of the divine law of progress.

The disciple James writes, "If ye fulfil the royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well." Since all legitimate business is based primarily on this ideal of service, this royal law should be the tap-root that stimulates growth. Christian Science teaches that such a service has within itself all the essentials for prosperous expansion.

HOW MAN WILL LOOK AND LIVE 20,000 YEARS FROM NOW

The first in a series of two articles by Professor Rene Thevenin, noted French scientist, who points out many changes which will eventually transform man's habits and his appearance. Illustrated with pictures in color. See The American Weekly with Sunday's Detroit Times.

The leading question of the moment is whether Bruno Hauptmann will be hung on Jan. 17. Now that the feeling has cooled off the hatred toward Hauptmann, which predominated at the time of the trial, is not so evident, and a calmer view of the case is being taken. Although many people feel that Hauptmann was sufficiently involved to merit the death penalty, the same people do not think he had a fair trial and are of the opinion that case has not yet been solved and that there were other principals in it.

1936 PROSPECTS

The turn of the year brings with it a flood of prophecy in regard to the prosperity in store for the coming year. This year's crop of prophecy is more than encouraging to everybody no matter in what field endeavor he is situated.

Roger Babson predicts a seven per cent increase for farming and an average increase for all fields of ten per cent. Other authorities are equally optimistic. Let us remind you that we want to help you achieve this predicted increase in your business or farming. We are ready in many ways to help you take advantage of the better times.
