

Fifth District Payrolls Show Increase

Relief Loads Are Given For Months of December and January. Food and Clothing Distributed.

Works Progress Administration payrolls in the Fifth WPA district have increased during the past month from 8,963 to 9,539 employees, sustaining more than 45,000 persons, Fred L. Fulton, district director, has reported to State WPA Administrator Harry L. Pierson.

The workers are employed on 210 projects having a total cost of nearly four and one-half million dollars. Non-relief supervisors number 142. Employment in the nine southeastern counties comprising the district:

	Relief	Non-Relief
Ingham	2488	72
Jackson	2746	25
Washtenaw	1489	16
Lenawee	661	5
Hillsdale	453	1
Monroe	592	5
Clinton	177	4
Shiawassee	687	13
Livingston	150	1

Howell City, Brighton City, Livingston County, Townships and State funds provided direct relief for 263 families, representing 765 persons, residing in Livingston County during the month of January, 1936, at an expenditure of $3,639.70. Local contributions to the above amount were 40%. The State furnished the balance of 60 per cent. The direct relief was distributed as follows:

Cash	$ 32.00
Food	1838.54
Shelter	306.00
Clothing	171.65
Fuel	1140.07
Medical	156.44

Frank Cox has been appointed distributor of the Surplus Commodities for Livingston Co. The WPA Progress Administration are now financing the distribution of these food surpluses except for the mileage which will be borne by the Livingston Co. Emergency Relief.

TROOPER LICENSE INSPECTION STRICT

Michigan State Police are strict in the inspection of licenses for the state liquor control commission, according to records recently disclosed by the commission.

During December, the state police inspected 325 drinking places and returned 258 favorable and 67 unfavorable reports. Their criticism extended to 21 per cent of the places inspected.

City police in the state inspected 667 places, and returned 584 favorable and 83 unfavorable reports. They returned unfavorable reports on 12 per cent of the places they viewed.

Sheriffs inspected 165 drinking places and found 133 of them satisfactory and 32 unsatisfactory. In 19 per cent of the cases they returned unfavorable reports. In making a report, Sgt. Leon A. Hopkins, "contact man" between the state police and the liquor control commission, said troopers turned over to the commission complaints which resulted in the seizure of 77 licenses.

WHAT SCIENCE HAS FOUND OUT ABOUT THE GREAT APES

An article in The American Weekly, with Sunday's Detroit Times, discloses many interesting results, including the curious discoveries that baboons can't count above three; chimpanzees hold carnivals; gorillas respect property rights; but monkeys seem to be unable to comprehend death.

PRATT REASON

Roy (Lefty) Reason came home through the snowdrifts the other day, but not alone, as he brought a wife with him. The lady is well known here, being formerly, Miss Fern Pratt of Grand Rapids, a niece of the late Rev. Bernhart, and a cousin of Mrs. Merwin Campbell. We understand the wedding took place at Grand Rapids.

Ray is now employed by the Hudson Motor Company in Detroit. He is one of Pinckney's star athletes, featuring in baseball, football and basketball, being a member of the Hudson basketball team at the present time. Last summer he entered the local hall of fame by pulling off a triple play in a baseball game against a Detroit team.

On behalf of the people in this section and our friends, we offer congratulations.

246 FARM BOYS IN SHORT COURSES

Increasing interest in better farm methods has brought the largest winter short course enrollment in 14 years to Michigan State College, declares R. W. Tenny, Director of the college short course. The short winter program permits the state's farm youths to obtain information and training in general agriculture, dairying, poultry, dairy manufacturing, agricultural engineering, horticulture and commercial fruit production.

First year students in the winter short course number 50 of the total enrollment of 248. Not since 1922, when the farm boys numbered 354 in short course work, has the enrollment been as large. The present term will be concluded March 6, when graduation exercises will be held for those who have completed the second year 16-week course and the one year eight-week course.

Last Weeks List Is Large

Several Deaths Occur the Past Week,
In This Section of Well-Known People.

JOHN J. JEFFREYS

John J. Jeffreys, son of the late Richard and Anna Moran Jeffreys, died at his home here Friday, aged 77 years. His parents were pioneers of this section and the deceased has spent practically his lifetime here.

He helped build the railroad into Pinckney in 1883-84 and had many interesting stories to tell of that period. Besides working on the railroad, he was employed at the McIntyre brickyard, east of town, when that institution was booming, and employed a large number of men. He also worked for the late Dr. G. W. Haze at the time when the latter was the largest land owner in this section.

For the past 20 years he has been janitor of the Pinckney school.

Mr. Jeffreys was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Smith of Pinckney, and to this union five children were born, all of whom are living. They are Matthew and Stephen of Detroit, Wm. of Pinckney, Mrs. Mae Chandler of Kalamazoo, and Lucy, at home. Besides them he is survived by his widow and one sister, Rose, now Sister Veronica at Monroe. The latter is the sole survivor of the family, four brothers, Matthew, James, Edward and Richard, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Black, having preceded him to the great beyond.

The funeral was held from St. Mary's church Monday, Rev. Lewis Dion officiating. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

MRS. FRED LAKE

Mrs. Fred Lake, a life-long resident of Livingston county, died Saturday afternoon at her home in Pinckney.

Florence L. Carpenter was born at Chilston, February 22, 1871. Her early life was spent attending the neighboring school.

She was united in marriage with Fred Lake, February 21, 1894, living for several years at the Lake family homestead, then acting as Matron of the Livingston County Home for several years, after which they bought the home known as the Culey farm, where they resided until coming to their present home.

Mrs. Lake was an active member and Past Matron of the local Eastern Star Chapter.

She leaves her husband to mourn their loss, two sisters having preceded her in death.

Burial was made in Pinckney cemetery, Tuesday, February 11, Rev. C. H. Zuse officiating.

GEORGE W. HENDREE

George W. Hendree, 80, a former Pinckney resident, died at his home at Perry after a long illness. He was engaged in the real estate and loan business while resident of Pinckney, and was well acquainted here.

He moved from here to Howell about twenty years ago, later going to Perry.

Surviving are his wife, a son, Ora, and a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Rose of Perry and six grandchildren. Another daughter, Mrs. Orpha Lambertson died a number of years ago.

The death took place Sunday and the funeral and burial were a Perry today.

JOHN LENTZ

John W. Lentz, 67, of Marquette, died in the Monroe hospital Wednesday of a heart attack. He had been a patient there since the Saturday before.

Mr. Lentz was president of the Michigan Farmers' Union. He was very active in the affairs of that organization and advocated a different system of marketing milk than the base and surplus plan.

He was a member of the first Monroe county road commission and a Democratic candidate for congress in 1932. He spoke at Pinckney several times and was known to many here.

ACCIDENT VICTIMS BETTER

The condition of the two auto accident victims from this section, Reginald Scheffer and Fred Thomas, is much better. Both are still in St. Lawrence hospital, Lansing.

Scheffer has several broken ribs, a broken nose, broken pelvis, etc., but is able to be moved in a wheel chair. People are recovering from a punctured lung but has been skull fracture. This is in the forehead and is not considered serious. If pneumonia does not set in his chances for recovery are good.

WRECKER SERVICE BATTERY CHARGING

We are prepared to furnish wrecking and towing service, day or night; also battery charging.

JAMES SHIREY & SONS

VIRGIL WHITE

Virgil White, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude White of Howell, died at Flint this morning, we are informed.

Yes Sir, Business Is Good

Another Cold Wave Hits this Region

Mercury Again Hits New Low, and Snow Blocks Roads. Many Deaths
From Exposure Reported.

Another cold wave struck here last week and is still continuing. The roads were pretty generally blocked and drifts ten feet high were not uncommon. We see by the dates that some eleven people in this state lost their life from exposure. By working day and night the county road commission managed to keep the main roads open. Many local roads, however, have been blocked for a number of days. It now takes mail carriers all day to make their routes and then they are not able to cover all of them.

The coal famine which has hit here, has not yet struck here, although the supply was low last week. Thomas Read Sons, local dealers run out of soft coal last week and had to send Pocahontas to their customers. This exhausted that brand of coal. Friday they received a car of soft coal and have an amount of coal on hand. By sending coal in one and two-to lots, they think they will be able to keep their customers supplied. A number have come here from Howell and Powersville for coal, but have been refused. Thomas Read Sons are of the opinion that the recent cold spell which has slowed up railroad transportation is more to blame for the fuel shortage than anything else. They have several more cars in transit.

EXPECT TO REBUILD

Ross Read, senior member of the firm of Thomas Read Sons, whose elevator burned down here last Tuesday morning, informs that the firm expects to rebuild the elevator in just what manner, however, it has not yet been decided. However, it will include grain bins, as considerable rice is raised and marketed here. The insurance adjusters have been here for several days and a good settlement is expected.

At the present time the elevator office is located in a camp trailer belonging to Mrs. Grace Thomas near the scales. This has been equipped with a stove and is quite comfortable.

NEW BUSINESS STARTS

Edward Parker has leased the Slayton garage and sales room here and will sell and service Chevrolet cars, and also will service other makes of automobiles. He has a well equipped garage and is in position to turn out prompt work. Tires will also be handled and oil and gas.

He was formerly a member of the Slayton & Parker Chevrolet firm here but until recently was Standard Oil agent.

We welcome him to the ranks of Pinckney business men. His announcement appears elsewhere in this issue.

First place was won by Oakland County with a credit of 3668, 2nd place by Grand Traverse 3477, third place to Livingston County 3475.

The team from Livingston County was made up of Al Hofforth, G. Armstrong and Burr Hoover.

SENATOR BORAH

THROWS BAT IN RING

Senator Borah has thrown his hat into the presidential nomination race by entering his name in the Ohio primary.

Eight Planks in Platform
Borah's platform is outlined on and of the Senate floor substantially as follows:

1. Nomination of a liberal republican candidate on a liberal-republican platform.

2. Orderly government of currency and quickly broken by gold.

3. Federal responsibility for unemployment relief.

4. Budget balancing when feasible by economy.

5. Farm relief by curbing industrial monopoly, reducing farm indebtedness and improving the national distribution system.

6. Strict observance of the constitution subject to amendment by prescribed methods.

7. Absolute non-interference in European affairs.

8. Unemployment insurance, and an old age pension system providing $60 a month for each pensioner.

Senator Borah may not be the nominee, but indications are that on account of his strength in the west he will hold the balance of power and dictate the nominee, in case he cannot be nominated. Senator Vandenberg of Michigan is believed to be the first choice, as he has attracted Gov. Landon of Kansas several times and moreover that can state his backing of the Liberty League and Wall Street at the present time. This is not that the latter have any special love for Landon, but that they consider he is the only one who has a chance to stop Borah, whom they regard as a dangerous radical.

WILL CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Frost of this place will celebrate their golden wedding at their home here on Thursday, February 20. All of their children and relatives are expected to be present and friends are invited to call on that day.

Current Comment

Now that Richard Loeb has been murdered, the Illinois authorities are kicking up a big stir and a grand inquiry is not unlikely. It's the same old story and has happened in other states in the past. In Michigan it has often been stated in the press that wealthy inmates of our penal institutions, such as Arthur Rich, Frank Andrews and others enjoyed special privileges. This was usually followed by denials by the prison officials or the promise that if investigation revealed that such things existed, they would be stopped. So in the Loeb and Leopold case it would seem that only a general practice was being followed, which, however, in this case had fatal consequences.

In the national convention of Young Republicans, John Carton of Washington last week refused to make the election of J. Kenneth Bradley of Connecticut unanimous. In an interview in the Lansing State Journal, he explains his action by stating that he has nothing against Bradley, but objected to the manner in which Chairman Henry Fletcher of the Republican National Committee defeated him. This he states was by the latter's manipulation of southern delegates of questionable qualifications. Carton is son of the late John C. Carton of Flint, a former speaker of the State House of Representatives and chairman of the last state constitutional convention.

In the province of Ontario two government officials may be retired to private life because they refused to take the oath of allegiance to King Edward VIII of England. This they refuse to do as they are pacifists and this oath contained a clause binding them to bear arms for the king in case of war. One is a woman official in Sandwich and the other a tax collector. It is said that this is the first time such an oath has been required in Ontario. Just why it is now considered necessary is not stated. Probably a survival of ancient times. We believe when Rome ruled the world they used to make the inhabitants of their conquered countries pass under a yoke occasionally, to test their loyalty.

That the Townsend Old Age Pension is worrying the major parties would seem to be shown by the fact that frenzied charges are being made against it. In Congress, Congressman Hoffman and Mapes, two stand-pat members from Michigan and outspoken foes of the Townsend plan, called for a congressional investigation of the organization, and Mapes charged that the whole pension idea was the biggest racket since Ponzi. Hoffman charged that the Townsends have already collected $8,600,000 and are putting the heat on all congressional candidates by demanding that they state their stand on the pension plan or run the chance of being beaten for reelection by a Townsend candidate.

Al Smith does not seem to have come out so well with his radio debate with Senator Robinson. A straw vote being conducted by the Detroit Times, a Hearst newspaper and a bitter foe of the New Deal, shows Robinson the victor over two to one. In a similar one conducted by Hearst publications in New York and Chicago, Smith holds a very slight lead. Another cold spell hit here last week in which some 50 people in the nation lost their lives. The blizzard of Tuesday crippled traffic and delayed the movement of foodstuffs and fuel to such an extent that several cities were threatened with a milk and coal shortage. We read of a CCC camp near Mukwonago, snowed out, without food for three days. The mercury hit 40 below in several places and crippled things in general. By working day and night, however, the county road commission managed to keep the roads in this county open.

Henry Ford recently gave out an interview which was published in a popular magazine and widely commented upon by the press of the nation. The sum and substance of the article was that you could not bring about the return of prosperity until the common people, or working classes, were given back their purchasing power. It is generally admitted that men with a thousand dollars each will spend more money than one man with ten thousand dollars. Herbert Hoover recognized this, and his RFC which loaned huge sums to banks, railroads and insurance companies, was an effort to put money in circulation. However, it failed, as he attempted to work from the top. President Roosevelt attempted to work up from the bottom by putting the working class to work on federal projects and loaning them money for homes, farm tools, etc. This worked out better, but still was not a 100 per cent success, as the building industries and the trades allied with them are still in a state of suspended animation. Mr. Ford suggested no remedy for putting the purchasing power back in the hands of the working class. However, he suggested that this country forget foreign markets and spend their energies in building up local ones. This he does not seem to be following himself, as he has factories and assembly plants in many foreign countries.

Catch, Not Cash, in Cache;
Stumps Secret Service Men
 Two Oklahoma City men dug a heap of buried coins from beneath an old Indian Territory trading post—but learned all that glitters is not gold.

"The coins are cheap amalgam with a thin covering of gold," John Osborn, secret service agent, informed the men, whom he declined to name. "I'm afraid we'll never solve the counterfeiting case—it dates back 75 years."

The Permanent Wave Gland

A DISCOVERY that might easily save American women millions of dollars every year has been reported from Prospect, Conn., by Carl Louis Mortison, artist and correspondent for the Waterbury (Conn.) Republican. According to Mr. Mortison, Mrs. Lester Green of Prospect and her daughter have permanent waves that are the envy of the neighborhood.

It seems that Lester Green, while butchering, discovered a minute gland which produces a fluid responsible for the curl or kink in a pig's tail. This fluid, when extracted, diluted with water and rubbed on the hair produced a wave for Mrs. Green and his daughter that not only promises to have lasting qualities but also defies rain. In fact, shampooing only freshens it and makes it more potent.

Mr. Green visualizes great possibilities for this magic fluid. He believes that its greatest value will be demonstrated in manufacturing bed springs. He says that by immersing steel or brass wire in the solution it coils immediately into a spring and he predicts that his discovery may revolutionize the bed spring manufacturing business. So far he has not patented the process and anyone who wants to try it and make their own bed springs is welcome to do so.

The White Cliffs of Dover

"BACK in the days when we had iron men on wooden ships instead of wooden men on iron ships," said Capt. John of Marblehead, "I signed on for my first cruise with Old Storm-along. A big feller the skipper was—just four fathoms and a compass width from the deck to the bridge of his nose."

"He had to be, of course, for his vessel, the Courser, was the biggest ship on the Atlantic. Why, I mind the day he sent a young feller aloft to push a cloud off the top of the mainmast... when he came down he was dripping wet with somethin' white. 'Danged near drowned up there in the Milky Way...' he was sputterin'."

"But I was startin' to tell you about that time a storm drove us toward the English channel. Between Calais and the cliffs of Dover Old Storm-along took one squint ahead and yelled: 'Will she make it?'"

"May scrape a bit of paint off'n her sides but I think she will," answered the man at the wheel.

"Can't have that!" roared Old Storm-along. "All hands over and soap the sides... put an extra heavy coat on the starboard!"

"The next minute me and the rest of the crew was plasterin' the sides of the Courser with all the soap we had on board and she eased through without a bit of trouble. Of course, it was such a tight fit that the Dover cliffs scraped every bit of the soap off the starboard side. Ever since those cliffs have been pure white... that's our soap still clingin' to 'em. Sure it is! Next time you go through the channel take a look at the waves. They're still a bit foamy from that same soap!"

When You See a Wimpuss—

A WIMPUS, according to Austin Butcher, editor of the Altoona (Kan.) Tribune, is a rare animal which grows about as big as a hogleg, but it has a long tail like a collywop and wings like a bearcat. It lives in the top of high trees, whence it flies down to attack defenseless travelers. However, no harm is to be feared from a wimpuss if you know what to do when you see one coming.

It is folly to shoot at one, for a wimpuss catches bullets in its teeth and eats them. The only way to do when one comes at you is to take a piece of cheese, either Edam or Swiss, and tack it securely on a water-fall. The wimpuss makes a swoop at the cheese and gets mixed up with the waterfall and gets its feet wet.

It makes a wimpuss mad as all get-out when he gets his feet wet. So he hunts around for a nice piece of grass to dry them on. The minute the wimpuss lights on the grass, the hunter rushes at him and ties his tail in a double bow knot. When a wimpuss has his tail tied in a double bow knot he is gone, because when he flies he always ducks his head under his body to see who is following him. In doing this he gets his head caught in the double knot and chokes himself to death.

Hyde Park in London

In the reign of Henry VIII Hyde Park in London was a dense forest in which there were many wild boars. It is now London's most fashionable park. It is three miles in circumference and has an area of 361 acres. The level part, toward the Marble arch, is a favorite spot for public orators and is frequently used for mass-meetings. Rotten Row, in the park, is a horse-back ride of a mile and a half. Its name was originally Roughten's Rue, or street, and it was used by Lord Roughten and his friends as a bridle path. Kensington gardens, covering 250 acres, adjoin the park. Park lane, containing some of the finest mansions in London, runs alongside the park.

Flowers, Jewels and Rich Fabrics

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS THE winter and midseason social activities reach their height and as high-life society carries on gay festivity in fashionable southern resorts, one is impressed with the surpassing elegance of the more formal modes. Smart gatherings, be they grand opera audiences, dinners at the smartest places in town or sojourners in the Southlands, all bespeak the trend to a new high in splendor and opulence as expressed in terms of rich fabrics, precious furs, gorgeous jewels and the wearing of rare and lovely flowers.

To add to the fascination of the style picture there is a definite movement toward individual, distinctive hairdress such as recaptures the charm of wearing flowers, jeweled ornaments or exotic feather fancies in ornate coiffures. The aristocracy of current mode calls for materials of high degree fashioned with that master simplicity which makes rich fabrics look richer. Such is the lovely ensemble centered in the accompanying illustration. Consider it, if you will, as a fantasy "in lilac time" for such it would seem to be. A petite society girl wore this very lovely creation at a velvet fashion revue presented during a ball at a leading "way down south" hotel recently. The dress is lilac velveteen, which is sheer and cool to wear. The long voluminous cape with big scarf collar draped over the shoulders is of lilac crush-resistant velvet. Note the glittering jeweled bracelet and the corsage, which declares a revival of that lovely custom of wearing flowers.

The lady to the left, in the picture, tells you via her very charming costume that to interpret fashion correctly, one must wear a glamorous necklace with bracelet to match, furthermore the coiffure must be enhanced with an ornate bandeau, which, in this instance, is of velvet and wee ostrich tips. The unique velvet belt done in petal or leaf motif, also the coronet of feathers and velvet, are in a deep rich purple tone matching the cape that was worn with the gown. A semi-sheer nubby material woven on a velvet loom is the fabric of this pale leaf-green evening dress.

Reports from all fashion centers in regard to the new season's trends place emphasis on the importance of strictly tailored short jackets that top rather short slenderizing skirts. The majority of first arrivals in the suit realm give preference to mannish types of hip length. The model to the right is along this line of thought—neat and natty to a nicety. The slim straight skirt is of brown crystalline and the fitted jacket of white. Fabrics such as this, that are worn on a velvet loom, are becoming increasingly popular where dainty lightweight material is wanted that is suitable and practical for year-round wear. The white hat with brown veil that tops this stunning outfit is tres chic. Most of the hats coming from Paris feature decorative veils. Brown kid gloves, brown kid shoes, and a white leather bag complete this up-to-the-moment costume.

Some of the most striking and most beautiful ensembles for formal nights are white in every detail. A likable formula for full dress is the all-white gown of velvet which is as sheer as chiffon, or it may be of white crepe, satin or taffeta, to which add a snowy ermine wrap, long white gloves, two strands of pearls, diamond bracelets or a single wide one, diamond hair clip and three or four white orchids pinned to a narrow shoulder strap.

PLEATED CREPE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The flair for colorful crepe frocks for afternoon wear is resulting in such stunning models being turned out as this picture depicts. This very attractive luncheon or afternoon tea frock is of crepe in a wistful violet shade. The giraffe is of silvered kid and violet suede. The felt hat is in matching violet shade. Pleating, tucking, and stitching, also braiding, will be lavished on fashionable apparel this season.

Many Pleats
 It takes a slim figure to wear them, but there is great charm to skirts entirely pleated. Dinner and more formal evening gowns with this skirt feature give the wearer a lovely, buoyant air.

Glad Hands
 Nothing is gayer than gold and silver tissue evening gloves seen these days. They are long and very, very elegant.

All Around the House

Cacti plants grown in the house should be given air and light. To water set pots in a pan of water and do not remove until soil has become moist.

Apply paint remover with a brush. When paint begins to curl remove with a putty knife. Remover takes time and cannot be hurried.

When poaching eggs let water come to a full rolling boil, drop eggs into it, turn out gas and eggs will finish poaching in the boiling water.

To clean artificial fruit dip it in white soap suds several times, then rinse in clear water to which a few drops of ammonia has been added.

For roasting pork 20 to 25 minutes to the pound is required. Pork should never be roasted in a quick oven.

If hot paraffin is poured over paint left unused in a can it will not harden.

A suds made of naphtha soap and sprayed over house plants will destroy small insects that infest them.

Water should never be poured on burning fat. It will spread the blaze. Flour will extinguish the blaze.

To tighten springs in curtain rollers, hold roller firmly, put end of spring between tines of fork and turn until spring is tight.

Tips of canned asparagus may be removed whole if the bottom instead of the top of can is opened.

FINDS NEED FOR TRANSLATIONS OF 'COLLEGE ENGLISH'

Uncle Tom, spending a well earned furlough in a college town after 25 years in Central America, is greatly enjoying his contact with today's youth. He casually accepts the boisterous romping of his young acquaintances, though he secretly contrasts it with the decorum of the native homes he has known so intimately. Brightly rouged lips calmly holding cigarettes do not bother him, though he has fleeting visions of the toothless feminine smokers he met in the "hill country." He refuses to be shocked at reports of "neckings," but he casts a regretful thought to the well chaperoned "senoritas" of his adopted country. His chief delight is the notebook he is making of the "American collegiate" conversation about him; often he finds it necessary to pencil in the translation for phrases he hears. Here is a page of his latest discoveries:

"You git 'em out, pappy, you're complainin' about the flies." (Translation, "Quit your fussing or do something about it.")

"Ma's clean tuckered out, she done toted four cords a wood terday." (Meaning, "You are not the only one who is busy.")

"Ach! he's in a corner, eatin' his woolly worm." (Translation, "He is angry about something.")

"What bag are you draggin' to the throw?" (Meaning, "Which girl are you taking to the party?")

On the flyleaf of the book are the words "New of today becomes Old of tomorrow."—Kansas City Star.

Yawn Explained

A yawn is only a gap in the conversation.

A Grave Mistake for a Mother to Make

GIVING CHILD UNKNOWN REMEDIES WITHOUT ASKING DOCTOR FIRST

GIVING your child a medicine or remedy you don't know all about—without asking your family doctor first—is a bad risk for any mother to take. Doctors and child authorities say health, and sometimes life itself, depends on this. So—when you're offered a "bargain" in a remedy for your child, ask your doctor before you buy it. Do this for your child's sake and your own peace of mind. Ask him particularly about the frequently used "milk of magnesia"—about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. He will tell you that for over 60 years physicians have endorsed it as SAFE for your child. The kind of remedy you want your child to have. Remember this when you buy, and say "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" to your druggist. Comes now, also, in tablets that taste of peppermint, that children like to take.

Now, Also in Tablet Form
 You can assist others by refusing to accept a substitute for the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children—and in the interest of the public in general.

Difficulties Inject Spirit and Vigor in Chosen Work
 The way to find joy in one's work is to find something one wants to do, enjoys doing. Then one can work with aim and purpose. When one likes his work he can work against difficulties. For such a one difficulties animate rather than slacken his endeavors. He is also to work with perseverance and patience.

The Man Who Knows

Whether the Remedy You are taking for Headaches, Neuralgia or Rheumatism Pains is SAFE is Your Doctor. Ask Him

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches, of the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin. We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct. Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly. You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Bayer Aspirin

Push It Aside
 When you meet trouble, just go ahead. Often, it skedaddles.

Over 90,000 Tuberculin Tests

THE TOTAL number of tuberculin tests given at Christmas clinics sponsored by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association recently passed the 90,000 mark. Since November, 1931, over 90,000 Michigan people have "made sure" about tuberculosis, and every one of the tests was paid for by Christmas seal pennies.

The tuberculin test is one of the modern weapons that are being used to discover tuberculosis in the early and curable stages; the X-ray is another. These two weapons of medical science are together responsible for the saving of hundreds of lives in the United States every year. They are the only means of discovering the disease in its early stages.

Nearly a million seals—2,000,000 more than in 1934—were distributed in the state this year by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

The sale opened officially on Thanksgiving Day and will continue through to Christmas.

The fact that tuberculosis is still the principal cause of death for young adults between the ages of 20 and 40, emphasizes the need for an even more expansive program of tuberculin testing and chest X-raying in 1936. Because of limited resources, it has been necessary for the Michigan Tuberculosis Association to curtail its 1935 program during the past few months. By purchasing tuberculin Christmas seals this year Michigan people will help to avert another such curtailment in 1936, and at the same time help to save the lives of hundreds of young adults—those who are at the point in life when society needs them most.

There Is No Other Way

In supplying telephone service to Michigan, this Company's first concern is with the present. Above all else, the service must be good today. But to serve the present, we must be constantly preparing for the future.

To illustrate: In Detroit stands Michigan's largest long distance switchboard. It represents invested money, skilled labor and thorough engineering study. The need for this switchboard did not exist at the time plans were made for it. But a careful survey of the future had plainly indicated that such a need was coming. And when it came, this Company was perfectly equipped to handle the heavy traffic of long distance calls that flowed in and out of Michigan's great industrial areas.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

The intricate mechanism behind your telephone cannot be assembled overnight, nor thrown together to meet a sudden need. It must be "built ahead." To do this intelligently—and economically—requires an intensive engineering survey of such factors as shifts in population, industrial developments and trends in real estate. The neglect of these preparations could be as wasteful as building a bridge accommodating a single lane of traffic, only to find later that additional lanes are imperative. It is not a mere academic theory that this policy of building for the future is the only way to provide high-grade telephone service. Experience has repeatedly demonstrated that there is no other way.

make provision against that day. Both of these ideas are as old as civilization and older, but they require constant re-emphasis.

Whether our responsibility for the care of the needy people of advancing years is met through some adaption of the Townsend Plan or through some other more time-tried plan, the Nation will owe a genuine debt of gratitude to the men who have brought us to a realization of our previous neglect of the older generation.

And, if it will encourage the younger elements of our population to practice the virtue of thrift, and stimulate their interest in providing for their own future, so much the better, whether that be done through the established agencies of savings accounts, prudent investments, and life insurance or by some other workable plan.

The controversy which rages where over Townsendism is discussed does not center around these admittedly desirable objectives. It arises because a large and distinguished group of authorities deny on the one hand that the plan as proposed will actually produce the results claimed, and assert on the other hand, that it would work terrific hardships on the entire population both old and young.

STATE LAND TAXES
Tax lists by which the Department of Conservation will remit nearly $240,000 to counties, townships and school districts this year under the Green act, are now being prepared by the Lands Division of the Department.

The Green act requires the payment by the state of 10 cents an acre in taxes on all state-owned lands except state parks up to 1,000 acres in area. Since there are now approximately 2,450,000 acres held by the state, the total payments by the state to local governmental units will amount to about $240,000.

Part of this amount will be paid from the game protection fund, made up of the receipts from hunting, fishing and trapping licenses and fees. The other part will be paid from the state general fund.

Under the law taxes are paid from the general fund on swamp lands and tax exempted lands, the latter being that class of acreage which has reverted to the state through tax delinquency. For all other state-owned lands such as those acquired by purchase, gift and federal grant, the Department of Conservation is required to pay from the Game Protection Fund.

IT WORKED FOR ME

Women should take only liquid laxatives

MORE people could feel fine, be fit and regular, if they would only follow the rule of doctors and hospitals in relieving constipation. Never take any laxative that is harsh in action. Or one, the dose of which can't be exactly measured. Doctors know the danger if this rule is violated. They use liquid laxatives, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all. Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why it should be a liquid like Syrup Pepsin. Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if it doesn't give you absolute relief, if it isn't a joy and comfort in the way it overcomes biliousness due to constipation, your money back.

SYNOPSIS

John Spencer and his cousin, Geoffrey Bohun, are vacationing in Austria. Geoffrey is a gifted portrait painter but prefers to paint landscapes. While strolling in the forest, John hears English voices, and decides to investigate. From safe cover he finds four men burying a man in green livery who, evidently, had been murdered. Pharaoh is the leader of the gang; the others are Dewdrop, Rush and Bugle. Unfortunately, John makes a noise to the assassins by dropping a letter with his name and address. He tells Geoffrey and his chauffeur, Barley, of his adventure. Geoffrey, realizing that John's life is in danger, declares he must vanish. Spencer discovers that the livery of the murdered man corresponds to the livery of the servants of Yorkick castle, and tells Countess Helena, mistress of the castle, what he had seen. With Geoffrey and Barley, John starts for Annabell, a nearby village. They encounter Pharaoh, in making their getaway they exchange shots with the gang, without serious result. They arrive at Plumage farm, on the Yorkick estate, where Lady Helena had requested John and his cousin to meet her. She reveals to them that her father had converted his immense fortune into gold sovereigns and hidden them away in a secret vault in the castle. Knowing that his son Valentine, Helena's brother, was incapable of controlling the fortune, he had revealed it to Helena alone just before his death. In some manner the news had leaked out, and Pharaoh was after the treasure. They planned that Geoffrey and Barley would go to Salzburg to watch for Pharaoh, while John was to remain at Plumage, lying low in the daytime and patrolling the roads about Yorkick from dusk to dawn. Several nights go by without important incident. John visits Yorkick castle and finds that Helena's brother, Count Valentine, is there and with him, on most friendly terms, is Pharaoh, as Captain Fanning. Hearing that John is stopping at Plumage, Pharaoh speaks to Dewdrop. John suspects a plot.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

The door of a tower was open, and Helena whipped inside. She fled upstairs and into the pleasant bedroom I ever saw. As I followed her in, she pressed a key into my hand.

"There's a door behind that curtain."

While I was unlocking this, she twitched a coat from a cupboard and rushed to the painted table on which were combs and brushes and all things that women use.

"Have you money, John?"

"About fifty pounds," said I.

"Good."

Then she threw one look around and slipped out of the room.

"Lock it behind us, John."

A short stone stairway brought us into a little hall which was very dimly lighted and was shut by three massive doors.

"The right-hand one," said Helena.

"Quick. That's a master key."

We now encountered a winding flight of steps. At the foot of this flight we came to another door, but I could not see to unlock it, so Helena took the key.

And then we were out in some passage and there on our right was a postern that gave to the outside world. But Helena turned instead to a very much smaller door, sunk deep in the wall.

A man was coming. I could hear his steps on the stone. He was out of sight, round some corner, but he was not twelve paces away.

Helena's fingers were shaking, as she fitted the master key. The lock was stiff and defied the efforts she made. As I put out my hand, I heard the man stop and swear. Then he turned on his heel and began to retrace his steps.

An instant later the door was locked behind us and we were alone in the dark.

Helena was trembling, and I put my arm about her and held her close.

"Reaction," she murmured. "I'll be all right directly. You see, we're safe for the moment. I—I'd like to sit down."

With my arm about her, we sat ourselves down on a step.

"I'm all right now," breathed Helena, lifting her head.

I let her go, and she sat back against the wall.

"Listen, John. We couldn't have crossed the drawbridge without being seen. And that would have been ruinous. . . . But now we've just disappeared. The doors that were open are open, and the doors that were locked are locked. But we have vanished. This stairway leads to a grating in the wall of the moat. It's just above the water. Directly below it, under the water and, therefore, out of sight, is a footbridge of stone. That leads across the moat to another grating set in the opposite wall. The gratings are barred—not locked, and each of them's barred on this side. The farther grating admits to an old brick tunnel that will lead us under the meadows and into the woods." She got to her feet. "And now we must go. We've not a moment to lose. The ramparts don't overlook this part of the moat, and we simply must get to Plumage before Bugle and Rush."

Carefully we descended the stair, which was very damp.

The water was cold and the iron of the gratings was rusted and very harsh, but the footbridge gave good foothold and our passage was made with an ease for which I had not dared hope. Since the water came up to my joints, I made Helena lie across my shoulders and carried her over like that.

As I set her on her feet in the tunnel, I heard the Count calling her name.

"Helena! Helena!"

I hauled myself out of the water to stand by her side.

"Helena, where are you?"

Gently I closed the grating.

Again the Count lifted his voice.

"Fanning!" he bawled. "Fanning!"

Helena touched my arm.

"I could tell him where Fanning is. He's gone to the bridge. Nobody knows of this exit, but Florin and me."

The tunnel seemed without end. It was dark and damp and noisome and ran uphill, and I was more than thankful when after five or six minutes I saw the faint light of the evening and found the air more fresh. The mouth of the tunnel was masked by a riot of undergrowth, but when we were clear of this screen, I saw at once that we stood due north of the castle.

"And now for Axel," said Helena.

"And Sabre, I hope. When he can't find me, he'll remember the last two nights and come to the Plumage ride."

It was now ten minutes past nine, and dusk had come in. We had, therefore, no fear of skirting the edge of the forest, for the going was better in the meadows and we were at least half a mile from where Axel would be.

The castle was lighted now as I had never seen it, but of course we could see no movement and hear no sound. The lights suggested that the building was being searched.

We pushed on breathlessly.

We had covered half the distance when Helena caught my arm and stopped in her tracks.

Somebody was whistling—not very far away; whistling as though to bring a dog to his heels.

Then we heard Pharaoh's voice.

"Good dog," he cried. "Good dog."

The man was out in the meadows, somewhere between the bridge and the Plumage ride.

In a flash I saw what had happened. Sabre had left the castle, and Pharaoh had seen him go. The porter, no doubt, had told him that that was the Countess' dog, and the fellow had guessed in an instant that Sabre's instinct was leading him to his mistress, wherever she was. And so he had followed Sabre, but had lost him because it was dark.

"Come on," said I. "Now that he's lost Sabre, he hasn't a chance."

"If he hears the horses," breathed Helena.

We were nearly there now, but when Pharaoh whistled again, he was not so far off as before.

As we stumbled into the ride, I found the dog paddling beside us. He may have been there for five minutes for all I know. And there was Axel waiting, ten minutes before his time.

"Good dog," cried Pharaoh.

I judged the man to be fifty paces away.

In a flash I had Helena up on the lively gray.

As she stooped to whisper to Axel, I turned to the other horse, but, perhaps because he was startled, he would not stand. As I swung myself up, he backed sideways against the gray, and before I could find my right stirrup, its dangling iron had clashed with that of Helena, making a ringing sound.

The whistle which Pharaoh was letting suddenly stopped.

I heard the man running towards us as we turned the horses about.

And then we were both sitting down and riding hard for Plumage.

We dared not spare the horses—the hunt was up.

Pharaoh would run to the castle, find the Count and induce him to order a car; and we had to ride to Plumage and drive from there to the high road before that car could reach the mouth of the private lane.

As we came to the apron—

"I'll take the horses," said Helena.

"You go and get your things."

As she caught my bridle, I flung myself off the bay.

In my bedroom I wasted no time, but snatched up a razor and seized the first clothes I found; yet, ere I was back, the horses were fast in the stables and Helena was returning to take her seat in the Rolls.

Thirty seconds later the Rolls slid over the bridge.

I had often read and heard speak of "an agony of apprehension," but never until that evening, when our headlights sent darkness packing out of that lovely lane, had I understood that terrible state of mind.

Then all at once the truth stood clear before me, and something more sinister than fear took hold of my heart.

The lane was no lane, but a trap—full two miles long. Once we were in, we could no more turn the Rolls round than a man that was buried could turn himself round in his grave.

If only we had stuck to the horses and ridden away across country to take some train. . . . But it was too late now. For better or worse we had chosen this dreadful way.

I set my teeth; and we took the rise before us with the rush of a lift.

As the Rolls swept over the crest, for an instant I lifted my foot—and then in a flash all my suspense was over and its grip was torn from my heart.

Two miles ahead a car had turned into the lane.

Helena caught my arm.

"That's the Carlotta. I know it. What can we do?"

For some extraordinary reason my senses were now as lively as they had been lately dull. I knew no hesitation; my confidence was sublime.

"We back," I said quietly. "What a mercy we hadn't got further. As it is, we've plenty of time. They can't do a mile a minute along this lane."

"But, John—"

I patted her blessed hand.

"Don't worry, my dear. It's all right. Little Arthur has got an idea," and, with that, I put out my headlights and started to take the Rolls back by the glow which her tail-lamp threw.

Two minutes later I backed her over the bridge.

"Can you see their headlights?" I asked.

"Not yet."

I began to swing around to the right, leaving the roadway and backing onto the turf. When I had gone thirty paces, I threw out the clutch.

At once we heard the Carlotta and a moment later we saw the glow of her lights.

The two of us sat in silence, listening and watching, while Pharaoh "came down like the wolf on the fold."

I do not think we were excited—the danger was past. We now were simply waiting for a car to get out of our way.

And so she did.

Well clear of the beam of her headlights, we watched her sweep down the slope and over the bridge; and as she went by to the apron, I let the Rolls leap forward and take her place on the road.

My lights were dimmed and I do not think that they saw us, for their eyes, of course, were looking the opposite way; but in any event the start which we had was deadly, for they must turn the Carlotta and we had the faster car.

As we floated in silence, I touched my companion's sleeve.

"And now where?" said I.

"We'll go to my nurse at Pommers. Her husband's a farmer there, and they'll see us through. And we'll wire to your cousin to join us and start from there."

We had the ways all to ourselves, and, indeed, I believe that we were the only beings awake in that countryside. Twice we sang through a village and now and again we could make out the form of a housestead beneath the trees. So for some 35 miles.

Then the engine of the Rolls coughed twice, and the car slowed down.

As I frowned, the truth came pelting to sear my brain.

"What is it, John? What is it?"

"Petrol," I said hoarsely. "I meant to fill up before we patrolled this even-" ing; but with all this Pharaoh business—

The nearest village lay roughly 11 miles off, and whether it boasted a pump we could not tell.

Carefully I surveyed our surroundings.

The road was a main highway. If I locked her switch and her bonnet, no man could take the Rolls, but, left on the road, she was bound to attract attention—the very sort of attention we wished so much to avoid.

Some forty-five paces ahead a track led into the forest—a decent track; what was more, it ran slightly downhill. If I could manhandle the Rolls as far as its mouth, her weight would help me to carry her out of sight. But the road, though level, was cambered.

While Helena steered and stood by to apply the brake, I moved the Rolls by the spokes of one of her wheels.

The strain was great, for the car was very heavy, and the camber made such a gradient as I could not overcome. In desperation I moved her perhaps six inches towards the crown of the road, and she began to return; and in my effort to hold her before I could cry for the brake I strained or tore some muscle in the small of my back.

I smothered a grunt of pain—too late for Helena's ears, before I had drawn myself up, my lady was standing beside me and asking me how I did.

"You've hurt yourself, John."

"A muscle," said I. "It's nothing. As long as I don't use it, I'll be all right."

Resolutely I regarded the Rolls. "But we'll have to leave her here. As far as shifting her goes, I've shot my bolt."

SHIRTMAKER FROCK IS INDISPENSABLE

A budget-wardrobe is a limited wardrobe, one in which each separate item must play more than one role. The shirtmaker is a very good example of this type of frock, for it's just as smart for country as town, and can go any place during daylight hours and feel well dressed. It's right for classroom and office, too, so includes both school and business girls among its wearers. So simple the vester beginner could make it. Wool or wool-appearing cotton are excellent fabric ideas.

Pattern 2507 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 2½ yards 54 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15¢) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

ENDING THE WAR

By PROF. GILBERT MURRAY

I SEE with astonishment a tendency in some political circles to depreciate any further action by the League to bring the Ethiopian war to an end on the ground that Italy is sure to be defeated in the long run and that the Ethiopians, the rains and the mountains between them may safely be trusted to do the League's job. This policy seems to me entirely to miss the point at issue. The question is not whether Italy can beat Ethiopia or Ethiopia beat Italy; it is whether the League can be trusted to put an end to an aggressive war.

As a practical policy, this plan of letting the war drag on seems to me about the worst conceivable. It inflicts a maximum of distress and social danger on the Italian nation and a maximum of prolonged war and suffering on the Ethiopians. It would show the League to be a body without either courage or conscience and betray the whole principle of collective security.

A CRISIS FOR AMERICA

By JAMES P. WARBERG

THE year 1936 will be more than the ordinary Presidential year. It will be a year of far-reaching decision for this country. And, more than that, I am convinced that the decision which the American people will make at the polls next autumn will have an important bearing not only upon our own history but upon the history of many other countries.

We are the world's outstanding example of a constitutional democracy. Upon our success or failure may well depend the future of the democratic principle of government throughout western civilization. Add our success or failure as a constitutional democracy may easily hinge upon the outcome of the elections which we shall hold this autumn.

CAPITALISM ON TRIAL

By HENRY A. WALLACE

IT SEEMS to me that a universally appealing economic formula might read somewhat as follows: Our national economic goal must be increased balanced production of the things which people really need and want (1) at prices low enough so consumers can buy, but high enough so producers can keep on producing, and with income so distributed that no one is shut off from participation in consumption, except those who refuse to work; (2) with scrupulous regard for the conservation of our remaining natural resources; and (3) by means characteristic of our traditional democratic processes.

I would like to ask those classical economists who have defended the capitalist system, as it has come down to us out of the past, if they would agree with me that the strongest criticism which can be made of it is that it has permitted and encouraged the ruthless and rapid exploitation of our natural resources without regard to the future.

Comparative Gas Mileage

Those who would drive at an excessive rate of speed must expect to pay for the privilege, judging from tests conducted by the American Automobile association. Different makes of cars were tested at various speeds, and the ratio of gas and oil consumption speed was found to be about the same. An automobile which goes 18 miles on a gallon of gasoline at 30 miles per hour will go but 12 at 60 and 8 at 80. Oil consumption is seven times greater at 55 miles per hour than at 30.—Pathfinder Magazine.

WET BREWERS' GRAINS

During the past week we have had several inquiries about the value of wet brewers' grains. Wet brewers' grains usually contain about 75 per cent water. They are worth only 13 per cent as much from a protein standpoint as 43 per cent cottonseed meal and about one-fifth as much as a source of total digestible nutrients as corn. Wet brewers' grains are worth about one-fourth as much as dried brewers' grains.

As much as 30 pounds of wet brewers' grains may be fed per cow per day.

Wet brewers' grains do not taint milk unless permitted to spoil in the barn.

Storing wet brewers' grains: They will keep about a week in good condition providing they are kept in a reasonably cool place. Compacting the wet grains into containers seems to be of help in keeping them for about a week. Salt is frequently placed in top of different layers as the feed is put into the containers.

Silage from wet brewers' grains: Some dairymen have successfully stored wet brewers' grains in a silo during the summer months when they are cheap. This material was tramped as it was placed in the silo. The wet brewers' grains become sour, which does not impair their feeding value.

Feeding value of wet brewers' grains per bushel: Wet brewers' grains are usually purchased on the bushel basis. The weight per bushel depends on the moisture content. However, a bushel of wet brewers' grains usually weighs about 40 pounds and contains the equivalent of 10 pounds of the dried brewers' grains.

HOWELL FARMERS' CLUB

The Howell farmer's club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Ernest Lawson of Howell. A. C. Baltzer, extension dairymen, Michigan State College, addressed the club. He stated that Michigan dairymen are placing more herds under test for record production in order to further decrease costs.

With the growing demand for cattle with records from buyers both within and from outside of Michigan, cows with records are more valuable than they have been for several years.

The outlook for dairying indicates no great advance in price for butter fat due to the huge volume of butter available in foreign countries, particularly New Zealand and such European countries as Denmark, Holland and Latvia.

Feed prices have held steady so that farmers are equipped with plenty of home-grown feeds are able to produce 100 pounds milk at one-tenth less feed cost this January than they were able to produce it a year ago.

"To get the best dairy results, continuous testing over a period of years is most practical," said A. C. Baltzer. Dairy records are proving more valuable in that they not only show the value of proper feeding, but they also point out the inheritance of sires, the long time ability of brood cows and the general balance of the entire dairy enterprise.

Transforming the Common Task

IT IS safe to say that the great majority of individuals perform the usual routine duties over and over again. It is not difficult for them to force when they arise in the morning just what the day's work will be, and if the work is of a somewhat uninteresting character the performance of it may be allowed to descend into a mere perfunctory operation, a mechanical round, which affords little pleasure to the individual.

There are few things more delightful than the ability to look forward to one's daily work and to enter upon it with zest and spontaneity. The "trivial round," the common task, becomes transformed when performed in this way. Sixth is banished, and any sense of drudgery abolished. Duties which might otherwise seem monotonous or arduous, if not indeed onerous, are lightened when the heart, having learned something of the true nature of service, sings at its work.

George Herbert must have recognized this fact when he wrote, "Who sweeps a room as for Thy Shrine, makes that the action fine."

In fact, the efficient performance of our common task is often the first step to the gaining of a more responsible and congenial one. Improvement in any phase of our experience must begin right where we are. Today, the present moment, is ours in which to make a new beginning from which to transform our activity in the "trivial round," the common task, into something approaching perfection.

The keynote of such transformation lies in an apprehension of the truth about God and man's relationship to Him. As it is seen that God, Spirit, is the author or creator of spiritual perfection, only, as must inevitably be the case, it is also seen that the man of His creating must be, and is, spiritual and perfect; for like can only produce like. What a new and delightful incentive for righteous and useful living comes with such a revelation! How changed becomes one's outlook upon life in general! Not personal aggrandizement or gain, but opportunity for helpful service becomes one's chief concern. Unselfed love has been admitted into thought, and has begun its benevolent reign in our everyday experience. No greater blessing could possibly be ours.

It has been truly said that in the study of astronomy it is necessary to take one's mental stand outside of the earth before a correct view of the universe can be gained. In like manner it is impossible to obtain an accurate estimate of our surroundings or environment until we mentally posit ourselves outside of matter. To the extent that this is done are we able to appraise things for just what they are, for then have we gained a new standard of values. Unimportant things no longer concern us unduly. We are not swayed or disturbed by trifles. Our grasp on spiritual reality steadies judgment, purifies purpose, and clarifies vision. Is it any wonder that he who is attaining this peace and consequent efficiency finds himself in greater demand to fill useful and responsible positions? The Bible promise (Matthew 25:21), "Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things," may be proved by each one of us today.

This being "faithful over a few things" may be the very thing which is testing our mettle and proving our trustworthiness. In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 223) Mary Baker Eddy writes, "If faithful over a few things," we shall be made rulers over many; but the one unused talent decays and is lost."

Is the only talent which we seem to possess the ability to perform some simple task well and efficiently today, and to do the next thing that comes to hand and do it thoroughly? Then we should use it. Such use fits us for a wider sphere of action, and at the same time transforms our present experience into something uplifting and ennobling. Mrs. Eddy also writes in her work "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 178), "Never absent from your post, never off guard, never ill-humored, never unready to work for God,—is obedience; being faithful over a few things." Each laborer contributes working "as for Thy law," and receives its own reward.—The Christian Science Monitor.

THE LEISURE CLASS

J. P. Morgan seems to have stirred up a regular mares nest in his recent interview, when he classified the leisure class as all those able to hire a maid. Wide exception is taken to this, and it seems to be the general conception that a majority of those who hire maids do not belong to the leisure or wealthy class. In the cities many women hire maids so that they can themselves, work. In Pinckney, many people have had maids at one time or another for various reasons, but the only members of the leisure class here are those who get a night's free lodging in the village fire hall or bastille.

This has started about as much comment as the recent statement of Eugene Elliott, Supt. of Public Instruction, that it was entirely the business of the teachers themselves, what they did with their time outside of school hours.

Public men should be careful of their statements, especially when they will be published. The Detroit Free Press points out to inaccuracies in the speech of Theodore Roosevelt Jr. at Grand Rapids, Saturday night. In it he referred to the Democratic speeches at the recent Jefferson Day banquets. However, these speeches he referred to were made at Jackson Day banquets. Also he stated that Jefferson was one of the framers and signers of the constitution. The Free Press says Jefferson was in France at the time the constitution was drawn up, being ambassador there, and did not return until several years later. Then he opposed the constitution bitterly and was only induced to accept it after the bill of rights had been added to it.

Sanctions

RECENT actions by the League of Nations in Geneva have brought to the attention of men a meaning of the word "sanction" which is somewhat unfamiliar to many people. It may be defined as that which is designed to induce the observance of law or to preserve the integrity of mutual agreements. The applying of sanctions to a nation which has disregarded a covenant may be considered by that nation as coercive or as punitive, while other nations would regard the application of sanctions as a means of correction to the offender, and of protection to others.

It will be acknowledged by any Bible student that Jesus understood, obeyed, and demonstrated the will or law of God. He said, as we are told in John (8:30), "I can of mine own self do nothing; as I hear, I judge; and my judgment is just; because I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me." And, in showing that the will or law of God is beneficent in its effect, the Master healed the sick, gave sight to the blind, and hearing to the deaf; he liberated the sin-bound, and overcame death.
