Those persons who have been putting out food for pheasants and other game birds, are asked by the conservation department to put some grit in it, otherwise the birds cannot digest it. At Allegan twenty-two pheasants were found dead last week. Exninination showed all of their crops full of corn which they were unable to digest, as the deep snow prevented them from getting their accustomed supply of grit or gravel. A flock of 3,000 pheasants is being fed in one game refuge near Allegan.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted By WILL: AM BRUCKART

Washington.—Through some months past, Cordell Hull, secretary of state, has been proceeding

Canadian cautiously and quiet-Trade Pact ly in the negotiation of trade agreements with foreign nations. His work has attracted comparatively little public attention although throughout the negotiations individual economic interests who stood to gain or lose depending upon their lines of business have made known their feelings quite emphatically. Six of these trade agreements, now called trade treaties, had been consummated in this manner. When the seventh agreement came along, however, the story was different. That was the treaty with our northern neighbor, Canada.

It is impossible here to set forth the list of commercial products encompassed in the new trade agreement Some stucco walls may be washed with Canada. I doubt if most of the people of this country ever will know details of that treaty. By the nature face is much more satisfactory than of things, few persons can be interested in all of the items. But, I do not believe that it is the question of When pressing neckties, cut a individual interest in the entire list that ought to concern us. Aside from the and slip inside of it. Cover tie the policy involved in the negotiation anti agreement on tariff concessions. to the average individual lies in the one or two, or half a dozen at most, Always iron ecra linens on the items that affect each one personally.

I do not mean to say that the policy is decidedly true. From a political standpoint, of course, it is general policy that will be debated; from an individual standpoint it will be the direct effect that execution of that policy has on each of us that will determine our ultimate views and to that extent determine whether we will be for or against the general policy of reducing tariffs enacted against certain kinds of imports.

The new agreement with Canada takes effect January 1-provided the Canadian parliament Had ratifies it. No such Free Hand ratification is necessary in this country. The treaty was negotiated by Mr. Hull and President Roosevelt under the authority granted by congress in legislation passed a year ago which gave to the President the privilege of working out trade treaties without further congressional sanction. That law restricted the President in only one way. namely, the requirement that an increase or reduction of tariff rates included in those trade treaties may not exceed 50 per cent of the rate fixed in the present tariff laws. So it is seen that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull had virtually complete authority. - It will operate for three years and, as far as L have been able to discover, it will be effective after Canadian ratification and there will be nothing anyhody can do about-it, be it good or bad.

In making public the agreement negotiated by Mr. Hull with Prime Minister MacKenzie King, the President asserted his belief that the agreement will initiate or revive a flow of commerce back and forth across our northern frontier in a manner that will be most helpful. He considered that the agreement would mean additional markets for some of our products and therefore additional work for some of our unemployed. The Canadian prime minister was of the opinion that in this agreement a long step had been taken toward healing a breach that has existed between the two countries for 69 years. He was hopeful, like President Roosevelt, that the channels of trade again will be filled, perhaps not to the levels of the boom days of 1928 and 1929, but would again carry satisfactory volume. "

It will be recalled that our shipments to Canada in 1930 amounted to about $900,000,000. The depression cut those shipments to approximately $300,000,000 last year. So, if the predictions of the President and Mr. Mac-Kenzie King are in any way fulfilled, a considerable traffic is due to begin upon the operation of this new treaty.

Any discussion of the treaty, however, that failed to call attention to basic conditions, in my opinion, would be short of its goal. So, it seems to me that while the President and the Canadian prime minister hold such high hope for trade revival, one ought not forget that trade will not flow if no market, no demand, exists for the goods. It may well be that by reducing the tariff duties that must be paid at the frontier on goods enumerated in the treaty that a reduction in prices will follow. It may then follow that the consequent reduction in prices will stir up a demand for the products. But that is not certain.

Now from the political standpoint. examination of the treaty must take into consideration in-

Political dividual items. And how those individual Stand point items affect communities and economic interests in this country. Already, we here in Washington have been deluged with the complaints of certain communities against provisions of the treaty. Likewise, we have heard those previsions praised from other sections. Thus, from the political standpoint we see developing a fine old fight over the tariff.

Tariff questions are and always have been sectional questions. Industrial communities want to be protected against inroads of foreign competition where labor is cheaper. Agriculture wants to be pretected against imports from bountiful producing lands in those countries where vast open spaces and high productivity exist at the minimum of cost. Importers and consumers of imported products always have fought and always will fight to have low tariff rates so that the things they buy may enter this country at the lowest possible price. With reference to the Canadian treaty, these same conditions exist.

Early outbursts indicate that cattle raising communities and dairy producing sections are up in arms because the treaty reduced a tariff protection accorded against imports of cattle and cattle products and the products of the dairy.

Lumber interests are upset. It is true that the lumber market in the United States has been in the doldrums for several years and naturally the lumber people do not want to have Canadian shipments absorb what little market they have.

These are just a few of the complaints. They are offset partially at least by the praise and the hopes of feel that they can now market their products in Canada. Without even a careful analysis of the more than seven hundred items involved in the treaty, it is to be seen that there will be possible markets available after January 1 to a number of agricultural lines and to some industrial interests. Yet it remains, as I said earlier, for the passage of time to disclose exactly whether the net result will be favorable to us commercially or whether the Canadians have put over a fine bargain from their standpoint.

All of the discussion about the Canadian treaty, however, brings back memory. As a result Political of these recollec-Dynamite tions, I dug back the other day into the congressional debates of 1911 when a Canadian reciprocity agreement was under consideration, backed by the late William Howard Taft. After reading those debates, particularly the observations of the late and distinguished Champ Clark of Missouri and Representative George Norris, now a senator from Nebraska, I could not fall to realize the political dynamite embodied in the new course of international trade relations adopted by President Roosevelt. It was the Canadian reciprocity proposal that defeated Mr. Taft for re-election to the Presidency. It was, indeed, that controversy that caused the organization of the Bull Moose party and that sent Mr. Taft Into political obliv...n.

I am not predicting here that the same consequences are in store for President Roosevelt but it is fair to recall, it seems to me, that the reciprocity proposal of 1911 burned the fingers of every political leader who touched it. The cases are not exactly comparable nor analogous. Mr. Rooseveit has retained a number of tariff duties which were swept aside in the proposed Taft recoprocity arrangement. He is therefore fortified to that extent. But you may be sure that those who sponsor the present Canadian agreement are going to meet the same sort of fight that was made against the Taft proposal.

Then there is in the current treaty circumstance another factor to be considered. It links back to the Champ Clark observations which were made on February 14, 1911. At that time, Mr. Clark was expressing the view that the reciprocity agreement constituted a step at least in the direction of universal peace. In the debate just mentioned, Mr. Norris asked Mr. Clark to elaborate on his view concerning the value of the agreement as an instrument of peace.

"I wanted to ask the gentleman a question along the line of universal peace," said Mr. Norris. "As I understand it, the gentleman favors the bill for at least one reason—that it will have a tendency to bring Canada into the Union."

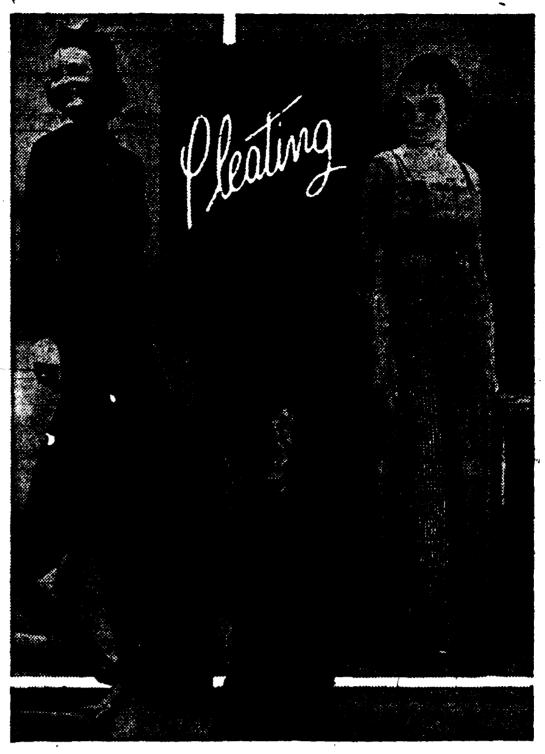

"Yes." Mr. Clark replied. / "I have no doubt about that. I do not have any doubt whatever that day is not far distant when Great Britain will joyfully see all of her North American possessions become a part of this republic. That is the way things are now tending."

So, if the controversy over the present Canadian tariff agreement becomes violent. I think it is fair to expect that again we will hear the question discussed whether the United States is seeking to annex Canada-to make Canada part and parcel of the United States. Of course, as far as anyone can see today, annexation of Canada is inconceivable but the incident is related here simply to show how farreaching such controversies may be

Designers in a Mood for Pleating

TO BY CHERIE NICHOLAS

DLEATS, pleats and nothing but well-groomed appearance to the frock the smartest fashions this season. suede belt in the same color provide some other phases of agriculture such | Turn where one will in the realm of | bright contrast. This dress is the costume decign, there's an orgy of intriguing pleated effects "carrying on." So let's keep up with the mode while we talk about pleats, pleated and being pleated.

Prench designers, especially, are not leaving anything unpleated that could, should and must be pleated according to their idea of things. Their pleated mood pertains to daytime fashions as well as those of highest evening formality. The all-over pleated gown reflecting Grecian inspiration is a highlight in evening modes. Evening capes to go with these lovely creations are also completely pleated in waistline or longer lengths. In daytime fashions the all-over pleated dress, has also been received with acclaim

However, all-over pleating is only one phase of the subject, for the use of pleats is embracing every sort from the tiniest of sprightly pleated edgings which run hither and thither about hemlines and up and down, flanking each side of neat buttoned closings which sometimes extend from head to foot. Some designers there are who make a feature of pleated tiers and apron fronts and pleated sleeves.

the pleated conspiracy with a noble and jeweler buckle of the belt. gesture. Most of them seem made just to be pleated—fairly invite one to pleat them. Take the all-silk black crepe which is so ultra smart for daytime dresses. It pleats to perfection. A statement that does not need a second telling after one glimpses the stunning gown in the center of the illustration. Pleated every inch of the way is this black silk crepe afternoon dress. The pleats are stitched down at the neck, shoulders and waist, giving a fitted pleats, is the message of many of A green clasp at the throat and a much talked-of Molyneaux which is meeting with such outstanding success this season.

An effective treatment of wider pleats in a black silk crepe dress for the young girl, is pictured to the left. The pleats are stitched with tailored precision about the hipline and released half way down the skirt so as to slenderize at the same time that it provides a flared hemline. The bodice is a modified shirtwaist with tiny metal buttons in front.

Speaking of the new materials adapting themselves so readily to the pleated mode, the new silk lame weaves. many of which are sheer and tissuelike in texture, enter into the scheme of things with infinite grace. If you are wanting a lovely gown for prom gayety, here it is at the right in the group pictured. Shirrings and pleats go fifty-fifty in the instance of this ultra chic and adorable evening dress made of silver silk lame. The shirred top is held by narrow double straps. and the decolletage is outlined by a tiny band of pleats. The pleated theme continues in the skirt, held well in place by the crispness of the silk The new fabrics are entering into thame. The only trimming is the metal

> Among the pleated triumphs in evening fashions are the perfectly charming airy-fairy-floating visions of silk chiffon, most lovely, perhaps, in white but which set your heart throbbing at faster pace in any of the new jewel colors or pastel shades. Sometimes only the akirt is pleated, but when it is, it's done so artfully it flutters out like a fleeting cloud or a mist enveloping the figure.

WEAR TO SCHOOL By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Is the "what to give for Christmas" problem beginning to disturb your peace of mind? If it's Junior or little sister you have in mind, the answer will be found in the picture. To become the happy possessor of a piggrain three-quarter length coat just like big brother's is enough to bring a big smile to any little boy. Little girls have a liking for leather coats, toe, for no doubt they have beard their elders declare that leather's the thing for trocks with billowy white sleves—a amest aports week, --....

FUR CAPES RICHER; OF MANY VARIETIES

Fur capes are richer than they have been in years. Full-length evening models are made of strips of silver fox running from shoulder to hem-one very elegant one boasting twenty fullsized animal skins. Knee-length day capes are fashioned of mink, silver fox, dyed red fox or moleskin, while any number of shorter capes appear in astrakhan, nutria or broadtail.

Occasionally the fur capes for day wear are cut with broad shoulders and little fullness below so that they hang straight, though more often they have some flare.

New Soft Wool Weaves Are

Proving Popular Just Now With wool increasing in fashion importance, and women's insistence on being comfortable indoors as well as out, something pretty definite has been done in this year's weaves for the interests of all concerned.

This year's domestic weaves are as soft as chiffon, warm enough for all normal purposes, and have taken on an additional silky finish, adding to wearing enjoyment.

Colors have never been more flattering. That day has gone when winter means somber tones, and the "little wool frock" to wear underneath the tweed coat or the fur sport coat may be as gay and colorful as one's temperament demands.

Whiter Blowses

White silk blouses should never be hung out to dry as it will yellow them. Wrap them in towels until ironias. If they become yellowed in spite of your precattion, use a little whitening in the rinse waetr.

> OUR FOREIGN POLICY By CORDELL HULL Secretary of State.

OUR policy as a member of the community of nations should be twofold-first, to avoid being brought into a war and, second, to promote as far as possible the interests of international peace and good-will.

In summary, while our primary aim should be to avoid involvement in other people's difficulties and hence to lessen our chances of being drawn into a war, we should, on appropriate occasions and within reasonable bounds, use our influence toward the prevention of war and the miseries that attend and follow in its wake. STATE HAS FILE OF MISSING MEN

Few persons can change their places of residence without, as a matplaces of residence without, as a matter of routine, notifying certain commercial firms with which dealings or accounts are maintained. Relatively few licensed drivers of motor vehicles in the state have ever realized that the same law which requires that they be licensed also stipulates that they must notify the Department of State "immediately" of any change in residence address. Notification is made through local police and sheriff's headquarters; these officials have proper notification forms.

The 1931 licensing statute provides that failure to have any change of address recorded in the prescribed manner may be cause for revocation or suspension of an operator's crechauffer's license.

The Department of State has been unable, on many occasions, to furnish the correct hame address of licensed operators in this state when the appeal for aid in locating people sought was for the purpose of notifying friends or relatives of injuries or even death. "Missing' persons have been sought in the records of the Department of State by relatives who knew that the person sought was a licensed automobile driver in Michigan. In unsuccessful cases, failure to locate the missing person was attributed only to negligence on the part of the operator to file his change of address, whenever made, with the Department of State.

Air Service to China Will Force New Travel Concept

You can now buy an air ticket to carry you to the Orient. It will put you on board the "China Clipper" in San Francisco bay late in the afternoon. You will be settled in a comfortable compartment in time for dinmer-dinner beneath a star-studded aky far above the highest clouds of the eastern Pacific. You will roll out of a larger-than pullman berth to thrill at the early morning sun splashing gold over Honolulu harbor.

Then on again, by daylight now, over a necklace of surf-ringed cordl keys to the little Midway islands, where a well-appointed inn awaits your overnight stop. A short flight next day to Wake island, a tiny dot in the vast Pacific. There, too, you pass a night. Another daylight flight. A night on Guam. The next night finds you in exotic yet modern Manila. Then the following morning you step ashore for luncheon, in Daniel Sayre in Cosmopolitan.

Spelling Habits A Columbia university professor has been keeping score and finds that "regrettable" is our most misspelled word. This is easily explained by the times. In the good old days when there weren't so many things that were regrettable we mispelled other words, notably gorgeous, delectable and irresistible.—Kansas City Star.

SYNOPSIS

The youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe has as her guest her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden. 🔺 stranger, exhausted, finds his way to Marcia's home. He asks her to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery nearby. The atranger gives his name as Stanley Heath. Sylvia discovers the jewels, and naturally believes Heath is a robber, but decides to say nothing. Marcia feels she has too deep an interest in her guest, but is powerless to overcome it. Heath wires "Mrs. S. C. Heath," New York, saying he is safe. He also orders a man named Currier to come at once. Sylvia, in her room, bedecks herself with the jewels. At Marcia's approach she hides them there. Heath asks Marcia to bring them to him. They are gone! Sylvia restores the jewels to their original hiding place. Elisha Winslow discovers them and has no doubt they are the stolen gems, and Heath is a thief. Leaving the jewels, he makes plans for arresting Heath. Currier arrives. Marcia overhears Heath describe how he acquired the gems, and is forced to believe him guilty of theft. Currier investigates the hiding place—and finds the gems! He returns to New York with them, but his references to "Mrs. Heath" have convinced Marcia her tender dream has been a foolish one. Elisha and Eleaser come to arrest Heath. The jewels, of course, are not to be found. To Sylvia has faith in his innocence. She tells she believes him innocent, but urges him, if he is guilty, to confess. He admits nothing, but compels her to confess she loves him, also telling her he is giving himself up to the sheriff. She insists this must be the and of their association, and he, thinking she will not face the "disgrace," reproaches and leaves her.

Then she swayed, caught at a chair and shrank into it, her body shaking and her breath coming in gasping, hysterical sobs.

The clock ticked on, the surf broke in muffled undertone, the light faded; the candles burned lower, flickered and overflowed the old pewter candle sticks; and still she sat there, her tearless, dilated eyes fixed straight before her.

Having no inkling of a change in the delightful relations that had for the past week prevailed in the Homestead, the atmosphere that greeted Sylvia when she came down the next morning was a shock.

Stanley Heath stood at the telephone talking to Elisha Winslow and on the porch outside were grouped his suitcase, overcoat and traveling rug. He was plainly ill, at ease and had little except the most commonplace remarks to offer in way of conversation.

Marcia had not slept, as her pallor and the violet shadows beneath her eyes attested.

Although the girl did not understand, she sensed Marcia's need of her and rushed valiantly into the breachfilling every awkward pause with her customary sparkling chatter.

When at length the meal was cut short by the arrival of Elisha Winslow, all three of the group rose with unconcealed relief.

"Wal, Mr. Heath, I see you're expectin' me," grinned the sheriff, pointing toward the luggage beside the door.

"I am, Mr. Winslow." "I've got my boat. Are you ready to come right along?"

"Quite ready."

Heath went to Sylvia and took her

"Thank you very much," murmured he formally, "for all you've done for me. I appreciate it more than I can say. And you, too, Mrs. Howe." "I wish you luck, Mr. Heath," called Sylvia.

"Thanks." "And I, too," Marcia rejoined in a voice scarcely audible. To this the man offered no reply. They followed him to the door. It was then that Marcia sprang forward and caught Elisha's arm. "Where are you taking him, Elisha?" she demanded, a catch in her voice. "Remember, Mr. Heath has been ill You must not risk his getting cold or suffering any discomfort."

"You need have no worries on that score, Marcia," replied the sheriff kindly, noticing the distress in her face. "I'll look out for him."

"Where is he going?" "To my house for the present," Ellshe answered. "I've a comfortable spare room an' I figger to put him in it 'til I've questioned him an' verified his

"Meantime, nobody in town will be the wiser. I ain't even tellin' May Ellen why Mr. Heath's at the house. If I choose to harbor comp'ny, that's my business. Not a soul 'cept Eleaser's in on this affair an' he's keepin' mum. When him an' me decide we've got the truth, we'll act-not before," .

"That relieves my mind very much. Mr. Heath is-you see he-" "He's a tries I of yours-I ain't forgettin' that, I s all treat him 'cordin'ly.

"Thank you, Elisha—thank you a hundred times."

There was nothing more to be said. Heath bowed once again and the two men walked down to the float where they clambered with the luggage into Elisha's dory and put out into the channel.

Sylvia loitered to wave her hand and watch them row away, but Marcia, as if unable to bear the sight, waited for no further farewell.

But by noon she was, to outward appearances, entirely herself. She had not been able, to be sure, to banish her pallor or the traces of sleeplessness: but she had her emotions sufficiently under control to talk pleasantly, if not gaily.

That day and the next passed in much the same strained fashion. It was not until the third morning that the barriers between the two colkapsed.

Marcia had gone into the living room to write a letter. She sat down before the desk and started to take up her pen when Sylvia heard her utter "What's the matter, dear?" called the girl, hurrying into the other room. As Sylvia came nearer, Marcia bowed her head upon the desk and began to sob as if her heart would break. "Oh, how could he!" moaned the woman. "How could he be so cruel!"

"What has happened, Marcia?" "Stanley-he has left a checkmoney-thrown it in my face! And I did it so gladly—because I loved him. He knew that. Yet he could leave this—pay me—as if I were a common servant. I had rather he struck mea hundred times rather."

The girl took the check. It was filled out in Stanley Heath's clear, strong hand and was for the sum of a hundred dollars.

"How detestable of him!" she exclaimed. "Tell me, Marcia-what happened between you and Mr. Heath! You quarreled-of course I know that But why-why? I have not wanted to ask, but now-"

"I'll tell you everything, Sylvia. I'd rather you knew. I thought at first I could keep it to myself, but I cannot. I need you to help me, dear."

Marcia unfolded the story of her blind faith in Stanley Heath; her love for him-a love she could neither resist nor control—a love she had known from the first to be hopeless. She confessed how she had struggled to conceal her feelings; how he himself had resisted a similar attraction in her: how at last he had discovered her secret and forced her to betray it.

"Of course I realized we could not go on," she explained bravely. "That we loved one another was calamity enough. All that remained was for him to go away and forget me-return to his wife, his home, and his former life. Soon, if he honestly tries, this infatuation will pass and everything will be as before. - Men forget more easily than women. Absence, too, will help."

"And you, Marcia?" "I cannot give up my love: It is all I have now. Oh, I do not mean to mourn over it, pity myself, make life unhappy. Instead, I shall be glad, thankful. You will see. This experience will make every day of living richer. You need have no fears for me, Sylvia. You warned me, you know," concluded she with a pathetic little smile.

"I was a brute! I ought to have shielded you more, the girl cried. "I could have, had I realized. Well, I can yet do something, thank heaven. Give me that check."

"What do you mean to do?" "Return it, of course-return it before Stanley Heath leaves town. I'll take it over to Eilsha Winslow's now. this minute."

"I wonder-yes, probably that will be best. You won't, I suppose, be allowed to see Stanley," speculated she timidly. "If you should-" "Well?"

("Don't say anything harsh, Sylvia. Please do not blame him. or-" "I'll wring his neck!" was the emphatic retort. "Oh, please—please dear—for my sake! I can't let you go if you go in that spirit," pleaded Marcia in alarm. "There, there-you need not worry for fear I shall maltreat your Romeo, richly as he deserves it," was the response. "I could kill him-but I won't -because of you. Nevertheless, I warn you that if I get the chance I shall tell him what I think of him. He is terribly to blame and ought to realize it. No married man has any business playing round with another woman."

"I am half afraid to let you go, my breath." Sylvia." "You don't trust me? Don't you be- She shook her head.

lieve I love you?" "I am afraid you love me too much,

"I do love you, Marcia. I never dreamed I could care so intensely for anyone I have known for so short a time. What you did for my mother alone would make me love you. But aside from gratitude there are other reasons. I love you for your own splendid self, dear. Please do not fear to trust me. I promise you I will neither be unjust nor bitter."

"Take the check then and go. wish I were to see him."

"Well, you're not! Let him do the explaining and apologising. Let him grovel at your feet. That's what he ought- to do!"

"You won't tell him that." "I don't know what I shall tell him." "Please Sylvia! You promised, remember." "Don't fret. Some of the mad will he taken out of me before I see Mr. Heath. Kiss me and wish me luck. Marcia. You do believe I will try to be wise, don't you?" "Yes, deer. Yes!"

"That's right. You really can trust me, you know. I'm not so bad as !

Tucking the check into the wee pocket of her sweater. Sylvia caught up her pert beret and perched it upon

"So long!" she called, looking back over her shoulder as she opened the door. "So long, Marcia! I'li be back as soon as ever I can."

The haste with which she disappeared, suddenly precipitated her into the arms of a young man who stood upon the steps preparing to knock.

"Hortie Fuller," cried Sylvia breathlessly. "Hortie! Where on earth did you come from?"

Her arms closed about his neck and he had kissed her twice before she swiftly withdrew, rearranging her curls and saying coldly:

"I cannot imagine what brought you here, Horatio."

CHAPTER XI

"I can't imagine," repeated Sylvia, still very rosy and flustered, but with her most magnificent air, "what brought you to Wilton-I really cannot."

"Can't you?" grinned Horatio cheerfully.

"No. I cannot" From his superior height of sixfeet-two, he looked down at her meager five feet, amusement twinkling in his

Sylvia, however, was too intent on patting her curls into place to heed his glance.

"You wrote me to come, didn't you?" he presently inquired.

"I wrote you to come!" "Well, at least you led me to suppose you'd like it if I were here," persisted Horatic. "Toward the bottom of page two you said: 'I am positively homesick'; and in the middle of the back of page three you wrote: 'It seems years since I've seen you.' " "What if I did?" answered the girl with a disdainful shrug.

Nevertheless the dimples showed her cheeks.

"And that isn't all," Horatio went on. "At the end of page five you wrote: 'Would that you were here'!" Sylvia bit her lip.

"That was only a figure of speech -what is called poetic license." "Then you didn't mean it when you said you wished I was here."

Horatio was obviously disappointed. "Why, of course I am pleased to see you, Horatio. It is very nice of you to come to the Cape to meet my aunt

"Darn your aunt!" he scowled. "I didn't come to see her. I am not interested in aunts."

"Take care! I happen to be very keen on this aunt of mine. If she didn't like you, you might get sent home. Don't be horrid, Hortie. I truly am glad you've come. You must make allowance for my being surprised. I haven't got over it yet. How in the world ald you contrive to get away at this season? And what sort of a trip did you have?" "Swell! I stopped overnight in New York at the Gardners. Mother wanted me to deliver a birthday cake to Estelle, who, you may remember, is the mater's god-daughter. She's a pippin, too. I hadn't seen her since she graduated from Vassar."

Sylvia listened. She did not need to be told about the Gardners,

They had visited Horatlo's family more than once and rumor had it the elders of both families would be delighted were the young people to make a match of it. "I'm surprised you did not stay longer in New York," Sylvia observed, gazing reflectively at her white shoe. "New York wasn't my objective. I came on business, you see. Dad gave me two months off so I could get married."

Sylvia jumped. "I was not aware you were engaged," murmured she in a formal far-away tone.

"I'm not," came frankly from Horatio Junior. "But I'm going to be. In fact I chance to have the ring with me this minute. Want to see it?" "I always enjoy looking at jewels," was her cautious retort. Horatio felt of his pockets. "Where on earth did I put that thing?" he muttered. "Hope I haven't lost it. Oh, here it is." He took out a tiny velvet case and sprang the catch. "Qh, Hortie! Isn't it beautiful!" Sylvia cried. "It fairly takes away

"Try it on." "It wouldn't fit me. My hands are too small." "It's a small ring. Here. Put it on," he urged, holding it toward her. "Well, I suppose I might try it to please you. But I know it will be too large." She slipped it on her finger. "Why, it does fit. How odd!"

"Very odd indeed," he answered drily, as she reached her hand out into the sun and turned the diamonds so that they caught the light.

"Looks rather well on, doesn't it?" was his comment

"It is a beautiful ring." Horatio, standing behind her, twice extended his arms as if to gather her into them and twice withdrew them, deciding the action to be premature. At length with a determined squaring of his shoulders, he locked his hands behind him and stood looking on while she continued to twist the ring this way and that. "Well," yawned he after an interval. "I suppose I may as well put it back in the box." (TO BE CONTINUED)

More Humble About Our Opinions in New Kinship

At the moment, many people are deploring "a lack of leadership" in religion, says Lloyd C. Douglas in Cosmopolitan. "In my opinion, the confessed bewilderment of the churches is a sign of health and progress. The recent use of the soft pedal has made the prophet of more value to the people. They sense an Intellectual kinship with the honest man who admits he is a bit at a loss to know exactly where we are.

"Editors who were used to saying the last word necessary for the adequate instruction of their constituents are writing in phrases tempered by a new shyness. Statesmen, teachers, parents, even half-grown children are no longer laying down their beliefs with a bang. We are all becoming humble about our opinions. This is the type of kinship we have needed more seriously than any other. It is somewhere along this road that we may find our peace."

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well - Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any prepara-tion you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it - in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin. We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, ier the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains ... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

"Where the troop plans to come to camp as a group and to go on a three-day adventure trip as a group, it's just a matter of good business to file your registrations early," Scout Executive Walter MacPeek said.

Spring Camp in April
As a locking-forward experience, two three-day spring camps are planned to take place during the spring vacation. One camp to be held April 17th, 8th, and 9th, and the other April 17th, 15th, and 16th. Each spring camp is limited to 30 scouts. Enrollments are being made now.

Well, it looks as if the booting contest of Congressman O'Connor vs. Rev. Coughlin would not come off, as the congressman seems to have backed water some. If we remember right, E. D. Stair of the Detroit Free Press was also going to sue Rev. Coughlin for slander, but he also reconsidered.

Over Sixty-Eight Years of Safe Banking

Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Campbell and daughter, Leons, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chifford VanHorn.

So Ex-Senator Simeon Fess says he will take a walk if Senator Borah gets the Republican presidential nomination. Fess and Al Smith are not only going back to the horse and buggy days, but way beyond that, to the time when all traveling was done on Shank's horses. This walking should help to boom the shoe business.

FUTURE DAIRY PROSPECTS

We are in receipt of a report from the Holstein-Fresian Association of America, stating that the number of milk cows in the United States is falling off. They give the following figures:

Number of milk cows in the U. S Jan. 1, 1934..... 26,185,000

Total decrease...... 1,685,000 They also estimate that just enough heifers are being raised to maintain the present level. Dairy products held in storage are at the lowest point in some time.

These factors working together, plus the improved general economic conditions places the dairy farmer in a position where better prices and better profits are indicated for some time to come.

Water Front Tea Party This Side of Davy Jones Locker

OH, for the life of a sailor on the icy Atlantic! A few hours earlier the "Acushnet," fishing boat, was picked up by the U.S. Coast Guard foundaring off the Atlantic coast under the weight of waves which froze solid to her rigging, decks and hull. The crew is thawing out with a pot of tee, and steking up for a return battle with the elements. Scores of such craft beat Death to the New York and Boston fishing docks by a hauser length during the zero wave which from the northeast seebeard
