The May 5th, 1936 land sale for delinquent taxes continues to be challenged and suits have been started in various counties to void it, on the grounds that it is illegal. Such suits are now under way in Jackson, Oakland, Bay, Gratiot and other counties. A civil county delegation visited Gov. Fitzgerald last week to urge him to call a special session to declare a moratorium on tax sales. He refused, but promised relief next year. Gov. Fitzgerald's contention is that all this agitation is being stirred up by his political enemies, and all they desire of a special session is an opportunity to get him at a disadvantage.

We still have an open mind as far as the sale is concerned, for the reason that mortatoriums can't endure forever, but on the other hand, all descriptions of property sold for taxes should be corrected. In this country, it is claimed, that there are so many wrong descriptions on the delinquent tax list that not enough revenue will be realized by the sale to pay the expenses of it. It should be someone's business to see that these descriptions are corrected, but at the present time it is apparently no one's.

When the mountain failed to come to Mohammed then Mohammed went to the mountain. A short time ago Ex-Gov. Osborn denounced Senator Cousins as a Democrat, and announced his intention of opposing the senator himself for the nomination providing Wilbur Brucker did not. Now the aged governor is extending the olive branch to the irregular Detroit senator. His reason, he says, is that the Michigan Republican party does not want any inter-party fight which would be sure to follow in case Senator Cousins was blacklisted.

Osborn pointed out that George Gutz, of Chicago, whom he referred to as "the queer treasurer of the Republican National Committee," supported Al Smith in 1928; and that Herbert Hoover, "who is a cross between a political cucumber and blimp," was once a candidate in Democratic primary in Michigan.

There is still another nigger in the wood pile. We have been told that those who claim to know that if the Communist revolution is to come in the primaries, his son, Mayor Frank C. Cavanaugh, of Detroit, may become a Republican candidate for governor.

Yellowstone Bears Develop Gangster Habits—Are Shot

With depression, Yellowstone tourists have grown fewer, hotel scraps scarcer, and bears hungrier. In Washington recently Director Horace Mendenhall announced that the National Park service had been forced to kill 49 Yellowstone black bears and one grizzly last summer and autumn.

The worst offenders among the park's 550 black bears and 175 grizzlies were earmarked or had their feet painted so they would leave tracks when they broke into cabins or motor cars. For repeated offenses the penalty was death by bullet.

"They didn't mean any harm," Mr. Albright said, "but when they developed gangster habits among the tourists . . . we had to kill them."

It always works

Just do what hospitals do, and the doctors insist on. Use a good liquid laxative, and aid Nature to restore clocklike regularity without strain or ill effect.

A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the real secret of relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has become. It gives the right kind of help, and right amount of help. Taking a little less each time, gives the bowels a chance to act of their own accord, until they are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit. The action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve any sluggishness or bilious condition due to constipation without upset.

The Original Milk of Magnesia Wafers

MICHIGAN NEWS BRIEFS

Vassar—Ira W. Green, of Vassar, has been named Royal Chief of the Tin Can Tourists of the World, according to word from Sarasota, Fla.

Lansing—Secretary of State Orville E. Atwood said that March 1 would find at least 250,000 motorists barred from the highways for lack of 1936 license plates or stickers for their cars.

Ann Arbor—University of Michigan enrollment for the second semester totals 8,506, a gain of 641 students or 8.2 per cent over the figure at a comparable date a year ago. Men enrolled number 6,220, women 2,286.

Shelby—Loren Freeman, twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Freeman, bent the bones in his arm when his hands struck a snowdrift at the foot of a coasting hill. X-ray proved that the arm had been bent without fracturing.

Grand Rapids—Membership of the Grand Rapids Camp Fire Girls showed the largest gain from 1934-35 of any council in the United States, according to the national publication. With an increase of 279 members, Grand Rapids heads the list. There are 85 Camp Fire groups, including the Bluebirds; more than 100 leaders and 1,083 Camp Fire girls in the city.

Monroe—Despite protests of commercial air lines and efforts of Monroe authorities to have it continued, the auxiliary landing field at Monroe has been abandoned and the boundary and obstacle lights turned off. The equipment will be removed. Because the city only leased the land, the State refused funds for improvement and maintenance. The Federal airway beacon still is operated.

Bellaire—Margaret Philipp, 17-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Philipp, of Bellaire, has done her part in carrying on the family tradition for obtaining valedictorian honors. Margaret was chosen the valedictorian of the Bellaire High School senior class this year. She is the youngest of three sisters in the family, all of whom have achieved this honor. Her average was 95.71.

Muskegon—The United States Forest service are deeply concerned with the billions of grasshopper eggs under the snow. The grasshoppers have become increasingly numerous in recent years with the most dense infestation in Wexford and the northern part of Lake County. At the Hoxeyville CCC camp, 100 tons of poison grasshopper bait have been stored. This is sufficient poison to cover 40,000 acres.

Ann Arbor—A $5,000 fund providing scholarships for needy undergraduates in the Chemistry department was established by a group of University of Michigan alumni. The fund is a tribute to Dr. Moses Gomberg, professor of organic chemistry and chairman of the University's chemistry division, who becomes professor emeritus at the end of the current semester, Feb. 17. He has taught in the University since 1893.

Kalamazoo—A grade crossing separation in E. Michigan avenue which has been regarded as a need in this city for 30 years is to be realized. An appropriation by the City Commission of a maximum of $100,000 will make possible the construction of a Michigan Highway Department project through a Federal grant. Murray D. Van Wagoner, State highway commissioner, said that the estimated cost of the project was $275,000.

Whitehall—In spite of the extreme cold this winter, the largest fishing village ever known here has sprung up on White Lake. More than 200 fishing shanties dot the ice, which is covered by three feet of snow. Fishing is spiced by battles with the gulls who swarm around looking for an unwatched catch. If a fisherman leaves his catch unguarded, there's a swish of wings and he turns to find he has nothing to show for his day's work.

Lansing—Tax reductions amounting to $10,532,235 were passed on to Michigan citizens in 1935, the State Tax commission announced. The reductions, to be found in reports of most classifications of taxing units, brought the average rate per thousand down from $27.7965 to $26.0953, a cut of $1.6972. The greatest reduction was in the amount of school tax levied. The levy in 1934 was $50,821,229; last year, it was but $46,277,838, a slash of $4,543,391.

Lansing—Welfare case loads in Michigan's three largest cities fell 19.2 per cent in January as compared to the preceding month, the State Emergency Relief Administration reported. Detroit showed the greatest decrease. Its case load fell 22.8 per cent from 25,436 to 19,635 families. Flint's decrease was 20.7 per cent from 2,481 to 1,952 families. In Grand Rapids an increase of 16.2 per cent was reported, 2,726 families in December rising to 3,167 in January.

Ionia—The snowy and frequently zero weather of the month of February made "sissies" out of nearly all of the small group of Ionia pedestrians who held out against overcoats far into the winter. February sent most of them crawling gratefully into heavy coats and jackets. One of the few who remained strong, however, is former Governor Fred W. Green. He could be seen frequently walking the seven blocks from his home to his furniture factory clad in nothing heavier than a business suit and the usual Green smile. He can take it.

Chic Suit, Gay Print Share Honors

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

LET'S go crystal-gazing in search of fashion futures for spring. What do we see? According to the signs of the times it's suits, suits and suits plus, coming in endless procession on the new style program. Indeed, 'tis prophesied that this will be the biggest suit season ever.

Of course a suit means just one lovely, stunning blouse after another, and as to accessories, well, you'll be surprised at the smartness, the cleverness and the color-chic of the bags, and the belts, the scarfs, the gloves and the footwear and gadgets that novel they invite a smile, all of which will play a part in dramatizing the suit theme for spring.

After you get an "eye-full" of suits as revealed in the crystal globe of fashion, turn the other eye. Behold! The picture shifts to a scene of riotous color and startlingly new design for the incoming prints are just that. Birds, fruits, vegetables, postage stamps and newspaper print, are some of the many unique motifs that gay print fabrics are staging this season.

The lesson to be gleaned in this foreboding into fashion's moves is that in assembling the new spring wardrobe one must think in terms of both cloth suit and costume of gay print. One is almost as important as the other in the scheme of fashionable apparel. So count on a budget that makes provision for both.

As to the new suits, their most outstanding message is "mannish" both as to the stunning woollens which fashion them as well as their manner of tailoring. The more "man's-wear" look your suit carries the smarter will it be. The favorite among favorites bids fair to be the strictly tailored short-jacket type buttoned single row or double breasted.

NEW HAT FASHION

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

To say that the new "Rose of the Rancho" hat is making an instantaneous hit is but expressing it mildly. See in the illustration herewith Gladys Swarthout, lovely singer and one of filmland's bright and shining stars, wearing this hat just as she wears it in her picture and now many stores and shops are showing it in their advance millinery displays. It is the type young girls will delight in wearing with their sport outfits. The chin-strap detail of cord cleverly drawn through a big button is irresistible. Of course to complete the ensemble one must have a high-color dode-ranch handkerchief-square scarf knotted nonchalantly about the throat.

Jeweled Pins

The highly prized diamond-back terrapins of Maryland and points south have nothing on their swanky little counterpart in catlin and simulated gold. The turtle pin not only has head and legs of gold but also a colorful shell studded with tiny rhinestones. In practically any color this jeweled creature outshines by far the pride of Baltimore.

As to color for the new tailored mannish woollens, fancy runs decidedly to grays in every degree from light to dark and to mixtures that give a gray impression. Spice brown is also good style and it is interesting to note the many blues showing. The up-to-the-moment suit pictured is of chalky French-blue imported woolen. Buttons in double row accent the front panel which is cut in one with the yoke of the brief jacket. The hat, gloves and bag are navy, so are the shoes, for navy footwear, you know, is going to be pronounced in fashion this spring.

And now to prints! It will be difficult to choose from the wealth of print fabrics being shown. Jacket frocks made of striking prints claim most of the attention because they are so eminently practical. The dress itself can be worn attractively under the long topcoat, reserving the print jacket for later on.

The refreshing new styling given to the advance spring jacket frocks simply fascinates with display of originality that identifies spring 1936 vintage at a glance, as for example the good-looking print costume pictured. The material of which it is made is an all-bermberg triple sheer in leaf green, brown and beige checks. The jacket with full graceful sleeves alternates bands of net with bands of the triple sheer print. Jeweled buttons lend a brilliant touch.

You will be wanting a number of these smart-looking and practical triple sheers in your spring wardrobe. These fabrics are not weighted and consequently launder or dry clean beautifully.

GREEK INSPIRATION HITS SHOE STYLES

The Greek inspiration which has so noticeably influenced the evening mode for dresses is also affecting shoe styles. There is a very strong tendency to adopt sandals or low-heeled shoes for full evening dress. These sandals are extremely chic for those who know how to wear them, and are seen in the same fabric as the dress—in velvet, in lame and in brocade, sometimes combined with supple gold or silver kid.

Very rich models entirely covered with sequins, with embroidery or with beads of plastic materials, are displayed by leading designers. To accompany Worth evening dresses, Julien has designed some new sandals with almost flat heels, which are square instead of being round.

Originality Characterizes

New Paris Winter Tailleurs

Great originality characterizes the new winter tailleurs, for morning or afternoon purposes. In the line of sport tailleurs, a jacket is almost invariably in a fabric that contrasts with the skirt. Schiaparelli shows a skirt in plain material while the jacket is in tartan or in fancy woolen. She carries the same idea for the afternoon with a plain skirt in dull rayon crepe and the jacket in a fancy mixture showing slit cellulose film.

Wraps Are Glamorous

For some seasons now, many women have been making a fur coat do when they did don full evening dress. But this season wraps are so glamorous, so handsome, so theatrical, that even she who only goes out once or twice a season can't resist them. A lovely affair is a full-skirted wrap of pale beige velvet with shirring and cordell detail. It has a big mink collar. Another wrap is of quilted white silk in a heavy weave.

Something About a New Broom—and a New House Dress!

PATTERN No. 1787-B

1787-B

A house dress, after all, is a house dress—yet it needn't be "just another house dress," as convincingly demonstrated in this unusually trim and clever design. The V neck front and back is made in a contrasting material and emphasized by the effective use of bright buttons. The short and comfortable set-in sleeves are finished with pointed cuffs, also in contrast and button trimmed. The blouse is gathered to the skirt under a self-fabric belt, and the skirt features a full-length front panel with novel pockets achieved by the distinctive cut of the side pieces. These pieces, pointed and button trimmed, harmonize with the motif used in the collar and cuffs, and there are kick pleats in the front necessary for active household duties.

Choose your favorite cotton—percale, gingham, chambray, or pique—in your most becoming color and make it up in an hour or two.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1787-B is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 42 and 44. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 (34) requires 3 1/2 yards of 35 inch material, and 1/4 yard contrasting. Every Barbara Bell Pattern includes an illustrated instruction guide which is easy to understand.

End of World Idea Stale; Planet Collision Unlikely

We are never deeply alarmed over the annual, sometimes semi-annual, predictions that the world is soon coming to an end (it is a worn-out way of attracting attention to one self, too). The only manner in which the world can reach annihilation is by some great convulsion among the planets. The mathematical system of the universe must have been worked out long ago, or we should see in our day at least one or two collisions of worlds whirling through space. But they do not collide; and they have not collided since the morning stars sang together.

They are a perfect example of perpetual motion, and, therefore, the deathless inspiration of those earthly souls who think that if perpetual motion can and does prevail in the scheme of cosmos, they can discover the secret. Persons who predict the end of the world are unscientific individuals with indifferent reasoning powers.—F. H. Collier in St. Louis Globe Democrat.

To remove a stopper from a glass jar, pour warm water into a pan and invert jar in it, gradually add warmer water until it is quite hot, but not so hot as to break jar. Leave in water for some time, occasionally trying stopper to see if it is loose.

Two tablespoons of grape juice added to a grapefruit after it has been cut gives a delicious flavor and a pretty color.

Milk should always be kept clean, covered and cool. Never mix new and old milk unless it is to be used at once.

A piece of cheese about the size of a walnut added to cream soup just before serving gives it a delicious flavor.

Sponge cake cut in squares and served with any preserved or fresh fruit with a topping of whipped cream makes a delicious, quick dessert.

Add a teaspoon of cornstarch to each cup of sugar when making fudge. This makes it smoother and creamier.

When fish is to be served as the main dish at a dinner allow one-half pound for each person.

A teaspoon of strained honey added to whipped cream sweetens it and gives it a delicious flavor. It stays firm longer than it does when sugar is used for sweetening.

Water hyacinths will grow in the house in a shallow fish globe. Fill globe half full of coarse gravel and good loam, put one small plant in bowl and fill with water. Set in a warm, sunny place and add water occasionally.

The "Other Side" of the St. Lawrence Waterway

THE ST. LAWRENCE Seaway rejected by the U. S. Senate in 1934 on its imagined navigation merits is being stirred into life again with its electric power phases blithely offered as a co-equally important argument. But in neither respect is the seaway needed.

VIEWS as a transportation agency, we already have a lakes-to-the sea route. On it can be, is being, economically borne all the products for which America can find world markets. (Our railroads with their 50% surplus of equipment can handle all traffic given them, now and through the coming generations.)

IT WILL create no new markets, nor new traffic. It is simply a new shipping route, diverting traffic from existing transit agencies. It will function only in summer when railroad efficiency is greatest and need of it would be the least. It will be idle five months each winter when need of it would be greatest.

IT WILL not benefit the auto industry; or the wheat farmer; or bring farm relief; or aid employment; or "cure the depression". It will shorten no trade routes. It has no military value.

VIEWS for its power (half of which belongs to Canada) again the seaway is not needed. The region cannot absorb the vast surplus of harnessed hydro power it now has. The seaway is so remote from consuming (but disinterested) markets that transmission costs would make the new power—as it does present power—so costly as to be unsaleable.

TO ABSORB the contemplated power an industrial district twice as large as Detroit's must be built adjoining the seaway. Without such a nearby market the power and the immense cost of its development would be wasted.

LASTLY, we must furnish the bulk of the new money needed for a project benefitting another nation more than our own and lying more largely in another's territory than in the United States.

FACT, not fancy and emotionalism, should influence our consideration of the seaway. And the fact is America has come to know it as a project that is economically unsound.

FREE PHEASANT EGGS READY

Formal applications for free pheasant eggs are now being received by the Department of Conservation from individuals and sportsmen's organizations desiring to hatch pheasants for release this year. The Game Division of the Department already has received requests for a total of 4,900 eggs. Formal applications should be submitted at once and will be considered in the order in which they are received at the Lansing office.

Game men expect that approximately 20,000 eggs will be available at the State Game farm near Mason again this season. These eggs are available to individuals and groups in proven pheasant territory for hatch-

HOME GARDENS AID FARM PURSE

2600 Pounds of Vegetables from half Acre Plot Will Feed Family of Five.

Savings in the family food bill of as much as $700 can be made through careful cultivation of a small home garden plot less than one-half an acre in area, according to H. L. Seaton, instructor in vegetable gardening, horticulture department, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Fresh vegetables during the growing season and sufficient for canning and storing for a family of five have been successfully raised by many Michigan families in recent years, he says. Home gardens can be planted from an initial investment of $15 for seeds. In some instances, a small additional sum for fertilizer is necessary.

Gardens should be planned to meet dietetic needs, he says. "Almost all of the 2600 pounds of vegetables prescribed by nutrition experts as the annual need of a family of five can be raised on well-tended plots of from one-quarter to one-half acre."

Types of vegetables recommended are green or leafy vegetables, those in which fruit or seeds are eaten, and root and bulb crops. Equal amounts of each type should be planted to guarantee surpluses for canning and storing.

Interest in home gardens as well as in the "thrift garden" movement sponsored in many Michigan cities is increasing. Mr. Seaton will begin a p. m. Thursday, April 9, from WKAR series of weekly broadcasts at 1:30 Michigan State College station at East Lansing.

Two bulletins now available at the college bulletin department are Extension Bulletin No. 4 on the Home Vegetable Garden and Circular Bulletin No. 140 on Home Production of the Family's Food Supply.

HUNTERS TO WEAR TAGS

Numbered identification tags, bearing numerals corresponding to those on the hunting license, will be worn by all deer hunters in Michigan next fall if favorable action is taken by the State Conservation commission at its April meeting.

The matter was discussed at the March session of the commission, but held over for final action.

Hunters would be required to wear the tags on the back of the hunting coat. Similar tags have been in use in Pennsylvania for several years and have aided substantially in reducing deer-law violations.

RAILROAD TAXES

The first eight cents of every dollar earned by the railroads of Michigan are turned over to the state as taxes, according to "Everyman's Almanac," just issued by the Michigan Railroads Association. The 8-cent tax last year amounted to $6,301,385.59 and went, by state constitutional order, directly into the primary school fund, of which the railroad total made up 40.7%.

"Everyman's Almanac," a 40-page booklet, gives the first outline ever printed of the magnitude and commercial and economic relationship between the state and its railroads. There are 37 railroad lines in Michigan. Normally they employ 45,000 men earning $60,000,000, according to the almanac, and their total length, 7819 miles, is greater than the railroad mileage of any one of 11 leading foreign countries. The almanac also contains extensive national railroad facts and figures and numerous summaries for business, household and sports use.

SAFETY COMMITTEES TO BE STATE-WIDE

In order that the four point traffic safety program devised by the State Safety Council may be co-ordinated and uniformly supported, membership on four advisory committees will be drawn from points throughout the state, Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State and Council Chairman makes plain.

In the selection of committee members to be made soon, political affiliation will not be considered. Some 25 or 30 citizens of Michigan will be asked to serve on the Recodification committee which, under direction of David H. Crowley, Attorney General, chairman, will be faced with the task of framing the recommended changes in the state's motor vehicle laws to the 1937 legislature. The Michigan Bar Association will be represented on this committee. In addition there will be a Safety Educational Committee, an Enforcement Committee and an Engineering Committee.

The latter committee will make extensive use of information being gathered by the State Highway Department, in conjunction with the Federal Government, in the course of a comprehensive survey of the state's highways.

Highlights of the recommendations for motor vehicle law changes will include strengthening of the drivers' license law, and periodic compulsory inspection of all automobiles. The educational phase visions expansion of school safety instruction and public appeals to adults. Uniform enforcement of existing laws and the closing up of loopholes against persistent violators, is contemplated in the scope of work to be encouraged by the Enforcement Committee, while the Engineering Committee will seek adoption of uniform signs and signals and the development of modern traffic plans.

TIPS ON PRUNING

GET WIDE USAGE

Work of two Michigan State College men in developing an apple tree pruning method for the production of fancy fruit of good size with a small percentage of culls has attracted attention of fruit growers in many sections of the United States and Canada in addition to use of the method in Michigan.

The "Thin Wood Method of Pruning Bearing Apple Trees," Special Bulletin No. 265, is based on an investigation by G. L. Ricks and H. P. Gaston. Thin wood pruning consists of removing thin unproductive wood which is of smaller diameter and makes short terminal growth in a downward direction in the lower and inner parts of the trees. Further quality advance is gained by also using branch thinning in which more of the fruit is removed from weak wood and less from vigorous productive branches.

Horticultural societies in Virginia and Missouri have requested the authors to present their material in meetings. A flood of requests for the bulletin and information has come to the college from Ontario, Connecticut, Missouri, Oregon, Washington, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

At the Autumn Salon of 1927 of l'Institut de France, the art of cooking was officially recognized along with painting, literature and sculpture as one of the Fine Arts.

Two great contributions to the world's Fine Arts are credited to Holland: the work of the immortal Rembrandt in the field of painting, and the Dutch Oven in the field of cooking. Rembrandt is dead, but the principle of the Dutch Oven lives on. . . in the finest cooking equipment available today: the electric stove. * * And countless women who are artists in their own right, whose genius is that of the born cook, give grateful thanks. For without this principle of the Dutch Oven, the principle of sealed-in flavor that lends an added deliciousness to cooked foods, meals would be far less enjoyable and the world of cooking would suffer a real loss. * * And the touch of magic that transforms plain, homely ingredients into fascinating, delectable dishes . . . the skill and talent that thousands of housewives wield in the kitchen to make daily meals a pleasure . . . these have been aided inestimably by the modern electric stove. It is an invention that reduces difficulties and multiplies achievements. It is a help that no woman who prides herself on her fine cooking would willingly be without. And its price today is well within reach of even the modest home.

"THE SHAKESPEARE OF HOLLAND"

* REMBRANDT VAN RIJN, the famous Dutch painter, was born in Leiden in 1606. A poet as well as a painter, an idealist and also a realist, an artist whose intense humanity is revealed in his profound sympathy with his subjects, he has often been called—because of his dramatic action and mastery of expression—"The Shakespeare of Holland." His subtle color, and the boldness of his execution of light and shade, are characteristic of his work. In the early years of his life, he devoted himself to painting and etching the people around him, the beggars and cripples, every picturesque face and form he could find. During his lifetime, he painted some fifty portraits of himself, and the number of pictures known to have come from his own hand total about 700.

DISPATCH OF MARCH 25, 1886

Ira Cook has installed a cigar counter in his barber shop.

Joel Dunning's horse broke loose from in front of Richard's Store Saturday morning and ran about ten rods, breaking the buggy.

W. D. Thompson has rented his farm to Chas. Hicks and will sell his personal property at auction on April 1.

Clarence Bennett is employed as "devil" in the Dispatch office.

The Meach and Renwick's New Orleans Minstrels of Brighton played here last Thursday night.

Garrett Wood, 78, who has been living with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bowers, was found dead in his bed yesterday morning. He did not get up when Mrs. Bowers called him. As his door was locked, it was necessary to get into his room through a window.

Justice Teeple empaneled a jury and Dr. Hoag testified the deceased came to his death by paralysis of the heart. Mr. Wood was the father of Mrs. George Brown. Funeral services were held at the Congregational church today.

The Dispatch, for the good of the country, hopes John L. Sullivan will be knocked "galley west" in his fight with an English contender named Smith.

President Cleveland was 49 years old today, and Buffalo Democrats celebrated the event in style.

Miss Maggie McClellan closed a successful term of school at Gregory, March 25.

E. A. Kuhn, friends and scholars were entertained at a party at the Gregory Hotel on March 19.

The Unadilla school exhibit at Smith's Hall was given by districts 11 and 6, taught by E. A. Kuhn and Maggie McClellan. The hall was crowded. The motto over the stage was: "Our First Attempt." All parts were well taken by the scholars and the prompters had nothing to do. There was music, vocal and instrumental. The "Greeting Song" by the choir, the "Geography Song" by the girls of No. 6, and the comic duet by Mr. Gregory and Ed. Howe, entitled: "Mr. and Mrs. Snibbs" are especially worthy of mention. The "Dude" was played to perfection by James McClellan.

Owen Farrell shipped a gobble to Worcester, Mass. last week, which weighed 31 pounds dressed.

James Roche, who is building a house at Anderson, is living in his barn, temporarily.

Mr. Austin has moved to Putnam township from Pettysville to work for John Harris.

Ed. Wheeler of Pettysville sold one of his Rattler colts for $150 last week.

The Howell Wagon Company have contracts to make 100 wagons.

The battle of the century is over and the "sidewalk advocates" won. At the council session last night the proposition to build board sidewalks on Main, Pearl, Mill, Howell and Unadilla streets, resulted in a tie vote. Thereupon, Village President H. F. Sigler cast the deciding vote in favor of it. The walks will be 4 ft. 8 in. wide, of white pine or hemlock, and the property owners in all cases, except for schools and churches shall pay the cost. The latter two will be paid for out of the village general fund.

60 WAR VETERANS DYING EVERY DAY

The drums of death have beaten a final tattoo for nearly half a million American World war veterans since the Armistice. The exact figure up to December 31, 1935, is 469,641. Eighty veterans now are dying every day.

To this must be added a total of 130,128 men who died in action, were wounded fatally, or were killed by accidents or disease before the Armistice. This makes a grand total of 599,669 young Americans who marched off to war so enthusiastically in 1917 who have since then crossed the Big Divide to pitch their tents in the bivouac of the dead.

Subtracting this total from the 4,757,240 soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the armed forces of the United States during the World war indicates that an approximate total of 4,157,571 American World war veterans survive today.

These figures were obtained by the national rehabilitation commission of the American Legion from the Bureau of Budget and Statistics of the Veterans' Administration.

They disclose that it took five years for the shock effect of battle injuries and privations to wear off before normal death rates for this veterans' group set in. Since 1924 this normal death rate has been accelerating year by year. Experts on vital statistics point out that this acceleration will be vastly speeded up in future years until by 1970 only a handful of World war veterans will survive the millions that live today.

The estimated number of deaths of World war veterans each year since the Armistice follow:

1919—21,690	1928—25,995
1920—36,212	1929—26,286
1921—34,368	1930—26,612
1922—30,618	1931—26,979
1923—26,873	1932—27,393
1924—25,087	1933—27,859
1925—25,192	1934—28,382
1926—25,296	1935—28,971
1927—27,788
Total—469,641

How Many Friends Have You?

IT HAS been said that the number of friends you have depends almost wholly upon you; for friendship is like many other precious possessions in that it does not thrive on neglect.

Most expressions of friendship, in this modern age, involve the use of the telephone. Directly personal, inexpensive, it has come to be the recognized means of arranging nearly all informal social gatherings.

It has greatly simplified the rôle of the hostess, relieving her of bothersome complications once inseparable from entertaining. By telephone the woman of today can obtain acceptances or regrets without delay; she can make a last-minute addition to her guests, can quickly summon a fourth for bridge.

Modern telephone service is a special boon to those who have been parted by distance. It gives them, despite their separation, the opportunity for "voice reunions"—for a kind of personal contact which only the telephone can provide. Over it they can send greetings of the season, condolences, congratulations—all the various remembrances that arise from genuine friendship—and prove that absence need not necessarily mean forgetfulness.

Quick, dependable, the telephone service provided by this Company has won a definite part in the social life of the people of Michigan, and daily fulfills an important function in the many occasions which both promote and preserve the treasure of friendship.

SYNOPSIS

John Spencer and his cousin, Geoffrey Bohm, are vacationing in Austria. Geoffrey is a gifted portrait painter but prefers to paint landscapes. While strolling in the forest, John hears English voices, and decides to investigate. From cover he finds four men burying a man in green livery who, evidently, had been murdered. Pharaoh is the leader of the gang; the others are Dewdrop, Rush and Bugle. Unfortunately, John makes himself known to the assassins by dropping a letter with his name and address. He tells Geoffrey and his chauffeur, Barley, of his adventure. Geoffrey, realizing that John's life is in danger, declares he must vanish. Spencer discovers that the livery of the murdered man corresponds to the livery of the servants of York castle, and tells Countess Helena, mistress of the castle, what he had seen. With Geoffrey and Barley, John starts for Annabel, a nearby village. They encounter Pharaoh. In making their getaway they exchange shots with the gang, without serious result. They arrive at Plumage farm, on the York estate, where Lady Helena had requested John and his cousin to meet her. She reveals to them that her father had converted his immense fortune into gold and hidden it away in a secret vault in the castle. Knowing that his son, Valentine, Helena's brother, was incapable of controlling the fortune, he had revealed it to Helena alone just before his death. In some manner the news leaked out, and Pharaoh is after the treasure. They planned that Geoffrey and Barley would go to Salzburg to watch for Pharaoh, while John would remain at Plumage, patrolling the roads about York from dusk to dawn. Several nights go by without important incident. John visits York castle and finds that Helena's brother, Count Valentine, is there and with him, on most friendly terms, is Pharaoh, as Captain Fanning. Hearing that John is stopping at Plumage, Pharaoh speaks to Dewdrop. John suspects a plot. As dinner is announced, Helena and John make their escape, pursued by Pharaoh's men. Encountering many difficulties during the night, they run out of gas. Finally they arrive at a forester's cottage, where they find refuge. Freda, their hostess, gets petrol for their car and then goes to Salzburg to get word to Geoffrey. John finds their car gone.

My beautiful dream was over, and now, through misunderstanding, our lovely, precious relation was going to come to an end. If I did not speak out, it was finished.

"As Geoffrey's here, you may as well know the truth. I think of you as 'Nell' deep down in my inmost heart. It's the pretty name I'd call you if we were engaged. You see, I'm mad about you. I love you—I've always loved you, from the moment I met your eyes. I love you walking and riding and sitting here on the grass. I love your head and your shoulders and that tiny vein in your ankle that looks like a thread of blue silk. I love everything about you and all you do. I love your voice and your laughter and the glorious light in your eyes. And I love your shining nature, as I love the smell of your hair and the breath of your lips. . . . And to be with you here like this—well, now perhaps you can see what it's meant to me and why I clung to my secret and why I was handicapped in trying to play your game." I got to my feet. "Good-by, Nell," I said gently.

I turned to the path and the smiling cottage below. For a moment I stood, blinking. Then—
"Have they gone in?" I asked.
"I—I made a mistake," said Helena. "It wasn't them."

I was sitting on the settle in the kitchen, with my head deep in my hands.

How I got there I do not know, for my case was like that of a man who plunges into some water to drown his cares, only to find that the bed of the river is dry. I doubt if such a man could tell how he got to the bank.

And I do not know how long I sat there, but all of a sudden I knew that I was not alone.

I could smell the faint perfume that Helena used.

As I started up, I found she was sitting beside me, looking very grave and gentle, with her precious hands in her lap.

"I tricked you," she said. "I'm sorry. But it was the only way. You are very reticent, John. And very, very humble—and rather blind. Old Florin knew in an instant, and I am sure Pharaoh, too."

"Knew that I loved you?" I cried. Helena rose to her feet.

"This comes," she said, "of putting me up on a date. I never was up on a date, where you were concerned. If you stand up, you'll find that I have to look up—to see myself in your eyes."

I stood up, trembling.

"Nell," I said hoarsely. "Nell."

I set my hands on her shoulders and looked her full in the eyes. "That day we lunched at York. Florin looked at you, and you nodded and looked away. Was he . . . asking you . . . if you loved me?"

She met my gaze squarely.

"He was asking me if I was to be your wife."

"And you . . ."

My brain was reeling.

"I told him what I hoped was the truth."

I was past all speaking.

As I drew her into my arms, her hands went up to my hair.

CHAPTER VI

Eavesdropping.

Twenty-four hours had gone by—and something was seriously wrong. Of that there could be no doubt.

We had passed the day in a happiness such as, I think, is given to very few, but now the sun was sinking, yet Geoffrey had not appeared.

That the forester's wife might be late had never entered our heads. We were up betimes the next morning and were ready and waiting for Freda at a quarter to eight. We might have spared our energy, for eight o'clock went by, yet she did not come.

And nine o'clock went by . . . and ten . . .

Bad news is trying enough; but when the absence of news is so prolonged that only a fool would continue to hope against hope, it is, I think, a stout heart that will feel no alarm.

There was no longer any doubt in our minds. Somehow or other Pharaoh had put a spoke in our wheel.

At 11 o'clock that Thursday I led the way into the kitchen, took my seat at the table and opened the map.

"I must leave you, Nell," I said quietly. "There's no other way."

Helena nodded, and a hand went up to her head.

"What will you do, John?"

"I must get a lift at Witchcraft and hire a car where I can." I considered the map. "I should think I'd get one at Sabbot. From there I must drive to Salzburg for all I'm worth." I drew some paper towards me and started to make some notes.

An exclamation from Helena snapped the sentence in two.

I looked up sharply.

There was horror in her beautiful eyes—and these were fast on the paper on which I was making my notes.

"What is it, Nell?" I cried, rising.

She clasped her hands to her face. "Oh, John," she wailed, "that paper . . ."

For an instant I stared at the sheet—

one of a cheap, gray packet which, when we had asked her for note-paper, the forester's wife had produced.

"Listen, John. I think that paper has told me why Geoffrey isn't here. You wrote to him in pencil, the pencil was blunt and you pressed." She pointed a trembling finger. "There on that sheet's the impression of what you wrote."

This was true.

"Do you remember our last patrol—how, when we parted, I offered to wire to your cousin? And you said yes, and I did. But I wrote out the wire on a pad of writing-paper—and the pencil was blunt."

"You mean—"

"The pad was on the library table. If Pharaoh saw it and read it, it gave him your cousin's address. Supposing he wired the next morning, while we were talking to Freda here in this room. . . . Supposing he wired, as I did, using your name. . . . Supposing he said, Return. . . ."

"One moment," I said. "I must think."

I thought very fast.

Hypothesis or no, here was a good explanation of my cousin's failure to come. If Pharaoh had wired to Geoffrey, Geoffrey would have left Salzburg before my letter arrived.

"I must go at once," I said, and picked up the map.

"To Plumage, John?"

I nodded.

"I must get a car somehow and drive there as fast as I can. I can hide the car near the high road and go through the woods to the farm. There's not an instant to lose—we're three days late. God knows where Freda is—I can only hope and pray that she's missed her train."

Together we studied the map.

I glanced at my watch.

"With average luck," said I, "I ought to be there not later than half-past three."

"And then," said Helena quietly.

"My sweet, I don't know. I've got to find out something and to act on what I find out. And now for you. You mustn't stay in the cottage; you must spend the day in the forest and keep out of sight. And I'll come back, my darling, as soon as ever I can."

Two minutes later I was treading the path to Witchcraft, and the bracken which veiled my lady was out of my sight.

At half-past six that evening I made the woods behind Plumage, and five minutes later I was lying just clear of their foliage, surveying the back of the farm. The stars had fought against me, and my journey had taken far longer than I had hoped, but now I saw very clearly that all I could do was to watch, for that I must go no closer until it was dark.

That Bugle and Rush were at Plumage I had no doubt; leave the woods, therefore, I dared not, while it was day, for the shutters of the house were open and the valley was full of light.

From where I now lay there was nothing at all to observe. I therefore re-entered the woods and cautiously moved round their fringe, stopping from time to time to peer at the farm, but all I saw were the farm-hands about their business and a groom that was not Axel, cleaning a bit.

I was now not far from the lane which led up to the farm, and for one who was content to observe I could not have been better placed. So I picked a spot in the bushes and settled down to observe.

It was forty minutes later that Bugle came out of the house.

I think that he had been sleeping, for he yawned and stretched and looked about him, as a man that has only just waked. Then he took his seat on a bench by the side of the door and a servant brought out a tankard and set it down by his side.

One thing, at least, was now clear—if I would have news of my cousin, I should have to do more than observe. If I could find the good wife and hear what she had to tell. The danger, of course, was that I should encounter some servant. I could trust the farmer's wife, but if Pharaoh had given them orders, I could not trust the servants to disobey. Still, something would have to be done. I had not come there to watch Bugle enjoying his ale.

It was eight o'clock and the light was beginning to fall when I heard the sigh of the Rolls on the road of approach.

A moment later the car swept over the bridge, and Bugle laid down his pipe and got to his feet.

I saw that Dewdrop was driving and that Pharaoh sat by his side.

Pharaoh stayed but two minutes.

For that time he spoke to Bugle, who listened with evident interest to what he said. Then he nodded to Dewdrop, who instantly let in his clutch. Bugle stood watching till Pharaoh was out of sight, then he turned on his heel and went into the house.

And that was all.

As I made my way back to the footbridge, I tried my best to believe that the visit which I had just witnessed was Pharaoh's evening call. He had been out scouring the country for news of my lady and me and was now returning to York with empty hands.

It was no doubt his practice to visit Plumage like this, to see that Rush and Bugle were doing as they had been told. And yet . . .

Pharaoh's manner had been urgent. He had not wasted a moment and the Rolls had not carried much dust. He might have been setting out, and not coming in—setting out on some sudden quest.

I decided one thing out of hand. That was to learn, if I could, what Pharaoh had said.

If this was of any importance, Bugle was pretty sure to discuss it with Rush, and if I could hear them talking, as once before—

I heard the sound of a car. This seemed to come from the farm. I heard the engine started and as I stood still, listening, I heard her move on in low gear. Bugle or Rush was withdrawing their car from the coach-house and driving her on to the apron, ready for use.

At this I swore under my breath, for if Bugle and Rush were about to go off on some errand, my object must be defeated and most of my labor be lost. I might be able to speak with the farmer's wife, but that she would have news of my cousin was none too sure, and, indeed, since I had seen Pharaoh, I could see health in nothing at all but in sharing his underlings' counsels as soon as ever I could.

I hastened on desperately. . . .

From the verge of the meadows I regarded the back of the house. The light, I have said, was falling, but dusk would not come in for another half hour. Two minutes later I was fast against the trunk of a lime that was standing 12 feet from the window of what had been my bedroom four days before.

Now to enter the house was easy, for all the windows were open and none of the shutters were shut. Still to enter a lion's den may be easy enough. . . . I had no desire to climb into an occupied room. Then the sight of my sponge on a window-sill jogged my wits.

One of the lower windows belonged to the primitive bathroom which Geoffrey and I had used, and since this was sure to be empty at this time of day, here was as safe an entry as the faintest of hearts could desire.

I whipped from the lime to the window and swung myself over the sill.

I made bold to open my door, which gave to the hall.

As I did so another door was opened—the door of the sitting-room.

"Ah! shut the shutters," growled Rush. "Can you understand that? Furmy, you fool, furmy."

The man-servant answered some thing and closed the door. Then he set his tray on a table that stood in the hall and stepped to and opened the door immediately opposite mine.

His intention was plain: he was going to close the shutters of every room.

In a flash I was at my window and was pulling to its shutters and shutting the twilight out.

Philathea Notes

Next Sunday the lesson topic will be "Jesus Explains the Kingdom" Luke 13:18-30. This last lesson in March will have for its application, "to find out how to meet Christ's requirements for Christians."

Philathea, with other church attendants next Sunday, will have an opportunity according to the pastor's announcement, of contributing toward the free-will offering for the relief of the flood sufferers in our sister states, where the need for immediate help is very great.

Literature from Montreal again stresses the "Mountain-Top Convention" of the World-Wide Baraca Philathea Union, July 22-26, 1936. For this convention, the committee is planning a deeply spiritual program. Any member who plans to go may get in touch with the reporter of the local class for information as to registration.

The good attendance last Lord's Day was encouraging and music and sermon gave us spiritual help for the days to come. Reader—this is an invitation to you to join our fellowship. If you've not been with us lately, the Lenten season is a good time to find a place in our church home, and strangers are also very welcome.

The April activities are class are already getting attention. Division No. 1, with Mrs. Mae Daller as chairman, promise a later announcement. Watch for it.

RANKS 3rd IN LICENSE SALES
Compilations on hunting licenses for 1934, just issued by the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, show that Michigan ranked third among all the states in total licenses sold.

Pennsylvania led with 547,690 sales. New York was second with 529,369 and Michigan third with 433,731. New York issues a combined hunting and fishing or hunting and trapping license. Pennsylvania and Michigan licenses were for hunting only.

Good prices marked the 26th and 27th sales of the Michigan Horse Breeders' association at Michigan State College, East Lansing last Tuesday and Wednesday. Over 90 horses were sold with top sale price on a three year old Belgian stallion at $685. The top price for a mare was $575 for a five year old Belgian while the average for purebreds was $354. A team of grade mares brought $670, top for their class.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Brown had as Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gunther and son, Georgie, of Ann Arbor, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hassencahl and family of Plainfield.

SCOUT CAMP BEING MADE READY FOR SUMMER

The Newburg Reservation, for Boy Scout Troops, on the river of Dexter is being made ready for the organized camp which will open there on June 14th. Many troops have already chosen the date when they expect to attend and parents and individual scouts are saving their money to participate in the summer camp.

Boats are being repaired and repainted, tables and benches painted, additional tree planting and other improvements being made.

Practically every week end one or more troops go to the camp for a troop encampment and to make what improvements they can at their Scout Reservation. "The next time you say to yourself, perhaps it can be used at the Scout Camp" reads a bulletin from the Council office, "phone or write us suggesting what you have which you no longer need which might be used at the Scout Camp. Here are a few things we need: small stove, kerosene stove, paint, boats, tools, chairs, dishes, tents, cooking utensils, lumber, used-lumber or k. tools of all kinds, chests-tool box. There are a few things which could not be used at Scout Camp, where not only during the summer but practically every week end through the year, groups of scouts come with their leaders for short stays."

18 MICHIGAN CCC CAMPS TO CLOSE

Authoritative sources in the administration of the emergency conservation corps said today that 18 CCC camps in Michigan would be closed April 1, in line with the President's order to reduce the corps' personnel from 500,000 to 350,000. Three camps, now closed, are to be reopened, however. Two of them are maintained by the national park service on Isle Royale, in Lake Superior. The other is a state park camp at Newberry.

The camps to be closed, the corps officials said, are at: Wetmore, Harrison, Lion River, Trout Lake (2), Kenton, Baldwin, Glennie, Cadillac, Munising, Big Bay, Channing, Newberry, Alpena, Ludington, Cedar River, Bay City and Wayne. Those at Ludington, Bay City, Cedar River and Wayne are state park camps. The others are under direction of the national forest service. There are 76 camps in Michigan now.

Farmers should not expand their horse breeding business on a big scale because prices for horses are now at their peak. This is the advice of R. S. Hudson, superintendent of the Michigan State College farm, and secretary of the Michigan Horse Breeders' association.

"Hold production down to your own needs and you won't go out of business when prices fall after production has caught up with mortality," he advises. "The demand for brood mares and young horses is high, but prices will likely decrease in three or four years."

BUSINESS AND BANKS

In a large sense the success of business enterprise in a community is the success of a bank giving efficient, quick and proper service to the businessmen. Much of this service is of an indirect nature. That is, we supply a depository in which the citizens may place their surplus funds; which in turn can be directed into business channels through commercial loans and discounts.

Directly, we supply a medium whereby the merchant can at small cost receive the service of our collection department for collecting on accounts to foreign consumers; the use of the bank's credit in form of drafts on correspondent banks, and cashier's checks, for payment of out-of-town bills; safety deposit boxes for protection of valuable papers; complete business advices from recognized authorities.

We sell our services; the merchant sells goods. In essence the principle is simply stated as follows: Your success means our success.
