

Results of Monday's Township Election

Democrats Carry Putnam by Big Majorities in Landslide. Char. Runciman Loses in Unadilla and Hincley in Hamburg. Lester Huff Wins in Iosco and Gilbert Madden in Dexter.

The election in Putnam township Monday resulted in a Democratic landslide, all Democrat candidates being elected with majorities ranging from 48 to 180. There were 431 votes cast; of these 188 were straight Democrat, 73 straight Republican and 197 split ballots. Four ballots were thrown out.

The Republican candidates found the 85 majority given the Democrats on the straight vote impossible to overcome. M. J. Hoisel for supervisor, got his largest majority in five years of campaigning for the office. His last year's majority was 60. William Jeffreys, for justice, led the ticket with 180 majority. The following are the majories:

State Tax Sale Is Ruled Illegal

Three Oakland County Judges Ruled the May 5 Sale of Property for Delinquent Taxes Illegal as Descriptions Were Not Published As the Law Directs.

Holding the failure of Auditor General John J. O'Hara to publish the complete list of delinquent tax lands to be offered at the May tax sale constitutes a defect which cannot be cured at this time, Oakland county's three circuit judges, Monday threw out of court the petition of the auditor general to conduct a tax sale in this county this year.

The judges held in their opinion that act 243 of the public acts of 1935 and act 73 of the public acts of 1935 in which the legislature attempted to make it possible to sell the delinquent tax lands of 1933 and prior years without publishing them in detail is constitutionally defective and in violation of the "due process" clauses of both the federal and state constitutions.

While the opinion only includes the Oakland county tax sale the questions raised would apply equally to every other county in the state.

As no suit to stop the sale was filed in Livingston county, this decision will not stop the sale here. However, in Jackson, Gratiot and several other counties such suits have been filed. The Jackson county suit was carried to the Supreme court and this body is expected to hand down a decision before May 5.

VILLAGE DELINQUENT TAX LIST

We have a copy of the list of Pinckney village property which is scheduled to be sold for taxes on May 5. Several hundred pieces of village property is included in this. Anyone wishing to see this list should drop into this office. This year the state is sending out no notices to people whose property is listed to be sold for taxes. You are supposed to look it up yourself. We also have a list of the farm lands slated to be sold for taxes.

We are informed by Parley Tarf, deputy treasurer, that the ten percent tax payment plan is still available and by using this those persons whose taxes are unpaid can save their property from the tax title sharks.

SCHOOL WORK SLOWED UP

Snow, ice and cold weather has slowed up the work on the Pinckney school addition. The forms were all up and things in readiness to start pouring the walls, four feet from the ground to the beginning of the brick work last Thursday, when the snow storm hit here. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and Monday were too cold, and no work was done at all on the building. We understand that all this lost time can be made up. Much material is already on the ground, including brick, cement, building tile, lumber, gravel, steel posts, trusses, window frames, etc. The men have made very good progress in the time they have been able to work.

MARRIAGE LICENSE ISSUED

A marriage license has been issued to Mary Ella Wallace, 19, Pinckney, and Russell Gibson, 25, of Ann Arbor.

EASTER BALL AT HOWELL

Margaret Robb has been named chairman of the Easter Ball to be given by the St. Joseph's Social Club at the parish hall on Tuesday, April 14. Plans are being laid to make this the largest and best party ever staged in Howell.

Jack McGay's seven piece orchestra of Detroit has been secured. This outstanding band has played at the Ann Arbor J-Hop and Dan Hincley Ball, at the Mayfair Room in the Book Cadillac Hotel, the Detroit Le-Land Hotel and has filled many radio engagements.

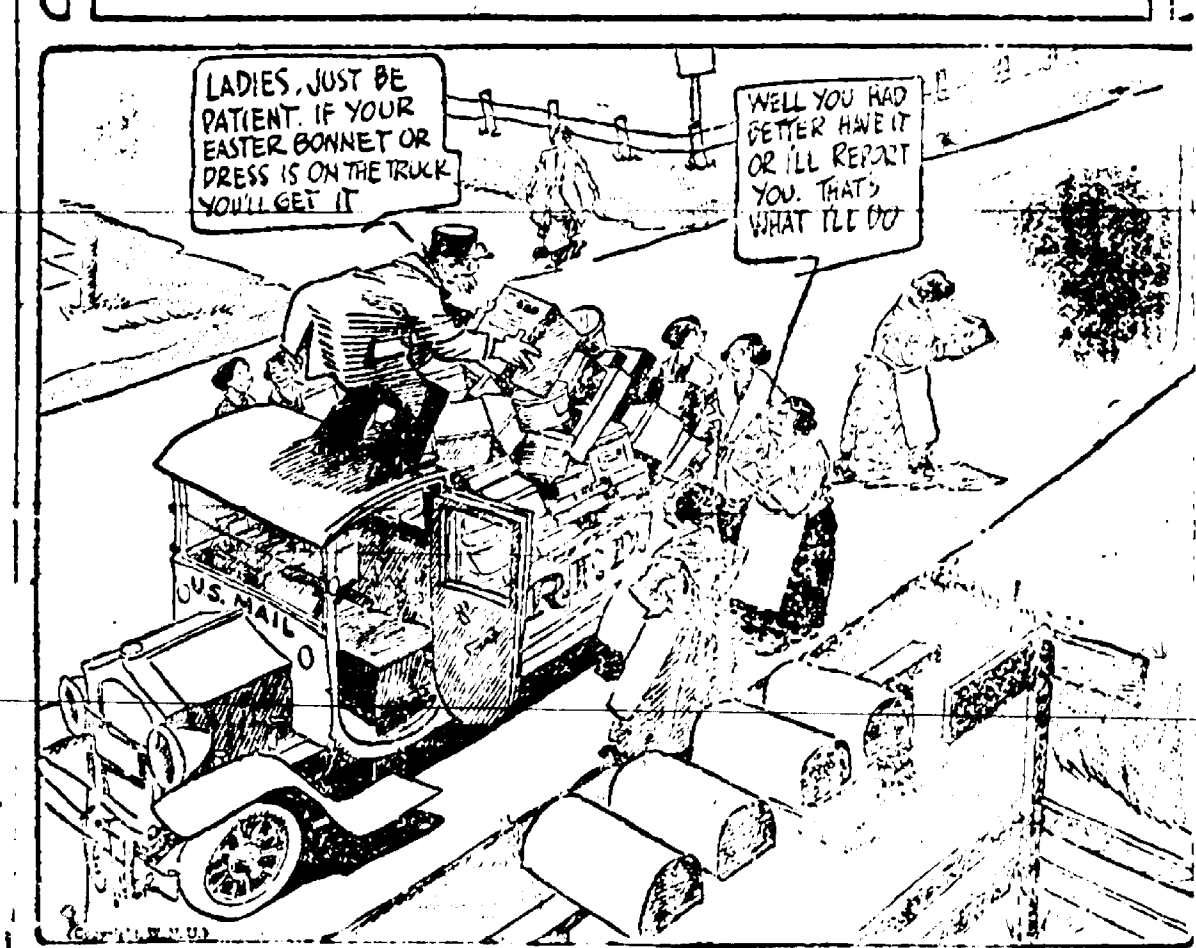

Miss Robb has selected as her committee Arthur Jones, tickets; Lillian Luma, decorations; Al Brotz, arrangements; Harold Wright, check room and Helen Brady, publicity.

The party will be the first social event of the year undertaken by the club. The proceeds of the dance will be given to the new hall.

The popularity of the St. Joseph's dancing party which dedicated the auditorium has prompted the club to make even more extensive plans to insure the success of their Easter Ball. Dancing will be from nine until one.

Tickets will be available from any of the club members or from Arthur Jones at the McPherson Bank.

Milk Slander Suit Is Withdrawn

Beach and Hull Drop Slander Suit Against Walter Nelson. Suit Was Outgrowth for Fight to Control Mich. Milk Producers' Assoc.

The suit for $50,000 each brought against Walter Nelson, attorney, by two officials of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association, who charged slander, was unexpectedly dropped today on motion of the two plaintiffs.

Nathan P. Hull, president, and Bernie Beach, secretary of the association, were assessed $150 court costs by Judge Theo K. Jacobs of Saginaw, Mich., visiting Circuit Court jurist.

Hull and Beach charged Nelson, who has offices at 1428 Dime Bank Building, speaking as a representative of the Farmers' Union, said they were working for the best interests of the milk producers but for the distributors.

In two days on the witness stand, Nelson reiterated his belief that the two association officials had not properly represented the association but had made trips to Washington in efforts to keep the price of milk down against the best interests of the farmers.

The charge was taken from the Detroit Times. Nelson was one of the organizers of the Farmers' Union, and it was at their meetings he was supposed to have made his slanderous remarks concerning Hull and Beach, president and secretary of the Mich. Milk Producers' Association. Nelson acted as his own lawyer, and his sole defense was that the statements he made were true. The trial had lasted about a week when the association officials suddenly withdrew their suit and paid the costs. Nelson is an able lawyer and speaker, and spoke at Howell about a year ago. Hull and Beach have as yet issued no statement explaining their action. According to Michigan law another suit of this kind cannot be brought against Nelson on the same set of facts. O. L. Smith, former United States District Attorney, and one of the best lawyers in Michigan, represented Beach and Hull.

Soil Conservation Meeting Held Here

Soil Conservation Program Is Explained by County Agent at a Meeting Held Here.

A soil conservation meeting was held at the fire hall here last Tuesday afternoon with S. B. Thomas, county agent as speaker. About 30 farmers attended.

This soil conservation project seems to be on the order of the AAA except that the object is to get the farmers to build up their land by ceasing to plant soil-depleting crops and put in crops which will build up their land, and for certain other soil building practices recommended by the government. This plan will be administered by a county committee of farmers elected by the different townships. The first job of each township chairman is to survey all farms, recording the uses to which the land has been put, and compile a record from which will be determined the farms eligible to participate in this program. Here is an explanation of it:

"For basis, a 100 acre farm is selected, which in 1935 grew 60 acres of soil depleting crops, such as wheat, corn, oats, beans, potato, etc., and 40 acres of soil conserving crops, such as alfalfa, clover, timothy, etc. In this same ratio is followed out. In 1936, the farmer would receive $1 per acre for his soil conserving acreage of a total of 40, providing, however, that certain approved practices are carried out, such as liming land, drainage, etc."

Taking the same farm as our soil conserving crop plan, the farmer in 1936 then in 1936, $100 per acre will be paid for the extra acreage of soil conserving crops, not to exceed 40% of the total soil conserving acreage. On the 60 acre farm first mentioned, then, out of 60 acres would be planted to soil conserving crops (30 acres) and in 1936, $60 per acre of soil conserving crops (30 acres) would be received. In 1937, the farmer would receive $120 per acre of soil conserving crops, plus $100 per acre for the extra acreage of soil conserving crops. As stated before, this money will not be paid unless certain approved practices are followed out.

The Putnam township committee appointed by M. J. Hoisel, Michael Roche and Roy Fullington.

SCHOOL'S BONDS ARE SOLD

Fred Read was in Chicago last Friday and made arrangements to sell the $25,000 worth of Pinckney school bonds to the Robinson Co. there. They offered a bonus of $150, pay for the printing of bonds and attorney fees for 4%. Until the bonds are sold no government money is available. The workmen had to be paid out of the general school fund for their first month's work.

At a school board meeting Monday night, all of the present teachers were asked to remain another year. We understand that all have accepted but Thomas Howlett, who may change in other business.

Pinckney high school will not have a hard baseball team this year on account of lack of interest. However they will play soft ball and have a game scheduled with Whitmore Lake for next week.

County Agent Thomas addressed the school one day last week. He is desirous of forming 4-H clubs in the school.

Current Comment

While all attention was turned to New Jersey, the people of Michigan are losing sight of the finish of their own famous kidnapping cases. In 1929, David Cass, son of a well-to-do Detroit, was kidnapped and held for ransom. "Legs" Laman, a Detroit crook, was the brains of the gang, and he was shot and wounded by police while waiting for the boy's father to pay him his ransom money, at the edge of Detroit. David Cass was killed by his kidnappers when they did not receive the money. Laman turned state's evidence, and helped convict the others, after receiving a 30 to 40 year sentence. This was reduced by Gov. Green to 10 to 20 years. Now he has been paroled by Gov. Fitzgerald and will be freed on April 26, after serving six years and four months of his sentence. The answer seems to be that the Cass family did not occupy the same niche as the Lindbergs.

There is much agitation at the present time for flood control. The plan is to make conditions so that such terrible floods as have occurred this spring will not be repeated. We wonder if this is possible. A few years ago the state highway and county road commissions thought they had the snow drifts stopped by the erection of snow fences in places where the snow was liable to drift. Still this winter the drifts were the highest ever in spite of the fences. So any matter of effective flood control will probably not be arrived at until years of study and experiment.

The township road system, which has been in force in this state for the past 25 years, has passed out of existence. When this country was first built, men were told by old settlers that there were but few roads and the very poor. Then the township system was adopted. The township was divided into districts, presided over by path masters. The farms were allowed to work out their road tax. This depended on the path master. In some

Star Gives Pleasure by Simply Being What It Is

A star is beautiful; it affords pleasure, not from what it is, or to give, but simply by being what it is. It beats the heavens; it has congruity with the mighty space in which it dwells. Flandin Calls on Germany for a Showdown

PIERRE-ETIENNE FLANDIN, French foreign minister, speaking at Vezelay, demanded in the name of his government that Adolf Hitler lay his cards on the table, and intimated that unless Germany gives concrete proof of no aggressive intentions in central or western Europe, France will decline to negotiate further with the reich and will prepare for war. Flandin made it stand firmly with her allies, the little entente and Russia. Said he:

"The Fuehrer says Germany does not want to take anything from anybody, but he already had said that after the Saar plebiscite. He then also reaffirmed the Locarno treaty, which since has been repudiated, in the name of the integral sovereignty of the German people, does the Fuehrer intend, when he thinks the moment favorable, to bring up the Danzig question?"

"When he proposes a nonaggression pact with Lithuania does he accept definitely the status of Memel or is he just stalling for time to prepare new deeds of force in violation of treaties?"

"If Germany intends to assert her right to possess and exploit colonies, what colonies is she going to claim?" "Is it not significant that at the moment Hitler launches his peace appeal, Nazi propaganda is redoubling in Austria, Danish Schleswig, Polish Silesia, among the German minority in Czechoslovakia, and even in German Switzerland?"

"Yes or no, does Hitler renounce annexation and even full absorption of the populations of these territories into the reich, or does he proclaim that these are internal affairs of the German people in which he does not intend to let other nations meddle?" "If the latter case be the truth, then we understand why Germany is rearming at a record pace."

Germany Almost Solidly Supports Hitler

GERMANY'S men and women to the number of 44,389,140 declared by their votes in the reichstag elections that they supported the policies of Hitler. Only 542,898 had the nerve to vote against the reichsfuehrer, and a still smaller fraction refused to go to the polls. Among the latter were the former Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria and his wife.

Hitler's victory was thus extraordinarily complete, and the Nazis celebrated it with wild rejoicings in Berlin and other cities. It was the culmination of a three years' campaign in which the leaders sought to persuade the population of the reich that only Hitler could save the country from great danger. According to Berlin correspondents, there was a difference of opinion there as to the influence the triumph would have on the Fuehrer. Some said it would stiffen his back and induce him to ride roughshod over the powers which objected to his scrapping of the Locarno pact. Others said the election would make him feel so strong he would be willing to make a concession to his neighbors in an effort to help establish "the new order in Europe" to which he referred so frequently in his election speeches.

The new reichstag will be the largest in history, having about 740 members. Most of them will be officials of the Nazi party.

For the first time in the history of aviation a polling booth was established in the air. It was aboard the new dirigible Von Hindenburg, whose 104 passengers and crew voted solidly for Hitler. The Hindenburg and the Graf Zeppelin cruised over the Saar and the Rhineland all day long.

Japan Expects Trouble With Soviet Russia

THOUGH Koki Hirota, the new Japanese premier, said a few days ago that while he was in office there would be no war, it is evident his government really is looking for serious trouble with Russia. This feeling is expressed by Eiji Amai, spokesman for the Tokyo foreign office, who said: "Japan must prepare for Soviet aggression."

Recent activities indicate the Reds are availing themselves of the critical situation which developed after the recent military revolt in Tokyo and are increasing the strength of their troops along the Manchukuan border. Amai said the "recent Soviet policy has been to fire on any persons near the border." He said he regards this as a "friendly neighbor." He said Premier Hirota had protested the alleged action to K. K. Yurenev, Russian ambassador to Japan. Almost every day there are reports of clashes on the Mongolian border, each side blaming the other as aggressor. The Outer Mongolian government, reinforced by conclusion of its mutual assistance pact with Soviet Russia, dispatched a note to the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchukuo, declaring its readiness to resist any invasion.

Italian Bombers Wreck Second Ethiopian City

MUSSOLINI'S air bombers were busy again in Ethiopia, virtually ruining Harar, second city of that country, with a downpour of explosives. Most of the populace had fled when scouting planes gave a warning of what was to come, so the casualties were few. An official telephone message from Harar to Addis Ababa said fifteen incendiary bombs struck the Egyptian Red Cross hospital and others hit the Ethiopian Red Cross hospital.

A French mission, the French consulate, the Ethiopian radio station and prison all were reported officially to have been ruined.

The attack on Harar, coupled with a heavy bombardment of Jijiga, fifty miles east of Harar and a center of Ethiopia's southern defenses, raised native fears in Addis Ababa that the capital itself might be the next target.

Government in Business Decried by Committee

ACCORDING to the committee on government competition with private enterprise, whose report has been made to the President, that practice is wholly destructive except in situations where the public welfare can only thus be served. "The government's function," the report said, "is to protect economic activities of its citizens and not to supplant them."

The committee unanimously agreed that only under the following conditions is the government justified in entering into competition with private enterprise:

1. When required to assure adequate preparation for, and creation of, the facilities for national defense.
2. For the conservation of natural resources.
3. When private enterprise fails to conduct needed scientific research and exploratory activities to advance industrial development, or in the interest of public health and safety.
4. When private enterprise fails to render a service necessary for the general welfare.

Alien Deportation Bill Reported to Senate

DESPITE vigorous opposition, which will reappear on the floor of the senate, the senate committee on immigration and naturalization reported favorably the Kerr-Coolidge alien deportation bill, which Secretary Perkins has been trying to get through congress for three years. It will give her and two other members of an interdepartmental board discretionary power to harbor radical and even criminal aliens, otherwise deportable, in this country. The same bill recently was reported favorably by the house committee.

Pending action by congress on the measure, Secretary Perkins has been holding up the deportation of some 2,800 aliens mandatorily deportable under existing law, contending that they are "hardship cases." Some are radicals, some have criminal records, and others entered the country illegally. By "hardship cases" Secretary Perkins means that they would be separated from family ties or put to some other inconvenience.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina, Democrat, not long ago attacked the action of Secretary Perkins in holding up the deportations and denounced the pending bill as a "sham and a mockery" and a subterfuge to shield all kinds of radicals, criminals, and dependents unlawfully in this country.

Secretary Perkins refused to produce information respecting the 2,800 "hardship" cases until Reynolds introduced a senate resolution, whereupon she permitted him to examine the records.

Third Party Is Favored by Farmer-Laborites

FORMATION of a third national party was suggested in a resolution adopted by the Farmer-Labor party convention at St. Paul, Minn., and the delegates noisily welcomed the hint that Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota might be its Presidential candidate in 1940. Just now Mr. Olson is after a seat in the senate. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 368½ to 250½, although several leaders pleaded that the move be put off for four years. Governor Olson said privately that in his opinion the resolution could do no harm since it does not commit the liberals to putting a national ticket in the field this year. Neither does it authorize formation of such a ticket unless a second convention convenes and ratifies any action a proposed "exploratory conference" may take.

MICHIGAN NEWS BRIEFS

Holland—The official program of the Holland Tulip Festival has been released, setting Saturday, May 18, as the opening day, to continue through Sunday, May 24.

Bozette City—An eight-year-old boy has been acting as pianist in the Latter Day Saints church here. Jack B. Snyder, a third grader, played in several concerts in the church with such success that when the regular pianist was forced to be away for a month he was asked to take her place.

Owosso—Owosso will celebrate its one-hundredth birthday this summer, it has been decided by the Owosso Chamber of Commerce. The dates are July 1 to 4. Owosso was founded in 1836 by B. O. and A. L. Williams, brothers, and the first house built here, a log cabin, is still standing. It is used as a city museum.

Lansing—Visitors in Michigan's State parks will have an opportunity to see the traveling exhibit of the Conservation Department this summer. The exhibit material will be housed in a trailer, but when set up will occupy a space of about 60 by 20 feet. It will remain in each park from several days to a week.

Muskegon—Dorothy Smith, 12 years old, fell while taking part in a fire drill at Porter School, suffering a broken leg. It was her twelfth fracture. Doctors have been treating her to strengthen brittle bones. Some progress has been made, they said, but the treatment has not been successful rapidly enough to prevent recurring breaks.

Grand Rapids—Radio fans no longer will be permitted to hook their ground wires onto water pipes, nor can such connections be made for washing machines, automatic oil burners and other electrical devices, if the municipal light and water department has its way. It is claimed that considerable damage, in the form of electrolysis, is done to the water pipes.

Alpena—Three persons narrowly escaped death here when lightning struck a two-story frame building and set it afire. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kingsinger, sleeping on the first floor, and Gustave Goodrich, asleep on the second floor, were only eight feet from the path of the bolt which tore a hole in the roof. Two fuses in a telephone a quarter of a mile away were blown by the bolt.

Lansing—The State Stream Control Commission has given Lansing two months of grace in which to begin preparations for construction of a new sewage disposal plant. The city still hopes to obtain a Federal grant of $800,000 for the project, and was given the extension in view of that plea. The commission has ordered it to cease pollution of the Grand River.

Manistee—Tree planting in Manistee National Forest will be stepped up from 4,500,000 seedlings, last year's figure, to 5,700,000. Spring planting will include 700,000 seedlings, and 5,000,000 will be planted in the fall. Planting will be over 5,700 acres in Manistee, Mason and Lake Counties. Two towers will be built in the forest this summer, a 100-foot steel tower and a 50-foot wooden one.

Lansing—At a meeting of the Michigan Safety Council, a four-point plan to cut the traffic accident toll was approved. The program includes legislation, education, law enforcement and engineering, and a committee has been named to consider each of these subjects. A uniform code of traffic laws will be advocated; the State Highway Department will give attention to engineering improvements, and safety education will be continued in the schools.

East Lansing—Michigan State College has announced the development of a new rapid test that will reveal acidity or alkalinity in soil, and the degree of either. The new test employs an organic dye, developed from a chemical formula so complicated it requires a full typewritten line. A small lump of earth mixed with the dye is all the test involves. If the mixture becomes yellow it indicates acid soil. If it becomes purple it shows alkalinity. A color chart shows the degree of either.

Bay City—Samuel P. Cranage's phantom fortune of $55,147,000, represented by five sixty-five-year-old Government debentures, shrunk to zero under the scrutiny of special agents of the United States Secret Service, dispatched here from Washington to investigate the bewildering discovery. Cranage, a retired lumberman, found the documents in the files of the long defunct Pitts & Co. lumber mill. He is heir to and executor of the estate. The agents are of the opinion that the documents are merely reproductions of the originals.

Lansing—The annual drive to repair winter's damage to the State trunkline system is under way. Gravel roads are suffering from the spring break-up, particularly bad this year because their bases were frozen so hard last winter. Repair work in some sections, such as U.S.-16 between Lansing and Detroit, probably will cost about $100 a mile. Replacement of patches is the principal part on this artery. On U.S.-12, where frost has tilted entire blocks of pavement, it will be necessary to remove and replace them.

Dressing tables, like little girls' dresses, are now founced from top to bottom. For a young girl's room five crisp, sheer founces of white organdie make a most attractive table.

If the paint on the outside of your house has blistered it may be necessary to take off all old paint. No paint will bond well with poor old paint.

Oysters have a better flavor if not overcooked. They may be rolled in fine cracker crumbs, dipped in egg, rolled again in crumbs and fried in deep fat at 380 Fahrenheit.

Cut flowers will keep fresh much longer if removed from the table after each meal and placed in the refrigerator. Cover stems with water.

It has taken only 15 months to put Robert on his feet (soon there will be two instead of four) in this ultra modern hospital for crippled children. The picture justifies Steve's hope that the boy will be up and about with Robert as playmate in the world of physically whole boys.

Such as this would not be possible were it not for folks who care enough to finance hospitals and convalescent homes in which crooked feet and arms and backs can be made straight or straighter.

Of growing importance as a means of providing and supporting such institutions are "Crippled Children Seals," sold annually at Easter time. This year's design shows a prototype of Robert, or Steve, in the form of a crippled lad sitting with his crutch on the threshold of "The Door of Opportunity."

"Open Wide the Door" is the Seal slogan. Beyond the door can be visualized endless possibilities for physically handicapped youngsters; for the pennies and dollars invested in these tiny, appealing stamps in Easter motif will help lift the burden of crippledom.

In this Community and State the Seal sale continues until April 15th. Penny Easter Seals help crippled children.

LOCAL MEN TO ATTEND SCOUTING SEMINAR IN PONTIAC, APRIL 20th

Four members of the National Staff of the Boy Scouts of America, Dr. Lorne W. Barclay, Charles W. Miller, Thomas J. Keane, and Harvey A. Gordon will be the headliners of a one-day seminar for all scout leaders and committeemen to be held at Pontiac on Monday, April 20th, according to an announcement made today by John S. Page, president of the Washtenaw-Livingston Council.

The day's program will include four sessions running simultaneously, each in charge of one of the National Staff men present. Mr. Keane will discuss "Senior Scouting"; Mr. Gordon will discuss "Camping"; Mr. Miller, "Council Finance and Administration"; and Dr. Barclay, "Council Activities and Civic Service."

PLANT FOOD AIDS FARM GARDENERS

Soil Expert Suggests Addition of Commercial Fertilizers to Application of Available Barnyard Manure

Proper attention to plant food in the farm garden can make an enormous increase in the yield of vegetables, suggests James Tyson, assistant professor and research assistant in the soils department at Michigan State College.

Barnyard manure is the natural fertilizer to use on farm gardens because it is available and requires no financial outlay. Yet valuable as it is as a source of plant food, applied regularly at intervals of two or three years, he recommends the addition of some commercial fertilizer to the garden soil.

"For clay soils, add 400 pounds of 4-16-4 or 2-16-2 to the manure application of 10 to 15 loads per acre. For loams and sandy loams," Professor Tyson recommends, "use 400 pounds of 4-16-8 or 600 pounds of 2-12-4 per acre. For beans and peas in clay soils, use 0-20-2 fertilizer or 0-14-6 in loam or sandy loam garden soil."

"Barnyard manure should be spread over the garden before plowing. Some of the fertilizer may be broadcast over the surface and plowed under and some of it saved to spread in the bottom of the row and covered with soil before planting seeds. Another good method is to apply the fertilizer in parallel bands two inches on each side of the seed row and a little below the seed. This is especially useful in the potato rows."

Farm gardens strongly acid in reaction will respond to the use of lime, says Professor Tyson, but he does not recommend an application on soil to be used for growing potatoes because of the greater danger from scab injury.

PRUNE SPARINGLY TO GET FLOWERS

Shrubs Should Not Be Slaughtered, Warns Michigan State College Horticulturist.

Specialists impel gardeners to push out the old and make room for the new with the rake and pruning saw. But go cautiously with the pruning saw, warns Professor C. E. Wildon, horticultural department, Michigan State College.

"Most home gardeners believe that shrubs should be pruned and that is likely to be the first spring task at hand," he says. "But he is likely to be misled. Many shrubs require some pruning, but where the shrubs are given a little care, the amount of pruning required is small."

The kind of wood removed and the time of pruning are important, according to Professor Wildon. "For shrubs that flower on old wood, such as the lilac, syringa, and other flowering shrubs should not be pruned at this time, but rather immediately after flowering."

"One trouble which is valuable in the spring for its flowers and in the late summer for its berries should be pruned judiciously, removing only enough of the oldest leaders to insure the appearance of strong young wood."

"In pruning any shrub, the first pruning should be the removal of dead wood and of diseased parts. Then should follow the removal of branches or leaders that are old. All old shrubs that send leaders from the ground should have about one-fourth of the oldest branches removed. These should be the oldest branches. The reason for removal of these older leaders is that they produce smaller flowers or fruits than do the younger branches. Branches that have gone beyond bounds should be pruned back to make the structure for a graceful symmetrical specimen."

SHORTS

An ornamental horticulture institute at Michigan State College, East Lansing, April 13 to 17, offers an opportunity to estate gardeners, and home gardening amateurs to learn fundamentals of selection, culture and use of plants for the home and for the home garden. The course annually attracts gardeners from estates in and around Detroit and other large cities both in and out of the state. In the five day program subjects will include how to make and maintain a good lawn, best varieties of shrubs and vines and their use, best herbaceous perennials for Michigan, annual flowers, bulbs, roses, house plants, window boxes and hanging baskets. Laboratory demonstrations and green house work will include participation by the students.

A rhubarb betty is likely to be as popular at the table as any other favorite, apple betty. It is made in the same way, using either stewed or raw rhubarb. If the latter, sprinkle each layer with sugar, dot with butter, and bake a little longer than when the rhubarb is already cooked.

Yellow cornmeal has more vitamin A than white, but otherwise the food value is about equal if the grinding process is the same, according to the home economics department at Michigan State College. The white cornmeal, which seems to be the favorite in the southeastern states and some parts of New England, is more bland. Yellow cornmeal, popular in northern states, has more of the corn taste. Corn varieties characteristic of the southwest and Mexico produce blue, black, and red meal.

COUNTY RECORDS WEIGHT TAX COLLECTIONS

Aud. Gen. John J. O'Hara and State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner announced today that the first-quarter returns to the counties on weight tax collections will reach a record high this year.

The two officials revealed that vouchers totaling $11,490,288.86 have been prepared covering the first quarter. The counties, however, will actually receive only $9,462,262.06 of this amount as they were given an advance of $2,028,026.80 earlier in the year.

The advances were made to help the counties finance their local snow-removal programs. O'Hara reported that virtually all the counties took advantage of the advance.

Advances were made largely upon the plea of counties in the northern part of the lower peninsula and those in the Upper Peninsula. Commissioner Van Wagoner suggested this move in January when a delegation from these counties appeared before the augmented state administrative board in an effort to obtain funds for snow-removal purposes. The record snow-fall during the past winter, however, caused practically all the counties in the state to apply for advances on their returns.

Current first-quarter returns are nearly $3,000,000 more than the amount vouchered to the counties the same period last year. At that time the first-quarter payments amounted to $8,557,303.55 while in 1934 they were only $5,906,000.

In making the payments at this time the state highway department and the auditor-general's office are meeting the obligation nearly ten days ahead of the time required by the statute. The law specifies that the funds be vouchered by April 15.

O'Hara said that payments will be withheld from ten counties until they have made their Sept. 30 settlement of obligations with the state. These delinquent counties are Alger, Baraga, Clare, Gladwin, Jackson, Lake, Oakland, Macomb, Sanilac, and Van Buren.

Allocations to the counties including advances already made are:

Livingston County	$ 57,484.20
Washtenaw	195,931.49
Ingham	309,074.47
Jackson	134,245.30
Oakland	474,425.07
Shiawassee	93,875.58
Wayne	4,352,134.46

NEW YEARS ADVANCE

A new year's advance in the standard of living is being made by the average citizen, according to a report by the Federal Reserve Board. The report states that the average citizen's standard of living has advanced by 38 per cent since 1913. This advance is based on the fact that the average citizen's income has increased by 38 per cent, and that the average citizen's consumption has increased by 38 per cent. The report also states that the average citizen's standard of living has advanced by 38 per cent since 1913, based on the fact that the average citizen's income has increased by 38 per cent, and that the average citizen's consumption has increased by 38 per cent.

What a contrast to such a possible experience is that of one whose thought and life are governed by the law of life! It means safety instead of danger, security in place of uncertainty and risk, stability and steadfastness of thought and purpose instead of vacillating gullibility. Conformity to divine law in one's thinking and conduct precludes any such thing as chance. Correct thinking resulting in right action brings its own legitimate return and reward. The more one's thoughts and life are governed by the law of God, good, the more assured is one not alone of true prosperity and success, but also of safeguard from all ill.

How reassuring it is to remember that as mental allegiance is transferred from any dependence upon chance to reliance upon the operation of divine law, not alone are we ourselves safeguarded from harm, but we are helping to safeguard the entire world. On page 424 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, writes, "Accidents are unknown to God, or Immortal Mind, and we must leave the mortal basis of belief and unite with the one Mind, in order to change the notion of chance to the proper sense of God's unerring direction and thus bring out harmony." Who is there, who, having changed "the notion of chance" to "God's unerring direction" does not feel happier, more at peace, more safe and secure? He has exchanged a precarious and unstable mental footing, which Christ Jesus spoke of as a house built "upon the sand," for one which the Master described as a house built "upon a rock," against which the winds and rain and floods of adverse circumstance could not prevail.

One thus conforming with divine law is graphically described in the Psalm in the following beautiful metaphor (Psalm 1:3): "As a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

Broad Economic Progress—The Way It Can Be Achieved

By HAROLD G. MOULTON

President, The Brookings Institution, Washington, D. C.

MUCH current discussion of economic problems is focused too intently on the depression to shed real light on our fundamental difficulties. Today's troubles obscure our view of what happened yesterday and what is likely to happen tomorrow. Actually our economic structure was being undermined by grave maladjustments long before the depression; in our "prosperity" years, millions of American families were poor.

Farmers and people in the small towns scarcely need to be told this. In 1929 and before, agriculture was not prosperous. Farmers had to pay high prices for the things they bought, but got little for what they sold. They were in a depression even then—caught between what looked like irresistible forces and an immovable body.

There are about 54 million farmers and people living in the small towns. In addition, professional men, domestic workers, small shopkeepers and others etc. It would not merely "soak the rich." Purchasing power can be increased only as we learn how to produce goods and services more efficiently and pass the benefits of that efficiency on to the masses. If we devise a way to make two articles where we formerly made one, and we pass on this gain to the people, purchasing power is actually created—the extra article can be sold.

Higher Wages and the Farmer

Organized labor for many years has tried to obtain the benefits of increased efficiency by pressure for higher wages. When improvements in production methods in a given plant made it possible to turn out two articles at what one had previously cost, organized labor sought to direct the savings into higher wages.

This gave certain groups of workers more purchasing power, but the effect on farmers has not been favorable. It has forced them to pay higher prices

PRODUCTIVE CAPACITY AND ACTUAL PRODUCTION, 1922-33

This chart illustrates the extent to which we have failed to utilize our full productive capacity. The black area represents the actual production, and the hatched area, the additional amount that could have been produced. In 1922, our plant, as a whole, could have produced 10 per cent more than it did. But after 1928 this percentage of non-utilized capacity increased sharply. Productive capacity also ceased to expand at its former rate, and the gap between the two lines widened. Much of this failure to utilize our productive capacity is due to monopolistic forces which have been able to keep prices under the force of free competition, so that people can buy more of the way to production of more goods and a higher standard of living for all.

living in the cities who do not have the means to utilize our full productive capacity. The same was true in large degree of the city dwellers mentioned above who do not work for wages, numbering 20 million. An economic disparity was created between two great segments of our population, raising a serious barrier to economic progress.

But if we permit the fruits of man's inventive genius and technological advance to reach the people in the form of price reductions, no such barriers are raised. All classes benefit alike; the chief gain is in the low income groups, and it is most needed.

To the farmer, it means better housing, food, clothes, and in general a steady rise in his standards of living that he can get no other way.

Price reductions, of course, must not come from wage cuts, if they are to increase purchasing power. But we can get price reductions as we learn to make things more cheaply. This is the way we can expand consumption solidly, year after year, which in turn will call forth larger production. It is the way toward envisaged in the theory of our profit and loss system. Increased efficiency makes price reductions possible; competition insures that they actually take place.

Price Stabilization Tendencies

Whereas the period of great technological advance between 1870 and 1930 brought notable price reductions, contributing much to raising living standards, there was little reduction of prices in the similar period of 1922-29. Productive efficiency in manufacturing in the latter era as measured by output per worker, increased about 25 per cent. But forces of price maintenance had become so strong that retail prices in the aggregate remained practically stationary.

Of course, there was competition in many lines, and prices declined accordingly. But this was not true of all producers. Artificial devices to maintain prices dammed up the stream of progress. Producers neglected to face the fact that in the long run they could prosper only as the masses could buy an expanding volume of their goods.

This fact must be faced. We must remove the obstacles to price reductions which now exist, wherever they are. It is the only way that people who live in small towns or on farms, or otherwise do not work for wages, can fully participate in our economic progress. And, unless these do participate, we can have no broad, continued progress.

The failure of industrial prices to decline is primarily responsible for the movement in recent years to attempt an improvement in the farm situation by artificial methods of restricting production, with a view to restoring "parity" with industry. However, such policies may be temporarily helpful, but agriculture and industry combined obviously cannot expect to increase the total production of goods and services for the American people as a whole by restricting output and raising prices. National cooperation in the expansion of output, giving to all the people the largest possible consumption, is a paramount necessity.

Purchasing power must expand. Our productive efficiency is increasing year by year in normal times. That is, we are learning how to make things more cheaply. But if the people are to buy the added products thus made possible, their purchasing power must grow with production.

Expanding purchasing power cannot be created simply by printing more money. That would just raise prices. And we cannot accomplish much by "sharing wealth or income." Such a program would entail taking income from skilled workers, many farmers, small shopkeepers, government clerks,

For a Thousand Meals a Year

THE BEST

IS NONE TOO GOOD!

At the Autumn Salon of 1927 of l'Institut de France the art of cooking was officially recognized along with painting, literature and sculpture as one of the Fine Arts

To be exact, you eat 1095 meals a year (1098 this year). And whether these meals bring you real enjoyment, whether they are a gustatory pleasure or simply the usual "three a day" depends upon two things: (1) good food (2) proper cooking.

Mediocre cooking will sustain life. But—thank goodness!—there are in this world women who recognize cooking as an art. With the skill born of genius, they delight in taking simple foods, bestowing on them a magic touch, and turning out delectable dishes that elicit praise from young and old. These women are modest housewives and homemakers, and are rarely recognized as artists... yet they are true artists in their own right. They find a joy in their creative endeavors, a reward in the daily pleasure they bring their families.

To all this, we should like to add one thought: The woman who takes pride in her cooking has a right to demand the finest cooking equipment available. There is no question today about the best equipment. It is the electric stove. And for a thousand meals a year, the best is none too good.

HERE'S THE BEST!

Too often, one must pay the penalty of price for enjoying "the best" in any class. But in the field of electric cooking, this is not true. An electric cook stove is within reach of the family of moderate means. It brings all its proven superlatives—the advantages of cleanliness, convenience, healthfulness, delicious flavor—at a cost little more than that of fuel cooking. Electric cooking is unquestionably "the finest cooking that money can buy." And there is no longer any reason for depriving yourself and your family of this modern method. Why not stop in and look at some of the newest models of electric stoves today?

A CHEF'S FAVORITE

It is a fact that persons who are constantly engaged in turning out delicacies and unusual dishes often become very tired of such fancy creations and long for a simple, homely roast or stew. This in mind, we are presenting a recipe that we are sure will have a popular reception everywhere—Meat Pie.

MEAT PIE

2 cups cold sliced meat 2 cups gravy or soup
3 onions sliced 1 stock (hot)
1 c. chopped celery 1 cup cooked carrots
2 cold diced potatoes 1/2 tsp. salt

PASTRY

1 1/2 cups flour 1/2 tsp. salt
4 tbsps. shortening 1/4 cup water
1 tsp. baking powder
Mix flour, salt and baking powder together, cut in shortening, and add water to form soft dough and drop by spoonfuls over meat mixture. Bake at 425 degrees for 25 minutes. Any leftover meat or vegetables may be utilized in this way.

Three Are Awarded Vail Medal for 1935

Three Michigan telephone employees, two men employed by the Michigan Bell Telephone Company and a woman employee of the Tri-County Telephone Company, have been cited for the award of the Theodore N. Vail medal in bronze, for meritorious acts of public service performed during 1935. In each case the act for which the medal is awarded resulted in the saving of a human life.

Announcement of the awards, by George M. Welch, president of the Michigan Bell Company and chairman of the Michigan Committee of Vail Medal Awards, has been received here by E. W. Brey, Michigan Bell manager in this area.

Four other employees of the Michigan Bell Company, one a Detroit, one from Lansing and two from Lake Odessa, have been cited for honorable mention for outstanding acts of service. The acts for which the medal has been awarded are set forth in Mr. Welch's announcement as follows.

Mrs. Nina P. Tait, night operator at South Haven, while employed at her switchboard signal which she recognized as coming from a local department store. She received no reply to her query but detected sounds of meaning and heavy breathing, and notified the store owner and the police department immediately. At the store the officers found the watchman, beaten and wounded and in a critical condition from loss of blood. Mrs. Tait then summoned a physician and an ambulance at the request of the police. When the watchman regained consciousness four days later he was able to identify his assailant, who later was convicted and sentenced.

Joseph Kooyers, Michigan Bell Cable splicer at Grand Rapids, and Harry Meade, his helper, rescued and revived by artificial respiration an employee of the Pere Marquette Railway, who had come into contact with a 7,200-volt transformer last August 30.

Kooyers and Meade, while working on a telephone repair job, were attracted to the scene of the accident by shouts of fellow-workers of the victim. Removing the unconscious man from the transformer after causing the power to be turned off, they applied artificial respiration and rendered other first aid, knowledge of which they had gained in Michigan

Bell Company's first aid courses. The victim then was removed to a hospital where he recovered.

Walter L. Nicholas, Lansing house service man and one of the four awarded honorable mention, rescued two small children from their burning home. His case is being referred to the Carnegie Foundation for possible further recognition. Kenneth Freeman, Detroit miller, cited for meritorious commendation, for saving the life of a woman overcome by gas fumes. During 1935 he administered first aid to a man who had been partially overcome by gas. The others receiving commendation for outstanding acts during 1935 are William Pinnow and Clare E. Matthey, employees at Lake Odessa, who rendered service in extinguishing a residential fire.

The Theodore N. Vail Medal is awarded under the terms of the Vail Memorial Fund, established fifteen years ago by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. Since that time, 61 medals have been awarded to Michigan telephone men and women.

TAKE MEN ALONG IN EASTER BUYING

Women Can Get Valuable Advice From Menfolk in Purchasing New Clothing

Take your husband or son along for advice when you go to buy a fashionable and strictly tailored suit for Easter, is the suggestion to women from Helen Simmonds, instructor in textiles and clothing at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

"Ask advice from the men. They will like it and I am sure you will profit by it," says Miss Simmonds. "Men through years of experience have discovered that a good fabric will outwear any number of cheap ones and that it is extremely important to select goods that will not wrinkle but will hold its shape."

For the woman who does not want to be too mannish in a suit, Miss Simmonds suggests feminine blouses and accessories that make a suit look dainty and fresh. Suitable fabrics include an attractive woolen called "shark skin" in gray or tan tones. Navy blue, says this authority, is popular this year, with competition from light to dark gray cloths. Blouses, scarves and vests can be used for variety in wearing the street suit.

NOTICE

Be it resolved, for $1.00 (one dollar) and other considerations, by the Common Council of the Village of Pinckney, that we hereby deem it, as a necessity, advisable to vacate and discontinue Webster Street from Main Street south one block to Livingston Street, same being in block four, range six and block four, range six and block four, range seven. Also deeding west half to Dr. Claude L. Sigler and east half to Frank Grimes.

Motion by Bowers, supported by Meyer, that a notice of this resolution be published in the Pinckney Dispatch for 4 (four) consecutive weeks for the purpose of any objections to the same.

Objections to be filed with the clerk and appear in person on April 25th at eight o'clock P. M. at Council Chambers before the Village Council.

Motion carried.

"Florin ticked off the suspects. 'Your ladyship, myself, the valet, Rachel, both the night-watchmen. . . ' 'He hesitated there, so I dug in the spurs.

"Is that absolutely all?" "Captain Fanning knew," said Florin. "I gave a most lifelike start. 'Captain Fanning!' I cried. 'So he did. And his servant, too.' 'It was Florin's turn to start. 'And his servant?' he cried. 'Yes, yes,' I cried. 'Both of them knew. His servant was there last night. I didn't know it when I was speaking to you. But he was behind the curtain. I don't know why.'

"Then I called upon Florin to find you—I gave all sorts of wild reasons why you must be found. And then I fainted, and good, honest Florin caught me and carried me down to my room. 'So you see I'm quite a good actress. 'Well, the hunt was up all right. Talk about sensation. . . I could smell the lust for vengeance. The horns were fairly off. Then I heard the incredible news.

"Captain Fanning and his servant were gone. 'The position might be far better, for Pharaoh's at large. Still, it's very much better than it was. He's not only out of Yorick without any loss of life, but his flight has proclaimed him guilty of shedding blood.

"Well, the rest was very easy. I sent for old Florin and told him most of the truth. I told him that 'Fanning' was Pharaoh and that Pharaoh was after the gold; that Pharaoh had killed young Florin and that since you, John, could prove this, he was going to take your life; that he'd only spared you till now—well, to serve his own ends; that, though that blood was your blood, for the moment I knew you were safe; but I said that your death was appointed and that, Pharaoh being Pharaoh, nothing on earth could save you—except his death."

She turned to Geoffrey. "I don't have to ask if you agree with me there."

My cousin shrugged his shoulders. "There's not much more to be told," Helena continued. "I said nothing of Valentine, of course. His return now might not be fatal, but he's very much better away. At a quarter to eight I left the castle a fortress and drove to Annabel."

"Unarmed and unaccompanied?" said Geoffrey.

Helena shrugged her shoulders. "The risk was slight, and how could I take a servant to where I'd left Valentine? Yet it was vital that you should know at once that Pharaoh was out. To my dismay, you were gone, but as your room door was locked, I guessed you'd left Valentine there and so would come back. Well, we held a consultation. His orders were at once to remove the Count, and, much as I wanted to see you, I felt that for every reason those orders must take first place. You see, though Pharaoh knew where he'd left you, neither he nor I had a map. I've been looking for you for six hours. I sat down and cried once. Sabre'll hear me out."

"The Position Might Be Far Better."

"Great heart," said Geoffrey quickly, and touched her hand. Helena smiled.

"The glory to Sabre," she said. "And for all the good I've done, I might have given Barley a message—he'll be here in half an hour. I was able to help him, though. I diverted the household's attention while he got my wretched brother into the car. As for his ultimate disposal—well, when I look at you, I feel humble. I acknowledge a master brain. The Gordian knot of it he will untie. Familiar as his garter."

"Pure chance," said Geoffrey lightly. "I'd painted the river just there, and the monks were very kindly and obviously simply stamping to use their skill. You know. Any friend of mine—"

This told me the truth of the matter. I knew where Valentine was. And that was some 60 miles off—in a private ward. This stood remote, its windows commanding the cloister of the convent to which it belonged. The only patients admitted were those alleged to have been bitten by dogs that were mad. The treatment lasted a fortnight.

"Well, there you are," said Helena. "There are the facts. And now, if you please, Mr. Bohun, what do we do?" "We take you back to Yorick. I shan't know a moment's peace till you're where you belong."

"And then you're wrong," said Helena. "I'm going to see the fun."

In the discussion which followed I took no part and indeed I scarcely listened to what was said, for my thoughts would not leave the scene in the fragrant valley and at last, since I did not care, I tired of haling them back and let them be.

Presently I got up and made for the road, while my cousin followed behind. As I reached the stretch of macadam—

"There's nothing for it," said Geoffrey. "We shall all have to sleep at Yorick, because of this willful girl. Perhaps she'll see reason tomorrow. How the devil can she lie out all night? She's all in now."

"She can't, of course," said I. "But what's that to do with us?"

"Only this," said my cousin. "That she won't sleep at Yorick unless we do. Her very words."

We strolled down the road in silence, from time to time turning about.

After a while my cousin pushed back his hat.

"As a child," he said, "I never liked blindman's buff—boys and girls, I mean. I liked it less. That dislike I have never lost." He put his hands to his head. "I'd give a hell of a lot to know where Pharaoh is."

I looked at him sharply. The last few words he had spoken half to himself, but his tone was the tone of a man who is worried to death. Because I was fond of Geoffrey, the instinct to share his trouble lifted its head, and in that moment my apathy fell away.

Pharaoh. Yes, where was Pharaoh? and what would Pharaoh do?

As I asked myself these questions, my newly awakened interest leaped into life. I saw that here to my hand was the very distraction I needed to drive my distemper away; the location and destruction of Pharaoh and Pharaoh's men.

Yorick and its treasure he damned—I had my own quarrel with Pharaoh. Ten days ago he had murdered a fellow-man; I had sworn to bring him to justice, and so I would. More—a hundred times more. My duty to Helena was over; the yoke that had cumbered my efforts was off my neck.

I began to think very hard.

Pharaoh would be close to the castle. Not, of course, at Plumage. But Pharaoh would be close to the castle because he was up against Time.

I had no doubt at all that he meant to attack.

The position was formidable, for Yorick was up in arms. But what were its walls and sentries, when more than a million sovereigns were lying within? And since finesse had failed, Pharaoh was going to do what Pharaoh had done before. He was going to commit burglary. Once within the castle, a gang of four such men could have its own way. What were footmen and grooms and porters? Only troops could cope with the violence which these felons were ready to offer to gain their ends. Three or four writhing servants, and the Countess must open her cellar and bid them take what they would. Who knew better than Pharaoh that ruthlessness pays?

I remembered that Helena told me that when she went to Salzburg she carried a thousand sovereigns; that these were contained in two boxes; that each of these weighed nine pounds. Allowing for the weight of the boxes, I reckoned that the Rolls could carry at least fifty thousand sovereigns in canvas bags. And fifty thousand sovereigns meant seventy thousand pounds.

The calculation bore fruit. Before I had finished my sum, I knew where Pharaoh would be. And that was as close to the castle as he could bring the Rolls.

A moment's reflection assured me that Pharaoh would make no use of the entrance drive. That was too dangerous.

I was ready to wager a fortune that the Rolls was now standing in Starlight—the lovely copse less than two miles from Yorick. And where the Rolls was, was Pharaoh; her way was his line of advance and his line of retreat. The thing stood out. In the woods between Starlight and Yorick—somewhere there Pharaoh would be.

I began to wonder how Pharaoh would enter the castle. If Rush could reach a postern. . . But how could they cross the bridge?

Here, with a shock of dismay, I remembered that I was unarmed. For a moment my hopes seemed dust. Then I saw that this was a matter in which I must use my wits. My cousin would arm me, if I could show him good cause. This would not be difficult. I was so simple a fool that he would never doubt my good faith. I began to think how to deceive him.

"This home-coming stunt," I said. "Won't Pharaoh be there to receive us—at the mouth of the entrance drive?"

"As like as not," said my cousin. "The only thing is that unless he heard or saw Lady Helena leave the castle, he'll never imagine that either of you are outside. So he won't be ready. But we'll have to go by all out. All the same, I'm damned uneasy. I can sympathize with detectives who are answerable for the safety of royalty. And I know very well what they'd do. They'd take her straight to Salzburg and put a guard on her room." He gave his head to the air. "I'm tempted to go by Plumage, but, to tell you the truth, I'm afraid to get out of the car. If we meet the fellow on foot, we're damned well done. Will you go with me in her car?"

"No," said I. "I won't. I'll follow with Barley behind."

"All right," said Geoffrey, "all right. But Barley's the better shot, so you'd better drive."

I thought before replying. "Incidentally," I said, "I haven't a pistol to fire—or any sort of weapon, for the matter of that."

"You won't need one, if you drive."

"I'd rather have something," I said. "I've been caught bending once through being unarmed."

"Perhaps you're right," said Geoffrey. He put his hand to his side and unfasted a hunting knife. "Knives seem to be your portion, but except my pistol, I haven't anything else."

After Some 14 Miles We Stopped at a Wayside Inn.

The blade was sheathed, and I slid the knife into my pocket without a word.

"And allow me to add," said my cousin, "that I am immensely relieved to see you showing some signs of taking thought for yourself. I take off my hat to valor, but to valor plus discretion I go on my knees."

And at that moment we heard the drone of a car.

Two minutes later Barley drew up beside us, in a smother of dust.

"O. K.," said Geoffrey, shortly.

"Every time, sir," said Barley. "It couldn't have gone more easy if you'd been there. The old fathers, they wasn't half pleased. His lordship come to his senses as we was gettin' him out, but I don't think he cared what happened—his head was too bad. An' when he saw the monks an' the gateway, I think he thought he was dead. I gave them your note and I showed them the 'punctured wound.' I'd made it with my trousers' buckle, same as you said. That was good enough for them. Four of them carried him off, an' two of the others rushed off to heat the irons. I only 'ope they don't take his leg off."

My cousin strove to steady his voice.

"Hush," he said. "Her ladyship knows quite enough."

I turned to see Helena approaching. "All's well," said Geoffrey. "Your brother is safely bestowed. I think we'd all be the better for breaking bread."

Helena nodded.

"I'll sit with Barley," she said. "I've got to try and show him the way to my car."

Ten minutes later we sighted a good looking coupe, tucked under a rock that looked like a leaning pulpit, by the side of a fall.

As Barley slowed down—

"And now," said Helena.

"May I come with you?" said my cousin. "I'd like you to drive."

"Very well. But Barley must lead. I don't know the way."

This was not at all to my liking, but happily Geoffrey stepped in.

"Barley shall lead," he said, "I'll we've eaten and drunk. After that, I'll like to go first. Please do as I say."

Helena hesitated. Then—

"All right," she said.

After some 14 miles we stopped at a wayside inn. The fare was rough and all the appointments most rude; but I think we were all four thankful to break our fast. Though they did not know it, I was a good deal more thankful than anyone else; the others would find plenty at Yorick, but I only knew when and where I should eat again.

No more was said of the order the cars should take, and when our meal was over, the coupe was under way before I had taken my seat.

Quick as a flash—

"You'll have to drive, Barley," I said. "You haven't heard, but Dewdrop stuck me last night. I think he found a muscle or something. I'm stiff."

"Very good, sir," said Barley, and took the wheel.

A mile or two later—

"Where's your pistol?" I said. "I don't anticipate trouble, but now that you're driving, I'd better have it in case. I suppose you can guess who's got mine."

As Barley surrendered the weapon—

"Her ladyship did tell me something. Fancy Dewdrop stabbin' you."

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

Most people know whether they are doing right or wrong.

Wabbly Wills

Most people know also that it is far wiser in the end to do right than to do wrong.

But unless will power is cultivated—put to work, and kept at work to guide your actions—look out!

It will begin to slip, and after that you will have trouble with it—plenty of trouble.

Controlling the will does not mean suppressing it.

There are times when it ought to be the boss.

But again there are times when you will have to hold it in check, and keep it sternly in check if you don't want it to run away with you and get you into trouble.

I do not believe that any person is in constant need of self-discipline.

As a rule they can go along without fear that their emotions or their desires will kick up and insist on being given a hearing.

But as a rule if you begin early to keep your will in hand it will "stay put" and not lead you into temptation, or even sow in your soul the seeds of covetousness and selfishness.

If your will is wabbly, if you find it hard to decide between what you know is the right course and what you are pretty sure is the wrong course, sit down by yourself and think it out.

Think it out with your future in mind. What you have been, what you may be now are over the dam.

You can't do anything about them.

But you can, if you cultivate self-control, acquire the capacity of sticking to a job and doing it right, and gradually become your own boss. Not until then will you be able to do what you want to do with your life.

As a reporter I have met and interviewed and associated with many successful men.

Some of them were talented. Some of them were just determined.

But they all had their wills under their control, and their actions were in turn guided by their wills.

We all have in our veins the various bloods of hundreds of unknown ancestors. We must be influenced more or less by these streams.

But somewhere between our ears is the executive officer of our being, the will.

Cultivate it. Keep it on the job. If it falters, bring it back into line.

To the city dweller, radio programs have already become an old story.

Along with automobiles and subways they are accepted as conveniences which assist in killing time.

It is in the desert places of the earth, and on the islands that lie so far off shore that they are not easily reached that they have become a blessing.

Not long ago an acquaintance took me in his motorboat to an island about 12 miles off the coast of Maine, an island chiefly used by summer visitors, but with a local population which remains all winter so hemmed about by gales that it is impossible to visit the mainland.

In such places as these, once practically desert islands the radio has become a beneficent miracle.

The islanders, once completely shut off from knowledge of what was going on in cities of the mainland are now almost as conversant with happenings ashore as are those living in the cities themselves.

Moreover, fishermen far out to sea receive daily reports of the movements of the schools of fish. Some of them have sending sets of their own by means of which their home ports can learn of their whereabouts, their catches, and of any other matters of interest.

I can remember of no modern development in my time which has been quite as dramatic, quite so seemingly impossible as this communication through the air with the sea and the shore.

Last evening I sat in the house of a neighbor and heard messages from the shore going out to distant fleets—news of catches by vessels just come into port—of illness at the homes of some of the fishermen—many other things which until a few years ago could never have reached the knowledge of the mariners until they returned from their cruises.

And the next night I attended a theater, and heard a crowd wildly applauding a magician who had just, apparently, taken a rabbit out of a silk hat which he had removed from his head.

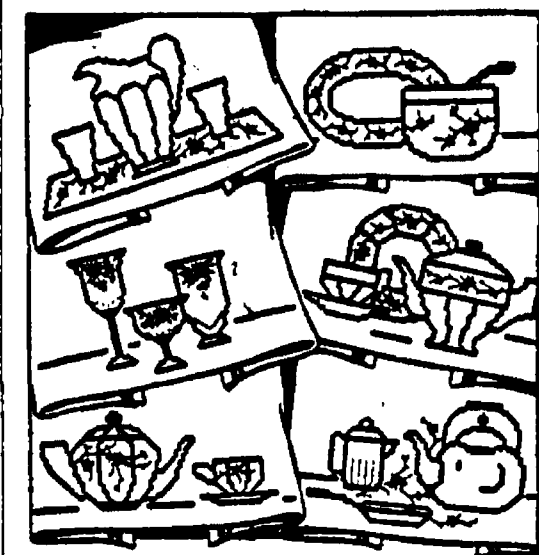

What men, who think, will be able to do in days yet to come, is beyond human power to guess.

But in the one department of radio alone it has furnished a promise of wonders to come that is almost unbelievable.

Apparently we are just beginning to understand the power and range of this new means of communication.

But our children will look back to our times and say to each other: "Those were the days when people thought the radio was a wonder."

You can depend on Ferry's seeds to produce true to type and quality wherever you live—in any climate. How can we say this? Because we conduct over 50,000 tests annually, to make sure they will grow. Over 9,000 tests to make sure of their quality. And that's just part of the continuous activity at our Rochester, Mich., and Salinas, Cal., stations. For 80 years this work has progressed—improving and maintaining the established quality of vegetable and flower seeds.

We develop our foundation stock at the stations. It is then used for seed production on our farms or under our supervision. The resulting seed is sold only after tests have shown that it is of proper quality and germination. You can buy Ferry seeds today in your own neighborhood, many for as little as 5c a packet.

OLD RECORDS TRIP LUCKLESS DRIVERS

While it is generally realized that the Secretary of State is keeping a file of the traffic violations of every motor vehicle operator in the state, virtually no one in Michigan realizes that the court and police records of this state are today being dredged so as to record every traffic violation committed by every operator since 1931.

Even more significant than the building up of the violations file from current reports, is the fact that literally hundreds of drivers are being tripped up by their past records which the state is just finding out about. Records are being searched from May 1, 1931, when the present operators' licensing act went into effect.

An average of 500 applications for renewal of operator's license are being rejected weekly by the Department of State on the basis of the driving history of applicants as revealed by the already bulky records of the violations file. Most of those whose applications are denied, do not, as is their right, appeal to the board composed of representatives of the Attorney General, the Commissioner of Public Safety and the Secretary of State. Appeals are heard by local boards; police represent the state police; prosecutors represent the Attorney General; Department of State investigators represent the Secretary of State.

Casual inspection of the violation file shows that some drivers have been ruled off the road as the result of discovery of as many as 40 and 50 violations or convictions of traffic offenses on their local records. Conviction reports and complete violation records for virtually every driving offense save overtime parking, are being recorded for use against drivers with poor records.

The inspection of local police and court records is being done by young men employed by the National Youth Administration, under the supervision of the Michigan State police, in conjunction with local peace officials. More than 1400 young men are working in 233 towns and villages copying records which are compiled at the state headquarters State Police post at East Lansing and forwarded to the Department of State.

FREE TICKETS TO STATE FAIR

An invitation to attend the Michigan State Fair as his guests was extended to each and every one of the more than 1,200,000 public and parochial school children throughout the state today, by state agricultural commissioner, James F. Thomson.

The Commissioner announced that through the co-operation of the state department of public instruction tickets for the annual exposition to be held in Detroit, Sept. 4 to 13 inclusive, will be made available to every school child in the state. One ticket admitting each child to the fair grounds for one day will be made available upon application to the school teacher. Tickets will be issued before schools close for the summer.

Arrangements are also being made whereby school children in the Upper Peninsula will be guests of the Commissioner at the Upper Peninsula State Fair to be held in Escanaba during the month of August.

In thus placing the State Fair and its millions of dollars in exhibits before the children of the State, Commissioner Thomson said he aimed to do two things.

"First," he explained, "we believe the State Fair is of great educational value to the boys and girls in public and parochial schools. We believe they can learn a lot on a day or so visit on the grounds. City children learn about the country and the rural youngsters learn about the city. It is a splendid thing."

"Secondly," he continued, "we get young people interested in the State Fair and that is a very important matter in regard to the boys and girls from the rural sections. By interesting the youngsters we are able to retain and develop that interest as they grow older and that makes for a bigger and better exposition."

REV. MORGAN HARRIS IN HOLDUP

Rev. Morgan Harris, formerly of Pinckney, figured in a hold-up at Dearborn, Tuesday night. At 8:00 p. m., Rev. Harris, who is assistant to Rev. John Klick at St. Alphonsus Parish, Dearborn, admitted a man to Rev. Klick's office at the rectory, who presented a card identifying him as a representative of the Wayne county probation department. On entering the office the man pointed a gun at Rev. Klick and took $80 from him and $60 from a collection basket. Another bandit entered by a rear door and tied up the housekeeper, her son and Rev. John Wagner. Rev. Harris jumped out of a second-story window and called the police from an oil station across the street. The first bandit was shot by Patrolman Bell as he tried to escape in Rev. Klick's car. The other bandit wounded Patrolman Kersky with a shotgun and escaped. The wounded bandit was taken to Henry Ford Hospital. There he was identified as Joe Scofic, an ex-convict with a long record. He is 26 years old. All loot was recovered.

This will take the place of the regular meeting of the Philathea class and will be sponsored by Committee No. 1, with May Daller as chairman. Admission: 15 cents. Everyone invited."

Committee No. 1 is composed of the following ladies, in addition to Mrs. Daller: Mesdames Winifred Graves, Mada Henry, Rose Hendee, Myra Meabon, Ella Mercer, Loretta Plummer, Lulu Lamb.

The number in our Sunday class is somewhat diminished by the absence of some of the "service members" engaged elsewhere in the Sunday school. Mrs. Zuse is making the lessons interesting and helpful, and the class welcomes new members. We wish you the joy and the peace of the Easter season.
