

Macomb Judge Veids Tax Sale

Dismisses Petition of Auditor Gen. O'Hara To Hold Tax Sale in Macomb County, May 5.

Circuit Judge Neil E. Reid ordered dismissed Monday the petition of Auditor General John J. O'Hara to sell 107,734 parcels of tax delinquent land in Macomb County.

Judge Reid held in his order that the action brought by the auditor general was irregular and unfair in that it did not give owners an opportunity to definitely determine whether their property was listed among parcels included in the May 5 sale.

The order was made after County Treasurer Carl Brandenburg testified before Judge Reid that taxes had been paid on more than 40,000 parcels since the tax sale list was compiled in the auditor general's office and that descriptions on several thousand others were faulty.

Judge Reid said he would delay signing the formal order of dismissal for a week until he had consulted with Circuit Judge James E. Spier. In a radio talk Monday night, it was stated that any person can stop the tax sale by going into court and contesting its legality on the grounds the provisions of the constitution were not followed, inasmuch as the property owners were not notified or the descriptions of the property to be sold published.

Judge Reid is well known in Pinckney, as he has spoken at the Masonic Past Master's banquet here on many occasions. He is deputy grand master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Michigan and will be elevated to the office of Grand Master next May at Traverse City.

In Muskegon, Tuesday, Judge Joseph Sanford in circuit court handed down a similar decision denying the petition of Auditor General O'Hara to hold a tax sale on May 5. Failure to publish the descriptions of property to be sold violated the provisions of the due process clause provided by the constitution.

BASEBALL MEETING

There will be a meeting at the Pinckney fire hall on Sunday afternoon, April 22 at 2:00 p. m. for the purpose of forming a baseball team. All interested are asked to attend.

Pinckney has received several invitations to join leagues. Representatives from Pinckney will attend a meeting at Saline, Thursday night of the Tri-County League. Teams in this would be Hamburg, South Lyon, Dexter, Saline, Manchester, Clinton, Milan. There have also been asked to join another league composed of Williamston, Mason, Webberville, Howell and Fowlerville.

TO HAVE ANOTHER SCHOOL ELECTION

Dexter will have its third school election on April 23. At that time it will vote on bonding for $17,000 additional to build a gymnasium. The gym was included in the proposition at the first election but was left off at the second when the funds were found insufficient. Through the efforts of Senator Copeland an additional PWA appropriation of $10,000 was approved by the government provided the district raises $17,000.

MRS. ELLEN HOWARD

Mrs. Ellen Howard, 73, widow of the late Emerson Howard, well-known thresher and hay baler, died at her home at Hudson Corners on the Dexter-Pinckney road Tuesday. Surviving are nine sons and two stepdaughters. Funeral and burial at Dexter, Thursday.

NEW BUS FARES

Rate reductions affecting more than 20 Michigan cities and towns were announced today by SHORT WAY LINES, INC., with general offices in Toledo, Ohio.

New fares from more than 700 miles of routes connecting principal Michigan points with Toledo, Ohio, and Fort Wayne, Ind., will be in use starting Friday, April 10th.

Additional rate reductions will take place around May 1st as soon as tariffs now being prepared are filed and approved by the Michigan Utilities Commission.

A table showing some of the new fares as compared with the old is given below:

FROM	TO	IS NOW	WAS
Adrian	Ann Arbor	$1.00	$1.35
Adrian	Jackson	1.00	1.50
Adrian	Toledo	.80	1.00
Ann Arbor	Flint	1.35	1.75

According to the Lansing State Journal, plans have been drawn and are on display for a new 40-room hotel to be erected on the site of the old ten-cent barn in Howell, by Chas. Wagner, Detroit hotel man.

The Bondholders Came Last

Public Trust Commissioner Capizzi Uncovers Practices Which Fail to Show Any Regard for Bond Holders.

Public Trust Commissioner Capizzi has turned up many interesting facts in his investigations in Michigan. Especially in his inquiries into the functions of so-called bond holders' committees. At the present time, he has been investigating the activities of the Hotel Pantelind in Grand Rapids. This is one of the best hotels in the state, a big favorite for state conventions, as it has 750 rooms. Still with the huge business it does, its bond issue of $1,514,000 has been in default for the past four years, and the people who bought these bonds have received nothing.

Mr. Capizzi criticizes severely the business methods followed by the management. For instance, it pays $10,000 per year rent for the use of the underground tunnel connecting the hotel with the civic auditorium across the street, where all conventions are held. It pays $10,000 per year to the Grand Rapids convention bureau, which is two-thirds of the amount that body receives. It also pays the Kent Bank $7,500 per year for rent of the rooms it has built over the bank, which is next to it. The combined rent of these rooms does not total this amount. Capizzi recommends that these rooms be boarded up or given to the bank. Against the hotel at the present time are $187,000 unpaid taxes.

If the management does not cease these practices, Capizzi stated that he would recommend that the bond holders start foreclosure proceedings against the hotel.

The case of this hotel is similar to all other large hotels in the state. Most all have their bond issues in default. In all cases of receivership or committee management, the bond holders apparently receive scant consideration.

WHAT ABOUT LAYING THE CORNERSTONE?

The work of constructing the footings and foundations for the new Pinckney school addition is well along and the work of laying the brick will start soon. A number of people think that the cornerstone should be laid with appropriate ceremonies. We have mentioned this matter to Fred Read, director of the school board and he states that it is up to the people and that he is willing to assist in any way they desire.

We have made diligent inquiry and research and have only been able to obtain information about the laying of one previous cornerstone in Pinckney. That was the ceremony used in laying the cornerstone of the Putnam town hall by the late James Pearson. The late J. P. McClellan assisted in this function and we had the story from his lips some years ago. As he related it, the work of laying the wall had got well along before any rites were thought of. Then Mr. Pearson realizing he had forgotten this important ceremony took steps to rectify it. He procured a silver dollar, a copy of the Detroit Free Press and a pint of whiskey. These articles were sealed up in the cornerstone and are still there as far as is known. In order to keep the place where these articles were hidden, secret, Mr. Pearson waited until dark and had only two assistants. They were Mr. McClellan and James Lavey.

Of course these articles would hardly be appropriate for an institution of learning such as the Pinckney school. But a scroll, containing the names of the teachers, members of the school board, architect, contractor, etc., would be appropriate. Also a program could be held featuring the school children. What do you think about it? Remember, Fred Read says that "Barkis is Willing."

ARE REBUILDING PINCKNEY ELEVATOR

The elevator of Thos. Read Sons at Pinckney, which was destroyed by fire about two months ago, is being rebuilt. Bert Van Blaricum started on the concrete foundations last week, and expects to finish this week. The charge of the construction. The building will be 40x50 ft. in dimension and will be about the same size as the building that burned. The grain bins will have a capacity of about 10,000 bushels of grain. As all the elevators and machinery were destroyed by the fire it will be necessary to install new equipment.

Ross Read informs us that local labor will be employed on this building as much as possible.

MRS. OLIVE CASEY

We are informed by Mrs. Edward Parker that she received a telegram Tuesday morning informing her that Mrs. Olive Casey passed away that morning at House of Providence Hospital, Detroit, following an operation for cancer.

For some time Mrs. Casey lived in the son, Charles Dillon, who is in the Navy. Mrs. Casey lived in Pinckney for several years, her home being in what is known as the Cadwell house.

Since the PWA project of connecting Horseshoe Creek and Whitmore Lake was completed, the lake level has been raised 15 inches.

The Battle Is On

Farmers Union to Fight State Tax Sale

Farmer's Organization Enters Fight To Prevent State Tax Sale Scheduled for May 5.

The Michigan Farmer's Union has sent out notices urging all local branches to hold meetings on or before April 20, to protest against the state tax sale scheduled to take place on May 5 next. Just what steps can be taken to stop the sale at the present time is not explained. It seems the promises of the governor to extend relief at the next legislative session and says the time for relief is now.

The only remedy available at the present time is to go into court and ask an injunction against the sale as has been already done in Oakland, Jackson and other counties. The time for this kind of action is, however, rather short. The following is the notice to the Farmer's Union calls:

"Please hold a meeting of organization on the evening of day, April 20. Co-operate with other organizations if possible. Get the records from your County Court House and have a report of the actual number of homes to be sold in your Township or District. Try to get out to this meeting every citizen who has really made an honest effort to pay his taxes, but is to be sold out. Be ready to call these people together for a later meeting on short notice, and arrange for transportation of persons who do not have transportation. Keep all land speculators out of your meeting. If you do not feel like paying the expense of a hall, meet in a private home. You may have your meeting before that date if it is inconvenient.

For other information, write to: State Secretary, Michigan Farmers' Union, Grant, Michigan. (Telephone Grant 48)

WHAT'S SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE ETC.

The following letter we clipped from "Voice of the People" column in the Detroit Free Press Monday. It bears out a statement we have made several times lately: Says His Vote Has Been Bought and Paid For

To the Editor: A great to-do is being raised about the cotton planter who is alleged to have gotten $168,000 for not growing cotton and it is being pointed out as a horrible example of extravagant handouts. Sure it is, but what's so new about Government handouts and why have they suddenly become so disgraceful? They have been going on since the time of the Credit Mobilier and probably long before. The hunks of pork or rather the whole barrels that have been handed railroads, steamship lines and manufacturers in the guise of subsidies, tariff's, etc., have in a large number of instances been 100 times $168,000 to one single recipient and the G. O. P. was the Santa Claus for the big fellow who got it.

And quite naturally, the big fellow came across with his vote and his money at election time and nobody shed tears about the danger of "breaking down their precious American morale" with Government money.

Roosevelt with his New Deal sliced the pork up into chops and handed it out to all and sundry in the form of a "disgraceful dole" but at that it was considerably better than a promise of "prosperity around the corner" in the opinion of one who had to accept the much aligned dole for six months.

I didn't vote for Roosevelt but now I consider that my vote has been BOUGHT AND PAID FOR even though when I got my handout there were no strings to that effect but I would be pretty low down if I didn't deliver.

EX-REPUBLICAN VOTER

There will be a dance and box social at the O. E. S. Hall on Friday, April 17. Good music promised. An admission of 25 cents charged for all who do not bring a box.

DANCE AND BOX SOCIAL

There will be a meeting of the Masonic Building Association at the Masonic Hall on Friday night, April 17 at 8:00 P. M. sharp.

SPECIAL NOTICE

I will pick up shoes at Roy Clark's store in Pinckney, and at Howard Marshall's store in Gregory, repair them and return them the next day.

Current Comment

Gov. Fitzgerald has followed the example of Ex-Gov. Osborn and has come out side-length for the re-nomination and election of Senator James Couzens. This is not at all pleasing to some members of the G. O. P., and they don't hesitate to say so.

Among these is Ex-Gov. Brucker. He has been prominently mentioned as the administration's candidate to oppose Couzens in the primary and the climb to Couzens' band wagon by him literally setting out on a limb. The Detroit Free Press, whose hatred of Couzens "exceeds all things," is also wrathful at the governor's action, and in a long editorial, states that harmony and party solidarity are not a big enough inducement for swallowing the senator. However, the governor is a shrewd politician, and he is strongly convinced to the effect that to oppose Senator Couzens would be useless and would only lose the administration many votes, especially in the populous counties.

When Gov. Fitzgerald announced his five percent budget cut he stated that it would also apply to school funds. Supt. of Instruction Elliott disagreed with him and refused to accept the cut, carrying the matter to the finance committee. They ruled that the primary school money is distributed by the constitution and its apportionment cannot be changed unless the constitution is amended. The total amount to be distributed to schools this year is about $35,000,000. The primary fund is $13,500,000. If the cut had been allowed the schools would have lost $1,800,000.

Although the sales tax is credited with getting the State of Michigan out of the "red," it is far from perfect, especially in the collection methods used by it. The liquor commission recently revealed that over 6,000 beer and liquor dealers have not paid up their sales tax. A Detroit company recently went into bankruptcy owing the state $25,000 in sales tax. John Smith of Detroit favors adopting the Ohio method of selling stamps. In this, the state issues each business man a certain number of stamps. He gives one to every customer and keeps one. The state simply collects on the number of stubs he retains.

An attempt is being made to disband the world war veterans' organization. Recently an organization was perfected at Princeton University known as the "Veterans of Future Wars." A similar branch has now been organized at the University of Michigan.

The group, following a similar setup at Princeton University, demands an immediate bonus payment to all youth; money for "gold star mothers" who wish to visit the undug graves of their unborn children; $500 for every girl to be left behind; a statue for every man who may die in action; and "free baseball this Summer to keep us contented when we fight on foreign soil."

This is about the most foolish thing that has happened since the Liberty League was organized. Its purpose is, evidently, to stall off efforts of the veterans to obtain more relief, as it is likely that pension bills of some form or other will be introduced at each session of congress for the next 50 years. At the present time the Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and other such organizations are too strong to worry over such a childish attempt as this.

For some reason or other, the Anti-New Deal campaign of the G. O. P. seems to have lapsed in the last month. At the same time Roosevelt's stock has risen. A commentator in the Washington column of the Lansing State Journal states that the Republican party has decided on a new method. Economy will be no longer stressed, as it is a waste of time, and the conservative vote is already assured. A prominent G. O. P. back-stager remarks as follows:

"There are three things we must do if we are to have a Chinaman's chance in November. We must avoid blanket condemnation of the New Deal and concede that it has features worth retaining. We must hammer it home that a Republican victory will not mean the end of Federal relief. And we must try to keep the Du Ponts and Sloans and other indignant industrialists from making asses of themselves any more. Only by following this program have we the remotest hope of capturing the borderline liberal vote we must get to win."

Tobacco Chewing Is Listed Among Ways to Start a Fire

Everybody knows that smokers often contribute to fire hazards, but now, under certain circumstances, tobacco chewers are in the same category. At a recent safety conference it was shown how the bleaching room of a textile factory is no place to chew in.

The insurance engineers sprinkled sawdust on a table on which was spilled a small quantity of bleach containing sodium peroxide. Tobacco juice on this combination caused a burst of flame.

CONSTIPATED 30 YEARS

"For thirty years I had chronic constipation. Sometimes I did not go for four or five days. I also had awful gas bloating, headaches and pain in the back. Adierka helped right away. Now I feel better, I sleep soundly all night and enjoy life."—Mrs. Mabel Schott.

If you are suffering from constipation, sleeplessness, sour stomach, and gas bloating, there is quick relief for you in Adierka. Many report action in 30 minutes after taking just one dose. Adierka gives complete action, cleaning your bowel tract where ordinary laxatives do not even reach.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and colon bacilli." Give your stomach and bowels a real cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

New Housing Program of the Administration

FEDERAL money totaling $976,000,000 will be spent in the next four years on low-cost rent and slum clearance construction projects, provided the administration's housing bill, introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, is passed by congress. Mr. Wagner hopes it will be put through during the present session.

The measure is a compromise of the many proposals made by the various relief and housing agencies of the New Deal and was drafted after a series of conferences with President Roosevelt. It would create another bureau, with five directors, including the secretary of the interior in his ex officio capacity, receiving $10,000 salaries. The authority could employ officers, agents, counsel and other personnel without limitation as to number or compensation and without regard for the civil service laws. This authority would supplant the existing housing division of the Public Works administration.

Only $51,000,000 would be appropriated for the present, of which $1,000,000 would be used for the purchase of the authority's capital stock, but the bill authorizes appropriations of $75,000,000 for the fiscal year 1938, $100,000,000 for 1939, and $100,000,000 for 1940. In addition to these authorizations, the authority could borrow $100,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and sell notes or bonds, fully guaranteed by the government as to principal and interest, up to $100,000,000 for the fiscal year 1937 and $150,000,000 for each of the succeeding three years. This brings the grand total to $976,000,000.

The authority would be empowered to make grants not to exceed 45 per cent of the total cost and loans for the remainder to any public housing agency for the acquisition of land and the construction of "low-rent" housing projects. The loans would be repayable over a period not to exceed 60 years, at such rates of interest as the authority decreed. In addition to the loans and grants, the authority could develop and administer so-called demonstration projects, which "as soon as practicable" would be sold to public housing agencies.

Senate Begins Impeachment Trial of Judge Ritter

RESOLVING itself into a court, the senate began the impeachment trial of Federal Judge Haled, L. Ritter of Florida—the twelfth such case in 137 years. It was believed the trial would last at least one week.

The defendant was represented by Carl T. Hoffman of Miami and Frank R. Walsh of Washington and New York. The prosecution was in charge of Representatives Summers of Texas, Hobbs of Alabama and Perkins of New Jersey.

Originally approximately 60 witnesses were summoned for the trial, but 29 were excused because of withdrawal by the prosecution of two specifications in article seven charging Judge Ritter acted improperly in electric rate and banking proceedings. Judge Ritter is charged in seven impeachment articles voted by the house with allowing A. L. Rankin, a former law partner, exorbitant receivership fees, with "corruptly" receiving $4,500 from Rankin, with violating the judicial code in practicing law while on the bench, and with evasion of taxes on part of his 1929 and 1930 incomes.

In a 12,000-word reply, Ritter denied all of the charges. He asserted none of the actions cited had "brought his court into scandal and disrepute" or "destroyed public confidence in the administration of justice" in that court.

Wallace Reports Some Big AAA Payments

DUE to the insistence of Senator Vandenberg for publicity on large AAA benefit payments, Secretary Wallace has begun telling about them. He made a partial report, withholding the names of recipients with three exceptions. This revealed that the largest cotton rental benefit payment, $123,747 for 1934, went to a Mississippi company headed by Oscar Johnston, an AAA official. Among the largest cotton payment recipients in 1933 were the Mississippi state penitentiary, which received $43,200 for controlling production on its cotton acreage, and $25,500 to the Arkansas state prison.

Among other large payments reported under various crop control programs were:

Sugar—$961,004 to a Puerto Rican corporation; $862,460 to a Hawaiian producer; $92,237 to a California beet sugar producer; $63,505 to a Colorado beet sugar grower.

Corn—$150,000 to the "largest hog farm in the world," located in California; $49,194 to a farming company in New Jersey; $19,068 to a Massachusetts producer.

Wheat—$29,398 to a California farming concern for the second 1934 and first 1935 periods; $28,022 to the "operator of a number of farms" in Washington state; $23,845 to a California bank, owner of a large wheat acreage; $22,325 to a "large Montana farmer."

Cotton—$115,700 in 1934 to an Arkansas concern; $86,000 the same year to another Arkansas company.

Tobacco—$41,454 to a Florida concern; $20,430 to a Connecticut producer; $16,843 to a South Carolina grower; $15,450 to a Kentucky grower.

Supreme Court Hits at Arbitrary Power

IN A decision concerning a specific action of the Securities Exchange commission the United States Supreme court ruled against the SEC, and in its pronouncement it uttered a significant warning against the exercise of arbitrary power by governmental agencies. Especially censured were the "fishing excursions," often undertaken by commissions and congressional committees. Said the court:

"The philosophy that constitutional limitations and legal restraints upon official action may be brushed aside upon the plea that good, perchance, may follow, finds no countenance in the American system of government. An investigation not based upon specified grounds is quite as objectionable as a search warrant not based upon specific statements of fact."

"Such an investigation, or such a search, is unlawful in its inception and cannot be made lawful by what it may bring, or by what it actually succeeds in bringing to light."

The decision was concurred in by six justices; a dissenting opinion handed down by Justices Cardozo, Brandeis and Stone, agreed with the warning of the abuse of power, but contended that the act of the SEC, held unlawful by the majority, was a legal and just means of stamping out frauds in security sales.

Tornadoes in the South Kill Scores of Persons

TORNADOES tore across Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas, and Tennessee, leaving death and destruction in their wake. About 400 persons were killed and hundreds of others injured, and the property losses ran up into the millions. The little city of Tupelo, Miss., suffered the most, with nearly 200 on the death list and more than a hundred homes smashed into kindling wood.

A few hours later another tornado struck Gainesville, Ga., and in three minutes had nearly ruined the business section of the town and killed more than 150 persons. In fires that followed the storm the bodies of many victims were burned beyond recognition.

The mining communities near Columbia, Tenn., to the north and east of Tupelo, counted seven dead. Red Bay, eastward in Alabama, lost five lives to the merciless wind. Near-by Booneville, Miss., had four killed and Batesville, Ark., suffered one death.

The tornadoes struck while the southeast was reaching a final total on storms which smashed through that region a few days before, causing 43 deaths in Georgia, the Carolinas, Alabama and Florida.

Lowden May Be Keynote for the Republicans

LEADERS of both major parties are perfecting the arrangements for the national conventions and picking out the chief orators for those occasions. The Republicans have tentatively selected Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, as temporary chairman and keynoter of the gathering in Cleveland. If this choice stands it is presumed the permanent chairman will be an Easterner, possibly Walter Edge of New Jersey, former ambassador and senator.

Some Western governor is wanted by the Democrats as their keynoter and the honor may be given to Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, C. Ben Ross of Idaho or Clyde C. Herring of Iowa. For permanent chairman at Philadelphia Senator Robinson of Arkansas is likely to be picked. The speech putting President Roosevelt in nomination for a second term may be delivered by Senator Wagner of New York.

New York Republicans of the Old Guard persuasion scored a decisive victory over Senator Borah in the primaries, and the Empire state delegation to Cleveland will be pledged to any candidate. The triumph of the conservatives was complete.

USEFUL BEES

How an Expert Handles Bees.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

THERE are some 800,000 bees in the United States, producing about 100,000 tons of marketable honey annually. And yet the bee is not a native.

There were no bees in North America when the Spanish explorers arrived. Settlers coming in later expeditions brought them, and at first the Indians called them the "white man's fly." Since then they have followed man in his migration and settlement of every part of the United States and Canada.

Until recently these insects' chief usefulness to man was their production of honey and beeswax—no mean service, since for centuries honey was virtually the only available sweet. But now, as pollinating agents, they perform a far more important duty.

In the pioneer stages of American agriculture, bumblebees and other native pollinating insects that fed upon nectar and pollen were plentiful everywhere. But the planting of vast areas which once were forests, prairies, and swamps with fields of grain, orchards, and gardens upset the delicate balance of nature.

Widespread cultivation of single plants in huge acreages brought about an abnormal condition of insect population. Injurious species, afforded an enormous food supply, prospered and multiplied until now serious insect pests menace almost every important crop.

Insecticides must be used to protect farm crops, particularly fruits. Unfortunately, these materials kill not only harmful but beneficial insects. The toll includes honeybees and other wild bees, as well as the efficient bumblebees—all the insects that carry pollen from one blossom to another.

Plants Need Pollination.

Even yet we scarcely realize the dependence of many plants upon insects to effect pollination. The cutting of wood lots and the clean cultivation of our fields have added to the difficulty of survival of our useful insects, with the result that more and more dependence has to be placed upon the honeybee, the only pollinating insect that can be propagated and controlled.

Some plants bear only male flowers, which produce pollen but no fruit, and female flowers in the same species occur on a separate plant. To set fruit, pollen from the male plant must be carried to the female flower.

Some plants simultaneously bear both male and female flowers, but still require cross-pollination to set fruit. Then there is a third class in which both sexes occur in the same blossom. Some of these plants can set fruit with their own pollen. But in many plants pollen from another is necessary to set a full crop of fruit or seed.

Although the honeybee is by no means domesticated, it is easily controlled. Consequently, millions already are being moved from one section of the country to another and placed in orchards and on farms. Bee men in the South even offer for sale a pollination package, a wire cage filled with bees.

The grower distributes the requisite number throughout his orchards, opens the cages, and leaves the rest to the bees. Hundreds of full colonies are rented to orchardists during the peak of the blooming period. The bee has also largely replaced the camel's hair brush in pollinating cucumbers under glass.

Were it not for the work of the honeybee, most of our apple, pear, plum, and cherry orchards would bear poor crops, the growing of certain forage crops would be unprofitable, and the variety and quantity of our vegetables would be materially reduced.

Found in Nearly All Countries.

Honey and beeswax are produced over a wider geographical range than any other agricultural crop. There is scarcely a country in which honeybees are not kept. They inhabit the Tropic and Temperate zones, they are found in the deserts, on the mountains, in the plains, and in swamps, and as far north as Alaska.

Scattered over the world are several distinct races, such as the Italian, Carniolan, Caucasian, and Cyprian. All races, everywhere, react in almost the same manner. A skillful beekeeper can succeed in Australia as well as in Ohio, provided he keeps an eye to the weather and studies the local flora.

If honeybees are properly handled, there is no more danger in caring for them than in raising chickens. However, the belief that bees learn to know their master and will not sting him is without foundation.

During the active season the average life of a bee is six weeks. The first two weeks are lived almost exclusively within the hive, but thereafter the bees pass most of the daylight hours in the fields when the weather is good, in search of pollen and nectar. Since the beekeeper rarely opens the hive more than once a week, there is little opportunity for the bees to become acquainted with their owner.

Some persons are so constituted that one sting may prove highly dangerous to them and require immediate medical attention, but these cases are rare.

During the active season, a normal colony contains one queen, a fully developed female; thousands of unproductive worker bees, which are females only partly developed; and several hundred drones, or male bees. The queen is endowed with great powers of reproduction, since she can even produce male progeny without mating, but she cannot produce female bees, workers or queens, without going through the marriage ceremony. Thus, the mated drone is indispensable to the completion of the immortal cycle of the honeybee.

Queen's Wedding Flight.

Upon the wedding flight of the queen depends the subsequent development of the colony. On a bright spring day the virgin queen emerges from the hive and soars away to seek a mate from among the hundreds of drones cruising about in the warm sunshine. Blissfully, perhaps, the drone is seeking an encounter that will cost him his life, but insure the perpetuation of his race.

A moment after mating the drone dies and the newly mated queen at once becomes a widow. But this one mating enables the queen for the rest of her life, three or four years, to perform her maternal duties.

A few days after returning to the hive, she begins egg laying, slowly at first; but at the height of her career she may lay as many as 1,500 eggs a day and maintain this rate for days at a time.

She lays two kinds of eggs. One kind is unfertilized and hatches into a drone, or male bee. Mating has no influence upon this part of her family. Her sons are not the sons of her mate or husband, and are consequently fatherless, but they can claim a grandfather.

The other type of egg is fertilized by the queen with a male cell, of which she retains an almost unlimited number in a special organ of her body. The fertilized egg hatches into a female bee, usually a worker.

Thus both workers, or neuter bees, and queens come from the same kind of egg. Yet the two show marked differences. The queen has the function of reproduction; the worker bee has not. The queen bee possesses teeth on her mandibles, or jaws; the worker bee has smooth jaws. The worker bee has pollen baskets; the queen lacks them. The worker bee has a straight, barbed, un retractable sting; the queen has a curved, smooth sting. The worker bee loses its life after stinging, but the queen does not.

A worker bee takes 21 days to develop from the egg to the adult, while a queen, who is much larger, requires only 15 or 16 days. The colony itself has the power of determining whether a fertilized egg shall develop into a queen or a worker bee.

Raising a New Queen.

During its normal existence, only one queen is necessary to maintain the population of a colony. Unlike the worker bee, who lives but six weeks, the queen may live two, three, or more years, but eventually she also becomes old and decrepit. Then a new queen must be raised to carry on the life of the colony.

The raising of a new queen is entrusted to the worker bees. An egg or a newly hatched larva less than three days old is selected. The cell in which the larva is deposited is broken down and enlarged and the helms apparent is given special care and attention from this time on. For the first three days worker and drone larvae are fed royal jelly, a milky white secretion from the glands in the heads of worker bees. After the third day a coarser food, such as nectar and pollen, is given them. The queen larvae, however, are fed royal jelly exclusively throughout the larval stage, which lasts five and a half days.

The difference in diet during the two and a half days, therefore, determines whether the larva will develop into a bee that cannot reproduce but possesses all other maternal instincts, or one that has the function of reproduction but lacks all maternal instincts, for the queen becomes virtually an egg-laying machine.

Smart Shirred Sleeves Have a Piquant Charm

Pattern No. 1846-B

Lovely shirred sleeves finished off with wide contrasting cuffs and a jaunty neckline are enchanting features of this dress. Carry it out in a becoming polka dot of crepe, silk, lawn, or a smooth rayon. By the way it's very easily made because the dress is all one piece with two pleats and stitchings in the front skirt, and a flattering blouse that's trimmed with square buttons. It's accented at the waist with either a self-fabric or purchased belt.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1846-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 inch material plus 1/4 yard for contrasting neck band and cuffs.

The Barbara Bell Pattern Book featuring spring designs is ready. Send fifteen cents today for your copy. Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

Clock in Son's House Stops as His Father Passes Away

At Ancaster, Ont., Thomas Barnes, seventy-three, died on a recent Sunday morning at 3:10 o'clock. His son, Stanley Barnes, living at Winchester, Mass., several hundred miles away, had in his possession an old grandfather clock known to be at least two hundred years old which formerly belonged to his father. The clock had stopped at exactly the same time, to the fraction of a minute, that his father died.

A jury in Justice Yelland's court last week, found James McNamara, who owns and occupies a 200-acre farm at Lake Chemung for the past 28 years, guilty of assault and battery. Sentence was deferred. The jury was out two hours. The trouble started when Game Warden Barrows tried to arrest McNamara's son for not showing his fishing license on the McNamara farm. In the free-for-all that followed, in which Mrs. Barrows, the elder McNamara and his dog participated, the Game Warden was beaten. The McNamaras later gave themselves up. Prosecutor Berriman represented Barrows, and Don Van Winkle acted for McNamara. The latter has announced he will appeal to the Supreme Court. The brother of Dr. McNamara is a famous surgeon.

Despite its great clamor, the Republican party does not favor having the postoffice department, from the postmaster general down to the substitute route carrier, under civil service. They only object when their opponents have this powerful vote-getting weapon in their hands. As objecting to James Farley holding two jobs, that is bunk. Postmaster General Brown in Hoover's cabinet was also Republican national chairman, and at the present time State Chairman Lawrence of Michigan is also state treasurer.

AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST"

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better. For, the fact is, it's way down the list.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile. Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car:

- More value for every dollar you pay.
- Lower cost for repairs and service.
- Long life. Slow depreciation.
- Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1695 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

KITCHENETTE

"My girl friend and I room together. We bought a Dutch Oven Susan and think it's grand. It sits on the table of our kitchenette, and we simply plug it in the electric outlet in the wall. We can cook a whole dinner at once, either for the two of us or for half-a-dozen people. It's like having a small electric range." ($9.95 up, at hardware stores, furniture and department stores, other electrical appliance dealers and Detroit Edison offices.)

COLOR UP MENU FOR CHURCH MEAL

Variety in Community and Church
Supper Can Help Insure Success,
Says College Home Economist.

Lack of color and variety may make the difference between failure and success at church and community suppers, according to Ruth I. Godfrey, instructor in institutional administration at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Miss Godfrey, who has made a study of menus for large groups, stresses the importance of variety in food, color, texture and flavor in successful church or community suppers.

"For example, a meal consisting of meat, chicken, cauliflower, cottage cheese salad, and white cake could be made more appealing and effective if carrots were substituted for cauliflower, peach salad for cottage cheese, and perhaps lemon pie for the white cake," she says.

Miss Godfrey recommends serving beef, chicken, ham, or pork for the main dish. The cook or cooks should seldom plan to serve fish or lamb because these foods are apt to be disliked by some persons, she says.

A model community supper, which can be prepared at low cost, she says, might consist of the following dishes: tomato juice cocktail, baked ham, escalloped potatoes, green string beans or peas, a salad of shredded cabbage, green pepper, pimientos, and thinly sliced radishes with a dressing of vinegar and sugar, rolls or bread, butter, dessert of cherry tarts or a jellied fruit, and coffee.

AUTO GROUP HEADS NAMED BY ATWOOD

Announcement of the appointment of the chairman of the four committees of experts to aid the Michigan State Safety Council in its future work, has been made by Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State and Chairman of the Council.

David H. Crowley, Attorney General, will head the Legislative committee, which will be asked to draft a code of the motor vehicle laws, for submission to the 1937 legislature.

Murray D. Van Wagoner, State Highway Commissioner, will head the Engineering committee, charged with responsibility for making such recommendations as appear required for the increased safety of highway construction.

Chairman of the Educational committee, which will supervise the preparation of material suitable for education of adults and school children against dangers of traffic and other possible hazards of ordinary life, will be Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. This official has already been active in promoting courses of instruction in safety in the state's school system.

The group with whom responsibility for co-ordinating efforts to bring about uniform and impartial enforcement of motor vehicle laws and ordinances, will be Oscar G. Olander, Commissioner of State Police.

The chairman will shortly announce their selections of committee members. Each committee will include about 25 members.

Creation of the four committees is the outcome of the general state-wide safety-wide conference held in Lansing, March 19, on invitation of the Secretary of State. Representatives of legal, enforcement, engineering and educational groups attended the conference.

STENOGRAPHER AND TYPIST EXAMINATION FOR APPOINTMENT IN WASH., D. C., ONLY

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for the positions of senior and junior stenographer and senior and junior typist.

THIS EXAMINATION IS BEING HELD FOR APPOINTMENT IN WASHINGTON, D. C., ONLY.

Applicants must be at least 18 but under 33. For positions in the apportioned service at Washington, D. C., they must show actual and bona fide residence in the State or Territory claimed for at least 6 months next preceding the closing date for receipt of applications.

All states except Maryland, Massachusetts, Nebraska, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, and the District of Columbia have received less than their quota of appointments in the apportioned departmental service at Washington, D. C.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office or customhouse.

CANNOT BE CAUGHT UNTIL JUNE 25th

Beginning May 1, three well-known varieties of game fish will have legal immunity from fishing for a period of almost two months.

The law declares that no bluegills, sunfish or warmouth bass shall be caught between the dates of April 30 and June 25 in any of the inland waters of the state.

This complete immunity from legal fishing is provided by law to protect the fish during their nesting season.

The closed season on black bass began January 1 and continues to, but not including June 25, in any house in any city which has a post office of the first or second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

MICHIGAN STATE COLLEGE SHORTS

Plans are being made for planting 225,000 trees and 100,000 seed spots in the Berrien County soil erosion project sponsored by the federal government. Woodland improvement work, conducted in collaboration with the county agent and with extension specialists from Michigan State College, East Lansing, has been completed and planting will soon begin.

The project is being conducted as a demonstration of proper soil conserving crops and frequent clinics are held for interested farmers. Trees are used for the steeper slopes which are badly eroded and lower slopes are being converted into permanent structures.

Medium-thick honey can be substituted for one-half the sugar in cake or quick-bread recipes by reducing the liquid one-fourth, the Michigan State College Home Economics Department reports. If honey is substituted for all the sugar, reduce the liquid one-half. If the honey is very thin or very thick, this proportion may have to be altered accordingly.

Changing weather conditions this month are a blessing in disguise, according to C. B. Dibble, extension specialist in insect control at Michigan State College, East Lansing. Such insects as cutworms, grasshoppers, cucumber beetles, and squash bugs, which survived the winter because of the protection of deep snows are now suffering severely from the rapid and frequent weather changes, he says.

CO-OPERATIVE LEADERS SLANDER SUIT OF

The slander suit of N. P. Hull and B. F. Beach, President and Secretary-Manager, respectively, of the Michigan Milk Producers Association, against Walter M. Nelson, attorney for the Farmers' Union of Michigan, residing in Detroit, came to an abrupt climax Monday noon, April 6, when O. L. Smith, the plaintiff's attorney asked to have the case dismissed Mr. Nelson, when under oath, denied ever having made any such statements as set forth in the declarations. Mr. Smith, in asking for the dismissal, after questioning Mr. Nelson for nearly two days, said that Mr. Nelson had stated under oath that he had no desire or no intention to impute to them or to carry the idea to his hearers at these various meetings that Mr. Hull or Mr. Beach or both were intentionally dishonest in their management and their relations to the Milk Producers' Association, or had taken any money from distributors or that he intended to impute the idea that they were double-crossers, or that they were intentionally corrupt in their handling of the affairs of the Association, and had we known of such a situation no such suit would have been begun, and that those statements made by Mr. Nelson under oath, of course, are true, as he was under oath when he made them, and that in view of the fact, the suit was not brought for any purpose of trying to get any damages out of Mr. Nelson either in the way of money damages or punitive damages or anything of that sort, but merely to justify the men, Mr. Hull and Mr. Beach, with regard to the claimed slanderous remarks that were claimed to have been made against them and which Mr. Nelson denies ever having said, and which he says that if he discussed any of the subject matter of any of the averments in either the Hull or the Beach declaration that he never had any intention of imputing any idea of personal dishonesty or personal corruption or intentional double-crossing, or intentional double-crossing, or taking pay from distributors, taking money from distributors to carry out the policies of the Association, and in view of those statements a motion was made to dismiss the suit. Judge Jacobs, who presided at the trial, assessed $150 of the costs to the plaintiffs.

Mr. Nelson, having been the speaker and in charge of Farm Union organization activities, was supposed to have told his audience at many of these meetings that B. F. Beach, N. P. Hull and the late Clarence Gittins, attorney for the Association, had conspired with the distributors in setting the price of milk. Witnesses for the plaintiffs testified they heard Mr. Nelson make some of the following statements at various farmers' meetings: "I attended in the fall of 1934, and which Mr. Nelson denied ever making."

"Bernie F. Beach and Clarence E. Gittins—stand shoulder to shoulder and heart to heart with the milk distributors, and in all meetings conducted by the Government for the establishment of milk prices throughout the various districts in the State of Michigan, Clarence E. Gittins and Bernie F. Beach, because of their connection with distributors attempted to stifle any movement to secure a better price for milk to the farmers who are members of the Association."

"The Michigan Milk Producers Association is being conducted entirely by Nathan P. Hull and B. F. Beach, officers and directors, and C. E. Gittins, as general counsel, for the personal enrichment of these three men and for the personal gain of the officers and directors of said Association and with no thought for the membership, thereof."

"N. P. Hull, B. F. Beach and C. E. Gittins, as officers and directors and counsel, respectively, of the Association, have been double-crossers and are double-crossing the members of the Association from whom they receive their pay."

"N. P. Hull is associated with bankers who pay him a salary of $10,000 yearly and these bankers are so allied with distributors of milk that N. P. Hull's entire activities and energies are necessarily directed and have been directed towards the gain of distributors as opposed to members of the Association."

Considerable interest has been shown in the trial. The Michigan Milk Producers Association, of which Mr. Hull has been President since its organization twenty years ago, and B. F. Beach, who has been Secretary-Manager for the past seven years, have the responsibility of marketing milk for 18,000 farmers in 23 counties. The milk from these farmers represents more than one-third of the dairy income of Michigan. During the past year the farmer-members in the Detroit market averaged more than 50 cents a cwt. more for their milk, than farmers selling their milk for manufacturing purposes.

MINNOW DEALERS LICENSE

Approximately 250 commercial minnow licenses have been issued by the Department of Conservation so far this year. The license fee is $3. Minnow dealers are reminded that a separate license is required for each minnow "stand" operated.

Receipts of the sale of minnow licenses are placed in the game protection fund which helps finance activities of the Department of Conservation.

WHY PEOPLE SOMETIMES DO SUCH STUPID THINGS

An article, in The American Weekly with Sunday's Detroit Times, discloses psychology's new theory of man's three-storied brain, where fatigue may give control to the irresponsible child on the second floor or the unreasoning brute on the first.

The Centennial Progress Edition of The Daily News Will be Issued

Here's an event of keenest interest to every resident of this area—the publication of a special Centennial Progress Edition on Tuesday, May 19, which will record by picture and story the achievements and growth of this community.

In its editorial columns this edition will review the events and changes during the 100 years this newspaper has been recording community history. It will tell of advances made in transportation, in industry, in commerce, in education. It will describe and illustrate almost every phase of rural and urban life of Washtenaw county and vicinity for the past century.

Its advertising columns, besides bringing you merchandise messages from the stores of Ann Arbor, will constitute a sort of "honor roll of business" on which will be inscribed the names of businesses, industries and institutions which have contributed to the community's commercial development.

This edition, too, will outline in detail the present service of The Daily News and the prospective service which will be made possible by a new plant and equipment.

Isn't this a souvenir worth having?

Make sure you will receive your copy of this Centennial Progress Edition. If you are not a regular subscriber, write or telephone the Circulation Manager, Ann Arbor Daily News, and reserve your copy.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

I was now well armed; but, rack my brains as I would, I could think of no way in which I could give Barley the slip.

The position was this. I wished to alight as close as I could to York, yet not at the castle gate. Some spot in the entrance drive would have suited my purpose well. It had been arranged, however, that the last three miles should be covered as fast as ever they could. Unless, therefore, I left the car before we approached the mouth of the entrance drive, I should have to wait until we had crossed the drawbridge, and that would be the end of my effort, for I should be seen retreating and Geoffrey and Barley would follow and spoil my game. It looked as though I should have to enter the castle and leave by some window or other as Pharaoh had done. But then there was always the drawbridge, flooded with light.

Happening to glance at the mirror—the car was closed—I noticed the great Alsatian crouched on the hinder seat. It occurred to me that the dog was there to watch me. My decision to cheat this surveillance hardened into a stony and vicious resolve.

One thing was in my favor—dusk had come in. And since Helena was not hastening, night would have fallen by the time we came to the drive. So my cousin had ordered, for though I think we all knew that the risk of encountering Pharaoh was very slight, it was Helena's presence that hoisted the flag of peril and made it essential that we should omit no endeavor to keep her person safe.

Again, it would have been worse to have been in the leading car. The net might have been drawn rather tighter—but that was all. My chances seemed desperately thin.

In this state of mind I spent the next fifty minutes, smarting. And then at last, a mile from the entrance drive, the tall-light bore to the right and the coupe slowed down and stopped by the side of the way.

At once we did the same—and, somehow or other, I felt that my chance had come.

"I'll see what they want," I said, and slipped out of the car.

As I came to the door of the coupe—"Look here, my son," said Geoffrey. "Lady Helena wants you to lead. I don't think it really matters, and so I have given way. From now on put down your foot and don't take it up again till you're over the bridge."

"Whatever happens," said Helena. "My blood was boiling."

"Is that an order?" I said.

"You gave it that name," said Geoffrey. "But we're going to do the same."

"All right," I said. "I don't care."

I made my way back to Barley and opened my door.

"I've got to leave you," I said. "They want me to ride with them. You're to go first now and don't lift your foot till you get to the castle gate. You'll be keeping them back as it is, for the coupe's the faster car."

"Very good, sir," said Barley. I slammed the door and stood back and he let in his clutch.

As the car leapt forward, I fell on my face in the road.

I watched him pass the coupe—and, a moment later, the coupe draw into his wake.

In a savage triumph I watched its tall-light diminish. Then the road bent round to the left and it flicked out of sight.

CHAPTER X

Pharaoh's Way.

My six-mile walk to Starlight did me a world of good. It seemed to limber my muscles and steady my wits; the darkness secured me, the cool night air refreshed me, the silence rested my mind.

A furlong before I reached the place, I was careful to leave the road and to make my way through the woods for the next half-mile.

I believe it was that that saved me, for as I shall presently show, half an hour later Geoffrey and Barley and Sabre came down to that sinister three-way spot.

I heard the Alsatian coming a minute before he arrived.

For a moment my heart stood still, and then I saw that if Helena was not with him, I ought to be able to charm him from his duty to Geoffrey into a service he knew.

He found me seated a little way up the track.

In a flash I had him by the collar and had flung an arm around his neck. "Sabre," I breathed, "Sabre, don't let me down. Stay with me, Sabre. I'll be so glad to have you. I'm on a good thing, Sabre. And you can help me, old fellow, to pull it off."

So we stayed for five minutes. Then, with my hand on his collar, I got to my feet.

I am sure the dog knew that the business on which I was bent was perilous stuff. From that time on, no man could have been more sagacious, more swift to make report, more scrupulous to obey. And, well as I saw, his sight was better than mine, for he saw the Rolls before I did, and checked me by standing still.

The car had been backed up the track, and so stood ready to leave. No one at all was with her. Her radiating was cold.

For a moment I hesitated, wondering whether or no to make some disconnection and so disable the car. And then I decided against this. The outlook was too uncertain; before now I had wanted a car, and wanted it quick. I took my knife from its sheath and turned to the delicate business of running my quarry down.

And here for the first time I saw that Sabre alone was going to save my venture from becoming as abject a failure as ever was seen.

As though I had told him my plight, I felt Sabre lower his head. Then he moved past the Rolls, led me up a sweet-smelling bank and presently out of the copple and into the rolling park.

"When the light go out," said Dewdrop. "That's what he said."

"That's right," said Bugle. "That's 'ow we done that villa down in the south of France. That was a show, that was. You never see such precautions against a poor thief; 'ouse like a prison turned inside out—an' 'alf a packet of candles between two 'undred rooms. Ally Sloper was in that with Pharaoh. I can hear him laughin' now as he opened the garden-door. 'Dear brothers,' he says, 'I'm afraid there's some bandits inside. So don't you go for to cross them by showin' a light. Just as we makes the ball-room, a funkies comes bustlin' in with a candle in each of his hands. 'All lights out,' says Pharaoh, and shoots him dead. Talk about panic. We well helped ourselves."

"But the stuff was there," said Rush. "That's what gets me. Panic's all right, but we don't know the way to the gold."

"Pharaoh's fly," said Bugle. "It ain't only the keys you can make wot can open doors."

There was a little silence. The three were sitting in the meadows, just clear of the woods—not between the castle and Starlight, but close to the entrance drive. The lights of York were showing a furlong away.

I was crouching directly behind them, against the trunk of a tree. Sabre, beside me, was standing still as a rock.

Sabre and I Ran Behind Them.

I could, I believe, have killed two—perhaps all three. But it was Pharaoh I wanted, and Pharaoh was not there.

I could not follow their reasoning. Why should the lights go out? In the ordinary way the lights were put out at midnight—perhaps before. But now the case was altered; the drawbridge had to be watched. And then this talk of panic. . . . Had Pharaoh suborned some servant to do his will?

Rush lifted his cuff from his wrist. "Twenty past eleven," he said.

"Gawd, wot a—day."

"When the light go out," said Dewdrop. "Unleth, of course, he should happen to talk before."

I felt more confounded than ever. Dewdrop's final sentence did not make sense.

Rush led me back on to ground on which I could stand.

"I'd like to know where those two was takin' that dog."

"Dogs is all right," said Bugle.

"You bet," said Rush, warmly. "But that ain't the point. I'd like to know wot they're up to; they haven't come back."

"We've left no trail," said Bugle. "We never got out of the car."

"We're out of it now," said Rush. "An' I don't want no more surprises—not after las' night."

Dewdrop shifted uneasily.

"Ith very awkward," he said, "your lothin' that car. Pharaoh won't like that, he won't."

"Well, he'll have to lump it," said Rush. "I wish he'd been there. I tell you, I never saw nothing; there weren't no scrap. We don't even know who took it. Some performin' goriller, if you ask me. An' wot 'arm 'ad I done? Pharaoh won't like it, won't he? 'Ow would he like to be wiped off one of them benches on to them flags? Backwards, too. I dunno why I'm not dead. An' you talk about losin' the car."

"It wasn't your fault," said Bugle.

But Dewdrop had no comfort to offer.

That the three were waiting for Pharaoh seemed pretty clear. But where was Pharaoh now? And what had Pharaoh been doing since seven o'clock? He had not seen Rush or Bugle, nor had he learned their news. More, while his men had the use of the Rolls, Pharaoh was using his feet. And that was not like Pharaoh.

Somewhere in the pile of the castle a new light leaped into life—a definite eye of radiance, unshaded and unconfined. For a moment it stabbed the darkness, a steady pinprick of light. Then it broke into a series of flashes—a silent luminous stutter that no one could ever mistake.

And so my eyes were opened. Before his fellows could tell me, I knew the truth.

Pharaoh was on the ramparts, and Pharaoh was going to "talk." Pharaoh had been in the castle the livelong day. He had never left with Dewdrop. And now he was going to quench the lights of the castle; and when he had put them out, he would let his accomplices in.

Dewdrop deciphered the message, word by word.

"Clothe—up—to—bridge—thand—by—to—enter—by—lath—nighth—poth—tern—directly—lighth—fall."

The lamp flashed once more and went out.

Before I had gathered my wits, the three were afoot.

To this day I cannot decide what I should have done. Had I left them and dashed for the castle to give the alarm, before I had found the warden the lights would have failed. Had I attacked, whatever the result of my effort, I think it is clear that I must myself have gone down, but Pharaoh would still have been rampant. The brain, the will and the drive promoting this reign of terror belong to Pharaoh alone. And only the destruction of Pharaoh could end this sinister rule. First Pharaoh, and then his fellows; but Pharaoh first.

I say "that is how I saw it," but that is more than the truth, for I saw it very darkly, and as I stole after my quarry towards the bridge, I was myself the prey of a horrid uncertainty for which I was not to blame. I had staked and won; and now I was taking my winnings, as gamblers do. But this was no gaming-table; this was the instant business of life and death.

Wild to exploit the advantage I clearly held, in fear of wasting this by striking too soon, in fear of losing it by holding my hand, I moved 10 paces in rear of the shambling thieves, with one hand on Sabre's collar and the other on Geoffrey's knife.

So far as I had gathered, they knew no more than I did what Pharaoh was going to do. He was going to cut off the light—disarm the main switch-board, without a doubt. Then they were to use the postern—

The vision brought me up with a jerk.

How could they use the postern? The postern was fast. Pharaoh must have opened it somehow. Unknown to the warden, he must have obtained the key.

A sudden apprehension lifted its ugly head. In Pharaoh's presence Helena had handed the warden a master key. That was the key with which Pharaoh had opened the postern; though no alarm had been raised, because nothing was known. Pharaoh had killed the warden and had taken the master key.

That this was so, I instantly made up my mind. "Talk about panic. . . . Blindness, havoc and panic would rule the night. The sheep would have no shepherd—and Geoffrey and Barley were gone. How Pharaoh would find the treasure, I could not think. But that was Pharaoh's affair. My way at least was clear. The thieves would bring me to Pharaoh and everything was to be gained by my holding my hand.

And here, as though by magic, the lights of York went out.

There was now less need of silence and more of speed, for the three rogues ran for the drawbridge as hard as they could. Sabre and I ran behind them, as though we belonged to the crew.

Ahead I saw something white by the castle wall. The three turned aside to avoid it, and I did the same. As I went by, I saw that it was a sheet. At that moment Sabre left me—he seemed to stop. But I had no time to wrangle.

The postern-door was open. The three stumbled in and stood waiting. And I stood waiting without, with a foot on the step and my head close against the wall.

Then came Pharaoh's voice.

"Bugle."

"Ere," said Bugle at once.

"Don't talk. Whisper. Here. Take these goods. . . . Have you forgotten them?"

"I've got a shoe," breathed Bugle.

"Wat's this?"

"A wip," said Pharaoh. "To which side of the drive are the cars?"

"To the right from here."

"Drop the wip on the drawbridge, and sling the shoe into the fields to the left of the drive. If you want to live, make it snappy. They're going to open those cars before you get back."

As Bugle went by me, I saw that he was a chance which would never return. Pharaoh had used no torch. If Bugle's reminiscence was true, the probability was that he would not use one tonight. I was tall and thick-set, very much about Bugle's build—a suit I had left at Plumage was fitting him very well; and Bugle had been told to whisper. . . .

In a flash I was running for the drawbridge in Bugle's wake.

The castle was alive with murmurs—sounds of disorder and distress; someone was out on the ramparts, raving (to me) men were tramping and shouting; I could hear blows falling upon woodwork and the shiver of breaking glass. But I heard these things as in a dream, for now I knew whose key had opened the postern, whose handkerchief would lie on the drawbridge, whose slipper fall in the fields. . . .

MICHIGAN NEWS BRIEFS

Marlette—Construction of a $17,000 theater will be started here soon. The site for the building was donated by the village and business men.

Lansing—A horse kicked Fred Mott, 65 years old, in the face so hard that the impact broke Mott's right ankle. Friends said Mott's ankle snapped as the kick raised him into the air.

Caro—From Tuscola County comes a report that coyotes are killing sheep. For 60 years or more coyotes have not been seen in the county, but recently one was shot. A bounty has been asked for killing the animals.

Flint—Street cars are dead. Long live the busses. After 35 years of service in Flint, street cars quit early in the morning of April 5, when Car No. 3211 made the last run from Flint Park to the car barns at Thirtieth and S. Saginaw streets.

East Lansing—Construction has begun on a $79,405 addition to the Union Building, to relieve crowded class room conditions at Michigan State College. The addition will be four stories, 111 by 52 feet. It is to be ready for occupancy Sept. 15.

Traverse City—Four hundred high school musicians will arrive in Traverse City May 9 for the annual Northern Michigan Music Festival, held in conjunction with National Music Week. Bands, orchestras, choirs and choruses from Northern Michigan high schools will compete.

Traverse City—Teachers in the local schools will receive an average pay increase of five per cent next year, the Board of Education has decided. This increase, plus 12½ per cent increase last year, gives the instructors 17½ per cent of the 28 per cent decrease they took during the depression.

Detroit—To prepare Detroit for the use of natural gas by July 1, the Detroit City Gas Co. reports it will spend $2,500,000 in making adjustments on gas-burning appliances. In about one year creditors from whom money was borrowed for the work will have been paid, then Detroit may expect a great reduction in gas rates.

Traverse City—The championship regatta of the Midwest Model Yacht Association for Class A boats will be held in this city, July 11 and 12. Commodore Robert Linsley has announced. This will bring 33 boats from 11 clubs in the Middle West including Cleveland, St. Louis, Detroit and Grand Rapids. The regatta will be sailed on the Indian Trail pool here.

Lansing—Only a Michigan Supreme Court decision, it appears will keep the impending May tax sale from becoming a reality. Rep. Vernon J. Brown of Mason, chairman of the Legislative Council's committee on delinquent tax problems, announced that the committee will not recommend that a special session of the Legislature be called for the purpose of cancelling the sale.

Highland Park—Work on the $375,000 grade-separation project at Woodward Ave. and the Detroit Terminal Railroad in Highland Park has begun. The grade separation near the Ford plant is one of 11 similar projects planned for Wayne County by State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner as a part of a $6,700,000 State grade-separation program. Wayne County projects will cost about $3,300,000.

Manistee—With the lowering of taxes their ultimate goal, residents representing a large proportion of the taxable property of the city have organized the Municipal Improvement Committee, which it is planned to expand into the Municipal Improvement League of Manistee. An efficiency expert will be engaged to analyze every branch of city service with a view toward reducing taxes by elimination of waste.

Ann Arbor—Gamma Nu chapter of Sigma Nu Fraternity, established at the University of Michigan in 1902, was closed by the executive committee of the Interfraternity Council as the result of "Hell Week" practices. Beta Theta Pi Fraternity was closed for a similar reason until Sept. 1. The Sigma Nu House will be permitted to reopen June 1, provided it conforms to the Interfraternity Council's rules governing initiation.

East Lansing—The horse exhibited by Lamb Bros., of Hillsdale, won the grand championship of the Michigan State College Spring Stallion Show. The reserve championship among Percherons went to P. F. Morse, of Detroit. Milo Anson's Belgian stallion that won the 1935 State Fair championship in Detroit also was crowned king of the Belgians at the College's show. Anson is a breeder in Owosso. The reserve Belgian championship went to L. R. Ackerman, of Elkton.

Ionia—Halting of work on $286,000 of County drain projects pending a survey by the U. S. Biological Survey and the State Conservation Department brought a warning from Ionia County farmers that any extreme step to curtail the State drainage program would meet retaliatory measures. Sportsmen complained the projects would create flood hazards and jeopardize the supply of wild fowl. Many farmers interpreted the complaint as a move to create hunting lands at their expense.

FARM KITCHEN GOES MODERN AS LABOR-SAVING MODE ENTERS

Modern labor-saving devices have changed the American kitchen from a place of drudgery, for the housewife, to a place where foods are scientifically prepared in a few minutes with little effort. And the newest cooking equipment has turned it into a room of outstanding attractiveness.

Gleaming porcelain has worked a miracle in the kitchen's appearance. This sparkling, clean material, which is used extensively on modern ranges, has replaced the dull, drab, lifeless materials formerly used. This new kitchen beauty has been extended to rural homes as well as to those in the cities. The development of gas-pressure stoves, which may be used anywhere, has kept pace with stoves that use natural gas and electricity.

Floors, once neglected because of the hard use they were subjected to in the operation of the old-fashioned kitchen, together with walls and ceiling have been toned up to match the exquisite beauty of the porcelain enamel.

CUT CIONS NOW FOR BRIDGE GRAFT

MSC Specialists to Hold Demonstrations Showing Proper Method in Saving Apple and Pear Trees.

Severe damage to apple, pear, peach, cherry, and plum orchards throughout Michigan by rabbits and mice makes immediate preparation for bridge and other forms of grafting or replacement imperative, says Dr. V. R. Gardner, director of the Michigan State College Experiment Station at East Lansing.

Cions to be used in bridge grafting should be cut immediately and stored properly for use in the middle of April.

"Reports indicate that enormous damage has been done by rabbits and mice in Michigan this year," Dr. Gardner states. "Heavy and continuous snow, combined with an increased mouse population is responsible for the unusual amount of damage, which has extended to peach, cherry and plum trees."

Cions should be cut from hardy varieties, but the specific variety is not important as the graft does not usually develop fruiting wood.

Dr. Gardner suggests that cions cut for bridge grafting on apple and pear trees should be put in moist sand or sawdust until the time for grafting operations in the middle of April, when the bark begins to slip. The bridge graft is not generally applicable to cherry, peach or plum trees.

Detailed information on grafting can be secured by writing the Michigan State College horticulture department for special bulletin No. 142 on "Grafting in the Apple Orchard" and for supplementary information especially prepared for the 1936 problem.

T. A. Merrill and H. D. Hootman, horticulture extension workers, will make a three-week tour of the state in April to estimate orchard losses. The county schedules follow: April 13, St. Joseph; April 15, Cass; April 16, Calhoun; April 17, Eaton; April 23, Barry and Berrien; April 24, Berrien and Ottawa; April 27, Genesee; April 28, Lapeer; April 29, Monroe and Van Buren; and April 30, Branch and Muskegon. May 5, Macomb and Manistee; May 6, Oakland and Charlevoix; and May 11, Ingham.

CONTINUE THE EMERGENCY RATES

Testifying before the Interstate Commerce Commission, C. E. Johnston, President of the Kansas City Southern, recently declared that the railroads of the United States, because of their financial condition, need additional revenue as much or more now than they did a year ago when the Emergency Freight Rates were authorized.

These Emergency Rates will soon expire, unless the ICC authorizes their continuance. Railroads in all parts of the country have petitioned for their continuance, and many independent commentators have brought forth evidence to show that the rates are necessary, justifiable, and place no unreasonable burden on the shipping public.

Railroad financial statements are the best proof of the need for the Emergency Rates. In spite of years of intensive economy, in which operating expense has been pared to the bone, the average railroad is today showing almost no profit. Many lines are still unable to meet fixed charges much less pay dividends to common stockholders. Even so, railroads are willing to spend vast sums for improvement and expansion, if they are permitted rate levels which will bring them in the needed revenue.

The Emergency Rates constituted a small percentage advance over the old rates for a limited list of articles. Their influence on either the wholesale or retail selling cost of these commodities is microscopically small. And on their continuance depends the jobs of thousands of railroad workers, the safety of billions of dollars in railroad workers, the safety of billions of dollars in railroad investments, and, of vital importance to all business, an increase in railroad purchasing.

It is to be hoped that the ICC authorizes continuance of the rates. They are definitely in the interest of the public welfare.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bauer of Brighton (Marie Shahan) called on relatives here Tuesday.

YOUR FUTURE

Your future depends on what you do today. Today we know what financial gains we are making. With the facts before you set up a plan for that doubtful future by starting a Savings Account.

The past few years have proven to us the advisability of being prepared for the worst. Many people who had saved for the unexpected rainy day found that their Savings Account was all that kept them from starving and getting cold. Now with improved business everywhere these same people are rebuilding the reserve which saved them in the depression years.

We will be glad to plan a Savings System for you. We have "Dime Savers" for your dimes when you count your loose change at night. Also we have "Home Savings Banks" for your children or for yourselves.

Two Ways to Do It

FIRST—

Sometime sooner or later, a motorist will have trouble with his car—motor trouble. He'll get out his tools, spend maybe 3 or 4 evenings in fixing it, and if the car runs when all the parts are back together—he's a good mechanic.

SECOND—

The BEST way is to bring to—
