Aged Local Man Found in Mill Pond

A. F. Wegener, Pinckney Contractor,
Commits Suicide Friday Morning.
Body Is Found At 8:00 A. M.

This community was saddened by the death of A. F. Wegener early Friday morning. Mr. Wegener had been in poor health for some time, suffering from an incurable malady. This winter he had gone to Detroit to live with his children.

About two weeks ago he returned to his home here and has had Mrs. Maggie McGraw Ryan, of Howell, keeping house for him. Early Friday morning he got up and wrote a note which read: "Goodbye; terrible pain. Have gone to the pond." Mrs. Ryan, however, did not find the note until after 8:00 a. m. About 8:00 a. m., Lila Lewis, who has been working for Roland Singer who lives in the Skinner house opposite St. Mary's cemetery, crossed the foot bridge over the dam at the Pinckney Mill Pond on her way to school. She saw a man's head just below the surface of the water. She went to the Wm. Doyle house, which is nearest, and P. H. Swarthout, mortician, his son, Don, Leg Lavey, Bert Harris and Wm. Doyle went to the pond. The body was recognized as that of Mr. Wegener and was found standing straight up in about seven feet of water. A boat filled with water was near, and by grasping this Mr. Wegener had held himself below the surface until death came.

It is believed that he had planned this method of death for some time. He had constructed a cement crypt on his lot in the Sprout cemetery some years ago. A couple of days ago he built a cover for it of cement and had tried to persuade Ora Haines, sexton, to postpone a trip he was contemplating. He had also taken his auto to a local garage for repairs, but took it back before the work was done, saying he would not need it.

Mr. Wegener at one time was section boss at Gregory. Afterwards he became a farmer, and later resided in Detroit. About twenty years ago he and his wife bought the Michael Dolan house in Pinckney, and since then he has made his home here. His wife was formerly Jennie Wood of Anderson, daughter of the late Senator and Mrs. Charles Wood. She dropped dead two years ago; one evening while with Mr. Wegener on the Henry Ford water power property, of which her husband was caretaker. Mr. Wegener worked as a carpenter and boat builder. Some years ago he had the contract to remodel and enlarge the local cremery for the Gordon Baking Company.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Anna Maytin, and three sons, Chas., Claude and Dwight, all of Detroit.

Coroner Guy Grievie was called over from Howell by Deputy Sheriff Kennedy. He found that the death was due to drowning with suicidal intent. It is claimed that the deceased had threatened suicide before and had left a note stating that he was going to asphyxiate himself in his garage by starting the engine of his car and closing the doors. His car, however, had been unused all winter and refused to start. This note was found by his housekeeper at the time. Just how long he was in the water is not known. Neighbors report seeing a light in his home about 12:00 p. m., but thought nothing of it, as he usually got up several times during the night.

The funeral was held Sunday from the Swarthout Funeral Home with Rev. C. H. Zuse of the Pinckney Congregational church officiating. Burial was in the Sprout cemetery.

EDWARD GERDELL
Edward Gerde, 40, was found dead on the Eugene McIntyre farm, east of Pinckney, last Friday afternoon. The deceased was a world war veteran and was employed for a time as guard at the Michigan State Cement plant, near Chelsea, when it was operated by convict labor. Since then he has lived in Ann Arbor.

This spring he rented and moved onto the Eugene McIntyre farm. His wife worked in Ann Arbor several days a week and had gone there on Thursday, expecting to return Friday. Friday morning he started drawing fertilizer with Fred and George Fish, assisting him. Soon he complained of a pain in his side and was compelled to lie down and rest. Later he resumed work, but at noon again went to lie down; instructing his two boys, Edward Jr. and Allen, not to disturb him. The Fishs returned to resume work and were told by the boys that their father was resting. Fred Fish entered the bedroom and found Mr. Gerde dead. He called Dr. C. L. Sigler, but was forced to wait some time as an operation was in progress at the local Sanitarium. Dr. Sigler later went out and said the man had been dead for some time, evidently of a heart ailment. Coroner Guy Grievie was called and he pronounced the death due to angina pectoris, and no inquest necessary.

We understand the body will be taken to the deceased's old home in St. Louis, Missouri.

Local Team to Open Season Sunday

Tri-County League Starts Schedule on May 10 with Manchester at Pinckney, Hamburg at Ann Arbor,
Saline at Grass Lake.

Next Sunday the baseball lid will be pried off at Pinckney when the Pinckney team meets Manchester here. This year Pinckney has joined the Tri-County League, composed of teams from Pinckney, Hamburg, Ann Arbor, Saline, Manchester and Grass Lake. This is a good, fast league, and some excellent games are due to be played. In order that Pinckney can continue in the league, a good attendance is necessary. For this reason, all lovers of the national game should turn out and make it possible for Pinckney to continue in the league.

The team is composed of almost entirely of local talent and they deserve your support. The lineup is undecided as yet but at the workout Sunday, the positions were filled by the following: catcher, Gyp Ferrell; pitchers, Harlow Haines and Don Searies; first base, Bob Smith; second, Jim Lamb, Bud Dilloway; short, Jack Dilloway; third, Grant Ward; outfield, Lefty Reason, Clare Miller, Ernie Shieks, Bill Lamb, Don Searies is the only new player. He formerly pitched for Hamburg, and the last two years for South Lyon. They will not have a team this year and he has agreed to play for Pinckney.

The following are the rules of the league: The Tri-County League is hereby reorganized for the year 1936, and shall consist of teams from Saline, Manchester, Grass Lake, Pinckney, Hamburg and Ann Arbor. The officers of the League shall be Paul J. Breitenwischer of Clinton as President, Chas. Davis of Hamburg as Secretary, and Alvin Burkhardt of Saline as Treasurer.

The League shall be run on an amateur basis with no player being paid for playing. Each team shall submit a list of 15 players after the fourth game has been played. This list shall be submitted to the President and any change in this list must be approved by the officers of the League. Any team violating this rule shall forfeit the game in which the ineligible player participates.

The season shall open May 10th, 1936, and the schedule shall consist of twenty games. The schedule shall be divided into two halves of ten games each, each half consisting of a home and home series with each team. The winners of the two halves shall play off for the championship after the season closes.

Each team shall furnish one umpire at each game. Each team shall deposit $5.00 with the League Treasurer before the season opens to take care of the expenses of the League.

The home team shall in all cases keep their own gate receipts and shall have the privilege of charging what they wish, or to take up a collection.

The Managers of the two teams shall decide at what date they wish to play off any postponed games.

The visiting team shall have the grounds for practice from 2:15 to 2:45, with all games starting at 3:00 p. m. The home team is required to furnish two new bats before each game, and the Goldsmith No. 97 shall be the official bat ball.

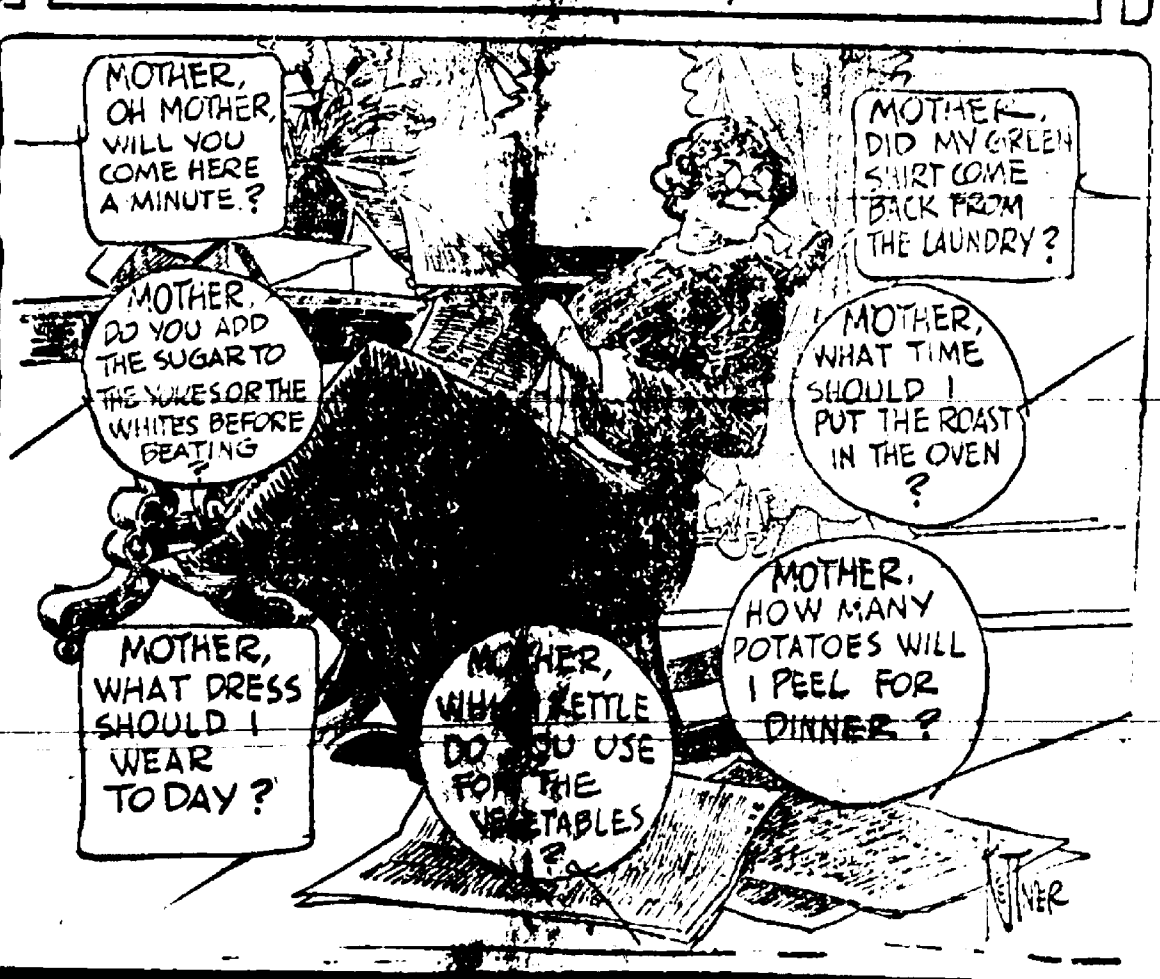

After each game, the home team shall prepare a complete box score of the game and forward to the Washtenaw Tribune on Monday. Also on Monday morning, the home team shall telephone the Ann Arbor Daily News a summary of the game, consisting of the runs, hits and errors; batteries; and the high points of the game. The League will stand the expense of these calls, as good advertising for the League.

PERCY DUDLEY
Percy Dudley, 61, of Ann Arbor, was found dead in the Howell City Park in his auto Tuesday. His car had been left running and a hose attached to the exhaust led into the car.

His health is thought to be the cause for his action. He was formerly employed by the First State bank at Howell, and until recently was cashier in a Dearborn bank.

He is survived by his wife and a son, who is a student at the U. of M. Mrs. Dudley was formerly Julia Benedict of Pinckney and lived her home with the late Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Allison at Chabos Corners.

Annual School Play Draws
House and Gives Satisfaction

"When Sally Comes to Town" chosen as the annual school play by the Pinckney high school this year, and it gave complete satisfaction. The story of the play is on the old melodrama order of the country. The city, Fritz Gardner as Uncle Joshua Perkins and Janis Carr, as his niece, Sally Simple, are the story bumpkins, and the stuck-up folks are represented by Margaret Curlett, as the aristocratic Mrs. Ethyl Parker, Evelyn Darrow as her daughter, Esther, and Robert Richardson as her son, Loring. Phyll Sprout has the part of Felicia Winton, a society girl and fiancée of Loring. Mary Spears is Theresa L. Brook, noted for her appetite, and Francis Vandervall is the maid, Jean Graves has the part of the black-mailed chorus girl, Floyd Hendrix an English nobleman, and Bob Dilloway, a young business man.

All parts were well taken and the play was a success. It was greeted by the customary full house and many were forced to stand. The parts were so well memorized that, we understand, prompting was unnecessary. The specialties between acts consisted of singing by a group of children, trained by Florence Baughn. This group of singers was composed of Betty Bait, Helen R.ason, Ruth Devereaux, Leach children, Lawrence Baughn, Howard Haines, Don Thorpe. We understand that the proceeds were between $75 and $80.

Large Crowd Attends Democrat Rally

Democrat Banquet at County Seat
Draws an Attendance of 600. Many Prominent Men on the Program

A crowd estimated to number about 600 attended the Democrat banquet held at St. Joseph's hall in Howell last Thursday night. Every township in Livingston county was represented and there was a plentiful sprinkling of Republicans in the crowd.

The invocation was given by Rev. Fr. Edmund of St. Joseph's church, and the orders of prayer to the excellent music given by the ladies of the parish. County Chairman Harry Finn caned the assembly to order and introduced Joe Brady, president of the Roosevelt Club of this county. After a short speech he called upon William R. Koub to act as toastmaster. Speaker, George Schroeder of the Michigan House of Representatives was the first speaker called upon. Mr. Schroeder predicted a Democratic victory this fall and praised the accomplishments of the Roosevelt administration. He also spoke in glowing terms of his friend, Rep. Charles Adams, who was seated at his right. To him he referred as a Republican who truly represented this county in the legislature, but who voted consistently with the Democrats because his conscience would not let him follow the Fitzgerald leadership.

Senator Case of Waterford was next. He was introduced as the next lieutenant governor of Michigan. He has served long in the state house, and in his remarks he reviewed the Democratic accomplishments of both President Roosevelt and Gov. Comstock.

Don VanWinkle introduced George Bushnell of Detroit, Michigan Supreme Court justice. The chief justice is a pleasing talker and his address was a masterpiece. He went back to the dark days of 1932 and reviewed the rapidly improving conditions up to the present time. Also that the Republican press, including the Detroit Free Press, were truly predicting the re-election of Franklin Roosevelt.

Congressman Prentiss Brown of St. Louis was the last speaker. His speech was extremely appropriate and he did not mince words in attacking the Liberty League and other opponents of the New Deal. The organization is financed by several great corporations, all of whom are sets have increased in value about a third since the New Deal. Gov. Fitzgerald, he referred to as the "Fairer Flower of Michigan Politics" and ridiculed in every sense and securities commission chairman. He also stated that the State of Michigan had not received a cent of federal money for the money loaned in the entire state and that closed banks should have been closed in Michigan, but that the money loaned to the owners of the banks received no interest.

Mr. Brown is one of the most influential Democrats in Washington and is extremely aggressive.

The Scotch quadrille of Detroit sang several numbers, one of which was in costume and were repeatedly cheered.

Martin Lavin was called upon and introduced the following well-known Democrats: Tom McManis, Grand Rapids; Mrs. Mary Marshall, South Lyon; Mrs. Hickman, Flint; Murray Van Wagoner, South Lyon; Commissioner, Vincent O'Leary, Lansing; Andrew Baird, George McKinley, Wm. Donnelly, Martin Branney, Detroit; Wm. N. Macmillan, Andrew Transue, Judge Baker, Bill Magnus, Flint, and a number of others.

Taken all in all it was a most enjoyable affair and shows that the trend this year is extremely Democratic, and the members of the party have secured victory in November. A few years ago such an attendance would have been impossible. One held at the Howell high school in 1928 hardly drew 100 persons. Circumstances have apparently changed greatly since then.

The following from Putnam attended the banquet: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Holsch, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lavey, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sheehan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank How, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dilloway, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clark, Mrs. Nellie Gardner, Michael Rodin, Mrs. Emma Spears, Lorenzo Murphy, Lee Lavey, Mr. and Mrs. William Sherman, N. O. Frye, P. W. Curlett.

NOTICE
The regular meeting of Pinckney Circle of King's Daughters will be held at the church parlors on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Reason and L. A. Th. Plummer will act as hostesses. Pot-luck lunch will be served and everyone is cordially invited to join in the shower for the church kitchen or dining room.

NOTICE

Current Comment

Mrs. Anna Sage, the betrayer of John Dillinger, the outlaw, has been deported to Roumania. She is a 44 year old brunette who led Dillinger into the trap of the waiting G-men. For this she received $20,000, but failed to hang onto it. The charge on which she was deported was running a disorderly house. Like all informers she seems to have found the country who benefited most by her service ungrateful. Judas was the first ingrate man, according to history. He delivered Jesus to the Roman soldiers. His end was suicide by hanging. How many killed the outlaw, Jesse James, for the large reward? He was executed by an army and was finally killed in a saloon.

So Mrs. Sage, the Dillinger betrayer seems to have shared a fate common to her predecessors. We doubt that Rep. Hoffman's investigation of the Townsend Old Age Pension movement in Michigan will do otherwise than stir up a lot of ill feeling. He is noted for his bitter speeches and fights against it and as the most stubborn Townsend advocate. In Detroit he had to contend with a hostile audience, and in Battle Creek it was the same, and finally the investigation had to be postponed on account of the severe heckling of Rep. Hoffman by Townsend Club members. This investigation would have accomplished more if an open-minded congressman had headed it and not such a bitter Townsend foe as Rep. Hoffman.

According to the state press, the Howell fair may be abolished, the 40 acres comprising the fair grounds, sold to a Detroit concern who desires it for a factory site. This fair was established about 20 years ago and was a big success for years until the late depression came. Last year there was much criticism over the great number of amusements at the fair and their nature. The management is said to doubt that it is any longer possible to run the fair at a profit or break even. The matter of selling the grounds will be left to a vote of stockholders. A recent straw vote taken on the subject by a Howell paper showed them about evenly divided.

Governor Fitzgerald has asked the state bar association to investigate the state securities commission. This will be the third investigation of this commission. The federal government already has one underway, and Speaker of the House Schroeder announces that the legislative council also will make one. The charge is that the commission has permitted the sale of worthless stocks and bonds and has licensed salesmen who are under indictment for fraud in other states. The purpose of the commission is to prevent the sale of worthless securities, and if it is not able to do this it should be abolished.

An institution much patronized by the young people of this section, is headed for oblivion. The Reed and Knowles stock farm, north of Howell, has been sold to Perry Grissom of Detroit, who will start a Hereford cattle farm there. This will mean the end of the Fairlawn dance hall. This was originally the cattle barn on the farm but was remodeled into a dance hall some years ago.

We refuse to become enthusiastic over the civil service agitation. It has come up before, but nothing ever came of it. The two dominant parties must have patronage to stand out in order to exist and neither of them has any intention of going out of existence. If this agitation had started back in 1935 when Gov. Fitzgerald was inaugurated, we might have taken more stock in it. For the past year and a half his party has been busy handing out patronage and now when the jobs are practically filled, civil service is agitated.

ONLY THREE COUNTIES NEGLECT PWA

According to the Associated Press of the 3,073 counties in the United States, all but three have asked for PWA projects. The projects average about two to a county. The three counties which have requested no projects are Union and White counties in north Georgia and Putnam county in Missouri. All are dominated almost entirely by agriculture and have only a scattered rural population.

FIRST CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT IN 47 YEARS

For the first time in 47 years Michigan will have an active candidate for the Republican presidential nomination this year in Senator Vandenberg. The last previous candidate was Gen. Russell Alger of Detroit. He did not get the nomination. Michigan for years was so overwhelmingly Republican that it was not regarded as a pivotal state and was disregarded when presidential candidates were considered.

New it is in the doubtful column, and many think if Vandenberg is not nominated it may go Democratic.

Plans Completed for the Democratic Convention

SENATOR ALBEN W. BARKLEY of Kentucky, who was temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention in 1932 and as such delivered the keynote speech, will serve in the same capacity at the Philadelphia convention in June, outlining the issues of this year's campaign as his party views them. Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas will be the permanent chairman again. Yet another repeater will be former Judge John E. Mack of New York. Four years ago he placed Franklin D. Roosevelt in nomination, and he will do it again in June.

These selections were made by the committee on arrangements. Other officers of the convention chosen, are: Lee Barnes of Alabama, chief doorkeeper; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, national committeewoman of the District of Columbia, hostess of the convention, with Mrs. Agnes Collins Dunn of New Hampshire as assistant; Col. Edward C. Halsey, secretary of the senate, sergeant at arms; Representative Clarence Cannon of Missouri, parliamentarian, assisted by Representative John J. O'Connor of New York; W. Forbes Morgan, secretary of the convention.

National Chairman Farley said that the two-thirds rule, which has prevailed in Democratic conventions for a century, will not be abolished. The rules committee will be headed by Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri and it will report for abrogation of the two-thirds rule as well as elimination of the unit rule. The latter binds the state delegations to abide by the decision of a majority of the delegation. According to Mr. Farley, these changes will not prevent the practically unanimous nomination of President Roosevelt.

Present plans are to have Mr. Roosevelt go to Philadelphia on Saturday, June 27, to close the convention by accepting the nomination in a speech delivered either in the Municipal stadium or in the University of Pennsylvania stadium close to the convention hall.

Roosevelt Addresses National Democratic Club

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT made what might be considered the first of his campaign speeches before the National Democratic club in New York city. Tammany was there in full force, but such disgruntled Democrats as Al Smith and John J. Raskob were conspicuous by their absence. Mr. Roosevelt declared his purpose to bring more food, higher prices and better homes for the people.

"If you increase buying power," he said, "prices will go up; more goods will be sold. Wages ought to and must go up with prices. This does not mean unbridled inflation or skyrocketing prices; this should be avoided just as we seek to avoid bankruptcy sale values."

Turning to his critics with sarcasm, the President said "some individuals are never satisfied." Referring to charges of extravagance and mounting deficits, he said people complain to him about "the current costs of rebuilding America, about the burden on future America." He insisted that the measure should not be the three-billion-dollar deficit of this year but the assertion that the national income has risen thirty-five billions in 1932 to sixty-five billions in 1936.

New Tax Bill Battle Started in House

THE administration's bill to levy about 800 million dollars in new taxes yearly was introduced in the house by the ways and means committee, and a fierce battle started immediately. The Republican minority of the committee issued a report which stated that the proposed tax law was "unsound in principle, will undermine business stability, is another step toward regimentation of all business, and is not designed to raise revenue but admittedly is another New Deal experiment."

Conservative Democrats joined with the Republicans in this attack against the bill, but the administration leaders were confident the measure would pass before May 1.

Green Urges Unions to Remain Nonpartisan

WILLIAM GREEN, president of the American Federation of Labor, has sent a letter to all affiliated unions urging that they adhere to the federation's "traditional nonpartisan political policy."

"For obvious reasons, labor should avoid division even in the pursuit of its political policies. Such division can be avoided if working men and women, loyal to the American Federation of Labor, will refrain from identifying themselves with any political movement designed to serve as a substitute for the nonpartisan political policy of the American Federation of Labor."

Some time ago George L. Berry asked all unions to join "Labor's Nonpartisan league," the object of which, he said, was "to put American Federation of Labor unions on the record for President Roosevelt."

Navy in Six-Week Drill on the Pacific

ONE hundred and fifty vessels of the United States fleet, with 450 airplanes, are now engaged in the year's grand maneuvers in the Pacific. War conditions prevail and the vessels and their crews are being given a severe test of their fitness that will last for six weeks. The Panama canal region was the first objective of the fleet. The units are divided into attacking and defending forces and something is doing all the time, day and night. The naval officers are trying to solve the seventeenth of a series of strategic problems, each based upon some possible international situation, mapped out by naval strategists.

Von Starhemberg of Austria Voices His Defiance

CIVIL war in Austria became a possibility as the quarrel between the Fascists led by Prince Ernst von Starhemberg and the clerical and monarchist elements became acute. Government officials, however, were trying desperately to patch up the trouble.

Prince Von Starhemberg, who is vice chancellor, in a defiant speech at Horn warned his political opponents that his helmwehr, or home guard, would be dissolved "only over my dead body."

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, speaking at Baden, retorted that "Austria is not Italy and Austrians are not Fascists."

Von Starhemberg asserted that if internal foes press too hard there will be a "repetition of 1934"—when the helmwehr triumphed in a short but bloody civil war against Socialists. False friends surround Schuschnigg, von Starhemberg said, and the helmwehr plans to protect him from them.

For Austria, said Starhemberg, there are three possibilities—a continuation of the authority of the state, Nazism, or communism. He asserted the helmwehr is determined to preserve the Fascist system and would continue as a separate organization but that other private armies would be absorbed by the regular army.

Advance of the Italians in Ethiopia Continues

ITALY'S victorious troops in northern Ethiopia continued their advance on Addis Ababa, though it was somewhat retarded by the efforts of the natives to blow up the roadways and otherwise harass the invaders. The Italian motorized column in this movement is the most formidable yet formed in this war and is notable for the large number of white troops included.

General Graziani's southern army, meanwhile, was driving toward Harar, second city of the empire, in three columns. The Ethiopians were putting up stiff resistance at various points but everywhere were driven back, according to Italian dispatches.

Contreras Is Elected President of Venezuela

LEAZAR LOPEZ CONTRERAS, an army officer who rose to the rank of general under the late dictator, Juan Vicente Gomez, is now president of Venezuela. The national congress elected him to that office by a vote of 132 to 1 and directed that he assume the office on May 29. As president of the chamber, Contreras became temporary president on the death of Gomez.

Supreme Court Decision in Stock Yards Case

Upholding a reduction of rates and charges at the St. Joseph, Mo., stockyards, the Supreme court held that the findings made by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace justified the rates he set and that the stockyards operators had failed to show cancellation.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis, Harlan F. Stone and Benjamin Cardozo agreed that the rates should be upheld but in an opinion by Justice Brandeis expressed belief that the court went too far in passing on the fairness of rates.

Two Well-Known Writers Taken by Death

DEATH came to two of America's well-known writers. One was Finley Peter Dunne, creator of "Mr. Dooley," the genial satirist of modern life whose witty sayings delighted two generations. The second was Percy Hammond, veteran dramatic critic of the New York Herald Tribune, one of the foremost of the country's commentators on matters theatrical. Both passed away in New York city.

Lansing—An increase of deposits in State banks during 1935 of nearly 30 per cent is cited as an indication of returning prosperity in Michigan. Total resources of banks in the State insured under the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. were $1,289,331,000, an increase in assets of 24.9 per cent over those of Dec. 31, 1934. The figures appear in a report issued by Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the FDIC.

With the sanction of the State Board of Agriculture, the college will approve a large residence in East Lansing to house 24 girls. The students will do their own housework and cooking, and pro-rate the expenses at the end of each month.

Chittenden, once dean of forestry at Michigan State College.

Ann Arbor—Funeral services were held here recently for Horatio J. Abbott, member of the Democratic National Committee who died at the age of 80 years. His death was due directly to a paralytic stroke, brought on, his political associates said, by his untiring efforts on behalf of the party he had served for nearly 35 years. His passing came unexpectedly because he had entered the hospital for a rest and had told friends that he would be going back to the political wars within a short time.

Colorful Embroidery Picture for Your Wall

Pattern 5527

In honor of spring your house deserves a colorful new wall-hanging such as this, which depicts roses and lilacs in their natural splendor. You'll enjoy embroidering it—it's so easy even a beginner will be won over to this delightful occupation. The lilacs are in lazy daisy—the roses in satin and outline stitch; and you needn't frame it—just line it and hang it up.

In pattern 5527 you will find a transfer pattern of a hanging 15 by 20 inches; a color chart; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed; directions for making the hanging.

A cloth dipped in vinegar and rubbed over the kitchen stove before it is blacked will remove all the grease that may have accumulated on it.

Flannels and blankets will keep soft and white and will not shrink if washed with a tablespoon of ammonia in the water.

To remove soiled places on the children's rompers and play clothes dip garments in water, sprinkle with granulated soap powder, roll up and put to soak in the bottom of tub.

Soiled white window shades may be successfully painted on one side with a coat of flat white paint and with green paint on the other side.

Grease spots can be removed from washable materials with warm water and soap as in ordinary laundering if care is taken to rub spot thoroughly. Soap containing naphtha or kerosene is efficient.

To keep celery crisp thoroughly wash it and cut for serving. Place it in a cheese-cloth bag and store it in a cold place.

How Far Can You Go... BEFORE HE SAYS "You need a quart!"

The "FIRST QUART" Tells the Story

Out of the experience of thousands of motorists has been developed a simple method of comparing oil performance... the "First Quart" Test. It is just a matter of noting how many miles you go after a drain-and-refill before you have to add a quart. If you are obliged to add oil too frequently, try the "First Quart" Test with Quaker State. See if you don't go farther before you have to add that tell-tale first quart. And, the oil that stands up best between refills is giving your motor the safest lubrication. Quaker State Oil Refining Company, Oil City, Pa.

Electricity brings you a NEW SERVICE

★ NO MORE RUNNING UP AND DOWN STAIRS TO LIGHT A TAP!

★ NO NEED TO DEPEND ON A FURNACE COIL FOR HOT WATER

★ NO WAITING FOR WATER TO GET HOT—ELECTRIC HEATING

★ COMPLETELY AUTOMATIC—HOT WATER AT A TURN OF THE FAUCET

★ NO MORE "TANK FATTY"—NO ANNOYING DELAY

★ THE LAST WORD IN CONVENIENCE—ELECTRIC WATER HEATING!

Turn the faucet when you want hot water—and there is your hot water on tap! No longer need you give any thought or attention to the problem of heating water: Day and night, summer and winter, year in and year out, electricity assumes this responsibility for you, and provides all the hot water you need, AUTOMATICALLY. Once you have installed an electric water heater in your home, you can forget it. It provides an unlimited supply of hot water, and relieves you of all worry. Here is the last word in convenience... and one of the finest services that electricity brings to your household.

Do you know the many ways in which plentiful hot water can help you with your household work? The following hints are but a few of the uses for hot water that add greatly to the efficiency of home-making: Rinsing dishes with very hot water, and letting them stand until dry, actually leaves them cleaner than wiping them with ordinary dish towel. Certain fresh stains can be effectively removed from table linen by stretching it in embroidery hoops and holding it under the running faucet. When you wash windows, mirrors or glassware, add a little starch to the hot water. Starch helps to remove the dirt, and gives the glass a brighter polish.

Stop in at any Detroit Edison office today, for complete information on this new automatic electric water heating service.

THE WELFARE QUESTION

Representatives from 19 counties visited Gov. Fitzgerald last week and asked that the handling of the welfare people be returned to the different counties by the state. Gov. Fitzgerald told them that they should investigate this problem thoroughly from all angles and be thoroughly convinced that they would be able to handle it themselves without any outside aid. That they should also take into consideration the extra burden that would be placed upon them if the federal government should withdraw all CWA work. At the present time the state obtains federal funds and the welfare work is handled from Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben White were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gehring.

GIVE YOUR HOME A LONGER LEASE ON LIFE!

After years of enforced neglect, surfaces which require the protection that good paint gives—literally DEMAND attention NOW. If you could examine the neglected wood or brick under a microscope, you would instantly see WHY this is a scientific FACT—because paint-starved surfaces become porous and absorb moisture from the atmosphere, causing decay, peeling, falling plaster and peeling wall paper inside.

One house that needs painting will lower the dignity and "class" of an entire street. You owe it to yourself, your house and to your neighborhood, to have this work done now.

In any event, why not at least ask for 40 estimates.

ALUMINUM UTENSILS HARMLESS TO HEALTH

There is no convincing evidence that aluminum in the amounts in which it is likely to be consumed from the use of aluminum cooking utensils is injurious to the health of the average consumer, according to the Michigan Department of Health. Persistent inquiries in regard to this matter indicate wide-spread public interest.

Scientists in many countries have investigated the possible connection between aluminum and health, but in no instance has there been proof of any harmful bodily reaction. It is true that many foods contain aluminum; that aluminum salts in certain quantities may have some action upon the digestive processes; and that a considerable portion taken into the stomach is soluble. No relation, however, has been proved between the amount of aluminum in the system and any disease including cancer.

"Aluminum is considered a metal of low toxicity and we are not acquainted with any trustworthy data which may indicate that any disease bears a relation to the use of aluminum cooking utensils," states the U. S. Public Health Service.

Aluminum utensils are readily detected upon by alkalies, and such utensils are liable to damage if cleaned frequently with soda or highly alkaline soaps. Organic acids and hard waters have been found to corrode aluminum. Discoloration is often due to compounds of iron and other metals which are deposited from water and food on the surface of the utensil. Acid foods prepared in aluminum utensils have a tendency to remove these mineral salt deposits and leave the utensil somewhat brighter. There is no evidence, however, that any of these reactions is harmful to health.

OLDER CARS NOTED IN STATE RECORDS

While the outstanding feature of the issuance of titles, licenses and stickers for automobiles by the Department of State is the volume of new cars, clerks note with interest the proof of the endurance of some of the sturdy old ones as shown in applications.

Within recent days, 1936 license plates have been issued for 1915 automobiles. The Olds Motor Company of Lansing, however, has just secured a Michigan title to a 1911 car purchased by that company at Roxbury, Massachusetts. It weighs 1160 pounds and is equipped with 42 inch wheels, relics of earlier days of the industry.

No application for 1936 license plates has been received as yet. The cost of plates at 85 cents per hundred weight would be $18.20.

STALKS HARBOR BORER SURVIVORS

A few corn stalks in a field sown with small grain or other crops may lead to infestation of neighboring plantings by the corn borer.

The custom of discing the field before sowing may lead to a fifty-fold increase in the borer. Plowing the field before sowing decreases dangers from the borer, but is rendered less effective where refuse or a few corn stalks remain on the surface.

Studies at Michigan State College, East Lansing, by C. B. Dibble, extension specialist in insect control,

If two borers survive, the borer moths are sufficient to produce 100 new corn borers.

reveal the importance of clean fields in exterminating the corn borer. Borers buried 18 inches beneath the ground have made their way to the surface and found protection in stray corn stalks and refuse.

"Pieces of refuse harbor and protect the corn borer larvae," Mr. Dibble says. "These borers later develop into moths to fly around and lay eggs in new cornfields. If two borers survive to become moths, they are sufficient to populate a cornfield with 100 borers."

In the experiments, cages were placed on cleanly plowed ground and on fields disced and planted to small grain. No moths were found in the first case. In the second, surface cornstalks furnished shelter and protection to the borers while the growing grain provided shade. Where clean fields were used, borers made their way to the surface but perished from exposure to sun, wind, and rain, or were picked up by birds, shrews, skunks, field mice and other natural enemies.

HYBRID CORN

The demand for hybrid corn seed resistant to the corn borer this spring is many times that of the supply, according to Professor A. R. Marshall, research assistant in farm crops at Michigan State College, East Lansing. Tremendous interest has been manifested in letters sent to Mr. Marshall, who has been prominent in development and testing new strains of corn. A considerable increase this year in borer resistant hybrid seed corn especially for southern Michigan, is a goal set by the Michigan Crop Improvement Association for distribution for 1937 planting.

SOIL CONSERVATION EXPLAINED BY DEPT.

Federal Government Announces Schedule of Payment for Crops Grown on Farm

Although even the county leaders say they do not fully understand the system of the soil conservation program and payments, the following is the official schedule and information sent out by the Federal government.

Classification of land as soil depleting or soil conserving depending upon the crop grown on the soil. If two crops are grown on the soil during the year, one of which is soil depleting, the soil depleting crop determines the classification.

Crop land is land from which a crop other than wild hay has been harvested since Jan. 1, 1930. Soil depleting crops are designated as:

Barley, oats, wheat, rye and buckwheat when harvested for grain or hay.

Corn (including sweet corn, fodder corn and pop-corn.)

Sudan grass and millet for hay, seed or pasture.

Soy beans and cow peas harvested for grain or hay.

Commercial truck and canning crops, melons and strawberries.

Potatoes, beans, sugar beets, sunflowers, flax, field peas, sorghum.

Mint, chicory, idle crop land in 1936.

Contracted acres in 1935 regardless of crop grown thereon.

(Soil Building Crops now Called Soil Conserving Crops. So classed only when no grain harvested during the year.)

Vetch, red clover, red top, alfalfa, white clover, orchard grass, alsike clover, June grass, Reed's canary grass, mammoth clover, timothy, sowbarns and cowpeas plowed under as green manure, forest trees planted on crop land since January 1, 1934.

In order to qualify for either type of payment a farm shall have in 1936 an acreage of soil conserving crops equivalent to 15 per cent of the acreage of soil depleting crops grown in 1935.

A payment averaging $10 per acre will be made for converting acreage from soil depleting crops, but in no case shall payment be made on an acreage greater than 15 per cent of the soil depleting crop acreage of 1935.

Soil building payments will be made in 1936 with respect to each farm for carrying out certain soil building practices. Such payments shall not exceed an amount equivalent to $1 times the number of acres in soil conserving crops in 1936 or exceed $10 for the farm, whichever amount is the larger.

The Soil Building payment may be qualified for in the following ways:

$2.00 per acre for seeding alfalfa on crop land in 1936 prior to Sept. 1. May be seeded in a grain crop and the grain harvested.

$1.50 per acre for seeding Red or Mammoth Clover under the same conditions as for alfalfa.

$1.00 per acre for seeding White Clover, Alsike Clover and White Clover under same conditions as alfalfa.

$1.50 per acre for seeding soy beans or cow peas and plowing under as green manure before September 30, 1936.

$5.00 per acre for planting forest trees on crop or pasture land January 1, 1936 - September 30, 1936.

Deductions: Should the acreage of soil depleting crops with regard to a farm be increased in 1936 over that of 1935 the total payment which would otherwise be received will be reduced by an amount averaging $10.00 per acre for each acre of such increase.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

Junior forester, and junior range examiner, $2,000 a year.

Medical officer (specialist in venereal disease control) and medical officer (specialist in cardiovascular disease), $3,800 a year.

Principal agronomist, and principal oleiculturist, $5,600 a year, Division of Labor Standards, Department of Labor.

Federal agent for agricultural education, $4,600 a year, specialist in agricultural education (part-time and evening schools), $3,800 a year, Office of Education, Department of the Interior.

BONUS APPLICATION VOIDED BY MOVING

All veterans of the World War who have filed applications for the bonus but have since moved to a new address, must file a new application before the bonds will be delivered, according to George W. Rogers, secretary of the Soldiers & Sailors Relief commission.

Rogers has a supply of blanks on hand at the present time and will be pleased to assist any veteran who comes under the above ruling, in preparing the new applications. That the government is taking every possible precaution to safeguard the veteran's interest and see that no one receives these bonds other than the man intended, is seen in the new order, Rogers stated.

It is suggested that new applications be submitted immediately. It

"Michigan's Deer Herd," a new Department of Conservation movie, is now available for loan in both 16 and 35 mm. sizes to organizations and institutions of the state.

Philathea Notes

Philatheas and friends should bear in mind our coming Maytime meeting on Wednesday afternoon, May 13. This will be the quarterly Missionary program, the hostesses being Mrs. Millie Bowman and Miss Cicilia Fish, at the home of the former. A pot-luck supper will be enjoyed as usual.

The discussion last Sunday was enjoyed under the leadership of our teacher, Mrs. Zuse. The lesson was an appropriate one, following the sermon by our pastor on "Luminous Christians." For next Sunday the subject will be "Effectual Prayer," from Luke 18:1-14.

Sympathy is being felt for those who have been called on to mourn in our community of late, and the class expresses sincere sorrow.

Next Sunday being Mother's Day, a special sermon will be given and all are asked to assist in getting the mothers out to the service which is held in their honor. Also the class is reminded of the Mother's Day banquet, sponsored by the King's Daughters.

In a flash I had fired and had drawn his fire, for, before I could think, a bullet had flicked the sleeve of my pistol-arm.

This showed me, once for all, that so far as snap shots were concerned, I stood no chance whatever against such a man. As I whipped to one side, I made up my mind that I must not fire again until I knew for certain that my bullet was going to kill. In a word, if I was to win, I must come to close quarters with Pharaoh, if not to grips.

I had now come back to the table, and an instant later I was crouching beneath the archway, with my pistol on the carpet before me and my empty hands outstretched upon either side. I had not long to wait.

When I did not return his fire, I fancy the man was uncertain whether or not I was dead. He, therefore, sought the spot from which I had fired and, finding nobody there, turned and came to the table exactly as I had done.

And exactly as I had done, he began to edge his way round it. . . . The slack of his trousers brushed my hand.

In a flash I had him by the ankles and, ripping his feet from beneath him had brought him down on his side. Then I snatched up my pistol, thrust it into his stomach and pressed the trigger—in vain.

The magazine was empty. Slowly to the last, Rush had never troubled to replenish his clip.

Pharaoh had fallen to his right and so on his pistol-arm. While this was taking his weight, he could not aim, and though in a flash he had hung his weight to the left, in that instant my fingers had caught the wrist of his pistol-hand. For a moment he fought for his freedom: then he let himself fall on his back; but now my wits were working and before it could reach his pocket, I had hold of his other wrist.

And in that instant the room was flooded with light. . . .

For a moment I thought that someone had entered the chamber. And then I guessed that Pharaoh had turned the switches when first he came into the room, that the switchboard itself might report the repair of the damage which he had done.

So for the first time that night I saw my enemy's face.

I think he must have known that I was his assailant, but the sight of me seemed to send him out of his mind. He fought no more as a serpent, but like the madman he looked, his face convulsed with passion and his eyes starting out of his head.

At last, to my relief, the tempest blew itself out, and he lay back, spent and panting, to take his rest; but, before I could think of moving, he had lifted his head once more and was staring into my eyes.

He looked back, grimly enough.

I did not struggle: he simply gazed upon me, as though he would brand my image upon his memory. Then the fellow spat in my face.

So a madman made a madman.

If he realized, I know not, but I used him as a lay figure from that time on.

I dashed his hand on the massive plinth of the table, to break his wrist, and when his pistol had fallen I brought his hands together and got to my knees. And then I was clear of the table and had jerked him up to his feet.

I let his broken wrist go, whipped out his second pistol and pitched it across the room.

Then I seized his throat with both hands, turned him back to the table, bent him across its corner and broke his back on the oak.

Sitting on the bench by the fireplace, I wiped my face and my hands on Helena's black silk scarf. This had been wrung and creased, and I had no doubt that Pharaoh had used it to gag her, before he had carried her off.

Now that the business was over, I found it hard to believe. I looked at my watch.

The time was twenty minutes past twelve. Not an hour had gone by since Pharaoh had talked from the ramparts and Dewdrop had read his message to Rush and Bugle and me. And now they were all four dead, but I was alive.

The reflection brought me up to my feet.

Alive, if you please: but I was shut in a chamber from which I could see no way out. . . .

For twenty minutes I sought that secret door. I shouted and beat upon the woodwork, using Helena's name—all in vain.

Helena was locked in the turret—my hand in my pocket fingered her master key: which I had taken from

Rush, but the turret, no doubt, had embrasures, and she would be found and released as soon as she could make herself heard. She had, of course, heard the firing, but if the thieves were fighting what did that matter to her? Let Pharaoh revenge her escape upon Bugle and Rush: or seek to blast his way out of the secret room. (Here perhaps I should say that though Helena heard the firing, the sound was so muffled that she could not be sure what it was, while, so thick were the walls of Yorick, that nobody else in the castle heard it at all.)

Now when Helena's release was effected and Geoffrey and the warden were found, the three would take counsel together upon her report. The position would be considered—but not for long.

The thing was clear. To open the room would be madness. The council would surely decide that Pharaoh and his companions must be left to die where they were.

Something dazedly I surveyed my surroundings.

No windows, no doors. How did one get out of chambers that had neither windows nor doors?

It was then that I thought of the fireplace.

A grate must have a chimney; and if the chimney was wide. . . .

I must have climbed forty feet when my hand encountered a ridge and I felt a current of air. And then I came to a fireplace.

As I crawled out of that fireplace, I knew where I was. I had come to Helena's bedroom.

Roughly I washed the filth from my head and my hands, but though I did what I could to wipe the soot from my shoes, I very soon saw that until I could change my clothing, I should not be fit to move in a furnished room. And what clothes I had were at Plumage. . . .

At once to get to the farm became my burning desire.

Before I did so, I must set Helena free. That was simple enough. I had her master key, and there was her private stair to bring me down to the hall. And yet I dreaded the duty. I did not want to see her—at least, not now. I dreaded the explanations which I should be forced to give. I did not want her to know that I had been there, in that room: that I had seen Pharaoh break her, that I had heard her purchase my safety for ten thousand pounds a year.

I heard the whine of a dog and then the scratch of claws on the door that led to the ramparts. In a moment I had it open, and there to my joy was Sabre.

I afterwards learned that, perceiving the bustle above him, the dog had declared, by barking, that he was down in the moat. His rescue was effected.

The great dog seemed pleased to see me, but none too pleased to see that I was alone.

"Come and find her, Sabre," I said. "I know where she is."

The Alsatian started and stared. Then he bounded towards me, put his great paws on my shoulders and licked my face.

One minute later we stood in the little hall.

With the master key in my hand, I turned to the turret door. For a moment I hesitated. Then I took a deep breath, fitted the key to the lock and pushed open the oak.

Helena was not to be seen. Neither, for that matter, was Sabre. He had gone to join his mistress at the head of the turret stair.

I was wondering whether to follow or whether to wait where I was, when I suddenly saw that my duty to the lady was done.

The appearance of Sabre would show her that she was released. The way to her bedroom was open, and she had no need of escort, because the terror was laid.

With trembling fingers, I whipped the key from the lock of the turret door. Then I opened the door which gave to the winding staircase, passed through and locked it behind me with all dispatch. Five minutes later I crossed the moat by the footbridge and entered the tunnel which would bring me into the woods.

As I walked to Plumage, I remembered those terrible moments—how in her pride she had flung my puny efforts in Pharaoh's face and how in her fear and trembling she had sought to buy my safety by committing a breach of trust. No queen could have done more for the king she loved.

Although I had come to regard with increasing apprehension the opening of Helena's eyes—to the truth, of course, that it was I and not Bugle that had stood in the secret chamber and had listened to all she said—it had never occurred to me that, if only I held my tongue, neither she nor anyone else need ever suspect that I had entered the castle that Friday night. Yet before my cousin had spoken a dozen words, I saw that, if I was careful, my secret would keep itself.

He found me finishing breakfast in his room at The Reaping Hook.

"Well, you have missed something," he said. "Let that be your punishment for deceiving three simple souls. Not that I blame you—this time. My lady had no right to treat you like that. I told her as much in the coupe. But she wouldn't listen to me. But that's by the way. You've missed—in a way we've all of us missed—the most astounding show that ever was seen. Lady Helena saw a good bit—more than enough, I'm afraid." He threw himself into a chair. "Upon my soul, I don't know where to begin."

"What do you know?" I said.

"I feel sure," said my cousin, "that you will be glad to hear that your failure to arrive at the castle knocked the three of us flat. We couldn't assimilate the fact that simple, honest John Spencer had laid himself out to deceive us—and done it so devilish well. You certainly got your own back. Lady Helena was wild. I'd never have believed it of him," she raged.

"Well, now that she was safe in the castle, I was only too glad of an excuse to get out, and so I announced that Barley and I would seek you without delay. She insisted that we should take Sabre and gave the dog his orders before we left. It's right you should know that she was extremely worried."

My cousin paused, to frown on his finger-tips.

"I hope, in the merciful course of time, to forget the way we employed the next two hours. We used Sabre exactly according to the instructions on the box. Should the dog display emotion, release him at once. Remain exactly where you were when he left you, until he returns. Then take hold of his collar and he will lead you to John."

I began to shake with laughter.

"Quite so," said Geoffrey. "Quite so. After about an hour the dog displayed emotion and was released. After another hour Barley and I displayed much more emotion and withdrew to survey the mouth of the entrance drive. . . .

"We hadn't been there ten minutes when we heard the Carlotta coming—coming from the castle all out. By the use of our torches we stopped her, to find that she was manned by a flying squad. Watchmen, porters, groomes—all of them armed to the teeth. They were going to compass Yorick, traveling east: and the coupe was coming after, to travel west. The Countess Helena had been kidnapped. Yorick was plunged into darkness and my lady was gone. Let down in a sheet from the ramparts. Her handkerchief had been found on the drawbridge and Sabre had been found in the moat."

I felt that it was time to say something.

"But how," I began. . . .

"Don't interrupt," said my cousin. "Listen to me. Well, I let the Carlotta go, deciding that Barley and I would do better on foot. I sent him east and ran west—yes, ran, with my heart in my mouth. The idea was to find the Rolls. . . . if the Rolls had not gone. . . . I found her at a quarter to one, up a little track—and very near cried with relief. You see, that meant that my lady was yet in the park."

"I rushed off and stopped the coupe, which was lapping for the twentieth time, told the chauffeur to go on patrolling, but to send me reinforcements and tell everybody he met. Then I went back to lay my ambush. I soon had plenty of men and I did the job well. Pharaoh simply hadn't an earthly. Though he didn't know it, that track had become the scaffold on which he and his little friends were going to die."

"At a quarter to two a wallah came pelting with a message—we very nearly killed him, of course. But by the time he'd said his piece he was nearer death than before. The Countess Helena's compliments, and will Mr. Bohun come back to the castle at once."

My cousin covered his face.

"I don't think I've ever felt such a blasted fool. But blasted. . . .

"Well, I took the Rolls and drove back—to hear Lady Helena's tale."

Ancient Indians of Peru

Used Cone as a Sun Dial

A giant sun dial was used by the Incas to measure their seasons—the "Inti-huana," or "place where the sun was tied." The shadow cast by the cone on the stone platform beneath formed the basis of the ancient Indian method of reckoning time.

The Inti-huana in varying forms is found in many of the dead cities which have been unearthed in Peru. Cuzco, ancient capital of the Incas, is an archeological center.

The outstanding characteristic of Cuzco is its walls made of huge stones cut and fitted together in some mysterious manner without the use of sharp instruments, mortar or cement. Other ruins include stone seats, remnants of baths, archways and staircases; the famous Rodadero, a steep naturally grooved rock used by the Incas as a toboggan slide long before the Spaniards arrived; and the "Throne of the Inca," a rounded-off rock with steps cut into it on either side—the vantage point from which, it is said, the Inca and his engineers directed the construction of the fortress of Sacasahuaman.

If you feel run down and tired, and things aren't going so well with your job, try to steal a through the woods. I recommend a short trek, because it takes a tenderfoot a little while to get accustomed to sleeping out of doors, and eating the sort of camp food that he is likely to cook for himself.

But perseverance will help you along.

Don't load yourself down with a lot of dunnage. Take some good serviceable food like potatoes and bacon and bring along a couple of blankets and a rubber sheet to put over you when it rains.

Three or four days of hard pelting rain, which penetrates your clothing to the skin and trickles down the back of your neck will be likely to discourage you.

Learn how to make a tent out of your rubber blanket, and to pitch it on high ground, so that you won't wake up in the night and think you have fallen into a mountain torrent.

Don't have any particular objective.

If you see a hill top that looks as if it would provide an interesting view, climb to the crest of it, and look around at the landscape.

Learn how to build a camp fire—just a little one, the kind that an Indian makes.

If you make a big one you will have to stand ten or fifteen feet away from it, and then the heat will not reach you.

You can crouch above a little one, and cook your bacon over it without burning your fingers.

Take a compass along, for some people have no sense of direction, and you may be one of them.

Keep your eyes open all the time. When you hear some kind of an animal rustling in a tree, stop and stand motionless. By and by his curiosity will get the best of him, and you can get a look at him.

There is no better fun in the late summer or in the autumn than trekking through a strange country, growing more and more sure of yourself and of your ability to live on very little food, and still never be hungry. If you can, choose a terrain near a mountain side or a sizeable river, with a deep high wood not very far away.

Before you start learn about mushrooms and the kind that can be eaten. Bring a bird book and an animal book along and a good pair of field glasses.

If you are careful you won't need any guide, and it will tickle you to think how well you can get along without one.

Don't go alone if you can find the right kind of a companion. But don't be afraid to go alone if you can't.

No right thinking intelligent person will ever be afraid of a friendly forest.

I do not know what kind of newspapers the Borghia boys had, if any.

But if they had newspapers, or even Knowledge a poor substitute for them, you can make up your mind that there was no free press in their day.

As soon as knowledge became as much as 10 per cent universal, the kind of tyranny that was prevalent in medieval days disappeared.

As soon as the public—even long before there was any such thing as general suffrage—began to know what was going on, oppression was doomed.

People had learned to read long before Louis the Fourteenth established his absolute monarchy.

But there was no honest newspaper to let the public know what was going on in Versailles. Had there been the people of Paris would have waited so long for the revolution that started them on their way to freedom.

In every country where there is freedom of the press and freedom of speech there is liberty.

You may not agree with the newspapers you read. You may not fully agree with any newspaper.

But if there were no newspapers you would never find out what is going on, or what was likely to happen.

Editorial comment is made of course, but the news from the White House comes to you exactly as it is issued. And that is as it should be.

Your newspaper is the window through which you look out on the nation and on the world.

If you read it every day, and from one end to the other, you will be a well informed man, and from the information you thus receive you can make your own opinions, and shape your own political course.

All over the world trained and intelligent men are finding out for you what has happened during the last twenty-four hours, and are ready to tell you about it.

Don't skim your paper. Read it. It gathers for you the news of the world, it opens to you a broad avenue to education.

Without its aid you would be powerless to make a decision on election day, or to understand the meaning and trend of the events of the day.

I believe that the first hour in every school day should be devoted to a thorough reading of a good, honest, up-standing newspaper.

Flood Prevention Is Matter of Checking Soil Erosion

Ruin Is Ahead Unless Some Action Is Taken, Expert Says.

Such disastrous floods as those of recent weeks can be prevented only by vast undertakings to prevent soil erosion, according to government experts.

They attribute these floods to denuding the soil of the vegetation that receives and holds water in the soil and holds the top soil in place. The water from rains and melting snow now rushes over the bare soil without sinking in and carries the top soil away, to boot.

Thus our fertile soil is steadily being washed into the sea, and life and property are more and more imperiled by floods. Example of a country that did not perceive the same danger now confronting us is China, denuded of trees and other natural vegetation hundreds of years ago and now the perennial victim of the most disastrous floods since the time of Noah.

Millions Spent.

We have spent hundreds of millions of dollars in attempts to control floods once they develop, but we scarcely have begun to attack the problem at the source—the prevention of floods.

Under a new government subsidy much may be done to restore the fertility of soil and something may be done to halt the wind erosion of the soil that produces the great dust storms of the last few years. But virtually nothing will be done toward permanent retooling of the soil with the verdure necessary to the absorption of flood waters at the source.

Morris L. Cooke, engineer and administrator of rural electrification, has been preaching for years the ruin that awaits us unless we mend our ways.

Soil Erosion Damage.

"We must attack the problem of soil erosion control as we would an armed foe about to defeat us," said Mr. Cooke. "Let things go on as they now are going and in 50 years we will have a total area of really fertile land not much more than three times the size of Nebraska. We are likely to go the way of Asia Minor and Tibet unless we sense our dangerous situation and act promptly."

This is no fanciful picture, according to Mr. Cooke. A single dust storm, he says, has swept away as much as 300,000,000 tons of fertile top-soil from the wheat belt; the Mississippi river carries 400,000,000 tons of top soil to the Gulf of Mexico every year; more than 100,000,000 acres already have been destroyed as crop bearing soil, while another 125,000,000 acres have been seriously impaired for crop bearing and an additional 100,000,000 acres are seriously threatened. The total annual damage amounts to $400,000,000.

"We unwittingly have broken the balance of nature's forces," says Mr. Cooke, "by clearing too much of our forests, turning under too much of our sod, and grazing too much of the remainder in such manner as to destroy the grass roots. We have planted tile, dug ditches and straightened and cleared creeks and rivers to hasten run-off. Consequently less rain and snow penetrates into underground storage. More of it rushes to the sea without benefit to us and carries with it valuable top soil.

The nation's only real flood safety, according to H. H. Bennett, chief of the soil conservation service, lies in a nation-wide program of crop adaptation, rotation, and reforestation calculated to hold American top soil, particularly that of hilly and mountainous regions, where it belongs, and to give it the utmost degree of porosity so that heavy rains will have a fair chance to drain off underground.

Popular Lines for Spectator Sports

Pattern No. 1568-B

Some are chosen and some are not, as you remember. And this is one of the "summer" chosen! A pretty bad pun, but this perfectly stunning spectator sports frock makes up for it. And you can wear it yourself when summer sets in if you'll send for the pattern now.

It is surprisingly easy to make, and with the aid of the step-by-step chart, illustrating the cut and fit of the new slit sleeves and the way to plait and stitch-up the youthful bodice, you will immediately realize how automatically it goes together. The bodice has a lot of blouse to it, even makes you suspect that it's held underneath by an elastic band, and the side pleats of the skirt harmonize beautifully with the action pleats in the back blouse.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1568-B is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires
