President Returns From His Western Tour

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT returned to Washington from his tour through six western states and, though he was rather tired, he hoped to run up to New London, Conn., for the Yale-Harvard boat race. That depended on the congressional situation. He had to deal with the lawmakers who were all tangled up in the controversy over the tax bill, and also to complete his speech of acceptance to be delivered at Philadelphia on June 27.

President Roosevelt

The final speech of Mr. Roosevelt's trip was delivered at Vincennes, Ind., where he dedicated the handsome memorial to George Rogers Clark. He paid eloquent tribute to that conqueror of the Northwest, and found occasion to appeal for support of his own program. Said he:

"In his (Clark's) day among the pioneers there were jumpers of land claims and those who sought to swindle their neighbors though they were poor in this world's goods and lived in sparsely settled communities. Today among our teeming millions there still are those who by dishonorable means seek to obtain the possessions of their unwary neighbors.

"Our modern civilization must constantly protect itself against moral defects whose objectives are the same but whose methods are more subtle than their prototypes of a century and a half ago. We do not change our form of free government when we arm ourselves with new weapons against new devices of crime and cupidity."

In a series of rhetorical questions the President defended the AAA subsidies to farmers, soil conservation, reforestation, and preservation of wild life.

From Vincennes Mr. Roosevelt went to Hodgenville, Ky., for a brief visit to Lincoln's birthplace, and then his train carried him back to Washington.

Senator Norris Again Will Support Roosevelt

FOUR years ago Senator George Norris of Nebraska, Independent Republican, warmly supported Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Presidency, and he now announces that he will again back the Democratic ticket. He urges his countrymen "to forget partisanship and come to the support of the man who more than any other man in recent years has stood for the welfare of the common people."

The senator said the Cleveland convention "nominated a man for President whose greatest asset is that nobody knows him and nobody knows what he stands for. It does not necessarily follow from this that the nominee is not a good man. But it does mean that if he will not take orders from the undisclosed bosses who made him, then these eminent gentlemen have been deceived."

Landon and Knox Are Named by Republicans

IN ONE of the greatest demonstrations of popular acclaim in the history of American politics, Gov. Alfred M. Landon was nominated for President of the United States by the Republican national convention meeting in Cleveland.

Nominated on the first ballot, Governor Landon received the unprecedented number of 984 out of a possible 1,003 votes. The nomination was made unanimous. Although his name had not been placed in nomination, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho received 19 votes, including 18 from the Wisconsin delegation and one from West Virginia.

Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, was nominated unanimously for Vice President on the ticket.

Party unity and harmony were the watchwords of the delegates. The action of the three other leading candidates for the Presidential nomination—Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and Senator Borah—in withdrawing in Landon's favor paved the way for a militant and united front in the coming campaign by the Republican party.

The convention adopted a platform of "Americanism," pledging a broad farm relief program, repeal of reciprocal tariffs and opposition to American entry into the League of Nations and the World Court.

Governor Landon in a telegram read to the convention by his campaign manager, John Hamilton, placed his own interpretation on certain planks in the platform. Under the title of labor he advocated a Constitutional amendment permitting the states to adopt legislation necessary to protect women and children in the matter of maximum hours, minimum wages and working conditions, provided it is not possible to do so under the Constitution as it now stands.

He likewise advocated a currency expressed in terms of gold and convertible into gold, adding: "I recognize, however, that this requisite must not be made until and unless it can be done without penalizing our domestic economy and without injury to our producers of agricultural products and other raw materials."

Concerning the merit system in civil service, he suggested that it should include every position in the administrative service below the rank of assistant secretaries of major departments and should cover the entire Post Office department.

Russia to Become Only "Real Democracy"

RUSSIA proposes to establish what its rulers assert will be the only real democracy in the world. A new constitution, to be promulgated next fall, has been drawn up under the direction of Josef Stalin, the dictator, and will be acted on by the all-union congress of soviets on November 25. This document guarantees protection for private property, suffrage for all citizens more than eighteen years old, regardless of race, sex, religious belief, and previous activities or property ownership. The communist party will be retained as the only recognized political organization.

There are to be two legislative bodies, the council of the union, elected by the people, and the council of nationalities, selected by the present indirect system. These two bodies will elect a board of 31 officials to run the government. The chairman of this board will be equivalent to the president of a republic.

The official press in Moscow says bourgeois democracy is a "dictatorship of capitalism," whereas the Soviet democracy will grant the widest rights to all working people, the "old, exploiting classes" having disappeared over there.

Eastman Offers Program of Railway Reform

JUST as his office was about to expire, Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of transportation, submitted a report in which he proposed a lot of reforms by which the railroads might win back the business they have lost to the truck and the automobile.

Among his suggestions are lower fares, lighter weight, and speedier cars, use of buses and trucks by the railroads to meet competition and consolidation of terminals and other facilities.

He also advised the development of a nation-wide "container" service in the movement of freight by railway, highway and water, predicting that this would save millions of dollars in the handling of present freight and would create much new business. The containers are now used in a limited manner in some localities and industries.

Eastman recommended a "searching examination and thorough overhauling" of railroad pullman service, and a plan of operation under which the Pullman company would own and operate the cars and railroads, leasing them and retaining the entire revenue from the sleeping and parlor car service.

Pershing Says Outlook for Peace Is Not Bright

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING is not optimistic concerning world peace. Addressing the graduating class at the United States Military Academy on the fiftieth anniversary of his own graduation, the general said "no one can tell when we shall again need our armies." He continued: "The situation in the world today is far from reassuring. None can foresee the effect upon us of another world catastrophe. Loyal citizens cannot shut their eyes to the possibility of war. They owe it to all that is sacred to make ample preparation against an evil day."

The 276 cadets of the 1936 class go on three months' leave before reporting to their first stations as second lieutenants.

Death of G. K. Chesterton, Noted English Author

ONE of England's most distinguished and interesting authors and critics passed from the scene in the death of Gilbert Keith Chesterton, generally known as "G. K." He was sixty-two years old. Chesterton was converted to Catholicism in 1922 and thereafter much of his writing was devoted to his championship of that church. For many years his writings were very popular and in 1926 he established his own weekly magazine. He was the author of about 50 books and innumerable articles.

Chesterton loved to write something incongruous and was called "prince of paradoxes." Combative, unconventional, and dramatic, he was a distinctive style. His outspoken criticisms in addresses and writings frequently led to controversy.

Farm Mortgage Body Shows Good Profits

ANNOUNCEMENT by the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation shows that its net profits from its organization to March 31 last were $15,280,716. This sum has been set aside as a reserve against mortgage loan losses.

The profit and loss statement of the corporation, published in the first issue of the Farm Credit Quarterly, shows that the organization held, as of March 31, first mortgages on farm real estate amounting to approximately $308,000,000, second mortgages valued at $510,000,000, and consolidated federal farm loan bonds bought from the federal land banks amounting to about $759,000,000. Outstanding bonds of the corporation on March 31 totaled $1,047,258,900.

John Hays Hammond Is Taken by Death

DEATH came to John Hays Hammond, eighty-one, internationally famed mining engineer, economist and writer, at his home at Gloucester, Mass. He had lived a life high in adventure and rich in experience. He was a friend and confidant of Theodore Roosevelt, Mark Twain, H. Rider Haggard, Cecil Rhodes and many other figures of the past half century.

Mr. Hammond was born in San Francisco, California, in 1855 where his parents settled after the Mexican war in which his father served as a major. It was the era of the spectacular California gold rush. He watched miners pan for gold dust as a boy. After graduation from Yale he set himself up as a mining engineer. Soon he visited the West coast of Mexico.

He became known as an expert judge of mining property and was sent to South Africa by "Barney" Barnato, great speculator of the last century. Hammond experienced some romantic adventures including an acrimonious encounter with Paul Kruger, president of the Transvaal republic who sentenced him to be hanged and released only on the intervention of the secretary of state.

After developing mining property in many parts of the world, Mr. Hammond was appointed by President Taft in 1911 as special ambassador and personal representative at the coronation of King George V.

Two New Cardinals Are Appointed by the Pope

IN A secret consistory Pope Pius XI raised to the rank of cardinal two of his old friends, Giovanni Mercati and Eugenio Tisserant. Twenty-seven cardinals were present at the ceremony, among them being Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia.

During the consistory the pope formally proclaimed appointments of three American and two Canadian bishops. They were Msgr. George L. Leech, bishop of Harrisburg, Pa.; Msgr. Hugh L. Lamb, auxiliary bishop to Cardinal Dougherty, Msgr. William Adrian, Nashville, Tenn.; Msgr. Francis Carroll, Calgary, Alta, and Msgr. Patrick Bray, St. John.

Strikes Still Annoy New Regime in France

AFTER settling a general strike in which 1,000,000 workers had paralyzed the industrial life of France, the new "popular front" government under Premier Leon Blum was faced with further difficulties in the form of a series of new strikes. Although the government had tolled day and night trying to adjust disputes and though most of the demands of strikers had been satisfied by employers, there was a smaller return to work than had been expected. It was reported that as fast as strikes in some industries were settled, others were affected.

The extent of the permanent ravages which will be left in the wake of this upheaval will only become apparent later on. Some observers predicted that private industry would be forced into bankruptcy so as to secure operation by the state. But whether Premier Blum and his "popular front" government were prepared for such extreme measures was not at all certain.

Mussolini Gives Up Three of His Cabinet Jobs

IN A long expected cabinet shake-up in Italy, Premier Mussolini gave up three of his eight portfolios. There are 15 posts in the cabinet. He appointed his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, as foreign minister. Ciano, only thirty-three, is the world's youngest foreign minister. He moved up from the cabinet post of propaganda. Mussolini also gave up the ministries of colonies and corporations, these posts going respectively to Ferruccio Lantini and Alessandro Lessona. Count Ciano's former ministry was taken by Dione Alberi. Giuseppe Bastianini, ambassador to Poland, was made undersecretary for foreign affairs. He is only thirty-seven.

Elsewhere in the world governments were experiencing changes. In Nicaragua, Dr. Carlos Breaes Jaquin, completing the unexpired term of the deposed President, Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, announced his cabinet.

In Madrid, the Spanish government crushed what was described as a rightist conspiracy to seize control of the government.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Lansing—The State Conservation Commission has voted $226,500 for game protection during 1936-37, the highest allotment in four years.

New Era—A junior high school harmonica band of 15 members has become a public asset to New Era. Several concerts were presented at public entertainments this year, and a nucleus for a new organization next year remains in school.

Mt. Pleasant—Miss Elizabeth E. Wightman, founder and head of the Central State Teachers College Art Department, has resigned after teaching college art at Mt. Pleasant 39 years. She estimates that 125 special art teachers now teaching in Michigan were trained in the Central State Art Department.

Monroe—The Monroe Port Commission has obtained an option on 200 acres of marsh land east of Monroe along Lake Erie. The property is located between the old bed of the River Raisin and the Government canal. It will be used for industrial development in connection with the Monroe Harbor project.

Grand Rapids—Brig. W. H. Fox, divisional commander of the Salvation Army for Western Michigan since September, 1933, has been given charge of the Wisconsin and Upper Michigan Division, which includes all of Wisconsin and 15 counties in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. He will report for duty July 8.

Flint—Trackless trolleys were given a ten-year franchise by an overwhelming majority in a special election here. The vote decided Flint's transportation problem for the next decade. The sponsors of the trolley coaches have six months in which to install the new system. The minimum fare rate in the franchise is 10 tickets for 50 cents.

East Lansing—A crop summary from the United States Weather Bureau states that the spring's dry weather is resulting in a shortened first cutting of alfalfa in southern Michigan. It told, also, of damage to corn and truck crops by cutworms, with a contrasting optimistic note in a report that undamaged fields of truck stuffs, small grain and meadows were showing excellent progress following heavy rains.

Lansing—Michigan drinkers of French brandies and wines will save more than $100,000 a year under reduced tariff schedules to France on a "favored nation" basis, the Liquor Control Commission has estimated. Imported French beverages are a minor part of the commission's total volume, but include several brandies of repute. The average $6 a case tariff reduction would affect 15,000 cases of liquor sold yearly in the state.

Detroit—Malcom Germany, Detroit boy who went with the Buchanan schoolboy Alaska tour in 1932, has delivered 182 lectures in public schools in 73 states, telling what he learned about Alaska. Now he is back in the far north studying geology and anthropology and getting more material for stories and lectures. Still in his early twenties, Germany has worked for several years under direction of the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.

Lansing—The State Supreme Court recently decided that injuries sustained in games in industrial plants are not compensable under the workers compensation law. An award by the State Commission of Labor and Industry, giving William Clark $18 a week for injuries suffered while playing basketball in the Chrysler Corp. gymnasium in Detroit, was set aside. "Industry must take care of its disabled, but optional gymnasium exercises cannot be said to be part of employment," the court held.

Dearborn—A plan to conduct foremanship conferences at Wayne University was approved by the State Board of Control for Vocational Education. This program will cost $4,500 a year and will be supported by Federal trade and industrial teacher-training funds. A. C. Tagg, of Dearborn, will assume his duties as head of the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation next September. This department is training 2,904 handicapped citizens to become self-supporting and has a waiting list of 1,246.

Lansing—Two Detroit widening projects are included in $6,000,000 worth of road and bridge jobs on which bids have been called for by the State Highway Department. A bill providing the allocation for Federal-Aid highways in Michigan has been signed by President Roosevelt, and the Federal Bureau of Public Works notified the Highway Commission that construction could start by July 15. Michigan will match Federal funds to make up the $7,600,000 construction purse. Projects are located in 29 counties.

East Lansing—Michigan State College experts are using new strategy in combating the noisy pest, the cicada known popularly but erroneously as 17-year locust. The strategy is to make a spray of a synthetic preparation known as phycyapate which is applied to trees in infected areas. If the plan works, the cicada will fall to the ground after coming into contact with the sprayed tree, and there a heavier concentration of the spray will be used to kill it. Cicadas have settled in the southeastern section of the State.

Jackson—Prizes were awarded in 75 classes in the third annual Jackson rose show. This show is part of a five-year program to make Jackson known as the Michigan "rose city" instead of "prison city."

Pontiac—Pontiac's July tax rate, for both City and School District levies, will be $20.19 a thousand, it was announced by the Board of Assessors. Based on a slightly higher valuation, this rate is 94 cents less than last July's rate of $21.13, and is the lowest summer rate in 18 years, the assessors said.

Lansing—The State health and agricultural laboratories are preparing to move into a new home with better facilities for research. It is a new $150,000 three-story brick structure, built with PWA funds. The health department and agricultural laboratories will each spend $20,000 to move equipment and specimens. Moving day has been set for Aug. 1.

Durand—With passenger rates at two cents a mile instead of 3.6, the Durand ticket office of the Grand Trunk Railway reports that sales during the first week in June were sharply increased. Sales of tickets to points on the Grand Trunk lines increased 250 per cent, and to points on other lines 350 per cent over sales for the first week in June a year ago.

Lansing—Pennsylvania Airlines, which operate across Michigan on their Washington-Detroit-Milwaukee route, have installed new Boeing planes capable of attaining a speed of 182 miles an hour. The new ships are equipped with a specially designed flotation gear for the flights across Lake Michigan. This is in accord with rules prescribed by the Federal Bureau of Air Commerce.

Lansing—More than $26,504,974 received from the Federal Housing Administration's plan have been used in Michigan to help home-builders. The FHA does not furnish money directly but it insures banks and other financial institutions against losses up to 20 per cent of their housing and modernization loans. In Michigan the administration has insured 2,911 home mortgages totaling $12,613,630.

Lansing—Reporting results of a meeting of the educational committee of the State Safety Council, Dr. Eugene E. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction, announced that Michigan definitely is committed to a program of safety education through the schools. Mandatory instruction probably will begin the second semester of next year and will be a part of the program of all grades including those of the high schools.

Grand Rapids—Seen at the Inventors Congress here: A fearless onion slicer. Copper bathing suit. Shave eliminator, a cross between a football nose guard and gas mask. Ash tray that clamps on your wrist. Detachable pants pockets. However, of all the hundreds of inventions, only a few were in the "gadget" class. Others ranged from burial vaults and airplane landing gear to fancy curtain rods and better mousetraps.

Birmingham—The Birmingham Police Department will be linked with the Royal Oak police radio system under the terms of a contract approved by the Birmingham City Commission. Beginning July 1, three Birmingham police scout cars will be equipped with receiving sets, and a fourth receiver will be installed in the police station. All transmitting will be done from Royal Oak. Cost of the equipment and service was estimated at $680 a year.

Lansing—Tourist traffic to the Upper Peninsula has begun in heavy volume much earlier than usual. May traffic records show a 25 per cent increase in automobiles, a 27 per cent increase in passengers and a 26 per cent increase in receipts over those of the corresponding period last year. To meet the demand, the State highway commissioner ordered the entire fleet of State-owned ferries at the Straits of Mackinac into operation June 20.

Lansing—William Haber, State Emergency Welfare Commissioner, reports that a new relief setup has been devised to make possible "a greater degree of participation by local officials." After July 1, the membership of the county relief commissions will be the chairman of the county board of supervisors, the chairman of the present county emergency relief commission and a third member to be recommended by the county board of supervisors.

Ann Arbor—More than $35,000 for scholarships and other purposes and one of the finest collections of rare shells in existence has been made available to the University of Michigan by the will of Bryant Walker, 79-year-old alumnus, who died recently. Three scholarship funds of $10,000 each are established in Mr. Walker's will. One is for "post-graduate women who excel in English literature"; one for post-graduate women studying medicine and one for post-graduate work in sociology.

Lansing—Michigan fishermen are hopeful that some new records for big fish will be established this year. The world's records for game fish native to Michigan waters, taken on light tackle, include a 14-pound small mouthed black bass; a 22-pound, four-ounce large mouthed black bass; 58-pound, four-ounce muskellunge; a four-pound yellow perch; a 45-pound, 12-ounce great northern pike, an 18-pound walleye; a 14-pound, eight-ounce brook trout; a 30-pound, three-ounce brown trout; a 48-pound lake trout and a 26-pound rainbow trout.

Uncle Phil Says:

Work First, Then Play

Play is an important part in the program of life, but work must be done before we can afford to play. You never can tell. Reform sometimes gets no farther than stirring up the mud.

It isn't necessary to be forward to make progress.

Somehow or other it seems so much easier to profit by the mistakes of others than by our own.

Since there are so many mistakes to make, what's the use of making the same one twice?

Reliability First

The worst thing that can happen to a man is to lose his reputation for reliability. Nothing can square him.

Indiscretion causes about as much mortification as sin.

It is not a few faint wishes, but a lifelong struggle, that makes us valiant.

Most men who complain that the world does not understand them ought to be glad of it.

He's a Philosopher

What is a confirmed bachelor? A "confirmed" bachelor is one who has quit kicking about his food, his company, his shoes and his amusements.

If a man is right he doesn't have to get mad about it.

Cast your bread upon the water. It certainly has a softening influence.

NEW KITCHEN STOVE MAKES ITS OWN GAS

Housewives Marvel at Coleman Range That Lights Instantly Like City Gas—Cooks a Meal with 2c Worth of Fuel

A new kitchen range that offers every cooking convenience of the finest city gas range is now available to housewives, wherever they live.

W. C. Coleman, pioneer inventor of gas-pressure appliances, brings to a lifetime of inventive genius his crowning achievement in this amazing new Coleman Safety Range. This new stove makes its own gas from ordinary, lead-free gasoline. A patented method of carburization converts liquid fuel into gas, much the same as in present day automobile engines. The Coleman Range lights instantly, like city gas. Its fuel-saving Band-A-Burners, another of Mr. Coleman's outstanding developments, produce a clean, clear-blue flame, so hot that a low flame does all ordinary cooking. Tests show an average family meal for five takes about 2c worth of fuel. Coleman Ranges are finished in gleaming porcelain enamel. Their pleasing colors combine outstanding beauty with unequalled performance.

Readers of this paper wishing full information about these wonderful new Coleman Ranges will receive beautifully illustrated literature and a valuable stove check chart by simply addressing a postcard to Mr. W. C. Coleman, Dept. WU-236, Wichita, Kansas.—Adv.

Blemishes Made Her Old Looking

Face Clear Again with Cuticura Soap and Ointment

Here is a letter every skin sufferer should read. Its message is vital. "There were blemishes on my face, of external origin, and they made me look old and haggard. They were red, hard and large. They would hurt, and when I scratched them the skin would become irritated, and I would lie awake at night and start digging at my face.

"But after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one tin of Cuticura Ointment my face was cleared again." (Signed) Mrs. L. Wheeler, 2nd St., Florence, Pa., June 15, 1935.

Physicians can understand such letters. The Cuticura formulas have proved their effectiveness for over half a century. Remember, Cuticura Soap and Ointment are also for pimples, rashes, ringworm, itching of the scalp, and other externally caused skin blemishes. All druggists. Soap 25c. Ointment 25c.—Adv.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

Do you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination, backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unwell and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permeates every waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

Joe Loree of Marion sold a clip of wool weighing 327.6 pounds to S. B. Lockwood for 26 1/2 cents a lb. Alvah Dibble, the youth acquitted of murder in the shivaree shooting case near Howell has gone to Washington territory.

J. T. Eamen has a 13-months old heifer which gave birth to a calf last week.

J. T. Eamen has bought and shipped 31,000 pounds of wool to Boston this spring.

Prof. Wm. Sprout claims he picked two bushels of strawberries last week from one-sixteenth acre of land.

The pioneers of Burr Oak Plains will do honor to their venerable matron and neighbor on July 4, Mrs. Harriet Grievie of Woods Corners, Unadilla. There will be a picnic and social visit combined.

A stock yard has been built at Anderson. Jim Flick will engage in the drover business there.

Born to Erwin Ball and wife of Hamburg last week, a son.

Ned Winans has returned from the M. M. A. at Orchard Lake. He expects to go to West Point.

About 70 relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Bennett gathered at the home of the latter last evening and gave them a joyous surprise, it being the 25th anniversary of their marriage. After the company was all assembled Rev. F. M. Coddington made some very fitting remarks concerning the occasion, which was followed by remarks and the re-marriage ceremony by Rev. H. Marshall (and the kissing of the bride by Dr. Haze).

The Doctor here explained that he had expected to perform the ceremony, but the minister got in ahead of him. He then, in behalf of the company, presented Mr. and Mrs. Bennett with a few tokens of esteem, which consisted of the following: a silver rocking chair, silver cake basket, set silver teaspoons, silver mounted pickle castor, granite coffee pot and tea pot, two silver napkin rings, silver butter knife, oil lamp, glass cake stand and napkins, 1 doz. napkins, china bread and milk set, and a mammoth fried-cake for set.

Mrs. Bennett spoke her thanks in a few feeling words, and Mr. Bennett also spoke his piece—as far as netted allowed him. Jokes and congratulations followed, and the inner way was well provided for in the man of edibles and ice-cream, and many of the guests of the night were the small hours of the night were reached, despite the stormy weather without. It was a merry time, and without.

We think the thus honored couple will always cherish with fond remembrance their 25th anniversary. The success of the affair is due to Della and Nellie, the instigators of the celebration, and the many friends who assisted them to carry it out in such fine style.

The Livingston Republican has issued a Fourth of July edition which is a novel of wonderful writings. Among other things is a list of Livingston handsome men, purported to be the opinions of various females of the county. We blush and smile at such fine style.

I have no fault to find with the "sporty" kind of handsomeness that W. S. Livermore represents. As a Unadillian, he has my approval.

LADY R.
J. L. Newkirk, the Pinckney editor, captures the plum from my standard of judgement, but, Oh, dear! he's a married masculine.

Frank L. Brown is not what every woman calls handsome, but then I am not like other women in some respects. I am very fond of these slim, sly, slick and stirring fellows. He is a credit to Pinckney's business fraternity.

ETHEL
What's the use of talking about a matter so evidently one-sided, when all who know him agree that Jas. VanHorn, the popular and pleasant Hamburger, is the best looking of them all.

I am a Unadilla woman through and through and will not desert home-talent when we have such a soldier, inspiring beautiful man as Halsted Gregory to vote for.

MINNIE.

"ONCE A THIEF, ALWAYS A THIEF"

An article in The American Weekly, with next Sunday's Detroit Times, describes how Canada's most notorious gunman pretended he had reformed, was let out of prison, was petted as a hero, and was offered well-paid jobs—but he was shot to death in a masked holdup when he killed a policeman.

CIVIL SERVICE MERIT SYSTEM ESTABLISHED FOR STATE & CO. EMERGENCY RELIEF COM.

The State Emergency Welfare Relief Commission announces that effective July 1st, 1936, Civil Service procedure is to govern the employment of State and County Relief Commission employees.

Present employees will be required to pass a qualifying examination which will be given shortly. The results will be used to make necessary staff reductions.

New appointments in the counties will be made by the County Relief Administrators, with the approval of the County Relief Commissions, from lists of eligible candidates who have been approved by the Personnel Department on a merit basis. These lists will be made up of successful applicants who pass a competitive examination. The examinations will be based on a weighted basis, giving credit for education, experience, personality and ability to pass a test. The details of these examinations are now being worked out by a Committee made up of Civil Service experts. Appointees will be required to serve a 90-day probationary period. Preference will be given to the employment of local persons. In the absence of available eligible candidates on the lists, persons who have not qualified may be given temporary appointment for a period not to exceed 60 days, and such appointment will not be renewable.

An employee may be laid off at any time if changes in the program or limitation of funds so warrant. In such case, the employee's name shall be returned to the eligible lists.

An employee may be separated from the service at any time for cause. Dismissed employees may request an investigation and secure a hearing. Such investigation will be made by the Field Representative of the State Relief Commission for the Personnel Department. After consideration of all facts, the findings will be submitted to the State or County Relief Commissions with recommendations.

County Commissions and Administrators will be asked to co-operate in the conduct of employee training programs to the end that the quality of service rendered may be continually improved. The persons so employed will be rated from time to time by means of service ratings by the Personnel Department. These will be used to determine salary changes, promotions, staff reductions and dismissals.

No applicant, eligible candidate, or employee shall in any way be discriminated against when an appointment, advancement, promotion, staff reduction, demotion or dismissal is to be made because of political or religious convictions or belief.

No employee shall engage in any political activity whatsoever, other than to express his views on local state or national matters of general public concern as a citizen, and to public concern as a citizen. Emphasis his vote in any election. Employees who are candidates for public office or hold public office or take an active part in political campaigns must resign. Proof of political activity shall be considered cause for dismissal.

Allie Bentley, mail carrier, accompanied South Lyon Lodge, F. & A. M. to Northville, Monday night and helped confer three third degrees.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Read and son, Howard, attended the commencement exercises of the University of Michigan, Saturday. Their son, Russell was one of the graduates.

SAFE BULL PENS
SAVE BULL'S LIFE the college.

"Save the good bull and yourself" is the admonition of the dairy extension department at Michigan State College in their warning to dairymen in the state that they are wise in being cautious in handling a mature bull but that a bull should be butchered into safe and efficient pens at low cost and for good results.

Good food is a must for the bull. A dairy man may be throwing away several hundred dollars when he butchers a young bull, says A. C. Baltzer, extension dairymen at the college.

"AUTOMATIC"

but not as automatic as

ELECTRIC

HOT WATER!

Your electric refrigerator does its work quietly and efficiently, without attention—save for an occasional defrosting. It is "automatic" ... but not as automatic as a new electric service for the home: ELECTRIC HOT WATER. Here is the last word in carefree, trouble-free water heating—and it is completely automatic. Once it is installed, you need not even press a button to enjoy constant hot water. You can forget about water heating problems permanently, assured that you will always have hot water when you want it. An electric water heater requires no attention whatever, and ends forever the annoyance of waiting for water to get hot, the bother of running up and down stairs to light a manually operated heater, and the inconvenience and delay caused by having only lukewarm water in the pipes.

Once you have enjoyed the luxury of this automatic hot water service, you will wonder how you ever did without it. Electric water heating is one of the finest services that electricity brings to your household. Stop in at any Detroit Edison office for complete information today!

CO. FARM AGENT'S LETTER

Canker Worms on Elm Trees

Our elms are in danger of becoming practically defoliated. In many cases the insect has carried its work to considerable extent. People that have elm trees as ornamentals should apply a spray to control these insects as a tree that is defoliated at this time of the year does not have the opportunity to store up the proper amount of food materials to carry it through the winter and give it a vigorous start the following spring. These insects are known as canker worms. It is rather difficult to find these insects. However by the appearance of the trees we are sure that they are present.

To control these insects we recommend from 3 lbs. to 5 lbs. of arsenic of lead, 3 quarts of summer oil in 100 gallons of water. These trees should be sprayed thoroughly.

Peaches

During the past week a very disastrous condition has been reported by one of the peach growers of the county. His entire orchard has become infested with a beetle known as the rose chaffer. These beetles do not effect the foliage but rather confine their efforts to demolishing the fruit. In some cases 10 to 15 of these insects will be eating on a single peach. At the first sign of this insect the grower should apply a spray to curb their activities. Professor Hutson from the Entomology Department of the Michigan State College recommends the following spray: 5 lbs. derris, 1/2 gallon of liquid soap, 100 gallons of water.

Another insect that will cause a great amount of damage to the current peach crop unless the fruit is covered with some arsenical in the curculio. You will notice little bits of gum exuding from the skin of the peach which shows the presence of this insect.

Last, but not least, is the damage that is being done by the lesser peach borer. This insect may be controlled by an application of parathion, benzene and cotton seed oil, mixed at the rate of 1 lb. to 2 quarts of cotton seed oil. The grower may determine the presence of the borer by the gummy exudate on the bark. This material may be applied with a paint brush to control the lesser peach borer.

Potato Beetle

There are many compounds that can be used for spraying or dusting potatoes to control the Colorado potato beetle. A good efficient mixture for the control of this insect and also the early and late blight may be obtained by using 20 lbs. of lime, 6 lbs. of calcium arsenic and 5 lbs. of monohydrated copper sulphate. This should be enough material to cover one acre. Use this material as a dust.

Egg Production

Owners of the 10 highest individual layers in the 14th annual Michigan egg laying contest are wondering whose prize hens are going to be first to take vacations, if any. The leading individual, hen No. 359 of the St. Paul Hatchery, St. Paul, has been setting the pace during the first eight months with a laying percentage of 88.4, while the tenth highest has a laying percentage of 83.8. The top hens following the St. Paul cackler are from poultry plants at Lowell, Zealand and Romeo, Mich. Corvallis, Ore., Maysville, Ky., and Westmoreland Depot, N. H. The contest will end October 23 after 51 weeks of competition.

To date, says Professor C. G. Card of the poultry husbandry department at Michigan State College, East Lansing, where the contest is being held, a slight decrease in mortality in recent weeks has been shown. Deaths during the contest have totaled 129, a 15.7 per cent mortality. Autopsy reports indicate individual troubles, but no contagious diseases, thus pointing to causes that originated in the hens, flocks from which the contestants were selected and showing the necessity of strict sanitation in poultry raising.

Pens Save Bulls, Life
A good bull and yourself!
The Michigan State College has a fine collection of the dairy extension department at Michigan State College in their warning to dairymen in the state that they are wise in being cautious in handling a mature bull that it is foolish to butcher a valuable animal when personal safety can be assured at low cost.

Good herd sires are scarce and are much too valuable to be sold for beef. A dairy farmer may be throwing away several hundred dollars when he butchers a young bull.

By constructing a bull barn or a box stall which opens into an exercising lot to which a breeding chute is attached, the most dangerous bull can be managed with perfect safety and can be kept until he is proved.

Costs of construction may be minimized to a small sum for materials. Directions for a lumber order and construction are included in extension bulletin No. 32 which may be obtained at the County Extension Office.

4-H MILK TOUR

Through the courtesy of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association, a trip has been made available for some of the 4-H Club members that are interested in dairy production. The purpose of this trip is to familiarize the boys with the channels through which milk passes in the marketing process.

It is the plan to have the 4-H Club members meet at the office of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association on the afternoon of June 25th. From this time on they will be the guests of the Association. After supper the boys will be taken to the various milk distributing plants where they will be given an opportunity to watch the handling of milk and a chance to go out on the routes. They will be back from these routes some time between 9:00 and 12:00 A. M. on Friday the 26th.

The following boys are to represent Livingston County at this affair: Stanley Frederickson, Raymond Schrepper, Kendall Hoisington, Richard Lannen, DeWitt Steinacker, Ronald Maxwell and Kern Steinacker.

Weed Control

During the past few weeks many people have made inquiries as to the control of small areas of quack grass and other weeds. In a recent publication from the College, quite a lengthy discussion is given over to this type of work. Some of the control methods that are listed are: double plowing, summer fallow, summer plowing, quack grass cultivators and the eradication by chemicals.

Probably in most cases where small areas of quack grass are prevalent the chemical control method would be the most effective. However, the cost of this material would prohibit the use of it on large areas.

Two pounds of Atlacide or one pound of sodium chlorate is dissolved in one gallon of water and sprayed on one square rod of area. Quack grass should receive three or more applications, about 30 days apart. One application usually is not effective. The application should be repeated when the quack grass has made new top growth and should be repeated until the quack grass fails to produce a new top growth.

Sodium chlorate should be applied with a sprayer. A three-gallon hand pressure sprayer is well-suited for this purpose. Atlacide may be applied as a dust or as a spray. Less material is required and a more even application may be obtained by spraying. Spray cans should be washed immediately after being used. If this precaution is followed, chlorates will not be injurious to sprayers. Wood containers should not be used for storing chlorates in solution. The wood will absorb the chlorate and may cause trouble later.

The Springport Signal Says

We never heard that it was a necessary qualification of a state or national delegate that they first win prizes at a hog calling contest, but from some of the voices that come out of the loud speakers, a lot of them are certainly well qualified.

THE SOUTH BOOMS

W. H. Euler, who spent the winter in Alabama, handed us two clippings from the Onlooker, published at Foley in Baldwin county, Alabama. It states that the farmers of that county expect to receive a total of $2,500,000 for their spring crops. The potato crop brought $1,750,000 the cucumber crop $88,000 and green corn, $202,500. In addition, watermelons, cantelopes, sweet potatoes, cabbage, etc. will be worth $42,540,000. Watermelon shipments started last week, eight boatloads being sent to New Orleans and Mobile.

The other article relates to melon culture. It states that vines grow so fast they have to be moved to prevent them wearing the melons out by rubbing on them. Melons are usually grown on sandy soil from which the timber has been removed and which is good for little else. Alabama melons have thin rinds and are usually shipped by boat as they do not stand truck or car travel well. Fishing schooners do most of the hauling. New Orleans is the best market and half a dozen schooners have been known to sell out in a single day.

FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINIS.

The Federal Housing Administration has insured notes for the modernization of homes and small business places through April 30, 1936 for Livingston County in the sum of $21,839.29, according to a report issued by Abner E. Larned, The State Director of The National Emergency Council for Michigan.

Mortgages accepted for insurance on existing homes and new homes through March 31, 1936 for Livingston County total $4,400.00.

The entire State total of modernization notes insured under Title 1 of the Federal Housing Act is $13,891,344.04 and mortgages accepted for insurance under Title 2 is $10,425,450.00, Mr. Larned states.

BUYING CLOTHES REQUIRES ENERGY

Specialist at Michigan State College Tells Women Not to Shop When Tired, Indorses Window Shopping

First rule in shopping, for women, if the search is for something to wear, is to shop when sufficient time is available and when the shopper is not exhausted by trivial errands and all the purchases that frequently are put on a Saturday shopping list.

Such is the suggestion offered by Miss Eleanor Cramer, extension specialist in clothing at Michigan State College. When one is tired and exhausted, says Miss Cramer, it is impossible to be enthusiastic, all the patterns look alike and the creative spirit is too dull to recognize patterns and designs that will be suitable as well as clever.

"Wait to purchase your pattern until you have shopped around to see whether you can find the materials," suggests Miss Cramer. "Perhaps the pattern depends upon a long tassel or a certain type of button to make it complete. If they are not available, better select another pattern."

"It requires either a very artistic imagination or a great deal of experience to be able to visualize how a certain fabric and a selected design are going to look. If the shopper will be frank and admit lack of experience, considerable help can be obtained from designers, experienced sales clerks and from those ridiculed sources provided in 'window shopping'."

HALF PRICE PLATES GO ON SALE SOON

On Wednesday, July first, automobile license plates for 1936 will go on sale at half price, Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State has announced. The plates will be available from that date on, at the Department of State and all branch offices throughout Michigan.

Cars that have been on the highways with 1935 plates have been equipped with 1936 half-year permits or "stickers." Cars placed in operation on the highways prior to July first must be equipped either with half-year permits or with 1936 plates purchased at full price, it is pointed out.

Owners of cars which have been equipped with half price "stickers" have had at all times the privilege of purchasing 1936 plates upon payment of the balance of the 1936 license plate tax. But in any event, all operated motor vehicles must be

Great Lakes Exposition Opens Saturday, June 27

WITH bands playing, thousands of gay-colored pennants whipping in the lake breeze, and with massive exhibit structures shimmering in the sunlight, countless numbers of eager spectators will pass through the towering pylon-entrances of the Great Lakes Exposition when that gigantic 150-acre fair opens its doors on Cleveland's lakefront next Saturday.

Opening day activities at the fair, which celebrates Cleveland's hundredth birthday and one hundred years of progress in the vast trade empire of the Great Lakes area, will be given over to a panorama of colorful festivities and special events. Radio broadcasts in the afternoon and evening will bring to the nation the news of the opening.

At night, the huge Exposition will be a gorgeous fantasy of illumination. These lights will be turned on by the "man in the moon." As the rays of the moon flash on the "eye" of a powerful telescope, an impact of light will strike a photo-electric cell, which in turn transmits the impulse to switches controlling the lights.

For visitors to the Great Lakes Exposition there is a vast variety of free entertainment. From the huge orchestral shell, directly north of the fair's main entrance on St. Clair avenue, will come the melodious strains of concert music played by the Great Lakes Symphonic orchestra of 100 pieces.

Opposite the Plaza and inside Cleveland's beautiful Public Hall, scene of the recent Republican National Convention, will be the Exposition's Radioland. Here, in the largest broadcasting studio in the world, visitors will see and hear the greatest stars and acts on the radio networks.

the lake, and in the two main exhibit buildings, the Automotive Building and the Hall of Progress, visitors will find all types of free attractions, ranging all the way from sports to interesting, educational exhibits.

Following the winding roads that lead throughout the entire Exposition area, spectators will see the marvelous Court of Presidents, its sides lined with golden eagles dedicated to the presidents born in, or elected from, the Great Lakes states.

There is the Parade of the Years, a stirring pictorial drama of transportation, the beauty of the quarter-million dollar Florida State exhibit, the lure and excitement of the 40-acre amusement zone crammed and jammed with arcades, side shows, rides and marine concessions.

Further eastward and terminating the colorful Exposition Midway is the Streets of the World, a complete international settlement of thirty-six separate villages housing more than 165 buildings.

SYNOPSIS

Jeb Braddon, young and fantastically successful broker of Chicago, is infatuated with Agnes Gleneth, beautiful daughter of a retired manufacturer. Rodney, a doctor, in love with Agnes, visits his brother, Jeb. Rod plans work at Rochester. Jeb suggests that he make a try for Agnes before leaving. In Rod there is a deeper, obstinate decency than in Jeb. Agnes believes to be happy, a girl must bind herself entirely to a man and have adorable babies. Rod visits Agnes and tells her of his great desire, but realizes it can never be fulfilled. Agnes' mother is attempting to regain her husband's love. Agnes has disturbing doubts as to what attracts her father in New York. Jeb tells Agnes he is going to marry her, and together they view an apartment in Chicago. Jeb asks Agnes to set an early date, but she tells him she cannot marry him. When the agent, Mr. Colver, offers to show them a furnished apartment, Jeb asks Agnes to see it alone, saying he must return to his office. Agnes consents and Jeb leaves. A radio is blaring terrifically from one of the apartments. Colver raps upon the door, which is opened by a scantily clad girl, who draws Agnes into the room. Colver finds her husband, Charles Lorrie, fatally shot. He calls the police. Myrtle Lorrie asks Agnes to phone Cathal O'Mara, a lawyer, to come at once. Agnes does.

CHAPTER II

"O'Mara's got to get me out of this! He can get me out," Mrs. Lorrie assured herself, "if he wants to! . . . You stand by me! I'm Myrtle—Myrtle Stiver Lorrie. You call me Myrtle! You're Agnes."

Agnes did not answer; she continued to step back away from the hands seeking her. She stared at the hands, white and soft and sensuous, and with scarlet stain on the nails; and she thought of one of those hands—the right one—holding a pistol, and that weak forefinger, with its scarlet stain, pulling the trigger once, twice—three times!

Some one rapped a demand for admittance upon the door; and Colver opened it.

Three men had come, none of them in uniform; but they were the police. They stepped in, instantly the door was opened.

The nearest man was the shortest of the three, but he was tall enough; he was straight and alert-looking and wiry. He was gray-eyed, and there was gray in his hair. Agnes had no need to be told that he was in command of the other two men, both bigger than he, and younger.

The last man in had quickly closed the door behind him, and he posted himself with his back against it; the other man advanced with his leader. Agnes found that she had retreated, as they came in, or she had let Myrtle Lorrie pull her back to the center of the room; for she was standing there with Myrtle Lorrie's arms clasped tight about her.

These police in ordinary clothes were looking at her—at her and Myrtle Lorrie.

"You live here?" the gray man said to Myrtle. "You're the wife?"

But the wife did not answer; so Agnes did. "Yes, she lives here; she's the wife."

"Who are you?"

"I don't live here," said Agnes. "I just happened to come in."

"You mean you're a friend of hers?"

"No."

"How did you happen to come in?"

"I'll tell you," Colver now hurried to help her. "I'll tell you, Lieutenant Dolega. I was showing her, and the gentleman with her, some apartments. I had them upstairs; then the gentleman had to go; but she stayed. We heard the radio going in here; we knocked—"

Colver's quick, incoherent words ran over each other, and Lieutenant Dolega let him go on. At the end, he asked one question:

"Where is it?"

"Down there," said Colver; and Lieutenant Dolega and the other man moved away.

The man at the door had a notebook in his hand, and his pencil kept writing.

Lieutenant Dolega and his man, who had accompanied him, were walking very slowly. Would they never get there? Agnes pulsed with impatience. The calmness, the deliberation of these police in ordinary clothes, tantalized her. She watched them slowly proceed, studying the walls and the floor of the passage; when they were out of sight, she listened for some outcry such as Mr. Colver had made. But there was none.

They must have reached "it"—this girl's husband, shot and dead upon the floor. They had stopped and were stooping, probably, to see exactly what Myrtle Lorrie's soft, sensuous hand had done. How many times had she shot her husband?

That petty, particular curiosity strangely plagued Agnes. How long they had been married. How long had it been?

Agnes had to ask it, though she spoke in that awful silence. "How long were you married?" It came out in a whisper.

"Two years," Myrtle Lorrie whispered back. "My God, two years!"

From the bedroom there came no word nor voice of any sort—merely a succession of slight, rasping, mechanical sounds.

Myrtle Lorrie could stand this no longer. She dragged herself up until she supported herself on her own feet; and she screamed. She convulsed her arms tighter, but her scream gave Agnes strength to throw her off. Agnes was free, and she staggered off from her, shivering.

"O. K., Ulrich?" calmly inquired a voice from the bedroom.

"Go right ahead," replied Ulrich; but footsteps, which proved to be Dolega's, approached. At sight of him, Myrtle Lorrie stumbled backward and dropped into her big soft chair.

Some change glowed in Lieutenant Dolega's eyes; and his lips, when he spoke, moved less than before. His eyes noticed none of the others; from the moment he reappeared, he centered on Myrtle.

"Well," he said, "I saw what's done. Who did it?"

"I don't know! I don't know!"

"Were you here?"

"No; I came in! I tell you I came in!" she was shrieking now. "I came in; and there he was! Oh, my God, there he was!"

"So what did you do?"

"What?"

"What did you do! You took off your clothes and turned on the radio and sat here," Dolega supplied. He spoke, almost casually, to Colver.

"The pistol back there; did you pick it up?"

"Yes, sir; I saw there were four chambers discharged; then I put it back right where it was."

Dolega turned to Agnes. "Now I need your name."

Agnes gave it. If it meant anything to him, he did not betray the fact.

"Where do you live?"

She told him.

"Who was you with when you came?"

Agnes shook her head; she would not tell. She was in this, but she would keep Jeb out. She was in no condition to appreciate that this was impossible.

There was a noise in the outer hall. Some one knocked in a sharp, commanding manner.

"Hello, Ulrich," Agnes heard in the silence which ensued when the door was opened.

Ulrich repeated a name which Agnes did not catch; and he admitted, with some deference, a man of medium height, self-confident and half bald. He was altogether different from the first three. He was whiter and softer of flesh and wore the marks of education along with his authority.

"Mr. Nordell," Dolega called him, and said to her: "Mr. Nordell is an assistant state's attorney."

"Miss Gleneth—this is Miss Agnes Gleneth. Mr. Nordell—is a daughter of Robert C. Gleneth. She says, and he says—Dolega jerked toward Colver—"that he was showing her a flat; and they just happened to come in here. It looks as if it might be so."

"It is so," said Agnes; but fear for herself had reached her at last.

"Ready to look at it?" Dolega asked the attorney.

Agnes' eyes followed Dolega's gray head and Mr. Nordell's round, bald spot at the crown of his head as they went to the bedroom. It was at this moment that she realized that they were not going to that room merely to see what was there, but that their purpose was to collect proof that Myrtle Lorrie had killed her husband, so that they could have her killed—have her life, in her turn, taken from her.

Her warm, soft, sensuous life that she loved so! Agnes gasped at her, huddled in her big chair, her sensations sweeping over her; she was frightened as she had not been before.

"When's he goin' to come?" she gasped at Agnes. "Oh, God, when's he goin' to come?"

"Who?" said Agnes. "Bert?" For suddenly she remembered Myrtle's cry into the phone: "Oh, God, Bert!" Who was Bert, and what was he to her?

Myrtle pined from one of the hot flashes that swept her, and then went pale. "Shut up about Bert!" she gasped, barely audibly. "Where's that damn lawyer of mine?"

So it was not horror that swept her—horror at what she had done. That must have been it, but chiefly it was fear, and her longing for life, for her own sensations to continue in her soft, warm body, no matter what she had done.

There was a new knock at the door. It was not loud; the man was not striking with his knuckles. He tapped with a finger-tip which said: "Take your choice; admit me or take the consequences."

Ulrich opened the door.

"I'm coming in, Ulrich."

Ulrich let him in; and his presence was like an alarm, calling Nordell and Dolega from the bedroom; and the fourth man (some one called him Jensen) followed them. So the three police in plain-clothes and the assistant state's attorney confronted the young man who had come in.

He was tall but not quite so tall as Jeb—and Rod. Why did Agnes' mind suddenly flee to them? Her thought caught them only in a flash of comparison; for this man was of their age, with some quality like Rod—or like Jeb; which was it? She was confused, responding to the new emotional tension.

The feeling of conflict filled the room. These men were antagonists—one against the four.

The one by himself stood easily, but on watch. He was not on guard; for to feel one on guard, you feel him thrown back into an attitude of defense. It was the four who confronted him who, you felt, were on guard; he was alone, but it was he who would, at the opportunity, strike.

Agnes did not begin to comprehend how her presence influenced everything that followed. It was her intrusion and the consequent involvement of Agnes Gleneth in the murder of Charles Lorrie that the case would turn upon. O'Mara had had nearly twenty minutes in which to appreciate that fact; and he had required not one—he had felt it immediately.

"You're quick on a case, O'Mara," incautiously Nordell cut at him. "If you were a surgeon, they couldn't call you an ambulance chaser. You leave it behind. Did you start from your office after or before the shooting?"

The tension in Agnes' feeling tightened. So these men not only were antagonists, but they had fought before, bitterly and without forgiveness on one side, at least.

She took sides; she could not help it. The man whom she had asked to come stood before the four and a little away from the wall. Whatever else he was, he was incompatible to any of them; his was the mold of another order of man. It had shaped his head so that your eyes lingered looking at him—lingered on the line of his good lips that he kept shut lest he speak too soon, on the cleft of his clean-cut chin, on his fine broad brow and his bold black hair. He held his head with a little lift that you liked.

He stepped unhindered past the police and to the center of the room, where Myrtle Lorrie clung to her refuge in her soft chair.

"I'm O'Mara," he said to her. "Did you ask for me?"

She caught his hand, but he disengaged it.

"Did you ask Miss Gleneth to send for me?"

"Yes. For God's sake, save me, save me!"

"I must find how things are. Meanwhile, you—" He spoke in a lower tone, swiftly, his voice continuing in definite, curt admonitions. But now Nordell and Dolega were beside him; there was a clash of words from which emerged a sudden truce.

"I'm taking you out of this," Martin O'Mara said to Agnes Gleneth, looking down at her. "Not all the way out, I'm sorry to say; we'll be long before being through with you. But we've no need to keep you here, distressing you, when so many more must soon be coming."

"Many more?" repeated Agnes, looking up at him.

"Faith," he said, "faith, they've barely begun to come."

How gentle he could be, this best damn lawyer in town who could face off four men and lay down his own conditions of truce with them!

The very way of his words was altered, when he spoke to her. No accent crept in; he spoke as before, but he let you feel, through the phrases that came to him unbidden, his closeness and accustom to plain people of ready emotion and sentiment, and simple speaking.

"One thing we'll be needing," he added. "It's him who came with you. You've not named him, I hear; but it's got to be. Who was he?"

"Mr. Braddon," said Agnes. "Jeb—Judson E. Braddon."

"You and he came here, I took it, not knowing these people."

"No."

"You came to look over these apartments, because you were marrying."

"Yes," said Agnes, "because we were marrying."

And this brought her back to that; she had come here considering the idea of marrying Jeb; that meant becoming his wife in rooms like these upstairs. . . . She could never, never move into such rooms now.

She looked at the girl in the big soft chair. "How could she do it? He whispered her horror to O'Mara. He shook his head. "When such a thing is done, you don't do it. No; you never do it," he said. "It's your dragons you have in you that drive you to it."

"Your dragons? What do you mean?"

"You know naught of them? . . . God has been good to you."

Smart Silks for Spectator Sports

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF THERE is one place more than another that daytime fashions show off in a panorama of surpassing style interest, it is at the races. The influence of the French races and Ascot was very evident at the openings of our own American tracks this season. Although there were no trailing skirts there were the reminiscent cartwheels, the tiny elaborate "doll" hats which smart Parisiennes love so well with flower, vegetable and bird trimming—millinery fantasies such as are almost amusing in their eccentricities, yet quite worthwhile in that they are adding such zest to the current mode. Silk taffeta frocks and suits were numerous and set the pace for an interesting style movement. Skirts 14 inches from the ground, many of short-sleeved dresses and jackets with universally square shoulders were likewise interpretative of new fashion trends.

Typical of the choices of many well-dressed women was the very short black silk crepe suit with a fitted jacket that is worn with an enormous black feather-trimmed cartwheel hat. A huge white kid water lily at the shoulder gave a dramatic touch. Much is being said in fashion circles in regard to water lily colorings and water lily boutonnieres and corsages. As to suits of this type the fashion parade includes them in dark silk failles, in faconne silk taffeta, and of course, the gay printed silk suits are that ubiquitous they are taken for granted.

As to the newer silk prints there is a marked tendency to select tiny neat patternings for daytime wear. Made up in trimly tailored frocks with short sleeves and matching jackets, you have the costume-ideal for going about town and for the practical hours of general activities. Now that summer is nearing the trend toward cool silk sheers, both plain and print are obvious. To glorify these intriguing prints one must be accessory-minded to a high degree, which is not at all difficult since the shops are filled to overflowing with the most fascinating neckwear, gloves, bouquets, belts, footwear and handbags that genius might devise.

Some of the smartest women are endorsing tunics over slim skirt foundations. See the tunic model to the left in the picture. Schiaparelli's newingham silk taffeta is the fabric chosen for this tunic. It is worn with a red leather belt over a black silk crepe skirt.

Seen at the Belmont race track was the jacket dress centered in the illustration. It is styled of dotted silk crepe, white on gray (a very important color is gray this season). Fitted jacket, square shoulders with big sleeves, and a ruffled jabot on the dress are details that interpret high swank. The bag is white calf, the hat a black straw pillbox with red and chartreuse flowers. The contrast jacket is a pet project with fashion these days. Note to the right in the illustration the stunning model. Here a black sheer silk dress is topped by a short swaggy jacket of white silk crash embellished with coin dots in jockey colors—maroon and blue. The hat is of white silk crash with extreme eye-shading brim which is inspired by a jockey's cap.

WHITE LINEN SUIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The linen suit in natural or pure white is an important number on the style program for summer. The accent on suits has been most pronounced all spring and now enthusiasm for suits is continuing for summer—suits of linen particularly that are cool and comfortable as temperature rises. The classic white suit here pictured is of linen of superfine grade imported from Moygashel, Ireland. It is particularly smart for town wear when accompanied with dark accessories such as fashion decrees with white. Note the navy beret, the navy-striped silk shirt, the navy gloves and bag. These identical accessories carried out in Dubonnet red are stunning.

A Fox Bracelet

Fur bracelets are next. Fox takes the lead and either bands the elbow or encircles the lower arm just above the wrist.

CIRCULAR LINES FOR NEXT AUTUMN

While most women are concentrating now on the purchase of their summer wardrobe those who are designers of fashionable clothes are concerned about next fall and winter's styles. They are considering the creations shown in recent Paris collections and thinking up ideas to produce something new in the way of silhouettes for the autumn.

The first inkling of the trend which has leaked out of the workrooms concerns the width of hemlines. Circular lines are said to be so well liked that every one of us will be wearing skirts that whirl around us like ballet costumes before many months have gone.

Camisoles and Petticoats

Should Be in Vacation Bag

Every young woman's bag packed for vacation this summer will carry its supply of dainty camisoles and rustling petticoats. The favored ones are lace-trimmed. The camisoles are made with shoulder points front and back, and are edged with lace. Many have shoulder straps made of one row of insertion banded on each side with lace. Others are made of sturdy net with Val trimming.

As for petticoats, some are the old-fashioned fine muslin with eyelet embroidery; others are of pastel taffeta, or plaid, or flowered taffeta, with rows and rows of narrow Val lace ruffles.

Swankiest Tailored Suits

Are Boasting Lace Gilets

Many of the swankiest tailored suits boast lace gilets. They are dainty and soft and provide just the right background for a beautiful clip, brooch, or treasured strand of pearls. Some of the daintiest gilets have lace fronts and collars and net backs with elastic in the waistline. Others are backless; others are really all-over lace blouses with short sleeves. Alencon, yards of val, or net are the favored materials. If you visit the smart neckwear departments or lace yardage departments, you'll want a supply of gilets to provide variety for your stand-by suit.

Foreign Words and Phrases

Ad astra. (L.) To the stars (to exalted place or state).
A fortiori. (L.) By a stronger reason; all the more.
Cogito, ergo sum. (L.) I think, therefore I am.
Egalite. (F.) Equality.
In totidem verbis. (L.) In so many words.
Quien sabe? (Sp.) Who knows? That is, I do not know, or do not care to say.
Siste, viator. (L.) Stop, traveler.
Tiers etat. (F.) Third estate, the common people.
Veni, vide, vici. (L.) I came, I saw, I conquered.

Great Responsibility

Hard work and great responsibility are the best kind of insurance against sickness. When the mind is fully employed, there does not seem to be much chance for disease to get in its work, for a busy, full occupied mind is the best kind of safeguard against illness.—Marden.

PINCKNEY SOFT BALL GAMES

Clark and Singer Teams Win Swarthout Pitches a One Hit Game.

The Clark and Singer teams won last week in the local softball league. Swarthout, pitching for Clark, let the Dillon team down with one hit, winning the game 5 to 0. Stanley Dinkel was the losing pitcher. Singer won from Ledwidge, 8 to 4 in the second contest. Home runs were again abundant last week. Hookie Battle hit two off Dinkel, Monday, both being long smashes. The best Swarthout and Bill Lamb could do were triples. Lefty Reason, the other long distance hitter, did not break into the lineup last week.
