Danzig Crisis Worries

Nations of Europe

WAR-WORRIED Europe shifted its anxiety from the Italo-Ethiopian sanctions problem to the newer and baffling question of what to do about the Free City of Danzig now seeking to free itself from the bonds of the League of Nations.

The league disposed of the sanctions problem by voting to abolish them, thus to all practical intents and purposes removing Ethiopia from the family of sovereign states. Appearing personally before the league assembly, the refugee emperor, Haile Selassie, made a last moving bid for Ethiopia's freedom.

The "king of kings" denounced France and Great Britain without mentioning their names. To the generally expressed desire to reform the league, he said the weakness was not the league covenant itself, but a lack of international morality. The Negus' request for a loan of $50,000,000 to Ethiopia was voted down. Previously Haile had informed Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, that he would return to Ethiopia immediately to join his loyal tribesmen and fight for Ethiopia's independence.

With Mussolini given satisfaction, the Danzig situation brought into the foreground the figure of Adolf Hitler, chancellor of Nazi Germany. It was a Nazi follower of Hitler, Dr. Arthur Greiser, president of the Danzig senate, who demanded independence for the former German city now surrounded by Polish territory and who denounced the league and Sean Lester, league high commissioner for the port.

Observers were of the opinion that Greiser was acting under orders from Chancellor Hitler. In view of Germany's expansionist program and its rearmament, they feel that Danzig will be the next Nazi objective, now that the Rhineland is remilitarized. By the elimination of Commissioner Lester or by the curtailment of his authority over the international affairs of the city, it is believed the Nazi would be in a position to crush the opposition party and pave the way for annexation of Danzig by Germany. In the event of a Nazi putsch on Danzig, it was believed that Britain and France would co-operate in opposing it.

July 4th Celebrations

Cost 346 Lives in U. S.

A TOLL of 346 lives was exacted in the celebration of the Fourth of July throughout the United States.

Booming cannon crackers played a comparatively innocent part in the slaughter, for only 11 lives were lost in accidents due to fire-crackers.

But if the nation heeded warnings about the danger of fireworks, it forgot the menace of motor accidents, for 208 people in 36 states were killed as the result of accidents on streets and highways. Ninety persons were drowned in 36 states. Miscellaneous tragedies accounted for 37 additional fatalities in 15 states.

Not since 1931 has the celebration of America's patriotic holiday claimed so many victims. In that year the death total from accidents reached 483.

Roosevelt and Landon

Return to Their Desks

THE Presidential candidates of both the Democratic and the Republican parties returned to their desks in their respective capitals following absences.

President Roosevelt came back to Washington after a three-day pilgrimage to Virginia. Included on his program was the dedication of the Shenandoah National park, his Fourth of July address from the portico of Thomas Jefferson's home at Monticello and his visit to Williamsburg, capital of the Old Dominion from 1699 to 1779. In his address at Jefferson's home, the President called on the nation to rekindle the "sacred fire" of "true freedom" which had lighted the "golden age" of American history. He declared the present emergencies require the same leadership as that displayed by the founder of the Democratic party.

Gov. Alf M. Landon returned to Topeka, Kan., after a vacation in the Colorado mountains, for the reconvening of the state legislature and for the acceptance speech at the Republican notification ceremonies July 23. National significance was attached to the meeting of the Kansas legislature because of the fact that it would have to deal with old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and general social welfare legislation and that an amendment to the state constitution was in prospect. Discussions of the farm problem and conferences with Governor Landon's political advisers were on the program. The Republican standard bearer was not expected to return to Colorado until after the notification ceremonies.

In the meantime, great activity was apparent in opposing campaign headquarters.

President Roosevelt summoned Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley to Washington for a conference on the political campaign. It was expected that the question of Mr. Farley's retirement from the cabinet about which there has been considerable rumor lately, would be decided. The Democrats have established national headquarters at the Biltmore hotel in New York and it is from here Chairman Farley will direct the campaign.

John Hamilton, national chairman of the Republican party, opened national headquarters in Chicago. He addressed 2,800 banqueters at a dinner in his honor and declared that the reaction of voters in recent days has been disheartening to the Roosevelt administration. Since the Cleveland convention, he said, the Democrats had offered the Republicans the "sincere flattery of imitation."

Pope Pius Orders World

Censorship of Movies

A WORLD censorship on movies was ordered by Pope Pius, in an encyclical letter addressed directly to the bishops and archbishops of the Roman Catholic church in the United States.

The pope also ordered bishops throughout the world to obtain from their communicants annually renewable pledges "to abstain from witnessing bad films." The encyclical of his holiness was addressed to the American bishops because they originally took the lead in movie censorship. He invited bishops of the entire world to follow their example.

To carry out the plan of censorship, the pontiff directed that a permanent national movie reviewing office be established in each country. He urged the exchange of information between the various offices for making the censorship effective. He urged bishops to appeal to Catholics connected with motion picture productions to use their influence in accordance with their faith and ideals.

Labor Leaders Begin Drive for Steel's Unionization

WITH labor organizers spreading throughout the nation's steel mills in a drive to enroll 500,000 workers into one big union, the National Labor Relations Board reopened a fight in the courts to force steel companies to accept the National Labor Relations act as a means of keeping peace.

The board announced it had petitioned the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans in a new effort to enforce the act.

Meanwhile the full resources of the $5,000,000,000 steel industry were marshaled against the unionization drive. Observers pointed out that the situation was fraught with grave possibilities, of industrial warfare. Principal steel companies who have banded together in a militant effort to maintain the open shop warned employees not to be "misled" into affiliation with the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers Union, which forms the basis of organized labor's drive.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and head of the committee for industrial organization, in a radio address broadcast from Chicago entitled "Industrial Democracy in Steel," sought the support not only of union labor, but of the public generally in his crusade.

Breckinridge Long Resigns

as Ambassador to Italy

BRECKINRIDGE LONG, American ambassador to Italy, submitted his resignation to President Roosevelt because of illness. The diplomat declared that he hopes to recuperate his health during the summer and to take an active part in the Presidential campaign in the autumn.

Mr. Long's place will be taken by Undersecretary of State William Phillips. He will represent the United States government in Rome in an effort to solve Italo-American problems arising from Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia.

Mr. Phillips has had a distinguished career in the diplomatic service. He has held posts in Europe, the Far East and Canada and has three times been sub-secretary in the State department.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Big Rapids—A 22-ton grinder, the last of a series of six ordered for automobile work by Russia, was recently shipped to the Soviet by the Hanchett Swage Works of this community.

East Lansing—The Board of Agriculture plans to start construction this summer of two new dormitories at Michigan State College. The two buildings will cost $900,000, one to house 310 men students and the other 250 women.

Cass City—Twin colts, a roan gelding and a dark roan mare, born May 15 on the Claud Karr farm near here, have gained over 125 pounds each since birth. The pair are being watched with interest throughout the country since twin colts are a rarity.

Ann Arbor—Dr. William Haber, State emergency relief administrator and director of the NYA in Michigan, will become professor of economics at the University of Michigan in the fall. Dr. Frank Robbins, assistant to the president of the university, has announced.

Grand Rapids—The largest Federal white-collar project ever attempted here will get under way when more than 150 men begin a tax reassessment survey under the WPA. The cost will be $219,044 with $5,000 to be paid by the City. About 45,000 buildings will be examined.

Grand Rapids—Welfare families will raise much of their own food again this year. They are uniting to take care of 350 community gardens in addition to 1,150 gardens planted by individual families. The Kent Garden Club has donated 40,000 cabbage and tomato plants.

Lansing—A statewide report of traffic deaths over the Fourth of July holiday weekend revealed that 38 persons lost their lives by accident during the 48-hour period. This is alarming news to safety minded persons—Michigan having the largest toll among all of the states in the union.

Lansing—The National Reemployment Service in Michigan has thirteen district offices which serve Michigan's 83 counties. Major Howard Starret, state director, announced that up to July 1st, nearly 3,000 persons had been referred to jobs through the service, being placed either in private industry or relief projects.

Standish—Extensive tree planting operations calculated to furnish plenty of forage for deer during the coming winter have just been completed on the flats of the Molasses River, under a project sponsored by the Department of Conservation and carried out by enrollees of CCC Camp Molasses River. The seedling trees placed in this area, numbering approximately 34,000, included white ash, green ash, silver maple, hard maple and box elder.

Saginaw—A reduction of $1.43 on each $1,000 in Saginaw's tax rate for the coming year was determined when the City Council set the rate at $10.55 per thousand. Made up of 6.90 mills for operating costs and 3.75 mills for prior obligations, the rate combines with 5 mills for school operation, 1.77 mills for prior school obligations and 3.10 mills for County operation, to produce a total tax for the year of $20.42 against a rate of $21.85 for 1935-36.

Kalamazoo—The Wolf Lake Hatchery near here has received 100,000 more eggs of Montana grayling trout. They will be placed in rearing ponds soon after hatching, where they will be brought to fingerling size by a special feeding technique worked out at the hatchery. Michigan's stock of adult Montana grayling was destroyed last winter by herring gulls and merganser ducks. There is a stock of fingerling grayling, but not as many as desired.

Evans—George and Orville Glerum have maintained a 600-acre wild life sanctuary at Wright and Grovers Lake for the past five years and it will be continued for at least another five years. A grant was recently renewed by the State Conservation Department. The land surrounds a 120-acre lake with a 2-acre island, and is partly productive although left largely wild with virgin timber standing. One of the few pine stump fences left in Michigan is located here.

East Lansing—An expected increase in the Michigan State College enrollment to a new high record in the fall drew an appropriation of $30,260 from the State Board of Agriculture for enlargement of the faculty. The money will provide for 32 new members of the teaching staff, principally graduate assistants, and two, extra stenographers. Secretary John A. Hannah told the board he expected at least a 600 increase in student enrollment, which would bring the student body to about 4,600.

Lansing—Arrangements to provide WPA jobs at $100 a month for all the township supervisors in Michigan struck a snag in Washington. The WPA Co-ordinating Committee ruled that elected officials could not receive Federal pay. The project was to make a detailed land survey of the State. Each township supervisor, it was expected, would be employed for a month or more. The work was started a month ago and about 50 supervisors have been employed. Under the WPA ruling the surveys begun will be completed, but no new ones started.

Beach Togs Tell New Fabric Trends

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT IS not enough that beach outfits and active sports clothes be stylish and pleasing to the eye. It is not enough that they be merely practical and utilitarian. To qualify 100 per cent to the good your sun, sand and surf and your general outdoor play-around togs must be every whit as practical as they are chic and eye-appealing.

The cunning bathing and beach suit of gay print shown to the right in the picture is just that—thoroughly as practical as it is charming to look upon. Its claim to practicality is due to the fact that the sanforized-shrunk cotton of which it is made carries the promise of non-shrinking no matter how often it may happen to be water soaked. This very modern way of processing cottons and linens so that they cannot shrink insures your bathing wardrobe all season long, which, of course, means no-end satisfaction in the final analysis of clothes logic.

Practical from another point of view, too, is this charming beach and swim ensemble, in that it is one of the very new and good-looking halter bathing suits with wrap-around skirt to tie on when you go meandering down the beach as fair maidens are wont to do.

Another story of achievement in the way of combining the practical with the highly chic and attractive in sports clothes is told in the new weight-controlling ensemble that allows one to lounge about the house, play ping-pong and go about home duties while accomplishing the magic of shelving the extra poundage one longs to discard preparatory to getting one's self into shape for that svelte lithe appearance in one's bathing and beach suit. This miracle-working avoirdupois reducer is pictured in the foreground. A smart gym gob suit it is, made of an exceedingly good-looking crepe-texture rubber that keeps the pores of the body open and encourages a healthy perspiration. When that happens you can start making your swimming dates for to your glee and satisfaction the pounds will begin to roll off until normal weight is reached. These crepe-textured rubber gym gobs are styled in three comfortable pieces—slacks, shorts and shirt.

Big news and no doubt about it, is the beach and swimming suit in the new and startling front page newspaper print cotton. See it pictured to the left in the group. Prints this season are noted for novelty and certainly this newspaper-print cotton captures first honors in that respect. The fitted halter top which is lined with white wool jersey for extra comfort and proper contour, buttons at the front to the waistband of the one-piece wool-lined skirt and mailot. The separate cape has an attached hood and is lined with terry cloth throughout.

Very smart beach outfits of white pique are among the season's latest models. A stylish ensemble includes shorts, worn under a one-piece tunic that fastens all the way down the front (may be left open at will) with pique-covered buttons. A big floppy white fabric hat is worn.

Another interesting item is the hat made of pique that is nothing more than a brim which ties at the back. It is without crown and can be untied and flattened out to be washed and ironed.

CHIC FOR SUMMER

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

According to the modern way of thinking a costume is only as smart and correct and good-looking as the accessories worn with it. In other words it is the accessories that make the costume and this is the challenge that fashionables must meet these times. In the matter of observing the little niceties of accessory details the lady in the picture is costumed to perfection. Her exquisitely ladylike straw hat is an exponent of smartest millinery fashion. The fur that borders the sleeves of her jewel-clasped crepe frock carries a convincing message in regard to the importance of "summer furs" in the mode. Her long simple slip-on suede gloves are eminently correct. As to the handsome bag she carries it is the accent supreme of chic.

Polka Dots in Style

Mannish little polka dotted silk cravats and belts are worn with soft frocks and polka dot scarfs walk out with sports coats.

FEATHERS IN STYLE FOR HAT TRIMMING

Feathers are becoming more and more important as trimming for hats, according to Erik Braagaard, the young Danish milliner whose recently established Paris house has had unusual success.

Braagaard even makes entire hats and headresses of feathers. He takes a single yellow bird of paradise and curves it cleverly about the head holding it in position with double bands of black velvet that cross the back of the head. This hat designer is building crowns higher and higher for morning and sports wear. The conical or thimble crowns, likewise are featured on some of the afternoon hats while others are trimmed with bunches of fruit or flowers.

Late Offerings of Prints

Copy Design of Wall Paper

Some of the new prints look like wallpaper designs. Vertical stripes of flowers, massed together, are printed on pastel colored backgrounds. Other materials are printed with enormous sprays of flowers or vines in conventional wallpaper patterns. One house has applied a leaf and vine design in black organdy on a dinner dress of white organdy. The veins in the black organdy leaves are etched in shiny black beads.

Bracelets Combine Both

Real Beauty and Utility

Since costume jewelry has come rushing back into style, there are all sorts of new bracelets on the market. For evening wear there are wide bands of gold or silver set with large, square precious stones. The largest center stone opens up to reveal a miniature powder compact and puff, while the stones on either side open to show paste rouge and eye shadow. The clasps of the new bracelets are small lipstick.

Key to Man

The key to every man is his thought. Sturdy and defying though he look, he has a helm which he obeys, which is the idea after which all his facts are classified. He can only be reformed by showing him a new idea which commands his own.—Emerson.

MICH. STATE COLLEGE SHORTS

Operation of a bird frightening apparatus that may save Michigan orchard owners much of their crops in future years is being undertaken by H. A. Cardinell, research associate in horticulture, at Michigan State College. The first experiments in Algonquin county give promise of results, especially practical in small orchards. The equipment now under test consists of a calcium carbide gun which explodes at long or short intervals. With the gun is a swinging and clattering apparatus that helps frighten away the marauding robins, starlings and other birds without killing them. At the end of the season after tests various parts of the fruit belts in the state, the college will summarize findings. The experimenters will describe the apparatus and present information so that orchard owners will be able to learn where the bird frightening equipment is practical or impractical, cost, figures and usage.

Farmers who expect to be short of fall pasture for sheep or hogs, or those who expect to hog down corn will do well to sow rape in the corn field at the time of laying it by, say, Professor George A. Brown of the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College. If sheep are to be used to help harvest the corn, either rape or turnips can be sown in the corn field at the time of the last cultivation.

$75 have been found in mussels and the shells are sold to button factori s.
Work on the new Howell post office is expected to begin in two weeks. Sorenson & Gross of Flint are the general contractors.

Coach Paul Bennett is again in charge of the bathing beach, tennis courts, etc., at the Howell city park.

Rep. Charles P. Adams has announced his candidacy for reelection and Fred Teeple has thrown his hat into the ring for sheriff.

Do you realize that business is showing surprising vitality? That despite election fears industry is forging ahead to new peaks at a time of the year when activity usually declines? Consider these facts: Steel production at 71% of capacity, or 82% ahead of a year ago. Electric power output up 14%. Automobile production is 25% ahead. Building contracts in May 70.5% above the 1935 month. Carloadings more than 10% better. Retail sales at a new high for the recovery are up 12%.

Mail order sales are up 31%.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

Qualifying examinations for all stenographers, typists, and clerical workers employed by county emergency relief commissions will take place Saturday, July 18, according to a statement by Dr. William Hober, State Relief Administrator. The examination will be conducted by state field representatives or other persons appointed to act for the state commission.

Examinations for case workers and other administrative employees will take place at a later date, probably on either or both of the following Saturdays. These will be followed by qualifying tests for employees of the state office.

The time limit for the examinations will range from one and one-half to three hours. Most of the examinations will stress the short answer type of question. The short answer type involves questions which can be answered with merely a true or false indication or the correct completion of a statement. Examinations for administrative positions will contain a heavier proportion of the free answer or essay type.

Identification of the writer of the examination will be sealed separately and locked up until all papers are graded and the scores recorded against a number received by the candidate by mail.

A committee of civil service experts selected by the governor and the state relief commission will be in direct charge of procedure in the examinations. Work to date has been devoted to reclassification of employees in regard to type of work performed.

The examinations to be given the incumbent employees is qualifying only, not competitive. Competitive tests will be devised for persons who wish to file applications for future employment with the county commissions, with local people given preference.

These examinations are the result of the opinion of the governor and the state commission that the administration of relief is one of the most important functions of government and that competent, qualified personnel is a necessary requisite to good administration.

the circus world as the peer of all of funmakers from all parts of the universe and will present a mad mar-number of new stunts that will be rings and on the hippodrome track.

As a fitting climax, a satire on the Joe Louis, Max Schmeling that is said to be extremely funny.

Another laugh feature will be the introduction of The Riding Mechanic

"DRY"

(with the aid of electric hot water)

Like a magic Aladdin, electricity brings you this new service!

"A wave of my wand, and your dishes dry themselves! Perhaps you think such a thing could only happen in the Arabian Nights. But in reality this magic is accomplished by rinsing dishes with very hot water and letting them stand until dry. It actually leaves them cleaner than wiping with an ordinary dish towel. And it is only one of the many ways in which plentiful hot water can lighten your household tasks.

"I bring you a constant supply of hot water that you can enjoy at any hour of the day or night—without lifting a finger to heat it. I end your hot water problems forever, bringing you freedom from worry and responsibility. When you want hot water, turn the faucet . . . and there is your hot water on tap. No longer need you run up and down stairs to light a manually operated heater. No longer need you wait for water to get hot, or put up with the inconvenience and delay caused by finding only lukewarm water in the pipes. I bring you the luxury of unlimited hot water for your home, heated automatically and without attention.

"My wages are but a few pennies a day . . . and I will save you time and effort, making your housework easier and pleasanter and more convenient. Ask about me at any Detroit Edison office."

CANDIDATES WARNED OF PETITION RULE

Nominating petitions for any candidate who files with the Secretary of State, county or city clerk, cannot be accepted unless accompanied by an affidavit concerning any change in name of the candidate, Orville L. Atwood, Secretary of State, points out.

The law covering the "change of name" affidavit, was passed by the 1935 legislature. Many petitions have already been received without this affidavit, which results only in delay until the form is filled out and filed with the petitions.

With the approach of the July 28 deadline for receiving petitions, some candidates failing to conform with this law may not be qualified for places on the ballot if they file too late to permit return of this form for filling out and filing, Atwood points out.

The law specifically bars the Secretary of State from accepting petitions not accompanied by the affidavit made on the prescribed form. These forms are available at the Department of State and at the offices of city and county clerks.

Provisions of the state election law covering the signing of nominating petitions for candidates for state and local offices, have also been cited by Atwood, for the guidance of signers.

It is unlawful for any voter to sign more than one nominating petition for the same office, save where there are two or more persons to be elected to the same office, section 2474 of the Compiled Laws of 1929 provides. Violation of this provision of the law is classified as a misdemeanor.

Those who desire in Michigan may lawfully sign nominating petitions for more than one candidate for governor. No voter may lawfully sign the nominating petition for more than one candidate for any local office, save in the frequent case of election of two or more circuit court commissioners or circuit judges. In any event, voters may sign the petitions of only as many candidates to the same office as there are persons to be elected to that office.

Voters are also cautioned that it is unlawful to sign the petition of any candidate for any office, more than once. Many instances of this violation have been noted on petitions already filed; duplicate signatures are eliminated as petitions are checked.

LESLIE CENTENNIAL AND HOMECOMING

The centennial of the first settlement of Leslie and the south part of Ingham county will be celebrated with a home coming festival on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 23, 24, 25, 1936. It was a 100 years ago this summer that the first pioneers came into the wilderness where Jackson and Ingham counties join. Many of the descendants of these pioneers are living in this community and are leading participants in the planning of the celebration.

The three day program will include the crowning of "Miss Leslie" as queen, a historical parade as well as historical pageants and addresses. The carnival spirit will be expressed with a "mid-way". A large variety of field sports have been arranged for as well as ball games, both regular and softball. The churches are planning social functions which will serve as centers of interest for their former members as well as present constituents.

Among the orators to appear on the program will be Ex-governor William M. Brooker, speaking Saturday afternoon and Clarence Viet, superintendent of schools at Bellevue, and who for a number of years filled that position with the Leslie school, on Friday afternoon. Nothing will be left undone which will make for the welfare of all those who were former residents of this community as they return to meet their friends who have remained at home or gone afar. Two men who are prominent in present day life who call Leslie "the old home town" are Judge Arthur J. Jones, Federal judge at Detroit, and John Davis M. Crowley, attorney at law at Lansing.

SET UP PROGRAM FOR FARM WOMEN

Michigan State College Invites Rural Housewives to Attend Conference on Campus, July 26 to 30.

Farm women from all sections of the state are being invited to spend five days in rest, study and recreation on the campus of Michigan State College, East Lansing, during the annual Farm Women's Week Sunday through Thursday, July 26 to 30. Activities in the campus for the week are terminated in the annual Farm Women's Day program Friday, July 31.

In outlining the conference, W. Tenny, short course director at the college, describes the program as an opportunity for farm women in the state to study home and community problems, to have a week's vacation and rest to better meet these problems, to make new friends and meet old acquaintances, to enjoy the beautiful campus and to gain inspiration.

In brief, the program offers registration and a lawn supper Sunday afternoon and evening, Monday, July 27, the women visitors will hear Dr. Sarah VanHousen Jones, manager of her own farm near Rochester, Mich. Her subject is "A Woman as a Farm Manager." Clothing, foods and nutrition, home furnishing, home management and child development will be taken up in sections which the women can follow up during the week.

During each day the women are urged to attend a different discussion group, participate in hobbies and enter into this program of rest and recreation as well. Conclusion of the program is Thursday evening, July 30. The speaker will be Miss Gertrude Prager, senior home economist at the United States Department of Agriculture.

FARMERS TO SEE NEW TYPE SILAGE

Sweet Tooth for Cow May Develop from Experiment to Be Shown Farmers' Day at College July 31

If cows in Michigan develop the weakness or strength that humans find in having "a sweet tooth" then part of the credit for the achievement can be given the farm crops department at Michigan State College. Two silos filled with alfalfa, one filling mixed with molasses, will be opened at 9 a. m. for inspection by farmers visiting the college campus on the annual Farmers' Day, Friday, July 31.

During the day's program built around the state's celebration of having more than a million acres in alfalfa this year, more than any other state, all departments at the college will participate in describing experimental work. Test plots for crops, livestock and machinery and buildings can be inspected in the morning. A program of speeches will be held in the afternoon.

The two silos containing the alfalfa and the molasses and alfalfa are located on the college farm on Mt. Hope road about a mile south of the main campus. Haymaking demonstrations will be held in an adjoining field.

According to H. C. Rath, head of the farm crops department at Michigan State College, the new method of ensiling alfalfa is evidently one of the most valuable of the recent developments in agricultural experiment work. During wet weather or in late fall, the method promises to permit saving the alfalfa crop with excellent feeding quality. Similar silage has been made and fed on a commercial scale at the W. K. Kellogg farm and Upper Peninsula sub-stations of the college.

SYNOPSIS

Jeb Braddon, young and fantastically successful broker of Chicago, is infatuated with Agnes Gleneth, beautiful daughter of a retired manufacturer. Rodney, a doctor, in love with Agnes, visits his brother, Jeb. Rod plans work at Rochester. Jeb suggests that he make a try for Agnes before leaving. In Rod there is a deeper, obstinate decency than in Jeb. Agnes believes to be happy, a girl must bind herself entirely to a man and have adorable babies. Rod visits Agnes and tells her of his great desire, but realizes it can never be fulfilled. Agnes's mother is attempting to regain her husband's love. Agnes has disturbing doubts as to what attracts her father in New York. Jeb tells Agnes he is going to marry her, and together they view an apartment in Chicago. Jeb asks Agnes to set an early date, but she tells him she cannot marry him. When the agent, Mr. Colver, offers to show them a furnished apartment, Jeb asks Agnes to see it alone, saying he must return to his office. Agnes consents and Jeb leaves. A radio is blaring terrifically from one of the apartments. Colver raps upon the door, which is opened by a scantily clad girl, who draws Agnes into the room. Colver finds her husband, Charles Lorrie, fatally shot. He calls the police. Myrtle Lorrie asks Agnes to phone Cathal O'Mara, a lawyer, to come at once. Agnes does. The police take charge. O'Mara arrives. The officers are antagonistic to him. Agnes sides with O'Mara. Agnes is to be a witness at the coming trial. Cathal's grandfather and father had lost their lives in the line of duty as city firemen, and his grandmother, Winnie, has built her all around Cathal, who, being ambitious, had worked his way through law school and, heading the appeal of the desperate and the despised cause, has committed himself to the defense of criminal cases. Thoughts of Agnes disturb Cathal. Mr. Lorrie had cast off the wife who had borne him his daughter to marry Myrtle, and after two years of wedded life she had killed him.

Agnes's mother tried to keep her in bed all day. "If we had gone to Florida, as we should have," her mother repeated, "this wouldn't have happened." "Not to me," said Agnes, and wondered who, instead, would first have stepped into that room, and been seized by Myrtle, and who would have summoned, for Myrtle, Martin O'Mara. She could not wish that it was not she.

Florida had been the winter playground for her father and mother in their years of happiness; and while Mother held the romantic illusion that, by returning together, they could recapture what they had had, Father lately had become more of a realist. He knew it would be dancing on the grave of their ecstasy.

Agnes lay looking at her mother but thinking of her father, who, though turned realist toward his wife, remained romantic—with whom? Some one younger, much younger, and perhaps like Myrtle? She couldn't imagine it; but—

She pulled the newspaper to her again, and looked at Charles Lorrie. You wouldn't think a man like that would marry Myrtle; he looked as if he'd have more sense. But sense didn't enter in. One day he'd wanted Myrtle; his dragons of desire had driven him, and he'd married her. Who was in New York for Father?

Agnes arose to be a witness at the inquest, and the coroner's jury decreed that there was cause to "hold" Myrtle Silver Lorrie to the Grand Jury, which took up the case early next week.

Jeb was to be a witness too, so Agnes and he went together; and they called her in, before him. So in she went alone, and stood before the 23 men, and swore to tell the truth and all of it.

Mr. Colver had just come out of the room, white and very nervous; and Agnes, trembling as she faced the 23 solemn men, wondered what Mr. Colver just had told them. Especially, had he told them of Bert?

Agnes repeated what she had related before.

"Now you have told us all that you saw or heard happen in your presence," the foreman challenged her.

"Yes."

"You are sure there is nothing more?"

"Nothing." But her face was burning.

"You have remembered something else?"

"Yes; I have."

And then there was no retreat; she had to tell them. And it was plain that word of Bert was new to all of them, and that it was what they had needed—and that it was of great damage to Myrtle.

She waited outside the grand-jury room, while Jeb was giving his testimony, corroborating her account as to how she happened to come to the Lorrie apartment. Agnes sat on a bench, avoiding others, and unable to control her trembling at what she had done.

Jeb came out, straight and strong and at ease; for he had made a good appearance and had nothing to tell that disturbed him.

He helped Agnes up from her seat and brought her down to the street, with news-cameras clicking at them as they left the Criminal Courts building.

He had left his car on Dearborn street on the side across from the jail, and as they approached it, Agnes saw a man standing beside it whom she recognized suddenly as Martin O'Mara.

She started a little; and when, the next instant, she felt Jeb's fingers tighten on her arm, she knew that he suspected who this was.

"That's the lawyer you called?" he said.

Agnes nodded; and before the men spoke to each other, she felt—almost as when O'Mara had come into the apartment confronted by the police—the flash of opposition to him.

Jeb could not like him, Agnes realized; Jeb could not possibly like him, even if she had not had her name coupled to his in the papers from the fact that she had summoned him for Myrtle. Under O'Mara's picture, one paper had so described him—"Martin O'Mara, the criminal lawyer, called to the Lorrie apartment by Miss Agnes Gleneth." That infuriated Jeb; and Agnes could feel it rising in him as they approached O'Mara.

Cathal O'Mara stood bareheaded, having taken off his hat, and holding it after Agnes spoke to him.

Cathal was excited, seeing her; but he did not show it. "How do you do, Mr. Braddon?" he said.

"What do you want?"

"Of you," said Cathal, suddenly not inside, and because of that, only cooler without, "little. I was in the jail," he explained to Agnes, as though he had not retorted to her companion at all and nothing had passed between them; "and coming out, I saw Mr. Braddon's car. And I knew you were both before the Grand Jury."

"They'll indict your client by night," said Jeb.

"Yes," said Cathal. "I told her so." And he glanced toward the grim, black-barred walls connected to the Courts building by the covered passage known, most aptly, as "The Bridge of Sighs." Over it, to and fro, trudged the accused to their trials and acquittals or condemnations.

O'Mara's thought was returned, for the moment, within the jail; and Agnes wondered at what, within those gray walls, his mind caught; with what miseries and repentances he dealt with; with what hopes and despairs. She wished she could follow his thought in his flight.

She looked up at Jeb. Often his mind, momentarily, fled away; but she never had wished to follow its abstraction.

O'Mara recollected her. "After the indictment is found, as it will be, Miss Gleneth," he said, looking down at her, "shall I see you?"

"Why?" objected Jeb.

"I'll be preparing the case. In doing it, I must go over the evidence of my witnesses."

"Yours," said Jeb. "You imply she's yours. You've the hell of a nerve. Miss Gleneth is a witness for the state."

Cathal felt the pleasant furies dancing within him. Oh, he liked a fight; and this man would give him one. He met Jeb's contempt straight, without

"I Was in the Jail," He Explained to Agnes.

anger. "The state may call Miss Gleneth; but so shall the defense; and whether or not the state calls her," Cathal said. "So it is my right and duty to review with my witnesses the testimony they will give. For that, Miss Gleneth, I'll go wherever you say. Some witnesses come to my office; I neither ask nor suggest that of you. With other witnesses, I go to them, to their offices. You having none, it would be at your father's office, perhaps, we best may meet."

"My office," said Jeb. "If you must confer with her. Her father's way."

"My mother's not," said Agnes, "so come to the house. Tomorrow—in the afternoon," said Agnes, breathless at this defiance of Jeb.

"Thank you. Tomorrow it will be."

CHAPTER V

Cathal O'Mara set out from the city at three on the following day. He had been in court on another case; and when the hearing was adjourned, he took his car and drove north alone.

It was a sunny, warm, indolent March afternoon, with gutters running off the melt of the thawing snow, and the still air iridescent from the rising moisture. People appeared everywhere, and they seemed unusually pleasant and patient.

Far north along the lake shore were great Georgian homesteads, Elizabethan manors, French chateaux and Florentine palazzos which men, who made money in Chicago, gave to their wives to enhance and occupy them while they, separately, followed their own occupations and interests and their own transgressions, each after his own way.

The separateness of the women struck Cathal with particular force as he compared the fact that whereas he knew no few of the men who lived along these shores, he had never so much as spoken to one of the women until Agnes Gleneth had called him, over the phone, to come to the aid of Myrtle Lorrie.

In him, beside the eminently practical and realistic attitudes which went into the preparation of his cases (and won them for him) ran an incurable romanticism—which probably also had its value in court. He could uncover the most sordid details about one person, and turn about and idealize the next. In this best damn lawyer in town abode a little boy who had been reared by Winnie on ancient fairy and folk-tales never entrusted to aught but tongue, never learned or taught from a page, but recited with all the mystic phrase and credence of oral tradition. So Cathal became steeped in the lore of heroes (and had not his grandfather proved himself one?) and of dragons, and of fair and utterly lovely ladies who would wait for their true love, in whatever guise he came and through whatever ordeal, until life's end.

Of course long ago these had thinned to symbols, but they had endured within him; and their delightful relics led him to constant emotional contradictions to the revelations of his own experiences.

So now Cathal drove, denying himself illusions as to the greater nature of the men who dwelt in these splendid places; he knew that, save for their possessions, they were as all men; yet as to the ladies, held so aloof from him, he was letting his fancies run. One he had met; and she was as none other out of all his encounters with women.

When he reached the house, Cathal discerned that instructions had been left concerning him. He asked for Miss Gleneth; but the man—it was Cravath—replied that he would tell Mrs. Gleneth that he was here.

Two girls (as Cathal first supposed) appeared on the stairs; the light-haired one was Agnes Gleneth, and the dark one he took for her sister until they were almost downstairs, and he saw that she was older.

He was familiar, in his profession, with women who kept into middle age, and through it, slender and youthful-looking figures and faces which denied, more or less successfully, the last decade of their years—women once greatly desired, who now desperately were "holding" their men, or striving to hold them against younger women.

Cathal Martin O'Mara, attorney-at-law, knew such women well; and he had learned to read the signs of success, or of failure, in their struggle. Here, he knew at least, one was going on.

"You are the lawyer?" the mother asked him coldly.

"Yes," said Cathal.

She did not immediately proceed; and he was aware how she regarded him. His visit, and himself, composed for her an unavoidable, disagreeable incident. Her daughter for a moment had stepped out of the affairs of her own life, and intruded upon a tragic event in another's which had nothing whatever to do with her. Since they were unable to escape some further participation in the consequences of the intrusion, she must make it as formal and impersonal as possible. That was the mother's feeling.

It was not, even here, the daughter's. Cathal warmed, gratefully, as he glanced at her and she gave him her hand, which firmly pressed his for the instant; but her mother did not relax her feeling of offense at him.

"You approve of what your client did?" she demanded.

"Approve?" Cathal repeated; and this charge he had met before. "To represent an accused person is not to approve of her," he replied.

"Then what is it?"

"Mother!" said Agnes.

"I asked him; what is it?" She turned again to Cathal. "You are trying to prevent that woman from being punished, are you not? And you are here because you imagine my daughter will help you!"

"Yes," said Cathal; he knew there was no arguing with her now.

"I understand," Beatrice Gleneth said, less hostilely at his lack of opposition, "you have certain rights to question her."

Agnes stepped forward from beside her mother, and she took his hat. "Cravath," she called, before her mother could interfere, "take Mr. O'Mara's coat." A minute later she led him, and her mother, into the drawing-room.

Cathal looked about. He had never been received in such a house before, and he made no attempt to conceal his interest in, nor his unfamiliarity with, such a big room.

His eyes went back to Mrs. Gleneth, and he better understood her. With no more effort of her own than was involved in marriage to a man who made money, she had come to this; but though she had it, she must starve herself slender, and she had done so—and she must keep herself over-young. And that she was endeavoring to do.

"Sit down now, won't you please?" said Agnes, the warmth within her spreading to her skin.

He waited until they both were seated separately and a little opposite each other, as they had come to be in their feelings. He dropped into a soft stuffed chair, facing them.

HON. CHARLES P. ADAMS
ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY

Charles P. Adams of Howell has filed his petitions and will be a candidate for reelection to the state legislature. He is serving his second term as mayor of Howell. During his term in the legislature he was known as an independent and voted as his conscience directed him. On this account he was strongly complimented by George Schroeder, Democratic Speaker of the House, for his aid and support of many Democratic measures.

In the primaries two years ago he won an overwhelming victory over all other candidates and defeated the late Henry Howlett in the election by a close margin. Mr. Adams is a crack bowler and golf player and was a baseball umpire in the Tri-State League for several years. At the present time he conducts a clothing and gent's furnishing store in Howell with his son, Earl. In his first term one of his achievements was to get a law passed, giving the different County Boards of Supervisors authority to increase the dog license so that a sufficient revenue would be raised by it to pay sheep losses. For some years previous the dog tax collected in this county had been inadequate to cover the losses of sheep killed by dogs.

Mr. Adams is a fearless, independent and wears no man's collars. On this account he made an excellent record in his first term.

A red hot school election took place at Dexter, Monday. Dr. W. C. Wylie defeated Horace Lickly. Gus Launeberg defeated Dr. Guinan, 44 to 30, and Stanley Vaughn was elected by acclamation.

PINCKNEY SOFTBALL GAMES

Dillon Defeats Singer Team. Pinckney Wins Game from Dexter Last Wednesday Night 8 to 7

In the Pinckney softball league last week only one game was played, Dillon defeating Singer, 14 to 5. Hubert Ledwidge pitched for Singer but was the victim of poor support, his cast kicking in with many errors. Hookie Battle was the only player to hit a home run. Dinkel pitched for Dillon, but was not forced to extend himself.

The Dexter game played Wednesday night was a nip and tuck affair and the score was tied up three times. Pinckney got one run in the 2nd on singles by Jim Singer and Meyers and this led up to the 5th. Paul Singer pitched for Pinckney and Shoup for Dexter and both were good. Pinckney scored again in the 6th on a walk to Dinkel and a single by Battle. Dexter tied it up when Pinckney made two errors. Each side scored twice in the 7th, making the count 4 all. In the 8th Singer tired and Dexter scored three runs. Dinkel relieved him with the bases full and one out and retired the side without further scoring. In Dexter's half of the 9th all three batters were thrown out at first by Andy Singer. In Pinckney's half Miller grounded out. Reason got a hit. Joe Singer tripled scoring Reason. A Singer flied out to center, Joe scoring after the catch. Dinkel got a single, Battle drove one over the right fielder's head and the game was over.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY CROPS

With haying followed by rains on the Fourth of July, Livingston County crops should reward the farmer with high quality and large yields. Factors outside of our community point to higher prices for all commodities.

Radio and news reports tell of general drought and extreme heat in the West and South. Even our neighbors in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin are perilously near ruin, if rain holds off much longer.

These facts can mean only one thing economically. A shortage of hay and grains and other farm products. Supply and demand operating as usual will bring the Livingston County Farmer a good price for his crops.
