

Pinckney & Brighton Open with Tie Game

Brighton Out Gains Pinckney But is Turned Back in Every Attempt to Score As the Pinckney Team Puts Up Stone Wall Defense.

The Pinckney high school football team opened their season at Brighton last Friday by playing a 0 to 0 tie game. Brighton overwhelmed Pinckney in the ground gaining department, making some 13 first downs to Pinckney's one. However when Pinckney had their backs to the wall, as it were, they came thru and successfully turned back every Brighton scoring attempt. In this they were aided greatly by five fumbles made by Brighton in each instance in which Pinckney got the ball.

Brighton made a scoring thrust in the first quarter when Bidwell completed two forward passes to Timmons and this with a couple of line plunges put the ball on Pinckney's 5 yard line. But with goal to go Brighton fumbled and Pinckney recovered. They were unable to gain and kicked. Brighton continued to reel off first downs in the center of the field but were helpless when they got inside the twenty yard line. Pinckney has only had a few weeks practice and has developed no plays yet. Consequently they played a defensive game trying only line plays and an occasional end run. They did not try a single pass.

The entire game was a repetition of the first quarter. Brighton continued to make first downs but invariably fumbled all scoring opportunities. This happened in the second and third quarters and again in the closing minutes of the game. Bidwell, of Brighton is a good passer but is handicapped by not having good receivers. On this account Pinckney was able to break up their passes. With three minutes to go Brighton managed to complete a pass and once more got in the shadows of the Pinckney goal posts and again fumbled. Pinckney recovered and Paul Singer punted out of danger. With about a minute to go Brighton filled the air with passes. Billy Meyers intercepted the last one and started for a touchdown. He eluded all tacklers but Millar of Brighton who tackled him knocked him offside at the ten yard line, as the game ended.

There were a number of high lights of the game. Capt. Shehan played a great defensive game and backed up the line in great style. Ed Howell was a terror on defense and broke up play after play. Floyd Haines playing his first game as a regular went down the field like a streak and dived the Brighton punt receiver in his tracks several times. He also made many tackles. Paul Singers punting was good but not only getting height to his kicks but distance as well. All the other players also played a great game and took advantage of every break.

We take our hats off to Coach Sekell, in one week he has developed one of the best defensive teams we ever saw. The boys blocked and tackled to perfection and seemed to be in mid-season form. In another week or two they appear should develop and then they appear certain to go places. They have the fight and pep this year which will enable them to get there. The fact that the same 11 men played the entire game with only one substitution speaks for their condition.

Pinckney will play Hartland at Hartland this week, Friday.

Livingston Entertains Saturday Evening

Livingston Lodge Confers Third Degree and Holds Short Program. Many Visiting Masons Present

Livingston Lodge F. & A. M. conferred a third degree Saturday evening. The regular officers were in the chairs and the work was put on in impressive style. In the second degree several members from Washington Lodge No. 65 of Dexter assisted. As usual at such functions a large number of visitors were present. The following lodges were represented in addition to Livingston lodge: Howell, Dexter, Fowlerville, Vernon, Ann Arbor, Michigan Center, Redford, Wm. Perrett, Detroit, St. Louis.

Following the degree work a luncheon was served to the brothers by the refreshment committee of which Ferd Lamb is chairman. He was assisted by Axel Carpenter, Glen Slayton, Percy Ellis, Calvin Hooker and Clare Swarthout. In the absence of the local chaplain, John Martin, the invocation was asked by Elton Bragg, chaplain of Howell lodge No. 38.

At the conclusion of the lunch a short program was put on with the secretary acting as master of ceremonies. The following were called upon and made short addresses: Roy Graham, George Haberman of Wm. Perrett Lodge, Detroit; George Adams, master of Fowlerville Lodge; Ray Thrasher, master of Michigan Center Lodge; William Dennison, master of Vernon Lodge; Harlan Savery, master of Washnetaw Lodge; Robert Phillips, senior, warden of Howell Lodge.

Pros. Att. Stanley Berriam of Howell, Fred Bowen of Golden Rule Lodge of Ann Arbor, Ralph Temple, Senior Warden of Fowlerville Lodge. All visitors were asked to stand and their lodges. Judge Willis L. Lyons of Howell then gave a lecture on his trip to the Holy Land a few years ago which was illustrated by lantern slides showing views of Jerusalem, Mt. Moriah, Bethlehem and other points. This was much enjoyed and the judge was given a vote of thanks.

The grand lodge has grouped the lodges of this state into groups and they are to meet together at intervals. Pinckney is grouped with Howell, Brighton, Fowlerville, Williamston and Webberville and the first meeting will be at Howell.

SHERIFF FAWCETT SAYS

I am truly grateful for the support received during the vigorously contested primary race for the nomination for the sheriff. It is particularly significant in view of the fact that the office was sought by candidates of most unusual political prestige, men of fine politics. It is old times in the game of politics. I am also I feel a compliment to my office for the voters have borne out my own judgement in the capabilities of Loren Bassett one of our excellent deputies.

The primary has taught men to campaign, however it was a clean primary fight free from any of the usual dirt employed sometimes by candidates. Every opponent put up a stiff fight, and while the struggle finally sifted down to Mr. Bassett and myself, the other men running on the ticket were excellent men and put up a clean campaign. We know that the office of sheriff always has and always will make enemies for the Sheriff of the county. It is in the law enforcement end of the county government. It has the entire population of the county to contend with. It is an office which requires judgment, faith in the reliable citizenship of the county who like to see the office run in an economical manner. In the more than thank the voters of the county for their support. I also take this opportunity of complimenting my opponents for the clean, gentlemanly campaign which they waged in the primary fight for the office.

Current Comment

The forecasters are drawing about as many conclusions from the primary election of Tuesday as a fortune teller does from a cup of tea leaves. The variety of forecasts is doped out by stressing some particular point and ignoring all others. Well that is what these professional forecasters get paid for—some point to Bruckers impressive victory over Senator Couzens. However Couzens made no campaign and his declaration for President Roosevelt lost him many Republican votes. Also he could get but little Democrat aid as they had important contests of their own to decide. It is said that he will aid Prentiss Brown against Brucker. This will lead to another conjecture. Brucker received 313,465 votes Couzens got 190,014, and the several Democrat candidate for senator received a total of 333,146. Adding Couzens total to this would give Brown a majority. You will say that this is conjecture but so are the forecasts of Lippman, Kent, Foote and others.

In the late legislature Lt. Gov. Thomas Read was a thorn in the side of Gov. Fitzgerald and blocked much of the latter's legislation. However Read is a powerful political figure. For this reason Gov. Fitzgerald asked that Read be unopposed. Former Lt. Gov. Laren Dickinson disregarded this order and entered against Read, defeating him by about 25,000 votes. Dickinson's nomination will give the Republican ticket a decided dry ridge as he is state president of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League. Wilbur Brucker and Gov. Fitzgerald are also dry. The various dry organizations have been dormant since repeal and we doubt that they played any big part in his victory but the Fitzgerald supporters evidently went down the line for him.

We regret to see Senator Couzens defeated. He has done much for the people of Michigan in the way of counting free hospitals for children at Detroit, Traverse City and other places. He also donated the dormitory for nurses at the University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor. Most of these beneficiaries failed to remember him at the recent primaries. This ends 20 years of public service for Senator Couzens. He left the Ford Motor Co. to become chief of police in Detroit in 1916. From then he served two terms as mayor of Detroit. In 1922 he was appointed U. S. Senator by Gov. Grosbeck. He was elected in 1924 and again in 1936 by majorities of about 500,000. Of late years his health has failed and he has had numerous operations. Of this account he was unable to campaign this year. Brucker seems to have received a majority of about 120,000 over him.

Frank Knox, candidate for vice president, seems to have pulled a worse boner than Jim Farley did in his prime state speech. In a speech last week Knox stated that no life insurance policy is secure, no savings bank is safe. This brought prompt denial from many leading insurance companies that their policy holders were in danger of losing their money. In Pennsylvania an insurance company official stated that such a charge made him liable to legal action for circulating damaging stories about a business firm. Knox explained his remarks in a latter speech in which he said he was referring to inflation and the devaluing of the gold standard. This failed to clear the atmosphere and we understand another explanation is being prepared. This would seem to be overdoing the campaign of fear. Following the conference of insurance company executives with President Roosevelt, the companies issued the following statement: "There can be no doubt, all the reports to the contrary notwithstanding but that American citizens who hold life insurance policies issued by the insurance companies in the United States, possess the safest of all possible securities."

In the primaries in Oakland county all the candidates who were designated as members of the Black Legion members were renominated. They include Prosecutor David Penney, Earl Clark, drain commissioner and State Representative Long, all of whom were nominated on the Republican ticket. The only two defeated were George Hoyt and Blaine Jones who were beaten by Shedd Howarth. Whether they will be able to win in November remains to be seen.

Frank Murphy failed to show any loss of strength in Wayne county as forecast by the Free Press. Instead he carried that county by a majority better than 125,000, the largest he ever got. The combined votes for Murphy and Welsh in Wayne county was 224,063 and for Fitzgerald and Fitch 133,299. The surprise was the close race given Prentiss Brown by Louis Ward of Royal Oak, a member of Rev. Fr. Coughlin's staff. He was little known to the rank and file but polled a large vote in Wayne county.

Mrs. Glen Smith of Dearborn visited the Haze sisters the first of the week.

A. B. Horne has purchased 80 acres of land of the Floyd Reason Estate adjoining his farm. This was formerly part of the Stickel-Jackson and Welsh farms.

Maine Is Captured by the Republicans

MAINE, the "barometer" state, is back in the Republican column at least so far as its state ticket is concerned. The G. O. P. captured the United States senatorship, the governorship and three congressional seats. Senator Wallace H. White, Republican, defeated Gov. Louis J. Brann, who sought to unseat him. Lewis O. Barrows, Republican, won the governorship by a substantial majority over F. Harold Dubord, Democrat.

The vote cast broke all records for size and interest in the election was intense. The state had been visited by both President Roosevelt, as he returned from his vacation cruise, and Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican Presidential nominee, who made speeches there only a few days ago. Colonel Knox, vice presidential candidate on the Republican ticket, also had canvassed the state. Brann, who was elected governor in 1932 and re-elected two years later, was the first Democrat to hold that office in Maine and was personally popular. White was elected senator in 1930 after ten years in the house of representatives.

Communism Is Denounced by Pope Pius XI

POPE PIUS XI may be physically weak, as recent reports say, but age and illness have not lessened the vigor of his opinions and his way of expressing them. In greeting and blessing some five hundred Spanish refugees who were received at Castel Gandolfo, the holy father, took occasion to denounce strongly the "mad" forces of Communism which, he declared, menaced, in Spain and elsewhere, "the very foundations of all order, all culture and all civilization." He urged the constituted authorities of all nations to oppose "these great evils with every remedy and barrier that is possible" and prophesied that there will be utter chaos if "those who have a duty in the matter do not hasten to repair the breach—if, indeed, it is not already too late."

The pope spoke especially of the situation in Spain, but said the crisis there is "a school in which the most serious lesson is being taught to Europe and to the whole world—to a world now at last wholly steeped, ensnared and threatened by subversive propaganda, and more especially to a Europe battered and shaken to its very foundations."

For forty minutes the pontiff spoke passionately, his voice at times broken with emotion, and his address was transmitted by radio to all the civilized world.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler, too, took another hard whack at the Communists at a ceremonial tribute to the World War dead in Nuremberg. Before 120,000 uniformed Nazis and 50,000 others he boasted of Germany's armed strength and shouted:

"Our old enemy, bolshevism, is vanquished within Germany, but still active around her borders. But let no one be deceived. We are ready at any hour. We all have one wish—to maintain peace—but with it goes one firm decision: Never to surrender Germany to that enemy we have come to know so well."

If Hitler, as some think, tries to lead the coming five-power Locarno conference into forming an anti-Soviet alliance, he will be firmly opposed by France. Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos says so, and declares France will under no circumstances abandon her military pact with Soviet Russia.

According to Pravda, authoritative newspaper of Moscow, Hitler plans to attack and partition Czechoslovakia before he embarks on a war against the Soviet Union.

Benito Mussolini and his cabinet appropriated large sums to build up Italy's army, navy and air forces to greater strength and planned to carry on vigorously the campaign for self-sufficiency in raw materials.

It looked as if the dove of peace was preparing to leave Europe, and as relations between Japan and China grew more strained every day, she probably will have to take refuge on the western continent.

British Workers Reject Alliance With Reds

BRITISH organized labor will have no truck with the Communists. The trades union congress at Plymouth rejected, by overwhelming votes, three resolutions favoring the formation of a "popular front" alliance with the Reds, similar to the combinations that captured the governments of France and Spain.

In this action the workers were largely influenced by the fiery words of Sir Walter Citrine, international labor leader, who has just returned from a visit to Russia. Said he:

"After years of derision of the principles of the Socialist movement, after abuse of unions as the pillars of capitalism, we now have the curiously incongruous spectacle of Communist organizations wanting to come into our midst and be a part of the movement they have so derided."

"I do not know whether you are so credulous as really to believe that there is a sincere conversion to the principles of organized labor. However, for myself and the national council of labor I say without hesitation that the single, simple explanation of the tactics of the Communist movement today is the obvious, albeit failure, that has accompanied attempts to capture the Socialist movement for Communist principles."

San Sebastian Captured by Spanish Rebels

THE Spanish rebels scored their greatest victory to date when they captured San Sebastian, capital of Guipuzcoa province and famous Bay of Biscay resort. Santa Barbara fort, dominating the city, was first taken and the city's war council then decided to abandon the place, despite the opposition of the anarchists. The more conservative Basque nationalists prevented the rebels from burning the city, only a paper factory and two residences being destroyed, and the defending forces retreated toward Bilbao, accompanied by thousands of civilians and foreigners.

The municipal governor, Antonio Ortega, and his staff boarded a yacht to go to new headquarters at Zumaya, about 15 miles west of San Sebastian. The new line of defense was established at Orrio.

Farmers Will Meet to Plan Conservation

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE is arranging a series of community meetings of farmers for the purpose of laying out the "agricultural conservation program" for next year. He said the AAA planned the meetings in the farm areas in order to discuss crop insurance and possible maximum limits of benefit payments to each farm. He explained the program aimed at providing "greater abundance for the average American home," and should "help to check soil erosion, improve fertility, encourage better land use and maintain farm income."

Fleet Will Maneuver in North Pacific Waters

BACK at his desk after an illness of six months, Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson immediately made an announcement that will be of deep interest to Japan. The annual fleet maneuvers, which last May were shifted to the Canal Zone as a conciliatory gesture to Japan, will be held next year in North Pacific and Hawaiian waters, and probably the Tokyo press will yelp again.

With the announcement Secretary Swanson asserted Japanese plans to retain overage submarines and destroyers involve a "violation" of the London and Washington naval treaties, which are to expire December 31 by Japanese abrogation. He followed up his charge with the statement that the United States has completed plans for two new battleships and is prepared to begin construction "at a moment's notice."

The fleet maneuvers, officially designated as "fleet problem No. 13," will be held during late May and early June. The area of operation, it was indicated, will be the triangle between the Aleutian Islands, Hawaii, and Seattle, where the fleet problem of 1935 was conducted. Vessels and plane probably will work as far west as the Wake Islands.

Armament of the new battleships is at present limited to 14 inch guns, but Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, said frankly that if Japan does not agree to this limitation by next April, "the sky is the limit."

Sabotage on American Warship Revealed

OUR navy's intelligence department has discovered that a recent small fire on the cruiser Indianapolis while she was being overhauled in the New York navy yard was caused by the driving of a phonograph needles and nails into an electric cable; and other suspected sabotage on war vessels is being investigated. The work on the cruiser was being done by civilian employees and Capt. Charles A. Dunn, industrial manager of the yard, said the placing of the nails in the cables was "undoubtedly" a deliberate attempt to damage the cruiser.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Grand Rapids—While digging a well near here, Chester Sprague fell and broke his arm in seven places between the elbow and wrist.

Monroe—The Highway Department will undertake the construction of a tourists' lodge at the intersection of US-24 and US-25, near here. The building is to cost $40,000 and will be surrounded by picnic and recreational grounds.

Detroit—The official list of livestock prize winners at the State Fair, showed that Michigan entries took the lion's share of the $58,280 paid in premiums. The competition was open to other states this year, the first time in four years.

Saginaw—Timely rains brought Saginaw County its best crop of cucumbers in five years. Growers reported they grossed from $150 to $400 an acre for their crops and some of the produce has been shipped as far west as Iowa, where the crop was a failure.

Ypsilanti—Prospects for an addition to the state hospital here are brighter and present plans are to award contracts for the work sometime in October if $500,000 in Federal funds are made available by that time. The proposed changes provide for about 1,250 beds and an occupational therapy building.

Kalamazoo—Paul Davidson, a local resident, is a martyr and an unsung hero. Seeing a driverless truck rolling backward downhill one day, he parked his car in a hurry, hopped into the truck and applied the brakes. The truck stopped after crashing into only one car. The car that got bumped was Davidson's.

Lansing—Allotment of federal funds totaling $330,000 will be made by the social security board to aid the state in caring for its needy blind and dependent children. It was estimated that the allocation would make it possible to pay about $12.50 per month for the care of needy children and $25 per month for the blind.

Bad Axe—Billy goats with the most capable stomachs must look with respect upon 5-year-old Lee Truax of this village. Lee swallowed a finishing nail more than an inch long sometime last May. Frequent X-ray photos revealed that it was gradually being digested and recently it was found that the nail had been completely assimilated.

Zeeland—Parties on more than 15 telephone lines on the west side of the city were without service recently until a line inspector found that rats or rodents of some sort had eaten through a lead cable guard on a telephone pole. In making the hole through the metal, the rodents struck the wires causing a short circuit and disrupting service.

Marion—Improvement in pasture lands during September has increased milk production in this dairy farming area, to a point where thin cows have begun to fatten and farmers report that their herds will go into the winter in good condition. The rains greened up alfalfa fields to an extent where they afford fine pasture for the fall months.

Kalamazoo—When Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Panse of this city found their silver wedding anniversary drawing near, they decided a celebration was in order. Half in jest, they sent invitations to widely scattered members of their families and the result was a gathering of 30 persons who, it was estimated, traveled an aggregate of 50,000 miles to be present. The longest trip was made by a sister who lives in Amsterdam, Holland.

St. Ignace—The Commerce Department of the Federal bureau indicates that tourist expenditures in the resort sections of the state during the summer amounted to $270,000,000. State reports indicate that 10,000,000 persons visited the resort sections, which furnished employment to 25,000 persons. Labor Day week-end motor traffic across the Straits of Mackinac amounted to 7,900 vehicles, almost 1,000 more than all previous traffic records there.

Clare—The mystery of the county's sea monster has been solved. Fishermen had everyone agog with stories of a monster in Snott lake, reporting it "at least 22 feet in length." The sportsmen were plainly afraid to go fishing. Conservation officer Gilson of Harrison volunteered to investigate and after patiently waiting at the lake, saw a large otter coming toward him. In playful mood, it develops that an otter swims at lightning speed and jumps almost out of the water, somewhat like large fish.

Ann Arbor—Plans still in the dream stage for the development of the Huron River valley into an extensive and intensive recreational area, are gaining momentum. It is thought that a pleasure drive along the stream from the Oakland lakes to Lake Erie is possible. Establishment of public parks and camping grounds, hiking trails, swimming pools, the propagation of fish, reforestation projects, protection of wilderness areas, and cleansing the waters of pollution are a few of the things under consideration.

Manistee—A permanent Forest Festival museum is planned here, to be located near the new highway which will become US-31 when completed.

Muskegon—Dorothy Smith, 13 years old, received her thirteenth bone fracture when her right arm was broken recently. It was the only limb which had not been previously broken at least once.

West Branch—The population of this village has doubled in the last four years, due to an oil boom that has brought in 90 wells, all of which are now in operation. It has been stated that there are 1000 new residents in the village.

Big Rapids—The Paris fish hatchery has attained national and international recognition through a special fish diet developed here. Composed of meats and dog food, it affords a 50 per cent saving over the cost of liver, formerly used.

West Branch—A. J. Drake of Klacking Township began raising sheep a few years ago but the bears killed so many, he had to give it up. So he started raising crops and now the deer are eating his crops to the ground. He believes he is entitled to damages but doesn't know where to file a claim.

Ann Arbor—Work on the giant Baird carillon was recently reported only three days behind schedule. Pouring of concrete for the 196-foot shell for the carillon has been completed and work started on the covering with cut stone. The 53 bells, cast in England, have arrived and await their new home.

Lansing—The governor has indicated that his recommendation to the next legislature will be that delinquent taxes for 1933 and 1934 be included in the 10-year amortization plan. Also that the mortgage and land contract moratorium act be extended at least another two years, probably until 1939.

Lansing—Michigan industrial payrolls averaged 20.4 per cent higher in August of this year over 1935, according to the report by the Department of Labor and Industry. Payrolls and employment in the automobile industry fell off 15 per cent while the furniture industry showed an increase of 11 per cent over 1935.

Lansing—The State has displayed courteous concern for hay fever sufferers. With the official closing of the state parks scheduled for September 15th, the superintendent in charge indicated that a score or more of the parks in the northern part of the state would remain open for the afflicted ones, some of them as long as October 16.

Marshall—That this community is the center of a new and rapidly growing onion territory was revealed as the harvest progressed. Railroad officials expected the produce would total more than 1,200 carloads. Michigan's largest onion producing territory has been Gun Marsh, near Kalamazoo which averages 2,500 cars a season.

Lansing—The state administrative board has approved a new way of advertising Michigan. An appropriation was approved to send a five and drum corps to Denver to "advertise Michigan" at the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. It was expected that a similar plan would be followed for the American Legion convention in Cleveland.

Lansing—Teachers in the state have been supplied with copies of a booklet called "Education for Safety" which will be a guide in training children against accidents. The booklet was published jointly by the Safety Council and the Department of Public Instruction. As well as traffic accidents, mishaps in the home, shop and on the bathing beach are given careful attention.

Lansing—The state scored heavily against the "poaching" of sand and gravel from public-controlled waters, when an Ecorse dredging company was recently fined and compelled to pay the cost of court action because it had removed sand and gravel from the bottom of Lake Michigan near St. Joseph, without the required lease-rights from the conservation department. A legislative act of 1935 protects the lake-bottom resources of Michigan waters.

Lansing—Mr. and Mrs. John Citzzen and their children over voting age went to the polls on September 15th in what promised to be the largest primary voting on record. Former Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker gained a victory over Senator James Couzens for United States Senator on the GOP ticket while Rep. Prentiss Brown outdistanced three opponents for the Democratic nomination. Frank Murphy won over George Welsh as Democratic governor candidate running against Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican.

L'Anse—A model farm-industrial village will rise in a nearby forest as a part of Henry Ford's back-to-the-land movement, when relocation of highway US-41 is completed. Tentative plans call for the expenditure of $2,000,000 on a sawmill already in operation, homes and farms for 30 families and a lake to be fed by Plumbago Creek. Residents will be chosen from company employees in upper peninsula towns, each to be given an opportunity to purchase 350 partly cleared acres on a rental basis.

WHAT A GREAT RADIO FOR THE FARM!

I AM not a radio expert but I do want to give you our impression of your Model 400 Kadette Farm Radio. Although I bought it because it WAS low priced and I was tired of fussing with the old set—I think you should urge folks to hear it! Everyone says 'What a great radio for the farm' as soon as they hear it. It gets the stations you want and gets them clearly. It gets them in the daytime—any time—and do they come in! You'd think these performers were right in our room. You say the Fern-O-Plus speaker cuts speaker battery drain 100%—I say it gives the best tone I ever heard out of a radio. I'm not discounting the 50% saving on original battery cost, or 25% on battery usage. I like the idea of only having to buy three ordinary ignition-type dry cells for another 300 hours of enjoyment. I like its portability (had it in the barn Sunday). I think its price very reasonable. But I still insist it has the finest tone of any battery radio I ever heard. Why don't you mention that!

(Thank you, Mr. Ralston, we are doing so.)

At This is a Battery Radio at This Low Price!

Beautiful, modern case of selected walnut, size 16 wide, 7" deep and 10" high. Completely portable, weighs only 25 pounds. Aerial attached, uses only ignition-type dry cells. 2 small "B" batteries, 300 hours use before replacing on ordinary ignition dry cells. Famous "Fern-O-Plus" dynamic speaker, greater tone values, greater selectivity. Hundreds of thousands of our radios in use—guaranteed. WHAT THE NEW SIGHT-SAVER LAMP MEANS TO

School children

At school age, twenty children out of every hundred have defective vision. At college age, the number has increased to forty out of every hundred. This incredible and tragic story of crippled eyes can be blamed in large part on the needless abuse of the eyes—and partly to improper lighting in the home. Straining the eyes to read newsprint or a printed page under poor and inadequate light, writing or studying under a glaring lamp which casts harsh shadows... these are the things which will slowly but surely result in damaged eyesight. During school years, when a child is using his eyes extensively, it is doubly important that you have good lighting in the home. This is what the new Sight-Saver lamp provides. A diffusing bowl under the shade throws part of the light upward to the ceiling. This is reflected back and spread over a large area, providing roomwide light that is soft and restful, without glare. Have your children's eyes examined every year—and get one of the Sight-Saver lamps for your home.

BUILDING, LOAN TO REPORT PROGRESS

Figures showing that industrial centers of Michigan are experiencing a shortage of housing facilities and that in cases of well-maintained property, rents are rising, are shown in a preliminary survey of the annual report now being compiled by the Building and Loan Division of the Department of State.

The report now being compiled for submission by Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State, to Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, will cover the 12 months ending June 30.

Activities of building and loan associations in Michigan, as reflected in records of the Building and Loan Division, show that these associations have had a vital part in supporting the institutions of government during the past year. By the payment of delinquent taxes on property held by them, payment of taxes on their own property, and loans to their borrowers so that levies on their property might be paid, these associations will be shown to have contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars to make economic recovery an actuality.

Michigan has 70 active building and loan associations, 52 state-chartered associations, and 18 federal-chartered. Assets of the Michigan associations amount to $109,873,509. Of this amount, the state-chartered associations have $97,529,389, and the 18 federal associations, $12,144,120.

MEALS ON FARMS TAKE MORE TIME

Farm and village homemakers can find advantages and disadvantages in their ability to utilize time efficiently in the home as compared to the use of time by homemakers in cities, reports Miss Julia Pond, extension specialist in home management at Michigan State College.

In a survey initiated by the United States Bureau of Home Economics, which offers figures for Miss Pond's comments, the farm homemaker spends 2.2 hours per week in purchasing and management as compared to 4.2 hours per week by the woman in the city. For care of the family the farm wife uses 3.9 hours per week, the city homemaker 9.8 hours.

Other comparisons include 22.8 hours on the farm in a week for meals, as compared to 14.6 hours in the city, 9.6 hours for care of the house as compared to 7.4 hours, 5.3 hours for laundering and 3.2 hours in the city, 5.5 and 4.1 hours for mending and sewing, 2.3 and 4.3 for other homemaking. On the farm the total hours in the week for homemaking average 51.6, in the city, 47.6 hours.

Some of the differences are the result of rural advantages, says Miss Pond. In care, the children in the country have safer places to play and more things to do thus eliminating adult supervision. Larger families permit the older children to care for the younger members.

Meal preparation, she thinks, can differ for several reasons. Farm housewives use more home produced foods which require more preparation. In many farm homes the increased hours necessary may be due to lack of modern conveniences, poor arrangement or more persons at the table.

Individuals can study their household problems and determine if inefficiencies are the result of poor planning, lack of equipment or poor arrangement. Time saved, says Miss Pond, need not be utilized for additional work, but for recreation or rest.

CHAPTER XI—Continued

They were still two days out from Sandy Hook when Agnes read in the radio news an explanation. Phillip Linsdale, brother of Arthur Linsdale who had shot himself, was indicted with two other officers of his company for misappropriation of trust funds. He had been jailed in Chicago and released on a fifty-thousand-dollar bond. Another brother, Emery, had fled to Canada.

As there were few on the ship, few stood on the dock awaiting the landing.

"There's Father!" said Agnes, and felt choked as she waved at him.

Her mother saw him, and that he was safe. Tricle wondered whether "Cash" might be lurking elsewhere along the dock to look at her. Tricle conquered this feeling before the gang-plank was down, and she went to the arms of her husband.

He kissed her, and she clung to him; then, feeling him release her, she let him go.

"Hello, Light One!" He caught his daughter and kissed her.

His wife watched him, her eyes never leaving him. She was trembling from her contact with him. He turned to her again, after he let their daughter go.

"You're older, Bob," she said bluntly. "Yes, of course—a year," he tried to say lightly, but he did not like it. "That's all."

"Just older, Bob?" she challenged him. She had to demand it of him immediately, at the very moment of meeting. Nothing else mattered in comparison. He knew what she meant. Had he become only older through this year of trouble and separation? Otherwise was he unchanged? Was he continuing to draw those checks to—Cash?

He answered her. If she had to ask him there on the dock, there she had a right to know.

"I suppose I'm poorer, Tricle," he said, and smiled ruefully. "Father," said Agnes quickly "how's Bee?"

"Dark One's fine, Light One."

"I came on account of her, Bob," his wife cast at him gratuitously. She knew that her daughter in September was to bear her third child. "My place seemed to be with her now. Are you going home with us?"

Bob nodded. "This afternoon," he heard about the Linsdales? He offered another topic.

"Arthur Linsdale killing himself!" Beatrice said, and caught her breath.

"You Heard About the Linsdales?" He Offered Another Topic.

she almost told her husband that, having heard, she had hurried home to him.

"And Phil indicted, and Emery in Canada. Do you know who's to defend Phil Linsdale?"

"Who?" said Agnes.

"O'Mara. He's getting a lot to do, these days. He can't take half the cases coming to him."

"From women shooting their husbands?" Beatrice asked.

Bob shook his head. "From people you'd never figure would get into trouble, Tricle, and are exceedingly likely, unless Agnes' friend saves them, to spend their next ten or twenty years in Leavenworth or some other Government jail."

CHAPTER XII

Change! Bee out of her house and back home, with Davis and her babies. It was one thing to contemplate it when you were abroad; another to lie in your berth on the train and know that tomorrow morning your sister, to whom this had happened, would meet you.

Change. A change in Father, more than that he was a year older, and poorer. He had lost something. A confidence, a certainty. Changes for the worse, all of these.

But there was a change for the better which Agnes felt; and it played its part in keeping her stirred and wakeful.

A change in Cathal O'Mara, rather in his regard. It had been declared when her father mentioned him; and now the Chicago newspapers, which Agnes had procured in New York, made it manifest.

She read about the Linsdale affairs and the demand for the return of Emery Linsdale from Canada: "Mr. O'Mara promised an answer tomorrow. . . . Mr. O'Mara says. . . . This was denied by Mr. O'Mara."

He represented and defended men recently among those first in the city, men accused but not yet pronounced guilty, men with rich and powerful friends, who, however, were themselves helpless to save them; and so they had sought—Cathal O'Mara.

As the train entered Chicago, she sought alterations in the physical aspect of the city to correspond to what here had happened. There were none.

When they stopped under the station train-shed and stepped down, then the change was sufficiently declared.

She saw it, first, in the face of Davis. She halted on the train-step; then she sprang down and went to him and kissed him. Her sister was there. She kissed Bee. "All right, Bee? All right?"

"Of course. . . . Hello, Mother!"

Jeb was there; her father had said he might be. Jeb had changed, but not enough. More ought to have happened to him. It so much had happened to Davis. But she kissed Jeb; and he kissed her twice and held her.

She could feel he was excited. "What's the hurry, Glen? There's no one else here. Stay with me, now." But she freed herself from him and turned back to Davis, and pulled him down to her and kissed him on his tight-pressed lips.

"See here," Jeb complained. "He's married. And I think I'm pretty good to come to meet you."

"You are, Jeb." But she could not feel for him at all. Had something more happened to Davis today?

Agnes asked Bee this, as soon as she got her sister aside. "No; why?" said Bee; and Agnes knew he had broken so gradually that those with him scarcely realized it.

Her father did not proceed home with them. He and Jeb went to their offices; and Davis departed to his.

Before long they heard Baskerville baying; a moment later they were before the house, and Selma stood with a little boy on each side of her, waving.

Agnes and her mother were home.

"It's a dizzy world," observed Bee, loosening her clothes and lying back on her bed. "One can't start at anything, however, praiseworthy at the moment, and be sure her enterprise will still be considered creditable when it's accomplished."

"You mean?" said Agnes. "I do, my child. The world no longer groans for increase. It doesn't want any more children, or cotton or wheat, or railroads, or any of the good old products and improvements that the best citizens used to pray for."

"You're lovely instincts, darling," the Dark One added, reaching her hand to her sister. "It's lucky you don't indulge them."

"Bee, how bad are things for us?" "Well, Father probably still has a little; not much, but maybe more than he owes. Thank God, Jeb got him into a big block of Insull stuff; and that's been standing up. Father's got it at the banks; but they give him money on it. He'll keep going; but he's in no shape to put up a quarter-million to save us again. Father bought him out of the original mess; but not even Father can do it now. After Father paid his debts, Davis got his new start by borrowing on his life-insurance; and he's borrowed the limit since then to keep on. Now he's at the end of it. What's our next move? I don't know."

Even Agnes' sense of security was shaken.

Jeb phoned; and this was as it had been a year ago. "Hello, Glen! Hello! This is old times! Lord, how I like it! . . . I'm alone in my office and on my private wire, so we can talk. . . . What's the matter with you, Glen? Who's there?"

"Nobody's here."

"Then tell me a little of what it means to be back to me."

"It's so different, Jeb."

"Not so different. I'll show you. I'm coming right out, to cheer you up."

"I don't want cheering up, Jeb."

"You certainly do."

"Tomorrow then, please, Jeb."

"Why the devil tomorrow? Why not now? Why?"

She did not know why, except that she could not feel like having him cheer her up by reassuring her of his fortune; she did not feel like meeting his claim to kiss her and hold her.

Her father came home: "When'll Jeb be along, Light One?"

"Not tonight."

Her father gazed straight at her. "All right," he said. "Your business."

The talk at the table, and later, while the family stayed together, carefully avoided discussion of their own situation, but it dwelt on others—and the Linsdales' particularly. And this brought mention, more than once, of their lawyer.

"Your friend's tackled a tough case, Light One."

It was nine o'clock when Cravath announced to Agnes: "Mr. O'Mara asks for you on the phone."

Agnes jumped.

"He's at Phil Linsdale's, probably,"

her father said, watching her. "Phil certainly leans on your lawyer, Light One."

Agnes turned slowly and went straight to the phone. What was he to say to her? And she to him?

He said: "Yesterday morning I read at last that you had landed—your mother and you."

"Yes," she said, "we did." What did he mean by "at last"? Had he been reading the papers all year for report of her return?

"This afternoon the papers said you are home."

"Yes."

"So tonight I am at one of your neighbors."

"Staying there?" said Agnes. What was this man to her? It was hard for her to speak.

"No. I'm leaving now."

"Will you come here?"

Agnes returned to her family. "He's coming here," she told them.

"Tonight?" demanded her mother.

"Now." And she left them again, and stood near the door.

At the Linsdales', Cathal returned from the telephone to the study, shut off from other rooms, where waited the man threatened with imprisonment for the rest of his life.

The room was dark, save for a cone of yellow light from the shaded lamp over the accounts and records they had examined together—over and over, and would never finish. Phil Linsdale sat pushed back just beyond the edge of the light.

"Going now, O'Mara?"

"Yes, sir. Good night."

"Not for a minute, O'Mara. Give me another minute, will you? Sit down again. . . . That's right. Now I've nothing to say. But I can't let you go. What in hell will I do? . . . Go over it again with my wife? Or sit with her and not go over it again? And my daughter! . . . Damn it, O'Mara! You went to college too; did you study Shakespeare? . . . He said too many things too well. To pat for you—you can't forget them."

"I have lived long enough; my way of life is fallen into the sea, the yellow leaf." Know it, O'Mara?

"Yes, sir."

"And that which should accompany old age, as honor, love, obedience, troops of friends, I must not look to have." That's me, even if you get me off, O'Mara. Do you suppose my brother was right—my brother Arthur? He should have died hereafter. That's another great lie, O'Mara. Macbeth said it of his wife when she told him she was gone. She should have died hereafter. Arthur should have stayed. He was far the best of us. He was twice me, twice my brother Emery, in Canada. . . . Come tomorrow night early and stay late, will you, O'Mara?"

Cathal drove slowly from the house. He could not let the man whom he had left hear him hurrying away.

Agnes at last heard his car.

She was in white, as he had left her a year ago, and so he saw her.

"I couldn't come sooner," he said.

"I know," she said. What was this man to her, when the sight of him and his voice, after a year, so stirred her?

Her father asked: "How's Phil Linsdale tonight?"

"He's not changed much since they released him on bail—and he buried his brother."

"He can't be really guilty!" Beatrice Gleneth protested. "He can't be!"

Cathal looked at her, and thought of long, long ago—11 months ago, before any of this had happened, and it had been Myrtle Lorrie who had required defending.

"Why?" he said.

"They accuse him of stealing funds. Mr. Linsdale would never steal. It is inconceivable. He is a friend of ours. I have known Mrs. Linsdale for years."

"Yes," said Cathal. "She told me."

Davis said nothing. He had risen and shaken hands with Cathal, and then lapsed into his chair.

Cathal O'Mara was changed too. It was not that his consequence was increased. She felt that, but not from him; it was in the attitude the others took toward him.

There had been nothing tonight—like the moment they had shared in the breaking storm under the lightning on the shore. They remained with her family, but she did not want him to go; he arose, however, and she went to the door with him. There they were alone.

"I'll be strange," he said, gazing down at her, "not to be watching the social columns tomorrow. All year I've bought every paper, every day, for chance of mention of you. Now you'll be staying home?"

"Yes," said Agnes. "Wouldn't you?"

"I would," he said, quite soberly.

"Especially regarding your brother-in-law."

"Davis." Agnes almost whispered his name. "How did he look to you?"

Cathal answered in one word: "Desperate."

Kept Macaroni a Secret
Naples was the center of macaroni manufacture for so many years that the Pompetian road leading into it was broken to bits by the continuous procession of wagons and trucks hauling in hard wheat and flour, says the European Cookbook for American Homes. The process for making macaroni was kept secret until the Fourteenth century, when a Frenchman got hold of it and took it back to France with him.

The wide contrasting ruff collar is feminine and trim while three bright buttons do their share for the bodice closing. ## CURIOUS DEVICES USED FOR SEEING AFTER DARKNESS

It is presumed that man originally toiled or played only during hours of sunlight. That when darkness came and the eyes could no longer see—he lay himself down to rest. Yet all the while, Nature, through volcanic and meteoric disturbances, through flashes of lightning, was trying to demonstrate to man its power to create light in the midst of darkness.

Fire was discovered, and man found he could prolong the day with the aid of firebrands, camp fires, torches.

The earliest lamps of which we have record were saucer shaped objects with a shallow projecting spout which held the wick. A hole in the center of this disc-like lamp held a small quantity of oil.

So far as is known, there was no radical development toward better lighting until 1733 A. D., when Leger of Paris devised a flat ribbon wick and burner. Not long after, Ami Argand of Paris, perfected a glass chimney which, together with his new improved type of circular wick and burner, produced illumination far superior to anything ever before seen.

Then in 1880, August von Welsbach, a German, developed a burner, in which the combination of a mixture of air and gas or vapor, heated to incandescence a mantle, composed of thoria and ceria.

Welsbach's mantle was, of course, crude and inefficient compared to present-day mantles. But to Welsbach should go much of the credit for making available to us today, the pure white light which is so easily and economically provided in modern pressure mantle lamps using gasoline and kerosene for fuel.

Cow Tunnel

One of the worst hazards of the highway is a loose cow. Because her actions are unpredictable, not a few motorists—not to mention cows—have lost their lives. Yet thousands of farmers are forced to drive their cattle across busy thoroughfares every day.

To overcome this, one Pennsylvania farmer recently built a tunnel under the highway near his house. It is of concrete pipe five feet in diameter. The farmer now drives his cattle under the road instead of over it. — Washington Post.
