

The "Kid" Began to Suspect Someone

At the end of the second round in a boxing bout, the "Battling Kid" staggered to this corner badly bruised by his opponent's blows. His manager shouted in his ear: "Keep it up Kid, he hasn't laid a glove on you yet."

The manager repeated the cheerful advice at the end of the next two rounds although the "Kid" looked worse after each encounter.

At the end of the fifth round, the boxer had to be helped to his corner. To his manager he mumbled: "You better watch the referee. Someone in that ring is giving me an awful beating."

Edward May Abdicate to Marry Mrs. Simpson

MERE scandal and gossip have no proper place in this department, but the "affaire Simpson," as the French would term it, has progressed until it assumes world importance.

As arrangements are being made for the quiet and uncontested divorce of Mrs. "Wally" Simpson, American friend of King Edward VIII of England, it is rumored in London society circles that the bachelor monarch will abdicate in favor of his brother, the Duke of York, and marry the attractive woman who has shared so much of his time in recent months.

In support of this rumor is the reported fact that plans are being made for renting the farms of the Sandringham estate in Norfolk, which is the king's private property. Also, there is a story that this estate may be sold to the Aga Khan, the immensely wealthy spiritual head of the Ismaili sect of Mohammedanism.

Should Edward give up the throne, it would eventually be occupied by Princess Elizabeth, eldest daughter of the Duke of York, and this succession would be decidedly popular with the people of England. The abdication king might revert to the dukedom of Cornwall, which provides a net income of about $350,000. There is nothing in British law to prevent the king from marrying whomsoever he pleases, but no ruler of the country since Henry VIII has wedded a commoner. Court gossip in London says that Prime Minister Baldwin and the archbishop of Canterbury recently appealed to Edward for greater discretion in his relations with Mrs. Simpson and were hotly rebuffed by the king.

English newspapers imposed on themselves a voluntary censorship in this affair, but it has been broken by the Sunday Referee which prints an article declaring the king "may marry by spring" that this would result in postponement of the coronation, and that tradesmen have been insuring themselves against such a delay.

Japan "Not Fortifying" Isles Under Mandate

FOR some time there have appeared in print stories about how Japan was establishing air and submarine bases in the former German islands of the South Pacific over which she holds a League of Nations mandate. It has been expected that the league's mandate commission would investigate these reports, and now Japan seeks to forestall such action by a formal report to the league in which she asserts she has "no fortifications, military or naval bases" in those islands. The Tokyo government says it is scrupulously observing that part of the mandate which forbids the use of the islands for military purposes.

Following establishment of a south seas bureau in April, 1932, all Japanese armed forces and men of war have been withdrawn gradually from the islands, the report says, adding that the natives of the islands never have been subjected to military training.

Five Groups Accused by Trade Commission

CHARGES filed in Washington by the federal trade commission accuse five trade associations of attempting to corner the automobile parts and accessories business. The groups, which were ordered to show cause why they should not be compelled to cease their alleged combine, are the National Standard Parts association, Detroit; the Motor and Equipment Wholesale association, Chicago; the Automotive Trade associations of Greater Kansas City, Mo.; Mississippi Valley Automotive Jobbers association and the Southwestern Jobbers association. Their officials also are defendants in the suit.

The commission points out that the associations represent a "substantial proportion of the total volume of business of all manufacturers and jobbers of automobile parts and accessories throughout the United States." The commission charges that these groups "have combined together with others jointly, preventing the establishment of new and additional competitors," and with "executing certain agreements and conspiracies among themselves and with others."

Blum Warns Socialists of Republic's Danger

RADICAL Socialists are threatening to quit the "Popular Front" government of France because of discord with Communists, and they have been warned by Premier Leon Blum that the one condition whereunder the life of the republic can be prolonged is that the Popular Front "remain united." In an address to the radical leaders, Blum said a split in the coalition government would force his immediate resignation, and that dissolution of the parliament and new elections would result.

Monarchists of Austria, who would like to make Archduke Otto emperor, were encouraged by a speech delivered by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg in which, defying the little entente, he shouted:

"No outsider, but only Austrians will decide whether the monarchy shall be restored!"

The day of a plebiscite to decide on the question of restoration of the Hapsburg claimant to the throne is "not yet in sight," the chancellor said. But, with Princess Adelheid, sister of Archduke Otto, listening, he declared that monarchist propaganda has a "proper place" in Austrian life.

"New Gold Standard" Tried by Uncle Sam

IT IS a new gold standard, a way of doing business which has never been tried before," was Secretary Morgenthau's characterization of the agreement just entered into by the United States, Great Britain and France, whereby, subject to 24-hour cancellations, they will exchange gold for each other's currencies. Financiers, economists and business men were taken by surprise by the move and immediately gave it close study. Some were disposed to label the maneuver "political expediency," but experts generally said it was a logical step in the sequence of monetary events but not positively in the direction of stabilization.

The new plan, Mr. Morgenthau said, differs from the old gold standard in that it will permit the export or earmarking of gold only to and between governments instead of private business institutions and traders.

"The door is wide open," said Mr. Morgenthau. "We're not going out drumming up business, but we'll welcome all other countries which want to participate."

According to the Treasury department, the United States alone will announce a selling price for gold. France and England will keep their selling prices secret, though there will be a free flow of gold between the stabilization funds of the three nations.

It was believed that Great Britain was the prime mover in this new pact. As one commentator put it: "The agreement was made necessary when France debased her currency and placed an embargo on gold exports, because Great Britain suddenly discovered that nowhere in the world was there left a fixed yardstick against which to measure international commitments and handle international exchange."

No More Army Chaplains, Say Disciples of Christ

THE Disciples of Christ, in annual international convention in Kansas City, voted to send no more of the church's ministers to serve as chaplains in the United States army. The resolution adopted also asked the Federal Council of Churches "to sever its connection with the war system by dissolving its chaplaincy commission" and "to provide a non-military ministry of religion to men in the armed services at the church's own expense and under their own authority without involving the Church of Christ in any alliance whatsoever with the state or the military system."

Nineteen Die When Ship Sinks in Lake Erie

EIGHTEEN men and one woman perished in the waters of Lake Erie when the Canadian ship Sand Merchant foundered off Cleveland during a gale. Seven men, including the captain, were picked up after clinging to life boats for eleven hours. The woman who was lost was the wife of the first mate, who also drowned.

Northern Italy was shaken by earthquake shocks that were felt as far away as Yugoslavia and Austria. Twenty persons were killed by tumbling walls, and thirty others were injured.

Many Are Killed in Moslem-Hindu Riots

FOR three days Moslems and Hindus in Bombay fought each other fiercely with guns and knives in riots that started during the construction of a Hindu temple near a mosque. Before the authorities had restored order about fifty persons had been killed and several hundred wounded. Nine attempts to set fires were made and one Hindu place of worship was burned to the ground.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Lansing—The census takers counted Lansing's population recently at 84,300—a gain of about 6,000 since 1930.

Cadillac—Northern Michigan potato growers will crown a "potato and apple queen" at the Northern Michigan potato and apple show at Kalkaska, Nov. 10 to 12.

Alma—The Michigan Sugar company here has started slicing beets. Tests show the sugar content to be a little over 13 percent, but this will no doubt be raised to 15 or even 16 percent before the season ends.

Marshall—Work has begun on the roadside park to be built by the state highway department on US27, between Olivet and Marshall. The park is to be rustic in design and is to cost the highway department approximately $7,000.

Faithorn—Wisconsin and Michigan are joining hands along the State line to keep down forest fires. A telephone line is being run from the Wisconsin fire tower near Pembine to the Michigan tower at Faithorn, a distance of approximately 11 miles.

Lansing—Michigan fruit growers are marketing a crop of apples that the State commissioner of agriculture estimates at 9,000,000 bushels. He states further that the average yield is 7,000,000 bushels, bringing an average income of about $8,000,000.

Evart—The six-mile paving project on US10, reaching from Evart to M86, has been completed. Completion of this strip of pavement leaves but a stretch of five miles before US10 east of Evart will be completely paved. The new road eliminates four dangerous railroad crossings and several dangerous corners.

Detroit—The pheasant population of the state gained a one-day reprieve because of the visit in Detroit of President Roosevelt on the opening day of the hunting season. All leaves of the police department were canceled to provide protection to the president. Many of the crack shots among police and detectives are hunters.

Lansing—The state conservation department has announced that approximately 40,000 acres of homestead tax land oil leases will be offered for sale in November. In addition to the 40,000 acres of land for lease, the state will consider sale of surface rights to 8,000 acres in northern Michigan. Mineral rights would be retained.

Petoskey—Plans already are under way for the national outdoor championships of the Amateur Skating Union of America at Petoskey, for the second successive year. The dates have been set for Feb. 6 and 7. Improvement of the rink will make it possible to stage the championships on a six-lap track instead of an eight-lap track as used in the 1936 meet.

Lansing—The state highway department has moved to safeguard traffic through or around Farmington on US16. Classed as "one of the most dangerous stretches of highway in the state" one-way traffic was to be initiated immediately on the through-city route and on the Farmington cutoff. The announcement followed a report of three more traffic deaths there.

Jackson—If you hear the opening bars of "Three Blind Mice" coming from an automobile, don't worry. It'll probably be just one of the new horns being produced by a local concern, here. In the Volstead days the company made a considerable stir by building a four-note horn that tooted "How Day I Am." Later it developed one that blew like a bugle call and sounded just as impressive.

Lansing—During September bounty hunters took one of the heaviest tolls of predatory animals on record since the bounty system went into effect. The heaviest take of the year cost the game protection fund of the state a total of $3,485. Bounties were paid on 333 coyotes including 11 pups, 32 bobcats and 5 wolves. A noteworthy angle is that the catch of male coyotes exceeded that of female coyotes, 172 to 150.

Ironton—Until last spring, J. M. Hill, 90 years old, had not missed a single day at his book store since he established it 63 years ago. The oldest business man in the city in age and service, Hill has seen the old dime-novel age pass into the present day western story magazines, and finds that men are his chief customers. The old demand for famous authors in sets has dwindled to the point where they are not even kept for the holiday trade.

Lansing—Four proposed amendments to the state constitution will appear on the Nov. 3 ballots. They include: No. 1, if the courts may use as evidence any dangerous weapon found by police when searching a suspect. Proposal No. 2 requires the Legislature to pass a general law for the incorporation of counties, allowing the people to simplify their county government. No. 3 would remove the tax on the sale of certain common articles of food and No. 4 would remove the tax on real property.

The Bored Are Boring—

People of Outstanding Personality Are Interested, and Never Bore

"YOUNG people of today," a mother writes, "seem to regard it as a sign of immaturity or weakness to be thrilled with anything. Their idea of sophistication is to appear bored with everything, the having-done-all-seen-all attitude that finds it very difficult to be impressed with anything. It is most annoying to find that anything you can offer them for a good time seems to be inadequate, that the thrills of your own youth cannot be repeated for them. It seems to me they miss a great deal."

I would point out to this mother, says a woman writer of international note, that naturally we cannot expect that the thrills of our youth will equally impress the young people of this day. So much that came to us gradually as colorful experiences are a part of their daily background. But there is something definitely true in what she says of a pose, of a deliberate care never to seem impressed, of a pretense at being bored.

It may interest such young people to know that that super-sophisticate, G. K. Chesterton, said "there are no bores, only people who are bored." In other words there can be nothing interesting about a person who is bored!

That takes us right down to a bedrock fact that can be observed if we will note people of outstanding personality, people whom everybody finds interesting. With exception they will be people who are vitally interested. They are never bored, never blasé. They are able to give out what interests others, because through their interest in things and people about them they are constantly taking in. Their main charm is a certain aliveness, a vitality which has absolutely no relationship with being bored.

POINTS ARE NO AGE INDICATION

The number of "points" on the antlers of a buck deer is no accurate indication of its age. But the diameter of the antlers at the base of "burr" is.

Game men will be out with calipers again during the open buck season this month working at checking stations along the northern highways where antlers can be calipered. As hunters come through with deer on their cars, the antlers will be measured and information on deer and local hunting conditions obtained.

The department of conservation is watching the age classes of deer shot during open seasons by this method. The killing of an excess proportion of young deer or an excess proportion of old bucks would indicate the herd is not in normal condition.

THE DETROIT EDISON COMPANY

GENERAL OFFICES
2000 SECOND AVENUE
DETROIT, MICHIGAN

October 27, 1936

TO THE CUSTOMERS OF THE DETROIT EDISON COMPANY:

This letter is about Detroit Edison rates for electric service.

The Michigan Public Utilities Commission has made a long-time study of our rates, and held public hearings. It has issued an opinion which shows the wide scope of the study, and also shows the Commission's fair attitude. There are statements and figures in that opinion with which we do not agree. It is not necessary that we should agree. The important thing is that we will be guided by the rate order which is annexed to the Commission's opinion.

The present General Commercial Rate is not changed. Neither is the rate for large blocks of high tension electricity, sold to customers who have the knowledge and the means to manage that high-power energy. The most important new rate will, we believe, be acceptable to customers who use current daily for many hours. It requires that service for all purposes be given through one meter instead of through separate meters for light and for power.

About the new rate for residence service. This makes some reduction to every customer except those who are paying the minimum bill of forty-five cents net per month, or ninety cents net on the usual two-month bill. The Commission has done away with the difference in rate between the small house and the large one, which formerly depended on the number of rooms in the house. This room count plan worked well for 38 years. We do not object to the change. It makes for simplicity.

The Commission in its opinion recognized that no figures set up for today could be correct for evermore, amen! But they think and we hope that the present order will serve for quite a while. They see that heretofore we have given to our customers the advantage of every economy which we have been able to make. There are a lot of conditions (besides the increasing price of coal) which may tend to raise rates. Please notice now that the 40-hour week which we adopted in 1932, a year before the Blue Eagle was hatched, is likely to stay with us. This means that a man or a girl in Detroit Edison service will have to so manage his or her work, and have the work so arranged beforehand, that he or she can earn a living wage in forty hours per week. It will probably require more money in the payrolls. Again, next year there has to be taken out of an employee's pay one cent for each dollar that is coming to him. This is his contribution towards what is called Social Security. The Company will next year have to pay two cents for each dollar that the employee receives. We are paying one cent this year.

About taxes. Not so long ago there was collected from us in taxes, payable to the United States, or the State of Michigan, or the municipalities where we do business, 7 cents out of every dollar which you paid us. Right now the figure is 14 cents out of every dollar which you pay us. Maybe some of you think that you pay no taxes. Don't believe it! You are paying taxes in a great many places and in a great many ways, but these other places and other ways are not our scrape. Ours is that we are acting as tax collectors to the extent of 14 cents out of every dollar that you pay us. And that is not the end of it. All indications are that taxes will go up. You pay the taxes. It is only out of what you pay us that we can pay them! And that's that!

The story of electric rate reductions is at its end for quite a while. We want you to notice once more that every economy that we have been able to make--and these have amounted to millions of dollars during the depression years--has been passed on to you in rate reductions. We are making this rate reduction all over the thirteen counties which we serve. We have always played fair with you and we will keep on doing so. We want you to play fair with us, even if it proves that the rates have been let down too far.

Just one last word--maybe some of you rather like to pay taxes. If so, you presumably know what the taxes are spent for and whether they are spent wisely and economically. We have our own opinion about all that, but this is no place for us to offer it. If you like to pay taxes, that is all right with us. Good luck to you!

HORTON LAW DOES NOT APPLY

Generally speaking, hunters who go north to hunt deer this month may ditch their fears of trespass.

The Horton trespass law, which has involved a hunting program in the predominantly agricultural areas of southern Michigan, does not apply to wild forest lands and opening, that are not legally posted against trespass or otherwise closed to public hunting as in the case of game refuges, public parks, private shooting preserves, conservation authorities say.

Under the Horton law anyone entering for the purpose of hunting upon farm lands or contiguous farm woodlots, whether fenced, posted or not without permission of owner or lessee commits a misdemeanor and is subject to arrest and fine.

However, in some of the counties of northern Michigan land owners have entered an agreement to post their land against deer hunting. Where lands are properly and legally posted in such a case, however, the hunter must stay out unless he has a definite permit to hunt there in spite of the signs.

ATWOOD ASKS SAFE DRIVING TO GAMES

A novel note of caution to drivers of cars bound to and from football games, is sounded by Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State and Chairman of the Michigan State Safety Council.

Statistics of mass movement of automobiles and their relation to safety on streets and highways, reveal normal expectations of deaths and injuries from careless driving in heavy football traffic.

"Of the approximately 30,000 people attending a game at Ann Arbor, riding there four in a car, an average of 100 miles, one person may be killed," Atwood points out, his observation being based on experience tables of the nation's Safety Council.

"A football crowd is a happy one, holiday mood," Atwood said, adding: "Extra caution on the part of individuals is required when cars move in mass. Some sober driving will save lives these days - and all others."

In many states special committees have been appointed by the governor to study the traffic conditions.

This is commendable.

Out of these studies and deliberations will come recommendations that will apply to each and every community in the states involved.

There should be more of the studies made. Many conditions on our highways today are serious causes of accidents and unless careful studies are made, will never come to light.

It is recommended that every community receiving these reports, help the community as much as possible in bringing to the front serious conditions in that community. There is not a problem anywhere that does not have a traffic problem. These problems should be discussed freely and recommendations made to the committee so that action can be taken by the main committee.

Go behind the movement, and support it.

POSTER CONTEST TO AID POTATOES

Statewide interest in stimulating more consumption within the state of Michigan grown potatoes is being aided by the announcement of a poster contest open to any student in the ninth, tenth, eleventh or twelfth grades of the Michigan public schools for use in connection with Michigan Potato Week to be centered in Detroit, December 1, 2, 3.

As well as consumer demand, the purpose is to promote the production, grading and marketing of better potatoes. The Michigan Quality Potato Association is co-operating with Michigan State College and the Michigan Department of Agriculture, the Detroit Board of Trade and hotel and restaurant association.

One hundred dollars in prizes is offered, with a first prize of $25 and 4 other smaller awards. Posters must be mailed with postage prepaid on or before November 25 to H. C. Moore, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

The size must be 14x22 inches, on three or four ply cardboard stiff enough to stand erect. Poster paints of not more than three colors, with black or white to be considered a color, are other rules. Flat colors and simple designs will have the best chance, Moore explains. Slogans should not be of more than six words and should be illustrated in the posters. Ideas, attractiveness and neatness will count most in judging. Students name, address, and name of school must be placed on the back of poster in upper right hand corner.

Those which win or receive honorable mention become the property of the quality potato association. Others will be returned if an addressed label and postage is enclosed with entries for return postage. During the Detroit exhibit a state potato queen will be crowned from among the three winners at the sectional shows at Iron River, Kalkaska and Mayville.

Philathea Notes

The second group of the Philathea Class held a very successful and enjoyable Birthday Party on Saturday afternoon, October 24th at the church parlors.

The Chaplain read the 103rd Psalm, following the opening hymn, "Rescue the Perishing." Mrs. Zuse led in prayer. Mrs. Millie Bowman, our Philathea president and leader of the Birthday group, presided. Mrs. Pauline Vedder read the minutes of the previous meeting and several cards of thanks were presented.

Mrs. C. H. Zuse, leader of Group Three, announced an "Ella Cinder's" party for Friday afternoon, Nov. 6, at the home of Mrs. Carrie Swarth. At which time the "patches" will be removed from the apron and an opportunity given for placing contributions in the pocket. The apron will be presented to the one contributing the most generous "patch" and the ladies are urged to come and enjoy the program and lunch.

After this announcement a pleasing program, including the following number, was enjoyed by the guests present: A duet by Mrs. Florence Baughn and Virginia; a violin solo by Mrs. Millie Elliott with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Zuse; a radio-companion by Mrs. Reason, "Do be by Miss Shirley Reason, "Do be by Miss Shirley Reason, "Do be by Miss Shirley Reason; a reading by Jeanette Haines; a reading by Betty Leona Campbell and one by Betty Jean Isham; a violin and piano duet by Virginia Baughn and Betty Schaff; instrumental duet by Jeanette Clark; piano and violin duet by Mrs. Florence Baughn and Virginia; and class history, "In the Beginning".

It was voted to send $1 to the Baraca Philathea Union to "light our candles." One pleasant feature of our birthday party was a candle of our candles. Leona Ruth Campbell and Shirley Reason, very charmingly extinguished the candles at the proper time.

After the singing of "When We Asunder Part," the hostesses served dainty refreshments. About $25 was realized from this delightful function and the group sponsoring it wish to thank all who in any way assisted in making it a success.

On Sunday morning at the study hour of the class, it was voted to hour of the church budget. This was "International Temperance Sunday," and Mrs. Zuse brought out a good discussion on the topic, "Law, Love and Temperance." Next Lord's Day, with the topic, "The Christian Warfare" we are to evaluate our responsibility as Christians in the great moral struggle now going on.

Prayer meeting and Bible study on Wednesday evenings will be a privilege of which many Philatheas will be able to avail themselves beneficially.

Last Sunday was Missionary Day in the S. S. Together with the boxes and personal gifts, the fund was enriched $8.70.

Sympathy and prayers of the class are extended to those who so recently have been bereaved, "for comforters" are needed much of a Christlike touch.

Mrs. Minnie VanSlambrook and Miss Clella Fish will be hostesses for the November meeting of the class at the farm home of the former on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 11. This will be the quarterly Missionary meeting with potluck supper and a good program. All members and friends cordially invited.

Ask Him Before Giving Your Child an Unknown Remedy

Practically any doctor you ask will warn: "Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first."

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia," the standard of the world is established. For over half a century many doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." Safe for children. No other is "quite like it."

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Now also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

MURDER MASQUERADE

By
INEZ HAYNES IRWIN

SYNOPSIS

Mary Avery, a widow who lives in the harbor town of Satuit, Mass., with two negro maids, Sarah Darbe and Bessie Williams, writes a manuscript describing the famous Second Head murder, which occurred on her estate. Next to Mary live Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stow who every year give a summer masquerade party. One of the guests of this function is murdered. Nearby live Dr. and Mrs. Geary and their married daughter Edith and her husband Alfred Bray. Doctor Myron Marden and his step-granddaughter, Caro Prentiss, a beautiful young girl who was born in France. Next live Paul and Lora Eames and their daughter Molly. Molly was engaged to the murdered man, Ace Blaikie. She had been engaged to Walter Treadway, who had been the murdered man's secretary, but the engagement was suddenly broken and he had left town. Other neighbors are the Fairweather sisters, Flora, a hopeless invalid and Margaret. All but the latter two attended the masquerade. Mary's eight-year-old niece Sylvia Sard is visiting her for the summer. The wooded part of Mary's estate is called the Spinney. In it is a tiny log cabin. Near a stone wall is a tiny circular pond called the Merry Mere.

FRIDAY—Continued

The day of the Stow masquerade is always frightfully exciting. Everybody is at home frantically putting the last touches or more frantically putting the first touches to his costume. And yet, invariably my telephone buzzes all day. This year it was, "Oh, Mary, do you happen to have any black velvet ribbon about an inch wide . . . ?" "Oh thank goodness!" "Mary, do you happen to have a white dress of any description—I want to use it for a foundation—lace, chiffon, crepe de chine . . . ?" "You're quite right! I'll never throw any dress away again!" . . . "I'll send right over for it."

Of course I remember every detail of the day of this masquerade. In the first place, I keep a diary of sorts, and I always scribble a few lines in it before I go to bed. In the second place, less than twenty-four hours after the party we were all scraping our memories to dig out of them every detail of that fateful Friday. And then it happens that, year after year, on the day of this most important social event of the season, my household arrangements fall into the same pattern. All day long my two maids are at the Stow house, helping Mattie's two maids to get the big house ready for dancing and to prepare the delicious food which Mattie always serves. Bessie Williams, my cook, comes back at noon to bring me my luncheon on a tray and Sarah Darbe, my second maid, returns at night to prepare my simple dinner and to fuss about me while I dress. My maids are the only people in Satuit who ever see my costume before I appear in it.

These two women have been in my employ—I prefer to say have been members of my household—for many years; Sarah for a little more than twenty; Bessie for a little less.

Bessie is a simple, loyal being, much darker than Sarah, short and very stout—a warm, dark ball of a woman—plentifully dimpled, still wearing her hair in the braided kinky masses which marked it when I first engaged her. Sarah is coffee-colored, slender and shapely. Sarah takes as much care of her complexion, her teeth and her figure as I do. Her taste in clothes is impeccable—quiet, becoming. When I go to Europe I always bring back to Sarah something to wear from Paris. Moreover, as fast as I finish a book or a magazine I hand over to Sarah. We discuss articles and stories.

This summer, as I have said, my niece Sylvia Sard was staying with me.

Sylvia is eight years old. She is the youngest daughter of my youngest sister. The Sard has gone to Europe on a two-months' business trip. I have several nieces and nephews but Sylvia is my favorite. It is not because she is the youngest—although she is the youngest—or the prettiest—for she isn't the prettiest—but because she is the most enchanting. She is a friendly little being and chatterbox; but that is only part of her charm. She possesses to an extraordinary degree the astute observation of children, that primitive, plastic, naked quality of mind which gives pictures so deeply on the memory.

But friendliness and that special intelligence are by no means all of Sylvia's charm. I find it hard to describe a certain precocious quality. There are moments when—because of a casual originality of expression, an accidental wisdom in thought, an unexpected picturesqueness of phrase—every child seems a genius. In her very babyhood, Sylvia said many things of the type which adoring relatives always treasure. But when I say she has something that I have never seen in other children, I do not refer to that sort of thing. It is an unknown quality—an X. Perhaps that X is merely a common sense, astonishing in one so young. Whatever it is, I find myself talking with Sylvia exactly as though she were of my own age.

It was a remark that Sarah Darbe had made several days before which put it into my head to take Sylvia to the masquerade. Of course Sylvia had begged me to take her, as she had begged the preceding year, and of course I had refused her this year as I had then—on the plea that children never went. What Sarah said was, "Wouldn't it be cute if Sylvia could go as your child, Mrs. Avery? I mean dressed exactly like you." Of course I will confess now that I had been racking my brain for an excuse to take her. And instantly I made up on my mind that I would take her—but keep her there only until the unmasking.

The moment I came to this decision Sarah and I rushed up the narrow wooden staircase to the attic and began turning over the things in the huge costume trunk. In fifteen minutes, we had got to work. The long and short of this story is that before that afternoon was over, we had thrown together a costume for Sylvia which, as exactly as possible, followed the lines of mine.

Had I not taken Sylvia to the party—I have often wondered since—how soon, if ever, would we have discovered who killed Ace Blaikie? Perhaps the truth would have come out in time, certainly not so soon.

Nobody in Satuit makes calls on the afternoon of this important day. And so it was with a groan of quite hypocritical self-pity—for I was really conscious of a pleasurable excitement—that I saw Molly Eames's roadster come curving into the driveway about two o'clock. Caro Prentiss was with her.

"We know just how welcome we are, Aunt Mary," Molly announced cheerfully as they came onto the piazza steps, "but we knew it was worse to go home. Everybody is so busy and so snappish the afternoon of the masquerade that I become practically a pariah. Who could bear to watch us peacefully taking a cool drink?"

"You can have all the cool drinks you want," I assured her, "if you'll get them yourself."

"How does it happen, Mrs. Avery," Caro asked me, "that you're not working on your costume? Everybody else in Satuit is—that is except Molly and myself."

"Mine has been finished for many days," I answered.

"So has Molly's," Caro replied. "And I brought mine from Europe. Lucky me! I've not had to put a stitch in anything."

I remember thinking that this was the first time Molly had not worked on her costume until the moment she put it on. Molly's costumes were events. I wondered why she was so fore-handed this year.

Presently Molly returned with a tray loaded with bottles, glasses and ice.

As I sipped my ginger ale, I studied the two types. They presented a marvelous contrast.

Molly Eames is one of the most beautiful girls I have ever seen. A Botticelli, but a robust Botticelli. Flesh white as a gardenia's petal but rich and thick; hair pale gold but thick and deeply waved, stiff like a brilliant pliable wire; eyes pale blue and silken-lashed, but with a strange compelling quality. As she lounged in my great, peacock-backed wicker chair I noticed what carnival the sun was exciting in the big diamond on her left hand—Ace Blaikie's engagement ring. I noticed, above all, that although she did not look tired, she looked wrong—mentally weary I mean. Yet her eyes stormed. Often their gaze set for an instant on the distant view; but they were not studying it; they were watching something that was going on within herself.

Talk went on lazily between us three. I am one of those who is always thrilled by beauty in other women. No more beautiful pair ever sat on my piazza.

Caro was a perfect contrast to Molly. In color she is all brown and reds; reddish brown hair; tiny brown freckles; warm red lips. Her features are piquant but her profile is as perfectly marked off as though drawn with a ruler. I love to follow the straight line of her brow, the tip-tilted line of her nose, culminating in the sculptured combination of short upper lip, curved lower one and cleft delicate chin.

I liked our lazy chat. Caro was doing most of the talking. Molly's preoccupation permitted me to study her closely. Molly had, I was sure, power—power of many sorts above all tremendous will-power. I like to think of the iron interior under the sheath of her pellucid beauty. Caro's talkativeness permitted me to enjoy what was her most fascinating quality—a bounding, abounding vitality.

Caro possessed that understanding and sympathy which makes for tact. I felt that she sensed her friend's preoccupation; that she was trying to cover it up. I helped her.

"You like America, Caro," I drew her out. "You would like to live here always?"

"Oh yes!" Caro exclaimed. "Oh yes! It has opened a whole new world to me and a whole new life."

Caro's quick ears caught before mine the sound of an automobile turning into the drive. "Here comes Ace, Molly!" she exclaimed. It seemed to me I read into her voice a faint note of warning.

As though Caro herself caught and regretted that involuntary cry, she added in a casual tone, "In Mr. Hexson's car. And my beloved granddad's with them."

"I knew as well as you two girls where to go for a drink," Ace Blaikie threw out of the murmur of greetings. He seated himself between Molly and Caro. Doctor Marden chose a seat beside me.

That was the last time those three men were to sit on my piazza together. All wore the Legion d'Honneur. Doctor Marden, himself a tall man, the shortest of the three, appeared first. He wore his abundant silvery hair straight back from his forehead. On his chin lay an imperial, still black. A thin aquiline nose cut like the blade of a scimitar out of the planes of his face. His black eyes, extremely fine, lighted a long, pallid, pear-shaped face. Those eyes were definitely sad and yet they watched all the time. Watched what? I didn't know then what they watched.

Next came Ace—a noticeably tall man. Though in the late forties, Ace retained his magnificent figure. Although his golden curls were shot with white and his face had developed lines, he was still one of those men you would turn to look at in the street.

Tallest of all was Bruce Hexson. Physically, he differed as widely from Ace as he did in character and personality. He was big with enormous, muscular, stooped shoulders. In some aspects—standing straight—his figure recalled statues of Lincoln; in others—crouching over—he looked like a grizzly bear. His huge head was made huger by the tangled, dark shag of his hair. His hazel eyes—once brilliant, now luminous—lay like lonely lakes in the depths of great hollows.

As usual, when Ace entered a company, he became its center. Inensibly our talk focused upon him. Bruce Hexson sat very quiet, a little absent, as one drifting in and out of the conversation. Myron Marden threw in an occasional comment. Occasionally Ace's glance rested on Molly for an instant. I noted a new element in his look and I did not like it—a triumphant possessiveness.

In spite of Ace's vivacity, a constraint had fallen upon us. Caro Prentiss had completely quieted; a veil of reserve seemed to deaden her animation. Bruce Hexson's eyes wandered from Ace's face to the distant marsh and there set in a preoccupied serenity.

I, conscious of conflicting psychological currents in my little party, was beginning to develop social embarrassment when diversion came. I caught the scamper of Sylvia's little feet over the lawn as she came up from the pool. She came racing up the steps, carrying her favorite doll—Dorinda Belle.

"Who is Sylvia?" Ace greeted her. "Come here!"

Sylvia went to him unhesitatingly; perched on the high knee to which he invited her. From the precarious height she responded with her shy composure to all their greetings.

"How is Dorinda Belle?" Ace asked.

"She's very well, thank you," Sylvia answered in her prim, conventional little-girl way.

Dorinda Belle had been my doll. Now she is Sylvia's. Sylvia possesses all kinds of dolls—but of them all she loves Dorinda Belle best. Why I don't know. Dorinda Belle possesses a sawdust-filled, cloth body, a china head, china arms, china legs. Her hair is painted on her skull in great jet-black waves which part in the middle and scallop over her forehead. Her blue eyes stare. Her red lips smiler. But somehow she is a real doll and subconsciously Sylvia recognizes that. Ace knows Dorinda Belle. Once, during a call which was purely social, Sylvia told Ace that Dorinda Belle was ill. Ace solemnly took her pulse and temperature and wrote out a prescription. "Are you going to the masquerade tonight?" Ace inquired.

"What a question, Ace!" I came to Sylvia's rescue. "Don't put such ideas into her head!"

WEEKLY TRIPS MADE TO DETROIT

W. H. MEYER

THE SOYBEAN

This New Source of Revenue for Farmers is Increasing Yearly and One of the Most Important Crops of the Future.

A hundred years ago the soybean was brought to this country. For centuries it has been used as food by the Chinese, but in the United States it was treated as a novelty plant and was not cultivated as a field crop for many years. Last year, however, the income from the soybean crop was $85,000,000.

First in the ranks of those who experimented and developed the soybean is Henry Ford. He recently built a $5,000,000 soybean processing plant at River Rouge, and uses the product of 60,000 acres of soybeans in the manufacture of Ford cars. The oil yields glycerine used for shock absorbers, and enamel for finishes. The meal is converted into horn buttons, gearshift knobs, window-trims and distributor cases.

As a food, soybeans are taking an important place. The bean is converted into cheese, soup, butter, macaroni, salad oil, breakfast food and milk (from grinding the beans in water). It can be made into bread and bakers are anticipating great sales for it. Soybeans are ideal for diabetics because they contain very little sugar and no starch. There has been a great increase in the consumption of soybean oil used in vegetable shortenings and other food substitutes.

After the oil is extracted the meal can be fed to livestock. Silage made from soy plants mixed with corn stalks produces more milk, more meat than straight corn silage. A green crop of soy plants plowed under will often increase the yield of wheat 6 bushels per acre. Experimentation and the development of this "little honorable plant" as the Chinese call it, has indeed yielded gratifying results.

LUTHER PHELPS

Luther Phelps 80, who has lived at Baughn's Bluffs, Portage Lake was found dead at his cottage Tuesday morning. Coroner Grieve of Howell and Detectives Kelly and Finlan were called. The coroner decided death was due to a heart attack. Surviving is one son, Charles, of Detroit. The funeral will be held at Swarthout's funeral home, Tuesday afternoon, with burial in Saline.

Miss Carolyn Left spent the week at the home of and Mrs. Gene Dineen.

NOTES OF THE ELECTION

The election enriched local Democrats to the extent of about $700. This money was wagered on Roosevelt to win. The money was put up a month ago but not covered until Saturday. Detroit Landonites came out Saturday with $300 but as $400 was available local Republicans had to raise this extra amount. Monday, $110 more in Landon money showed up which was taken. During the day $300 more in Democrat money came in but this was not taken as the Landon money had become scarce. The Roosevelt money came from various sources. Local merchants contributed the bulk of it and several traveling salesmen were also in it. The amounts contributed ranged from $5 to $100. The Republican money also came from similar sources, quite a little of it from Howell.

M. E. Darrow, local Democrat committeeman denies the statement that any residents of the Pinckney territory voted. He says there was

The profession of funeral directing was developed as a response to the universal desire to pay all possible respect to the remains of those who have passed on. The modern funeral director is a man of specialized training and long practical experience.

His function is to give necessary counsel and advice, as well as actual service to those bereaved. The members of this organization are fully prepared to serve in such a manner.

Duty

This week we had our National Election. After months of listening to all parties we hold our heads and wonder where we are and what we are. On election day we go to the polls to do our patriotic duty. It is much like the old soldier, who said, "I seen my duty and done it."

We see our duty as a bank to help you to progress financially in your lives. Our duty goes only as far as to point out the various ways and means of building a reserve. The main duty falls on the customer. Almost everyone will go to the polls to do his country and his neighbor's duty, but how many go to the bank to save as a duty to themselves?
